TECH BRIEFING No 4

"EXCALIBUR"

CONFIDENTIAL - SUPER NOTS AND OT C/SING

CAPTAIN BILL ROBERTSON

22 August 1985

Hello everybody! This is the 22nd of August 1985. And this is Captain Bill Robertson, Frankfurt, RON'S ORG.

<Bravo!>

Bravo. Ah so! And we'll give this R-factor: This will be Tech Briefing # 4 - but it's a CONFIDENTIAL BRIEFING. And is just for people who are starting NOTs, or on Solo-NOTs.

And just to bring you up to date since the last Tech Briefing a little bit: In the last year we have done the things which for instance RTC or the Implanters would call "Our usual suppressive and squirrellish acts". Like bringing people to the State of Clear and straightening out their messed up DCSIs. Getting them programmed to go up the Bridge and getting them onto the Bridge, and making real OTs, where they are Cause over the data and CAN apply it.

So, we say to the other side: "Those are Suppressive Acts and we are very proud to be able to say that we have accomplished quite a few of those and have many people on the OT-levels, at least 12-15 and have produced in between 20 and 30 - maybe a couple more - Clears. Or straightened them out from their misdeclares or their invalidations, plus a lot of other grades, and so on."

Now, what the purpose of this particular meeting is - from the C/S viewpoint - to show some of the traps and tricks and problems that cases get into and that cases do not know about. Even people who are - ah - went up the Bridge in other areas, because they didn't have the benefit of Flag C/Sing, and the benefit of reading the LRH C/Ses on Advanced Levels.

And to handle some of the possible misunderstoods, possible confusions, possible things that would affect their ability to audit NOTs successfully - that is the purpose of this particular briefing.

To start off - let us assume, as we are all here OT III or above - I will talk from the OT III - NOTs-viewpoint. So, we don't have to go back and look at very simple things, but I will assume that you understand, that first of all we are dealing in the beginning with the composite case. All right. That means it's a complete mass of BTs and clusters. The guy's stuck in there somewhere and he is dramatizing whatever occurred - maybe on his OWN track - maybe on somebody ELSE's track. And he is totally the effect of all these charges, BPCs, wrong items, things, events, engrams, secondaries, locks. Everything that you can imagine in Dianetics or in regular grade charge or anything you can find on a list can be wrong with a guy. All right?

So, it is very difficult to get a guy from a "no auditing" up to the State of Clear. But basically we know that is what's done on the lower levels. All right, now we DO that. You have got a Clear.

Now, this is where the confusion starts with the most people, that I have talked to, because of the security, that was put around this area. And even in the beginning, after the people are on it, they are treated like they shouldn't know anything about it. They were just given, totally robotically, to "Run this". And, "That will be your next level".

So, first I want to straighten out the confusion of - from the OT III and above viewpoint - like "What is a Clear?". And, "Why do we therefore define this guy as a Clear and how come there are four different ways of Clear - the ways that they could BE Clear - but there is really only ONE STATE OF CLEAR?"

Well, this is interesting, because if you look back the time track, you will find that ... I'll just make a diagram here, but it can be given out with copies and so on ..., if we look at - from the OT III data we have, what LRH calls - Incident I. It occurs at start of track, right?

So, just let us take a single being now and we have start of track here as a line, and we have here Incident I. Now exactly why is that the start of the track? Because that is the first point, that he started COMPULSIVELY to make pictures. You may say: "Well, yeah. But why?", and so on. "But that implant, that's weird!". Well, this comes up again and again, but the point is that he is COMPULSIVELY making pictures FROM HIS OWN VALENCE from that point.

In other words: He, having gotten his Incident I, is now somehow making pictures. And we've run guys out from Incident I, that have discovered the reason WHY they make pictures like that - and it's because they had BTs stuck to them from EARLIER INCIDENT Is, who went into THEIR VALENCE - all right? Therefore they don't see them. Some of them do sort of feel it as a little something, they can't get a hold of around the back here. But some BTs, that were so much - shall we say - at effect, or just totally ready to be robotically inclined, that this BT you are handling started making pictures, or at LEAST he saw things and then he found out, he had MEMORIES of these. He could have RECALL after Incident I. And no matter if he looked at it, and he COULDN't as-is it. Why? Because of ownership. It's actually THESE guys, that are holding the picture, you see?

So, he looks at the picture - HIS picture would as-is of it - but then, there is still the other guy's picture, that he would have left. And since they are all SHARING THE SAME VIEWPOINT coming up the track, you don't get a blow on this guy, you don't get an as-isness.

So, however, he CAN DECIDE for himself and FOR HIS VALENCES - you see? Because he IS in CONTROL of them - that they DON'T NEED THESE PICTURES ANYMORE - all right? So this is not the only point where Clear can come. It can come there, but it doesn't have to. Because he CAN decide for himself and get the agreement of these guys NOT to make pictures. It doesn't make a STABLE Clear - but it makes a Clear, all right? Because they are not having to have pictures and they can create them and unmock them all as a team. "We all do it - because the boss says we do it - right?"

Anyway, the difference here being that this guy is NOT "out of valence" - OTHER PEOPLE ARE IN HIS VALENCE, see? And he is the boss. He says "OK, you guys, now ..." Or whatever he thinks it is. After Incident I there is a confusion. He never knows exactly, what happened in the "snaps" of Incident I, etc. WE know, that there were OTHER BEINGS PUT WITH HIM, ok?

So, if he can therefore handle these guys and control them easily enough by his more ability, he can get them to agree NOT TO MAKE PICTURES. So, we have what we call "a Clear". It would be a guy who doesn't NECESSARILY have to have run out his OWN Incident I, but somewhere up the track, right? he may have gotten (graph) - you see? - into Incident II here and let's put back here (graph) I think it's dating 1 Quadrillion - 1 and 1/2 Quadrillion was the CC Implant, (graph) Incident II is 75 Million with the 36 days and the OT II stuff, ok?

Now, so there is THAT on his track and then here we go, he is up into PT (graph). Single being, except with these guys IN HIS VALENCE. So, any point along here ... . Now we are in PT AUDITING this guy, right? Now we KNOW, that essentially he is NOT just this - he IS A COMPOSITE. He has other beings, who have done the SAME STUFF in various cause-effect points and they have all come conglomerated around him - all right? And that guy, we are auditing, is the most strongest or the leader you might say or the boss or whatever.

So, in essence, since Incident I he may have had (graph) more additions to his composite case at any point along the line because of mutual incidents or because of implants or because of whatever. But these guys have their OWN tracks down the line, all right? Have their OWN tracks, no matter HOW they come into HIM. So, when you get into this PT auditing, you have the guy somewhere in here, as a thetan, with all these other thetans around him, shaped up into his body form and everything else. Well, it's what we know as the NOTs and OT III Case, right? So, this is what we get.

Now, how does a guy go Clear? OK, he can do it in several ways: One is, he can run Dianetics. And he gets in back of an engram, which has got THAT POSTULATE in it that HE (needed pictures) - or he UNMADE the postulate, so that now "he didn't need pictures". Your see?

"I MUST remember this" or "I must HOLD onto this" comes from that Bulletin - I think some of you have seen - where "a thetan can do anything forever". He also tries to HOLD POSITION forever. So he gets in a certain incident, that he didn't want to happen. So he tries to hold on and says: "No, I'm not going to let that happen". So, he is always making an impression of it. But also, SO ARE THE GUYS IN HIS VALENCE. So, he can go UNCLEAR at that point.

Now in Dianetics, if you run to that point of that engram, he does: "WOW, Oh God! Man! No wonder I was holding on that that thing! Ahh, I didn't need to make that picture. Hey! WOW!" As soon as he doesn't need to, then he goes out of agreement of course with all of these guys in here (the composite), that HAVE to make pictures, right? HE doesn't need to make them, HIS VALENCE-GUYS (IN HIS VALENCE) don't even have to make them, right? So right away all the pictures, that are NOT his (but that he copied) and all those that ARE his and the guys in his valence - Phffft! - disappear!

They don't need them anymore and he clears out some space. Because of course, if you are the BOSS of an org, you keep your OWN files closer to you, than other guys keep their files to you, (than other guys keep their files close to you), you know? So in YOUR office - your files - and in your office - Boom! - right away, you've got a LOT OF SPACE! No matter if some other guys may have been duplicating his files, they certainly move out of they way: "Uh, what's, what's going on here? All those - all that stuff - that was holding us - disappeared!"

So he as-ises his part of it. So he clears out a little bit here - a little space around himself. These guys (composite) are still hanging around. They're stuck in the body and still ... and everything like that. Basically the guy has cleared out a little space around him - and we say: "Ok, this guy is Clear". HE DOESN'T NEED TO COMPULSIVELY MAKE PICTURES ANYMORE. And you notice how "delicate" that the Clears are, right? If you don't hat him properly on "Nature of a Being", if you don't get them up through the non-interference-zone quickly, if you don't treat them with very - you know - handle the grade charge, that may still be left, so THEY DON'T COMPULSIVELY PULL IN BTs OR OTHER PICTURES FROM OTHER PEOPLE. If you don't cut these little lines delicately, because - realize the guy is Clear here - and you didn't HAT him yet. He's not hatted. TWO sides of the bridge, you know: You get the auditing side and the training side. He's not hatted - doesn't get the knowledge WHY he is Clear, and "What did he get out of?" or "What's in his space?".

It's VERY delicate. He may start having little comm lines back in here, back into the bank. So, you get off the grades charge by severing those possibilities of these guys - let's don't just say HIM - or charge in reflection from the environment, HITTING them and they're influencing HIM. And HIM seeing the environment and then wondering about it from something, he knows in the bank. Anyway, he's gonna get connected up again, if you don't handle him. So we try to handle the grades charge and the guy who needs anything as a "wants handled". Get his OCA stable. Get him hatted on "Nature of a Being", so he realizes, if he sees any pictures, it's NOT his. It's gonna be handled LATER. So he isn't going" "What is it? What is it? Is it mine? MUST BE MINE!". As soon as he decides that - Zap! He's got an increased ability to postulate here - that's the other thing - an increased ability to postulate as a Clear - means that HE CAN POSTULATE HIMSELF UNCLEAR. That's simple, it's simply it.

So, some point on the track he decided to HAVE TO MAKE PICTURES and later on, now he decides, he DOESN'T HAVE TO. All right? That's all a Clear is. Now he can go that way on a Dianetics cognition - getting that - pffft - at the back of one of this "must-hold-on-to-it"s.

He CAN get it from contacting a BASIC on a BASIC-CHAIN of engrams - which is like - something in Incident II, you know? Like that explosion or the big holder of ALL this engram stuff. These pictures are very much then "explained" to him and he realizes, that he's just been mocking them up and - pffft - the whole thing goes. So he can get it through (graph) C.C., Clear through Dianetics, through hitting a large holding incident - right? - which is causing him to be connected into all the others' pictures. That's also a Dianetics type thing.

But it CAN happen on other processes as well, 3D Criss Cross - 3DXX - as we can call it, the old Criss Cross; goals processes - if you get a 'reliable item' on the guy, he goes back to a purpose line or something like that - you possibly can get it blown by prepchecking it - the postulate comes off - BOOM - and he doesn't need to make it. Anyway, there are ways to do it. Or he can get totally in P.T. with Objectives, and realize all that other stuff is pictures and he isn't making them. This is sort of - again he is not very hatted about it - he realizes:"Hey, I don't need to make pictures!" Even Power Processing can make a Clear, because it blows off the engrams he's stuck in. OK? So there's a lot of ways you can make that.

Now, what is a "Past Life Clear"? Well, that's a guy, that has had auditing since 1950 here (graph) and somehow went Clear in auditing. So he - but he did "Bunk" there and he went from one body life into another one. So you are just really dating, where he went Clear. Just like a Dianetics Clear, but :"What process?" and "When?". All right?

So you have a Clear and your "Past Life Clear" (graph). Then you have the "Clearing Course Clears". Now the Clearing Course is where it gets interesting, because the Clearing Course Clears - the ones who did the Clearing Course... It's this particular incident. It's one which forces a guy to mock up these certain items and pictures and it's done with a lot of pain and unconsciousness. And since Incident I is the FIRST time, that he can go really out of valence as being - see? - and has not recognized, he's got other people in his valence... But he can REALLY go out of valence on the CC too. There is a LOT OF FORCE in that and also, there were other beings going through that. But not all at the same time. They were done one after the other.

So, if you happen to get smashed with them later - or with people (beings) who have done it (gotten the CC-Implant) later - there is liable to be a great confusion about it. Now, because as he is ALSO going OUT OF VALENCE he can't as-is it, because it's somebody else's as well, you see? Even if they had it a second later or 3 years later or 1000 years later, he says:"Well, yeah, I cognited, 'Oh ho!' I'm not an animal!" He still has got this PICTURE of an animal. So, he runs the CC. He runs the item. And he is not only running it on himself, he's running it on ANY BT that he's got around him, that has that item.

So that's why it produces a Clear, that ... - pffft - it blows all the COPIES in his space, all the copy charge, that would have connected him up and confused him since the CC all the way to PT. And then puts him back basically to this state again, to where he's got his - you know - his Incident I charge and that's about it.

Now, it's not necessary to have Incident I charge - understand that. This is what makes him delicate. Because he can get into the unknown of "Why?" If he changes his mind, he can't quite get out of it, you know? He can't quite understand, what's happening. He still hasn't handled the Incident I. OK, but that's people IN HIS VALENCE. We're talking about now what makes him OUT OF VALENCE. The cc, Dianetics engrams, other major events on the track, Incident II especially. OK, (graph) this is another. So, in any one of these points, he can have or make a cognition, that he's "making up these pictures"' and - pffft - knocks them off.

Now, what's a Natural Clear? This is a guy, that's HAD THE COGNITION only, OR HAS MISSED THE STUFF. Either (graph) from there (Inc I) or somewhere in there (Inc II) has come along into PT and he therefore knows - essentially - or at least when he came to the planet, he knew it - (he might have forgotten since then) - that HE IS NOT HAVING TO MAKE PICTURES. That's all it is, he's not making them compulsively. He's not mocking up mental matter, energy, space and time, yeah? Now, it's no definition of a Natural Clear how FAR back from Incident I (or Inc II) he became that way, you see? He may have gone UNCLEAR at some time and then really took a look at it and blew out of it. By being clearly - you know what I mean - by being VERY observant, very, very,...

And then, other people, who were Natural Clear, have decided to do missions. For instance, to come onto THIS planet after Incident II and find out how aberrated it was and then work out experiments to try to handle it. So in case of a Natural Clear, that comes to the planet, has a job to do to get aberrated, to bring in the case and try to explain it to an auditor, so they can work out methods to handle it - you find these. I mean, several of us were in this type of experiment - you know? And I did the whole Clearing Course and went Clear after 80 hours of running the Clearing Course. Later on, on OT III, I realized, that I was Clear before I came to the planet. But I came to the planet with a purpose: To build up a case and then to use it for research, whenever that was going to be, and to bring it with me all the way to that point. And I got there too late, because the research had been done already! I didn't arrive at Saint Hill until LRH HAD the Clearing Course.

But when I ran it, I had all these data sitting in it, that I wanted to lay out for LRH. So I started writing to my C/S, writing my reports - all this data how they did it - bap bap bap. And that's when the C/S was saying: "Hey! That's not necessary. Just run the items."

I said: "No, send it to LRH, it might be important!" It is my mission, you see? Now, I WAS a bit late. And then they send it up to him. He wrote back and said:"That IS how it was done." - you know? - "He has those cogs - let him write that, all right? - that's all right." So he knew that was somebody, that was doing the mission to find out that stuff.

So, anyway, that's basically what it is. A Natural Clear has already - before he came here - he HAD that state, right? Now he MAY have gotten aberrated. We found a few Natural Clears in the last year, that have had a severe life time or something. They got very much drugs, sick, hospitalization, baby, childhood stuff, and they got MADE, or postulated themselves, essentially UNCLEAR, by their desire to keep that body or something. And they then had a hell of a lot of engrams and invalidation and then they decided, that this is really theirs, so they immediately mocked it up themselves. And they decided, they were unclear. Essentially we get them back to the beginning of that and they realized, they WERE CLEAR ALL THE TIME. And then they went into agreement with all this composite.

So, any questions now about the State of Clear? Because I wanted to clean that up: It's a guy, who is cause over mental matter, energy, space and time on the first dynamic. That means, he can knowingly mock up or unmock mental matter, energy, space and time. OK? Well, a lot of people do have confusion about that, let's say. Right?

But now we get to the interesting thing: What is OT I? Well, OT I is the getting of the guy a little more stable, you know? He goes out and he looks, spots beings, spots bodies, looks at things, this and that, notices how people operates their bodies, etc, etc. Find a place where there aren't any beings, you know what I mean? He's getting more stable and we are sort of waking him up into the spiritual universe - 7th dynamic. A lot of people think, when they are Clear on the 1st dynamic, it means their BODY is Clear. It doesn't mean that. It means HIM as a spiritual being. Clear - 1st dynamic. Huh? You have to orient him, which is OT I. Doesn't mean, that he still can't have a pain or a rash or an itch or "Do I have to smoke?", or what ever that is. He does not clear his body. There's a lot of misunderstoods and so on. It's the BEING - means he's SEPARATED OUT FROM THE COMPOSITE - it's all it means. So, OK. Any questions on OT I?

OT II. What is OT II? Well, on OT II, you're NOT running the guy. This is something they FAIL TO TELL YOU on OT II. You're not running it on a Clear. All you're doing on OT II - and by the way, if a guy hasn't done the Clearing Course, I also have him look over those platens, until he gets a persistent F/N on that - but basically, these two are the major incidents of the line-plots and Implant GPMs, that occured to most, most, most all thetans in this area. This one for the universe (CC) - and this one (OT II) for the Sector - and this one (CC) near the start of track for all. So this one (CC) is the more general, and this one (OT II) is a little less general, because it's mostly just Sector 9 and it's just this planet, where Incident II was done.

And I know you all ran BTs, that you found out bypassed that, and they came here later, after Incident II. You know? But they got associated with other people, who GOT it. You know? OK.

So, OT II takes these items, the actual line-plots - the CC, and actual line-plot of Incident II - and there's lots of them - we don't need to go into that - that's just a lot of garbage, that the implanters put in and CONFUSED the guy and gave him WRONG VALENCES or WRONG ITEMS and keeping him being MEST or a BODY or WHATEVER, OK?

Now, these items were not "cluster-making", when they were given. Exactly WHEN they were given - they were given on a machine or an assembly line, that gave it to "SINGLE" BEINGS. It was for SINGLE BEINGS. It was NOT a composite making incident IN ITSELF, you understand? It was just like if you have a hundred people in the same picture show, that are all seeing the same picture, but at the same time they are NOT being mashed together with a big A-bomb, you see? So, it's not just a composite making incident.

What it IS however, is that EVERYBODY HAS THE SAME PICTURE AND INCIDENT. So everybody has the SAME PICTURE and he's maybe moved along a little track (machine track) to get the SAME VIEWPOINT OF EVERY PICTURE, you see? Then they ALL have an IDENTICAL PICTURE of the item and the run. And they confused that even more, because they were given it at DIFFERENT TIMES. One guy went through, then another guy a week or a bit later, and another guy over here and in another place.

So, TIME, LOCATION, DURATION, ALL that is different. But the PICTURE IS THE SAME. So, there's a confusion. And by confusion they go A=A=A, because they all have this picture, right? They think it's ALL THE SAME.

Before you can run, of course, the Incident II and I, you HAVE TO GET THIS CONFUSION OFF THE TRACK, because otherwise all the BTs think they are the same, because they all have the SAME MAJOR PICTURES OF THE IMPLANTS. And they all run at the same - TRY to run - at the same time. And you'll either end up stalling the PC or they all go through together and into a free-wheel or something, into the 36 days or they all experience the explosion at the same time and maybe blow the guy right out of the body, maybe killing the body. That's what LRH said. That can be a hell of an impact, you know. 20 000 BTs all running the explosion at the same time, you know? Be enough to stop the heart. Boom!... you know? So, you can't run the guy on OT III with these guys acting as a composite.

So, the running of OT II, and the CC Platens - to check them - to get the BPC off these, is to get this composite thing around the guy - after he's cleared out the space - it breaks it up in fragments (graph). Right? BTs and clusters, basically. It does not much touch the NOTs case, by the way. It just breaks up the BTs in his space, like this (graph). Instead of being a thing like this (graph), where it looks like "my case" - and I tell you it's EXACTLY, what they tell you, as I'm just doing it on an OT II. He really had to cog, that first of all he WASN'T RUNNING HIMSELF on the process. And then he got that. And then he couldn't understand, why there was an "earliest" run. Why do you have to intend the "earliest run" and he says: "In the materials it says, that the "entities" have these runs." You see? That EACH have ALL of this thing and he couldn't really quite get that, until he demonstrated it and then he finally understood, that what you are doing, when you are doing this, is: You are running the "earliest" on each entity, that has it and as you go through it, other guys WILL BLOW CHARGE ON HIM TOO. Because they realize, "That's the same pictures", "Hey, hey, hey". They get interested - bap bap bap bap -and you are running them through later and later items and finally - wham! - it all breaks apart and all the guys are discharged on what's been holding them together as pictures - all these items.

So, they then break apart into this sort of thing BTs & clusters (graph). Any question on OT II? Those are the MAJOR incidents, that hold together people by pictures. Same picture, different times.

These are NOT the ONLY incidents on the track. You can also have Fac Is, and stuff like that, but they come up - they're not as universal, not as basic. And I'll say one more thing about this, before I ask for questions. One more thing or reason these are basic - more basic: It's because they affect MORE DYNAMICS. These ones, these ones, that LRH put onto the OT levels. Why didn't he put Fac I? Why didn't he put the Helatrobus Implants? Why didn't he put..., you know? Well, those were minor game implants in a large history of the universe. You also have local wars and whatever they did to each other during the "take-over-scenarios" - bababap. But THESE (CC & OTII) INVOLVE MORE DYNAMICS. They were done with an INTENTION and a SPREAD, a widespreadness to affect the 3rd, the 4th, the 5th, the 6th, the 7th dynamic. And too, with an EVIL INTENTION behind it to handle all thetans that way. Even if they didn't succeed totally, they were INTENDED to handle all thetans, not just a game of "us against them", you see? It wasn't local war. It was a 7th DYNAMIC handling for ALL.

And of course you recognize the insanity of Xenu in that. He was connected with most of this. He was connected with Incident I, Incident II, and also part of the CC. Also that was used - also that's part of track warfare and stuff. He was big backer of that kind of implant, see?

So you get DYNAMIC CONSEQUENCES with these. And what is a Clear? He is Clear on the 1ST DYNAMIC. He must be expanded now on more DYNAMICS. He's going to find these processes are handling things up through the dynamics with most at these incidents. Any questions?... Yes?

"What is the technical aspect of the repeat of the CC in Incident II?"

That was at first supposed that that WAS done. And I'm sure in my data - that I picked up from people around this planet, that have this stuff - is that it was put in a few places. We'll say it was "saved" from the old civilization a long time ago or something and the implanters had it in their files. Sort of like archives. They put it in in some places. It did get stuck in some places - shall we say - 36-Day-Implant-Places.

What we've been finding out essentially by running these guys and getting all their stories off and so on like that through the "What happened here on Earth?", is that there was a bit of a sloppiness. You can't expect renegades to do everything perfectly, you know. And there was sloppiness. I mean, we found guys, that were dumped here to be A-bombed and they MISSED the bomb, because the guys said: "Oh shit! I'm late! Man, let's just dump'em." So they were dumped into the ocean, and they go back you know? So he dumped them into the ocean and they didn't get NEAR the bomb, you see?

They missed - maybe missed - the whole planet! We found out all kinds of weird things like that... some guys go through - and like you say - you sometimes find these funny implants, where the machine breaks down and you'll find the guy sitting there, looking at something in front of it for like days, before it starts up again - bup bup bup - and on he goes. You know?

Or we hit another guy, who had missed. Now they dump him off target or something - they didn't want to get themselves fooled around down there and they started to drop the bombs or either were late coming from another planet with a shipment, so they just threw it, just opened it up, and this guy fell down in the ocean near Africa. His interest was Natural Science, and he saw: "Jesus, look at all the shit, that's happening over that way!" And after he melted out of his ice cube with his cluster - he didn't have a FULL cluster there, except from Incident I - but he went into Africa and he tried to save all those animals, that were dying from the radiation. That was his old game and he had been down there trying to save all these animals - they were all dying from the fall-out, you see? Very, very strange stories you hear from these guys. But is IS true. They didn't really get everything exactly like it says in the things. And that is your MAJOR stuff. That is a 90%, 99% that's all that. Right?

"And what was the purpose in repeating the CC? To restim? - or what?"

Just implanting. I mean, that's - look, they got the 36-days-pictures. All these were in stock - let's put it in this way: The Incident II stuff - most of it - was in stock, in the usual stock. Files of an Implanters trade, right? Because it's not their first attempt, you know? The CC was also in stock, you know? But it took a little more finesse to set up a CC implant. They had to be really well organized. It was a real tuck-tuck-tuck, you know, and different items in sequence and all that. So it was a bit too sophisticated for some of these places, but they did set it up in a couple of places, where they had time.

You see, they were really on a tight time schedule. So they were reporting half-dones, not-dones, you know, false compliances, and all that. So some people did get the CC again there. But their BASIC on it is really earlier, see? You WON'T find that on all the guys, that were in it. But you will find the Incident II mostly or the 36-days-pictures, and maybe some guys - we ran one guy - the machine broke down, as he came down from the electrical ribbon - electronic ribbon - it captures the thetan and tracks him down, puts him through this - sort of a tubular flow line with the implanting (Incident II) stuff - Ahh sorry - OT II and 36-days-stuff. So, he's down in there, going along the line, seeing all the pictures - and once we had a guy - the thing broke down. You know, it stopped for a while. And he exteriorized from it. He just - Whooop!... - came out and he only had a piece of it. But then they caught him again later - this is why, it wouldn't blow - you see - they were still going around with the "Hoover" - whoosh-whoosh - and the ribbons, and they caught him again - Foom! - and put him through it AGAIN. So he had sort of - like you would get that far of it and he had some more later, you know what I mean? It was just weird. So you get all of these possibilities, you see? OK.

So, if the guy's attention is fixed on that, you can always figure there's something in there, that isn't completely as-ised by the exact time, place, form and event. OK?

So, then we get this guy's case broken up like this (BTs & clusters), by the time he is on OT III.

Now, why?... now we go back to Incident I (graph) here, and Incident II here, and PT here. Now, let's ask: WHY is Incident II and I run on OT III? Anybody know that? Why don't you run other stuff? Why do you run Incident II and I on OT III? Why do you run II and I on OT III?

"It's the basic of it."

The basic of what?

"His charge."

The basic what?

"Of the dynamics."

The dynamics also. Yes, much 7th dynamic and it put a basic in in terms of implant side and technical side. What are we trying to do here, now that we got the case split up into BTs and clusters?

"One can handle it with one go, break it up. It can be done with..."

Yeah, but why? Why are these two implants VERY, VERY important?

"Because they make clusters?"

That's it! That's it! They're CLUSTER MAKING. These two - the 36 day by itself - and the CC by itself, were NOT cluster making incidents. They were the same picture, but at different times. Accidently a guy might have been put through it with another guy, but it was NOT THE INTENTION of it.

The INTENTION of THESE TWO incidents (Incident II & I) - and they WERE the major track incidents - was to MAKE CLUSTERS. As you know, there are also, so called MUTUAL INCIDENTS. They can make clusters too, but they are individualized . They are more like... for each cluster there is a different one. But these (Inc II & I) are the MAJOR ones that MAKE CLUSTERS. So, on the OT III (graph)... we have these two cluster making incidents, THE BASICS. So with running that, you're freeing up thetans. Essentially you're starting now the procedure of getting the thetan to realize, what gets him OUT OF VALENCE or what gets others IN HIS VALENCE, OK?

And that's, what is keeping him on this little continuous idea, of... only a Clear on the 1st dynamic. Because he can suddenly go UNCLEAR by another dynamic force - you know - by 3rd dynamic catching him again, throwing him through another one, or whatever dynamic, you know? Or he can go unclear because of a lot of 2nd dynamic stuff, that he gets into. He saw pictures from this (composite), or from his BTs and clusters. And he can attach all his lines of attention on them and hold onto it and decide, that he needs all that. Once he does, forget him. He picks up all the other stuff from those guys too, so he's now going unclear. I mean, these guys (Pre-OTs) are delicate!

So, now we get the Cluster Making Incidents, II and I (graph). Now we know those ARE the two main cluster incidents, because THIS (Inc II) was a mutual incident taking place on Earth, where the guys were exploded on top of the mountains. And whenever we get a false picture of a volcanos and all that, he went through the 36 days. But the important thing is the INCIDENT ITSELF, that made the cluster - AND the EARLIER BEGINNING, which is the CAPTURE. The capture.

And that's why you have to run from the capture on, because it's like the earliest beginning of that incident. The first time he felt the EVIL INTENTION, you see? This is an intention on the 7th dynamic to destroy thetans. The first time he FELT that, is that point, he gets in the capture. You know, what I mean? "Hey, something wrong here, these guys coming after me...", and you get it. If he doesn't... if he just hits a guy and he contacts his Incident II, it MAY not blow, because he hasn't got the EARLIEST BEGINNING of it, when he felt the first hint of evil intention. Because the evil intention is always present throughout the incident, more and more intensified.Because behind everything, of course, you have in the 7th dynamic a communication of evil intention. But as soon as you start to "do thetans in", they feel it. So the incident will release, when he (BT) spots that exact time, place, form, event and gets the first indication of the evil intention.

Now the cluster, however, - part of it - will break up by spotting the mutual incident (graph). So, here we have a Cluster up in PT from the old Incident II. These guys - or say a "Cluster" - so these guys must audit THAT and let's just say, they don't have another mutual incident in here. Let's just say here is Incident II. So, they go back and they spot the explosion here as the mutual incident and they go - zupppp... - and right away they separate out. That WAS their mutual incident, right?

Now, each of them MIGHT have a different capture. They even might have a different first part of the incident, you see? So the key thing is however, that you find the MUTUAL INCIDENT, THAT'S HOLDING THEM TOGETHER.

Now we found also some of the guys, and you will probably find too - that on some of the guys - THE CAPTURE W A S THEIR MUTUAL INCIDENT. The earlier similar mutual incident of theirs. (graph). There was a whole group, that got blown away all at the same time or later. Out of existence... a Laser or something to wipe them out - fffft - collect them up as thetans within communities: non-conformists, artists, people who spoke against the government of Xenu's.

* * End of Tape 1, Side 1 * *

This is side two, 22 of August, 1985, Tech Briefing #4, CONFIDENTIAL SUPER NOTs.

We have just gone over, on the 1st side, the basic reasons for Dianetics, Grades, Clear - what Clear is - definition of OT I and OT II - what it does to the case - and then we were on OT III and we just went over the basic Clustering Incidents, why they are on OT III. It's simply because they ARE the basic clustering incidents, with the evil intentions spread across the dynamics, especially in dynamic 7, to suppress thetan. So, it is more of a generalized incident. And we're just now speaking about that in running (Incident) II on a Cluster. II could be the Cluster making incident, but ALSO the capture could be a Cluster making incident on that Cluster. If not, they may have an earlier similar, even one between Incident II and Incident I, that is a Cluster making incident, or they could have a later one.

This is something, you have to sort out with a meter and with the Cluster itself, if you can get a "spokesman" even for it or you get it talking to you as a "unit". And you can date/locate it and find out what it is, OK? But the basic thing is, that the Cluster Making Incident can occur: AFTER Incident II (closer to PT), Incident II, the CAPTURE of Incident II, BEFORE Incident II. All right? And it can also BE Incident I in some cases. All right?

"Could it be even BEFORE Incident I - as we do have earlier Incident Is?"

We have only found... -yeah, it's not a general thing though - we've only found a couple of examples about it and that's something, I want to bring up later. Why, why that can be, right?

So, Incident I IS a Cluster making incident. It didn't make as big Clusters as Incident II. Incident II you had like maybe millions of thetans put on the mountain top. Incident I you maybe only put him together with a guy in the incident plus a number of other BTs - 20, 30, 40, maybe only 5, some of them - depending how early they had their Incident I - some were only like 2 or 3 thetans put together.

The interesting thing is that it has the COMBINED CHARGE of the Cluster making incident AND the same thing we were dealing with in Clearing Course and 36 days - that it is a SIMILAR INCIDENT, THAT WAS DONE MORE THAN ONCE. You see?

We don't... haven't found anybody, that went from one volcano to another and did Incident II TWICE, because that all happened almost on the same day, you know? Most of the action took place very much in a close area of time. But, Incident I was a bit more covert and was done with a lot of PR and so on like that. So that it was something, the Thetans were very much into, but it was done essentially many, many, many, many times - as LRH says: Everyone, that has a time track, essentially in this universe, will have them, you see?

So, there you go. So, it (Incident I) is also - MADE A CLUSTER WHEN IT WAS DONE, because it IS that. It just goes - Snap! - and the "snaps" are when the beings were put together on the other guy. In the "snaps" part they (BTs) come in. They stick to the being on the "snaps". And that's why the guy didn't see them! He's immediately overwhelmed with all those pictures of a chariot, colors, waves of light and so on.

Now, the tricky part is, that it was done so OFTEN. It's just like "tax collecting", you know? It was "tax collecting" every year, and they do it all over the place, so if the guy has a mutual incident such a paying his tax - income tax - with his whole family paying tax - say that was the mutual incident - then he did it last year, and he did it...He may have done it more than once himself AND he may have been put together with the guys, who had it (Incident I) EARLIER in a different place. So you have all these complexities and that's why you ask "Earlier Incident I?"

That's what the button is, you see? You understand the "effort to stop" and "effort to withdraw"? - that's just from that incident. But the "Earlier Incident I?" is trying to BREAK UP THOSE CLUSTERS, and sometimes it goes - brrr - and they all fall apart! You see? It's even more direct, if you say to them: "Is there - are there beings with Earlier Incident Is, who have confused it with this one?" "Can they please spot their Earlier Incident I?" - bummm - and they start spotting it, see? You see, what I mean? They just go - brr - like that. Now the guy himself, that you are handling, may have an Earlier Incident I, but if that doesn't resolve it, then you can say: "Are there beings connected to you, that have Earlier Incidents Is? Please spot them." - brrrfff - they go off, you see?

"Something is freeing while you are giving the lecture!"

Right! Now you see, that's how that works, Now, the other reason a guy won't blow - after you've run II and I off, and Earlier Is - is the other button we're talking about now: Earlier Universe. And that comes about because - of course, if a guy comes across to play a game and he gets a "snap" in Incident I, instead of doing what his PURPOSE is, you know - he goes in to play: "Wow- wow...I want to build a planet." or "I want to help create some orderly MEST." or "I want to do this.", "I want to have a...have a...I want to be a big Thetan!", or whatever. And the next thing you know, he is snapped in and he's just a Cluster, a part of a Cluster, and he has a great big FAILED PURPOSE.

The only way you can get him out of that failed purpose - because he can not obtain that purpose and he has not obtained that purpose in this universe on his time track - so you have to get him to SPOT THE EARLIER UNIVERSE, where he COULD have the ability to do that. And so he actually gets that ability rehabilitated from there. Now you could say, he gets back into his OWN VALENCE and he is able to create on his own and handle his own purposes. But when you first got him out as a "single being", and you assume he IS a single being - after he has done his Incident I and you have a SINGLE guy - but he can't leave - or as a sort of assist there as he is not "VGIs" - well, on III you just ask: "Was there an Earlier Universe?"

"Haaaa, yeah!" - bummm - "That's where I could create! Yeah!" See? He CAN'T CREATE HERE. He's back (after waking up) in it (the MEST universe) and he's here RIGHT NOW - to him he just woke up from a long sleep. He is just like on the BEGINNING OF HIS TRACK! And he HASN'T ACHIEVED HIS PURPOSE! And he now knows that in all of 4 QUADRILLION YEARS, he never achieved it! So he's in a failed purpose.

So you put him into valence IN THE UNIVERSE, THAT HE FEELS COMFORTABLE, THAT HE CAN ACHIEVE HIS PURPOSE. "Earlier Universe?" The guy goes: "Yeah! Wow! Yeah!" , "Well...Boy, that was OK!" - pumm (blow). So you CAN HAVE IT yet again. You CAN HAVE a universe, where you CAN complete a cycle of action and so on...OK?

Now we don't know, which one he goes to - I mean, he may have been in many games. He may go back to his own. But it doesn't matter. When he gets to an Earlier Universe, that is one, that he WAS AT CAUSE in, and one that he COULD achieve his purpose in, and one he COULD complete a cycle of action in, he'll feel good. You have actually rehabilitated him by directing him from this universe to his OWN universe, essentially, OR one that he at least feels "This is a good place", you see? He may feel, he knew some other people in it and he was playing with them - at least he feels CONFIDENT in it enough to "BE".

So, that's the Earlier Universe part. A lot of people don't understand that, why that works. And it's very important on SUPER NOTs as well.

"Very interesting!"

OK? And it is true...now - because realize, that when you have the guy through Earliest Incident I, his Earlier Incident I is off, and any ones (BTs) that were added - put to him - that are now in his valence off - you get him out of that; HE IS A SINGLE BEING.

So, he's essentially an "OT on the 1st dynamic". A little bit more than a Clear, because a Clear doesn't NECESSARILY have to have the guys out of his valence (in a state that they are not in his valence anymore). He's just totally controlling them, because you find a lot of Clears that have to run their OWN Incident I. Because they were put together with others but they are running (controlling) them all. And they are going: "We won't ..." or "I won't mock up anything!" and they all go: "And we won't either." because they are exact duplicates. He says "Yep!" and they go "Yep!" but all at the same time as they are all in HIS VALENCE. So, actually a SINGLE BEING - from cutting off his Earlier Incident Is and the people stuck to him - you have something: a sort of - like an "OT on the 1st dynamic".

So, what is the first thing you want to do? I mean, the guy can't go, he is feeling "BTs" or he is "sad" or something. You have got to rehabilitate him a little bit, orient him to some first dynamic universe he had, give him a little space, get an Earlier Universe where he did feel ok, did feel safe, did feel good - Yes? And he gets "in valence". He is "in valence" here, BUT he is in an ALIEN ENVIRONMENT, so it essentially comes under the theory of DANGEROUS ENVIRONMENT, ok?

You exteriorized him into the "3rd Universe" (the agreed-upon Universe) as a single being, but he is in the 3rd universe and he knows: "Jesus Christ! I don't feel safe here, man. Last time I jumped into this one (Universe), about 4 quadrillion years ago, I ended up as a BT or in somebody's picture" - you know? "Horrible, I was a Cherub, in a Chariot, some "Zaps" you know - to Hell with it!" So you have to get him into a safe environment so he can feel free again. Then he is free. And that's the key on that one.

Any other questions about OTIII and OT levels? No? I'll end up on that. "OT III handles" - and this is where we will bridge into SUPER NOTs right after this - but I just want to make you sure what OTIII handles - the beings who essentially, by the tone scale - right? - have not gone - well, you can look at it in several ways: they have not totally identified themselves with MEST, they have not totally lost some beingness as a being - in other words YOU CAN STILL COMMUNICATE TO THEM - even if they - they're thinking they're a "thing", they can STILL be a LIVE thing. They still - to some degree - retain Liveness, communication, and some sort of little line that you can get hold of them with, ok?

So, you can spot them on the tone scale. Some of them are in various theta-degrees, but they are - most of them - are below death on the tone scale - Ah, sorry! - ABOVE DEATH on the tone scale, you know? It's not always that simple though, because as you will find out soon enough in the next stuff, there IS other aspects to this, that come with other LRH datums, but basically on the tone scale you find these guys anywhere from death, above that, grief, propitiation, sympathy, lining up for auditing, you know? Or being really quiet, propitiating the auditor, even antagonistic, different things. But they are usually at tone levels above, yes? That's III.

Then you get the guys (Pre-OTs), who has gotten rid of all the ones, he can easily get into communication with. He hits the solidity wall or the solidity factor of NOTs. And the NOTs area is of course, where we have the guys BELOW BEING ABLE TO BE A BEING. But there is a CONDITION on that and that's very interesting about NOTs, and how we found out that you can actually handle it without any reference partly to lists or L&N or anything else, right?

So, that's handled there on NOTs. (And I would actually put on that sheet (graph), that that's important back here: Earlier I and Earlier Universe (graph). Those are important buttons in the III case.) Now, you need to know ALL this data to handle, what you are going to run into on NOTs, because you are actually handling PCs all the time. Yes, PCs, OK? And these are the major things, that you get into.

OK, now we get to NOTs, NED for OTs. All right? And we still have this basic pattern (Incident I (graph), II, PT). Now, what's different about this? It's very interesting, this. I have to give you some references, that sort of give the basic point on this NOTs stuff. You've all heard of the NOTs packs, I know. But I just want to point out a couple of things - besides of the tone scale - which is BELOW zero tone scale items: caring for bodies, hiding, all these different things here - numb, sort of being a ...

"being objects"

...victim - no, that's still above. Right - here we go: "Failure, Pity, Shame, Accountable, Blame (punishing other bodies), Regret (responsibility as blame), Controlling Bodies, Protecting Bodies, Owning Bodies, Approval from Bodies, Needing Bodies, Worshipping Bodies, Sacrifice, Hiding, Being Objects, Being Nothing, Can't Hide, Total Failure". You know what I mean?

So, and all the other scales apply too. Symbols, the Lower Awareness Scales, all that. But the one thing, I want to point out, is in the Axioms. (I wonder where I put that? Here it is.) Interesting Axioms here. This is Axiom 29, of Scientology Axioms: "In order to cause an as-is-ness to persist, one must assign other authorship to the creation than his own. Otherwise his view of it will (would) cause it's vanishment." (or as-is-ness) "Any space, energy, form, object, individual, or physiological (physical universe) condition can exist only when an alteration has occured of the original as-is-ness, so as to prevent the casual view" (or casual view) (it's casual here) "from vanishing. In other words, anything, which is persisting must contain a 'lie', so that the original consideration is not completely duplicated." You see? In other words: We know from NOTs, it's a MISOWNERSHIP thing. It's a misplacement, out of time, place, form, and event, and ownership.

But it's interesting to look at it from the viewpoint of Axioms. These are THETAN Axioms, apply to all Thetans. And to the case you're running on NOTs. So look at the fact there: that, if the guy (BT) is NOT blowing - then YOU HAVEN'T GOT THE TRUTH ABOUT THEM. It's probably this: you haven't got the truth about it. OK?

Now, what we're going over here are the most "usual truths", that you will run into with these guys, plus some more, which I'm going to tell you now, which we found out. It's very interesting about guys below zero on the tone scale and also very interesting about these guys, who are being "solids".

OK, so, let's take point one: Point one in SUPER NOTs is the ORGANIZATION of these guys. It's a very interesting fact, that run properly - if you're approaching the NOTs case properly - I'll tell you, how that's done also - but if you're approaching it properly, you'll find the thing is ORGANIZED. It has an ORGANIZATION to it.

Now it's the CRAZIEST ORGANIZATION, you may ever come across and you'll find this stable datum of LRH's comes (from Policy) out of it. And the stable datum is: "The point, where a thetan goes crazy (or criminal or out ethics), is where HE CAN NOT WORK, or do a useful job." And, you know, that we find every guy, who is in there - whether he is a good guy, bad guy, an SP, or whatever - when you wake him up and get him talking, in communication, you find out, that he is holding onto whatever sanity he has BY PERFORMING A DUTY.

Now this guy needs to be ACKNOWLEDGED for that duty. No matter how crazy it is to you - but to him it's a very serious one - because if he COULDN'T DO THAT, he would be or go TOTALLY insane. You see what I mean?

So, if he's been a spot on the bottom of a coffee cup - "Well, somebody has to do it." I mean, they always think they are - they are a REAL GOOD SPOT. It's an incredible thing, that these guys are holding on to their sanity, because of the fact that they'd been doing something. And whenever we acked for that - you know - that's where you have to acknowledge VERY WELL, when they give you a valence answer to: "What are you?" See? Yeah, it's almost like: "Hey, fantastic! You're being that!" "The whole time? Oh, wow!" You see? And they think, they're performing a useful action, NO MATTER WHETHER THEY'RE DOING BAD OR GOOD. We haven't got to that part yet. It's important to get THIS blown first, so you can handle them. But the guy reckons, he's doing that - and boy - if he DIDN'T believe that - (to THAT point he'll be sane) - but if not - he'll be insane. If you invalidate him or if you totally not-is it or don't believe, what he tells you - Ohh no! (He goes) nuts... you know? OK?

So I just want to point that out to you: There IS an organization there and no matter how crazy it is - like these cups, and saucers, and things on the table, say that might be a whole NOTs setting - a "tableau" - that you came across. You know - you ask the question and - Boom! - first thing you see is a table with candles and so on. This is in an office and there's a desk there and so on and there is a chair - waiting for somebody. And: "OK, anyone being a spokesman for this group here?" - and you get this voice coming out of the candle flame: "I'm the flame of life!" - you know? You ask him: "OK, what's this all about? Any BPC here?" (or whatever). And the answer comes: "We're keeping the office ready."

YOU know now, they're all smashed down to little spots or something like that, but THEY have been keeping this office ready for eons and eons and eons and eons. You know? There used to be a big Thetan there or something and they all had been wiped out in one of those captures or something like that and then they got smashed, put together for 75 million years and have been keeping the office ready ever since - you see?

Maybe all the office staff were herded into a room then vaporized with the Laser guns. So these guys were all - they took - you know - they tried to protect the boss' office, so they all grabbed part of the MEST as exterior Thetans. Then they got smashed together in the ice-cubes, put down on the planet, blown-up - Boom - totally! More incidents, more incidents, more incidents, and NOW they're just there in the NOTs case keeping the office, and they would go totally crazy, if they couldn't do that! You see? A whole organization.

So now, knowing this, you may find, and you WILL find, that knowing this - now of course it doesn't all have to all go together THAT logically. I can't - I can't even think, how illogically it CAN go together, until you run the session, and you'll find out how illogically it is, right? Because this whole office may be under a button, which is on a uniform of somebody in another service, right? There HE is with a spear and there's somebody else being the spear, you know? And there's that guy in an airplane about 30.000 feet up and the guy with the spear sees him for the 1st time - as he got shot by the plane, and he's the "bad guy" (the one in the plane) - you know what I mean? That's how weird it can get.

But that whole thing holding together all the way down is an ORG BOARD, you see? And if you just run a little piece of it, you're NOT HANDLING THIS WHOLE THING. Now, this whole thing, that's an ORG BOARD, all the way down from guys with the evil intentions at the top. That guy - you know - and maybe HE got blown up at the SAME TIME by a missile! So, it's a mutual thing and all were captured put together - poom! - you know, whatever their story is - who cares? Or they got together later in that relationship, because they sort of "fitted" - an "out of valence fit" - you know? It doesn't matter. They ARE organized in that RIGHT NOW and they are all doing THAT - frozen in time like - what do you call it - "the Enchanted Moors" - the music, you know? They're FROZEN IN TIME. So, they're sitting there, doing that whole org board. It doesn't produce anything. It just sits there. But each guy thinks, he has a duty in it and it's a frozen duty as well. The whole thing is frozen. So this guy is shooting those guys - this guy is resisting that guy - you know - and he's an officer and he has the spear and then his button - there is a GOLD BUTTON just shining in the sun and it's the last thing he saw - and underneath the button, he's got a group smashed in on Incident II. Maybe he found these other guys had a nice office and that's what he really wanted to be - an executive - so he's clutched it through all time to his breast - some kind of weird computation.

In other words: There is some kind of crazy illogical A=A=A=A=A holding this whole Cluster mass of BTs and Clusters and solids all together. And so, if you run it knowing that, and you sort of "poke" into it at the level of the "flame on the candle", where you are not getting any as-is-ness and can't get these guys to sort of "break up" or "get the little office mock up to dissolve", or them to realize 'who they are' - THEN you must suspect that SOMEBODY IS HOLDING THEM. Just somebody higher up the org board, you know? Do you see? So, that's one way to look at it - right? Just: "Is somebody holding you?" And if you have a "spokesman", there's only about two things, that can be wrong, once you get the thing talking - in communication - whatever it is - wherever you hit this. When you try to get into communication and you are not getting any blowdown, you're not getting any reads, the guy IS telling the story, but nothing is happening, you get a "what?" you get "who?" - but uhh - it's "sticky". So, the guy is EITHER NOT REALLY EXACTLY WHAT HE TELLS YOU HE IS - OK? - (it's says in the materials, it could be a picture you're talking to or it's only a via - another guy in the background - that's possible - but also it could be, you're talking to a Cluster instead of an individual.)

So, you're not handling the mutual incident yet, see? And therefore the mutual incident occured before - so it's earlier - so it's holding this guy together - but HE CAN'T OPEN UP AND LET GO OF THE REST. So it's also possible, that he's being HELD BY SOMEBODY ELSE. Even if he IS A CLUSTER. So, even a Cluster doesn't really break and you can't get the mutual incident going, as SOMEBODY ELSE IS HOLDING.

Now this is the key thing: That there IS an organization to this stuff. No matter how crazy. And it occurs IN the body, AROUND the body - WHEREVER you have this stuff. It's there. And a lot of it is by-passed. This is the interesting thing on these orgs - "NOTs Orgs" . They have - some of them - have persisted from here (graph) into PT, right? From Inc II into PT. Some of them have persisted from Incident I into PT WITHOUT EVEN BEING AFFECTED BY INCIDENT II. They were already "MEST", BEFORE they got into Incident II and they may have been the MEST on THIS planet in some other fashion or form or in some animal body at that time and weren't thought worthy enough to be put on the mountain - you can't put everything on the planet on the mountain - they just put the Thetans on the mountains. So, when they saw a dog running around - you know - or somebody's gold watch - they would STEAL it all the while rather than put THAT on the mountain, right? But the gold watch may have been a bloody Cluster, see? (or have a Cluster "being" it). And they may have come across of the "gold watch" in one of these "Hoovering" operations, where they suck up Thetans and stuff - you see? But they (the Cluster) still are a gold watch, see? Got missed going through the 36 days. But later got hooked up with a bigger being, who sucked some other guys for havingness and companionship after the incident. "Oh, there is a gold watch!" You know? He doesn't even realize, he doesn't have a BODY ANYMORE, you know? He still is floating around as a Thetan after II: "Oh, my watch, ohhh...". So he pulls in a little Cluster and it's a gold watch. This - this IS how it happens - so. Anyway...

"That's probably why there are something like two thousand nails of Jesus Christ's cross still existing on this planet."

Two thousand nails...yes. There are BTs on them stuck in that incident. OK. So, we have even found these guys, that were put together at Incident I and of course they haven't - they bypassed Incident II even, or Incident II DIDN'T EVEN AFFECT THEM and they've come up to PT (graph) totally asleep since then (Incident I), and totally messed up since then, right?

Now somebody asked about, "What about before that?" - you know - "Is it possible" - before the earliest Incident I on the case "to have had some kind of thing ?" Yes, it is. Because before they had Incident I, the guys (implanters) who were STARTING IT DID EXPERIMENTS ON THEM. In other words, they didn't just create this Incident I out of "whole cloth". They experimented with "How do you put together Clusters?" "How do you put together BTs?" - "To stick them together the best and to make them most influence the Thetan to get him to accept them but not recognize them being there?" You see? That's very well thought out.

"It's very vicious!"

VERY vicious!

"This is like the dramatizations of transplants now with body parts in the MEST Universe - transplantations."

See - you DO HAVE THIS "EXPERIMENTS" SITUATION BACK HERE (before Incident I) and all of the real "dummy" Thetans - I say "real dummy Thetans" - but they're just not very causative. They have just been sort of dead a long time. Some of them were actually the - shall we say - the "priming " Thetans they used in Incident I. What I mean by "priming" - you know, the old pumps, where you can't get the pump going unless you put water in it to start it. (That's called "priming" the pump.)

So, to start off with, the first Thetans, they wanted to put through Incident I, they had to have some already put together to push on him. In all these different experiments, the way to get rid of the ones, that had an "experimental" incident - we have found a few, that went through that place and they were sent together with some others, through all different kinds of incidents to experiment with, you know?

And some of them were part of a big Cluster, that sort of "came apart" and so they don't use it, and then this, and that, all kinds of real weird stuff. They WOULDN'T BLOW, because you had their Incident I, BUT they had an EARLIER SIMILAR INCIDENT. Not very many, but you DO find them. OK? And then - after that - THEN they can do "Earlier Universe?" - or "Captured from Earlier Universe?"

Now, why do you find "the capture out of their Earlier Universe"? Because they were free and then they were CAPTURED OUT OF THEIR OWN UNIVERSE. So, it's almost the EARLIER SIMILAR of the "Capture" of Incident II! Apparently they were in their own space and doing their own thing around and/or they were playing somebody else's game, and guys (implanters) came around with some kind of "beams" and just - ffft! They were gotten INTERESTED and they then were going - wufft! - and it will pull them in, you see? Or they promised them some kind of - with a theta comm they would say: "Hey! Hey! Why don't you come over here and see? We got a nice..." - Zap! - you see? Give him some kind of electronic - dzdzdzdz - and "What's up? What's up?" You see ? Big confusion thing. And then taken to some experimental area. It wasn't really a tailored implant or something - it was just the capture. And then they were "stored". They did some special kind of "Zaps!" to them to make them sort of nutty, and unconscious, and usable as Thetans. One visio we had on this, was a guy who was kept in a sphere, which had a magnetized interior. So they couldn't quite touch the wall of the sphere, but they couldn't get out of it either. So they were kept in a sphere like that, you know? And then put through the "experiments" to make Incident I.

OK, so that could be there on the track. Don't be amazed at anything you find, There is a total - well, you're starting into the AWARENESS OF INCREDIBLES on this level already. Now the thing I want to - that's the FIRST THING, IT WAS THE ORG, ORGANIZATION, OF IT, right? (Graph) It's ORGANIZED. The second thing is: THEREFORE, IF IT'S ORGANIZED, IT ALSO COMES OFF IN A CERTAIN SEQUENCE. And the other thing I noticed, that they DON'T DO elsewhere in programming cases, is what's mentioned as: "Don't worry if a guy's case doesn't run exactly like this, because it's not STACKED UP THAT WAY".

Well, that little statement in there - after studying it three times, we just passed over that statement. Now we were going to go down this list, and we started the D of P interview. What it says is to cover first these things on the D of P interview and see what the guy needs handled, yes?

This is VERY interesting. We found out in the D of P interview, that there was certain things, that read, you know? You have some questions like: "What is your attention on?" "What is your attention avoiding?" "Do you have any body problems?" "Any mental problems?" "Vitamin deficiencies?" "Any auditing, that you have your attention on from the past?" You know - you're just doing a typical D of P interview.

"It will give reads on this type of stuff and not so much on other. And - hmm - well, by Tech you should put these into order of reads." MEASURED UP EXACTLY ON THE NEEDLE AT THAT SENSITIVITY HOW MUCH CHARGE, THAT WAS FOR A SMALL FALL, LONG FALL, A FALL, AT THAT SENISITIVITY, WE WERE RUNNING, PLUS THE BLOWDOWNS, AND THEN ADD THEM ALL TOGETHER, AND PUT THEM IN A SEQUENCE.

And we did this, we sort of realized that: "OK, that must be what he's (LRH) talking about, this 'stack up' thing". So we still - at this point, there STILL wasn't very that much importance to it - well, we said: "OK, we should have the MOST CHARGE FIRST. That's obvious, MOST REAL, MOST CHARGE". And then all of a sudden we realized, that by DOING EXACTLY THAT - NO MATTER WHAT YOU CAME OUT WITH AS THE TOP ITEM - IT WAS THE TOP ITEM, you know, what I mean?

In other words: You START WITH THAT ITEM OR THAT SUBJECT - say the guy says: "Well, you know, a pain in my hand, I've trouble with my hands." Or it could be "BTs with Out-Int" or "had bad auditing session with..." or "this is what never got handled" or "had too many..." or "when I, when I go to sleep, I get voices in the head ". You know, things like that. Whatever that subject is. Even if it involves the naming of a solid or a thing, that he thinks it could be, you understand? But it usually is a physical type of location, space, time, form, event type of thing or a bad condition. Whatever that is, it comes off at the D of P interview. We start that - it's amazing - but knowing that it's - what we will find on NOTs is really not our own case - but is the stuff, that's preventing us from being OT. It's amazing, but this phenomenon starts right there and with that particular subject - say for instance, it's "voices in the head", which is quite common. Guy goes to sleep and "voices in the head". Everybody has had it a little bit, and some people are troubled by it, so it's important. OK, let's say you start with that from the NOTs D of P. "First we are going to take up with you this best reading area, 'Voices in the head'. Any BTs or Clusters connected with that?" "MAN UHHH!...." Right away - wumm! - and right away - bumbumbumbumbum! - and you start getting this whole bunch of guys connected with that. And you pull out the PLUG - pumm! - The "plug" is a whole Org on it, and there may be another one and another one. And each session you do ONE plug, until you end up with a FTA. I wanted to say - you get a nice Floating TA, when you pull out ONE of these Orgs. And you get another FTA on, when you've handled the subject (or a "broader" FTA at the end of that subject, when the Pre-OT is no longer troubled by that thought. Added by Capt. Bill)

This last FTA may be looked at as if it may be the same one, that you had in the LAST plug (and plus any copies and stuff). You get this FTA on the guy, but this time he goes..."And that's TOTALLY GONE." "Voices in there?" "NOTHING there." You know? It's totally gone, nothing there, NOTHING! So, we find out that - when you do that - and THEN the next item on the stack list - which may be "BTs with Out-Int" or something - then THAT one is really RIGHT THERE. No matter what the guy says, it's THAT item. He comes in with the TA high, at 4.5 or he says: "I have a problem, I have an ARC Break..." It doesn't matter WHAT he says. It really doesn't matter. It IS the next plug to be run from the stack!

We found out, that when you start a session, you don't have to check a Rud. You can, if you want to, but just ask: " What is your attention on?" (Even if the Auditor just says, "have you had a good night's sleep?" It doesn't matter what you ask, the Pre-OT will think there's "something there". - And you're going to find out, that that bloody thing is the first entrance point to another one of these plugs and when you pull that one out, you will then find, that he is now connected to the NEXT THING on the stack.) It's almost like you're changing the valence of the body every day! Hmm, you see?

At first, it's a body (or Pre-OT), that has problems with "voices in the head". The next day - when you've handled all that stuff - pfff - it's gone. Now it's one with "Out-Int problems", you see? And when it's gone, it's a whole new body (or Pre-OT) with a whole new thing. You see what I mean? (Note by Capt Bill: Plugs can be attached to the body or the Thetan, or both, just as BTs & Clusters can in OT III to the OT III case.)

And I know you've run into phenomena as well - oh, there is a lot of them! - but the interesting thing is here, that we could not figure out, why other people were having different experiences on NOTs, than we were. Because we've heard of these short "5-minute-sessions" and people "blown-out" and "great cogs" and so on and we didn't have that. Not that we didn't have the cogs, not that we didn't have the blown-outs. But we sure didn't have "5-minute-sessions", you see? Sessions took from 45 minutes to even 3 hours in some cases. But it was always blowing a plug of these guys (or an Org Board of these guys) and making sure of course, that you didn't then start the next, because the next one will be sort of waking up, as you get that one gone. So, when you see the thing blow down, and when you get the Floating TA, just have the guy spot: "Anything left there?" "Any copies left?" "Tell anybody else, that's started up on this or got restimulated, that it's NOT THEIR ITEM, that they will be handled later, this does not apply to them." Whatever statement it is that - ffff - quiets them down. (In the case that the guy says: "My attention is on that one." "All right. Ask the one guy left there, does he want to say something?" Whatever. "Last call." You handle - fffft - and then his TA is just floating, and he says: "OK, they're all gone!")

So, it's great! When all during the session we had cogs, when all during the session we are getting...interest! It's very high. As long as you're running along the correct line, you can't get any losses and you're running it - very interesting, very fun to run. And it's very much making changes on the guy, you know, on his case and on the body. Because now he is progressing in areas, where he's before been blocked up with all this junk.

Now, Ulrich, he will tell you - I mean, he was saying, before he started his SUPER NOTs: "you know, I'd like to find out more about this Inc I. What really happened in Incident I." Well, that was not just an idle statement. That was NOT an idle statement. Yes! He had a whole bunch of these guys, that had a LOT of charge on this Incident I business and experiments and all this kind of stuff. Just because he said that - as an auditor (he thought he was saying it as an auditor) - actually he was, BUT the cases were saying: "Heeeeyyyy...", you know? They were almost like calling for his attention. His attention was - it was enough to where that stack came up real quick, you see? There it was! Right!

So, very interesting, it's a very interesting thing. There is: One, the organization. And the next is: It's organized, AND it's STACKED UP in a certain way. OK? You might say: "That is the ORGANIZATION and SEQUENCE of the case left to the Pre-OT."

Now, remember, all this case - some of it is attached to your body, some of it is attached to you as a Thetan through the track. But, a lot of this stuff is attached to the body or to other Thetans, who were attached to other Thetans, who were attached to the universe or whatever, you see? A lot of this DID NOT COME TO THE PLANET WITH YOU. Some of it is picked up HERE. You see? So if you get some mystery about it, say..."Oh, how come this Thetan or these guys were in Rome, when I know, that I was in England?" You know? It doesn't matter. They could have come through the body-line, through the genetic-line, they could have come in just from engrams, incidents, injuries, any kind of way, you could have picked them up. This planet is crawling with this stuff. Somebody could have intended it on the guy, I mean. We've found recently many examples already (on getting the more recent charges off of BTs & Clusters) of real witchcraft, using Thetans, using Clusters as magical objects and symbols and so on, right? On this planet - very recently so - a magic sword, you know, magic sword...consisting of a Cluster, which is taken from the body of a dead soldier, so it has heroic qualities. That kind of stuff.

"That's the point behind this Siegfried Tale. Where the sword is hardened by sticking it into the blood of a body."

They kept the courage of the dead body by pulling it out with a Cluster stuck on the sword. They actually did a little more: It was a necromancy type of thing, that the armourers did - they came up to the magicians and got their help. The magician says: "Come on you guys, I want some heroes here, I want some heroes here for a special job, it's the sword of a king!" You know? Then the armourer will beat it in (the Cluster) real hard. Clang ! Clang! OK, now they're REALLY IN THERE - humm - a "Singing Sword", right? The whole Cluster goes - "humming" - . This is what's been happening here on Earth. This is always "mystical" stuff, OK? So, that's the organization and that's the stack.

Now, any questions about that stuff? Because you can also find this by doing a little interview on yourself or down the list to find out what is reading the best if you've run out the stuff to "What next to handle?" It's almost comes, after a while, as easy as: "what's my attention on?" or "What's my attention avoiding?". See? So, there IS a sequence. And it's vital too, not to leave BPC on this or you get this "build up of the charge". We didn't have that. Because - if you don't pull a whole plug (graph) - this is the whole plug - and you contact the top of the Org Board, and you're working till this is all out, and you get the F/Ning TA, OK? Bumm. But if you just cut the top off, just handle the top few guys, now you have an ORG WITHOUT A HEAD. So, it sort of destabilizes and goes into restim - bzzz - all over the Pre-OT.

You sort of have woken them up, you know, what I mean? You've taken off the SUPPRESS line or the HOLDING line on them, cut off the top of the Org, you see? So now you go and run something else and cut off another little bit of it, and so on. You now have this whole failed NOTs case - like you have more people out there going: "Uuuwwwagh, I don't want auditing anymore, uuuaagh...!" All of their whole case is humming! You know...? You see?

"They are leaderless."

"Erupting like a volcano."

Yes, but it's that they didn't pull all these plugs out completely and sort of keep the case in "PT". And it's exactly like it says; when you do pull out the thing, the whole thing, it sort of grows - boop - expands. It's bigger and bigger and bigger and you handle it in the room and you handle each thing and then you go on finding and cleaning the area. Then you have a few guys on the edges, sort of "waking up" in the other areas, but they are not in THIS area (where the plug was). So you just put them back to sleep, after handling the "last call" guys, looking for copies, whatever.

But gradually - if you just keep looking at the thing - you will see the other guys on the edge of the next plug - not even waking up, but they are just sort of going: Whoo - expanding!! But the space is clean now (or at least cleanER), and it's more CLEAR - it's like water - you know - it's like when you take a bowl of muddy water and pour clear water in it, quickly, you see suddenly clear water and then slowly the dark mud flows back in again. It's just like that. And it slowly goes muddy again. That's the viewpoint, you get of these guys - in the beginning of the case. Later the areas stay clear and clean.

Now I must tell you a very important thing (to sort of end up for you to ask the questions) and that is the thing, that I think most people have trouble with on NOTs (besides the Org and the Stack thing). It's the guys, which I have experience with, on LRH C/Sing. And I know, that it's not very well known around, and this is the guys, which he called "out of valence in R6", which are - this is, shall we say, (graph) along here, they where in "implanter valences". OK, LRH called - this is the guys, LRH called them "out of valence in R6". What he means by that - he calls the stuff, that was done on the Clearing Course (Implant) and those line-plots - he called them R6, just another name for bank items, R6. Routine 6 was one of the ways, they found them. They're called R6.

OK, so "out of valence in R6", what does that mean? That means: " The other guys, they GOT it. He's the one, who GAVE it." He is one of the bad guys. Now here you get all the PTS/SP-phenomena, evil purpose phenomena - what do you call - the "Laudable Withholds" and stuff like that - I mean "implanting" as a withhold: The guy thinks it's OK (or laudable) to withhold HOW MANY Thetans, he implanted, BECAUSE HE WORKED ON THE EVIL SIDE. So a withhold, to HIM, is like, he "let a Cluster get away" WITHOUT IMPLANTING IT, you know? He's withholding THAT, whereas on the other side THAT would be a "good thing" to do. But he withholds this from his boss: "Don't let Xenu find out, I let them go!" You see, what I mean?

So you have these guys, that are "out of valence in R6". Now, this is where it gets interesting, because you find out - funny enough - that they've MISSED Incident II by being in the - implanter Org, or (graph), when they were renegades or some of the guys, that were helping Xenu in Incident II. Now this is where it becomes important again on the organization basis to understand "Sector 9" and "Revolt in the Stars". It's where, it becomes important. Because now you get the knowledge to start handling these guys, who are out of valence in R6 - or let's say - worked on the implanting side. Because you DO FIND THEM - and the reason, I say you'll find this, is because - on these stacks (and I think, that is a lot of the reason, that people are just "chopping off" and just doing a little "by passing side step") a lot of times these guys are HOLDING THE WHOLE STACK or holding one whole plug.

This is 22 August 1985, this is side 3, Tech Briefing #4. It's a Confidential SUPER NOTs Briefing. And the last thing I was talking about here was that, we have just gone over the organization aspect of these dead BTs and so on, there is an organization there, and the stack up of the case. How you find out by your D of P interview, or by your own assessment of things, that are going on, or you just run into it naturally at the beginning of the session, if you really get aware of it. But the whole principle is to pull out the whole stack - or the plug part, that was connected to that and you run it by going up to the top of the Org Board first and then handle it all the way down. We find it happens much quicker that way. You may go on for 45 minutes handling the guy at the top of the plug and then 15 minutes later, you blown a thousand BTs out - ffftt you know? Because he was HOLDING ALL OF THEM and they all actually couldn't get out of that without a lot of effort, because his intention is on them (either good or bad intention, it doesn't matter). The guy IS HOLDING. Because he's an old Commander of an army troop and he has all his soldiers, he's holding. Or a father and therefore he's holding his family or something, who knows? But we could have an EVIL guy there, a suppressive one. And that's what I am talking about.

Now, because this is the 3rd thing that's not covered very well in the materials. But it IS covered in C/Sing Tech and it is covered in PTS/SP Tech, Evil Intention/Evil Purpose Tech, and some of the LRH's C/Ses on the Advanced Levels having to do with people "out of valence in R6", which means, they were the guys, who DID THE IMPLANTS and therefore didn't receive them. And you find combinations: The guys who got BETRAYED, after they did a lot of implants and they got through them (implants) themselves. And they will stick up and won't blow. You get them through their Incident II and they sort of still have charge or something like that. They say: "I deserved it" or something. "I was betrayed". And they are sort of "mean" about it, you know? And you get the idea of Missed Withhold with them or a Dirty Needle or something. Maybe a little small Rock Slam, you know? "Hey, were you working with the other side?" "Oh, hmm, hmm, you know, I was a pilot, you know, hmm, hmm...., hmm, hmm, I did drop the bomb...: Then you get, of course you have to get him to tell: "How many times you did that?" and so on. A lot of times they take no responsibility: "I was just doing my job!" - you see, everybody has a job. ("Bomb the Thetans!") - just a job. So you have to get this, you get it off, and you still maybe don't get any needle action, (because you've) not getting it ALL off. So then you have to get, either that the guy is totally overwhelmed and in the valence of the SP, so you have to know: "Who are the SPs in this business?" You know, Xenu, Chu. Chi, all these guys. If he was in banking or in psychiatry or the army, he was working for one of these guys. It's true. That is the names, that come up out of the case, you see? And we even had some guys stuck - like guys we have found, who say: "So what, I did my job, followed orders." NOTHING HAPPENING. "Evil Purpose?" "No, that was just a job." NOTHING READING ON THE GUY, right? Say: "PTS to Xenu?" - wham! - big read- "Whoo? Don't tell him about this!" "I'm afraid you guys were checking up on me. No, I did my job. Who are you? What do you want?"

The guy totally comes out of it, you see? He, and a lot of guys come out of this thing, because they thought YOU'RE MORE IMPLANTERS, that are "checking up on them". They think you are the implanters checking up on them, to see if they are still keeping their "Shut up!" (silence). You see, what I mean?

So always remember, you may have to use that old auditor process: "Who would I have to be to audit you?" Especially for guys, who are - even if you get him in comm - and he "Uuaargh, uuaargh, so what?" And he keeps going silent, you know? Might need: "Who would I have to be to audit you?" And he pops up and says: "Xenu!" or "Chu!", "Chi!". You know, one of these guys, who run the thing. Or some of them are more "religious minded" and may say: "God".

So you have to remember, that when you are dealing with these guys, who are either "resistive cases", because they were in earlier therapy, or because they were on the overt side, and therefore they have a lot of withholds and have lots of "out of valence shifts" from the time, when they were really in their OWN UNIVERSE. They have lots of "out of valences". They were into the "knocking out thetans" stuff. So you have to get them INTO SESSION. And first they have to RECOGNIZED YOU AS AN AUDITOR. So, just to get him in comm is not enough sometimes. You have to find out, WHO YOU HAVE TO BE TO AUDIT HIM?

Then you have to handle the overts, they did. And if there is no charge coming off of that and it won't free him up on the track, even after you get "how many times?" and all that stuff, you have to find out their PTS situation. Or they are withholding because of some association within the organization, or you can go back and date: "When did you start that?" or "What is the date of that evil purpose?" You can date the evil purpose. He says: "Yeah, it's all right to "do in" thetans - it's OK." "OK. When did you make that?" And then you can go - you know - "What were you BEFORE you made that purpose?" - After you get charge off the purpose. You usually find out HE HIMSELF was either "convinced", "PRed", "blackmailed", "implanted", some how, in the normal criminal fashion of Xenu and his boys, MADE to do that - Very much like the Russian do with their population - but on a much broader scale, you know?

You know, "If you don't do this, you will be one of those!" - you know - an ICE CUBE... And boy, we found that these guys, who PROTESTED ANY PART OF DOING INCIDENT II, were marked down and they were put through. Either there or later. Anybody who sort of went "You know, maybe it's not a good idea to do."...It's always another guy reports him. So when he comes in, he's called into the office - Zap! - you see? So he (Xenu) didn't allow anybody to talk. "You want this to happen to you?" So he kept the lines tight. There negades, you know, if they betrayed Xenu, then they would get SMASHED. So of course they got a big withhold. They got the overts, they got the withhold, they got the PTS situation, they got the betrayal....EVERYTHING. You see it right there on the case, as you run these guys.

But if you know this data in here, you can unravel it, because you can throw a few questions in there about PTSs, about evil purposes, about "Whom you work for?", and you can get the read, you see? And you can unmock it. OK, so that's the little hint on the "out of valence guys" and LRH's C/Sing style.

Now, why are these guys holding on a lot of these stacks? Very simple. A lot of them are holding the stacks, because they are more powerful than everybody else in the stack. Why are they more powerful? Because they didn't have the Implant with the same intention or they didn't have it at all. They got it in a later Mutual Incident or an earlier one or something like that. But they weren't in that particular Incident II. They may have got dumped down to the planet later by betraying the renegades, they may have got just shot and dumped on the planet, because they thought they may be a security problem, you know what I mean? They might have been left there, so there wouldn't be any "witnesses".

So, while some were there, busily doing the other guys in and then, after that was over, they said: "OK, get rid of those guys, we don't want any "witnesses" - rat-tat-tat-tat (machine guns) - you see? That's it. So they got left on the planet. They may even have gotten put through the "36 days" but rarely - sometimes you don't find these guys had the Volcano Incident. They haven't had the explosion of the H-bomb. So they are sort of still more "competent" as a thetan. They are still "there", not so much "made into a Cluster". So they were more powerful.

So, they sort of "take over" a thing and some of them PRETEND to be good guys. This is another thing - they would say: "Well, you know, I'm a good guy, I'm a good guy." (Apart from HOLDING on to these other guys in the plug, they're ready to do anything, that you want.) But you can get the indicators of Dirty Needles, teeny Dirty Needles, and some times little Rock Slams, stuff like that. When you get a Rock Slam, you can just date/locate the evil purpose and you can usually find them.

Now, some of this stuff goes all the way back BEFORE (Incident) II (graph) and you find the guy "out of valence" in (Incident) I as well! This is interesting, because that means, that he came like this (graph), and he may have been out of valence in (Incident) I, he may have done (Incident) I, come all the way down the track here (graph), he got nailed by the implanters back here, for betraying them, doing Incident II (I) wrongly on people - letting some escape from Incident II (I) - (I'm sorry - from Incident I).

But thetans have gotten out of Incident I for not doing it properly on them. We found guys that were only "half-done" on Incident I. They didn't have the full thing or they escaped from the full impact of the snaps, you know? By avoiding various control mechanisms on them of electronic charge, and so on. And if the guy, who was running it - and they have thetans actually running this stuff - who were...who were supposed to make sure, the guy was in position before you "zapped" him with the snaps, you see? And if he wasn't quite in position, then the snaps and Clusters all formed up here (a bit off target) and then the guy wasn't quite in it. And so he comes out sort of "dragging" the Cluster along with him on the time track. And he "sees" it! And we had a guy, who was dragging it like a trailer. He says: "Yeah, I can't get rid of the thing, because I don't know what it is. But it makes pictures for me." You know, what I mean? Then you go back (to Inc I) and find out he was "missed" and then nearby him is another guy, who was - who WAS the guy who did the "errors" and right after he went through, they snapped this other guy through it, because he was on the bad side of Incident I and he messed up. Same Xenu pattern here: BETRAY EVERYBODY!

So, he was an operator here(graph), an operator in Incident I. And these guys are sort of "out of valence in Incident I", see? But then later they got betrayed and thrown through. But you find out, when they RUN THEIR INCIDENT I, they still feel "evil", they still have an R/S, they still...they don't "blow" really. "Earlier Incident I?" "Earlier Universe?", doesn't work on them. Why not? Still CHARGE, evil purpose - bum bum - all of this. And THERE you have to get AGAIN the PTS/SP phenomenon or the evil purpose, because that's...Before he came into the game, he may have had a good purpose, then he got recruited by Xenu, turned it into an evil purpose. You see? Or he might have formed the evil purpose by saying: "Hey! That's the way to do it! I want to work with those guys!" You know?

They really caused some effects though. Because back in those days - I mean - it was like - it wasn't looked at necessarily as a - because it was the first time, that was done, it wasn't looked at how horrible it was, you understand? Back there, people were more - they were free of track before that, so they didn't have pictures automatically and so on - they thought: "Hey, that is a good game, you know, let's "zap" all these guys and confuse them!" You see, what I mean?

So, he could be "out of valence" in INCIDENT I AND INCIDENT II or he could be "out of valence" in ONE OF THEM. So again you find them hard to blow, after you get way back here (Inc I and before) and then ask them: "Who are you?" and he says: "Oh, I'm a nobody" you know? OK, he had a failed purpose. You know? Can't do what he wanted, you know? And "Earlier Universe?" "No." And he's sort of a "Nothing". He is still there and he's still "holding on" there or something. And nothing is really blowing down on this guy. Nothing is getting "loose".

"What were you doing there around Incident I time? Were you connected in DOING Incident I?" You get a little read there on him - dididid (small R/S) - he's coming along, you know? Then you ask: "OK, what's that? What's the story there? Come on, what's the BPC?" "Oh, well, you know - I wanna be free, but if they find out, that I'm talking to you....you know? They won't let me go free - NO!" You know? All kinds of computations come out of that and then finally it opens up, he gives you the whole story, and you say: "OK, and what were you before that?" You see? Then he gives you: "I only was a lonely simple little guy. I came in. I wanted to play a BIG GAME. I wanted to be a BIG GUY - and they promised me a big post..."

So - you blew him loose of the evil purpose, now he CAN go back to his own universe. He did have to do his purpose - you see, what I mean? He got a "big post", he got to play a "big game", and he got....he THOUGHT he failed, because they betrayed him, they put him through the Incident himself. But basically he's been a "solid" ever since Incident I. A lot of these guys - when they wake up - they are just - "zip" - from THEN TO NOW NOTHING HAPPENED IN BETWEEN TO THEM. They are just very surprised to find themselves 4 quadrillion years later and they have to be oriented. Or sometimes they are very clean and they know, where they are and everything like that. Or you single them up and there is nobody connected to them, but they sort of hang there outside the body or outside the room and sort of just "hang there". And you ack them and he still "hangs" there - "Ack!" - and you get sort of this puzzlement, you know? And then you realize: "Oh, the guy is not oriented." Just orient him, you know, he got the cog, he got the "own universe" business, he got "who he is". But he doesn't know what to do. He is sort of "brand new". You have to orient him: "That is planet Earth outside - right here on Earth was Incident II, 75 million years ago - ..." "There were some bad guys running Incident II, that's what it was, and so on, so this is planet Earth 75 million years later than that. We're trying to rehabilitate all these guys and all that stuff like that."

"Wow, yeah, yeah, I see! Wow! What a game! What are these things...?" Some of them have NEVER SEEN A MEAT BODY. They've only seen DOLL BODIES. Incident I was run with doll bodies. In fact there were a lot of exterior beings at that time, at least until they got captured or "PRed" into it: "Hey, experience the viewpoint of that doll body" - you know? "They're pretty fine, they're amazing, they're nice." "There is the thing - get in there - pshsst!" - you see?

So the whole idea was to suppress thetans and OTs down to a lower level of not being able to as-is, not being able to postulate, not being able to operate. To start them "being" or "pretending to be" MEST, and so on like that. All the things OPPOSITE to the things Scientology is trying to do..

So, back here is the other incident, you find "out of valences", right? (Inc I) And by the way - any questions on the "out of valence in R6" or "out of valence in Incident I"? Remember, these guys are holders - a lot of them are holders - they are either HIDING or you find these guys sort of feel "withholdy" or some feel "mean", you know? So, you get him IN VALENCE, OK? You may have to use any or all of that (given above) as well. One other thing: This is why we don't see the repair list so often on NOTs.

At certain points on the track...if the guy's...if you contact the guy in PT - you know - you get him AWAKE and contact him, then by his ANSWER on the FIRST VALENCE QUESTION, you can usually tell, where his charge is going to be. If he gives you an answer, that is a piece of MEST - right? - you are going to find out, that he is usually having to be taken through all of these steps, all right?

If he is...giving you an answer as - after he wakes up from being a..."whatever" - you know? - he was a spot, and you woke him up and you say: "What are you?" and "Whaat...? Well, I was a spot, but now I'm really an Officer." If he gives you a body identity or a body name - if it is a meat body or he gives you a picture of meat bodies - then he's usually somewhere - he's going to be stuck in between Incident... between from NOW BACK TO INCIDENT II, right? (graph) And sometimes BACK OF THAT. You are going to find charge of course, but you basically - Bang! - (chart) - you will ALSO have charge on INCIDENT II on this guy, because he's still dramatizing meat bodies, and if his incident was ON EARTH, he definitely WAS in that (Inc II) - all right? But if he wakes up, and is giving you a sort of "space opera" thing - you know - where there were robot or doll bodies and zipping around in very fast ships between different planets and stuff like that - it may be, that's his BPC in that area somewhere - you know? Where he got "zapped" with a laser or whatever. He may have come all the way through this thing unconscious and he may be back of that somewhere on the track, where he has to find his true identity. In other words - especially with doll bodies and stuff like that - we get him into that stage there (chart) usually back around Incident I and from Clearing Course stuff back (graph) - 1 quadrillion, 2, 3, 4, something like that.

Although there were meat bodies at that time, it was NOT, it's NOT THE BIG THING there. Anybody knows there is a much bigger status in having their "doll bodies". So, anyway, it's not an invariable rule, but you can sort of spot, where the guy's charge is going to be. So, if a guy is telling you: "Well, yeah, I had a nice doll body at one time, and man, they fucking got me and - bla bla bla - that's my BPC." "I lost my whole game there." - and so on. And you say: "OK. Well - must have an earlier incident. (Somewhere between Incident II and Incident I). Whenever it WAS a doll body and you ask: "Do you have Incident II?" - you won't get it. So DON'T PULL THE GUY UPWARDS ON THE TRACK. WRONG WAY. He's already flowing forward in time. Usually it's Incident I.

Whereas if the guy's giving you: He was a "priest" or a "conquistador" or some kind of a "space guy in a body" or a... you know - any kind of thing in a meat body - then you are going to say: "OK" - (after he's finished telling you his BPC or answered a few "What's?", and you're not getting any cog on the "Who?") - and then you say: "OK, let's go get Incident II from the Capture." And he will find: "THAT"S where it's at!"

Also, we've woken up guys, who were a whole army troop, or a whole troop of religious people, and they still thought they had their bodies. And they woke up fully on running the Capture of Incident II. They are waking up, and you still see this funny "solid object", and then they wake up and you see this thing come apart - the solid object disappears - until you get this impression of thetans around, and little mock-ups - a group of mock-ups around and these are their BODIES and they're all going: "Yes..." - straightening up their clothes. But then they suddenly realize, they don't have any bodies anymore!

The thing happened so fast, that they - they're just coming "alive" again - you know - like he (LRH) says on the tape - on the revivification - he's revivifying now, he's coming right out of that incident. He still thinks, he has his body there. You know, these people straightening up their coats, and all that, but it's only thin mock-ups. They are not REALLY there. But when you see that, you now that the guy is still stopped on that valence of "being a body". He's still carrying along a thin mock-up.

And then when the guy has come to the point of being a thetan and he realizes: "Yeah...yeah, I'm really me!" "I'm a thetan!" - BUT he's STILL NOT BLOWING, then you can suspect basically, that his charge is going to be back here in (Incident I) - people stuck to him, or he was on the other side of it, or he had a failed purpose - like that, you see? It's more or less way back in this area.

Or we will find some guys, who had missed (Incident) II. All right, they had missed Incident II - were pretty clean - like a Natural Clear or something like that and later the guy got suckered by something on Earth or something in the Universe and got thrown down onto Earth by some spaceship accident or some warfare or something, that the implanters laid on him and he got captured, implanted, thrown down here. And they have been out of valence ever since. But when you wake them up, they're immediately a thetan. They KNEW, they were exterior before that. You do find it - and it's not too rare. But those guys would usually be running around and pick up bodies. Some of them did get fooled into "being" a body. And usually because they had never spotted their own EARLIER INCIDENT Is. So they had with them other people who were smashed and they went with it: zap-zap-zap-zap, see? The other guys got caught up in the pictures and they just went with it. They're "done in" by their own valence. So, we do find guys, that when you wake them up, they are - have theta abilities, right away - zip! - they are Clear almost, or are Clear. But they are VERY EASY to run. I mean - that's not the problem.

The problem is: Where is the guy when he's giving these answers like: "I'm your evil nemesis" or "I'm a bird" or "a horrible beast" - or something like that. Oh boy!

Then you probably have got to look at it, as the guy maybe has charge on the Middle Ages - you know? - some of this religious symbolism or something, which "earlier similar" locked onto an Incident II picture - you see, what I mean? Then he won't answer the rest of the valences questions. He's just giving you a "36 days" picture. IT'S NOT WISE TO LIST AND NULL, BECAUSE THAT JUST BY-PASSES CHARGE ON OTHER GUYS.

It's wise to just know from C/Sing that here's this guy. He is stuck in a fucking religious mock-up. He's giving you the stuff with "hoods" and "capes", and "beams" and all this kind of stuff - you know - and he is saying: "Evil perversions, yes, I must keep all these people from going into evil perversions." And so on like that. He's just "fixed" and he won't give you the evil purpose - no date, nothing like that. So, you say: "OK, you have BPC on Incident II - 36 days picture of that" - you now? And you just - poom! put his ATTENTION on it. "75 million years ago." - poom! - and that was it - psst - it vanishes.

You see, these guys are very easy - ONCE YOU GET THEM IN COMM TO INDICATE THE THING, YOU SEE FROM C/SING, WHAT IT MUST BE. You see? What it MUST BE. Knowing the 36 days - pictures of devils and all these different kinds of things. All the things you see dramatized on television today - it is one of those. Boy, the guy has got charge on that. So, he won't get loose until he runs that BPC out of Incident II. And you might find, that he's on the OVERT side of it. Before he GOT it, he was GIVING it. So, if he doesn't go easily from (Incident) II back to (Incident) I, then you KNOW, that he's got some charge in between and usually RIGHT THERE. He was GIVING it, before he GOT it. And he "pretends" - we have seen some guys totally - fft - like this (flinching) - trying to "get away from responsibility". You've probably seen that.

He says: "Oh! Yeah, I was captured. Right here on "Terra" (Earth). Thrown through the thing and - bup! - Yeah, that was Inc II - yeah - Ohh - feels a lot better. What's next?" And then you would say: "Incident I" (Nothing) "Huh?" "Is there some more charge there in Inc II?" "Did you tell me ALL about that or is there some more By Passed Charge?" - You got a little read - and you say:

"Yeah, what IS that? What were you DOING right around Inc II?" - "Ahh - well - uh - uh -." "Where you on the OVERT side of it?" - "Ahh - well - haha - yes."

Then you get off this charge. And then: "When did you make that purpose?" And then you have to get THAT off, BEFORE the guy can get back to Incident I and see it, if he needs to - BEFORE he can get off the other guys, that are stuck to him.

So, what you are doing essentially here in SUPER NOTs is: YOU ARE C/SING EACH CASE, AS IT COMES UP! And that's what we saw immediately - that what you are doing is: C/Sing YOURSELF - by finding what the STACK is in your area. C/SING the FIRST READ, or CONTACT with BTs & Clusters, you get in the STACK - which is the "Org" aspect of it - (You have to know a little policy on that - org policy DOES apply to Plugs) (And there is this data here, about how the organization of the "bad guy" is stacked up, and so on - as well.) Because it's all Org Board knowledge, but BASICALLY, it's FINDING THE LEADER of this group. Getting who is "holding" who. If you're not getting a result, when you first contact - you find out, WHO IS HOLDING HIM, and so on. Or, if it's a Cluster, then: "Who is the spokesman for the Cluster?" and: "What is the Mutual Incident for the Cluster?" If you can't get it this way, then: "WHO IS HOLDING THE CLUSTER?", and so on.

Remember, a Cluster is a less able thing than a single being, so always suspect that there IS a holder. "Somebody holding?" "Suppressed?" "Hiding?", but DOING IT anyway. They may be outside. They may be somewhere else. OK, so you get the stack on your own cognition. Then you get your area of attention. And you get the Org - ORGANIZATION. You start out, go up to the top, and work down. All right? Being ready to handle, or "C/S" any of the guys you find. And expect up near the top to find the "implanter", the "out of valence in R6".

Any guys, that are "out of valence in R6" and any guys, that may be "implanters operating around this area", could be holders on these things. And these guys - as LRH says - they got VERY SOLID because of their overts. True - but ALSO because of their LIMITED TRACK OF BEING ANY KIND OF A CAUSATIVE BEING. They're always working for SUPPRESSIVES. So he WORKED for a suppressive - what happened - he BECOMES suppressive. Right, and so the guy ends up being a suppressive at a very LOW LEVEL - HOLDING on to a Cluster - who is holding a BT - who is holding other Clusters - and so on.

So, it's not uncommon to find these "out of valence in R6" guys. Not uncommon at all. We haven't yet had to run Power on any of them, which is interesting. But I'm sure you can find them so "stuck in", that you have to run Power on them. I've run other people on Power, but we haven't found any in our auditing, that we had to run Power on yet. But if they just got so STUCK in ANYTHING or the earlier thing they had, they just got so STUCK in the incident, it was PT FOR THEM, and so on, or NOTHING woke them up - then it's a process, that CAN WORK on ANYTHING, you see?

But to run Power, you do need to be in comm with the guy. You CAN do it by straight intention back and forth, back and forth, back and forth, till the guy finally blows loose of it, giving him the Power command - which is also getting him in comm, you know - because it's asking for rudiments anyway, it's asking for EVERYTHING, with a beautiful Tech of ONE PROCESS, that handles everything on the guy all the way down, to where the engram stuck him in. You often WILL need the Power Processes. Especially "Power Process 6": "Tell me an existing condition." "Tell me how you have handled it?" It's for the RESISTIVE case.

The other thing, I just wanted to mention quickly, was, that there is a lot of data in "Revolt in the Stars", which will enable you to understand the actual organization, the factors, that went in to producing Incident II. It tells about Xenu's "3 Phase Plan" and all of that kind of stuff. PHASE ONE: Assassination of Loyal Officers. PHASE TWO: Blowing up the bases of the Armies of the Loyal Officers of the troops, so they could not respond, and then - PHASE THREE: Capturing the populations, bringing them all to Earth and blowing them up. And it gives details of how they did the transports and so on. They just don't mention the ice-cubes and they don't mention the implant. OK?

So this is exactly what happened. And they give a list of "bad guys" and the financial thing, how it was financed. Also the planets where they came from - or at least the stars where they came from. You can't maybe get the name of each planet with the stars, but we've already found guys that want that. To get more oriented to what happened or to who were DOING the capture. One said: "Yeah, I came from Antares." You know, they will give you that. So, it's good to know, what these names are, because it gives more R (Reality) with the guys you are handling.

These are important things, that I think you have to know about. This is that first, thetans are HOLDING ON to a beingness, you know? They are afraid of becoming molecules and cells. That's what they fear. But even then, we find out on lower levels of these stacks, thetans are holding - there's the guy who is right over the cells and molecules and he monitors them. They blow up by inspection almost, after the other valence stuff is gone. But they're down there and they haven't quite become a molecule or cell. And they are still thetans and they are still holding - they are the "monitor" of those cells.

Now this, this other thing is very interesting to Doctor Prinz: This is probably what prevents medicine from working and so on like that - because THEY are being held further up the line by SUPPRESSIVES. So they are holding the cells, so that the blood stream for instance, in that area, will not flow. So medicine can't work, because this guy is putting intention there: "Don't let anybody in!" You know? You see, what I mean? OK.

And those are the key points of this thing. One is the organization point, and then using it to handle plugs, stacks, and seeing the transparency build up even before the space closes in again. Even so it's always getting less solid. And recognizing that you have, or are going to run into some people, that have these problems of OT III in restim and By Passed Charge in particular, right? And that you have to get some of them - you have to get them into comm by letting them tell: "Who you would have to be to audit them" - and blow any charge on that. Or recognizing that there's a sort of comm of a name: "Aha, that's a ... that name is a bad guy in Incident II". "So, you worked for a bad guy in Incident II?"

Now, the auditing is a bit - because you're dealing mostly with - here you're not dealing with a TOTAL COMPOSITE CASE. You're taking up individuals out of that, that essentially may be hung up by Incident I and II, but not much else. So, they - when you are dealing with them, you can sort of bypass maybe Grades... some of Dianetics, Grades, and so on like that. But not all of them, sometimes you need to get them in comm, you need to get problems or overts handled, if they need and so on. But the valence process, by itself, because - basically you start with the valence process, then you find you can't go any further, you use this data, and then again you can end up with the valence process, after you got all his charge off. Then the guy finally realizes, - for example, you are working with the guy and right away you know it's a waste of time. You ask the guy: "Who is he?" He's "The devil" - "Who's he?" "The devil". And "Who was he, before he became that?" "Ah, I was a picture of the devil." You know? Come on, this is going to on forever...right? You say: "What's the By Passed Charge? Is it Incident II? Another Incident?" "OK, I see, it's II. Good. Was it a 36 days picture?" - you know?

"Oh, oh, oh, I see, I was fixated on a picture of the devil." "Good, OK." "What's your capture?" Right away you got it. Just by pushing him back to that time - 75 million - pumm, pfft, tshh - you see? YOU KNOW THAT. I mean, you don't have to go fooling around with this thing and by pass charge on this. You spot the guy - pumm - back to the incident. It's very easy, you see.

So, you can do a C/SING ON THE CASE, AS YOU SEE IT.And you can always ask: "Holder?" And - the guy must be stuck, you see? Ask for the Holder, "being held by something?" Find out where he is, OK? All right. He will still be there. He's not going anywhere else. Don't worry.

We've had a funny experience of a guy going through a wall, when he was trying to blow, and he just stopped. He couldn't get through the wall. He had to spot, that there were two more Earlier Incident Is, that were stuck on him IN HIS VALENCE. And WITH THEM he couldn't get through the wall. So we blew him loose of those and they ALL got through the wall. You see?

That just shows you, that if you understand the track and you understand the (OT) III, and you understand the basic, where the case is "stacked up". That's a VERY IMPORTANT LINE in NOTs. So if you understand that, you can run it very successfully with a lot of interest all the time, because you are always gaining data about the whole track, and a lot of Incidents. And you're EXPANDING the PLUS GAIN, the POSITIVE GAIN now, not just the "negative gain" to you. But the positive gain to you is: "My God!" "Wow!" And you become informed and causative on the other dynamics. And you find all the things, that caused aberrations on every single dynamic. And you KNOW THIS IS THE TRUTH.

So, the guy gets Clear on all Dynamics, and OT on all Dynamics. It's possible. I mean, this is HATTING for thetan who is running through this auditing either as a PreOT or as a Solo Auditor. You understand VERY MUCH.

So, to see for yourself what happened with thetans. All the Dynamics we have in here. There's thetans, who have entire 4th and 3rd dynamics in these plugs. You can have entire populations, groups, towns, army corps, all kind of different jobs, populations, in there - messed around on Earth - put through Incident II.

And before that, when you get back (on the track), and if you really understand Dynamics 3 and 4, then you go plenty above that. When you're going back here (chart) and start doing the stuff around Incident I, you start finding out, what all the considerations are about Dynamic 5 and 6 and 7 and 8 and 9 and 10. Because back there, they were doing a more of a thetan's game. They were thetans and doll bodies, but not so many meat bodies and they experimented over here with these little woody things, that were only plants, and help that to grow up into trees and so on.

Remember the old Dianetics Axioms: Theta, Lambda, Phi. Theta is Theta. Lambda is the body form, and Phi is MEST. But as you get these guys through Phi, then finally come up from Phi, through Lambda to Theta and then - pffft - then they are single, and they're back in their own universe, OK?

So, whatever happens, that's the beauty of the level. I can not understand how people get bored with it, and so on like that, if they're running it right. I don't expect sessions to be short, right? I don't expect people to get bored with it, because it's very interesting all the way through. And you think: "Well, I'm not running my own case." But it IS your own case, as you are responsible for freeing it.

If people think, it's not interesting, they must have missed something about it, because it's always interesting to find out what's in the next plug. Like that: You're always getting knowledge and you have to confront several very evil and very - so to say - unconfrontable incredible things on the track, when you run these things. And that makes you ready for the next level after SUPER NOTs. OK?

So, now, any questions...anybody have any questions about what we said? Or on what I am briefing you on here? And what will be the reference data, that are talked about? Any other experiences, that people would like to say or that seems to fit in with this? I know you've been running NOTs. You've been running NOTs as well. So we - does this seem to summarize most of the important points you...go after?

"Yes, it does. I still have one other question: I mean, I don't really...I don't know, that they really blow on Earlier Universe."

Well, they do if it's an Earlier Universe far enough back.

"I wonder about the phenomena of Out-Int. When you are quite a way on the level of this. And they don't have it anymore...a time track. But still, there is that Out-Int phenomena, which...which I don't understand."

OK. Well, first the reference on that is where he talks about flows, stuck flows...

"Yeah, this is the point: stuck flows is the problem I have - stuck flows and the understanding of the thetans. Stuck flows and Out-Int. It's maddening."

Well, he said, that the stuck flow is the sort of an underlying reason for Out-Int. They're stuck on one of these flows, right? Now, what we're dealing with here is what we're calling "Review Auditing". See? Because the "Int" problems are usually a Review Case. What I'm talking about here is the major stuff, you run on the track. That is always handled. But in Review, we have certain things, that don't fit in the usual line-up of auditing. You see? So, this is the sort of stuff like Out-Int and when you have to prepcheck him or you have to do a repair on a guy. A certain kind of repair auditing. A specific thing on that case, right?

So Out-Int is basically a flows problem. You do handle the grade chart with flows...

Mhm, I understand, I understand. What I'm saying is: It comes under a different category of ability or disability of a thetan. We now are on to a review thing of - now, see, we're talking about before the time track in this instance?

"Yes, I used that example, that's fine."

Now we're talking about - when you're in Review - you are always looking at: "Are we making this thetan able or has he got a disability, that's affecting his case?" This is a totally different view in order to locate the thing. You know? From the viewpoint of: "Are we achieving the ability for the guy or not." And, "What - if not - what ability does he need to have to get back to the abilities of a thetan to postulate and perceive." And the "Rights of a Thetan" - this is the other thing, we had to brief some of the guys on here - the "Rights of a Thetan" to LEAVE A GAME, if he wants to, or the RIGHT TO HIS OWN SANITY.

 END OF SIDE 3, TECH BRIEFING #4 ***

OK, this is side 4, now we have the question and answer period about the SUPER NOTs BRIEFING, 22 August 1985. It's TECH BRIEFING #4, CONFIDENTIAL FOR SUPER NOTs ONLY. Question and answer period.

We're just talking about now the review action and we had this special thing of Out-Int, stuck flows on BTs, all right? And I'm saying also now, this is when you have to wear the "Review C/S" hat. This is just straight C/Sing so far. (All before on this tape).

Now, as a sort of "Review guy" you sort of look at the thing as: If the thetan was totally able, he wouldn't be in the situation he was. So, we're looking at the abilities, that the thetan could normally have to be an OT, right? Or be a "Static", OK? This comes under the prepcheck buttons, the postulate and perceive Axioms - you know, where he has the ability to postulate and perceive, and the ability to AS-IS. That covers a lot of that. And all these buttons, that you put on lists, on rudiments, and things, which can be out: False and Inval, Eval, Decide, Altered, and all the different things a thetan can do with things. All right?

So Out-Int is one of these, where he can't flow this way or that way - or that way. He's stuck in at least one way. He can't come in. Can't come out - stuck, stuck, stuck. So, it basically comes under the earlier Axioms of Dianetics, where you have a thetan, who is "bringing order to MEST". The Dianetics Axioms. It's more like: Theta brings order to MEST. And you now have a guy confused with his identity in relation to or his abilities in relation to MEST. That is basically what it is. ALL of these disabilities. The thetan is disabled because he's become - well, he's become Entheta or Enmest, see? Because as I said, a pure thetan could go through a wall. It's no problem.

"He's stuck. He's stuck, you know?"

Yeah. But if he's stuck in with two other thetans, THAT"S THE LIE. So now he's THREE - but he THINKS, he is ONE. If you get them each SINGLE, they should ALL go through the wall. Now one guy MAY NOT go through the wall, and you have done everything else on him, and so he is the guy on the stuck flow, see?

So, you will get, in the case at some point, you'll get a whole bunch of guys, that now have - AFTER all this other stuff has been blown - they may even have been sitting there, listening, the whole time...

"Of course they have! Of course they have!"

Yeah, they monitored, what's going on and now they find out: "Yeah, well, me too - but I, I can't go...". You know, they really say it (telepathically) just like that, right? If the guy has been hanging on to these plugs, all the other guys are sort of "listening" too. They blow charge as the first guy gets handled, the top of the Org Board. He's been holding at the top, so whatever he's been saying or doing, is affecting them ALL. That's why, when we've pulled him out and blow him, the whole thing will start to come apart. And now we are getting to the point, where maybe some don't go, the guys with the stuck flows.

"And they are partially hiding, partially hiding, stuck flows on different flows, see?"

Mmm, you will find, that these guys are the guys who are carrying over a stuck flow from THEIR OWN UNIVERSE - they COULD DO IT from there,you see? I think, they are mistaking their own universe with this one and are carrying an old game, or an old stuck flow or an old postulate with them to another one (universe). You'll find games conditions going on between two or more of those guys, right? If you single them down - once you've singled them - and he still can't go or get free, or can't get out or move or whatever, then you must find the flow that's stuck, like it says in the thing on the assessment on the flows. Do you have that?

But there WILL be a story of it, when you do the recall. See, you have to get that recall, so the guy can be totally free of it. And he could be ANYBODY or ANYTHING, because a thetan can hang himself up in ANY WAY AT ALL.

Now, I would say the reason, you're getting a bunch of these, is because they've been monitoring the other stuff going on during the case and they sort of "cleaned themselves up" on "solo".When you get to them, the only thing they have left is within: They couldn't leave because, they have stuck flows. And that is something you weren't handling on the other guys, so they didn't get it. And then you have to assess the flows, get the recall - bamm - they find out, what it is and blow the confusion, they had on other universes or other things that they misidentified.

"They have no...I mean they are not involved or have no attention, there's nothing. Just nothing. Just stuck!"

Realize, when you get there, you are dealing - once you've singled the guy up - you are already dealing at this point of the track, where the beginning of the track is - Incident I - so now you're dealing with guys behind that point, who have a disability. So you're dealing with pure Theta at this point and you are only working on the basis of the things "Senior to the Bank." So, Incident I isn't real to them. Incident II isn't real to them. It's senior buttons you need.

So, what is it LRH says are senior to the Bank? ARC, KRC, the Grades-charge, and occasionally, problems, stuck flow problems. O/W - his own consideration of his own overts. Not as a "body", but HIS as a thetan. His own idea of an overt, his own Ethics for instance - ARC - of course, because we mentioned that, - AND he can easily create himself a little Service Fac - if he wants to - by playing a game with somebody.

In fact we found out, that when you get to the end of this that "purposes" always have to do with GAMES. And some of these guys are stuck are stuck on the "Theory of Games". They don't understand the THEORY OF A GAME.

So, now you get him really up there, to where the abilities are blocked by non-understanding of games - you know - freedoms, and barriers and opponents. I mean, just put that up to them, you know: "Game?" "Are you stuck in a game? Freedom, barriers and opponents?"

"Oh, yeah! I got a barrier here, I made because I got opponents! Where's that opponent? Ooooh, GONE!! He was there!" You know? They did it one timelong ago, but it's not there anymore. "Ohh, no more opponents. I guess, I can be free." You see, what I mean? The theory. They knew, that long ago, they were doing something, that they had a games conditions with and they didn't understand the game and now it's gone. See?

So, these are the applicable things on the later part of the case here or when you find these guys when that won't go after Incident I. You find this Earlier Universe, but connected with that is "purposes", "games", "stuck flow", "attributes of the thetan", "abilities", "postulates". "Did you postulate something?"

You can't...you don't even get a reaction to: "Earlier?" They don't look at it as being "Earlier". They sort of still have their attention on it in PT.

"They don't understand that at all. (Earlier)"

Not after you...when they don't have pictures anymore, you don't have an "earlier" concept. To them it's just an "Is-ness". It's an IS-NESS.

"Almost too simple to sort of see that, because it's so high up."

Right! And so it's easy. Because now you're dealing with...

"I don't think it's easy..."

Well, you're dealing with the attributes of a thetan, and you're dealing with prep-check-type-buttons, you're dealing with flows, and you're dealing with abilities and games. So, you can almost be - you know - if it doesn't handle with Int, you can check, whether the guy's stuck in a game. Find out: Is he stuck in a game? "What is the game?" "Who are you playing it with?" Or "Did you have one? Did you win? Did you loose?" Whatever gets the charge off, you know, you dig at it, if "failed purpose" doesn't get it off. Because he could have a failed purpose in a earlier game. And then, when you get his failed purpose in THIS UNIVERSE, you then get him back to earlier universe and it's not his only failed purpose. Because he failed in that one too - he lost a game.

So, now you have to run "games" on the guy. To get him to understand games: "OK" - you know - "That's it!" "The game is over." And then you can get him to basic LRH "Rights of a Thetan", which gives the "ability to leave a game". "the right to leave a game." "The right to your own sanity." That's what we're trying to make here.

"Yeah, I see..." He gets a cog. Sometimes you have to ORIENT him. Sometimes you have to R-Factor him. Sometimes you have to give him some Tech data, so they can understand what's wrong with them - you know? Give them data what happened. Hat them. Get them aware of games. You have to get them aware of failed purposes. You have to get them aware of "this is the MEST universe", and their freedoms or the right of a thetan - as LRH says.That's what we're doing. And...or at least 2% of the time or 5% of the time, you have to orient the guy in PT. Or we have laid out the choices and let him choose, what he wants to do. Give him "power of choice", orient him to PT, so he can decide, what he can do. Or you have to lay out some possibilities, he could do: "What are you interested in doing?"

He says: "Oh, this and that..."

"OK, (give him the choice), in this game right now, you could do this and that... or you could just leave it, if you want. It's up to you." And you can also hat him on some of the Axioms. You say: "what you are, is a free being, and you're a thetan - we call it "thetan" - and you have an ability to postulate and perceive. Do you understand?" You see?

So basically what you're doing is "hatting a thetan", because we're ALL having to do that. They didn't have this Tech. The reason, they all got into this bloody NOTs business, is because they didn't have the knowledge in the beginning. They had the abilities, but you have to have the KNOWLEDGE. Now we're restoring him to the ability state, but we've got to give him the knowledge this time - if they don't get it from having listened to or run through the processes. OK?

So, in that particular case, does that answer your question? You have to go for restoring the Theta abilities, the games, Axioms and so on. The "Rights of a Thetan". So, get them assessed...

"Yes, I'm sure you're right. It helped a lot."

Assess, assess them on that and find out, what the thing is. Ask for the by passed charge. Get it. Get the story...OK? Other questions? That also fits with the tone scale, bring them upscale from MEST through the body area through activity, games and so on. Finally get them up to 40.0, serenity. You know? OK! Any other questions?

So, it's like we should have a lot of successful PreOTs and Auditors around here, because I was interested - just in closing - I was interested in making sure people here didn't run into the stuff, that I have seen, and I'm sure, that others are running into. From the folders I've seen on people C/Sed from outside - first some DCSIs, and on OT-Levels, and then on NOTs itself. And also to show, that in certain parts of the NOTs Tech, there were areas, that were not made - in my opinion - IMPORTANT ENOUGH in the data. Which probably, when it was written, wouldn't have been recognized as to it's importance. But then later, it became more important - as...has told me. Some of the stuff has now appeared on the Solo-NOTs. You have to do all this auditing. You have to assess a list to get this, etc. And the "stacking up" of the case, and this kind of thing ARE mentioned, but only "in passing", almost. You know: "Don't worry, if this thing don't run like this, as it may not be stacked up this way." It should say: "DO NOT WORRY, BECAUSE THIS IS THE WAY, IT WILL COME UP. THE WAY THAT IT IS STACKED UP!" See?That should be a BIG DATUM! It really should, because we have not experienced the...what it says in there: "Don't worry, if in the first few sessions, you have BPC, because the stuff, as it's kept on going, will lessen from session to session." WE DIDN'T EXPERIENCE THAT. Why? BECAUSE WE WEREN'T BUILDING UP BPC. We were removing a whole "plug" (org board), and when that was gone, it was a whole new ball game. OK?

"It's still a worry for me, because I've come across that in (OT) III. Stacks! We take one stack away and the other side collapses. And you have to handle the other side of it."

Right ! Now, somebody may ask: "Why are they stacked up this way?" And I've been looking at that myself. I know they are, but I don't know exactly WHY. But I would say, it is because in essence, YOU ARE THE C/O OF THE WHOLE CASE. And whatever your attention is on, THAT will respond to THAT, see? You can look at it as being sort of "planetary C/O" of the whole Orgs of the Planet, you know, what I mean? So, if you're going: "peacock" - "Yeah, that's a peacock I guess, white peacock (on the table)." All right - if you're going "peacocks", then you're liable to get a whole bunch of things on the stack, that have to do with "peacocks", and birds, and other things having to do with that, right away.

If it's...say you're troubled with sore toes or sore feet or some thing. You're liable to get...your attention is drawn immediately to all the Clusters and BTs around the toes or the feet or guys holding those from somewhere else, you know?

But I would say that... if you realize, that they obey you: "I'm really the C/O of the whole business!" We really get laughing sometimes on these guys, because you have to treat it like...you have to be RESPONSIBLE for this stuff on your stacks, and it's like sometimes these guys are great jokers. I mean, they just...they wake up and they say something really funny. You know, it's like the prizefighter coming awake, after he's been knocked out, and he says: "Where is he???" I mean, they start coming out of this incident, and right away they think, they're still in it. OR at the last moment they were still awake. And they're still carrying on with that action. It's very funny.

So, the whole thing is: You have to responsibility and treat it that way. It's an interesting area and if it's going away from interest, then realize, you may have a wrong assessment on your OWN INTEREST LINE. That's why the stack is there, I think, because it's your interest as the C/O of the whole case. So, your interest will be the monitoring factor here.

And I wanted to put that right at the beginning of any of our SUPER NOTs auditing for the people that haven't started yet, so that they don't get into this BPC phenomena. So they do take the things in the right way and handle it as it comes, all right?

"I do have another consideration on that: Why is attention drawn to some areas or specific points? I think because in NOTs - no, wait a moment please - I think because in NOTs we deal with thetans and some how - by one way or another - they become more and more awake and get bigger or whatever and PULL the attention. Because in former times, I very often was mystified, because I - after completing OT III - I did a lot of III again. Why that? I didn't think, I brushed it off, the III, I was...I did it through. But in the meantime, I think some of the NOTs cases came awake, so I could more or less handle them with III. And I think that's the same here: What pulls the attention, is more awake than the rest, and then that is the first thing, you could handle."

The first thing is the thing, that you have your attention on and has the most reads. There's TA there, and you got more TA there and more reads there...

"And that must be the most awake, I think."

Yeah, that's true, it is the most REAL...

"The most active, I would say."

Hm,..."most active"...But I just thought of another thing, you said that...which is: Remember in III or let's say, remember in II, you're knocking off the charge to expose the III case. Remember in III, you're getting rid of the thetans, who are most alive, so this can expose the NOTs case. And remember, when you are running NOTs - as you get a way through that - you now expose the NEXT CASE to handle for the thetan, right? And if we assume, that SUPER NOTs is going to free up pretty much of his OWN UNIVERSE, like clearing him on all dynamics, out of all this stuff HE'S connected to in it - then it might be, that another universe of - say, the 3rd universe (MEST) - or the 2nd (the universe of others) - may come up, or any connections to them.

But basically, you have to look at that stuff SHINING THROUGH the NOTs case. In other words, the effects FROM the environment. Why do you think, they tell you: "Don't watch television too much, if you're on NOTs", you see? I found a whole bunch of guys sitting around the nerve channels, that were the ones, that were interested in the television flows coming through. Because they had pictures similar to pictures like that on the TV. And they were sort of like urging me to watch it. Just like you feel things in your arm or you feel your heart beat. You CAN feel these guys, they're not totally dead, not totally inert. They have a job. And if the job is to do THIS, they want to have some ack for that or want to have some reward or some flow coming through there.

If they're being a monitor, they want to have something to monitor. If they're being a listening device - a mocked up "listening device", like an earphone or something, it could be - or a space ship, then they want some space movies there! You see what I mean?

So, they actually try to influence you, pull it in from the environment, from the other universes. Either talking with others or seeing it - like the movies on television.

This is why I'm saying: "Everytime you do this in session, pull this whole thing out, you feel a total change of valence of the body, of the things - like your impressions, you're getting through the body. You WILL feel "different", as you feel a DIFFERENT RESPONSE. Different ways to perceive or sense things, or now there's things, you weren't aware of before, or THOSE are gone and now there's a different "balance" in the case. It's very interesting and you can actually determine that as a " case change" all the time. OK?

So, let's look at it as possibly, it's exposing the influence of the next level of the case to handle. Because that's all, the thetan has been doing since Clear. OT I, then on to OT II and OT III, you are cleaning up THIS, so you can get to THIS. You are cleaning up THAT, so you can get to THAT.

"Like the whole bridge, the lower levels?"

Yes. That's similar...

"This data itself is almost like...throwing things loose, that want to be acknowledged. Waiting to say, "I'm here..." "

So, not only must you be a SUPER NOTs AUDITOR, but you must also be a SUPER NOTs C/S. A C/S for all these "cases" you're handling, because you are being an auditor and C/S at the same time. And that way we will make your run through the SUPER NOTs level very smooth and very interesting.

So, if there are no other questions? No? I would just like to thank LRH for getting all the stable datums for us and putting it out. And what is beautiful about it is the final statement, "Exterior at will". The EP. That was beautiful. The SUPER NOTs data itself - first of all aligns to experience with ALL CASES but even more than that, it goes right back and shows again that all the Axioms - Scientology, Dianetics, ALL these basic truths of Scientology and so on - are totally, TOTALLY RIGHT. Spot on! You know, it just totally validates all the basic Axioms, as you come through it. One just might start off learning the Axioms and then sort of go up the bridge and think: "Well, hmm..." But then if you get off to yourself and think: "God damn, that was right spot on, it's RIGHT THERE, what he says. What's there is exactly as predicted." And ALL Scientology is based on the Axioms, you know. And now it's like going through the "circle of knowledge" and coming back to the beginning, full circle. And saying: "Here's the Axioms!" "And now I REALLY understand why!"

]You know, it's like the data analysis. So, it's a fantastic assembly of data, that LRH did. And just by knowing a little bit more about the data of C/Sing, and what happens on the OT levels, and what happens on the SUPER NOTs case and C/Sing from the viewpoint of these guys, then you can make it very smooth. You go through the level easily. OK?

"Fine. Thank You."

"Yeah, I thought on another subject - if you could say a little word about the bridge over from auditing to SUPER Solo NOTs."

Yeah, that's a good question. Yes, I will mention that. I'm not sure what criteria, they use in the Church - but there's only two (criteria), that I can say right now, that I feel are necessary: One of them is that the guy, who is being audited on SUPER NOTs, can confidently handle the entire of this particular stack (which he's been handling) without hardly any help form the auditor. Which means by this time, he doesn't even need a meter. So, if he HAS a meter, he can CERTAINLY do it. AND he has enough free attention to not have to refer back to the auditor. He's got enough free attention units of his own, so he can keep track of who to handle.

In other words: He hadn't handled THAT guy, but he had to handle the holder, the one who is holding him. And maybe another guy is holding also. So, he handles that guy and this Cluster and so on and now he doesn't have to refer back to find out, who is the next guy, he has to handle. See, if he has enough FREE ATTENTION to handle all of that, then you KNOW, he also has enough free attention to run the admin and the meter at the same time.

And the other criteria - oh, there is one technical criteria: I wanted to - on audited SUPER NOTs - to handle all the missed stuff on earlier auditing and OT III. I think that should be done with an auditor, because it could involve Out-Int and lists and things like that. That should be done with the auditor.

But the other, ONLY OTHER CRITERIA besides that of "The guy being able to run it by himself mostly through the session, maybe only one or two little "steers" by the auditor", is: THAT HE FEELS, THAT IT IS OK FOR HIM NOW TO RUN IT WITHOUT THE AUDITOR THERE, you see?

Because there are TWO criteria here: The guy IS going to be a solo auditor, but it is very good to have another terminal there to discharge the stuff to. You see, what I mean? And - even if he has the meter and the admin - CAN HE KEEP THE SAME LEVEL OF INTEREST? And...interest IS going on when both the guy and the auditor are working on it, you see? If he still wants that a little bit, it's like you have to bridge him off of that.

I mean, I noticed, that I don't have to talk anymore. I'm phasing out of the session - but I'm still there as a TERMINAL for Ulrich and he...I don't need to SAY anything. I just start the session, you know, indicate the first area, and then he's off - bum bum bum bum bum - you know: "This guy, and this guy, and this guy", you know? And eventually I just tell him: "Your TA is floating."

After a few sessions, I didn't have to say much. Now I'm just keeping all the admin. Except for one or two times, you know? And he's going: "Now, let's see, that guy blew. Anybody left around? I had that stuck one, but I forgot which one he's from." "OK", I say: "that guy will be from the Cluster here.", OK? And the needle read, when checked "Earlier Incident Is connected to him." (that's what he last ran on that Cluster.)

"OK, good!" - ptshh - so, he handles that. Anyway, he's looking around to find if any were left, see, so it's maybe a little thing, but he will spot that sooner or later, if he has free attention. But the other point is: Is he ready to do it, so that he feels that: "Hey!" - you know - "I can do it myself, all the finding and so on like that. I'm ready." But it's good to have another terminal to talk to about it and to discharge to. You know?

"Thanks. Connected to that, I do have another question, a technical question: Rons talks about the facts that...or the reason, if he is audited, that two cans give a deeper read on the meter than solo cans."

Ah, yes, yes. We never had small reads. That's funny! I saw that in there, you know, and then we studied it and all that stuff. And I don't know if M... can confirm this or M... if you had small reads on solo. But so what, it doesn't need to read much on the meter at all. Is that what you mean? So you can spot the BPC? When you get the right one, it reads like crazy - LFs, BDs.

"I think, the reason, you gave before, is more than this. That the person has enough free attention to operate himself. I think that is the main point. Plus to know the real technical thing, that will get the reads and the TA moving."

The telepathic comm is so strong with these guys - I mean - and here you have all these little datums and hints. I mean, you can almost see: "OK, the next thing is this..." Just Standard Tech. Because, when you can have a PreOT sitting there and he goes the whole of session without having to refer to the meter or to the notes and in YOUR session he doesn't have to confront the ADMIN either...

"And your ARC, and your communication to the stuff is of major importance. ARC!"

ARC! Very important on that. It is: You are their auditor and they respect you and whatever. You're always senior to them. Remember that. And the guys have to have a senior. And you have been their senior - that is, what you have to realize. When you took that body, you got to be a senior to the whole bunch of them - you know? And...so...you ARE the senior. So take responsibility for the Org - audit them. Free them.

Anyway, that's - if there's no other questions? Anyway, these guys, you can always send them out on missions, if you get some real big ones. We got some real big ones, who came out of this stuff, and so on, and they want to do missions. They say: "Hey, want can I do to help out?" You see?

"Which kind of mission?"

Well, you know, nudge the reporters, and things like that. You know, to look under the news and see, if there really is a world take-over scenario. Anyway, that's a lot of fun.

"Do they report back really?"

Well, they can do that, telepathically, if they want. But, you know, it's just to give them a game - if they want. They want a game and some of them do want to help - they feel really betrayed by these implanters. So. it's up to you - anything to help a "freeing operation" on that.

And...Oh, one other comment about "Black NOTs": They just like "bypass and try to restim" your plugs and stacks. I got session data of them having done this and then...and then I got a copy from Australia of a C/S - it looks like it was altered. From the Church. It was a C/S of Black NOTs. And it was altered, because it was made to help Thetans. It was like: "We can help other people, or help the SPs get better or run some SP's case off." - or "Help leaders make better decisions by handling some of their Engrams, that their NOTs BTs are stuck in." "And we can audit this on them by contacting them, and finding the BTs there, who is suppressive and handling."

And this was their C/S, you see? It isn't the REAL C/S. That was the altered C/S. The REAL C/S was "to take the squirrels and the out-ethics-guys and to put NOTs phenomena ON THEM, restimulate NOTs phenomena on people by trying to take over control of their BTs and Clusters, and urging them to restimulate." Now, that's bypass. This was a Big Thetan, coming from over here, rather than the guy in the body doing it. The guy running that body, is the real C/O, you see?

But, after going through all this - I can tell you, IT DOESN'T WORK. It can't and doesn't work. Because of this "Organization" factor. All they can do, is get in there and interfere with these guys. And they can't tell then, whether they got a blow or not. Because they can...they can maybe make it "worse", and they can maybe make it "better". But there is no way, they are going to be able to actually do a POSITIVE ALL-THE-TIME-JOB. Because first, they haven't got the AGREEMENT OF THE C/O to be in the session and handle it.

"It's other-determined."

Yes, it's other-determined! I found out, it's much more easy to handle SPs by getting in comm with THEM - the guy who is RUNNING THE THING, the C/O of the thing - and try to audit HIM. Or to give him some indications like: "How long have you worked for the implanters?" - or - "Fucked up in an Earlier Universe?" - you know? Or: "Did you ever look at the fact, that you may be monitored yourself?"

You know, those kind of things. THAT works. You can see some changes: Some, "What's - what's that? Was I an implanter?", you know? - Or..."Did your seniors find out about your non-conformities?" - "Oh! Maybe they have. Oh!"

"Missed Withholds..."

Yes, you CAN audit the guy, and you CAN get a direct telepathic link with the guy. But to REALLY HANDLE this "Black NOTs Guy", and not just sort of "try to handle his case", which is the "C/S" I saw. As I said, that's what came out in the Free Zone. They thought the Church was doing "something" to help handle the SPs on the planet. It wasn't that at all, as we well know. The "Black NOTs Guys" are putting attention on your "old case" from PC folders. Knowing you had an injured leg in the past, and then using this "Black NOTs" shit, and trying to PUSH SOMETHING INTO YOUR LEG NOW or RESTIMULATE SOMETHING IN IT, you know?

"I know!!"

Yeah, we ALL know. OK! So, any other questions?

Maybe in the next level...we'll have another handling for those guys. OK? Very good!

("Note by Capt. Bill: The best handling found for "Black NOTsers" is to treat them, when contacted in session, EXACTLY LIKE AN IMPLANTER, you might find in a plug, as "Black NOTs" IS IMPLANTING.) So:

"END OF TECH BRIEFING #4

This is CONFIDENTIAL SUPER NOTs BRIEFING 22 August 1985"

Thank you very much!

TECH BRIEFING No7

"EXCALIBUR Continued"

17 NOVEMBER 1985

RON'S ORG FRANKFURT

FOR SUPER NOTs AUDITORS AND C/Ss ONLY

This briefing is only for Super NOT's C/Ses and Solo Super NOT's Auditors and people who are taking or have taken the Super NOT's Course at RON'S ORG. Before one hears this lecture one must hear Tech Briefing # 4 which is the Confidential Super NOT's C/Sing tape, and also the LRH Tapes which are referenced to get a full understanding of what will be discussed here in this tape. This tape is beginning from the point where Tech Briefing #4 left off.

In that tape we discussed the problems of C/Sing on the Super NOT's level, and in fact it was brought up all the way from Clear, with definitions of Clear, all the way up into the Super NOT's level. We discussed what each OT level does, what charge it removes, what you are handling and the things to watch out for. This is all very applicable and it all is very successful in making good results on the OT levels.

Now we're going to talk about some more aspects of the Super NOT's case which were not fully covered in Tech Briefing #4. These aspects are necessary to be brought up at this time because they WILL be found in running Super NOT's and it is necessary for each C/S and Solo Auditor to understand what they are, where they come from, and how to handle them. It is also necessary before starting Super NOT's or being a C/S for Super NOT's to understand "Revolt in the Stars", the film play by LRH about things happening around the time of Incident II and it is also wise to understand "Sector 9", the book put together to describe exactly what IS happening on the Planet at this time in regards to Models, Scenarios and World take-over Plans.

Well, on this Super NOT's level you will find out that there's also very much a "7th Dynamic aspect" to all of this, and you will find out that you ARE engaged in it whether you like it or not. You will be finding out that it IS there, after you have gone through enough of the level to find it. I must stress at first that the technology of the STACKS and PLUGS is entirely correct and workable and it has proven so in many cases. It removes the charge in the super NOT's area very completely per session, and it has the advantage of not leaving any amounts of BPC around, unless there were, at that time, STILL OTHER UNHANDLED PLUGS from other stacks. We're talking here about: If a case is smoothly introduced into the Super NOT'S level, AND they remove one plug per session, WITH knowing what stack it is connected to, AND handle that plug, AND then the next session the next plug until that stack is no longer reading, AND then to the next one and so on. Then there won't be any BPC building up. There just will be the continuing wins and so on and more awareness and reality improvement.

However, most people do arrive at the beginning of Super NOT's with several plugs in restimulation from different stacks, but THE PROCEDURE REMAINS THE SAME. It is: To assess in a D of P Interview what the person's most attention is on by reads, measuring up ALL the reads, LF's, F's, SF's, B/D's, on certain areas, and IT IS VERY IMPORTANT. It has been determined that you DON'T JUST TAKE WHAT HE SAID in the D of P Interview or what the auditor asked the question about. You take the most reading one and you list them in order of reads, these different areas, and so on. BUT THEN YOU ALSO GET THE PRE-OT TO MAKE HIS OWN WORDING OF THIS. This is very important, that the wording that he makes will read VERY, VERY WELL and it will ALSO READ WHEN THE AUDITOR SAYS IT.

I'll give you an example of that. Suppose a person is concerned in the Super NOT'S level with, well, "Pictures coming at night." He says "when he is sleeping, pictures coming at night." And this reads. And the auditor says: "Is that the stack?" and he says: "Yeah, yes, pictures coming at night". But when the auditor says: "OK, well we're going to handle "Pictures coming at night," and there's a very tiny read or no read. Then the auditor should say at this point: "You know, is there a better way you can state this so that it's worded that it really, really means exactly TO YOU what the area is we're handling here?" "How can you word it?" And the Preclear goes: "Well! Lets see, "somnambulistic pictures", "sleep dreams", "dreams", the whole thing would be connected, you know, would be sort of all connected with "sleep", you know I always wondered WHY a Thetan needs to sleep anyway. "Sleep!" Yeah, that's what it is - "sleep!". And boy THAT READS "Sleep". Aha, just by itself. "Sleep!" There it is.

It could be a little more complicated wording, you know, it could be "somnambulistic pictures" but the point is, IT'S THE WORDING THAT THE PRE OT FEELS VGI'S ABOUT, IS INTERESTED IN RUNNING, AND WHEN THE AUDITOR SAYS: "OK. We're going to handle it as "sleep". "Sleep!" And he says it, and boy, IT READS FOR HIM TOO. Wow this brings up the point that if the auditor CAN'T get it to read he shouldn't run it. Just because the Preclear is making it read, that's one thing, but the auditor is, in the audited part of Super NOT's, necessary to handle the meter, the admin and indicate to the Preclear what to do. And if the area is not reading for the auditor then he is going to be very - shall we say - hindered, and actually won't be able to technically direct the Pre-OT.

Therefore, IT MUST READ WELL FOR THE PRECLEAR, IT MUST READ WELL WHEN THE AUDITOR SAYS IT, AND IT MUST BE OF INTEREST TO THE PRECLEAR. Right, and IT MUST HAVE HIS GOOD INDICATORS ON HANDLING THAT. So these are the points on this assessment that we have found are VERY NECESSARY and you CAN "get by with it" just as people have "gotten by" with other ways of running Super NOT'S. But you can't "get by with it" without having the Preclear express it correctly or directly into the very interesting area that he wants to handle. You can "get by with it", but believe me, we have found out, if you do it that way, of just "getting by" with it well, THEN YOU WILL EVENTUALLY HAVE PLUGS THAT ARE, shall we say, NOT HANDLED BY THAT MISWORDING. In other words, the guy says: "I have pictures when I GO to bed." You might get ONE plug coming up on that is showing him the pictures at night, but later on in the level you will find out that he has OTHER plugs connected with "pictures in his dreams" and "sleep" and so on, that did not come up when you handled that particular plug or what you "thought" was the stack.

It will only come up if he says the one that has really been interesting to him, not only in this life time or yesterday, but maybe for a whole series of life times, or a whole part of his track. Therefore, when he says: "SLEEP, yes, I've always wondered about that. Wow! Why does a Thetan needs to sleep? Yeah, that's interesting." He's got his interest there. Oh boy, it reads like crazy and then you will find ALL THE PLUGS CONNECTED TO THAT STACK. So, that is a very important point on the assessment. As I say, it's not something that is vital, but let's put it this way: To do it standardly on the Super NOT's Level and so it will leave a minimum of BPC, it should be done this way. And it fits in with the theory of running Engrams and Dianetics which of course IS on this level. It IS "New Era Dianetics for OT's".

So we do the D of P Interview. We get the areas the PC is interested in. We add up the reads. We then find out, we take the most reading area and we ask the Preclear: "How would you like to word this?" And when it reads well for him, when it reads well for the auditor, when it has the interest of the Pre-OT, and he has good indicators about handling it, KNOWS that applies to him or is part of his case, and he will be VERY INTERESTED in running it it will read like mad, and you can start right off by saying:"Good. We're looking now for the first plug here." Once you have established what this stack is, if You are going to handle the 1st plug you just say: "ARE THERE ANY BT's OR CLUSTER's CONNECTED WITH (THE ITEM)?" Bang! You get a read right there. And you tell the Pre-OT: "Yeah. Yeah. There is." And then the auditor starts right in with: "Ok. Location?" "BT or Cluster?" (Handling per the Super NOT's Tech of the earlier tape).

So, right away handle that one plug, and at the end of session he gets his F/N, or F/Ning TA, and next session: "Are there any BT's or Cluster's connected with (same stack)?" Bang!, reads, handle. Another plug and so on, until when, "Are there any BT's or Cluster's connected with (stack)?", no read. Let the Preclear say: "Any more interest in this?", "No, I think it's all handled." Well, don't expect a big F/N right there because the next stack is probably ready to go. If there's no reads there don't run it.

Then say: "Well, the next assessed thing on here was "Stomach pains", "upset stomach", something like that. You were talking about it in the D of P interview." "Yeah, that's something! Yeah!" Well, say: "Well, how would like to word THAT?" "Yeah, well, yeah, let's see. Oh. Ah! Ha! "Genetic Agony". Oh! Wow!" Bing! There it is! It's not "stomach pains" exactly, it's "Genetic Agony", something like that. So I'm just telling you the wording is important and then the auditor has to check that it reads for him, that it reads for the Pre-OT, and the interest is there, and you carry on with the case.

As LRH stated on the "Assists" tape of Class VIII: "You are IN THE MAJOR ACTION when you are dealing with an Engram that the Preclear has recently had." "So don't expect the Ruds to fly. You can get in what you can." If the person has attention on something, ARC-Break, PTP, MWH and so on, you handle it. But don't expect the needle to fly when you are in the middle of handling one of these stacks, because you are PRESENTED WITH THE MAJOR ACTION. This is something the Preclear has had on his case many, many, many, long eons or has picked it up here on Planet Earth, but nevertheless it is a VERY OLD PIECE OF CASE. And therefore, IT IS THE MAJOR ACTION AT THAT TIME.

A person who has, shall we say, no confront and is not really able to have reality on these things, first of all should not have been on this level, but second of all has to be handled very delicately per the earlier Bulletins and Technology on handling a "stress case". But even in that, when you pick up a Rudiment, realize THAT YOU ARE GOING TO RUN RIGHT INTO THE FIRST PLUG THAT IS LIVE IN THAT PERSONS CASE OR ONE OF THE PLUGS THAT HE HAS IN RESTIMULATION AND THE PROCEDURE IS THE SAME. You go on a gradient. You can handle THAT plug. And then on a gradient you handle the NEXT ONE and so on. The key on Super NOT's is HANDLING THE WHOLE PLUG. That's what takes the masses of charge off the case.

You just carry on doing that and when you have finished the 15-16 items, or how many, on your D of P assessment, usually they're right in order just like they came out by the reads. That's the way the stacks will go. And after that of course, you can do ANOTHER D of P. Or by that time, if the person has loosened up his case so well that he can handle by appending his interest to anything he wants, putting his interest THERE and THAT'S what he is interested in, why then I'm sure he could go down the whole checklist of Super NOT's and take whatever was interesting to him at that time and finally handle the whole thing. But in the end it is better to go by the Preclear's INTEREST and it will handle the entire of the STRUCTURAL part of the checksheet.

The datum here is, again on the LRH tapes, which is that FUNCTION MONITORS STRUCTURE. The FUNCTION of these particularplugs and so on is going to monitor the structure of whatever technical field they come into or whatever part of the body they're affecting and so on, or whatever part of the thetan's awareness and abilities they are affecting. This Function is going to affect that. But THOUGHT is going to monitor FUNCTION. And the THOUGHT of course IS THAT OF THE PRE-OT. So, when you are following along that line, THOUGHT monitors FUNCTION monitors STRUCTURE, and you are addressing it from the Thought of the Pre-OT, you are keeping his interest first, you are not bypassing him, you are not leaving him out of it. So then he gets very real gains, very real cognitions, very real new awarenesses about what's been troubling him all these centuries. So this is where we do it this way. It IS the way to do it per LRH's Tech.

Now there are two liabilities in running Super NOT's which you will find in people who have been on it previously, that didn't start this way. And the two main liabilities, besides, of course not being ready for the level are: ONE: That they have run it so that they have only taken out, shall we say, BTs and Clusters from the lower parts of these plugs, the lower parts of the Org Board. More or less the "easy" ones, the ones that could be bypassed and handled, you know? And any "senior" could come in the Org and order them around. So they take orders from anyone. So they came out. They disconnected from the org, they blew etc. etc.

And you do this long enough, these easy ones, wake them up and handle them, wake them up and handle them and pretty soon - what are you left with? You are left with the top of the executive strata of each plug STILL THERE. And this top executive strata, as mentioned before in the last tape #4 were more or less the HOLDERS of the whole plug. So if they are the holders, they are a bit more POWERFUL and usually, as mentioned in the Tech Briefing # 4, they can be "out of valence in R6" or "implanter" type evil purpose beings.

Therefore as the person runs the lower part, or the "easy" part, of his case and just takes up the lower "juniors" of the Org Board of all these plugs, he ends up with a case with NOTHING BUT HOLDERS. Holders of a little more powerful nature and shall we say, some percentage of them VERY EVIL INTENTIONED, but ALL OF THEM HOLDING and what are they holding NOW? They are holding HIM, THE PRE-OT.

So what do you expect? Him to get increasingly feeling like he is in some kind of a "tight situation". He is a bit "bothered by things". He doesn't LOOK like he is a NOT'S completion at all. He is sort of worried about "PTSness" and "sickness" and "illness" and all these various phenomena. He is going on "dramatizing" around here and there, and he is feeling an EFFORT to keep his "sanity".

Those are the indications if a person who has run out the lower parts of the plugs and has left the "tops", or the holders, or the "out of valence R6 people", there. They feel anxious, they feel like the real "core"of their case has not been reached. And they are worried about it, anxious about it, and so on. This is merely the fact that they have put themselves at the mercy now of the TOP HOLDERS IN THE ORG BOARD. And THEY are the ones being held at the moment, because they took away all the juniors. So if you take away the game, What's now the game? The game is GETTING YOU. You didn't give them a new game. You didn't set them free. So the game is GETTING YOU and they're going to hold YOU tighter and tighter and tighter if you don't take out the whole org board. And that's the first liability.

The second liability is this: There are some people who decided: "Yes, it's a tough level. We are going to handle all these bad guys first." So what do they do? They go in there and handle all the bad guys first. They take one of these rundowns that are current in the "independent field", and they handle the bad guys first. So they take the top off the org board. They handle the guys that are out of valence and dramatizing, have evil intentions, evil purposes and so on. And they work through this, through this, through this, through this.

Now you have the other situation, which is: That once you take the TOPS off the org board, if you have NOT also handled all the juniors, and remember, down there, some of them are quite asleep, some of them are tied into little "knots" and so on, so that they cannot move, so when you take off the top you still have to open them up, wake them up and let them go. So if they DON'T get out the whole org board connected to these top guys that they are handling on these rundowns, what will be the effect? Well, then you will have an org board with only the juniors left and no seniors. So they don't have any other senior. So they are going to float around you more and more, shall we say "cuddle" all around the Pre-OT.

And in this case some of them WILL have woken up, some of them WILL have broken loose, but not gotten completely handled. And so what the Pre-OT will do is, he will start feeling like: "Well, this is never ending. I feel almost just as bad as when I was on OT III!" And what do you know? He has woken up enough of his case, by handling these holders, that the plugs now, the truncated BOTTOM PARTS OF THE ORG BOARDS, all the juniors and all, are running around and sort of like they are floating half in and half out, and some of them are tied together, and some of them are not, and they're sort of going crazy, just like: "When the boss is away the staff will play".

So they become to him almost like another III case. He's got the fears back that are BT's all Around him, you know? They're not very harmful, not very dangerous but they are all around him, they're floating around him. "I feel this pressure here and this and so on...." So by taking off the TOP ONLY of the org board and LEAVING THE BOTTOM INTACT without handling it, you create yourself another III case! The "smoke" from the fire. You take the "hot guys" out and the "smoke" comes up around and there's another III case.

Now, when you do this CORRECTLY AND REMOVE THE WHOLE ORG, then you got it. So that is the Technology and those are the liabilities of running it improperly: You take off the top and leave the bottom or you take off the bottom and leave the top. In both cases it makes a funny type of appearance for somebody on NOT'S. One of them is that they look like they're really caved in, PTS. Which other people look at and say: "What! That's weird, he should be really great! He is on NOT'S, but he looks really weird. PTS, sick and all that." And the other one is, that of course he creates another OT III case.

Then they say: "Well, he's not saying he's making much gains. He even says he feels like he did when he was on OT III, you know, it's not really interesting." And so on and so on. Well, these are the effects and you can spot these. But what is the whole handling of these to correct it? Of course, you do the assessment, you find out what his attention is on, you find out the way he likes to word that area he was interested in, or is interested in, and you handle the first plug that shows up through the BT that is first contacted in it and they will line up and get handled all the way down through that plug.

And in the next session you handle the next plug. And in the next one, the next plug. Next one, next plug. And you just handle it standardly like that and pretty soon the guy will be back, shall we say, on the ADVANCED PROGRAM of Super NOT'S. These are the REPAIR and RETURN actions I'm talking to you about. You have to REPAIR it when he gets into these TWO LIABILITIES. And THE REPAIR IS MERELY TO DO THE STANDARD HANDLING AS IF HE HAD MANY PLUGS IN RESTIMULATION, some truncated half Way, some holders here, some plugs over here, maybe. And you have to do the assessment and very carefully pick the area. Run one, or the REST OF ONE that hasn't been run, until you get a nice F/N and relief and leave it there.

And in the next session take up the next most interesting thing to run and so on. And they will probably come up as RUDIMENTS. But these are repair actions. They have to be done VERY PROFESSIONALLY, so you DON'T GO INTO TRYING TO HANDLE PARTS OF OTHER PLUGS THAT ARE IN RESTIM and doing the same thing "cooking up" a whole overwhelm of the case. We have done these reviews and you can see some of the folders in your training. Ok? That's the REVIEW.

And then, of course, the RETURN program is to continue handling those plugs and stacks that were Not HANDLED before. Ordering it up on the case and getting it down to where he is in PT. In other words: ALL THE AWAKENED AND RESTIMULATED PLUGS HAVE BEEN HANDLED AND HE KNOWS WHAT HIS STACK LIST IS. And then you can carry on with Standard Super NOT's using the plugs and stacks and the interest and so on as I told you before and then he is on his ADVANCED program again.

Now we have covered the main things here that I wanted to update you on since the last briefing. I covered these (on # 4) briefly but I did not give you the IMPORTANCES of them, showing the liabilities of what happens if you run Super NOT's incorrectly. The action of a Preclear losing interest in Super NOT's, a Pre-OT losing interest in Super NOT's, is merely one or the other of those and probably the second one, that he has removed some of the top stuff and maybe some of the lower stuff of the org board too, but he's not been run on his OWN STACK LIST. It's been run on somebody's automatic idea of what he SHOULD RUN.

And so loss of interest in the Super NOT's case is another review action that you can handle just by FINDING THE STACK LIST THAT HE IS INTERESTED IN RUNNING and not just running something like a body part. Like: "Start with the right leg and run up and find anybody there and then up here..." No, no, NO! The Org Boards are connected ALL THROUGH THE BODY. Some of them are localized, and some of them are up and down the spine and in various places, and outside the body and inside and so on.

So you don't keep the interest of the Pre-OT if you're just running it by structure. You must run it by HIS THOUGHT, which is MONITORING the function of the stacks and the plugs and the structure of the body and the structure of the plug Org Boards, you see? WE KEEP the interest of the Preclear. That's one of the prime ingredients in doing successful auditing. Remember the definition of "In Session"? "Willing to talk to the auditor and INTERESTED IN HIS 'OWN CASE'".

In this case he is interested ALSO while he has these CASES OF OTHERS. But it IS HIS. He is carrying it around. It is there. It reads on the Meter. It's not his "individual" shall we say, he's Clear, yes, we know about that, but he IS CARRYING THIS STUFF AROUND. So he's brought you this case. It may be to him a 3rd and 4th Dynamic case, but he's got it. And it's his. It is a reflection of the other Dynamics as mentioned in the last tape. It's the "other Dynamic aspects of Clear" from "Clear on the 1st Dynamic". Now he must "clear up" the REST of his Dynamics in regard to the thetan Universe.

Now, I'm going to break into some new territory here, which was only covered very briefly on the last lecture. And this has to do with the composition of Pre-I plugs. Now, in the last lecture I gave you some very amusing examples of plugs that could be composed up from the area of Incident II. And these are something I think everyone has run into. They are very familiar to people. However, the holders of these, and also complete plugs, are sometimes, and in fact I would say, as you get through the Incident II plug areas, you will find more and more of these Pre-Incident-I plugs.

Now what is a Pre-Incident I plug? Well it is a plug that has been MADE UP ORGANIZED. MADE ON TO AN ORG-BOARD. Composed of BTs and Clusters. MADE SPECIFICALLY TO DO CERTAIN HATS ON THAT LITTLE ORG-BOARD AND "FROZEN IN TIME" AND THEN ATTACHED TO A THETAN AT SOME POINT ON HIS TRACK, perhaps Incident I, later, or even up into Incident II. BUT IT IS COMPOSED ENTIRELY OF "FROZEN" THETANS, WHICH HAVE BEEN DOING THE SAME THING AS THEY ARE NOW STUCK IN SINCE BEFORE INCIDENT I. This is the Pre-Incident I Experimental Area we talked about in the last Tape (TB # 4).

Now, as you get to these areas you find that the normal 'Incident I' and 'Earlier Universe' and so on do not quite blow a Pre-I because there is something else there. Some other BPC and that SOME OTHER BPC happens to be this VAST AREA OF TIME BEHIND INCIDENT I. Well, of course Incident I occurred at "start of track". Of course, FOR THE THETANS, THE BIG THETANS, Yes it does. So he (a big Thetan) doesn't have "time" particularly behind that. Expect, remember: If the track began EARLIER for some OTHER THETAN then THEIR TRACK started back THERE. So some of these plugs, these Pre-Incident-I plugs, date back, so far, from 4 to 7 1/2, or even more, QUADRILLIONS OF YEARS ago. But that's the usual range. If you just indicate: "4 to 7 quadrillion?" - you will get most of them really cooking and coming alive and saying: "Oh, Yeah, that was me! Oh Yeah! Oh wow!"

Now I want to give some definitions and then I'll show you how this is also an "Earlier Similar" to the Incident II, because there was a CAPTURE - from Earlier Universe! In other words: Those Thetans were "whooshed up" with something very much like a vacuum cleaner and Whoop!, caught. What I'm saying is, it's like the FUNCTION of a vacuum cleaner but to "whoosh up" THETANS rather than dirt. Captured and put through these experiments and made then into plugs. And this resulted in some "standard plugs" and some, sort of, "experimental" ones.

Now you say: "Wow - that's interesting. That's not covered anywhere." No it isn't, but you WILL FIND IT IS COVERED ON EVERY ONE OF YOUR NOT's CASES and that's why it is there and is the final barrier to finding out "why you lost Your abilities" and "how this tricky game of implanting was made up" and so on. It is the last barrier. After this, when these are all handled you can confidently say that the person will obtain the EP of Super NOT's, and he will also understand everything concerning his own universe and what happened in it. He will be able then to go and handle other things in "2nd" and "3rd" universes and other universes. And there will be other levels. But right now we're interested in: "What's IN the Pre-I plug?"

Let me give you the definitions first so you can follow what I'm talking about. And these words are made up to be familiar to people on this planet at this time, so that auditors can work with them. But you will find out, as you work with them, you will ALSO groove-in the various BTs and Clusters. And if you intend the right actions with these things, the right... as I say... a "Vacuum-cleaner", but you can INTEND it as a thing to"Whoosh-up" or "pull-in" or to trap thetans, and they will "get it" and they will answer: "Oh yeah... that... I have that!"

So, it is just a communication device, to make it easier for us to C/S and to write the notes in the folder, so it's a short hand for us, just like the rest of the Scientology language, abbreviations and so on, generic terms, such as PTS, ARC Break and so on. So, what are some of these terms? Well, let us start off with.... PLUG: You understand Plug? That is: "An organized group of BTs and Clusters which were put together by either impact, injury, etc. OR intention of an implanter, to operate as a sort of combined unit or an org-board, and it has holders at the top, and sort of junior thetans at the bottom, who are just being something to do with its function, being even mass or weight in a bag, or being a cell or whatever." Ok?

Now, the STACK, of course, is the way this is "stacked up" on the Preclear's (Pre-OT's) case, and that means it has to do with the Pre-OT. So, he has been having trouble with this area, or has wondered about it. Therefore, to him, it appears like a "stack of charge". But it could consist of SEVERAL PLUGS just as you can have several weights, you know? Those little pieces of metal on a scale-balance, and you have 5 little gram weights on a scale-balance. That would be five PLUGS, and the STACK would be "what the Pre-OT thinks is holding him down", and as he removes each one of these plugs, the scale-balance comes up. It comes up! He feels better.

OK. Now, on these Pre-I plugs, you are going to find the following things: This "vacuum-cleaner" I talked about We call it a "Hoover" and the incident is called "Hoovering", and it is the first or most earliest, usually. The earliest incident on these Pre-I plug thetans. They were "hoovered" out of an Earlier Universe, or "vacuumed". The actual instrument used was itself composed of BTs and Clusters and it looks very similar to one of these outside speakers, or amplifying speakers, which you see attached to poles around a crowd in rock concerts or in public lectures.

You know, the big bell, four sided bell coming out, and the round ball at the back to contain the speaker amplifier. So, it looked not unlike that, or similar to it. Composed of BTs and thetans, with a nice "black hole" Cluster in the middle of the bell inside, and this little "golden ball" inside of that, which was very attractive, and kept putting out a message of "Help me to play this big game, I don't really understand it...." Or similar flows anyway, to PULL THE THETAN IN. Very aesthetic and so on... The black hole... Now, what was the "black hole" Cluster? Well, that's a Cluster that is pretending to be a negative energy. It's doing an "implosion" all the time. It's pulling in, pulling in, pulling in. It's pulling in all things, energies, thetans, and so on. lt's like a giant... well, just like a "black hole star" suctions in all kinds of mass, energy, thetans, everything like that.

But it's really a Cluster, which has been PROGRAMMED to do this. And so every thing goes black around it as it gets sucked in there. It just turns it black, because it's now going negative from what it WAS doing, and you find it as the "attraction point" of the TRACTOR AREA which is holding a lot of these plugs together. You find a "black hole" in it. It may occur first to your vision like a little spot, but if it is down on the bottom of a plug, it could be holding the whole thing together, in a sort of "maintained force" area. It is NOT the HOLDER OF THE PLUG. You understand? NOT THE TOP OF THE ORG-BOARD. It's not likely that it is the top of the org-board. And it could be just put in there to give cohesion to the org. They don't usually have much to do with the SUPPRESSION of the plug. They are just sort of automatically charged to just "pull things in", like glue, Except on a SUCTION basis. So, the "black hole" was in the middle of this "Hoover", and it pulled the thetans in to this little "golden attention unit" point, which is giving out the nice aesthetic message. When they were captured, they would then he taken to the "experimental area". And this is... this is "earlier similar" to Incident II, 4 to 7 quadrillion years ago....

These guys were "hoovered up" out of their own Universe and they were usually kept in a thing called an "Electrosphere". An "Electrosphere" is a large sphere which has a magnetic charge on the inside, an electromagnetic charge on the inside, so the thetan cannot touch the wall. He feels repelled by this. But he also doesn't join up with the other thetans inside. So, you eventually, essentially, get a thing like one of these giant "gum ball machines", if you picture it that way... it's a lot of thetans inside of a giant sphere, and they can't quite get out and they can't move either because of how they're pressing up against each other, and so on.

But they are held in this. And it's kept at a LOW TEMPERATURE (cold). All right. That's the "Electrosphere". And then they are put through various "processes" to make them "amenable" to being Clusters and BTs in PLUGS.

The first, or ONE of these, (we don't put them in order because each one may have had a DIFFERENT EXPERIMENTAL TRACK), but usually these ARE the things which may have hung the guy up, you know? Like the "Hoover" is the earliest one. And then the "Electrosphere". Got stored in the "Electrosphere". Ok. Then they could be put in something we call the "Spin-drier". The "Spin-drier"... you know? Like a spinning machine to dry your clothes out, right? Or a centrifuge, if you like. But the "Spin-drier" was to IMPACT THE THETAN WITH OTHER THETANS, MAKE HIM MORE THAN ONE, and to spin him with this tiny amount of mass that he had been being attached to another, or mocking up something, or the other being mocking up something. A tiny amount of mass, but you spin it now at a high rate of speed in this "Spin-drier", and it makes them feel VERY HEAVY. V E R Y HEAVY.

So, he was then given the idea of "mass", and he could then BE MASS. He was ORDERED to "Be heavy", "Be mass". And some of these guys think that they are as heavy as lead, and some of them, them are as heavy only as water, and some of them are as heavy only as a light gas. But there are different DEGREES OF "HEAVINESS" to these little "jelly bean" thetans. That's how I call the ones that are there in the plug just to be "mocking up mass" and to hold the thetan down, and keep him from doing OT abilities. These "jelly beans" in the plug are usually grouped together in a BAG or CONTAINER, and they just have MASS.

They have the FUNCTION of being mass. And these are what I call "jelly bean thetans", because they look like the jelly beans in the jar you see in the candy stores. There they are. Separate. Just like sort of "being in a container" and "being massy". Usually you can run them easily, by WAKING THEM UP, RUNNING THEM BACK THROUGH THE SPIN-DRIER, THE ELECTROSPHERE, and the Hoover. And they go: Pfffst!.... "Free! Wow! Yeah!" THESE GUYS HAVE BEEN THAT WAY EVER SINCE 4 TO 7 QUADRILLION YEARS AGO. THEY WERE NOT AFFECTED BY ANYTHING ELSE IN THE UNIVERSE. That's what they've been, and they are FROZEN IN TIME. Just like the "Enchanted Moors" in the song.

Some of them were chosen to be more "exciting" parts of the plug. Some of them would emit flashes of light, or flash some kind of "message" to the thetan, or into the cells, or something. These were put on to a thing the "Sun-Lamp". It's just a filament, a GLOWING FILAMENT actually. Just like what you'll find in a lamp or in an arc-light. THEY WERE FORCED ONTO THIS, ELECTRONICALLY. Once they had a little mass, they could get sent through a wire or along a wire or channel.

They'd been put onto the filament, and told to duplicate that, you know? "Be it." "Be a light." "Be a light." We found a lot of these guys that were put on the "Sun-Lamp", being stars and so on. So, apparently, the thetan would "think" he is exterior, but was only looking into an area composed of BTs being little "stars" and so on. He thought he was exterior in the universe, but he wasn't. He was just being in one of these plug areas, where the guys have run through the "Sun-Lamp" and sparkled, they gave off a little light and so on, and twinkled like stars, but they are just BTs.

And of course, every BT has usually another one STUCK TO HIM, so he has to spot the one STUCK TO HIM IN HIS VALENCE so that he can loosen them up. I mean, once you've not the guy single, he's pretty handled. So, in actual fact, the term BTs and Clusters is a little misleading, because every BT, until he is free, is really a Cluster. Let's put it this way... They may have just been ADDED TO HIM ONE AT A TIME DURING THESE EXPERIMENTS, and to put them in HIS valence, and the guy who is left in charge, IS THE "ONE". The others are IN HIS

VALENCE, because HE ISN'T in the valence of another, because he would be one of the guys "down the line" and you'd be talking to the other guy, The one you ARE talking to, he looks, at the last point, he looks for PEOPLE IN HIS VALENCE WHO ARE ATTACHED TO HIM! Ok?

Now, we've got another thing. I've told you about the "jelly beans". That's the way these thetans are when they appear, just sitting in a bag... or something. But, what's this bag? Now, that's a "Bag-man", and these are the thetans that were PRESSED DOWN VERY FLAT AND MADE TO ASSUME THE SHAPE OF A BAG OR A HOLDER OF THESE "JELLY BEANS". Now, you can find the "Bag-men" are LAYERED. They're exactly like a plastic, clear plastic, garbage bag, or a black plastic garbage bag, depending on what way they were made; transparent, or invisible, or dark. But they look exactly like a big plastic bag, and they contain all these jelly beans. And why don't these jelly beans get away? Well, there are LAYERS, first of all, of the guys. Each "Bag-man" is a separate individual, but he is layered as a Cluster, like each layer is separate but there are about 7 or 8 - 6, 7 or 8 bags put around these jelly beans.

So, 6, 7, or 8 bags around, and each layer of that bag, each layer of it, IS AN INDIVIDUAL, and they are clustered together as a bag. So, you have to separate the layers out and then you can audit them.

Now, you might find it hard to handle these guys, because you might find that they are securely TIED at the top. Like with a garbage bag, you might tie the top of it, to stop it from over spilling its contents. And this "tie" you will find is a tiny beautiful little thing, such as a string or a chain. And that's why we call it a "String Cluster". And those are thetans who are linked one to another Cluster, being like a piece of chain, or holding together, just like as if people were in a chain, one holding the other's leg and the other holding the other's legs and so on, in a CHAIN. All these thetans were forced to do this in an experiment, and they were made into a Cluster like a chain. We call it a "String-Cluster", or "Chain-Cluster". And they are TIED AROUND THE TOP OF THE BAG.

So, when you get to the "String-Cluster", you handle it as a Cluster of individual thetans who were put through this incident, to make them that way in Pre-Incident I, 4 to 7 quadrillion years ago. Ok? Run the incident... Bam, bam, bam! Before that, they were maybe in another experiment. Before that in the spin-drier and the electrosphere, and they were maybe hoovered up, and... Pum! And they all go! And then the bag opens up, and the thetans come out or start to wake up "Oh!" "Ah!"... And then you take the bag-men. You say, "Ok. Outer-layer bag-man." "You've got that incident where you were made into a bag?" "OK!" "Go back there." "You were in the... electrosphere... Hoover..." He goes...! And then the others, until all these guys wake up inside the bag, the jelly beans, and they just go: "Wow - Wow!" "We are free!"

Ok, this is side 2.

We were talking about the "bag-men" and the "jelly beans". And as I said, when you take "String-Clusters" from around the neck of the bag-man and you take the layered bag-men off, then the jelly beans will all be able to run back through the electrosphere containment after they run the centrifugal machine, the "Spin-drier", and then back to the "Hoover" and their capture, and go free on "earlier universe". And they'll probably go off as an "assembly line": You just start it going on one end and wake them up and: "Wake up your buddy, and tell them about this and this and this, and go back and find an Earlier Universe 4 to 7 quadrillion years ago." And just keep your attention on them doing that and you find they go off like a cloud of smoke, and you can get rid of thousands and thousands of these guys - totally individual, and totally free, if you also indicate to them: "Look for other guys stuck to you during these experiments, and when you were captured." Have them locate that, and they will all go off, and no problem. They will all leave because they are single, individual, free beings.

Now, You have the same thing: Some of them may "stick to the wall", and you have them find the guys stuck in their valence they didn't spot. And if you find a guy who needs an orientation, or if you find them needing some BPC handled from a game, or from earlier universe, ok! Go ahead! But I found that most of these are pretty smart thetans. They were just captured and then "frozen" since Pre-I, and they just immediately "wake up" at the SAME ABILITY OR AWARENESS LEVEL THEY WERE THEN, before they were captured and they go - Pum! - immediately back to that area! I think they've maybe learned not to get trapped again, but - I hope they have anyway - by listening to the others getting handled - but, anyway, they leave quickly. Now, ok, I gave you an idea of something that can be there. These are the ELEMENTS of the plugs. Right?

Now, another thing that can come up besides the "normal" org-board functions. Now, these we were already talking about; the strings and bags and string thetans, string Cluster, bag-men, jelly bean thetans, and all these Incidents of the Pre-I. And those were sort of like the "standard assembly line" to make up these plugs. Now the plugs have DIFFERENT INTENTIONS and therefore your more "top of the org-board guys" are the HOLDERS, and the people who are "in charge" have certain other functions. All right? By the way, some of these "jelly been guys" are maybe put into a thing and being used as a sort of memory bank, or file, or some kind of data storage area.

So the jelly beans CAN be used for other things rather than just mass. They may STORE

PICTURES OF SOMEBODY and so on, you understand? But, basically, they were made up to be mass. And the lighter ones sometimes are used sort of like a computer, or... "data storage bank" for some other guys in the org, in the plug, ok? They may even store data about YOU! Yes! Yes! Ok!

Now, so... let's find out what the other guys do: The MONITOR is an important beast. The "monitor a thetan" is one of the usual types of plugs. You have a whole plug that was set up to MONITOR THE THETAN'S ACTIVITIES, or to make him BEHAVE IN A CERTAIN WAY, or BELIEVE IN A CERTAIN WAY, and attached to the top of the plug usually near the top, or at the top on the org-board is this thing called the MONITOR. The monitor, quite often, can be a Cluster, yes, and it can be a BT which has a couple more stuck to him in his valence, but it's usually a pretty powerful guy, and is usually either monitoring one way or two ways, and sometimes, three ways.

When we say "one way monitor", we mean he is taking whatever occurs in your universe and relaying it somewhere else. Ah... usually, to the original implanters who made up the Pre-I plugs. Anyway, you say "That's weird!" Well! You have to realize that ALL THE IMPLANTERS ARE STILL AROUND! So, THEY CAN STILL GET DATA FROM THESE GUYS! Now you start to see the game! Now we can get data from them, right? SO CAN THEY. Ok! Now, the monitor - it could be a "two way monitor", which means that, when you find them, and you find out he is sending information about you away to some terminal in the implanter organization, you also find out that when you audit the guy a little bit, he moves kindly off to the side or gives you the sight, or he blows or whatever, and you find you now have a direct telepathic sight line to the implanter org, and you can pick up whatever they are doing at the other end!

If it was a two way monitor in use, then you will find out that you now are directly connected to the guys who were trying to make you PTS, by activating your plugs. Yes, yes! And YOU CAN NOW AUDIT THEM if you want, or you can say "Fuck off!" So, that's a TWO WAY MONITOR. So there it is open on both ends. You can find out what's happening at the other end, and they can find out what's happening on your end. But once you handle the monitor, YOU'VE GOT CONTROL OF THE LINE. Do what you want with it! Ok? Now, a lot of these monitors, when they realize the game is over, and the whole of the plans of the Pre-I implanters, and by the way, the "PTS to Xenu" button works there just as well as it's the same guy, of course! This IS HIS PLAN, HIS set-up for the whole take-over of the universe: Take the thetans which were "easily subjected" in the shall we say "Third World Universe", hoover them up, make them into various complicate designs that thetans couldn't figure out, and come over here with incident I into the game which was going on at the time, let's say "bringing order to MEST", the "CIVILIZING GAME".

And then taking the Big Thetans and sucking them into Incident I and implanting them with these bloody plugs and other beings, and making them come under control. So, the difference here is that SOME BEINGS WERE JUST CAPTURED OUT OF THEIR EARLIER UNIVERSE AND MADE INTO PLUGS, WAY BACK THERE. They were never anything else! THE OTHER BEINGS WERE PLAYING THE GAME WHICH GOT "INFRINGED UPON", or were trying NOT TO BE UNMOCKED or TAKEN OVER BY THE Implanters.

Now, usually, with the Pre-OT, you deal with that kind of being. He's been playing the other (civilizing) game and he got "zapped" by the implanters. And that's the most usual thing, although YOU WILL FIND SOMETIMES PEOPLE WHO WERE WORKING WITH THE IMPLANTERS ALL THE TIME, and THAT was the "other game" that was going on. So, you can also handle them, and sometimes they want to turn around and play the other, "freeing up" game, or "Scientology" or the "New Civilization". Sometimes, they just want to go back and kick the implanters in the ass for betrayal. And sometimes, they just want to go on a tour, or leave the universe, or make their own game. But that's up to them.

But when you handle them and you get all their BPC off, they're singled up, and they realize IT WAS A BAD GAME. (Yes, yes.) It was bad game to play with the implanters. A lot of "promises" and they ended up being a monitor BT or something on the top of a plug for the next five or six quadrillion years. NOT a good name. Ok?

This is just an idea, so you don't get confused when you look into this. JUST DON'T BE AMAZED AT ANYTHING YOU FIND. "String of pearls" This is a bunch of thetans that were made up to be little balls. And the trick of holding these guys together you know, they are like a chain, they are not holding each other. They are made to have a HOLE in them, like a string of pearls, and they have a "chain thetan" threaded THROUGH them, you understand? So... they are like a string of pearls. But the 'chain' is going THROUGH them, in the middle. You don't see it at first. THAT'S WHAT'S HOLDING. That's why they can't get separated, just like a string of pearls.

I told you about the black hole? Ok! Now, the Sun-Lamp, Monitors... MONITORS ARE VERY IMPORTANT TO GET OFF OF THE CASE, BECAUSE THEY LEAVE THE CASE OPEN TO FURTHER "RESTIMULATION" AND "IMPLANTATION", "SIGNALS" AND "COMMANDS " FROM THE IMPLANTING ORG, OR THROUGH VARIOUS DRAMATIZATIONS OF IT IN THE SOCIETY, OR THROUGH KNOWING - KNOWING RESTIMULATION, SUCH AS IN "BLACK NOT'S". So, when you get a monitor, you may spend an hour handling the monitor, or an hour and a half with the TA not moving so much. But, boy!... when you get him handled, Wow! And the whole plug comes apart... Poom! And the Pre-OT feels a lot better! Ah, yes! Now, what if the monitor is CONNECTED to other shall we say monitors, ALONG A CHAIN OR NETWORK IN OTHER PEOPLE'S UNIVERSES AND OTHER AREAS?

We have definitely found monitors on the case connected to monitors in implanting organizations, or just the "Tower of Basel" or even an old implant station which is still there! And this was sometimes "monitor spheres", looking very similar to the old astrologists', witches', and mediums' "crystal ball". Within the "crystal ball" there were actually TRAPPED THETANS, CLUSTERS, and INDIVIDUAL THETANS. And that was a big "monitor sphere". It would monitor several of these other monitors or many of them at the time, or at separate times, per program. Now, this is NOT REALLY "in the Preclear's universe", but he finds it, because the monitor says: "Yeah, I was reporting back to the sphere, and that was relayed to the implanters."

Ah Ha! So... What do you do with this? Well, we've found it's VERY HELPFUL that it's part of a plug because it's connected (you don't HAVE to run it on the guy, if he doesn't feel up to it and so on) it isn't REALLY in his universe. BUT it's fun to exercise now, your shall we say, your "aggressive tendencies" as an OT, to do the job of taking apart some of these mechanisms that are making people aberrated. And YOU CAN ACTUALLY AUDIT THAT SPHERE, once you have a line to it by having the monitor turn it over to you and "debriefing" on it and so on, and you know now how it works. YOU CAN RUN ALL THE THETANS OUT OF THAT SPHERE, AND DESTROY THE SPHERE, the monitor sphere for the implanters, AND THEY CAN'T MONITOR ANYBODY WITH IT ANYMORE!

Now, we FINALLY have a chance to get back at them, ok? You also find that in some of the implant stations you might get connected up to in session, there are STORAGE HOUSES Of THETANS STILL IN ICE, STILL FROZEN IN ALCOHOL AND GLYCOL FROM INCIDENT II! They're STILL there. Being used as, shall we say "reserves", you know?...."Got to have your reserves in case some of the thetans go free. You've got to have some more to put down and monitor more people and so on like that, and that's why you've got to keep the population small, in these slave societies, because you haven't got so many BTs and Clusters and plugs to monitor the people with, and you don't want to exceed the number of individual bodies you have because, if you have too many bodies, you don't have enough plugs to go around, and you can't keep control of them."

AND THAT'S THE WHOLE REASON for "OVER POPULATION" SCENARIOS. "Sorry, we've got too much population. We've got to get rid of some of these people." THE REAL REASON BEHIND IT ALL IS THE IMPLANTERS DON'T WANT TOO MANY PEOPLE BECAUSE THEY CAN'T CONTROL THEM ALL. Ok, so... if you find these reserves, you find that most of them are in a state of the "Capture of Incident II", OR they may have been saved from Pre-I! (The "capture before Inc I" and the "electrosphere".) And boy!, you can get them running on the track, and just start having them blow off by the MILLIONS. I advise you to do this, because the more you get rid of the "reserves" of the implanters, the less trouble you are going to have in the future with the implanters, and the less trouble you are going to have with plugs and something like that.

And you also are FREEING THETANS, which is our purpose. Ok? It's just a possibility. You don't HAVE to do it if you don't want, but I tell you, there's a lot of fun in doing this. It's sort of "Now we have a chance to strike back at these guys, and take away THEIR reserves, like they were taking away OUR reserves!" Yes, Yes!

Ok. What do we have here? Some examples of some Pre-I Plugs and why they are so important on the case. Well, let me give you another example you will find on the case usually. It's also a "plug". For instance, a giant, you find it's mocked up in Pre-Inc I Experiments, like a GIANT CRYSTAL BODY, made of THOUSANDS of tiny "honey-combs"... and it's about TEN FEET TALL too, and that's 3 meters high, a BIG CRYSTAL MOCK-UP Of A BODY, You know? Doll body, meat body... it doesn't matter, because the thetans were introduced into these little "honey-comb cells" on it all over. The crystal was like a honey comb. And... they were used (and this is one plug, for instance, this whole structure)... and it was used to "connect" to the other thetans in the other plugs on the case, to plug THEM into THIS ONE. This one is like a giant "socket".

So these insured that the plug thetans were under control. Each "plug" would be plugged into the "socket", and it would affect that part of the body if restimulated. But it, itself, is just ONE PLUG. So that way the "crystal body" or the "honey comb" plug. Ok?

There are other ones. One interesting one makes you understand all the "Eastern religions". It's actually a plug which is composed of several BTs, or MANY BTs and Clusters, in the shape of the "Chakkras" of the Eastern religions. There are AREAS OF SUPPOSED LIFE DOWN THE SPINE. Well, it's six or seven Clusters, put directly on the top of each other, looking like the human spine. And on the top of that, there is a GOLDEN CLUSTER LOOKING LIKE A SKULL (a "Totenkopf"). A golden skull. And, of course, this is the "Crown Chakkra" or "Golden Chakkra". The one they think in the East is where the guy (or thetan) IS, or something. But that's JUST ANOTHER CLUSTER, and it's usually COVERED TO THE THETAN'S VISION FROM OUTSIDE OF THIS PLUG, and it maybe STUCK IN THE BODY.

But if the thetan is exterior, he doesn't see this particular "golden skull" and the "six or seven chakkras" in the spinal area. It's not ALL of the body. It's just these Clusters and the skull. On top of that, there is a whole field of "flower-looking" things, which I called "Lilies of the Field", and it's ANOTHER CLUSTER, which is a bunch of little thetans, being "Lilies of the Field". But, on the top of that, comes a "rod". A "crystal rod" or "transparent rod", going up into the sky, and inside that "rod", there is another bunch of thetans being an org-board! Yeah, like an org-board. A function-board. They are supposed to be different parts of the IMPLANTER ORG-BOARD COMMAND SYSTEM. And it is "rolled up". It's a FLAT Cluster rolled up into like an org-board, stuck inside the "crystal rod", and the "rod" is held by a hand up at the top. And the hand is, of course, the "Hand of God". Yes!

All of this is BTs and Clusters, but it's a whole plug, all the way down, from the "Hand of God" all the way down through the "rod", through the "Lilies of the Field", through the "golden skull" and to the "Chakkras" down in the bottom. THAT'S A TYPICAL IMPLANTER PLUG, almost a "Standard" plug. I found several of those. In any case you run there may be MORE THAN ONE, or there may be JUST ONE, or it may NOT BE THERE AT ALL. I will tell you why in a minute.

Another example is the "pyramid". The "pyramid cults" of Egyptians, Masons, and so on, go way back to this particular plug. So, they're just a PT DRAMATIZATION OF WHAT THESE PLUGS ARE. It was supposed to be a "body for a thetan", and of course, on the top, there was a cap on it, a capstone, black, which ONLY TOOK ORDERS FROM, you guessed it, XENU. And it's a "cap cluster", which was supposed to be the top stone of the pyramid-looking thing, and right under it, a thetan was supposed to sit, and the thetan was of course, the "All seeing eye", you know? The thing on the U.S. dollar bill, on the back, there is a pyramid with an "eye" in it. And the thing was supposed to be under control of this "cap" and the "cap" was supposed to be on a monitor line to Xenu and the implanter org that was doing the Pre-I Experiments. And below is the rest of the "pyramid", which is not composed of stones and blocks, but is composed of a bunch of "jelly bean" thetans, and glued together with "gluey, tight thetans" in this pyramidal shape, and that was supposed to be the "mind" of the thetan. So, when he goes exterior, he was supposed to be given this "pyramid" mock-up. He was supposed to think that he WAS THAT. Any way, this is another plug.

And there is also the "perfect body" plug. It's a series of Clusters and BTs which were made up to be supposedly "perfect bodies", and, of course, they all have a MONITOR running them. So, if the thetan desires to inhabit one of these "perfect bodies", and puts it into his meat body, or his own mocked-up body, or carries it around with him, HE IS ALSO BEING MONITORED. Ok? So, those are some of the plugs you may find.

You should realize the monitors have been there since 4 to 7 quadrillion years, and their data is VERY FRESH when you wake them up and get them talking. They HAVE been working "automatically", but WHEN You wake them up and get them in comm, and get them to CHANGE SIDES, they will give you ALL THE DATA: If you debrief the monitor, they will tell you how they were made, and how the plug was put together, and what the purpose was. So, I don't tell you too much. Just to give you an idea and you will find all the rest for yourself.

But, apparently, there were THOUSANDS of "experimental" plugs, so on any case you may find any of these "experimental" plugs that are very weird, and nothing like what I've described. And there maybe some other weird things, like "Alice in Wonderland" type things, you know? That's why we call this level "Alice in Wonderland". You get into it on the seventh "Chakkra" down the spine and find out the whole thing which is going to be there as you go up toward the "top" of the org. Wow!

Ok! So, anyway, there are maybe THOUSANDS of these experimental types, but we've found that there were also about a hundred or so, or several hundred, "standard plugs", that were used very much during Inc I, and to confuse thetans with. The "perfect body", the-"Chakkras", the "Golden Skull", the "Crystal Body", and the "Pyramid" things, apparently were pretty standard. There ARE others which are "set up" in other ways in other cases we've found, but these are a few of the "Standard" ones.

You WILL find maybe MORE THAN ONE on a case. Sometimes, there are "reserves". Like you run out - let's say one of these "perfect body" plugs and you find ANOTHER ONE! And Wow! And what should I do in this case? Because you are running the sessions and you are only supposed to run ONE PLUG PER SESSION. Well, you can do it either way: If the Preclear has not enough horsepower, and says: "Eh, there's something that's stopping the F/N here and so on, and it looks like another, just like the one I ran before!" Well, if he's not up to it, handle it in the next session. But it's better, if it IS an identical one and it's coming up to REPLACE the one that you've just run, and therefore to make the guy think that he never made a case gain, then you can go ahead and run it. And you will find usually there is maybe two or three. And in some cases, I've found a "magic number". They like to make SIX. Six plugs exactly the same.

So, sometimes...., but the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th, they run very easily, because you know the entire structure, and you just contact the guy at the top, and - Zap! - run them off. The rest of the guys, sort of... "Oh.. Yeah!" And the next ones are listening already, so.... it gets easier and easier. Then you have a REAL Floating TA when you get rid of all six! And this is with the "old magic numbers". Ah? - six, six, so, they really INTENDED those numbers. In fact they are printed around, and pushed around in this society, and are supposed to and INTENDED TO KEY-IN THESE PLUGS. Nobody better believe anything else!

These numbers are there to key-in those plugs: six, six, six. I mean, six plugs of the "perfect body", and the six plugs of this.... key-in! So, anyway, it's starting a whole "one-world" put together! Ok! Now, we've gone over that "standard plugs" examples. Ok

The monitors... a 3-way monitor... I didn't describe that! A 3-waymonitor is something that is set up between you and another, and also has a "tapped in" line from the implanter org! So you may have a monitor line from you, say to a person you know. An old back track twin, in some org-board game, or something. (By the way, Tech Briefing No. 5 is interesting for those of you who want to know more about this. This is the way the implanters "think" and how they handle the people they captured who were against them, and what you might find on those kinds of cases.)

So, it's an interesting area, but it shows up in the "3-way monitors", where you and a buddy of yours who were on the track or something, are monitored by connecting a monitor between you and him, with a "3rd party" on the line from the implanter org. And he is pushing signals out, keeping you two guys from getting back together, because, maybe you were VERY destructive to the implanters at one time. So it keeps you apart by having the MONITOR between you and him and pushing 3rd party signals down the monitor line. Ok? It's like a 'Y'. It's THREE ways: Between you, your old friend, who you hate now probably, and the implanter org. Nice 3rd party arrangement! That's three way. Ok!

One thing I want to mention before closing. About plugs and things you might find on them: Some of these guys were cleverly mocked-up to HIDE from you, so THEY THINK YOU CAN NEVER SEE THEM. And some of them are hiding in "other dimensions", "other universes"... in other words, when you trace up the org-board, you find: "Well, I'm being held, well, I didn't know, it's... it's some great being from another universe.. Ha!" can't point it out or anything, so you just sort of get the INTENTION OF WHERE THE CONTROL LINES ARE COMING FROM, and you find that it goes into sort of an "invisibility field", and then, it goes around the corner or something, and disappears and then reappears around in a sort of "another dimension".

So, you can just check on the Meter: "Is this holder in another dimension?", "Another Universe?", ah, "Invisible?", etc. etc.... And there will be a read on something, and you'll get in comm with him. It doesn't matter, Once you spot him - just put your attention where it's reading, and - Pom! - he will come out of that, and you'll realize he was TOLD TO BE IN ANOTHER DIMENSION. It's not REALLY in another dimension. it's PRETENDING TO BE IN ANOTHER DIMENSION! So, that's the way that these guys tend to hide the lines back to the implanter org. And it's by having BTs who are on the monitor line, or the relay-points - BE IN OTHER DIMENSIONS, OR INVISIBLE. And A THETAN CAN BE ANYTHING! FOR ANY LENGTH OF TIME! Remember that!!

So, it makes it very confusing to the thetan to find it. If, say, the line goes into an "invisible" area, or into "another dimension", or "another universe".. . he goes: "Huh?" Also some of these will be "outside" of the thetan's universe, on these "monitor lines", as I said before, TO ACTUAL PHYSICAL AREAS IN THE 3RD UNIVERSE. Or maybe they go WAY BACK IN TIME to the original "implanting experiments" in THIS UNIVERSE! But, nevertheless, he will be able to trace it as his doingness and OT abilities are coming way up, and IN BETWEEN SESSION HE GETS REALIZATIONS OF MORE AND MORE AND MORE ABILITIES.

So, the Pre-OT gets HIS gains. He is WORKING AS AN AUDITOR in the session. Remember, he is the C/S AND THE AUDITOR if he is on Solo. He is the "auditor", and YOU AS AUDITOR ARE THE C/S, when you are auditing Super NOT's. But when he is on Solo, he is C/S AND auditor. Hah! Oh! Is he WORKING on these guys! IN BETWEEN THE SESSIONS is when he gets HIS case gain That's when he is really winning and cogniting and realizing new abilities and so on. DURING SESSION, he's getting wins from APPLICATION, AND FROM DOING AUDITING ON OTHERS. So, it's a total winning game, and totally interesting, if he stays on the right plug, and stack list. Or... if he will COMPLETE EACH PLUG and stay on the RIGHT STACK BY INTEREST AND READS. Ok?

Now, during the course of the universe, you will find that thetans have "shared" BT's.... with OTHERS, and that in various incidents and so on... the BT's have JUMPED from one to the other, or in the press of a crowd, or emotion, or 2-D or whatever! So, during the course of the universe, BODY THETANS and PLUGS and PIECES OF PLUGS moved around from one thetan to another, and sometimes they come back around, all the way, back to you some of your "own" that were originally put on you will go around or get stuck in an old body after you left it, and, as thetans have taken a lot of different bodies and so on, you know? THE WHOLE UNIVERSE HAS BEEN MIXED! MIXED! Plugs have been mixed, because some of them are stuck to bodies (genetic line) and some of them are stuck to the thetan (theta line) and so on.

By the way, at the end of the "body's life-time", THE MONITOR LINE INTO IT WHICH DECIDES THAT THERE IS NO MORE "BIG THETAN" THERE TO HANDLE, or to try to handle, the "holder" of the Pre-I plugs at the "local" implant station decides this, you know? And the whole system of Pre-I plugs is supposed to "exteriorize" from the body and be "sucked up" to the implant station through the "monitor line", then it is COMPRESSED into smaller size and put back into ANOTHER BODY. A small body, like a baby, for instance.

So, it's very interesting, because these were their plans. They don't WASTE these BTs, They don't waste them under the ground in a "dead meat body". They zip out of the body at the point of death, and they are sucked back to the implant station, and they get zipped down on another person's body, that is just growing up. And this is shown very vividly in the idea of "2001", the little "baby" coming down in the "little ball" afterwards, at the end of the picture show. You know, "A Space Odyssey", "2001". That was the whole idea. That was a system of monitoring that they described in the picture.

The "big black thing" monitoring beings growing up and so on. And that was based on these implants, these plugs and monitor systems, etc. And anyway, that's how they do it. And that's why they want to computer control WHO are the bodies and WHERE they are, and to KEEP THEM IN A CERTAIN AMOUNT on the planet, monitoring them through implant stations, and satellites, up through a giant computer system connected up to the central implant Station.

The central implant station on, say "Coltus", a planet of Polaris, or one closer to Earth. In fact. they will try to use Mars, which explains to you the "ALTERNATIVE III" Scenario, you know? From the English book that "exposed" it. It was the secret idea that somehow, because of "carbon-dioxide building up in the air" earth people will set up somewhere else, like on the Moon or Mars and construct something like a base to save the "important people" in. Well, that was really the IMPLANTERS that started the.

And maybe, well... they took some Earth people and some "zombies" (psycho-drugged workers) to make them re establish to the old implant stations again, and the way they describe it in the book, it exactly fits. By the way, that station on Mars has been handled, but there ARE other implant stations ON the planet, which we all are having success knocking out, and freeing all their "reserve thetans", that are still sitting "frozen" in alcohol and glycol.

The interesting thing is, that the PATTERN they were using, the ORGANIZATION PATTERN for the computering and so on, the COMPUTERS THEY WERE USING CONTAIN ALSO BTs, to be a "reflection" of the BTs and Clusters on the case. In other words, the top station monitor used a computer link to the case that was also BTs and Clusters in a circuit. A "live" unit! If they used another "normal" computer, THEY WOULDN'T KNOW WERE "YOU" ARE (because they need a "telepathic" connection to these plugs, and that can only be done with THETANS).

But, anyway, they don't have the right INTENTION in their "Org", but they do have an ORG-BOARD. The "implanter org-board" is NOT operated by BODIES. They are EXTERIOR. They've been around since Pre-I, and you can "turn them around" quite easily when they realize "the game is over", and they usually were "betrayed" and are very tired of doing the game that they are doing with Xenu. And they will try to "zap" you and "attack you", and so on, at first, under their "directions" (instructions or orders from Xenu).

But finally, they realize they can't harm you, and you just go on and audit them. They just audit like any other Preclear. They finally are blowing and THAT LEAVES A HOLE ON XENU'S ORG-BOARD. Just like he blew apart the Church, by taking everybody out that could have exposed him. Well, NOW YOU CAN DO THE SAME WITH HIS ORG-BOARD. You can take away all HIS "Loyal Officers", and his "implanter friends" from way back on the track!

SUPER NOT'S "CLEAN FLOWS" RUNDOWN

Now, this "flows" business and all this exchange has been going on through the universe, for many, many eons, and this game HAS been going on, on the 7TH DYNAMIC, whether people realize it or not. And, you will get to a point in this level where you will recognize your responsibilities for taking care of ANY plugs or BTs or Clusters that have got on to OTHER PEOPLE FROM YOU, or from those OTHERS TO OTHERS, and from OTHERS BACK TO YOU, and BACK TO OTHERS. You understand? There are "theirs" that have come to YOU, that are not REALLY yours, but you feel also responsible to handle this end of it. So, you CAN run it on a "3-Flows basis". If you run into it as a "plug", or it is "connected" to one plug you are running then you run it out on those flows. YOU JUST LOOK FOR "ANY BTS OR CLUSTERS CONNECTED TO YOU THAT WERE ALSO CONNECTED TO ANOTHER?", AND "OTHERS CONNECTED TO ANOTHER?", AND ALSO "ANOTHER'S CONNECTED TO YOU". Foom!... Foom! From each point of view, you know?

Back and forth and so on... and you run it out. And, you can run 6 more flows on it too: The flow OTHERS TO OTHERS, and OTHER TO YOU, and SELF TO SELF, and ANOTHER TO OTHERS, and ANOTHER TO ANOTHER, and YOU TO OTHERS, and back and forth. AND YOU FINALLY FIND A GREAT SENSE OF EXPANSION AND RELIEF COMING to you, AND a whole bunch of other people who suddenly, you don't feel any "bad emotions" about, or "mis emotions" about. Because, all of a sudden the lines are clean of the "third party" and the PLUGS and the IMPLANTS, and all that stuff. You understand? And so you can handle that.

SUPER NOT'S SUPER INT RUNDOWN

You can also do a clean-up of your own universe if you run into it, or if you are feeling that you are creating a little bit more of a "III case" than you need: Some of the guys are NOT BLOWING... or something. Or you can do it as a review action. It is simply to extend your attention and awareness OUT from THE CENTER, ALL THE WAY OUT THROUGH THE LIMITS OF YOUR UNIVERSE, AND, AS YOU GO OUT, SPOT AND HANDLE BY THE NEEDLE, ANY BTS OR CLUSTERS STILL STUCK AT THAT POINT, UNTIL THEY COMPLETELY BLOW. It's like a giant "Int Rundown", working on a basis, on a gradient, from YOU all the way out of your limits of Your awareness. It also includes in that: THROUGH OUT THE BODY AND THROUGH THE PLANETARY AREA, AS WELL, because remember, BTs can also "blow" DOWN or INTO THE PLANET and get stuck into it. As well as get "stuck in the wall", or "out in space", or at the "Van Allen Belts", so... ? Yes, Yes! You can also work it completely THROUGH THE PLANET. That's part of your sphere of influence! All this gives rave relief to Preclears and Pre-OTs, but if you are just running along, these things will probably come up somewhere in the level.

If a person, say, comes into Review complaining: "Well, I don't feel they are all leaving and so on." And then you can do one of these "9-flows" things, if they are connected to other's universe, to other people. You can also do one of these giant "Ext-Int Rundowns". Just run all the incomplete BTs and Clusters that are hanging around in his universe. But, again, ONLY IF THEY ARE INTERESTED AND IT READS WELL. Because I've found out that THAT IS THE WAY TO GO, TO KEEP THE INTEREST AND TO KEEP THE PROGRESS GOING ON THE CASE. Now, this is the WAY, let's say, the thing is sort of "stacked up" in the NOT's level. And don't be surprised if you're running a case, and you first run a whole bunch on Inc II plugs and so on, and they come off, and maybe an Earlier Inc I guy here and there holding it, and then you all of a sudden, you are in one of these Pre-I plugs! Wow! Nothing reads on "Inc II?". Nothing! You've got this PRE-I STUFF coming!

Usually on Solo, this is quite usual. You handle the whole plug and so on, and then, you maybe find some more on the next stack that have to do with Inc II again, It sort of "cycles" on the Time Track. Like any good process, or any good Dianetic type process. It cycles on the Time Track; you run a few engrams and go real early, and the guy will cycle back, and then you run some more, more recent ones etc. And we found that the cycle goes sometimes: He runs some from II, or maybe some PT things, PT monitors, and then, he runs II, and then he runs some Pre-Is and then runs more Pre-Is... and then, he' coming back and there are some more IIs! Some plugs that were MADE around Incident II, because RIGHT BEFORE INCIDENT II, ON COLTUS, THE PLANET WHICH LRH MENTIONS IN THE TAPE ON THE CLASS VIII COURSE, ON COLTUS, WAS AN ASSEMBLY POINT. One of the planets of the North Star the marcabian area.

IT WAS AN ASSEMBLY POINT, and they ALSO did some EXPERIMENTS THERE WITH PLUGS and making up some sort of more RECENT PLUGS. They are a lot "sloppier" and they are not as well organized. Some of them were made up of assassinated & frozen LOYAL OFFICERS and so on, to further CONFUSE other Loyal Officers, and there were all kinds of "Mock-ups" done there to make the Loyal Officers NOT WANT TO GET TOGETHER, AND NOT WANT TO WORK WITH EACH OTHER, AND NOT WANT TO HANDLE THE IMPLANTERS. But this is covered more or less in Tape # 5: "What the implanters would do to a group, if they captured any members of the group that opposed them." Ok?

So, you WILL cycle on the track, as you run this. And back, and more plugs, etc. And on the next stack, you may find that there is some coming on Inc. II, and some more on PT, and then, maybe back, or maybe that stack is finished after one or two plugs. Sometimes, there are seven or eight plugs connected to a stack and sometimes, 20 or 30.There is no real rule on that. It's just how much the guy has collected and how much he has "ordered" his case in that way by his THOUGHT. How many of those plugs are there lined up by his THOUGHT ACTIVATION?

So, it will cycle, so.... don't be surprised if the guy is running Pre-I, and all of a sudden, is picking up present time monitors or something that has been put on rather recently, in the last life-time, say, or, even THIS LIFE-TIME. And then, he is running a plug which is made up from Inc II and was attached to his body, you know? And the body genetic line had it there when he picked up the body. And, another one was "intended" onto him, when he worked in the Church, you know? ANY POSSIBILITY OR COMBINATION CAN HAPPEN.

The point is: If you go precisely by the action of the assessment, the most reading, the interest, the stack, each plug; and then the next stack, each plug. If you go like that, all will come loose! And all will come clean! And, it will give maximum gains and minimum left by-passed charge on the case. And, I guarantee you, that after several intensives of this, ah... maybe it takes one or two, or maybe a little more sometimes, to get a guy onto Solo; but when he's done one or two intensives in this manner, he will be PAST THE POINT OF EVER BEING, SHALL WE SAY, "GOING TO GET WORSE" AGAIN.

You'll be past that point, and you will get up past that point, and you'll probably be at the point of... "Well, I mean, this IS the way to do it, and it's only going to get better and I can achieve everything I want, and I realize where all those silly fears, compulsions, etc., were coming from, and not only that, I've now HANDLED the guys who did it, and take care of their org-boards and stations, and I'm feeling more and more expansion of causativeness on all my dynamics as a thetan!"

So, that's the way it works, and I don't know how many intensives it would take to complete a case, but I would... (super NOT's Level has been found to complete after 4 - 8 intensives). After he is on Solo, it shouldn't be too many more, if he is handling them professionally, like this.

And the sessions run from twenty minutes to forty minutes to an hour to two hours, or more sometimes, depending on how big the plug is and how complicated it is. And once he has had this data and can run it, very little C/Sing is needed; just tell him to locate the next stack, or the next plug in THIS stack or locate the next stack and run the first plug in it.

Now, there are examples where the D of P interview gives EQUAL READING Items. I found that when you have items "equal reading", (or two items combined that maybe each item reads HALF of what another items reads, but they were COMBINED in the plug), in other words, one guy says: "Well, I had trouble with dogs and cats." Well, first he says "dogs", and then he says "cats". "Yeah and 'cats' too!", and they both read well: LF, and the LF (long fall) was a tenth of a division.

TOGETHER, they would be...0.2; but EACH ONE IS 0.1, so you write them down as 0.1 and then, you have another item which is "Mental Ability". The guy says: "Mental Ability" - 0.2, So, you're going down the list of stacks, and the next stack is coming, and the auditor says: "Ok. 'Mental Ability'. What about 'Mental Ability'?" And he says: "Ummm... I don't know... No, it's ok, I'm interested in that, but not really... but a dog bit me the other day." "Oh Yeah? What do we have here about 'dogs'? Well, that's lower down on the list, Well, that's not reading as well. Umm... but, what about 'DOGS AND CATS'?" "Dogs and cats? Oh, yeah... oh... I've had troubles with them... Wow! Dogs and Cats." "Ok! So, dogs and cats. What's the wording of that?" "It's a... Oh... 'TROUBLE WITH PETS'!!" Yeah! You know? Or, "DOMESTIC ANIMALS"!

It's something like that, But those are COMBINED. So, that's about one of the only "tricky things" that can come up. The guy may run OFF THE CHANNEL OF HIS CASE and OFF THE MOST INTEREST IN HIS CASE because you noted them down as two SEPARATE THINGS, from the D of P Interview, when really they were COMBINED as one. JUST SORT IT OUT WITH THE PRECLEAR. WHEN HE HAS THE RIGHT ONE, HIS INTEREST WILL BE THERE. THE READS WILL BE THERE FOR HIM. THE READS WILL BE THERE FOR THE AUDITOR. (It's Pre-OT by the way; I did say "Preclear", but it's a usual word. I'm very used to saying it, but it's the PRE-OT. He is a CLEAR, and he is really working toward being an OT now. So, any time during this lecture I said "Preclear", I intended the word PRE-OT. Ok?)

So, those are the things that will give you a successful run through Super NOT's C/Sing and Solo Super NOT's - where you have to C/S yourself - and a person who HAS INTERNED and so on, would be able to C/S THEMSELVES AND OTHERS on this Level. After he's done all the folder study and has been an intern on other cases to see how they work, and so on, he shouldn't then have any trouble.

But to a person who is a Solo Auditor, who has come up the line with no training and so on, I do recommend that they get C/Ses, if not every day, at least as you would with a case which is running well on III, which is to review the folder every week or so, to make sure that the guy is staying on the lines, he is running the stack and is not getting trapped with a bunch of "out-int" guys and he KNOWS how to find the next plug and next stack and so on.

So, when you get to the end of the original D of P, and you handle everything in order, you can do ANOTHER D of P, and find what is troubling the guy, and you just keep right on going. At the end of the case, you would then, when he is finished with everything he can "think" of, you could then check down if there, "are any BT or Clusters connected with..", any of the items on the original Assessment List in NOT's, and you can check that.

But I think, by the time, all these things would have been handled. Because by the time he finishes this, he is so at cause over his case, and so on, he will go right on through to the EP of the "transparent body". And then the ability to freely exteriorize and be in or out of the body at will. He will carry right on to that, because the interest is there: In the total gains of knowledge, awareness and so on. That's what he is working for. So, I wish you all success on this Level, and I want to tell you that WITHOUT RON'S TECH IN BASICS, this could never have been done.

THE HISTORY AND THEORY

OF

THE FIRST STEPS OF EXCALIBUR

This is the history and a description of how Excalibur came about as written by Senior Case Supervisor World Wide David Mayo.

"In 1978 L. Ron Hubbard was receiving Dianetic Clearing and he got ill. The more they tried to repair and handle with Dianetic Clearing, the worse the condition became. The bank got beefed up, reads became smaller and smaller, then things stopped reading on the meter that should have read, his TA got high and stuck, somatics increased and the illness became severe. Sensitivity by can squeeze was very high and metabolism low. That was the result of trying to run engrams and engram chains with Dianetic Clearing on someone whose case level was above clear.

I was urgently called out to where he was as it was considered that his life was in danger and when I arrived there was a doctor in 24 hour attendance.

The first thing I did was to look at the folders to see what had been happening in the recent sessions to try to figure out what the main by-passed charge could be. I did a little assessment, found what read and indicated it as by-passed charge. This produced a small F/N and some immediate relief. That was the first assist. From the assessment and from folder study it became apparent that the main error was that an Clear was trying to run engrams as his own when, if a person was Clear, he would not have any engrams to run. It also became apparent from the way the engram chains had been running that there were indicators of jumped chains and the content of the incidents showed that these incidents belonged to different people or a different BT from one incident to another. One of the early sources of by-passed charge that I checked on a meter was whether the incidents that he had been trying to run were misowned by him as his charge when they really belonged to BT and Clusters. That read and indicated and started to bring the Range Arm down and produced an F/N. That's one of the basic principles of Excalibur, the idea that a person who is Clear or above, when asked to run something, especially a secondary or engram, will apparently find incidents and will often get mental image pictures or facsimiles to run. Thus you get the apparency that you can run Dianetic Clearing on a Clear or above. If they are not his own incidents, they are misowned incidents. So, one of the early steps of the rundown is the location of incidents, especially engrams, which the person has tried to run as his own when they weren't. Early on the rundown it's not as important to locate whose incident (i.e., which BT it belonged to), as it is to locate the fact and have the Clear recognize that he tried to own it as his own when it wasn't his and tried to run it as his own when it wasn't his.

This goes back to the axiom about ownership and persistence; assigning other authorship to a picture or saying that one created it when he didn't, causes a persistence (and it causes an increase in mass and solidity). If it is somebody else's picture and the Clear tries to run it as if it is his own, that will add mass to it and the more he tries to run and erase it, the more mass is added to it because it is furthering the lie that it is his picture or that he created that picture when he didn't.

Early in the sessions it became apparent that an early action that should be done on Excalibur is to date/locate the point when the Clear went clear. That in itself tends to blow off a lot of charge from the engram running after Clear. After having date/located the point when the person went clear, you then ask the Clear if he tried to run incidents after that point as if they were his own (when they weren't). The Clear will usually scan up through his Clearing track and blow off locks from his Clearing track and will have cognitions about considerations he made in Clearing and about why he had difficulty when he did and so on. It also clears up a mystery for him as to how come he "still had pictures after he was clear." Very often you have to clean the button "invalidation of clear" because the Clear having gone clear at a certain point and then later, encountering BT/C's pictures or masses, will have decided he wasn't or couldn't have been clear after all. So there is often an invalidation or invalidations of his/her clear state that need to be cleaned off. Sometimes there is also invalidation by others. Usually, almost routinely, there are invalidations by the Clear.

Doing the above brings about a resurgence, a rehabilitation of the state of clear, or similar. That's the essence of the first steps of the rundown.

One of the reasons why people who have completed III can get into trouble running engrams is because they thought that, having completed III, they must not have any more BTs/Cs. What a person achieves on III is not getting rid of all BTs/Cs. What they do achieve on III is that they get rid of those BTs/Cs who were:

a) hung up in incident II or I (which is not true of all BTs/Cs), b) sufficiently aware and awake that the Clear could communicate with them readily and they could communicate in turn with the Clear.

On III, Clears usually clean up the BTs/Cs that: are readily available and can readily go into communication and who have incidents II and I.

An early discovery on this level was that there's an earlier incident I; there's an earlier incident I that most Clear don't run on III simply because it would never occur to them that there was an earlier one and incident I is labeled as "Start of track" in the materials. There's an incident I which occurred in an earlier universe than this one. On the subject of earlier universes, this is the fifth or sixth universe and incident I is at the "start of track" in this universe, so it isn't by any means basic on the chain.

The Clear on III actually only skims the fat off and leaves all the others. It's not that the Clear didn't try hard enough, he just wasn't aware of them and there's no way he would have been aware of them. An error that has often occurred in the Advance Organizations is that of forcing a person to go on trying to find and run more III. That can cause a pretty heavy mess up because it results in restimulation of BTs/Cs that ARE NOT AVAILABLE TO BE RUN ON III. When that has occurred one must repair the BPC of having been forced to go on and other out rud type BPC and rehab their completion of III.

Another phenomenon relating to BTs is that they are very suggestible. If you ask a BT for something the BT will try to produce it. They are not aware of being so suggestible. You ask or demand and the BT will try to produce what you asked for. So, even if the BT didn't have an incident II, if the Clear demanded that the BT find it, the BT would produce something and even try to run it. It wouldn't be incident II, it would be whatever the BT thought he should come up with. If you asked a BT for "jello" with some intention and impingement, the BT would produce a picture - it wouldn't necessarily be a picture of what you or anyone else would think was jello, it would be whatever the BT came up with as "jello" although the BT didn't have a clue what jello was. Thus whatever a BT produces in response to a demand is not necessarily what one would expect, it is simply whatever occurred to the BT on your suggestion. Obviously if you demanded of a BT an engram regarding a "broken leg" the BT would produce a picture or an incident. It may not have anything to do with a broken leg. It may not have anything to do with any incident that has ever happened. It is just whatever the BT happened to think of when you asked for it. Thus demanding incidents of BTs when trying to run engrams can result in false incidents, dub-in and the weird nonsensical pictures that Preclears get when being run on uncharged chains, overrun or forced to run something that is not available to be run. These symptoms have often occurred on Clears trying to run Dianetic Clearing or engrams after they went clear. The same symptoms can have other causes too; any of the usual Dianetic errors can produce the same symptoms. The Clear might have a pain in his arm; an attempt is made to run "pain in the arm." The Clearing Practitioner asks for an incident that could have caused "pain in the arm" and weird pictures, strange shapes, masses and pressures turn on and the "pictures" shift and change around. Sometimes it can make some kind of sense in a weird manner or it can make no sense whatever. But there are no runnable incidents and there is no resolution of the somatic that they were trying to run out - and there is usually an increase of somatics, at least temporarily. Those are the indications of a Clear trying to run engrams when he has none and BTs are being restimulated (who also do not have those incidents). It is also the result of BTs mocking things up because they are so highly suggestible. They are highly suggestible because they are in such a low state of awareness. As a person goes lower and lower in awareness he becomes groggy or dopey, below that there is a sleep-like state and lower there are various hypnotic or trance states in which the being is very suggestible - and there are much lower states of awareness, too. The point is that the lower the awareness, the more suggestible the person is. Suggestibility and other-determinism go hand in hand, also. The less aware a being is of what is going on, the more he responds to suggestion or command. In the "jello" example the BT is not aware that you said "jello" to him and that he mocked up "jello," that sequence just happens and the BT is not aware of it - except possibly in some very dim, distant, remote dream-like state. The mocking up of "jello" just happens automatically because the BT is way below awareness of what is going on. In summary, a BT will produce something (usually dub-in) when it is demanded that he do so. That is largely due to BTs being so suggestible and partly due to another factor.

The Clear and the BTs are in contact with each other on a physical (body) telepathic basis. Telepathic communication occurs much more readily via a body than it does otherwise. In other words two people might not have enough power to be able to communicate telepathically but a Clear can very easily communicate telepathically with a part of his body or with a BT in his body or connected to it. For some reason it puts them into direct contact via the body. Thus when a Clear thinks a question such as asking for an incident, the BTs in or on his body will readily respond to the Clear's think - they are in direct physical telepathic communication with the Clear. This also makes it hard for the Clear to sort out what thoughts are his and what aren't and causes other problems of confusion of identity.

When a clear is Cleared on engrams there is another phenomenon that can occur. Sometimes the engram or incident being asked for just happens to exist on some BT's time track; it goes into restimulation and the picture/incident turns on. It apparently runs. But if the Clear makes the mistake of thinking that it is his incident (very easy to do), there is a misidentification of the Clear and the BT and misownership of the incident occurs. Furthermore, other BTs tend to copy the picture/incident/engram and misown it as there own, resulting in persisting pictures or masses - normally they fade out in from 3 to -10 days, but it can be pretty confusing.

The points covered in the above paragraphs explain why, when a Clear is cleared on engrams, even though the Clear doesn't have incidents in engram form, the Clear readily "finds" incidents and pictures to run (even though these pictures usually don't make sense). The mere fact of the Clearing Practitioner asking for an engram to run, let alone insisting or demanding that one be found, might be sufficient for the Clear to think there should be one and the BTs (in direct telepathic contact with the Clear) obligingly produce their pictures or dub-in."

THE BASIC TENDENCY OF LIFE

Axiom 1 of Excalibur: Life always tends to organize.

Life always tends toward a state of organization. It is a natural tendency. From the chickens in the barnyard ("pecking order") to galactic federations, from the cells of a body to the street gangs of L.A., there is always a thrust towards some type of organization. This is a survival mechanism. No matter how sane or crazy, life organizes itself. This is a natural and normal state of affairs. So it is with Clusters and Entity Beings. They organize.

Axiom 2 of Excalibur: Life seeks to hold a position in space.

Axiom 3 of Excalibur: All life is seeking to survive.

Axiom 4 of Excalibur: It is more survival to be organized than to not be organized.

Axiom 5 of Excalibur: Organization promotes survival.

Axiom 6 of Excalibur: Life brings order to MEST by organizing it.

Axiom 7 of Excalibur: Life organizes itself.

Axiom 8 of Excalibur: An insane or aberrated organization is adopted in preference to no organization at all.

THE RIGHTS OF A BEING

ALIENABLE (adjective) 1. capable of being transferred to the ownership of another.

INALIENABLE (adjective) 1. not capable of being transferred to the ownership of another: as in, inalienable rights. (also unalienable)

Beings have certain inalienable rights and these are:

1. A Being has the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

2. A Being has the right to his own self-determinism.

3. A Being has the right to his own sanity.

4. A Being has the right to his own power of choice.

5. A Being has the right to leave any game at any time.

6.A Being has the right to choose a game that suits his reality as long as he does not interfere with the right of another Being.

7.A Being has the right to create his own game as long it does not interfere with the rights of another Being.

EXCALIBUR

INTRODUCTION

31 MARCH 1991

You can spot the EBs (Entity Beings) you handle on AA III on the Scale of Emotions. Most of them are above Death on this scale. They do have some free theta. On the Scale of Emotions you find these Beings anywhere from death and above through grief, propitiation, sympathy, lining up for Clearing or being really quiet, propitiating the solo Clearing Practitioner, even being antagonistic. You'll find many different things. They are usually at tone levels above death. Earlier Incident I and Earlier Universe are important buttons in the III case. That's AA III.

The Clear on AA III releases all the EBs he can easily get into communication with. Then he hits the solid wall or the solidity factor of Excalibur. The Excalibur area is where we have the EBs below being able to be a Being, i.e., below death on the Scale of Emotions: failure, pity, shame, accountable, blame (punishing other bodies), regret (responsibility as blame), controlling bodies, protecting bodies, owning bodies, approval from bodies, needing bodies, worshipping bodies, sacrifice, hiding, being objects, being nothing, can't hide, total failure. You are actually handling Preclears all the time, but these Preclears are below death. All the other scales also apply to the Excalibur area, including the Know to Mystery Scale and the Lower Awareness Scales. You find these Beings very low on these scales also.

Clearing Axiom 29 states: "In order to cause an as-is-ness to persist, one must assign other authorship to the creation than his own, otherwise his view of it would cause its vanishment." Any space, energy, form, object, individual or physical universe condition can exist only when an alteration has occurred of the original as-is-ness so as to prevent a casual view from vanishing it. In other words, anything which is persisting must contain a "lie" so that the original consideration is not completely duplicated. In the Excalibur area, we are dealing with severe MISOWNERSHIP. It's a misplacement of time, place, form, and event, and ownership in the extreme.

It's interesting to look at it from the viewpoint of Axioms. These are Being Axioms and apply to all Beings. They also apply to the EB you're running on Excalibur. If an EB is NOT blowing, then YOU HAVEN'T GOT THE EXACT TRUTH ABOUT HIM.

We have discovered some interesting new data about these EBs below zero on the Scale of Emotions which includes the EBs who are being "solids."

The first important point is the ORGANIZATION of these EBs. If run properly - if you're approaching the Excalibur case properly - you'll find the thing is ORGANIZED. It has an ORGANIZATION to it. Now it's the CRAZIEST ORGANIZATION you may ever come across. The stable here datum is: "The point where a Being goes crazy (or criminal or out ethics) is where HE CAN NOT WORK or do a useful job." We find every Being is holding onto whatever sanity he has BY PERFORMING A DUTY. This is true whether he is a good guy, bad guy, an SP, or whatever. When you wake him up and get him talking, in communication, you find out he is performing a job or duty and is part of an organization with a specific purpose.

This guy needs to be ACKNOWLEDGED for that duty, no matter how crazy it is to you. To him it's a very serious one because if he COULDN'T DO THAT he would be or go TOTALLY insane.

He's been a spot on the bottom of a coffee cup. He says, "Well, somebody has to do it." They always think they are a REAL GOOD SPOT. It's an incredible thing. These guys are holding on to their sanity by doing something that they feel is useful. Whenever we acknowledge them for whatever they are doing, we get an as-isness. That's where you have to acknowledge VERY WELL when they give you a valence answer to the question "What are you?" "Hey, fantastic! You're being that!" "The whole time? Oh, wow!" They think they're performing a useful action, NO MATTER WHETHER THEY'RE DOING BAD OR GOOD. It's important to get THIS as-ised first so you can handle them. The Being reckons he's doing that job. If he DIDN'T believe that, if you invalidate him, if you totally not-is it or don't believe what he tells you, he goes nuts. To THAT point he'll be sane, but if not, he'll be insane.

tableau (noun) 1. a depiction of a scene usually presented on a stage by silent and frozen in place, motionless costumed participants. [short for tableau vivant, French for living picture]

Again, there IS an organization here and no matter how crazy it is, you must recognize and acknowledge it. Get the idea of some cups, saucers and things on a table. That might be a whole Excalibur setting or a tableau that you come across. You ask the question, "What are you?" and first thing you see is a table with candles, cups, saucers, etc. This turns out to be in an office and there's a desk there and so on. There is a chair waiting for somebody. Then you ask, "Is anyone being a spokesman for this group here?" You get this voice coming out of the candle flame, "I'm the flame of life!" You ask him: "OK, what's this all about? Any BPC here?" And the answer comes, "We're keeping the office ready." You know now they're all smashed down to little spots or something like that, but they have been keeping this office ready for eons and eons and eons and eons. There used to be a big Being there. They all got wiped out in one of those captures on the Whole Track or something like that. Then they got smashed and put together for millions of years and have been keeping the office ready ever since. Maybe all the office staff were herded into a room and then vaporized with the Laser guns. They tried to protect the boss' office; so they all grabbed part of the MEST as exterior Beings. Then they got smashed together, put down on some planet and blown-up. More incidents, more incidents, more incidents and NOW they're just there in the Excalibur case keeping the office. They would go totally crazy if they couldn't do that! It is a whole organization.

It doesn't have to go together THAT logically. You can hardly imagine how illogically it CAN go together. When you run a session you'll find out how illogical it is. This whole office may be under a button which is on a uniform of somebody in another service. There HE is with a spear and there's somebody else being the spear. And there's that guy in an airplane about 30,000 feet up and the guy with the spear sees him for the 1st time. He got shot by the plane and he's the "bad guy" (the one in the plane). That's how weird it can get.

That whole thing holding together all the way down is an ORG BOARD. If you just run a little piece of it, you're NOT HANDLING THIS WHOLE THING. This whole thing is an ORG BOARD all the way down from guys with the evil intentions at the top to the juniors at the bottom. For example, these Beings got blown up at the SAME TIME by a missile! It's a mutual thing; all were captured and put together or they got together later in that relationship because they sort of belonged together. They ARE organized in that RIGHT NOW and they are all doing THAT, frozen in time. They're FROZEN IN TIME. They're sitting there doing that whole org board. It doesn't produce anything. It just sits there. But each guy thinks he has a duty in it and it's a frozen duty as well. The whole thing is frozen. This guy is shooting those guys or this guy is resisting that guy. He's an officer and he has the spear and his button. There is a GOLD BUTTON just shining in the sun; it's the last thing he saw. Underneath the button he's got a group smashed with an Incident II. Maybe he found these other guys had a nice office and he really wanted to be an executive; so he's clutched it through all time to his breast using some kind of weird computation.

In other words, there is some kind of crazy illogical A=A=A=A=A holding this whole Clustered mass of EBs and Clusters and solids all together. You run it knowing that. You sort of "poke" into it at the level of the "flame on the candle" where you are not getting any as-is-ness. You can't get these guys to "break up" or get the little office mock up to dissolve or get them to realize who they are. Then you must suspect that SOMEBODY IS HOLDING THEM. Just somebody higher up the org board. That's one way to look at it. Just ask, "Is somebody holding you?"

Try to get a spokesman for the group. Get the spokesman talking and in communication. You try to get into communication and you are not getting any blowdown; you're not getting any reads. The EB IS telling the story, but nothing is happening. You get a "what?" and you get "who?" but it's "sticky." If you can't get an as-isness, there are several things that can be wrong:

1. The EB is NOT REALLY EXACTLY WHAT HE TELLS YOU HE IS.

It could be a picture you're talking to or it's only a via with another guy in the background or

2. You're talking to a Cluster instead of an individual.

3. Someone is holding him from a position higher on the "Org Board."

4. You're not handling the mutual incident yet.

The mutual incident occurred earlier so it's holding this EB together with the others. HE CAN'T OPEN UP AND LET GO OF THE REST.

5. It's also possible that he's being HELD BY SOMEBODY ELSE, even if it IS A CLUSTER.

The Cluster doesn't break and blow on finding the mutual incident because SOMEBODY ELSE IS HOLDING.

EXCALIBUR

RUNNING EXCALIBUR

31 MARCH 1991

The first thing is that it is organized. The second thing is: IF IT'S ORGANIZED, IT ALSO COMES OFF IN A CERTAIN SEQUENCE. A person's case is "stacked up" in a specific way. It's a very interesting thing. There is: One, the organization. The next is: It's organized AND it's STACKED UP in a certain way. That is the ORGANIZATION and SEQUENCE of the remaining case left for the Clear.

Do an Intake Interview and see what the person needs handled. We found out in the Intake Interview that there were certain things that read. You have some questions like: "What is your attention on?" "What is your attention avoiding?" "Do you have any body problems?" "Any mental problems?" "Vitamin deficiencies?" "Any Clearing that you have your attention on from the past?" You're just doing a typical Intake Interview. It will give reads on some stuff and not so much on others. You now put these into order of reads MEASURED UP EXACTLY ON THE NEEDLE AT THAT SENSITIVITY. THIS TELLS YOU HOW MUCH ACCESSIBLE CHARGE YOU HAVE ON EACH SUBJECT MENTIONED BY THE CLEAR ON EXCALIBUR. YOU NOTE DOWN EVERY SMALL FALL, FALL AND LONG FALL AT THAT SENSITIVITY PLUS THE EXACT AMOUNT OF EACH BLOWDOWN. THEN ADD UP ALL THE READS AND BLOWDOWNS. THEN PUT THE SUBJECTS AND CONDITIONS GIVEN BY THE CLEAR IN A SEQUENCE DETERMINED BY THE TOTAL NEEDLE AND RANGE ARM MOTION.

We should handle the MOST ACCESSIBLE CHARGE (MOST READING) FIRST. That's obvious: MOST READING MEANS MOST REAL MEANS MOST ACCESSIBLE CHARGE. No matter what you came out with as the top item - it was the top item. You start with that item or that subject. Say the guy says: "I have a pain in my hand. I have trouble with my hands." Or it could be "EBs with Out-Int" or "had a bad Clearing session with..." or "this is what never got handled" or "had too many..." or "when I go to sleep, I get voices in the head." You write down whatever that subject is. Even if it involves the naming of a solid or a thing that he thinks it could be. But it usually is a physical type of location, space, time, form, event type of thing or a bad condition. Whatever that is, it comes up at the Intake Interview. What we find on Excalibur is really not our own case, it is the cases of EBs and Clusters. That's the stuff that's preventing us from being fully aware. For instance, it's "voices in the head," which is quite common. The guy goes to sleep and hears "voices in the head." Everybody has had it a little bit and some people are troubled by it, so it's important. Let's say you start with that from the Excalibur Intake Interview. "First we are going to take up this best reading area, 'Voices in the head.' Any BTs or Clusters connected with that?" You start getting this whole bunch of EBs connected with that. You pull out the PLUG. The "plug" is a whole Org on it and there may be another one and another one. Each session you do ONE plug until you end up with an FRA (Floating Range Arm). You get a nice Floating RA, when you pull out ONE of these Orgs. You get another FRA when you've handled the subject or a "broader" FRA at the end of that subject when the Clear is no longer troubled by that thought.

This last FRA may be looked at as if it is the same one that you had in the LAST plug (and plus any copies and stuff). You get this FRA on the guy, but this time he goes..."That's TOTALLY GONE." "Voices in there?" "NOTHING there." It's totally gone, nothing there, NOTHING! We find out when you do the next item on the stack list it is "BTs with Out-Int." THAT one is really RIGHT THERE, ready to run. No matter what the guy says, it's THAT item. He comes in with the TA high, at 4.5, or he says, "I have a problem, I have an ARC Break..." It doesn't matter WHAT he says. It really doesn't matter. It IS the next plug to be run from the stack!

EXCALIBUR

STACK WORDING

Most people arrive at the beginning of Excalibur with several plugs in restimulation from different stacks, but the procedure remains the same. One does an Intake Interview and records all the reads and blowdowns on each item or area given by the Clear. That is very important. It has been determined that you don't just take what the Clear says in the Interview or what the Clearing Practitioner thinks it should be. You take the most reading item or area and you list them by order of biggest read first. You also get the Clear to make his own wording of the biggest reading item or area just before you take it up. It is very important that the wording he gives you reads VERY, VERY WELL and that it ALSO READS WHEN THE CLEARING PRACTITIONER SAYS IT.

Here's an example. Suppose a person is concerned on Excalibur with "Pictures coming at night." He says, "When I'm sleeping at night, I get horrible pictures." This reads. The Clearing Practitioner says, "Is that the stack?" and he says, "Yeah, yes, pictures coming at night." But when the Clearing Practitioner says: "OK, well we're going to handle "Pictures coming at night," there's a very tiny read or no read. Then the Clearing Practitioner should say: "Is there a better way you can state this so that it's worded as what it really, really means exactly TO YOU for the area we're handling here?" "How can you word it?" Clear says: "Well! Let's see, somnambulistic pictures, sleep dreams, dreams. The whole thing would be all connected with sleep. You know, I always wondered WHY a Being needs to sleep anyway. Sleep! Yeah, that's what it is - sleep!" Boy, THAT READS. Aha, just by itself. "Sleep!" There it is.

It could be a little more complicated wording. It could be "somnambulistic pictures." The point is, IT'S THE WORDING THAT THE CLEAR FEELS VGI'S ABOUT, IS INTERESTED IN RUNNING, AND IT READS WHEN THE CLEARING PRACTITIONER SAYS IT. "OK. We're going to handle it as "sleep." "Sleep!" He says it and, boy, it reads for him, too. If the area is not reading for the Clearing Practitioner, then he is going to be very hindered.

It must read well when the Clear says it, it must read well when the Clearing Practitioner says it, and it must be of interest to the Clear. It must have his good indicators on handling it. So these are the points on this assessment that we have found are VERY NECESSARY and you CAN "get by with it" just as people have "gotten by" with other ways of running Entity Clearing. But you can't get the complete EP of Excalibur without having the Preclear express it correctly or directly as the very interesting area that he wants to handle. You can "get by with it," but believe me, we have found out, if you do it that way, of just "getting by with it," YOU WILL EVENTUALLY HAVE PLUGS THAT ARE NOT HANDLED BECAUSE OF THAT MISWORDING. In other words, the guy says, "I have pictures when I go to bed." You might get one plug coming up on what is showing him the pictures at night, but later on in the level you will find out that he has OTHER plugs connected with "pictures in his dreams" and "sleep" and so on that did not come up when you handled that particular plug or what you "thought" was the stack.

It will only come up if he says the one that has really been interesting to him, not only in this lifetime or yesterday, but maybe for a whole series of lifetimes or a whole part of his track. Therefore, when he says, "SLEEP, yes, I've always wondered about that. Wow! Why does a Being need to sleep? Yeah, that's interesting," we've got his interest there. It reads like crazy and then you will find ALL THE PLUGS CONNECTED TO THAT STACK. That is a very important point on the assessment. It's not something that is vital, but let's put it this way: To do it standardly on the Excalibur Level, so that it will leave a minimum of BPC, it should be done this way.

So we do the Intake Interview. We get the areas the Clear is interested in. We add up the reads. We take the most reading area and ask the Clear, "How would you like to word this?" When it reads well for him, when it reads well for the Clearing Practitioner, when it has the interest of the Clear, and he has very good indicators about handling it, KNOWS that applies to him or is part of his case, it will run cleanly and produce excellent gain in the Clear. It will read like mad and you can start right off by saying: "Good. We're looking for the first plug here." Once you have established what this stack is, you get the 1st plug by asking: "ARE THERE ANY EB's OR CLUSTER's CONNECTED WITH (THE ITEM)?" Bang! You get a read right there. And you tell the Clear: "Yeah. Yeah. There is." And then the Clearing Practitioner starts right in with: "Ok. Location?" "EB or Cluster?" (See BRIEF SUMMARY OF PROCEDURE STEPS)

Handle that one plug and at the end of session he gets his F/N or F/Ning Range Arm. In the next session the Clearing Practitioner will ask: "Are there any BT's or Cluster's connected with (same stack)?" Bang! It reads; you handle another plug and so on until "Are there any EB's or Cluster's connected with (stack)?" gives no read. Ask the Clear: "Any more interest in this?" "No, I think it's all handled." Well, don't expect a big F/N right there because the next stack is probably ready to go.

Then say, "Well, the next assessed thing on here is Stomach pains, upset stomach or something like that. You were talking about it in the Intake Interview." The Clear says, "Yeah, that's right! Yeah!" The Clearing Practitioner asks, "How would you like to word that?" The Clear answers, "Yeah, well, yeah, let's see. Oh. Ah! Ha! Genetic Agony. Oh! Wow! Bing! There it is! It's not stomach pains exactly, it's Genetic Agony." The wording is important. Then the Clearing Practitioner has to check that it reads when the Clear first says it, that it reads for the Clearing Practitioner and that there is interest and VGIs.

EXCALIBUR

THE TWO LIABILITIES OF ENTITY CLEARING

15 NOVEMBER 1990

It's vital to not leave BPC when running Excalibur or you get this "build-up of charge." You don't get this build up of charge when you complete cycles of action. If you don't pull a whole plug, you get a build up of charge. You contact the top of the Org Board, work till it is all handled and get the F/Ning RA. But if you just cut the top off, just handle the top few guys, now you have an ORG WITHOUT A HEAD. It sort of destabilizes and goes into restim all over the Clear. You sort of have woken them up. You've taken off the SUPPRESS line or the HOLDING line on them, cut off the top of the Org. Now you go and run something else and cut off another little bit of it and so on. You now have this whole failed Entity Clearing case. You have people out there going: "Uuuwwwagh, I don't want Clearing anymore, uuuaagh...!" Their whole case is humming! They are leaderless. Erupting like a volcano.

In earlier Entity Clearing they didn't pull all these plugs out completely and keep the case in "PT." When you do pull out the whole thing, it sort of grows or expands. It gets bigger and bigger and bigger and you handle it in the room and you handle each thing and then you go on finding and cleaning the area. Then you have a few guys on the edges, sort of "waking up" in the other areas, but they are not in THIS area where the plug was. So you just put them back to sleep, after handling the "last call" guys and looking for copies.

But gradually - if you just keep looking at the thing - you will see the other guys on the edge of the next plug, not even waking up, but they are just sort of expanding!! But the space is clean now (or at least cleanER). It's more CLEAR; it's like water. It's like when you take a bowl of muddy water and pour clear water in it. You see suddenly clear water and then slowly the dark mud flows back in again. It's just like that. And it slowly goes muddy again. That's the viewpoint you get of these guys in the beginning of the case. Later the areas stay clear and clean.

There are really two liabilities in Entity Clearing (specifically Excalibur).

The first liability involves taking out the juniors and leaving the holders or seniors in the Plug. The symptoms of this are:

1. The Clear feels like he's in some sort of tight situation.

2. He's a bit "bothered by things."

3. Doesn't look like he's an Entity Clearing completion.

4. He's sort of worried about PTSness and sickness and illness.

5. Dramatizing.

6. Feeling an effort to keep his sanity.

7. Feels anxious.

8. Feels like the core of his case has not been reached.

They have put themselves at the mercy of the top holders of the Org Board. The Clear is now the one being held because he took away all the juniors. He (the Clear) took away the game - Now the game is "getting the Clear." He didn't give them a new game. The game is now "getting you." They will hold the Clear tighter and tighter.

The second liability involves taking the tops off the Org Boards and leaving the juniors. The symptoms of this are:

1. Beings (junior) float around the Clear more.

2. They cuddle around the Clear.

3. He feels like Entity Clearing is never-ending.

4. He feels like he has another Beginning Entity Clearing case.

These juniors are not very harmful or not very dangerous, but they are floating around the Clear. He experiences pressures here and there. It's like smoke from the fire curling around him.

The correct thing to do is to handle the entire plug bottom to top and then top to bottom so that all juniors and seniors (holders) are handled.

The technology of the STACKS and PLUGS is entirely correct and workable and it has proven so in many cases. It removes the charge in the Excalibur area very completely per session, and it has the advantage of not leaving any amounts of BPC around, unless there were, at that time, STILL OTHER UNHANDLED PLUGS from other stacks. If a case is smoothly introduced into the Excalibur level AND he or she removes one plug per session WITH knowing what stack it is connected to AND handle that plug AND then the next session the next plug until that stack is no longer reading AND then to the next one and so on, then there won't be any BPC building up. There just will be continuing wins and more awareness and reality improvement.

EXCALIBUR

IMPLANTERS

31 MARCH 1991

Sometimes in running Excalibur you will find Beings who are or were implanters or who worked for implanters. Since implanting is a perpetration of magnitude, these Being are "out of valence." They are in the valence of the original suppressive implanters and are, themselves, suppressive; therefore, they will need special handling as resistive cases before they can go free with Clearing. In fact, they will remain unclearable until their suppressiveness is handled and they are gotten into their own valence.

Being an implanter means the Being was a perpetrator of implants; therefore, he didn't receive an implant at the point on the track where he gave implants. He may have received implants at other times on the time track.

You also find combinations. These are Beings who got betrayed after they did a lot of the implants and then they got put through the implant themselves. This causes them to stick up and not release or clear. You get them through their Incident II and they sort of still have charge or something like that. They say, "I deserved it; I was betrayed." And they are sort of "mean" about it. You see missed withhold phenomena or a dirty needle, perhaps a small Rock Slam. You can then ask, "Were you working for the other side?" The Being says, "You know, I was a pilot in the incident. I dropped the bomb..." You handle this as a perpetration and get all the data and go earlier similar. You can also ask, "How many times did you do that?" and "How long have been working for the implanter?" "How many Beings have you implanted or monitored?"

A lot of times the Being takes no responsibility and says, "I was just doing my job." Everybody has a job! Implant Beings - just a job! So you have to get this, get it all off, and you still don't get any needle action because you're not getting ALL of it. This Being is totally overwhelmed and in the valence of an SP. So you have to ask, "Who or What gave you an unsolvable problem?" If he gives you a generality like "the implanters of Zorenga," do a represent list which in this case would be, "Who or what represents the implanters of Zorenga?" One could also use the other S & D questions given in Class IV materials.

RESISTIVENESS

If you encounter resistiveness you could be talking to an implanter (in PT, Inc II or I or before I) or somebody fooled or implanted into working for them.

The first thing you want to do is get all perpetrations off by asking questions such as:

- How long have you been working for implanters? (order of magnitude)

- How many Beings have you implanted or monitored? (order of magnitude)

Then spot the betrayal (D/L if needed) when he was put through implant incident. Run through earliest beginning of betrayal. Spot any EBs/Clusters stuck on him.

If the above jams then check:

1. Are you PTS to a major implanter or somebody else?

2. Have you been threatened?

3. Will you be punished? Get all data.

4. Do you have an evil or destructive purpose?

An evil purpose can be date/located. If it doesn't blow on D/L, it is preceded by out-ruds.

Finally, get his purpose before he joined the implanters. Rehab it. Then check for an Earlier Universe and/or "Who are you?" question if needed.

EXCALIBUR

PRE-INCIDENT ONE PLUGS

27 NOVEMBER 1990

A Pre-Incident I plug is a plug that was made specifically to do certain hats on a little org board and "frozen in time" and then attached to a Being at some point on his track, before Incident I or even up into Incident II. It is composed entirely of "frozen" Beings. They are stuck and have been doing the same thing since before Incident I.

As you get to the early track areas you find that the normal 'Incident I' and 'Earlier Universe' do not quite blow a Pre-I Being because there is something else there. There is some other BPC and that some other BPC happens to be this vast area of time before Incident I. Incident I occurred at "start of track" for the big Beings. Yes it does. A big Being doesn't have "time" particularly before Incident I. So some of these plugs, these Pre-Incident I plugs, date from 4 to 7 1/2, or even more, quadrillions of years ago. But that's the usual range. If you just indicate "4 to 7 quadrillion" you will get most of them really cooking and coming alive and saying: "Oh, yeah, That was me! Oh yeah! Oh Wow!"

This is also an "Earlier Similar" to Incident II because there was a capture from an Earlier Universe! In other words, those Beings were "whooshed up" with something very much like a vacuum cleaner and caught. It's like the function of a vacuum cleaner but to "whoosh up" Beings rather than dirt. They were captured and put through these experiments and made into plugs. And this resulted in some "standard plugs" and some "experimental" ones.

Now you say: "Wow - that's interesting. That's not covered anywhere." No it isn't, but you will find it is covered on every one of your Entity Clearing cases and that's why it is presented here. It is the final barrier to finding out "why you lost your abilities" and "how this tricky game of implanting was made up." It is the last barrier. After this, when these are all handled, you can confidently say that the person will obtain the EP of Excalibur. He will also understand everything concerning his own universe and what happened in it. He will be able then to go and handle other things in the "2nd" and "3rd" universes and other universes. And there will be other levels. But right now we're interested in: "What's in the Pre-I plug?"

Let me give you the definitions first so you can follow what I'm talking about. These words are made up to be familiar to people on this planet at this time, so that Clearing Practitioners can work with them. You can also groove-in the various EBs and Clusters with this description. You can intend this as a "vacuum cleaner," or you can intend it as a thing to "Whoosh-up" or "pull-in" or to trap Beings and they will "get it" and they will answer: "Oh yeah... that... I have that!"

It is just a communication device to make it easier for us to C/S and to write notes in the folder. It's a shorthand for us, just like the rest of the language we use in the Technology of Clearing, abbreviations and so on, generic terms, such as PTS, ARC Break and so on. What are some of these terms? Well, let us start off with PLUG. A Plug is an organized group of EBs and Clusters which were put together by either impact, injury, etc. OR the intention of an implanter to operate as a sort of combined unit or an org board. It has holders at the top and sort of junior Beings at the bottom who are just being something to do with its function, being even mass or weight in a bag, or being a cell or whatever.

The STACK is the way this is "stacked up" on the Clear's case, and that means it has to do with the Clear. He has been having trouble with this area or has wondered about it. Therefore, to him it appears like a "stack of charge." But it could consist of SEVERAL PLUGS, just as you can have several weights, like those little pieces of metal on a scale-balance. You have 5 little gram weights on a scale-balance. That would be five PLUGS and the STACK would be: "what the Clear thinks is holding him down." As he removes each one of these plugs, the scale-balance comes up. It comes up! He feels better.

On these Pre-I plugs you are going to find the following things: One is this "vacuum-cleaner." We call it a "Hoover" and the incident is called "Hoovering." It is the first or earliest, usually. It is the earliest incident on these Pre-I plug Beings. They were "hoovered" out of an Earlier Universe or "vacuumed." The actual instrument used was itself composed of EBs and Clusters and it looks very similar to one of these outside speakers, or amplifying speakers, which you see attached to poles around a crowd in rock concerts or in public lectures.

It is the big bell, four-sided bell coming out with the round ball at the back to contain the speaker amplifier. It looks not unlike that or similar to it. It is composed of EBs and Clusters with a nice "black hole" Cluster in the middle of the bell inside. It has this little "golden ball" inside of that which was very attractive and kept putting out a message of "Help me play this big game, I don't really understand it" or similar flows to pull the Being in. It is very aesthetic. The black hole is a Cluster that is pretending to be a negative energy. It's doing an "implosion" all the time. It's pulling in, pulling in, pulling in. It's pulling in all things, energies, Beings, and so on. It's like a giant "black hole star" that suctions in all kinds of mass, energy, Beings.

But it's really a Cluster which has been programmed to do this. Everything goes black around it as it gets sucked in there. It just turns it black because it's now going negative from what it was doing, and you find it as the "attraction point" of the tractor area which is holding a lot of these plugs together. You find a "black hole" in it. It may occur first to your vision like a little spot, but if it is down on the bottom of a plug, it could be holding the whole thing together in a sort of "maintained force" area. It is not the holder of the plug. It's not likely that it is the top of the org board. It could be just put in there to give cohesion to the org. They don't usually have much to do with the suppression of the plug. They are just sort of automatically charged to just "pull things in," like glue, except on a suction basis. The "black hole" was in the middle of this "Hoover" and it pulled the Beings in to this little "golden attention unit" point which is giving out the nice aesthetic message. When they were captured, they would then be taken to the "experimental area." And this is "earlier similar" to Incident II, 4 to 7 quadrillion years ago.

These guys were "hoovered up" out of their own Universe and they were usually kept in a thing called an "Electrosphere." An "Electrosphere" is a large sphere which has a magnetic charge on the inside, an electromagnetic charge on the inside, so the Being cannot touch the wall. He feels repelled by this. But he also doesn't join up with the other Beings inside. So, you eventually, essentially, get a thing like one of these giant "gum ball machines," if you picture it that way. It's a lot of Beings inside of a giant sphere and they can't quite get out and they can't move either because of how they're pressing up against each other. They are held this way. It's kept at a low temperature (cold). That's the "Electrosphere." And then they are put through various "processes" to make them "amenable" to being Clusters and EBs in PLUGS.

We don't put them in order because each one may have had a different experimental track. These are the things which may have hung the guy up. The "Hoover" is the earliest one. And then the "Electrosphere." The Beings got stored in the "Electrosphere." Then they could be put in something we call the "Spin-dryer." The "Spin-dryer" is like a spinning machine to dry your clothes out or a centrifuge. The "Spin-dryer" was to impact the Being with other Beings, make him more than one and to spin him with this tiny amount of mass that he had been while being attached to another, mocking up something or the other Being mocking up something. A tiny amount of mass, but you spin it now at a high rate of speed in this "Spin-dryer" and it makes them feel very heavy.

He was then given the idea of "mass" and that he could then BE MASS. He was ordered to "Be heavy," "Be mass." Some of these guys think that they are as heavy as lead and some of them are as heavy only as water and some of them are as heavy only as a light gas. But there are different degrees of "heaviness" to these little "jelly bean" Beings. That's how I call the ones that are there in the plug just to be "mocking up mass" and to hold the Being down, and keep him from having advanced abilities. These "jelly beans" in the plug are usually grouped together in a BAG or CONTAINER and they just have MASS.

They have the function of being mass. These are what I call "jelly bean Beings" because they look like the jelly beans in the jar you see in a candy stores. There they are. Separate. Just sort of "being in a container" and "being massy." Usually you can run them easily by waking them up and running them back through the Spin-dryer, the electrosphere and the hoover. And they go: Pfffst!.... "Free! Wow! Yeah!" these guys have been that way ever since 4 to 7 1/2 quadrillion years ago. They were not affected by anything else in the universe. That's what they've been and they are frozen in time just like the "Enchanted Moors" in the song.

Some of them were chosen to be more "exciting" parts of the plug. Some of them would emit flashes of light or flash some kind of "message" to the Being or into the cells or something. These were put on to a thing called the "Sun-Lamp." It's just a filament, a glowing filament. Just like what you'll find in a lamp or in an arc-light. they were forced onto this electronically. Once they had a little mass they could get sent through a wire or along a wire or channel.

They were put onto the filament and told to duplicate that. "Be it." "Be a light." "Be a light." We found a lot of these guys that were put on the "Sun-Lamp" being stars and so on. Apparently, the Being would "think" he is exterior, but was only looking into an area composed of EBs being little "stars." He thought he was exterior in the universe, but he wasn't. He was just being in one of these plug areas, where the guys have run through the "Sun-Lamp" and sparkled, they gave off a little light and twinkled like stars, but they are just EBs.

Every EB usually has another one stuck to him. He has to spot the one stuck to him in his valence so that he can loosen them up. Once you've got the guy single, he's pretty well handled.

In actual fact, the term EBs and Clusters is a little misleading because every EB, until he is free, is really a Cluster. Other Beings may have been put in his valence and added to him one at a time during these experiments. The guy who is in charge is the one you are addressing. The others are in his valence because he isn't in the valence of another. Otherwise he would be one of the guys "down the line" and you'd be talking to those other guys. You ask the one you are talking with to look for people in his valence who are attached to him!

I've told you about the "jelly beans." That's the way these Beings are when they appear, just sitting in a bag. What's this bag? That's a "Bag-man." These are the Beings that were pressed down very flat and made to assume the shape of a bag or a holder of these "jelly beans." You find the "Bag-men" are LAYERED. They're exactly like a clear plastic garbage bag or a black plastic garbage bag, depending on what way they were made; they can be transparent, invisible or dark. But they look exactly like a big plastic bag and they contain all these jelly beans. And why don't these jelly beans get away? There are layers, first of all, of the guys. Each "Bag-man" is a separate individual, but he is layered as a Cluster. Each layer is separate but there are about 6, 7 or 8 bags put around these jelly beans. There are 6, 7, or 8 bags around and each layer of that bag is an individual. They are clustered together as a bag. You have to separate the layers out and then you can Clear them.

You might find it hard to handle these guys because you might find that they are securely tied at the top. Like with a garbage bag, you might tie the top of it to stop it from spilling its contents. This "tie" you will find is a tiny beautiful little thing such as a string or a chain. That's why we call it a "String Cluster." And those are Beings who are linked one to another like a piece of chain or holding together just like people in a chain, one holding the other's leg and the other holding the other's legs and so on in a chain. All these Beings were forced to do this in an experiment and made into a Cluster like a chain. We call it a "String-Cluster" or "Chain-Cluster." They are tied around the top of the bag.

When you get to the "String-Cluster" you handle it as a Cluster of individual Beings who were put through this incident to make them that way in Pre-Incident I, 4 to 7 1/2 quadrillion years ago. Run the incident... Bam, bam, bam! Before that they were in another experiment. Before that in the Spin-dryer and the electrosphere and they were maybe hoovered up. Pum! And they all go! And then the bag opens up, and the Beings come out or start to wake up "Oh!" "Ah!" Then you take the bag-men. You say, "Ok. Outer-layer bag-man, "You've got that incident where you were made into a bag?" "OK!" "Go back there." "You were in the... electrosphere... Hoover..." He goes...! And then the others, until all these guys wake up inside the bag, the jelly beans, and they just go: "Wow - Wow!" "We are free!" You have to wake them up sometimes and you sort of put a little command there: "Ok guys, you wake up, and wake up the other guys now." And you tell them: "Ok. The game is over. The game is over."

When you take "String-Clusters" from around the neck of the bag-men and you take the layered bag-men off, the jelly beans will all be able to run back through the electrosphere containment after they run the centrifugal machine, the "Spin-dryer," and then back to the "Hoover" and their capture, and go free on "earlier universe." And they'll probably go off as an "assembly line." You just start it going on one end and wake them up and intend, "Wake up your buddy, and tell them about this and this and this and go back and find an Earlier Universe 4 to 7 quadrillion years ago." And just keep your attention on them doing that and you find they go off like a cloud of smoke. You can get rid of thousands and thousands of these guys - totally individual, and totally free. You also indicate to them: "Look for other guys stuck to you during these experiments, and when you were captured." Have them locate that and they will all go off and no problem. They will all leave because they are single, individual, free Beings.

Some of them may "stick to the wall." You have them find the guys stuck to them in their valence that they didn't spot. You find a guy who needs an orientation. You find them needing some BPC handled from a game or from earlier universe. I found that most of these are pretty smart Beings. They were just captured and then "frozen" since Pre-I. They just immediately "wake up" at the same ability or awareness level they were at before they were captured. They go - Pum! - immediately back to that area! I think they've learned not to get trapped again. I hope they have anyway by listening to the others getting handled. They leave quickly. That gives you an idea of something that can be there.

PRE I FREEING PROCEDURE

This procedure is for cords, flat sheets, jelly beans, etc.

0.Ask, "Were you involved in the Pre Inc I experiments from 4 to 7 to 10 quadrillion years ago?" (should read)

1.Intend it. Flash picture. Ask, "Were you ever in a spin dryer?" They re-experience it.

2.Ask, "Were you stored in a big thing (electrosphere)?" "Re-experience being held in this big thing (electrosphere)."

3Ask, "Were you Hoovered?" "Were you sucked up by this thing?" "Re-experience being sucked up."

4.Intend, "Find the first sensation you had about evil." "Feeling that something was going to go wrong." "Find the first moment of evil." Get them to re-experience this.

5.Ask, "What were you doing just prior to the first sensation?" Get data.

6. Intend, "Free to go."

Note - If you get a bag, undo the cord.

MONITORS

21 NOVEMBER 1990

Monitors are an important element in Excalibur. A Monitor is a single Being, cluster or a whole plug that was set up to monitor a Being's activities, to make him behave in a certain way or believe in a certain way.

A monitor is usually attached near the top or at the top of a plug (org board). It can quite often be a cluster. It can also be an EB with a couple more EBs stuck to him in his valence. It's usually a pretty powerful guy. It is usually monitoring one way or two ways, and sometimes three ways.

When we say "one-way monitor" we mean the monitor is taking whatever occurs in a person's universe and relaying it somewhere else, usually to the original implanters who made the Pre-Incident I plugs.

An important point to realize is that all implanters are still around. So they can still get data from these monitors. Now you're starting to see the game. We can get data from them. They can get data from us and relay it to the implanters. The "two-way monitor" is sending information about you to some technician in the implanter organization.

When you do a little bit of Clearing on any "two-way monitor," he moves kindly off to the side or he blows off or he gives you the sight of the implanter organization. You find you now have a direct telepathic sight line to the implanter org. You can pick up whatever they are doing at the other end.

If it is a two-way monitor you will find out that you now are directly connected to the guys who were trying to make you PTS by activating your plugs. You can now Clear them if you want or you can simply say "bug off."

That's a two-way monitor. It is open at both ends. You can find out what's happening at the other end and they can find out what's happening on your end.

Realizing that the game is over, these monitors will now cooperate with you fully.

Once you handle the monitor you've got control of the line. Do what you want with it.

"STATIC" BEINGS

24 FEBRUARY 1990

STATIC (noun) 1. that which has no motion, no wavelength, no position in space and no measurable quantity, but possesses the qualities of life. (This comes from Axiom 1 which states: "Life is basically a static." Another way to say this is: "Life is fundamentally a quality of existence which is non-material.")

These are big Beings who rarely get trapped by anything but may have popped up in the session because of all the Beings they see "going free." They think "I want to find out how it's done" or they pretend to be in the plug so they can "experience" Clearing. The difference is these guys are fully aware of the game between the Implanters and those who want to free Beings (implanting vs freedom) but have not taken part in either side. They think they are very pan-determined, "know best" and think, "It has nothing to do with me." They have been meddling around in the affairs of Beings in the MEST Universe, but they don't have any tech; they just meddle. So that's their attitude.

Realize a Static Being has out-ruds and doesn't have any real tech, although he may tell you all kinds of stuff like "I'm a powerful Being - I controlled whole civilizations here on Earth as a God," etc.

HANDLING:

1. FIND THE OUT-RUDS AND HANDLE E/S TO BIG F/N Cog. (Usually it's a M/W/H or W/Hs or perpetrations or evaluation.)

2. R-factor: "This is the technology of Clearing. You see it works. (a) Do you want to help? or (b) Do you want to return to static state?" Rights of a Being can be given too. The Valence Process (What/Who?) doesn't usually produce any result because a Static Being will always answer "me" without any resolution.

3. Handle by: (a) Giving him a job that he likes, usually in line with his former interest that produced the perpetrations; but now he can use tech to handle. (b) or say, "Good, your session is over - YOU CAN NOW -RETURN TO STATIC STATE."

25 NOVEMBER 1990

MOCO is short for "MOCOVP." "MOCOVP" means "Moment Of Creation Of View Point." This is an abbreviation of the command used to handle these entities. The command is "Return to your moment of creation of viewpoint" or simply "Return to your moment of creation."

MOCO'S are created entities. They can be found anywhere in a Plug.

These are Beings who have a limited ability because they were CREATED by a "big Being" on a postulate to DO or BE only certain things or only ONE THING. They are a "created viewpoint."

They have a track extending from their "moment of creation" to PT. They are different than clusters, but they can be in a group.

Basically a Static Being or Big Being has split off some of his theta and endowed it with a separate personality. MOCO'S want to come back and be the big Being again. But they are independent while they are out there; therefore, they have the Rights of a Being. So to tell them to go back to a creator may be a violation of their rights. If their creator is not a good Being, they may not want to join or go back to him or her. Tell them, "You've got four choices:

1. Return to your moment of creation."

2. Go free."

3. Wait at Static Point, outside the game."

4. Help me. Do something useful in the game."

The MOCO could have been created in an Earlier Universe game to "run" a mock-up for a "big Being" and then got neglected, dumped or CAPTURED by an implanter to use in a PLUG ON THE BIG BEING who made him . This gives the Clear a "strange" AFFINITY for what's in the PLUG as it's really a PART OF HIMSELF.

MEST BEINGS

F BEINGS (F=PHI=MEST) OR "TEENIE-WEENIES"

25 NOVEMBER 1990

These are smaller ("junior sized") Beings that were dumped "into" or became part of the MEST universe from Earlier Universe Games. They were not captured. They were dumped.

They are "resistive" because they don't like "big Beings" at all. Even the master implanters couldn't use them in Pre-Incident I plugs, hardly at all, because they refuse to DO or BE anything else or change in anyway for a "big Being."

These Beings are so ARC Broken that they are unwilling to play any game, even being implanted. That's one reason implanters had to capture Beings who were "more moldable" and still would "go for" another "game."

They have an ARC BREAK OF LONG DURATION from being "DUMPED into the MEST UNIVERSE" that may go back much earlier than Incident I.

After being dumped they then "joined" up with other F Beings in a sort of "social democracy" of their own as "LOSERS" and adopted a set of rules to "take care of MEST." They don't EVER listen to any big Being because that's who dumped them.

You might find one or two of these F Beings at the bottom of a plug. After all other Beings have blown, -these F Beings still will be there.

HANDLING:

1) Check on the meter "DUMPED INTO THE MEST UNIVERSE?"

(check for read)

2)Run the ARC Break LD by asking:

"Do you have an ARC Break of Long Duration?" (Check for a read)

"How long have you had it? (Be prepared for a very large number.)

Indicate by saying, "I'd like to indicate charge has been bypassed because you've had this ARC Break for so long."

If not gone, do an L1 ARC Break Assessment on the actual ARC Break, whatever they said it was. Assess and indicate the BPC. It's usually "REJECTED AFFINITY" from the big Being who dumped them.

3)If they don't release or Clear on ARC Break LD, use "Rights of a Being," Valence Process

(What/Who?), or Orientation. They will release or Clear.

Now do the MOCO step.

RESISTIVENESS IN EXCALIBUR

2 APRIL 1993

When you have a BT who doesn't want Clearing, he is usually in an implanter valence. He was overwhelmed by the implanters and identified with them. (See "winning valence" and the PTS/SP tech.)

Occasionally, you will get in touch with a real and active implanter on some far-away planet who sits at his screen and keeps control of a monitor on you. He usually is the top holder of the plug. In the beginning days of Excalibur one was as well getting in touch with the chief associates of Xenu who where mentioned in "Revolt in the Stars," or even Xenu himself. Those were really battles. Nowadays such contacts have become extremely rare and, if so, light.

Whether you have a BT or an implanter-being on your lines, the handling is the same. They both were overwhelmed and implanted; they both wish to be able to use their Rights of a Thetan, yet they are so degraded that they don't know how to do so. Their desire to be free is your greatest asset as without that they'd never be interested in Clearing.

Their perpetration track may be just Incident II; it may go down to Incident I and pre-I as well. It's different for each one; you'll have to find out individually.

The reason you cannot Clear their motivators as you could do with other BTs is that they are in an out-of-valence agreement with the implanters. They think it's all right to commit the perpetrations they have been committing. There is no awareness of perpetrations. As long as he hasn't confronted his perpetrations he will not be able to run his motivators, because of this agreement with the implanters. He will even tell you that he didn't have Incident II or Incident I or any implant himself. He is not aware of it at all.

The whole point in pulling his perpetrations and withholds is to make him free and ready to run his motivators. Don't get into extensive cleaning up his perpetrations as a matter of principle or because "he deserves it." The EP of the action is a freed being, not a completed and extensive handling of perpetrations. Never concentrate on the wrongness in a being; concentrate on his rightnesses.

You start out by getting data. What did he actually do in Incident II? In Incident I? Before that? How was he recruited? How was he pulled into Xenu's game?

When he refuses to be Cleared because he is afraid of punishment, you give him a thorough explanation of the state of Xenu's game as it stands in present time. As well, you will have to handle all sorts of gossip and false ideas he has heard about L. Ron Hubbard and against Clearing itself. They have been told that Clearing is our form of implanting and similar things. So give them a total education and be persistent.

When the BT refuses to be Cleared because he feels ever so right about all his perpetrations, you run "What makes it all right to work for Xenu?" or "What's good about implanting people?" As well, you can run "What are you trying to prevent?" or "What are you trying to obtain?" All these are done repetitive until flat and the cognition that it actually isn't all right.

The background of this procedure is contained in the bulletin called CYCLE OF A PERPETRATION. He accepted an uninspected datum, a false premise, when he was recruited or implanted and that makes it all right to commit perpetrations. He thinks it is all right because he believes he is working on correct data; in fact, he is working on the basis of a lie. After running the above processes for a while, he will come up with the false datum. You then find out who gave him that datum and under what circumstances and procedure. Now you have him on the motivator flow and you can run the incident which overwhelmed him. Having done so, you ask him what he thought was true before the implant or incident. Get his own truth. This will blow him out of his agreement with Xenu as it takes him down to the earliest postulate with regard to Xenu's game and to the time before that. He will have a cognition on his own responsibility and then he'll be free again. When you now have him take another look at his perpetrations, he will run them very easily as his viewpoint has changed.

Please note that the basic-basic with SP-BTs usually is the first moment he met Xenu, admired him and accepted his postulates and accepted them along with the particles they are attached to. When you ask him what he was doing before that, he'll usually tell you that he was bored, didn't know what exactly to do or had a failure with his own propositions. He admired Xenu for being big, important and powerful; he thought he wasn't worth much (a typical mechanism of suppression) so he joined Xenu's group.

THE THREE UNIVERSES

There are three universes:

1. Your universe (U1)

2. The universe of others (U2)

3. The physical universe or MEST universe (U3)

The MEST universe is made up of your universe plus the universe of others. This gives us the

There is a definite relationship between each of these three universes. If you don't put anything there in your universe, it will not happen in the physical universe. If you want to put something in someone else's universe, you will need to put it there by means of intention. If you don't think it and intend it, it won't happen and the other person won't pick it up.

There is a continuous interaction of action, thought, intention and postulate going on between your own universe, another person's universe and occurrences in the physical universe. The physical universe does not think, it does not intend and it does not postulate. A live Being intends and postulates. Your universe is the universe in which you think. It is your mental matter, energy, time and space and it co-exists with the physical universe and the universe of every other person. Your universe is infinite and you are capable of putting into it anything you desire. The physical universe is patterned on the thoughts, intentions and postulates contained within your universe and other's universes. You will notice that any object that you have in the room with you right now has not moved since it was put in that position. The only way it can be moved is by you putting it in another position in your universe, intending it to be there and then picking it up and putting it in that position.

What does this tell you? It tells you that unless you think, intend and create a mock-up within your own universe, nothing will happen within the physical universe. If you are in a position of being in charge of other people, unless you put it in your universe first, they will not pick it up and duplicate it in their universe and be able to carry out your intentions. If you are confused in your universe, others around you are likely to get confused also.

MOCK-UP: A mental model, construction or picture created by a Being. A mock-up is distinct from a facsimile in that it is created volitionally, does not necessarily copy any previous experience, and is under the control of the Being.

When a person creates an intention within his own universe, it will always come about. When an intention does not manifest within the physical universe or within another person's universe, there are three reasons why it has not happened:

1. He did not really intend it.

2.He bought someone else's intention.

3.He has counter-intentions within his own reactive mind or from Entities and Clusters, which keyed-in and countered your own intentions.

In fact, we have found that for a Clear all case and manifestations of case come from Entities, Clusters and other more complex telepathic and sympathetic interactions with other Beings who are still very aberrated. It can finally be stated without a doubt that a Clear has no case of his own.

You should become aware of picking up other people's thoughts or ideas and going along with them. These are intentions which they have intended within their own universe. Because it co-exists with yours, you pick it up and go into agreement with it. Something can only happen for you when you go into agreement and you also intend it.

There is an interesting relationship between your universe and the physical universe. You can have only those things in the physical universe that you create in your universe. They will not be there for you in the physical universe unless you can first mock them up in your own universe and hold them there. The reasons why a person has difficulty creating and holding something within his own universe are:

1.He lacks knowledge of how to handle his own universe and how to mock up something.

2.He has a reactive mind and/or Entities and Clusters which come into restimulation on that particular subject causing counter-intentions which interfere with his own intentions and create difficulty within the physical universe.

THE THREE UNIVERSES

8 APRIL 1993

There are three universes:

1. Your universe (U1)

2. The universe of others (U2)

3. The physical universe or MEST universe (U3)

The MEST universe is made up of your universe plus the universe of others. This gives us the equation:

U1 + U2 = U3

Close your eyes and have a look around. This is your universe (U1). Now have another person close his eyes and look around. This is the universe of another and is an example of the universe of others (U2). With your eyes open, look around. This is the physical universe which is composed of the universe of others plus your universe (U3).

EXCALIBUR PROCEDURE

1 April 1993

0.The stack wording must be found Listing and Nulling style and be an LFBD item. It helps if one encourages the Clear to formulate it as a beingness, because after all he is out of valence to the beings (entities) the stack is composed of. This means that their beingnesses combine and add up to the beingness of the Clear. By asking for the stack wording, one will find the Clear "gyrating" through the BTs and Clusters relevant to the stack and giving answers which are true for the individuals only. Only when the common denominator postulate of the stack has been found, will you get your BD F/N VGIs. This is because the Clear and Entities have now come to an agreement with each other. That is why you get an F/N here. Truth on the aberration has been established. Note that this process may take well over an hour. It takes excellent CEs and the ability to know the EP one is going for and to recognize it when it occurs.

1.You have a read on the question: "Are there BTs and Clusters connected with (stack wording)?"

a)Locate the B/C in your space, in relation to your body.

b)Describe it with as much detail as you can perceive. (Size, color, density, form, etc.)

c)Analyze it. (BT or Cluster? Several BTs? Several Clusters? BTs and Clusters? - Note all reads as you check these questions.)

d)Put a comm line across to it, wake it up if needed. Use "Hellos and Oks." When you get fear flows: "Xenu's game is over. I'm here to free you." (If this reads, repeat until flat.)

2.Now ask him the following questions and get all answers from him as he sees it from his viewpoint:

a)"What are you?" (This is the beingness question. Note it on the worksheet as "What?" The question must read! Example: an antenna - F.)

b) "As an antenna, what are you trying to attain?" (Intentions)

c)"As an antenna, what are you trying to prevent?"

d)"As an antenna, what did you attain?" (Results)

e)"As an antenna, what did you prevent?"

Run b and c alternately to a flat point, then continue with d and e in the same way.

f)"As an antenna, when did you get connect to me?"

This satisfies the Clears curiosity about the BT or Cluster. It is not needed for the case handling of the B/C. Handle only if it reads well.

The steps above get the rudiments in between the BT/Cluster and prepare the Solo Clearing Practitioner and the actual processing, i.e., the running of the incident when the B/C became what it is now.

3. Ask "How did you become a (beingness from 2a)?"

4. Running the incident:

a)Run this incident from beginning to end; do a loose D/L if he doesn't come up with time and place himself. This is for his and your orientation only, not to handle his charge on the incident to EP. Don't do it down to the second or fraction of an inch. Starting Excalibur, you will find that it's mostly Incident II which made them become what they are now; later on you will find other incidents, quite often in the pre-Incident I area.

In running the incident do it by the simplest incident running: go through it from beginning to end, get all the details, find the earlier beginning. Run it again and again until he has confronted all parts of the incident.

You must get the moment of and how he became what he is now. Don't go for the general incident only. Get the moment he went into agreement with an other-determined postulate and became what he is now. This usually occurred at the very end of the incident. Remember - this the question you were asking in 3 above and you want it answered.

b)In step a above you ran the incident which turned the entity into what it is. Before that there were other incidents down to Incident I and the pre-I incidents. They all have in common a mass that was attached to the being - similar to Incident I, yes, but never quite that way. You have to get it exactly from the BT.

Make sure you have him run his Incident II and Incident I from his own angle of experience. Do not run him through the platens as you did on OT III. Get it from him - as if you had never heard it before.

Do not shy away from having him run his 36 days. You may do this now on Excalibur. You couldn't do it on OT III as it would have cause a tremendous cross-restimulation and a freewheel. Now, on Excalibur, you are dealing with BTs whose charge is very different for each one - which is why they don't all respond simultaneously as they would have done on OT III, with all of them having identical incidents. On Excalibur the Incident II and Incident I stories are all different for each BT; whereas, on OT III they were pretty much the same.

On Incident I, get him to tell you how exactly it ran for him - you will find very interesting details which add to the information contained in the platens, and as well, variations from the platens. Each BT has a different story to tell on Excalibur. Listen to it. Make sure you put his attention on the "loud snaps" and what exactly happened there and what masses were put on him and how many and get the first moment the first mass was attached to him. This will disconnect the mass.

You proceed in the same way for each earlier Incident I, get when a mass was attached to him without his knowing it.

The result of this step is: BT free of all masses which were attached to him and which he was identified with and no masses left in his space which he didn't create himself. Usually you will get an F/N at this point. (It may be your first F/N on this particular BT. That's fine - you have come to the basic on the chain only now.

c)Now ask him: "Who are you?" If he didn't F/N on the step before, he will F/N now. If he did F/N already, ask it anyway. It will widen the F/N. He will say something like "I'm me," or "I'm a free being." He may want to go free at this point. Give him the Rights of a Thetan and he will go free.

d)If there is no F/N at this point, there must still be some mass sticking to him which he hasn't noticed yet. Have him look around his space and find it. It will be the earliest one, the basic-basic.

Not all of these masses have necessarily been created by an implant. Quite often you find them to be remnants of old games which he thought, at the time, were fun. So he didn't care particularly about the bits which were stuck to him after the game was finished. One very important basic-basic on BTs with perpetrations on Incident II and I is the first time he got in touch with Xenu, admired him, was addressed by him with intention and a postulate and went into agreement with him. You must get him to detect the particles (dimension points) which got stuck to him. These particles are the carriers of Xenu's postulates. Have him find the first moment when the first particle hit him and it will disconnect. Have him then tell all these particles to return to their moment of creation or go free; they will dissolve.

Now go back to 4c above. It will F/N now. You must get an F/N on the "Who?" question or else 5 below will not run.

5.Run his Earlier Universes to get him into a self-determined purpose. If he didn't go free on 4c above, it is usually because he feels disoriented and doesn't quite know what to do. Rehab: "Is there an Earlier Universe when you were happy with your own game?" Or simply ask: Is there a time when you were just happily being yourself?" As soon as he has contacted such a time, you give him a good acknowledgement on it and he will go free with a nice F/N. This is the second important F/N on this rundown.

End Phenomenon for each BT:

There are three EPs to go for, as long as the BT doesn't go free earlier:

1.Beingness-EP: Knows he is himself. No other BTs or masses are stuck to him anymore.

2.Doingness-EP: Knows now what he is going to do, by his self-determinism.

3.Havingness-EP: Returns to a universe of his choice, or goes into a no-game state, which is static. His power of choice has been rehabilitated.

End Phenomenon for the Clear:

No more attention on the BT or from the BT. The BT has left the universe of the Clear.

Make sure you don't keep him tied to yourself by your attention on him. If this happens, first allow him to acknowledge you (he may wish to do that). Then give him a good acknowledgement and he will go free and leave your space.

FINDING AND RUNNING A PLUG

1.When the BT you are Clearing doesn't answer any more, although your comm has actually been quite good so far, you know that there is a holder interfering. Find out from the BT if his comm line to you is being suppressed by another BT. This is the holder. You can find him by asking the BT where he is or, if the BTs origination line to you is cut fully, you can spot and follow the intention line, which goes into the BT, up to its source point.

2.Clear the holder as much as you can. If you do not reach the EP for him because he, in his turn, is getting suppressed now, find the BT holding him and Clear that one. Carry on in this fashion until you have reached the top holder at the top the hierarchy of BTs. You can recognize him by the simple fact that you can Clear him all the way to a complete freeing. So, apparently, no one was holding him. By finding him you have reached the top of the plug. You now know the size of the plug. It won't grow any longer as from now on you are going to Clear the chain of holders downward, taking each BT to the EP of "free"/F/N.

3.After having blown the BT at the bottom of the chain, you may find out additionally if that BT has suppressed or controlled anything in the body. You continue down the hierarchy until the whole plug has gone completely free.

4.Clean-up step: You have now freed the BTs the plug consisted of by disconnecting them from the masses which they had unknowingly identified with. The BTs have gone now, yet the masses (particles) may still be floating about in your space. These particles were created by another when he put energy and intention on the BT. They were created by another, in his universe, and then sent over to the BT, to the BTs universe, as a carrier of the sender's message.

Indicators for such masses: The F/N at the end of the plug handling not as loose and wide as it usually is for you. The space feels somehow "gooey." There is a slight pressure on the body in general (not on a particular location in or on the body).

To clean up the left-over particles you do a group Clearing process with the following steps:

A.CE 0 on all the loose particles. Once contact has been established you'll get small ticks which will widen to small falls. Just do a good long CE 0 until you are well in touch.

B."Who are you?" You may get answers or only reads or both. Repeat until flat or F/N.

C.Give them the Rights of a Thetan. (and repeat until flat or F/N). The Rights of a Thetan are:

A. The right to self-determinism.

B. The right to leave a game (so as to play another one or to go into a no-game state, which is the static state).

D."Return to your moment of creation!" Repeat until flat or F/N.

E."Go free!" Repeat till flat or F/N.

F."You may help in some other game!" Repeat until flat or F/N.

Note that some may wish to help you. You will get a feeling of inflow. Do not resist that flow as resisting it would cause the pressure phenomena mentioned above.

6."You may return to static state!" Repeat until flat or F/N.

Go over this sequence again and again until all steps F/N or until you perceive that it is all gone and you have a smooth wide F/N.

Note: This is group Clearing. Do not wait for individual answers or concentrate on individuals. Just repeat the command and give good acknowledgements. The charge at this point is so light that they blow even on the recognition of their existence. Do not use effort as that would tend to glue them to you.

5.To end the session, do a wide CE 0 taking in all of the case and give the following instruction:

"You will all get Cleared and be free, each one when it is their turn. For now, we'll end the session. Tone 40: END OF SESSION!" This may give you reads. Repeat the instruction a few times. The reads will flatten out and there will be an F/N.

RESISTIVENESS IN EXCALIBUR

When you have a BT who doesn't want Clearing, he is usually in an implanter valence. He was overwhelmed by the implanters and identified with them. (See "winning valence" and the PTS/SP tech.)

Occasionally, you will get in touch with a real and active implanter on some far-away planet who sits at his screen and keeps control of a monitor on you. He usually is the top holder of the plug. In the beginning days of Excalibur one was as well getting in touch with the chief associates of Xenu who where mentioned in "Revolt in the Stars," or even Xenu himself. Those were really battles. Nowadays such contacts have become extremely rare and, if so, light.

Whether you have a BT or an implanter-being on your lines, the handling is the same. They both were overwhelmed and implanted; they both wish to be able to use their Rights of a Thetan, yet they are so degraded that they don't know how to do so. Their desire to be free is your greatest asset as without that they'd never be interested in Clearing.

Their perpetration track may be just Incident II; it may go down to Incident I and pre-I as well. It's different for each one; you'll have to find out individually.

The reason you cannot Clear their motivators as you could do with other BTs is that they are in an out-of-valence agreement with the implanters. They think it's all right to commit the perpetrations they have been committing. There is no awareness of perpetrations. As long as he hasn't confronted his perpetrations he will not be able to run his motivators, because of this agreement with the implanters. He will even tell you that he didn't have Incident II or Incident I or any implant himself. He is not aware of it at all.

The whole point in pulling his perpetrations and withholds is to make him free and ready to run his motivators. Don't get into extensive cleaning up his perpetrations as a matter of principle or because "he deserves it." The EP of the action is a freed being, not a completed and extensive handling of perpetrations. Never concentrate on the wrongness in a being; concentrate on his rightnesses.

You start out by getting data. What did he actually do in Incident II? In Incident I? Before that? How was he recruited? How was he pulled into Xenu's game?

When he refuses to be Cleared because he is afraid of punishment, you give him a thorough explanation of the state of Xenu's game as it stands in present time. As well, you will have to handle all sorts of gossip and false ideas he has heard about L. Ron Hubbard and against Clearing itself. They have been told that Clearing is our form of implanting and similar things. So give them a total education and be persistent.

When the BT refuses to be Cleared because he feels ever so right about all his perpetrations, you run "What makes it all right to work for Xenu?" or "What's good about implanting people?" As well, you can run "What are you trying to prevent?" or "What are you trying to obtain?" All these are done repetitive until flat and the cognition that it actually isn't all right.

The background of this procedure is contained in the bulletin called CYCLE OF A PERPETRATION. He accepted an uninspected datum, a false premise, when he was recruited or implanted and that makes it all right to commit perpetrations. He thinks it is all right because he believes he is working on correct data; in fact, he is working on the basis of a lie. After running the above processes for a while, he will come up with the false datum. You then find out who gave him that datum and under what circumstances and procedure. Now you have him on the motivator flow and you can run the incident which overwhelmed him. Having done so, you ask him what he thought was true before the implant or incident. Get his own truth. This will blow him out of his agreement with Xenu as it takes him down to the earliest postulate with regard to Xenu's game and to the time before that. He will have a cognition on his own responsibility and then he'll be free again. When you now have him take another look at his perpetrations, he will run them very easily as his viewpoint has changed.

Please note that the basic-basic with SP-BTs usually is the first moment he met Xenu, admired him and accepted his postulates and accepted them along with the particles they are attached to. When you ask him what he was doing before that, he'll usually tell you that he was bored, didn't know what exactly to do or had a failure with his own propositions. He admired Xenu for being big, important and powerful; he thought he wasn't worth much (a typical mechanism of suppression) so he joined Xenu's group.

EXCALIBUR

REPAIR ASSESSMENT

21 FEBRUARY 1990

1. Have you lost interest?

2. Has a Being been overlooked?

3. Has a monitor been reactivated?

4. Did you leave a plug unhandled?

5. Has a stack been overrun?

6. Was it too incredible to believe?

7. Did you neglect part of an org board?

8. Are others stuck to you in your valence?

9. Has part of a plug been left unhandled?

10. Have you handled only the top holders?

11. Is there a holder?

12. Is a being holding another or others?

13. Wrong stack item?

14. Wrong wording?

15. Is an EB hiding in another dimension?

Excalibur Repair Assessment

3 August 1990

For use if an Excalibur session bogs or there are unidentified problems during Excalibur. Either solo or audited. Assessed M3 if in a bogged session, or M5 for C/S use.

Excalibur is not a rote procedure. The handlings given are only guidelines.

Always be sure to know whose charge it is. Another's? Entity's? Cluster's? Own?

1. There is a holder?

Handle the holder. Go back and handle the rest later.

2. Is a cluster, not a single being?

Find the clustering incident. When? Type? Get it broken up.

3. Needs 'Who are you'?

Get the answer to 'Who are you?'. Might be a list. Should give a 'myself' type of answer.

4. Needs a new purpose?

Give it a new purpose, either of it's own or chosen by you.

5. Needs PT orientation?

Orient it about this universe, current game, implanters, auditing, etc.

6. Needs rights of a thetan?

Right to leave a game, right to one's own sanity.

7. Other entities stuck to it?

Have it spot the other entities, probably in it's own valence.

8. Incident II?

- 75 mill, other planet/citizen/loyal officer/implanter, capture, transport, volcano, explosion, ribbon, implant up to pilot saying he is mocking it up. Inc I on single beings remaining.

9. Incident I?

- 4 Quad, loud snap, waves of light, chariot, cherub blows horn, snaps, blackness dumped.

10. Pre-I?

Capture in other universe by Hoover, then electrosphere, spin drier.

11. Coltus?

Before 75 mill up to PT. Loyal officers in plug, experiments, LRH third party etc.

12. Stuck in earlier universe?

Spot purpose in the earlier universe.

13. Copies?

Spot or indicate copies.

14. Another universe?

Have the being spot where it is. Continue as usual.

15. Another dimension?

Have the being spot where it is. Continue as usual.

16. Invisible?

Have the being spot where it is. Continue as usual.

17. Entities in your valence?

Spot the entities. Have them find out who they are.

18. Monitor?

One-, 2-, or 3-way. Monitor sphere? Somebody being sphere? Usually handle operators as implanters. Follow the lines.

_____

19. Connection to someone else?

Entity transferred from another, or 3 way monitor.

20. Connection to somewhere else?

Look for monitor lines. Where do they lead. Implanters?

21. The entity is an implanter?

Get overts off. How many implanted? For how long? What was purpose before? PTS to Xenu? Betrayed? If necessary: Who would I have to be to audit you?

22. Is not what it pretends?

Find out what it really is.

23. Talking to a picture?

Find out who is putting it there.

24. Talking to a via?

Find out who is putting it there, or who is using it.

25. Wasn't woken up?

Wake up! (Tone 40) I am here to free you! The game is over!

26. Sleeping?

Wake up! (Tone 40) I am here to free you! The game is over!

27. Dead?

Wake up! What are you? etc.

28. Don't want auditing?

Who would I have to be to audit you?

29. ARC broken?

Assess ARC break. ARCU, CDEINR. Long duration?

30. Failed purpose?

Which purpose? Indicate BPC.

31. Entities being the scenery?

Ask what they are and have them run their incidents.

32. Entities filling up space?

Ask what they are and have them run their incidents.

33. Entities being ideas?

Ask what they are and have them run their incidents.

34. Entities being lines?

Entity or cluster? Incident?

35. Stuck flow?

Which flow? What went on for too long? When was it ok?

_____

36. Misunderstoods on games?

Clear up the MUs. Orientation.

_____

37. Misunderstoods on axioms?

Clear up what isn't understood. R-factor.

38. Weird experimental track?

Run whatever the incidents are.

_____

39. Waiting for something?

For what? Run stuck incident. Give orientation.

_____

40. Waiting for someone else?

Who? Run stuck incident. Give orientation.

41. Evil purpose?

What is it? When did it start? Purpose before? Overts? PTS?

42. Suppressive entity?

Try implanter handling first. If very stuck run PrPr4: Tell me a source/Tell me a no source, PrPr5: What is/What isn't, PrPr6: Tell me an existing condition/How have you handled it.

43. Copied other's cognitions?

Spot it. Who are you?

44. It is a created viewpoint?

Mine? Xenu's? Another's? Muled? Mine/X's? Another's/X's? If only MOCO: Run inc of being in plug, Return to your moment of creation, go free, wait at static point, or help me.

45. It is a mule?

Mine/Xenu's? Another's/X's? Mine/Another's? Run inc of being put in plug, being stuck together. When split up give each their 4 choices.

46. It is a creation?

Get a C/S for handling it.

47. An effort to withdraw?

Whose charge is it? Put the button in. Continue.

48. An effort to stop?

49. An effort to hurry?

_____

50. An effort to suppress?

_____

51. And effort to invalidate?

_____

52. Protest against the incident?

_____

53. An effort to hold on?

_____

54. ARC break about the incident?

Assess ARC break: ARCU, CDEINR.

55. PTP about the incident?

Find out what it is.

_____

56. The incident is the motivator for an overt?

Get what the overt is.

57. Too late on the chain?

Run the earlier incidents.

58. Entities not blowing completely?

Find out if they have others stuck to them in their valence, or if they need orientation, new purpose, rights of a thetan, etc.

59. Entities getting stuck in walls?

Get them to spot if they have others in their valence stuck to them. Or if they think that they are MEST.

60. A fog of unhandled beings?

Run Inc I on all partially blown single beings until space is clean.

61. A new OTIII case?

Run Inc I on all partially blown single beings until space is clean.

62. Not getting top holders?

Spot beings holding the pOT, unhandled implanters, SPs etc. Handle with regular procedure, particularly implanter handling. Make sure to get all the way to the top.

63. Being held by suppressives?

Spot beings holding the pOT, unhandled implanters, SPs etc. Handle with regular procedure, particularly implanter handling. Power processes if necessary. Make sure to get all the way to the top.

64. Not interested in stack item?

Indicate it won't be run. Re-do DofP or find the next most interesting area and get it worded.

65. Stack item incorrectly worded?

Get the correct wording. Continue with the new wording.

66. Attention on something else?

Get a reading wording on what it is. Use as stack item. Go back and check the previous stack item when done with the new one.

67. Attention on many different things?

Find a plug on what the pOT's attention is currently on. Handle one plug per session until it is possible to finish one stack item at a time.

68. Attention on out-ruds with family or friends?

Thetans connected between ____ and me? Handle as plugs.

69. Interference in PT?

Handle as implanters.

70. Sudden headaches?

Check for Black NOTs interference. Handle as implanters. If not, check for entities being or being connected with headaches.

71. Feel third-partied?

Check for Coltus plugs, or 3-way monitors.

72. Disagreements with LRH?

Check for Coltus plugs.

73. Xenu is a good guy?

Coltus? 3-way monitors? Mules?

74. Don't want to go up the bridge?

To C/S for programming.

75. Can't control plugs?

To C/S for programming.

76. Can't close the door?

To C/S for programming.

77. Stopped auditing after getting cognitions?

Entities being cognitions?

78. No more entities?

To C/S.

79. Body is transparent?

To C/S.

80. Something else wrong?

Handle if possible. Otherwise to C/S.

81. Is nothing wrong?

Indicate BPC. Continue Excalibur.

CONFIDENTIAL

EXCALIBUR

CHECKSHEET

22 JUNE 1990

PREREQUISITE:

1. QUALIFIED SOLO CLEARING PRACTITIONER COURSE
2. CLASS IV OR ADVANCED SOLO CLEARING PRACTITIONER COURSE
3. BEGINNING ENTITY CLEARING CHECKSHEET
4. ADVANCED ENTITY CLEARING CHECKSHEET

ORGANIZATION:_____

STUDENT'S NAME:_____

DATE STARTED:_____DATE COMPLETED:_____

REQUIREMENTS:

The checksheet is one time through materials and practical.

As this course contains all the materials with which you will need to do solo Clearing through EXCALIBUR, it is extremely important, that you really get this tech under your belt. You will need to know all these materials and procedures stone cold as there will not be any time in session to look up something you might have forgotten. Even if you run this level with only 98% of the full understanding, you will still be able to get some very big results, and it might even satisfy you. BUT, unless you handle ALL with the entire scope of the tech, you will not be able to do the next level PHOENIX and will have to go back and complete EXCALIBUR anyway. So it is by far thesmartest to study it well the first time and fully get all the different techniques available here. When you have the tech 100%, you will have an easy ride and a lot of fun and new abilities and positive gains too.

LENGTH OF COURSE:

This is VERY individual. It depends on how well you use your study tech. If you have experience with not fully grasping stuff you study, and not being able to handle yourself rather quickly, it is suggested that you do a restudy of the Study Course materials. When you know the study tech and use it fully, you will be able to complete it in 6 -10 days full time.

ATTESTATION:

With these materials you will be able to free any Being or Cluster of Beings. Some people are not interested in this as they use control of other beings to further their own game. We know who they are, and they have other people working for them who have already attempted to get hold of these materials as they see them as a threat to their own purposes. It is therefore vitally important that these materials do not fall in the wrong hands. You are therefore asked to sign the attestation below that you fully understand this and will not give the materials to any unauthorized person.

NAME:_____DATE:_____

PREREQUISITE

As this course contains all the materials with which you have to audit yourself through EXCALIBUR, it is extremely important, that you really get this tech under your belt. You will need to know all these materials and procedures stone cold as there will not be any time in session to look up something you might have forgotten. Even if you audit this level with only 98% of the full understanding, you will still be able to get some very big results, and it might even satisfy you. BUT, unless you handle ALL with the entire scope of the tech, you will not be able to do the next level PHOENIX and will have to go back and complete EXCALIBUR anyway. So it is by far the smartest to study it well the first time and fully get all the different techniques available here. When you have the tech 100%, you will have an easy ride and a lot of fun and new abilities and positive gains too.

LENGTH OF COURSE

This is VERY individual. It depends on how well you use your study tech. If you have experience with not fully grasping stuff you study, and not being able to handle yourself rather quickly, it is suggested that you do a restudy of the Student Hat materials. When you know the study tech and use it fully, you will be able to complete it in 6 - 10 days full time.

ATTESTATION

With these materials you will be able to free any single being. Some people are not interested in this as they use control of other beings to further their own game. We know who they are, and they have other people working for them who have already attempted to get hold of these materials as they see them as a threat to their own purposes. It is therefore vitally important that these materials do not fall in the wrong hands. You will therefore be asked to sign an attestation that you fully understand this and will not give the materials to anyone. So please see the supervisor and get the form to sign.

SECTION 1

In all auditing there are two factors: "WHAT to audit" and "HOW to audit". This section deals with "HOW to audit" and is of course geared toward solo auditing. It contains most of what you have studied before on the Solo Course, PLUS additional data such as LISTING & NULLING and other data regarding upper levels. Do the drills well so you can really use this stuff in your soloauditing!

This section is the filmmanuscript by Ron for the film "Revolt in the Stars". This manuscript appeared the time in 1979. The rights to produce the film have been sold several times to different filmproducers and other people whe bought the rights and then didn't produce the film. It is not known who has the rights at this moment and if any honest measures have been taken to actually produce the film. It has also been transcribed into a novel. This manuscript gives all the details about Inc II. The entire planning and carrying out of this incredible mass murder, and how it was finally stopped. Each scene is described in detail. If you have not read a filmscript before, then this will also be interesting for you from a filmtech viewpoint, as each scene is described minutely, and therefore gives the "picture" very solidly.
STUDY: Read the filmscript (or the novel manus) for "Revolt in the Stars"

SECTION 5

Section 5, 6 and 7 contains basic tech which has been called different things such as NOTs (in The Church), AL 5, AA 5 and Excalibur. They are NOT THE SAME!! You will be studying selected materials from AL 5 and AA 5. These combined is the BASIC tech of Excalibur. NOTs materials are not available and are not to be used. They were incomplete and had even faults in them that caused people to go on and on, and never complete and not achieving the results promoted by the Church. You will be using the materials in these sections in session. You need to know these procedures stonecold when you soloaudit. All the drills must be done to full certainty that you master the doingness.

This section contains data about what is going on in this part of the universe and also what happened to The Church. Some of these issues are in original form in LRH's handwriting at Flag in the vaults of "The Bank", a building being part of Cof S properties there. A lot has been written in this world about the reasons and whys for suppression on this planet, and many writers have found a lot of true data. Some have also correct answers and some have not. The facts that remains is that there IS a lot of suppression going on and the result is that not all people can enjoy their native freedom and abilities. This section gives facts about the games going on. We have collected some of these books, and in case you are interested in further study, you can ask your supervisor for these. Recommended are books like "Alternative III", "None Dare Call It Conspiracy", "The New Unhappy Lords". There is also a taped lecture called "Sector 9 in PT" which you are welcome to listen to. It is about 2 hours long and there are some lecture graphs to go with it. There is a little addition called "The Ripper". Another interesting tape is "Illuminati". Also W. Broward's unpublished notes for a book called "The Invisible War -WWIII".

TECH BRIEFING No 1

Frankfurt, 12th October 1984

by Capt. Bill Robertson

It is important to understand what LRH did during the last 20 to 30 years. His main job was to develop, research and publish the technology. The other things he did, like starting the orgs and doing management and so on, were secondary. That was done as a necessary thing to protect the technology, and to keep it expanding. But he has stated many times, that when ever things got tough in the world, or if there was a big attack on Scientology, then he would always go back and finish the technical research for the next level, so that this new or later developments that he would find and put out, would keep people moving up the bridge, and they would there+ore be better able to confront and handle whatever attacks were being made against Scientology.

The last time that I have seen LRH personally, which was in the year 1980, in the fall, he had just completed the final technical development and research on the presentation of standard tech by film, by pictures, so it can never be altered by anyone in the future.

It is very interesting to note, that those films are no longer available in the church. We are trying to get copies, but the excuses they give are, that the films show people who are declared, and that they are scratched, and some are damaged, and that "we don't use them anymore".

Now, anyone of you that knows the HCOPL 17Jun70 "Technical Degrades", will realize that this is the technical proof that LRH could not be behind RTC, because he would never have allowed anything that he developed to give exactly how the TRs and metering should be used, not to be used anymore. We are just talking about the technical side this time. In the years, that I worked with Ron, he explained to me a few times, what his main job in the research was. It was basically, he said, like going into a dark room, opening a door into a dark room, and trying to find a door at the other end. Without a light or a guidebook. He said the only thing he would go in with would be an E-Meter. As he would bump into things, or run into difficulties in the "room" (or level) that he was researching, he would then have to find out, how he could get back to the door and start again with the E-Meter. And finally after exploring the various ways to get through this area, he would finally find the door at the other side, and could go into the next level.

"Now, he said, the bulletins you see written, are the exact path through the room, there are many other things that could be written, but they are not the direct path through the room."

In the C/Sing of a level we find certain remedies and corrections, which help people get back to that path through the room, if they go off into the wrong direction. These are the correction programs and so on. You see that in various things like the green form, the resistive case bulletins, and the things handling various types of things on the GF40 and other list actions, and so on. These exact things and some of the remedies, and some of the OT Correction handlings, when a case caves in, these are the various ways to get back on to that path.

Now we have found out, that after 1980, when Ron did go off the lines (because he disappeared from the place where he was working at that time in California), that certain technical bulletins have appeared, but I happen to know, and so do many other technical terminals, that in the materials parts are written by LRH. Parts of them. Other parts are not written by him, these are parts of his research, they come from his research notes of the past, which he did not want to put into the levels, because they are not the direct path to the door. Alright, this is the reason, that in the Free Zone technical centers there are many Solo Nots Completions, I think there are 20 to 30 right now, and so far in the church there is only one or maybe a few more, but they are only promoting, that there is one.

We cannot analyze the church s technology anymore by the policy of Scientology, we can only analyze it by the emotion of greed in asking people "pay,pay,pay" for more, to not go through the room, but wander around in it for d while until all the money is gone.

I hope you understand this. That describes to you, what Ron went through to do the research to give you the bridge.

His work day on the Flag Ship, when I was there for 6 to 7 years, that I observed him working was: every day in his whole schedule was approximately eight hours a day devoted to tech and eight hours devoted to handle management, admin and ships affairs. I never saw him work less than 16 hours a day in that six years, never saw him get a pay-check for the week of more than 80 dollars. I do know, that when we were ready to come to America and go off the ship, that if Ron had wanted to take all of the Sea Org reserve monies, which was at that time about a hundred million dollars (for the Sea Org, for the churches for making buildings and continuing expansion, that is what it is for), that if he wanted to go and disappear with all the money, that we would have said, "OK, fantastic, he has done a fantastic job". But he didn't do that. He went to America and carried on finishing the NOTs research and OT level research, and doing the films, the technical standard films, knowing already, that there were many, shall we say people, who in the United States were waiting to attack him and his family. This does not sound like the actions of a man who is operating on a basis of just money.

The lies spread about LRH are proportional to the overts, that those people, who spread the lies, have done against him and his family.

The people, who transmit or relay the lies especially amongst Scientologists, are merely people who probably have not made the place on the grade chart, where they are supposed to be. Because anyone who has gains from Scientology and real wins or abilities, knows Ron s purpose on this planet.

His first duty was to help thetans to rehabilitate and go back to their native state, and that it was in fact a way to become self determined and pan-determined and at cause again.

Even the last possibility of a person remaining at effect was covered by LRH in the tech, where he said on the Class 8 course, "the last thing you will have to run out, the last thing, is your track of auditing, because, you realize, that from the definition of a thetan at cause, that whenever he is sitting in an auditing chair, no matter how good the auditing is by the auditor s code, which puts the PC at cause over his case, and helps him, he was still scheduled by the auditor, he was told to pick up the cans, told to start, and to end, and he was under control, though it is a control that is leading him in the direction of getting him free", and Ron said, even that little bit of the person at effect has to be audited.

So, auditing is not a trap, Scientology is not a trap, but it can be used as a trap, if the purpose of LRH is not followed.

Now to that point I ask you if there are any questions about LRH or anything I have said, because now I tell you next about what we do in Frankfurt.

Question from a person at the event: "There are many bulletins after 1980 like data about checking grades processes for reads and that sort of thing, now how do we know where ends the data?"

I covered this point with several tech people in England and America between 1980 and 1982, and it was decided at that point {it is arbitrary of course, but it is a decision and it works), that we take the end of 1980, because that is the last time, we can be sure, that LRH was there and receiving any technical bulletins back and forth for OK, and his approval, and all these auditors that have audited some 20 years, and when done correctly, have great results with all the tech from before that, so there seems to be no reason to actually change it.

Ron did that continuously, as he would get feed-back. You see, the Flagship was an experimental place also. Many of us that were on board, were asked, if we would volunteer to take part in research sessions.

I might add to that point about the research, I told you before that Ron didn't write the bulletins immediately after getting through the dark room himself, but would make sure that cases of all types, difficult cases or easy cases, or people that have gone up the bridge this way and that way, whatever, that old timers, new people, could all receive the same results by getting PCs and auditors to do it on the Flag Ship. So there was continuously, as they came out, there was always the way, that every single person could go up the most, perhaps shall we say, not particularly the easiest, but the most efficient way. It does not mean fast, it means the person would be able to confront and handle that, which came next and go up the bridge.

Now, on the Class 8 Course he made his point, that it was all conforming to the basics of Scientology, so the only changes you would see in the bulletin after that was, if there was some pretty large percentage of when they put the tech in the field, that some problems arose, and it wasn't found on the Flag Ship, then there would be a slight revision or something.

Now you have to realize, that since 1980 there has been another motive in this, and that is to keep the person paying for his auditing.

As Ron said on the Class 8 Course, there are a million ways to do it wrong and there s only one way to do it right, and you can make a million dollars doing a million wrong things and finally come back to the right one, or you could put them through the correct way the first time, and then you can make a lot of OTs.

Ron s purpose in the Tech was to get the thetans up to OT, and we can not see this purpose in the bulletins, that have come up since 1980.

The actual additions of various rundowns, and things people must do, some of these are merely, shall we say, special handlings. They are not major actions. That means, that not every one on the planet would need a R/D concerning how to better fix an automobile, or how to handle their 2nd dynamic or something like that, or how to handle their problems with Ethics. Some people would need that, but the others would handle that on their regular bridge.

So we have a path, that is very well researched, and very well experimented and very well taped out, which does result in increased abilities and causativeness, and I have compared the case levels of people, who have done the bridge before 1980, and the ones who have done it since with the church, and there is a great difference. It is a difference, which can be measured in terms of dynamic responsibility, the responsibility in life over the various dynamics, and in the reality and communications levels of the people involved. I think, you may yourself know of some of these examples.

I have found people in the church doing NOTs auditing, which is now the top level of the released bridge, who were afraid to communicate, afraid to find out everything, they kept very low profiles, they were very effect. This did not seem to me that they were able to cause much effects.

Another thing that people may be interested in, and this is to finish the answer on the question, is what Ron predicted for Scientology on the PDC tapes of 1952.

The PDC Course was an actual OT-Course, it dealt with the thetan s ability to mock up things and to make things of his universe and to reduce his being effect of the MEST-Universe (matter, energy, space, time}.

He said in those lectures, that Scientology had a short space on earth to flourish and prosper between the time that man had gained control over his environment and his machines, where they released him for a little more free time to do spiritual things, and before those men with evil purposes would use those machines to enslave you.

This apparently has been a repeated history on the track, we see it happening in the world. He also said, that we must get the tech fully developed and in use, before the "shades of night" fall, and he referred to that as the "Shades of Night" coming down or keeping all ideas and new developments a secret, so they could be used to control people rather than let them gain more freedom.

You see that today with all these mysterious secrets, that are going behind the scenes, and you never get to hear about what is really developed. All the ideas for a New Civilization for instance are kept from you, or not let be developed.

I think that fully answers, why we put that arbitrary date in there.

I also might mention one other thing about the Grade chart, since you are all on it, we are all on it.

The grade chart represents the majority of cases at the time it was developed, how they can progress. However, as a C/S you do not always go by only that, because as you know not every one is average. You must do the basics of Scientology with each case on an individual basis, this is the only way you can handle resistive cases or someone that comes, and has just recently arrived, and is already a Natural Clear, and has no drugs or medicine in this life time.

So each is different, there are the extremes, and there is the middle, but no case is exactly like the others, as no thetan is exactly like the others. In fact you will find, that, if every case was the same, all their cognitions and all their answers to the questions on the processes would be the same, but they are not.

The questions are the right ones, the answers are the individual ones from that thetan to get him through that particular ability level. And if there is something necessary to be done to get him to that "going up the bridge in the middle", then we must choose the exact thing that will get him there without any problems so he has no difficulty in continuing, which brings me to the reason why I am giving you this tech briefing.

We will be starting now full time 1st or 2nd week in December the moving of all cases in the Frankfurt area that can exchange right up the bridge.

Now you ask "why here in Frankfurt ? Because you are supposed to be in Spain?" and all that stuff. The same thing we are doing in Spain, but I do not speak Spanish and the cases in Spain are all at a level, where they can be handled very easily by a lower class auditor, many have not had much auditing at all. I have programmed or C/Sed for each of the people there. I have trained up a Spanish speaking auditor on the DCSI, so we can which ever ones that are clear going on up.

But also there is a matter of exchange, and there is not much exchange in Spain, the people there do not have any extra money to do anything under the socialist government, and to tell you the truth, I couldn't survive on just doing tech in Spain. In fact I was not even going to do any tech anywhere, I was depending on David Mayo's and the other AACs to expand quickly, but something a bit upsetting to me has occurred in the last 4-5 months, that is despite all our advices to them on policy.

Remember what I have told you about policy. It is the 3 dynamic tech, which protects the technology. The AACs have actually stated in writing to me, that they do not intend to use Ethics, they do not intend to use Policy. I happen to know that persons, that all people will not go up the bridge without those things in use.

If you understand the mechanics of PTSness, when that occurs, it must be handled. It s Ethics, it s an Ethics handling. If you don't have that, it s a roller coaster.

Policy and Tech complement each other. But that is not the most upsetting thing, that was the first one.

The second upsetting thing was, it is allowed and even promoted by Div 6s and Div 2s, - I do not accuse any tech people for this, because I am sure they do the right things with their tech-, but the administrative people and publics of those AACs are permitting extreme criticism of LRH and repeating of the enemy s stories, that are appearing in the newspapers and were started by known SPs, such as Nibs Hubbard-deWolfe, who was Ron s antagonistic son from a former marriage.

They have thought it OK to keep promoting the words of Flynn, who is dedicated to destroy the church, Ron de Wolfe, who is dedicated to destroy LRH and Scientology, and I have that in writing from Ron de Wolfe himself. In a letter he stated, he has been trying to take apart Scientology brick by brick for 30 years, and yet it is OK, it s allowed to say, "I think, this is right, LRH was in black magic, and he was taking drugs, and he was doing all this, and he ripped off all this money" and they are allowed to say that. They even write that down in their magazines and stuff like this.

Now I ask you: If this is permitted and they send a person up the bridge, in the future when he goes out and says "I am a Scientologist", (by the way, they also send out letters stating "We do not say we are Scientologists anymore". I have a letter saying that from Harvey Haber from the AAC, who is the DIV6 of David Mayo s.), when they say that and go out and say, "Well, I've had my auditing" to someone they are in communication with for business or a job or just contacts, these people could just turn around and say, "Well, that s very funny, because 5 years ago you told me, this guy who founded all this stuff was crazy, black magic, and he was this and that". To put it mildly and in the most lightly way, they are destroying their own future. It is like a man climbing a rope ladder up the side of a cliff and saying, "Man, the guy who built this ladder, he didn't know what the hell he was doing. The things that hold the ropes are all weak, and it s going to fall in any minute." Well, why the hell is he climbing the ladder? Why doesn't he just stay down there? It is not understandable.

This is why I realized, that they needed a C/S in Frankfurt, I realized also, that many people have been shall we say, a little bit messed about by the old church. I realize, that people are willing to exchange to have all this handled and go up the bridge standardly. I can also read and speak some German, although I must translate some of it. Also Frankfurt and Germany are a very key part in the 4th dynamic, which I also take responsibility in my universe for handling , so that we do not become slaves. So for all of these reasons I decided to actually start some very standard going up the bridge for people from any level, because at first it was going to be OT levels, but there are not enough people just there yet. But we will get them all the way up and then carry them up to the very standard OT abilities.

As I say, I can recommend any technical person, that anyone wants to ask on the planet, that is doing standardly the tech. David Mayo does very standard tech, and so do all the people he trained.

All I am stating here is that the environment, which they are in, tends to make them PTS. Eventually it will stop or hinder or cause them to drop the cause levels or the ability levels they have obtained.

So it is not the fault of the auditor, it is the fault that they do not have a 3rd dynamic tech in the org, and the Ethics around it to protect it.

Now perhaps you have seen the order that Dorothee wrote with my approval about the drug-scene over at the "Avalon". This is an example of a gradient of ethics being applied and the correct policy being used to handle PTSs and giving them a chance to get back on the standard line. Do you know, that there is no AAC in the world, that I have seen an issue from, that there is no tech delivery center in the world, that I have seen an issue from, to handle an ethics situation. They can't confront it. I could handle it as a C/S with them. Because they have been hit by incorrect ethics by RTC they backed off from using it totally.

To stop using it totally is like a man, who has a wreck with his car, and he never wants to drive again, or like a person, who has had a bad auditing session and they are very hard to get back into session. There are handlings for this.

LRH said, the tech could be used to suppress people, Policy can be used, Ethics can be used with Policy, but when used correctly, no problems, you go right up the bridge. Actually I wrote the chapter about Ethics in "What is scientology". I wrote that chapter and sent it to LRH, and he personally OKed it. What was written was put in the book. And in that it states, that Ethics is a technology, and it covers conditions, it covers getting off overts, and sec checks, and covers the PTS/SP phenomena, and boards of investigation and other justice actions.

These are all technical tools, and when used correctly and for the right thing, without the way RTC is using them, saying "I don't like these findings for the Comm Ev, you find it this way, now go back and do it the way I say", which is totally against policy written on it.

You think, why can't people see this. The Convening Authority or authority who calls the committee cannot influence the committee, he can only accept the findings or reject them, he can not tell them what they should be. It is an evaluation, and in fact you don't even need a committee if you don't follow that policy.

And now you find in the writing of RTC itself, they even say "we now declare people at the finger". They even say this themselves, no comm ev. They will even tell (we have witnessed statements), they will even tell the person "you can have a committee, but you will loose." The other thing is, they are mixing the technologies again, they are alter-ising the technology of ethics, they are confusing conditions with justice actions.

A justice action is a 3rd dynamic action, when the person cannot get his 1st dynamic ethics in himself, so he needs the help of the group.

Condition formulas are actually the way to expand and flourish and prosper in the universe. They are meant to be applied causatively by the person on an individual basis. If the wrong one is applied, and this is stated in Policies on Ethics on a tape, if the wrong one is applied, the person will fall down the conditions to the one lower. Very exact. This happens all the time.

You notice, how many SP-declares have come out in the last few years, 2000 and more, and from the viewpoint of the church all those 2000 fell to the next one lower. If you look at an SP being an enemy - they went to treason and they resigned from the church. It was the wrong condition. Obviously they didn't come up.

Ethics is to get the guy up. Some of them went to doubt and did a whole doubt thing, and when they did that correctly, back to treason they went again and were gone. Some of them went down to confusion and remained there, and they didn't want nothing to do with anyone. That is an example of misapplication of ethics. But what we have been doing in OTC WW is trying to make sure, not only the tech survives, but the policy and ethics as well, all those technologies.

So in Frankfurt we will find, that we will do it that way. When for instance you hear some one carrying on and nattering about this and that and the other, it should be reported to ethics, the person is called in, and HCO justice policies are applied. It s called Manual of Justice where by finding out, who told you that, and you trace it back to the source, and when you get to this source, he either agrees to have his overts and withholds pulled on the terminal he is criticizing or if he doesn't agree, then a justice action is called by the 3rd dynamic to decide, where this person is sitting in relation to the group, like a Comm Ev or what ever.

There is no condition formula, which says, criticisms are handled in this condition. That's not the purpose of the condition formulas. You can't put a person in a condition because he is critical.

The church does this all the time. (Ha, you are critical of us, you must be with the enemy, you are suppressive.) There is not such a thing, the technology for handling criticism is given in the red bulletins also, it comes from O/Ws and M/Wh Technology.

It is very easy and everything has a basic and a way to handle it. When you mix these up you get salt in the coffee and sugar on the meat.

First of all we will star* this program off by making sure we collect whatever data we have on the case, or what ever auditing you have had. We can do that with a white form plus a DofP interview, or you can write it up yourself and we check it with a DofP interview, or summaries, what you had on the bridge or off the bridge. It is up to the DofP to get the complete data now.

I m a permanent Class 8 awarded by LRH and I know what to do with a case problem. You have to have the data on the case. We get these data together, and before anything else is done, I look it over as a C/S, and then I make sure, that the next correct action is done, after which the person should be on the bridge. Now that means, he may be on the bridge already, but so far I haven't found anyone that is standardly on the bridge.

Some people have had invalidative sec checks, some people have started to go into endless corrections, and some people have been programmed to, shall we say, to do actions on the side, which are not necessary to go up the bridge and probably not needed.

For instance, a girl asked me in Vienna, "I have this problem of playing before an audience, I m anxious, I m nervous." So she said, "can you handle that?", I said "yes. Well, I m also a C/S. Where are you on the bridge?" "Well, I think, I've done ARC-Straightwire/Life-Repair."

She really wanted this handled. Now, if I was interested in just money I would say "sure, it will take 50 hours, I ll handle it." No. I only want the fair exchange, but I want the best thing for the PC, so I told her "First go up the bridge. Get your grades. You can do it here, or in Langenthal or what ever, and when you are up the grades it should have been handled. If it is not, then let me know and we will handle it."

She was surprised. I said, "Well, what do you think, the grades are for?" The things like that, that the thetan can obtain, each grade handles the different parts of these things. If you know the grade chart, you can see all the abilities that people achieve on those grades. If they really achieve that, I don't think she would be nervous after grade IV.

Well, if you look at it, it could be a problem in communications, it could be a problem with a problem, about it she could have O/Ws and be a little nervous about being found out. It s right there somewhere, or an ARC break or dramatization of a service fac, it could be anything. So, honestly as a C/S I have to tell her, "you go up the bridge". The church would probably say, "ha, you need a Sunshine Rundown, so you are happy all the time." 50 hours of that, that s a very high price. So you see, this is what we want to get back, the intention of LRH in developing the Tech, and in addition to the intentions of LRH, we want to get back in, (I say get back in because it is not there now), the recognition of source, because there are people now in England going around and saying that, "Ron didn't develop the tech", and they are saying, "John McMasters developed it", and other people like David Mayo, and some of the Class 10s, "Otto Roos developed the Tech".

How soon they forgot, that I was there on the Flag Ship for 7 years, when he, LRH, developed everything.

From the Class 8 Course all the way through NED for OTs, starting with the NED course, all the tech in between and including the Ext/Int-Rd and the Drug-Rundown, OT Drug Rundowns and everything was developed right in that period.

As the captain of the ship I made a tour of the ship many times a day, and I saw him at the office, working on the Tech 8 hours a day. I didn't see any of those other guys doing it.

So it s very strange to me, that these stories can be circulating amongst Scientologists, that s as silly as me saying, that since I was used on a pilot process or an experimental process of some of the L s, (you know, the Ls, L10, L11, L12). I was given some of those on the Flag Ship, as an experiment. But its like me going around saying "I helped develop the Ls." I didn't do any of the research on the L s, I was a PC or a PreOT.

You see the difference. And even then, I mean, that people would believe this, it shows me, that we are on the correct path only here in Frankfurt, and in Spain, or where ever we are putting the OTC WW. Because, as I said, the other areas are becoming more and more increasingly (as they are not getting their overts pulled), they are getting more and more critical, and spreading these rumors and so on like that. They are false.

OK. That s my viewpoint and I hope you like it. But I think, what you are being given, if I may look at it now from another viewpoint, what we are doing here is actually also a pilot process in Frankfurt, right, and as a result of this you may be the first people to be able to promote the results of the most standard bridge since LRH was actually running FCCIs at Flag, that s Flag Case Completion Intensives on the Flag Ship, and he was C/Sing all of their cases.

So, next year we can start over here the Universal Church of Scientology somewhere in Europe, where all the training and auditing, that has been lost, all of his training, all the Policy, all the Ethics, all the Tech come back in.

Because that has not been duplicated yet, I consider I ll take the responsibility to start that and help start that, because no one else, again, is doing it.

I also like to state, that when you get to your OT levels and so on, that my main experience in missionairing in Tech was to be the Commanding Officer in most of the AOs on the planet.

I've been the Commanding Officer for the AO at Alicante, which was the first one on land, and the one in Edinburgh, which was the first AO in England, and the first one in California, which was the AO L.A., and on other missions I have run for a while the AO in Copenhagen. And believe me, I know everything, that can happen with an OT case.

Before those jobs I was in the Advanced Org on the Flag Ship on the following posts: Tech Sec, Qual Sec, Dir of Review, and the Review Auditor for all OT cases.

And before that, when the Sea Org just started in 1967, I was the I/C of Review, and that included sec checking, included all of the review actions on all the persons in the original Sea Project. Before that I was Senior Lead Review Auditor at SH England, and Director of Review Qual Division, and before that HGC auditor and also Class 7 Intern, which is Power Processing Auditor.

So I have a lot of technical qualifications on my track for handling these types of cases, and I can say in truth that the AOs were never run better by anyone else except of course LRH.

I m not bragging about that, I m just telling you that, because I've duplicated, what LRH wants. And most people, that have been to those AOs and have been through them, when other people were running them later, will tell you the same thing.

The reason they tell you that is because when ever I went to correct an AO later, the first people who would come to me, would be the old timers who had been there earlier, you know, and gone up the bridge, and they would say, "I m glad you are back. Now I want to tell you something." "OK," I said, "go ahead and tell me because I m here on mission, to handle whatever it is." And they say, "We can't promote for people to come here anymore, they just don't do it right anymore."

These were the most influential and wealthy and the most known public, and I would pull the string and get the data, and I would find that who ever was running it, he had gone into the idea, "We are just going to make the money, we are just going to sell Power processing and something or other and we are not going to get them up the bridge."

One place in one time in Copenhagen I even found they had a C/S, that was blackmailing PCs. I declared him and I'll even let you know the name, because I don't want him ever again in Scientology. That was Belkacem Feradj, French Algerian, he is maybe not known in Germany, but he was at the AO in the 70s, he is now in the US. Anyway, that is probably the most betrayal, I think, to do to LRH, that someone could blackmail a PC, find out about W/Hs from the government or his W/Hs on wife or whatever and then say, "If you don't give me this money, I will tell."

Now, that is about the most betrayal that I have run across on the tech lines.

But these Guys, that are going around criticizing LRH, if they keep going like that, they may reach No.1 position in betrayal.

We have tried as OTC, and my friends tried, Maria has gone over to the US, Hermanns in Switzerland have gone there, John Caban has gone over there, and every time we brought them the same message.

"Hey, knock off this criticism and this Bla Bla Bla about LRH, and pull their overts and withholds, and trace it down to the source and expose, who is doing it." They won't do it.

Anyway, it s time now to create the alternative for the alternative, OK ?

I ask you, if you want to help in this. I m going to do C/Sing and so on, and in special cases I might even do some Review Handlings, because there are some people I understand have been screwed up, messed up on the OT levels, that requires this type of AO review auditing handling, which I can do and get everyone back on the bridge and on up through OT. We do need more OT s as LRH always says. Real ones.

Because, shall we say, he is feeling a little lonely. He has left the bridge here for us. He is waiting there to say "Hello!. Glad you could make it!"

So, anyway, that s what the plan is, and I would like now to know any questions you have about this, before the tape runs out.

Oh yes, one other thing. My rate as a permanent Class 8 as C/S is DM 300.- per hour.

Maria is going to do the DofP stuff, DofP interviews and also operate as what you call a tech page, getting the folders together and doing all the things, she knows the whole line, she has worked at Flag and in AOs and so on.

Now I want you to realize something, right ? Marianne is going to continue auditing and so will Franz and anyone else.

Like that I hope we will get the whole thing together and just start a flow, that will be filled by all around Europe. We will have to train people and get them out and just bring the whole level of technology up.

Also I want to point out that DM 300.- an hour C/Sing once the person is on the bridge right, really on the line, and when I know what is happening in every session, then it is not necessary to have the Senior C/S, (I m calling it Senior C/Sing). Anyone that is trained to run those levels can probably just C/S the next steps on the thing. Like you have run OA on the communication thing, the next thing you run is OB. So when you went standardly on OA you go on to OB.

So I m sure Marianne can handle that, or Franz, or any person. What I m trying to do is once getting the person by making sure that he his totally right on the bridge without any BPC, picking them up again at the point where they go into the Solo-Assists and then giving them the C/Sing from there all the way to OTIII. And I ll even state here, that anyone that wants to go on the old OTIV,V, and VI, we have those materials as well. But that is only once they have finished OTIII, then they can sort of communicate back and forth in writing to the C/S and we will see, if that is the best line. But by that I think I ll probably have done my NOTs training as an auditor and C/S, so I can carry on with that. If not, there is always Per Schiottz in Copenhagen, so we will work the whole bridge.

Please address any communication, if you have anybody interested for this, to Maria. She will be keeping the logbooks of who has paid for what. So we can give the service on the basis of policy, you know, the service to the people, that have given exchange and buy the preference rates, and so on.

Also the C/Sing does not take as long afterwards as it does in the beginning, because in the beginning you have to work with little data from the DofP and the White Form, you have to guess at what all is in the folders that the church is holding, and you have to pick out what BPC they have missed and handle those and make it so, that the person is ready to go.

When you have them going already it is very easy and may take 5-10 minutes to do the C/S. If there is a little bit of trouble it doesn't take very long, because you have already done the basics.

So out of DM 300,- we say that DM 150,- is half hour and DM 75,- is 15 minutes and if it is a fast thing, 5 to 10 minutes it s DM 50,-. So that way everybody can have their folder C/Sed by me if they want, if they don't wish to, they can just have the beginning done and will then be given on to their regular tech lines, and after they get to the Solo Assists, then I ll take it on from there.

Now, for the auditors here, the people that are tech people, I will tell you one other thing. Here, we are applying the policy of Qual. OKs to audit and OKs to the C/S etc., etc. are obtained in Qual. And this is how all tech got started on the Flag Ship. That s why I m using this, because we do not have a training course, where we can train a whole bunch of C/Ses. We will have in the future, but until then, if there is something you want to C/S and you have the qualifications as an auditor there, well, then you bring the bulletins, you study the pack and so on, and as Qual Terminal I ll give you checkouts and meter checkouts, everything on that pack, and give you the OK to do it.

That is how it was done originally in the Sea Org. You check out, you show me the checksheet, you've twinned, or where ever you have done the whole check outs and so on. Like a tech training thing on it, on the exact thing you want to do, like you want to be able to C/S or audit on the DCSI. Well then you do the Pack, Bla,Bla,Bla, bring it here, I give you an exam, give you a check-out and so on.

Well, I think that is about the end unless there is any other question.

To end off, that is the purpose of this. It is to put in the bridge like LRH originally intended. The alternative to the alternative, that will bring Europe again into a position where LRH stated in 1966 "Europe must be ready, in case the United States go down the drain, to take over the entire responsibility for Scientology in the world."

I think it is time again to do this.

Frankfurt, October 26th, 1984

by Capt. Bill Robertson

Hello again !

The first tech briefing was on the OTC's operation in Frankfurt to set up a delivery center here going up to OT III and possibly beyond.

This week I want to talk about the organization, the reason for the organization, in respect to the tech, and how it protects the technology.

I have given this lecture once in Spain, but we didn't record it. It was very well received there.

I try to give it without a blackboard, because many people will hear it on tape. Normally I draw a picture, but I will try to make a picture, so that you can hear it.

Many of you have studied green on white and red on white, and you know that one is the technology of auditing and training, and one is the technology of organization and ethics.

How do they relate to each other, why are they both important, and you can t just throw away one and use the other without having a serious consequence?

To look at this, let s go back to 1950, and let us imagine, that LRH has come to earth to handle the aberration on the planet. All by himself. Now you know that he was working by himself when he wrote Dianetics. So, if you imagine, now I make a drawing, and up here I put a thetan, LRH, a theta symbol at the top. That's LRH, a person, a being, that is clear enough to observe that the planet is aberrated, and wants to do something about it. So he writes up Dianetics and researches it. And now we draw down below here at the bottom a big ball, which represents earth. And on it we put a lot of little black dots, which represent aberrated people or beings. Some think they are bodies, some think they are animals, and some think they are robots, and, anyway, they are aberrated. And around this ball down here with the black dots we draw a whole bunch of little waves and squiggly lines, all representing their banks interconnected, and the aberration that is being dramatized on the planet. A whole bunch of little lines there that looks like a mess, like spaghetti thrown on the floor.

Now, the thetan up here, LRH, takes one of these points, with the little bit of squiggle, that is with that point representing a person and his bank, and audits him. And we see that, halfway between here, we see, that this guy has come up here and has been audited, and a lot of that has gone away, a lot of the spaghetti. And we repeat that process. He must have audited many people in his research, so we put a whole bunch of dots in the middle here, and with not too much spaghetti around them.

Now we see, if you take the viewpoint of LRH, how long it would take to handle all the dots on the planet, if he did it all by himself, when there is about a billion thetans in human bodies and plenty more just floating around, not even having a body or stuck into some part of the MEST universe. It s a long and tough job for one person, one being.

So he trains one of these dots up here, that he has already audited, and he trains, let s say, about half of them as auditors. And he sends them down into the planet with all the dots there to audit. And they disappear into the spaghetti. They make a little bit of space there, where it is a little bit cleaner than the other space. You can erase some of the spaghetti where these little dots went back onto the planet. But they are not really high enough up as OTs to keep themselves totally keyed out and carry on and repeat exactly as LRH did, because they are not quite all the way up there.

And some of them stop auditing and go back into the spaghetti, and the little space disappears around them.

So, if you are looking from the viewpoint of LRH, he says, "We need something now to protect the auditors and help them confront that bank, that spaghetti, that aberration. They keep drowning."

So, what do you do here? You divide the parts of the spaghetti into their component areas of aberration because some people have aberrations more about communications, or they are PTS, or they have aberration about money, or they have aberration about doing something without approval, or they can t operate on their own, because they don t have anyone to support them, or they have some problem in their own case, which makes them not confront all the spaghetti around their area. Or they are afraid to get into conflict with the government or the other powers that be around, and the authorities that are around the planet telling them, that psychology is the only way to handle the mind and so on. Or they are afraid of getting into trouble with the government or the tax people.

Now, so you divide all of these fears and put an expert in charge of each one. And you surround the auditor with these people, or you surround more than one auditor with these people. And you have each of them trained to handle that portion of the bank, exactly. So, you then put that onto a pattern or a plan.

And in 1965 he released the final plan on that, which was the Org Board.

Did you notice, that the people, who handle communication successfully, just communicating, no matter how aberrated someone is, they are people who like to do that. Yes, they are always pleasant, and they don t key in, those are good people for reception. And there are those, who can confront evil very well, and they are good for ethics people. And there are those, who can confront the problems and aberrations about money very well, and those become good registrars and treasury people. And of course the auditors can confront the individual bank and so on if they can get the safe space. Or they are the tech people and the qual people.

But the qual people are more high than the tech people, because they can also confront the aberration of the organization, to try and keep it all sane in the organization. They also correct not only the tech people but also the organization as well.

And then there are people, who like to play with groups, and can confront groups and are not afraid to stand on a stage and talk and lecture to people and all, and they become a Div 6. And there are those that like to run things and can confront a lot of things, and these people become executives.

And there are people, who like to confront the governments and someone like that, and so on, and they become members of the GO.

You realize, that these qualities, although the people are trained to do this, trained to confront, they also must have some inherent purpose or ability in that, that they have retained or kept from the track, or have that degree of OT-ness in that area, that they can do it well. And that is, how you get your first people on to post, the ones you find, that have this sort of ability left over from the track, that didn't get suppressed or aberrated.

I'm sure, you have all heard of people, that come into the org and right away they do real well on the post without any training. But, if you move them into another post, they go "Whoof". That is because they need to have trained and processed out the aberration of confronting the other area.

But as you get trained and processed on all the levels of the bridge and policy, you can then confront all of it and become an executive. And yet you know some people, that, when they get linked into a managerial network of managers, who are controlling not only one org, but many orgs, that some of them failed terribly, didn't confront it, and went back just becoming an auditor and confronting one person at a time.

This is only a problem of handling a persons case and their confront level, and their training of course. But in the beginning you have to start with something. So, LRH put in a rule, in policy, to handle the fact that not all of them have got to be totally handled and processed at the beginning. He made them make an OT-postulate of their necessity-level so that the rule became: "No case on post". Very important. Because, wherever that happens in an organization, it makes a weak point.

No case on post. You follow the policy and the tech. You operate at cause, like the auditor does. In the TRs the auditor learns not to have a case when he is auditing the PC. The same applies to people in the organization.

So now you can have a successful organization to protect the auditing and in this ball down here you can spread out a much larger area of clearing. And in the Div 6 you can train everyone that comes through the organization to go out and start the small groups in the field, or in the spaghetti area, to also start their own little group of clearing supported by the large group called the organization.

These are expressed in the Volunteer Minister s- programs, the Gung Ho Group- programs or OT-Gung Ho Groups, and the Dianetic Field Auditor- program, and the programs for setting up franchises and missions, and FSMs.

So you can start to see, that the whole of policy is designed to put strong points into this aberrated planet, of relatively clean theta, which can then expand and can themselves put other points out into the environment, which can then expand, and which can meet together, and finally the spaghetti will disappear as people get trained and processed.

And you also can see now the starting of a flow. We bring these little black dots into the beginning of the organization with all the spaghetti around them, and we bring them through the organization; reception, registrar, treasury, tech services, training, auditing and in qual for the examinations and certificates and the feed back line of review to make sure, that everything is OK, and finally to Div6, and they are then hatted to go out into the field as FSMs or as field auditors, or volunteer ministers or franchise holders or whatsoever.

Now you see that flow, and as it goes through in the organization, and the people each time they come through the organization they are going up the bridge, higher and higher. Theoretically this is a machine, this is a clearing machine. Do you see how it is? It brings in the dirty particles, cleans them off and sends them out, and then it brings them back through again, cleans them off some more and sends them out,and so on and so on. And it sets up more and more little organizations to do that. Look at the basics of gradient scale here. It s not cleaning them all totally the first time. It s doing it on a gradient. The gradient scale is called the bridge. And it moves up on a gradient to Clear and then up to OT. That is the flow and the pattern that LRH designed to protect the auditing and to make sure this clearing machine works on the planet.

Once you have this machine in operation, it is very difficult to stop it. About the only way to stop this machine was to move in at the top and turn off the switch.

You notice, that the people at the top of the organization, LRH, MSH, Quentin, even myself, Diana, Bill Franks, all these people were the most heavily attacked by the take-over people. It is understood, that before 1980 there was still aberration in this machine, because it is a gradient, it wasn't intended to be perfectly right at the beginning at every level.

We maybe can do that on the next planet we clear because everyone will be all trained and processed and ready to go, when we go to do it. But in this one it was doing it with the tools that were available, since it was a restricted zone planet, and not only the technical experimentation was done here, but also the ethics/policy - experiments. The people, or beings, who originally volunteered to do this mission with LRH, immersed themselves all into the spaghetti for many many lifetimes, to actually test the validity of the technology in getting them out of the spaghetti.

When this was proven that it could be done, it was also proven of course, that it was not dangerous anymore for this planet to be restricted so that thetans could not come here. In other words, you would not contact a fatal theta-disease and never get well again. Because the technology existed to get people back up to their original state of whatever it was when they came to the planet, when they started their voluntary mission. These were the people that Ron asked for to help him in the Sea Org and Sea Project. Since they were already members or volunteers from other civilizations, and they were already dedicated to helping LRH, that was their original agreement.

And some members of, well let s say galactic network organizations, such as the Patrol and the Biological Survey and various other interested scientific groups, these people were the ones that LRH was showing "Hey, let s get back together in the Sea Org here". And that s why they had the billion year contract, because those people would respond to that, because they were already on a long purpose line before they came here.

Of course anyone who has found out how successful the technology is was also invited to join if they wanted to take that purpose.

So today, the situation is that the organization had a couple of faults in it. All were either covered by policy already and were just ignored -in fact all the situations including infiltration and take-over could have been handled by following policy more rigourously.

This has been analyzed, and we will not repeat the same mistakes that were done at that time. In short, there are some policies, that become now more important than other ones to prevent that type of thing from happening again. All of them you see already being employed in the Free Zone. And one of them is the fact that you don t make a total step ladder of command, where no one can communicate to some one higher in the organization without going through all people in between for information.

The information about the take-over, infiltration and all the problems that occurred with the GO and so on was known at certain levels of the organization, but was prevented from getting to the top. That s covered in my debrief tape.

This time we have it as a network, a net like a spider s web but without a spider in the middle. All linked together, but the information can travel as fast as a telephone or a computer or telepathic communication can travel. That way anyone that tries to take over the organization is soon revealed and spotted. OTC has successfully handled 7 such attempts in the last 8 months. Some of them were attempted by other independent groups. Some of them were attempted by RTC, and some of them were attempted by hired telepathic people by the Marcabians themselves. Let us not deceive ourselves this time either about the importance of Scientology for this planet and the universe. This is another thing which was a little bit, let us say, made of lesser importance than it should have been in the old organization. Everyone was striving to be recognized where those people, who are suppressing the 4th dynamic, were well aware of Scientology, and had already made many plans to take it over and to try and keep it from being recognized. In the highest level conferences in banking and government they used to discuss Scientology at least 2 hours a week. And they also instructed the press and the other officials, to make nothing of it and to invalidate it and to keep it seeming like it is some kind of crazy cult. It is obvious from this that the people who are currently trying to control the planet do not have clearing as a purpose. Understand this very, very, well.

Because if they do not have clearing as their purpose, they are totally opposed to Scientology, not individually, but as a group. It threatens the vested interests. Then what is the purpose of these vested interests? Since we are striving to free people, make them more independent, clear and sane, then these people have the opposite idea, and they intend to enslave people and make them less aware and more insane.

And you only have to look around you and find out what the programs are to have this happen. It s very simple.

Why the sudden increase in Drug-taking in the civilized societies since 1960? Why the criticisms of all religions and things that would make people more spiritually aware? Why the more tight control of peoples money and finance and ideas? Why the more threats of war and civil disturbances and terrorism?

All these are planned. And if we look at the other side of it, the side of clearing, have you ever spoken to anyone that has gone into an area, let s say in the country, or not near the major cities, or in a small country and found out how easy, they tell you, it is to expand Scientology and how eager people are to have it? It works. It handles their problems, their ARC-breaks, all of their engrams etc. They love it. And in many areas they welcome you with open arms, and say, "Oh, I want more of that! Would you please talk with us? Will you please come and talk to the leader of our group, right away?" This has happened many, many times in areas, where the evil ones have not had much control. But as soon as they hear about it, then they come in and put the suppression on it. It is rarely a mistake made by the eager Scientologists in the area.

It's usually -if we look at policy the reason is an omitted use of policy to handle all the various aberrations that can be dramatized or restimulated on the population. You see this in the field of Scientology, where the people say, "Oh we don t need ethics out here. And we don t need Guardian Office activities out here." And believe me, when there are bad activities, off-policy ethics, and off policy GO-activities, you certainly don't need it. But when they are the correct ones and done according to policy and the data series evaluations then they are very successful.

So, what we have seen in the last 5 to 10 years is a gradual going away from policy and implementing arbitraries into the policies and into the organizations. And these were deliberately done and restimulated on the minds of Scientologists by the outside vested interests and their infiltrated agents. for reference on more data about that is Sector Ops Bulletin No. 12, called Models and Scenarios.

The world press criticism of LRH and Scientology stems exactly and directly from these sources, and the people that were involved with it have actually admitted to it in writing to us. We have also information from, shall we say, files of various governments, obtained through the "Freedom of Information Act", or the "Freedom of Looking Act", that first of all there have been plants into the organization in high positions since the late sixties and being well paid by the governments and pretending to be very good Scientologists. But only pretending.

And you noticed, that they never went around an auditor that was C/Sed by somebody who was trained by LRH. They never got near an auditor who was trained or C/Sed by LRH. And if they did, they demonstrated very strange case-phenomena such as no case-gain, incredible withhold-phenomena, and always trying to excuse it and saying it is something else.

One such planted agent in the USA had 300 hours of audited NOTs without case-gain.

There are many more stories, but I am not interested in the stories right now, I m just interested in giving you the picture, of why the organization and the ethical surroundings of the technical lines is very necessary in any game or any attempt you are going to make to get tech in. The tech can be given at reasonable prices, the tech can be given with high ARC, and it should be, and it should be in a friendly and safe environment. But there should be something else as well. It should be an on-policy and on-ethics environment. The gauging of the importances of the various policies is a very important thing to do.

In the Free Zone or with the people who carry on with Scientology in spite of anything we have found out that there are certain importances in policy and tech of course to be used while we are coping.

For instance, if an auditor is not trained to do a certain action, we can without going through half a year course and keep the PC waiting we can check the person out on that action and get a "Qual OK" to audit that action and do it.

This is the original Qual - Policy, that qual gives all the OKs to audit anyway, no matter whether the person is trained or not. If he hasn't taken the auditor course for a certain list he has to do, the next thing on the PC is a list, and no other auditor for a 100 miles, and he is the only one, and the PC needs that list- well, he can be trained to do that particular action and go and do it. If he went away to get trained that would be only one hundredth part of his training, but he would be away for six months.

How do you think all the processes and the training levels were developed anyway by LRH. The courses were not the first. The auditing processes were the first. We are just going back to this historical thing.

LRH had to train auditors himself to audit the processes, that he developed. And each time on the Flag Ship, when he would develop a new process or a new level, he would first train one or two auditors to do that process, particularly that particular thing, and use it on a few PCs. That might be with one bulletin or one LRH-handwritten despatch.

Later, as it was proven that that was the way, as I mentioned in the last lecture, that that was the correct way to get through the room, and it all worked on all levels of cases, then it would be written up as bulletins. And you might then eventually in 4 or 5 months have a whole course for that. And then would come the thing that everyone must be trained on this because there was now enough material to make a whole new class of training. Now this is of course, where the Class VIII, IX, X, XI, XII auditors courses came from. Of course the Class VII-Course as well because it was for specific processes, power processes. The class VII auditors were for that. But the first people, who audited them at Saint Hill were only class VI, And they were checked out on the processes in qual, and then they started auditing it under supervision. And from that developed the class VII course.

So we have to repeat the evolution, until we are big and strong enough to have these various facilities again. You understand that is a more important policy of following the research and the development line on a proper gradient. We already have all the research done, so it s just the development of the tech. And it s not the tech, that we are developing, we are just developing the policy around it. We are putting in more and more policy on a gradient. That way it has to be done to actually survive. If you try to apply all policy at once, then you can t do anything, because somebody will come up and say, you don t have a certificate to do that, and there is no real HCO here, and there is no real Qual here, and there is no real CS here, and you have no OK from this, and even no Flag here, so you can t do anything. And if you can t do anything you fail.

So you must judge the importances very carefully and apply on the proper gradient the policies, that you can apply at that time, which will ensure the success and won t stop the action.

Let me repeat the last sentence: You must gauge very carefully, when you are coping, like we are doing, the exact policies you can apply at the level of the gradient where you are, which will result in success and expansion, and which will not stop the development of the organization and expansion. You are essentially therefore being confronted with what is the purpose of what you are doing. I refer you back to this drawing that we mocked up here. What was the purpose of LRH when he started developing Dianetics? Well, he wanted to help people. He wanted to help them spiritually. He wanted to remove the aberration. He wanted them to regain their abilities. It was a doingness. It was the activity of auditing.

Now, maybe, another policy leaps to mind: "Any auditing is better than no auditing". So these are the important policies, the ones that when you follow the purpose line and how LRH did this, and how he developed the organization to surround the technology and protect it and expand it. These are the important ones, you can see them yourselves very clearly. Just like the one I mentioned before: "No case on post", because not everyone is totally trained and processed at the beginning. And "Any auditing is better than no auditing", because if you want to stop all auditing, then you don t clear.

But, of course, the best auditing is standard. And we have all the standard auditing processes.

And now we are putting in the correction of all the auditors and PCs that have been messed up in the past. So essentially, what we are doing here in Frankfurt is, we are putting in Qual. There are many people auditing, there are many little tech areas around, but we are putting in a qual action, which is to actually select out the exact policies and correct the exact outnesses that will permit the expansion steadily of the tech areas again. And that is the whole purpose of this lecture, so that you see that viewpoint.

I have seen people in the past go through policy volumes for many hours to try and find a policy, that says "You can t do that". But those people were only interested in stopping. They weren't interested in making it go, in making it expand. Now, of course, this is not a license to violate policy. It is an invitation to use policy analytically, which of course is another failure of the old organization. I can give you one great example of it right now: concentration on statistics, without ensuring there were products behind those statistics.

I mean, if you wish to make a false stat, you could say, "We have 4 billion Clears, the whole planet is clear, it s finished". But where are the products? That is why LRH eventually after writing all the volumes O to 7, wrote the Management Series where it tells you in there the data series and the organization series and production organization actions -and what is important. That s why that volume, the management series is very important. It tells you what the important things are.

The whole purpose of this lecture then is to reinstill in people who might have been disappointed in policy and ethics in the past, and sort of rehabilitate their failed purpose in the use of policy and ethics by bringing them to a point where they can see it as an analytical tool that Ron had to use to handle all these little dots on planet Earth without getting so involved in the spaghetti.

A little bonus on the end of this: You may also have seen in this a reflection of dynamics. The first auditing by an auditor in the field usually involves only the first and second dynamics. The auditor is handling the person and his family associates and maybe audits the wife and the husband and children, and maybe there is some things to do with that, and he can usually handle that pretty well because most auditors, who are in good shape, can confront family problems, they confronted their own, and so they handle family problems and people pretty well.

But when it moves to the area of third and fourth dynamic it s a bit harder to confront. There are many third dynamics on this planet, that are very, shall we say, have a lot of MEST power. When you move into the area of policy, however, you are in to third dynamic technology. Because what you are doing is, you are organizing a group around a common purpose. And the goal and the purpose are always at the top of the admin scale. That s another very important thing, by the way, because policy, although we know you shouldn't be off policy, no policy should be off purpose. And the purposes shouldn't be off or away from the goal. This is, what is called aligning the admin scale. Alright, that's in the Management Series.

You are seeing here a third dynamic technology, and as soon as you start applying that in planet Earth you run into those who are attempting to control all the third dynamics and enforce control on the whole fourth dynamic.

So there is another level of dynamic confront, that is needed by the group. Because the purpose and the goal can not go forward if there is a very powerful 4th dynamic conspiracy to suppress it. So you use Scientology and its tech and its policy to handle that also.

Now we can expand this even further. Because there are many kinds of 4th dynamics on this planet, mankind is only one of them, supposed we had all of certain 4th dynamics of insects, that were against mankind, and we had to fight those also, or supposed we had 4th dynamics of bacteria and viruses and so on that were against mankind and we had to fight those, or certain kinds of animals, you see we are another 5th dynamic.

Well, in actual fact, as you go through the 4th dynamic level of confront, you find there are such things. What are these strange diseases that inflict many of mankind? You know, these viruses and cancers and things like that, and we can show you books also where it is shown that the, shall we say, enslavement purpose people, the people who have the purpose of enslavement, are utilizing research and science in these virus and bacterial areas to further enslave people, so they actually use the 5th dynamic against mankind.

And in the 6th dynamic we find the same thing. Certain electromagnetic radiations and certain chemicals of matter, energy, space and time such as drugs are being used against mankind as well,

And we also can peek into the 7th dynamic. And we find out, there are several classes of thetans, that are being used against mankind. Spiritual things. We can also take a look into the 8th dynamic and say, "What are the gods, that these evil ones are saying, are their gods?" A lot of them worship a thing called Lucifer, which is, we all know, the devil.

If you are a good Scientologist, you note that it is probably just an implanted item from the track. But it is very effective in controlling humanity through secret societies of black magic and things like that. Mystery.

And we look into the 9th Dynamic, and we see some anti aesthetics, a sort of off - purpose aesthetics. They go on, they try to make people sort of not think, and just sort of going around in a daze most of the time. They are actually showing you what are the dynamics of the evil ones or the Marcabian side.

Some of the music, some of the art, is totally insane. It is only art, because there are enough insane people to appreciate it. It is a communication line to them.

I went into the Pompidou - Museum in Paris, and I saw a demonstration of modern art. An entire floor of the museum given away to that. It actually smelled bad. A big board with old shoes and dirty socks and pieces of shit and paint all over, posted up as an example of modern art. And this kind of stuff and twisted shapes and all kinds of distorted bank-type pictures and people going through there, going "Oh yes". The whole floor given over to this, a real Marcabian art show.

Let s take a look at their ethics, dynamic 10. Lets look at the ethics dynamic on the planet, that we have to handle as well. Ethics in the current world consists of two things. Actually 3. They are in fact the same thing. They club people who resist with money, with legal, and with force.

These are the gradients of ethics in the wog-world. They try to fine you or take your money, if you won t have that, court cases and legal actions, and if you won t have that, then it is the mafioso actions, and they throw you in the jail or send some guys to blow up your house, or whatever. Why do you think all these people, who did a little resistance got assassinated in the last 50 years? I refer you to an excellent book that was published by VAP Wiesbaden, which is by Des Griffin, called "Descent into Slavery". He explains this very well. Here I am not talking about the normal justice of the city or the state, the normal things that you see in the rules that go well. I'm talking about the justice of the enslavers where someone is going against their actual plan. They try those 3 actions.

That s if you can escape the first light gradient which is just black PR. Now, that is why you see such things such as models and scenarios being performed on the world leaders and / opinion leaders and inventors and people who go away from that side and try and free people and try to give them new inventions and try to make their life better, you find them being attacked with those methods.

I can give you examples of Scientologists, who have invented fantastic new things. And first of all they were told, "It didn't work". Black PR. Next they proved it worked. So next they would be tried to be bought off with money or restricted with money so that they couldn't get any to develop. And next legal actions were put against them, and next threats of force. And finally force itself.

They might have even used things from the fifth dynamic, like some of those viruses and so on that we were talking about. There are several stories of this, people that have invented things, not only in Scientology, but in the regular world, that have tried to free people.

This is not a dramatization. The people, who are doing that know exactly what they are doing. It is a deliberate restimulation. It is intended to frighten everyone by example not to do the same thing. Having those dynamics of the other side- (and you know what your own dynamics are towards freedom and so on, and a new civilization and a renaissance of arts and aesthetics, and a generally high ARC,high KRC planet)- and when you see the difference you see what the job is you have to do with policy and with all of the data series and handling all the rest of the dynamics. You can also analyze from this little talk exactly who is in the camp or is on the side of the people who would destroy freedom. There are people who use the purposes and policy of the enemy.

So you can even analyze the old church by that criteria and you can see exactly whose policy and purpose they must have.

I hope, that has been helpful and instructive to you, and I also want to tell you, that the great mass of humanity still lies in the spaghetti, but they also have their own abilities, and they are deliberately being restimulated to keep them from realizing those abilities.

The main technology method of the Marcabian side is concentrating their intention on keeping people at fear and below on the Tone Scale. 1.0 all the way down to apathy. Because then they can control all the planet with their 1.1-actions. That is why they would then be the highest toned people on the planet. 1.1 .

They really can not confront Scientologists at all, because my goodness, they are most all above 2.0 on the scale. And all those Marcabians have retained certain OT-abilities themselves, because they are relatively new to the planet, the ones who are here recently. You can handle 99% of them by TRs. A good TR1, "Get out of here", and they will.

So they are not very effective, except the cases, where the people have so much spaghetti around them that they are restimulated by their intensity and their flow. And the thing they fear most, of course, is exposure of themselves: 1. as being aliens to the planet, 2. as being the masterminds behind trying to suppress all the people of earth, 3. as being the people who are stealing you all blind of all your gold and real currencies, now owning more than 60% of the wealth of the world and 4. of having their basic false data exposed such as man only lives once.

You see, if man only lives once, then you can really scare the hell out of him with death. They are also being afraid of the money being found out to be worthless they are issuing. And they are also afraid of the wrath of humanity, once all the other four things are found out. They are very afraid of mob action against them. That s why they protect all their premises and so on with very heavy security operations. What other explanation do you have? They are running the terrorists. They are running the communists. They are running most of the politicians. So they can tell them, "Don t do anything to our area."

No, they are afraid of people, that aren't under their control. And there are lots of people that are not under their control. There are lots of people that are in apathy and don t know what to do.

So that shows you that they don t have a control over the planet yet, and in fact, a very accurate analysis, they only have a great deal of control in the western world. They are only using 1.1 tactics with the rest of the world. And it is only at the top levels, they have the control. They don't have the control through the middle and the bottom areas and the ordinary people in the street.

They don t have that control. They try to enforce it with the 5th and 6th dynamic procedures I mentioned before -the drugs and electronics and radiation, and blabla stories on TV, and so on. So that gives you a pretty good picture of the world as it exists today.

For more Information you can refer to the Sector Ops Bulletins 18, 19, 20 and 21 to see what more of the game is being played on the 4th and the 7th dynamic and other areas of games.

Do you see the importance of policy and ethics in use to protect the technology in such an environment as this planet, which is constantly being restimulated at all times by intention of people who try and control?

Anyway, we must acknowledge here that Ron did have the answers. He gave them all to us in his policy and tech volumes and his tapes, and we are here on that purpose line, and therefore we have all the materials we need to carry on and do it.

And whatever civilization comes out of this, because remember the definition of a civilization "an economic engine, fueled by ideas", all the moving parts are exchanges. And the fuel which keeps this engine running, is ideas. If people don t have the ideas there can t be any exchange. Because ideas result in products whether it s an art product or a physical product you can buy. All those things you see in this room are ideas somebody had, and now they can be exchanged. And that is what makes a civilization. Of course it has to be based on something- such as a planet, and that's Earth. So the new civilization can exist. Once the economics is freed up of suppression, exchange can occur freely.

This is not capitalism, by the way, it's a free exchange society. People try to confuse them and say they are the same thing. They are not. Free exchange society postulates a stable currency. A stable medium of exchange which can be used, or barter, so that a person can produce and actually exchange without having to borrow, by applying, of course, the condition formulas of ethics, and work himself into a higher condition and then cope and organize. In that way you can expand.

Capitalism is the making of money by use of money. It has nothing to do with production and exchange. Communism is just a slave state. The ideal scene of the Marcabians, -where it is just a little group at the top that runs it. And all ideas and all exchanges are totally suppressed and controlled.

The ideas in the New Civilization are those ideas which promote the survival of the dynamics. This does not include biological, chemical and atomic warfare, but it should include things like use of the same scientists to create food for the entire planet. And energy sources so that everyone is freed of the necessity of having to purchase large amounts of inefficient energy. So you start to see, by reading "The New Civilization Game", exactly what could be achieved. This is a game to expand into when we clear people. You have to give them a game. You can t just free them into nothing.

This is covered in the policy "Mistakes of Simon Bolivar and Manuela Saenz", which is the famous Bolivar-Policy, written by LRH. It is an ethics policy. You see it is all very important what LRH wrote down there in green on white.

And to finish off, I just want to say, anyone, who has a logical and analytical viewpoint of all this can look through all the written works of man, all the written books, and they will never find anyone who has put it so clearly, and so fully there on how the dynamics can survive.

The only people who would criticize such a person or such a being, must then be those people who do not want those dynamics to survive and expand. Anyone can trace back to the sources these criticisms and do a proper ethics action on them. I guarantee you, the tracing of these criticisms will go back originally and will come from the original attacks against LRH and Scientology. The people, who were doing that attack, they are all on the side of enslavement.

What people should be doing is looking at how LRH set up a situation so that we could enjoy and play a game of freeing people and analyze all the activities and reports and data in the light of these two purpose lines. One of freeing people into a New Civilization or enslaving them in an old and apathetic civilization. And any logical person, who has no case on post, will come to the correct answer.

And I think, by doing that, his purposes in Scientology and on the planet would be rehabilitated.

So we must thank Ron for even the way to rehabilitate those purposes once they have been side tracked or confused. He truly has stated in the tech, in the red on white, that we can handle all cases. Anyone who will sit down to be audited we can handle. So, as the nucleus of the New Civilization, all we have to do here is make sure that the tech continues and that policy continues and the proper ethics continues and it all expands and we inform more and more people.

In that way I think we will very quickly achieve what we want, which of course is, again, clearing of the spaghetti all over here and giving the little points here, which all now become little thetans, a purpose and a game that will help them and the planet to survive and eventually will enable them to be welcomed again into the community of other civilizations in the galaxy.

And that is simply, what we are doing. There are no secrets about it. And anyone who tries to find hidden meanings in that will not find it. That is what Ron and the people who volunteered to help him or who willingly joined him realized or saw or agreed to when they did so, I think, that if they realized that, they might have a purpose like that too, they may have had the same purpose themselves many many years before that, and they merely aligned their purpose.

In all of these cases we have people who can and will make a New Civilization and clear the planet. And therefore we can acknowledge again, what LRH has given us, which is worthwhile, and which is fun. And there are no secrets about that as long as we are all promoting that there is red on white, there is green on white, and all of his works if it is applied correctly. And let us do so.

And to end off, once again I will end off with this statement, because I have heard so many strange statements by people who now say that they don t even call themselves Scientologists.

How on Earth or in the universe could such a thing as Scientology or these policies or books be an implant? I have audited many people on implants, and I have audited myself on many implants, and I will guarantee you, in all the reading I have done in my life and other lifetimes, I have never never anywhere found those implants written up and given freely to everyone so that they realize that they were implants and handle them. Implants by their very nature must be kept secret so they will be effective on the person. He doesn't know they are there. He just operates reactively.

No, the true measure of implantation is, they never tell you, they are implanting you, and give you a textbook to tell you what they are doing. Never has it happened. When you can really know and understand things and hear and apply it, that s analytical stuff, that's not reactive. Implants are reactive. Truth and knowledge and application and results are analytical. In conclusion then I will again say: "Thank you, Ron, for all of the technology!"

And I ask again, are there any questions here about anything I've said? Otherwise I will end off the tech briefing at this point.

Question: Don't you want to announce the attestations?

Oh yes, I wanted to mention a little success, that we have had our first Clear in the Frankfurt Network. (We call it Ron's Organization and Network for Standard tech. That abbreviates to RON'S). It was attested last Sunday so we are already started people up the bridge and the people are moving up at a very good rate. We are also in communication right now with 5 other of our network people all over in the various countries of Europe, and they have also given us their support, and are willing to exchange with us and help develop there, and we help them and they help us, so there is starting to be some sort of the network part of Ron s going on in Europe.

Thank you very much.

TECH BRIEFING No 3

November 9th, 1984, Frankfurt

Capt. Bill Robertson

In the first talk we gave you a bit of the plan for opening up a bridge in Frankfurt for making OTs.

In the 2nd talk I covered why Organizations and Ethics are necessary to help produce those products.

In this lecture I want to go over briefly, exactly what a product is and how that applies to what we are doing here.

First I want to define a product from the Flag Executive Briefing Course tapes by LRH.

"A product is a high quality service or article in the hands of the being or group it serves in exchange for a valuable."

In the Admin Dictionary that definition is stated in slightly different words, but I think that one is in there too. That is from the tape.

Now let s take up the various parts of that definition and see how it applies here in Frankfurt.

"A high quality service or article:"

We know, that first we are delivering a service when we are auditing or training. And we are delivering an article or a thing when we are selling a book or a course pack or some other physical man-made articles. An E-Meter is an article. Now I think you will immediately appreciate, that the word high quality has to be there because low quality products people will not purchase. And if the quality is even below zero and turns into an overt-product, people actually run away from it.

You can find many examples of poor quality or overt quality products in the world. You can find them in the area of tech. I have seen some of the write-ups and folders of people who actually had overts committed on them by the church. They were left in the middle of something and didn't get through it, they were put on cycle after cycle leaving all incomplete or they were invalidated after they had a win and tried to complete something. And all the time the interest was not so much in the product as it was in them paying for it.

So all these are examples in the tech area of poor quality or no quality or overt quality products.

In Frankfurt we want people to go up the bridge, so every level or every grade or every review that gets them back on the bridge is a little product and it must be of high quality. It must be according to the actual grade chart and the bulletins in the reality and the understanding level of the PC that we are working with. We do not mechanically just give a person all the commands and then say he is finished and have him falsely attest, because a person can also accept himself an overt or poor quality product and fool himself. And in this case, a lot of times it has been done before for status reasons or to try and save money or for other reasons best known only to those PCs who have done it, and possibly students as well.

But in the long future ahead of you as a thetan this does not compute because the things you learn in Scientology training and the things you realize in your auditing are forever. You're receiving the training and auditing as thetans and a thetan does not die, he carries on.

So, when you get your product from a high quality source you can use it throughout your whole future. And that is the way you should approach your training and auditing.

Scientology is the science of knowing how to know and it gives the basics of life. So when the thetan really duplicates it, then he uses this in his life right into his future. When he has a no product or an overt product or a poor quality product, then you can state with certainty that his future will be of that same quality, because that is the knowledge he is using. I think you understand, why it has to be high quality, especially in the technology and science of Scientology.

The next part of the definition states that "It must be in the hands of the being or group it serves".

A pile of books, that are not sold, or not in the hands of anybody that is reading them, is not a product. It may be a product of the book publisher, because he sold them to you all printed, but you must get them to the individuals to use them.

And that is the same when a person is trained. He becomes the product of the people who trained him, but he really is a useful product when he can deliver the knowledge he has of auditing to others. So he has to be "in the hands of the being or group he serves".

That means that he should be delivering that auditing to preclears because he is trained to do it. Now when we have a solo auditor trained he is in the hands of the being he services -himself - and he has the responsibility to carry himself through to OT.

The product must be transferred over to the hands of the people that it is used by or it serves.

So the third part of the definition is:

"In exchange for a valuable".

The people who make the products will not be able to make them very long even if they are doing high quality products if they do not get exchange for it. This is very obvious.

The people who like to give away their services for nothing don't have any support, so the exchange must be in. Of course if they try to get too much out of reality and charge too much also they don't get support. In the middle somewhere is a good place to exchange.

Now the valuable does not have to be money because money is only an idea, a consideration of value, something you can trade for the necessities you need to survive. It s based on confidence that people will accept it and give you something for it. If somebody comes and says, (Capt. Bill shows a sheet of paper) "that piece of paper here is money, and you should give me a pound of coffee or a kilo of coffee for that", they laugh at you. No confidence. But since this (the piece of paper) is an OCA, scoring things for a personality test, somebody who is starting up and needs one of these, he may consider it valuable enough to give you a pound of coffee for it, because you share the same confidence that this is valuable.

And that is the same thing with paper-money. Everybody has this agreement that it is worth something. The valuable could be anything however, it could be gold, silver, paper money, it could be lodging, food, it could be something that the person needs in exchange for his product.

LRH once mentioned that when the confidence goes out of the money, the world will revert to a barter system or a trade system such as that. I don't have to tell you very much about the problems with paper money here, because I know you have all read about the Weimar Republic, where the money was inflating so fast that you used to have to take big thousands and thousands of Marks to buy bread and they only were printed on one side because they had to issue so much of it.

But that was not a situation that only happened in Germany. The same situation with money has happened in France, America, England, and other countries throughout history. However, they do not much put it in history books, because it is upsetting and it might start people thinking about it -"Why do I think that paper is valuable today?"

So, not to get too far away from the concept of product, but the idea is: Make sure that when you are producing, you are also making a viable exchange. Viable means, you are able to live with it. You are able to have confidence in it, that you will survive with it.

So your exchange should be able to help you make more products, correct? Part of it. Part of it should be able to help you survive in the future. And part of it should be for your daily survival. In other words, how you eat and have to pay your rent and the telephone and everything every day ?

By the way, that is all covered in Financial Planning Policy of how you make reserves for your future and how you handle you daily necessities and how you invest in service facilities for your production.

So we have come around full circle again to why you also need to know Policy while you are delivering tech. And you also need to know Ethics so you do not accept an overt product and you don't give overt products. And you have to know the basics of Scientology so that you can help all the dynamics to survive. And when you know the basics that will give you the confidence to live throughout the future.

This sort of summarizes what I said in the last lecture that you cannot just deliver tech forever without also including Policy and Ethics.

I assume that you understand what a product is, and why it is important.

Now I will like to give you to end off this tape just one example of a very overt product and what methods have to be done to make people accept it. And that is a product, which we call commonly in Scientology an implant. Or to make more understandable in today s language, an attempt to control your mind, or an attempt to influence your thinking and your decisions. Many, many years all the way back the track, some people, mostly suppressives, have tried to do this. That is one reason why scientology is so popular amongst the people that really understand it. It is a very worthwhile product, because it also keeps them from falling into that trap.

Now, if you realize that an implant or mind-control operation is a product that nobody wants and nobody needs then you realize that the person who is delivering that product must do it under false pretenses or do it secretly or do it covertly and give you a false reason why you should accept it.

This is what has happened in the past on the track and is happening in present time. These overt products have been used to control people and especially try to control those people and groups who would resist that product, I should add who resist violently this type of product. In other words, people like us.

Because many people will just accept it and go along and reduce their awareness and just play a game at a lower level. And thus you find people who are just interested in their first dynamic or their second dynamic. They haven t any others. They have all been not-ised, suppressed, with the agreement of that person. They cannot confront it because there is force there.

So, when people start taxing you heavily, over 50% going up to 60%, there is a gradient there, you know, a product you don't like. You see, they don't just come in and say,"there is no taxes today, and then tomorrow there is going to be a 100% tax". They don't do it that way. Everybody will go "NO!".

First they say, "we have this very good reason,"(false reason) "that we must take a little bit of your income for your old age. And we must take a little bit more for the people that are not working. And we must take a little bit more to handle the bad guys over there and to make weapons to keep them out. All for your safety, you understand. And we must take a little bit more to run all the administration and everything, all the people and posts and all these people who control this money". (And make sure that you don't know where it s gone).

You realize that if all the tax money of any country or even half of it was in vested in Scientology for each person in the country, they wouldn't need all these things. And very shortly in the future they wouldn't even need to tax anyone, because the people would all be making products and getting exchange.

And they wouldn't have any reason to fight other Scientologists in other countries. And they wouldn't worry about growing old, because they d know, they would take another body. And they wouldn't worry about getting sick too much, because they could handle auditing and handle most of it right there in their auditing. And they wouldn't have to worry all these insurance problems and worry about whether they have an accident or not, because the people who are PTS would have been handled and they wouldn't have accidents.

It would be a quite different world. There may be some normal understandable taxes such as for instance a little tax on the roads or the gasoline, little ones, just to keep all the roads going. Or a small tax on the properties to make sure that they have the gas, electricity and everything. But that is a service or a product or an article that you understand. And you can understand it and you can pay it, if it is reasonable.

But how can you understand a government taking over 50% of your working wage in addition to those. They don't tell you what they do with all the money. And the insurance companies don't tell you what they do with all the money they collect.

You figure it out some time by the number of people in the country employed or driving a car multiplied by the amount you have to pay in one year for your insurance and your taxes and figure out, just how much money that is, going through the government or through the insurance companies and then divide it by the number of people in the country and see if you get that much exchange back. You find you don't.

So, where does it go? Well, a lot of that money is going into methods of controlling you so that you won t ask those kind of questions. A lot of it is going in the public scenario so that you will realize "I m glad they have all these weapons and somebody is taking care of it over there."

So to keep people under control when they are able to think, they must get very clever. They must take any group that starts to protest and make sure it is not listened to. They must make sure that any individual who writes a book or something like that does not get it into the bookstores. They must make sure that anyone who comes up with a much better way of living is actually made a terrible person with all the press and reports that they can find.

And they must keep telling you lies. Such as "You only live once." "You are an animal." "You are going to get sick and you are going to die sometime in you life." "You need Protection from all the bad people in the other countries."

These kinds of lies. Another thing is, "You shouldn't think about the mind. It s dangerous. That's best left in the hands of those qualified to do so." (Who have the marvellous technologies of taking out a light bulb and inserting somebody s hand into an electric shock, or putting the electrodes on the head. And all done with great scientific precision.) And anyone who believes that %his bullshit works I would love to see them hold two bare wires from a light socket in their hands for a while to get better. Anyone could test it in their house. You don't need a psychiatrist at a very high fee to find out that it is a very overt product. But look how it is promoted! You see what I mean.

The whole world, the western world especially, is sitting in a made-up series of lies. I give you another one. What about astrology? Anyone, who examines astrology will find out that it could have only one purpose: and that purpose is to keep you on this planet. Because it s nowhere else where you could get star-charts from and your planetary movements except from this planet. In actual fact astrology is an implant that was given to thetans long ago on the track and it was said to predict what your life is going to be like in a body, and you better follow or you are getting a lot of trouble. And to follow it you have to stay on the earth and keep watching the stars and the planets. So it makes a wonderful way to keep people on the planet not wanting to go elsewhere. A great trap.

And they make you afraid, for instance, to go to some other countries outside of Europe for instance, because it s so much trouble out there, it s so much crime, it s so much terrible people. You see it in the newspapers every day.

All this is created. It s a game to keep everyone's attention firmly fixed and firmly afraid of doing anything except what they hear and what they are told. In actual fact, when you go around the world to different countries -I have in Africa, South America, Central America, and of course all the countries in Europe- you find, that people, if you treat them as a thetan plus a body normally, (unless they are very keyed in or aberrated), they are very much the same all around. They all like the same things. They are trying to survive. And they are trying to make a better life for themselves and they are very friendly. They are not enemies.

Man is basically good, LRH said. He said also a very interesting thing on an OT briefing tape in 1952. I don't know if I quote it exactly, but you will get the meaning. He said that if someone wanted to control you, they would have to lie to you. And then he said, "If someone is lying to you, or more, anyone who is lying to you, is trying to control you." That's a very deep statement.

Anyone who is lying to you is trying to control you. So when a person says, "he, this newspaper story, I know, that's not true, it s only a little bit, some is true, but the rest is totally false." then, who ever wrote that story or their senior or their boss is trying to control you. That's how that goes.

And you have used it in your daily life, I bet. Somebody is upset. You go over to him and say, "Oh, that's alright, it s going to be alright. You are OK." You know that it is not OK. The truth is that it is not OK. That the person has an ARC-break or something that has to be handled. But using all that "OK, relax" and "all will be alright", what do you think you are trying to do? You are trying to control it to stop that dramatization. You are trying to control it. That's why Scientology is so valuable. Because a Scientologist will look at it, and say "tell me more about it", and he can talk about it and get rid of the charge. Or, if he is an auditor he can get in session and say, "Do you have an ARC-Break, present time problem," and get the data from that person, because that person has the truth.

And that is the difference between a control operation and a freeing operation. In the control operation they will lie to you and they will evaluate for you, and they will tell you, what is true for you. "Oh, you are getting old, take it easy... you must go to a doctor two times a year for a check-up." I haven t been to the doctor in 20 years. What for?

So the thing is, in a freeing operation, they will tell you the truth. But more importantly, they will ask you what your truth is. Moreover, the communication is free, is open. And you learned that in auditing to tell the difference between what is a person s own communication and which communication they are repeating, that comes from somebody else.

There is an interesting policy about this called "The Third Party Law", where LRH even says that this is one of the major policies that in ancient civilizations has been out. No one understood the third party law. And that is one reason they failed, because they did not spot who was doing it.

Here in Frankfurt, what we are doing is making OTs. And an OT is a being who is at cause over matter, energy, space, time, thought and life. Or you could also look at it as a person who is cause over his dynamics. Because all these things are in the dynamics as well.

And it s a gradient, because you can be more at cause, more at cause, more at cause. And you can even get at cause over other dynamics as well, especially when you start creating products.

So, what we want to do is create that operation that leads towards freedom. And not one that leads you into being at effect or being controlled.

It is unnecessary to control people when they have their own sense of ethics. And as they go up the bridge they will develop their own sense of ethics and apply it to all dynamics.

This is why you see different grades of OTs and phenomena on the bridge. You have probably known OTs that don't seem very causative. For instance, they may can keep their body pretty healthy but they are still having situations on the second dynamic or third dynamic. And they never even moved onto the forth or the seventh dynamic. It s a gradient. And you find others that can do more things on some other dynamics. Well, as you go up the levels on the grade chart then you will find that you become more cause on all of those dynamics and all of those areas. And the main thing you want to see is more people doing it.

Because you always like to have a good game and good communication, and if you don't have anybody to communicate with it s very lonely. You have to restrict all of your areas of information and knowledge and so on and only speak about those things which other people can have.

So there are actually two solutions: You can Q and A and go back down scale and become just a human being who believes he is a body. Or you can try to get other people up to where you can have friends across all the dynamics.

Now with these data you can start looking around you in life, and I advise you to read more of LRH s books, especially "Creation of Human Ability", the Axioms, and other of his books, your dictionaries, Tech- and Admin Dictionaries, and really get an idea what this is all about. It is something that I have been waiting for, and I know a lot of you have been waiting for, for a long long time in this universe.

And I believe that we should not Q and A and start reducing our cause level just because there are still some suppressives around and implanters who want to control your mind and your body and your thoughts because that is the way down into succumb.

So this is what you look at when you are going up the OT levels. You look at this very carefully and it all becomes fun. It becomes a game. Realize that you can be, or do, or play at any level. You can go into a place, where people believe they are bodies and play like you are a body. You don't have to agree to it. You can just play it. But you can always be creating a better world and a better set of dynamics for yourself and others.

And if you look at yourself at the top of the freeing movement, then you realize, that it is our job to make sure the others don't Q and A. The people who are believing in control, let them make Q and A. Because they are all thetans as well. They just became so used to it over the centuries and years and years of the track they can t see any bigger. It s like people who are totally in astrology. They will tell you how wonderful it is. And they also won t have any idea or hope or any purpose of leaving the planet.

The implanters who are putting these overt products on the thetans for so many years and so on, added to the own overts of everyone on the track of knocking out other people s dynamics just brought the whole game down to a rather dull level.

LRH states in Volume 2 of the Red Volumes in an HCOB on randomity, he says "the randomity level of Earth is somewhat like a snail crawling across a lawn on a hot summer day." He also stated on a Briefing Course tape, that "you haven t done anything in this life that could aberrate you". You may have restimulated something that you did get aberrated by in the past, but you haven t done anything in this life that is really aberrative.

Because your cause level back the track was a lot higher than it is now. And the things you did that brought you from OT all the way down to where you just became a PC some time in this life were much more powerful than the things you have done in this life. Realize, your state of ability before was without all the knowledge and the data we now have.

So when you move back up toward OT it is not only the abilities you gain back, but you have the technical data, the basics, the axioms and the knowledge o use it correctly. And use it for the betterment of the games and improvement of dynamics, and to get more people able to play. So that's what it is all about, that is what we are doing here. And that is, what LRH intended to do when he started writing his books and to audit.

He never has changed that purpose. The people, who are lying to you about him, about LRH, they are lying in the newspapers, in the RTC, and so on... are trying to control you. The people who are writing the stories about him in the papers are trying to control you. If you want to find out, what LRH really intended for this planet read his books. If he had any other purpose he wouldn't have written those books. He wouldn't have given you 2000 tapes about how to get free. In other words, he was trying to free you. It is only people that are lying to you that are trying to control you.

So this, I hope, gets spread out widely through the free zone, and people take another look at all these rumors and stories and everything they hear and go back to source and read what LRH wrote and what he said on the tapes.

You have also heard, "if it isn't written, it isn't true". But the opposite isn't necessarily true either. If it is written it does not always mean it is true. There have been many lies written.

That was only stated in policy as the first point to consider to avoid rumor lines. It was first to get in writing, and then check it our. See if it was true, if it really came from LRH or not. And you can always tell whether something came from LRH or not, because if it did come from LRH it would be in line with his basic purposes and goals given in his books and tapes.

So, I hope that I have been able to tell you, one, what a product is, two, what making a product called an OT is all about, and three, what the overt product makers and the control operations are all about as well.

I think I have made it pretty clear there and always, when I come to those points I realize that I couldn't have been standing here talking unless I had absorbed and duplicated a lot of this knowledge during this lifetime. That is the certainty of it, from having used this and applied this and seen it work, knowing it is a high quality product.

The knowledge applies, it works. And again, we have to acknowledge that LRH has put it there for us to learn and to use and play a better game.

So on that note I would like to end this Tech Briefing No. 3 and encourage anyone or any auditing group that is around the planet, if they want to connect up with the Frankfurt group -which we are calling Ron's Organization and Network for Standard Technology, which abbreviates to RON S- if they want to be part of that network which believes, or let s say knows or has confidence in these very some things (because believe is a little bit lower on the scale than knowingness). If you really apply that and you really apply that and you really see it works, then you know it works. Then those people will join in that agreement and that understanding and that confidence and I believe we can create in the coming year a very strong new civilization based on the truth and based on the creative abilities of the thetans and OTs we are making. And improving their abilities to where they can have a New Civilization.

And with the full confidence and other people supporting these postulates in the coming year we can create a very strong New Civilization which is based on freedom and people moving up this gradient to OT. And we will all be able to play a better game and have a lot of fun.

TECH BRIEFING NO. 5

Captain Bill Robertson

14th September 1985

CLEARS AND ABOVE

This is the 14th of September 1985 and is just a little organizational and technical briefing here. The data here we have is, that people involved here, are wanting to make a technical team, all right? That's what you are here to do, make a technical team to handle not only the point of getting guys up the bridge and out of the soup. The exit-point type of action here, where we really handle people and beings of all types, but also you want to eventually have the skill to handle the Implanter guys, all right?

To do that, you have to confront a few things. That's a very good purpose by the way, because I haven't found many people that have enough courage to even want to do it, or even admit that they still may be around; but of course they are, because we are still around, and it's silly to think, that just because we are around, the other guys aren't around; that's not the way to think.

If you look at it logically, you look at all of why we are doing Scientology here in the first place on this planet, and you find out, that we're doing it here because this is a real aberrated area of the universe. And why is it so aberrated, and why did Elron Elray - or Ron - want to make this the testing place for the tech, is because a lot - well, all the people here have received one or more - I would say in most cases more - Implantings on the track, right?

And they have been very confusing and very degrading to the Thetan, and make the Thetan very confused about who he is, what he is doing, why does he think, he is a meat body, why does he have to live on this planet, why can't he exteriorize, and all of that stuff; in other words, they FORGET, that they are spiritual beings, all right?

Now, that you all know from Scientology basics - but the rest of it you can read in HISTORY OF MAN and basic books like SCIENTOLOGY 8008, THE AXIOMS, those are the things that tell you what happened to a Thetan, and what he should be like, when he's cleaned up, all right?

But here we are just dealing with a special thing and that is logically, when you look at it - now take the viewpoint of the Implanter for a minute, this is the only way to see it ethically, and when you are in Ethics you have to be able to confront evil, right? You have to confront evil, to handle Ethics, I mean you can't just sit there and think "everybody is great ..."

Ok, so to do that, you have to look at: What is the game of an Implanter, what do they want to achieve, right? Well, it's pretty obvious that they want to achieve an enslavement or a control over all Thetans, for their own reasons, all right? So, they want to stay at the top and make all the other people stay down here. That's the basic suppressive mechanism. So, it's a game.

All life is a game. This is a very serious one, of course, on that level it's very serious, when you first contact it, it's here is the Implanters and they are trying to put all Thetans down here, so they can control everything. Have all the wealth, all the Planets, all the control-lines. Now, if you're an Implanter and you're doing that, what would be the most dangerous thing to your game? That's where you must set this, you see?

Well, first would be a person, that understands what an Implant is and what a Thetan is. That would be very dangerous. Because Implanting by it's very nature has to keep you in mystery - it has to - keep the person confused, and keep them: "what happened, what happened ....?", you see? It has to be secrecy, it has to be 1.1, somebody around understood what a Thetan really was and what an Implant really was.

And of course LRH understood both of those. So, of course they had to attack LRH and his family and Scientology. So you know, those were really after LRH, I mean knocking off Quentin, throwing his wife in jail, law-suits against him, several attempted assassinations, that were prevented in the Sea Org, a lot of things, right? This is - would happen to anyone that tried to say: "you know what Thetans are and I know what Implanters are." Right?

You have to be a little careful. 'Course you don't want to stop doing what you're doing, but just be ready to watch for these guys trying to come along the line and stop you from doing that, you see? Ok. Now that's the ONE thing they would be afraid of, it's an individual, that knows about Thetans and Implants, all right?

Now, what's even more dangerous for them? You see, 'cause they're organized... Implanters are organized - they have Implants like you have cassette records or books in here on your shelves. All right? I mean, if they want to say: "Ah, we're going to handle the population of England. Ok. What's the Implant we have here that would be very useful to restimulate in England? Ah, here are some good ones about the coalmines, ah, here's the 'Coalmine Implant' for instance, you know. So, let's put all that on television. A lot of these pictures on television. Key everybody in. HAHA, blowing up coalmines, people dying from gas in the coalmines, that's good" - good for them, you see?

They might even send out a terrorist team to blow up a coalmine, just so they get the pictures on television. I mean, that's the way they operate, you see? They actually think like that, you see? "Oh, these are getting unruly, you know, they're not paying their taxes and stuff, ah, get some coalmine implants and let's key them in."

Or if it's rain, you know, rain, they say: "Oh, we got any good rain pictures, rain pictures of Implants here let's key them in on rain, yeah, here's some where they get sick, when it rains. Ok, let's put this on television."

Somebody writes a story, here's a guy who wrote a story about rain making people die from pneumonia, and all that and the 40 days of rain in the Bible - "Let's put a lot of that on television and key everybody in." They do that! Implanters think like that, right? "Let's get the files." They know what pictures people have already - of course you are Clear, you don't have pictures - but the composite case has pictures, and the bodies might be having pictures sticking to them - ok.

Well, what's MORE dangerous than one person - that knows about Implants and knows about Thetans - is a GROUP. Hmm? 'Cause they're organized and they know they can't be really hurt by anything, except an organized group, all right? And they know also that if it's just on the body dynamics, if it's just a group that's out for money, if it's a group that's out for control of the land, if it's an army, if it's, you know, business, trying to take over their businesses, they can handle that, 'cause they can restimulate those Thetans that were doing that, because those guys are operating on the BODY dynamic and they're operating on a Thetan dynamic, so they can handle them by keying in their Thetan, and that's it.

So, they don't worry about that too much, and even print it in the newspapers: "This guy tried to take over IBM and he failed and we'll put him in jail" - and stuff, discourages people from trying to do something against the Implanters.

Anyway, what they are really afraid of is a group, that is on the 7th Dynamic. In other words - Thetans that understand this, and are organized and trying to handle it, all right? They're afraid of that. So the first thing they try to is to make it seem that there is not such things happening, and nobody should believe them and they're all crazy and they're all hallucinating. That's what they're trying to do - also all "Science Fiction", that's it. Try to do that with Scientology, and so on, you know, all the stories: "Oh, Scientology is just Science Fiction" - you see? Ok.

But the group - when you look at it in present time, and right now today - when they see a group in present time - they're also afraid of another thing: that that group might have existed before, ' cause they know THEY existed before, so it might be the same group coming after them, that came after them before, and often got them, and often won, breaking up their Implants or arresting their top guys in it, or whatever...

Like LRH did in "Revolt in the Stars", he ended up arresting and capturing the guys, who were doing the Implants, and the destruction of the populations - he arrested and brought them to court, to trial. Ok. So, they are afraid of that.

Now do you think in the long history of the universe, which is gone on a long time, that anything that's happening now on this planet is the first time things happened? Or the first instance of that? It's not! Because the group, which is getting together to fight Implanters on this particular planet NOW, probably was the same group, one of the same groups, that did it before, see? You understand...? Now, some of the times they won, and some of the times they lost. Any game - you win some and you lose some, right?

Now we got a real good Tech, see? We can win all the time, I guarantee you, we can win all the time now, if we just get the Tech done.

Ok, but sometimes you did lose. Now, what happens when you lose, what is an Implanter going to do, if you're the one that get's captured and you're one of the dangerous group members, right? They're going to give you a special treatment, right? A special treatment is going to be to prevent those too dangerous from coming up, they're going to give you a special treatment, let's call it PDH or Implant: Pain, Drug, Hypnosis, Implant - all the same area - but they're going to make you believe, first of all that you're not a Thetan. That you're a body or a - you know - just something, but not a Thetan.

Second thing they're going to make you do - trying to make you believe - is that you're very suspicious of anybody that talks to you about Implants or anything like that, and you don't believe them - in other words: they try to keep the group from getting back together. They're trying to make you totally stay by yourself, hm? They try to keep the group split apart, they might even install false Overts & Withhold Mechanism between the group, you see, putting a guy here and somebody over here, that he believes is a member of his group, and then saying: "Now you just did this to this person, and that person did that to you..." - and Overts and Motivators and all that - "you're going to be punished for it now..." - and then - zapp, zapp, zapp - with the big electricity shocks, so that the persons then go: "Ha, ooh! I must have done something bad, I got a really bad shock" -you see? And the next time they meet that person in another lifetime, or on down the track, you know, and then they go: "Huuuh, I want to have nothing to with that person" - you understand? That's the second thing they're going to try to do: keep the group from getting back together.

First thing is going to try to make them think they're not Thetans. Now, I know that all of us - at one point we didn't really have the idea what a Thetan is. I didn't - early in this life I was going along: "Yeah, but there is something more, something more." I didn't know what to call it exactly. You know - "ME, I feel more than just a body..." - but I didn't know exactly what it was.

But everybody got to the State of Clear right here, so they do understand that they're beings, right, thanks to LRH. So we got out of that first trap. We now realized again that we are Thetans. Second thing is, we realized that there are other members of the team that we want to handle things with. You know, to handle the Implanters.

Then we get into the third thing they will do - that's simply distraction. A distraction, you know what I mean? To take your attention away from doing this, and put it over here. Ja? Q & A, make you Q & A, that's what it is. They say: "Well, IF they realize they're Thetans" - 'course the Implanters are thinking of - "IF they ever realized they're Thetans, and IF they ever get back together as a group, and IF they run out this stuff about they have conflicts between them themselves, well, let's get them something else to worry about, you know, let's give them some distractions, all right?" PTPs, ARC Breaks, Problems, Missed Withholds, you know everything...

Now one of the easiest things to give people, to distract them, is of course anything to do with the body, ja? If they figure they're going to have you in a body, or you're going to be operating from a body after they knock you with the Implant, then any distractions with the bodies: "So let's give them a whole thing of programming them to get sick. Let's give them a whole thing of programming to have 2D troubles. Let's give them a whole thing to have them programmed - to have troubles with eating, you know, - can't eat certain foods, and ah, must eat-can't eat, ah, food, ah, I'm worried, disease, I don't know whether I should eat..." you know? "Let's give them a lot of problems: food, sex, bodies, sickness - yeah - illness, that's good. What else? How about air? Let's give them some trouble with air. Breathing - yeah - all right, pollution - yeah - that's a good thing." Worry, worry, worry.

They try to restimulate with all this stuff, that's all. So if you give a person a body, enough to worry about, you know, and you can do it many ways, by sickness or illness, good food or bad food, good air or bad air, 2D problems, you know - should it be this person, I'm jealous, Missed Withhold - all this kind of stuff, you know, sex flows, all of that.

And they can give also things to do with "bodies killing each other", you see, so keep showing a lot of pictures of wars, bodies killing each other, and movies and stuff like that, and that gets people worried about they might die, you see, that distracts them.

So they have to buy life insurance, and then you get down to the BIG distraction, which is they have to have money to do all this: to go see the doctor, to go to buy the food, to have 2Ds, to have good air around, to keep from getting in wars, you gotta have to defend yourself, you've got to have a house to protect yourself, you've got to have locks on the doors - all of this. So you make an economic trap, to hold all this together, you see? A nice economic trap and then people are totally distracted, they have to keep getting the money to handle these problems all the time.

And if they are doing that, they can't realize - they hope, they hope - that they can't realize that they are Thetans, they should be working together as a group, and they should be organizing to knock out the Implanters, you see?

Now, all this goes on all the time on planet Earth. It's going on continually, it has been going on. When you're at the effect of it, you don't even notice it as a plan. When you come above the level realizing that you're a Thetan - a Clear starts looking around and you all say: "Hey, this is crazy". And they only do what they have to do - to do basic survival, and so on - and then always keeping some attention going on the purpose. And then as you get more and more ability - like as you guys all get trained as auditors - then you can be more full time on the purpose, you see, you get stronger and stronger, klar? Alles klar?

You see, training auditors is another thing that Implanters would not like, you see? 'Course people can't get out of those traps by just reading a book, they have to be audited - they can maybe get part of the way out - but they can't get all the way out without some good solo auditing, all right? So, if you have the purpose to get trained and so on like that, and realize all these other distractions - or what is meant to keep you from doing that - is the Q & A mechanisms, you know.

So, if you want to get trained, get together, have your common purposes and so on and just take the other stuff and laugh at it and say: "Well, that's probably some shit the Implanters laid on us, man, let's just go ahead and get trained. Or let's just go ahead and enjoy life, you know, enjoy really."

First give an example of what is life to be a Clear, to be more or less knowing what the game is, so that other people can see, that you're not affected by it, you see? So, you have a duty as an auditor, and as an OT or Clear, to give an example to people, say: "Hey, you don't have to Qing & Aing and restimulated by all that stuff."

Yeah, as you really get up there you know that: "Hey, man, the attacks are getting really heavy on the 7th Dynamic!" Take it as a win! You weren't getting attacked ten years ago by the 7th Dynamic. They held you totally under control, all the way pushed down to think you were a body and you were probably going back and forth between the hospital and the job and the food store and the television, you know. Now, you're becoming an auditor, oh boy!"Hey, look man, I must be winning, the Implanters are attacking me, that's great!" you know.

And then you pop through that, you finally just pop right through, and as you will do the Solo Course, you do the Clearing Course, you do the OT Levels, you come through that, and you're just looking and: "These guys are crazy. They're just crazy, aberrated Thetans, that are doing this game on Earth, to just keep people keyed in and so on."

That's it, it's all it is. Then you can pick out, what is the good part of the civilisation, and what is not the good part of the civilisation, and what is the not so good parts are the ones controlled by the Implanters, but they don't control everything, 'cause there's too much Theta around. There is too much Theta, because people do survive. And they survive because of their Theta, not because of the Implanters...

So, there are some good Thetans around, you have good ARC, good friendship, good group, good culture, good environments, there are good places around, good things, good people.

So, you can recognize that and sort of: "call them over to your side" so to speak - and the auditor that will be getting PCs, ja, getting people on Comm Courses, and things like that, you just say:"Hey, come on, you know, we can help you." - but you want to always remember that you are the prime subjects of the game on the Implanter's side, right?

The Implanters are looking for people popping up above the level of confusion to become: "HEY!" - you know - "Haha, Implanters over there, look what they're doing" - you know - "Haha...". Do you see they will see them - "Oh, oh, there come some people, that could knock us out" - 'cause they're easy to knock out.

All their power is obtained by restimulation of their earlier stuff they've done with Thetans. That's all the power they have. Everybody would laugh at them, if there wasn't their ability to key in people, you know, it's true you get to the point on the OT Levels, where anything they can throw at you, you just laugh at it. It's so, so silly, you know.

Even if it's horrible flows, and beams, and horrible pictures, and so on, you know. I mean they try to key people in with horror movies and stuff like that. Some people can sit there and look at a horror movie and say: "Yeah! Ok. Great! That's a good... I see how they did that in Hollywood!" you know, it doesn't bother him. Other people go: "Aaaaagh..." - like that. Well, they're more effect of the restim.

So anyway, when the Implanters see you coming up above the level of the Humans, and you're now up here as a Thetan and you're organized, then they say: "Oh, oh, those guys are playing against us."

So, you're on a game level now: 7th Dynamic - it's like a chess game, you know - 7th Dynamic:

here's the Implanters, here's the guys trying to free people, see? So, then you just have to realize that once you get there, and once you realize you are there, the best thing to do is to get more able than the Implanters.

And you can do that very quickly. A solo auditor that goes on through OT III and onto Super NOTs, is more able than an Implanter. He knows more about it - I mean, just knowing LRH's data, you know more about the mind and the Thetan, than the Implanters do. 'Cause we can undo them, we can get people out of them, all right?

But remember, you should be now, as a team, above the level of getting restimulated by these Implants and things like that, right? And don't fall for the silly games.

Now the other thing I want to mention is: don't try to get somebody to Itsa about things that are above the case level or should be handled in session. You understand? In other words: there are some things that can only be handled in session, right? And those are things - well, as Franz can tell you - they have to do with the case data, and the ability of a solo auditor to handle, and the level he's on.

So, I can talk about Implants, 'cause all of you have seen them in your folder, and you know what LRH says about them and so on, right? But then, to go in and try to figure out very little things that happened in that Implant, right? - let me tell you, some of them are very, very tricky. If you got a thing F/Ning, and it's not bothering you anymore, leave it, it'll come up later, you handle it on a higher level. But they have - but it's not bothering you anymore, ok, it'll still be there - if you have attention on it - it will still be there later to handle.

You don't have to - you know, somebody comes in and says: "You know, oh God, I've got this pain here, I think it's, you know, from an old thing they drilled into my head or something..."

"Yeah, well, tell me about it."

And the guy says: "Yeah, well, you know, feels like a drill in my head, you know, oh, maybe it was an Implant, you know, they implanted me, put me on a pole, and drilled that thing through the body. It was...a doll body, that's what it was, and they drilled this thing through, but something else...eh,eh..."

But you don't have to go and find out, you DON'T HAVE TO find out ALL the details of the Implant, because that will come up later, you'll find it, you'll be more experienced on Implanting, than anybody in the world, when you run through OT III and Super NOTs, you understand Implanting better than anybody.

But you don't have to find out how they did this whole thing, all you have to do is: date it and locate it - and it will key out. Or a little even if some of the charge may erase and blow. So, all the guys has to really know is: "Oh, it isn't now, it happened back here on the track, oh yeah, over there..." - POOM - "Ahh..." - and it relieves.

Because what they're doing is: trying to restimulate the earlier one in present time by doing different beams, radiations, television programs, news stories, etc. like that, they try to keep that restimulated.

You can also at the lower levels key it out, not even by D/L, but just finding when it keyed in: "Oh, when did you start feeling that?"

"Oh, yesterday about 3 o'clock."

"Ok, yesterday, 3 o'clock. Where were you yesterday 3 o'clock?"

"Well, I was at my house and was watching television."

"Oh, ja, ja, what did you see on television?"

"Oh, ja, ja, I saw how people get shot in their head. Oh ja, that's what it was. Haha..."

So, at a lower level, he can get it just by getting the lock of the restimulation off. For a person that's Clear, they can D/L the Implant itself and that blows it even further away. It didn't - not likely to even restim him again, you see? So, a lower level guy gets it off as a lock, and a Clear gets it off - as a sort of - like a date/located engram, and then on Super NOTs and OT III you actually can find out EXACTLY everything that happened, right? And you erase it and anything connected with it.

And it's not advised for a lower level, 'cause you have to be a solo auditor, you have to be trained, and you have to be able to handle the stuff very fast and understand what it's about, right? So, the best thing you can do when you get together as a group, is to get yourself up the bridge to that point, right?

Now, I don't want you to think, that the whole of OT Levels is "negative gain", which means only things being done to you that go away, right? You also get a lot of abilities back, and you find out WHY you don't - weren't able to hold those abilities and they come back to you as "positive gain" as well.

So, those are the two sides of it: You find out - yes - what has been done; but you also find out what you DID and also your abilities come back as these things, which were blocking your abilities, leave or get as-ised, right? So, there you come out of it having a lot more ability.

You have all experienced telepathy and different things turning on as you go up the bridge. You get more telepathic, more control, you get more knowledge of your whole track, you get more certainty of your beingness and your identity, you don't particularly fear for your body anymore, you may even find you have a "preferred name" as a Thetan, rather than as a body, you know, so all this shows that you're coming along up the bridge.

But I just want to caution you, don't get too diggy into the details of these things, because they ARE very complicated, they HAVE to be complicated otherwise any guy walking on the street could certainly read a funny-book about it or something, or an LRH book and totally get out of it. But he doesn't. Why not? Because it does need auditing and it does need training and it does need a special handling of the whole complexity of it, all right? THAT - then you can get through. I guarantee you, right? So, as a group you can operate very well, just keep in comm, but don't try to dig in on it, just date/locate - psst - blown - out.

Or: "When did you first notice that?"

"Ah, this day", and you can do it by the lock, when the lock keyed in, which restimulated the earlier one.

Or in session you can do a D/L - as you know. The date-to-blow-locate-to-blow-thing erases all. Doesn't mean it's totally gone - something is gone though - it does relieve it, and erase the parts that were sticking to you.

You will find out on OT III and Super NOTs that there may be more to it, and then it'll be totally gone when you handle it there, it will be totally gone, can never affect you again. You'll never be restimulated by the Implanters again either - that's the interesting thing on those levels. Once you handle it on those levels, IT CAN NEVER BE RESTIMULATED AGAIN. 'Cause it isn't there anymore. You understand?

And that's why they're afraid, and that's why they had to take over the Church very quickly after they started getting the NOTs tech, you see? Because if the people got through - a lot of people came through and got onto NOTs - they wouldn't be able to restimulate them anymore, you see? They would loose very badly, they couldn't CONTROL THESE PEOPLE ANYMORE.

So, when you look at it from the viewpoint of an Implanter: they want to have happen exactly what the non-optimum or the problems or distractions you're having - they like that. They think that's great. You know, if you were poor and don't have any money - they like that. If we have problems with 2D or body problems or physical injuries - they like that - that's wonderful for THEM. All right?

So, remember in a game - look at it : what would be good for an Implanter? "Hey, let's don't validate that around here." - if it's a key-in, just say: "Well, that's good for the Implanters, but now, what is the date that this keyed in? When did it key in? Yesterday, the day before?" Get the thing - blow it out or put him in session and do a D/L on the actual doingness, the incident. That's a simple way to handle it until you get up there.

I don't recommend this for everybody, but a Tech-team should be knowing this, because they have to keep a total auditor attitude toward the public, toward new people, toward the PCs, etc., etc. Ok? You have to be totally able to do that, otherwise you can't hold your position very well as an auditor, you know, if you can't even communicate to the people you're doing the business with, that are auditing with you, or the PCs that are on your lines or whatever, you know.

You have to look at each of them as a person coming up there to realizing they're Thetans, realizing they're a member of a group with a purpose - or at least they certainly want to get free - and then helping them get there. And that's all you're doing in auditing, and you're doing a lot more of it on the OT Levels than you're doing at the lower levels. That's why we want you to get there.

I think that's the game LRH laid out very well and it is as he says on one of his tapes on the Class VIII Course, it has "booby-traps" at the upper levels. You should know that, that no one is going to get out of the upper levels, unless they do it the right way, they can't get through. All these guys that are still in the Church or on OT Levels having a long time and not getting through, and so on like that, they're not going to get through - they can't get through.You know why? Look at it from the viewpoint of the Implanters: they can't get through because they are not EVEN IN THE RIGHT GAME! You see? These OTs come along and say: "Yeah, I'm OT, I've just finished my NOTs."

"Well, ah, what are you doing to help handle the 4th Dynamic and the condition of the Planet?"

"Oh, I don't have to do anything about that, I'm totally f r e e...!"

He's still walking around in a body, he's still on Earth, you see? No responsibility for handling the things, he should have found out about, no responsibility for handling the situation for other beings, that are also in the same trap.

He's still in the trap himself, 'cause he's not even confronting what an Implanter's game would be, you see? - or they tell you: "Oh! The Implanters! Oh, no! That's all - haha - that's Science Fiction, LRH..., yes, it was there at the track, but it's NOT anymore, it's...(mumble)...it's COOL in PT, man, look at the Prime Minister, he's such a nice guy. And IBM, that's a great place, man, we have water fountains and air conditionings, it's FANTASTIC! Yeah, I know we're the biggest computer company in the world, I mean, we've taken over everybody... ah, I mean, ah... yeah, well... yes, well, I have my SUCCESS, I mean, my STATUS, I... yeah."

If to you a guy is talking like this, that says that he's finished, he finished NOTHING. He got to a release point on the 1st Dynamic and he said: "That's it! Ah... I feel g o o d ...I wanna stay that way. I'm not gonna confront anything else, because if I do, it might be d a n g e r o u s...!!"

That's all you got, he's a guy that has a little more 1st Dynamic Ability to - sort of - make his own survival. But he's not going to help anybody else. So, he hasn't really found out, what the game is yet, but he is still effect of it. Ok?

So, don't worry about it, we're making the real OT guys HERE in Frankfurt. And the guys associate and wants us, because... you know, why? If the other areas were making OTs, they would have come here and said: "We wanna carry on and help!" because the Sector 9 Book has been around about a year, and everybody knows about it in Australia, even New Zealand, America, Canada, England...

I haven't seen anybody coming over here saying: "HEY, I've seen what you wrote in "Sector 9", man, we wonna help handle these guys!" You know why they haven't? Because none of them had made it. None of them have got it. I only think maybe they got through OT III, but I know, none of them got through NOTs, for their first things they would have realized is: "God, we better go and help Captain Bill, he's the only fucking guy on the Planet, that's trying to get us out of this fucking mess!"

Because you can't handle those levels without running INTO that game. You can't finish the levels without running into that game, and handling that game, and it's effects on you all the way back the track. You can't DO IT! Now, all you can get is a sort of a guy, like I said, sliding out, and then being sort of 1st Dynamic - "Hehe..." - but you can't finish the levels without CONFRONTING THAT GAME! So, no one has finished those levels, because if they had finished those levels, they would have confronted the game and realized, that by the writings and data I'd been putting around, that we're the guys that are handling that game over here. And nobody has come around, except the ones you very know, you know, like the guys in Spain, and a few in Vienna, Harry Mason, a few other guys around - ja, there is a few.

But nobody from David Mayo's lines, nobody from the lines of the other independent groups over there, nobody from the Australian groups - oh, there is some good guys down there, that might be playing a game, there is a few, and they're getting more and more keeping in comm and so on, are really appreciating what we're doing.

But the big groups, independents, that I don't see them on that game level yet, but they will HAVE to be or they're not gonna make it, you see? The Implanters would just say: "Haha, get them!"

How can they handle? Only if they're not effect of them anymore, only way they can do that, is complete the levels, that's it. Once you've finished our bridge of OT III up through Super NOTs, you won't be effect of any Implanter game at all. You'll be able to make a game to handle the Implanters. You'll be able to find what they're doing, just by knowing what they're doing, wherever they are on the Planet. They can't even hide, there's no way they can hide, you know, telepathically you can just spot them, and then you can even audit them if you want, or even put Ethics in on them, if you want, you know? It's very simple, ok?

So, that's what I'm saying - it's not ok to dig in at the lower levels, until you have the tools to do it, that you get at OT III and Super NOTs - to handle the whole effects of the Implanting, right?

It is ok to find when it keyed in - key it out - it is ok to date/locate it, right, and a little Itsa, that's ok. But NOT to dig in, because you're getting into something that you can only handle with processes of OT III and above, and if you don't have them, if you're not sitting there trained as a solo auditor and able to do it, then it makes a lot of trouble for the auditor, right? Ok?

And I appreciate everybody's eagerness and so on, and I know that, it's just like: take your attention off of it, and put it on something else, pick up study, or do something, or listen to music - good New Civilizations Music - and so on, or read a book, or something. Get some HATTING on things you may need to get hatted on, you see? That's another thing that's interesting. There's a LOT of data being collected - Maria is helping me to collect, we're reading all the stuff all the time, about all the different scenarios that are going on on the Planet. All the ones they're building with the Outer-Space-People, and Secret Societies, and the Masons, and these Secret Mystery Groups, and Black Magic, and weird Medical Practices, and Hypnotism, and weird Mind Control Practices, there's a lot of stuff going on.

We're collecting a lot of data that shows just how corny the old civilization is, but you get interested in that - then you start to see that: "Hey, you don't have to get back to your earlier incidents and find out how complicated that is, just look at how they're trying to restimulate on this Planet" - and you will see: "Hey man, that's all they're doing!" You can spot all the points of restimulation on the Planet today. And it also helps you to get released on this side. Knowing how it's being kept in restim today, ok? End of lecture.

Thank you.

TECH BRIEFING No 6

"3 rd & 4 th DYNAMIC GAMES"

CAPT. BILL ROBERTSON

MUSIC BY ASTAR

Well, hello again. I hope everybody had a very good dinner downstairs or wherever. And it's still the Free Zone here, we've had no problems with that as your gentleman from Halmstad here has made very emphatically: "That you're here to stay and it is going to be free and remain free". However. I'd like to bring up a few points, now that we have established that there is to be a 3rd Dynamic of Scientologists, free, in communication, around the planet.

We have to look also at another hat. And that hat is on the 4th Dynamic. Yes. As you remember, when we were all inside of the church structure, we were told repeatedly that it was "all under control", "everything is being handled", "on the 4th Dynamic you don't need to worry about nothing", "you just go ahead and do your services and your delivery". And that was fine, except now we know that it wasn't all under control. And it wasn't all being handled. And that is one of the reasons why we now have to do it all again. Yes. Really for for the first time, yes.

It is very much like the story of the airplane they're testing out. The new Automatic Pilot in the airplane. It's a total automatically computer .controlled flight from Stockholm to San Francisco. And the plane is over the North Pole and the automatic speaker comes on - there are no pilots. on board or anything, you see, it s all automatic now, the people are sitting there, they're been automatically served their food they're automatically shown a movie, they're automatically relaxing, they have their tranquilliser - and the voice comes on and says: "You're now 30,000 feet above the North Pole the temperature outside is minus 217 degrees, and there is a storm blowing around the North Pole as you can see below you, in which - if someone was outside in that, as you' re dressed in this airplane - they would not survive for 5 minutes. But this flight is totally automatically computer controlled, and nothing can go wrong .. go wrong .. go wrong .. go wrong .. go wrong .."

OK. So much for automaticities. Again we are called upon - as products of Scientology - to take a viewpoint of causativeness. The planet, in the situation it is in, cannot be handled by automaticity. It cannot be handled by more lowering of people's awareness, so that they will not be aware of the problem. It can't be handle by more drugs, and more tranquillizes, and more TV, telling them\ that "everything is ok", and more telling you in the newspapers: "Let us handle it, it' s all cool, nothing will happen.". More bank accounts, more number accounts, it cannot be handled that way. It has to be handled by live beings - Thetans - that understand the principles of Scientology and the rights and duties of an individual and Thetans in the society.

Now that means essentially, that the people who can speak out about the 4th Dynamic, would be those who have some processing and some ethical consideration.

We cannot expect a person, who is going around and selling drugs for instance, and trying to make children into idiots by teaching them lies or rewritten history, we cannot expect those people to make decisions for the 4th Dynamic, they already have out ethics. But Scientologists do have codes of ethics and it basically comes down to the principle: The greatest good for the greatest number of Dynamics.

Now, if you have a 4th Dynamic, you have to look at the entire planet and people upon it. Because they're all involved in it. Bow, you know, Sweden has a wonderful history of research and study about the problems of what is happening in the world, and they've had many solutions to these things - and many solutions to these things - but not all of them have been adapted, and some of them are not really good solutions - as you well know.

But, right now, the major line of attack on the planet, I would say, LINE OF ATTACK, LINE OF DEVELOPMENT on the planet is toward a thing called - "Mental Control".

Now, that means, that the people who are in power on the planet believe that if they could control what you think, then you are totally under control. And in actual fact that's right, nothing wrong with that, to believe it, it IS true. If you can control what people think, you CAN control them. The only thing wrong with it is: "Wit what INTENTION are you controlling?". "What is the PURPOSE of controlling?" "Are you going to allow them to get more and more able, more and more spiritually free, or do you want them to act more and more like a white rat in a little cage?" You know, he has his little cage there, but you give him a little thing to run around in and makes him think he's free, because he keeps running all day long and he never gets to the end of it.

So, they also know, that if they can give you enough problems with your bank account and your tax man and your job and your salary and your food and your health and all of these things, then you're not free, you just think you have a lot of problems, and you have to get through these and then somewhere on the other side you will expand, yes?

But then you realize that this is not entirely the case, not entirely right. Somebody is setting this up for you, is setting it up in different countries of Europe and in different countries around the world, especially in the European and American Civilization.

I had been researching into this, because I was forced into the research, following a data trail. The data trail was: "How was the Church of Scientology suppressed and who did it?" That was the data trail. And I found out HOW it got suppressed and WHO did it. But I also found out, that the guys who did it, or the beings who did it, were not only interested in suppressing Scientology and keeping all the knowledge for themselves, and using the power of mental control on the civilization - because you see, Scientologists are the one people , who are very difficult to put mental control on, it's very difficult to mentally control a Scientologist - takes a lot of effort, a lot of money, a lot of lawyers, hey?

So, anyway, I've found out they're not only interested in Scientology but other religions as well, political parties, educational institutions, financial institutions - in other words: there was an entire - shall we say - plan, to take control of the planet - economically, financially, spiritually and individually - on EVERYONE.

Now, this is not such a good idea if they don't have any plan for rehabilitating anyone, if they don't have any plan for getting anyone more aware. And they don't. What they have a plan for doing is: reducing your space and awareness down to about this big, and putting you in a box about that big, so that you think you're free. If your awareness is only this big and you're in a box that big, you haven't found your limits of awareness yet, so, as far as you are concerned - you're free.

The only thing wrong is: this goes totally against the purpose of Scientology, which is to get your awareness expanded out as far as you can expand it. And if ;you do that, you find yourself rapidly running into the walls of these boxes. And I don't know in Sweden how much of a box it is they are putting around people here, but in other countries, they put quite small boxes around them, and if you are anything above Grade Zero, you run right into them! Hahaha!

And in some places you run into them on Dianetics as well, but let's say Grade Zero. You start to put out your comm-lines, you see, and you put out these comm-lines and you say: "Hey, well, Scientology, yes, that's a very good idea! Man, I'll put out my comm-lines. I'm gonna make a new product here. New industry. New things. I'm going to get in comm with these people over here that are working on health food and clean atmosphere and so on like this. I'm going to work with these people and - aah ... yeah, we're collecting a lot of money here and we gather this up - and then all of a sudden you find out that somebody is against you.

And the next thing you know, you've been investigated by the tax people. And the next thing you know they're holding your bank accounts and you can not move anymore, you can not travel, you can not use any money, they're investigating you because of these people you were talking to as apparently he was on the wrong side of the political fence, or he might be a bad guy, he might be a KGB-agent or something.

But this is all "Bull", you know? "Hey, that's not true! I want to expand!". "So I will go somewhere here to a lawyer and try to get this handled." And the lawyer tells you": "No, that's not worth it. Don't fight it. That's the city hall. You can't fight city hall. What you better do is get out of that group and go back to your business."

And the business you're in, it says: "Well, now, we don't want you. We've heard about the scandal you were having in the paper over there and ..., you with that crazy people that want a clean environment and that's against industry, and industry, you know, if they don't have industry, they don't have jobs. Then they are all out of work, so it's not good to have a clean environment, even if it is killing us, I mean, ... somehow it's logical, I don't know."

But anyway, all of that is: Gradually, you get all these losses and you get pushed down in that little box, and you sit there and watch the television hoping: "Well, I hope somebody does something about it some day."

That's only what you run into on Grade Zero! And then Grade One: "Solve! We solve all the problems of the civilization! Ah, I got an idea. I don't like all this banking stuff. I must set up a new way, where people can have a real stable exchange medium and currency, and they're going to be able to do free trade and all that kind of stuff!" - and then it goes - Boom ...! - and you're in court, halt your life and you're wondering: "What happened here?" - you know? And the banks are all denying you any credit, and you can't work with them, and all that stuff. You went against the plan. Now you're in the box. So,

Needless to say as you go up the Grade Chart: ARC, Service Facsimiles....O/W's of course in there, and you go up through to Clear and you go up on the OT-Levels, and you find it increasingly difficult to stay in your box. All right. You know? You realize, I mean, you may even find it hard to keep your cat in the box, but imagine, these guys are trying to work or weave a whole web of mental control around YOU, so that YOU stay in your box. Then you have the idea.

Now, there are certain plans that they're put in Europe to put people in their boxes. One of them is - we have found out - working this thing through the - what's it called - the European Parliament. I understand that Sweden is not in this "common market" thing and so on like that, but it doesn't matter. This is not a "common market". The "common market" is only the first stage. You have to think of: "What would constitute a government? What would constitute a world government?" Eh? It would be the same like a state government, right?, or a country government. But, you would expect them to come out and say: "Hey, we wanna create a world government." "Anybody for it? "against it?" "How about the constitution and all that?" You would expect that. But that isn't the way they're doing it.

They failed two times like that. Once with the League of Nations, and once with the United Nations. So now they are doing it a different way: They are doing the government UPSIDE DOWN. Upside down. Backwards. Backwards! The last things first and the first things last. This is so nobody notices.

So, the first thing that they put in was the European Common Market, because that's the regulatory body, which regulates trade and exchange between the Nations. Believe me, they REALLY REGULATE it! There are a lot of people mad at what they're doing. But one thing they're doing is making agreements with every other nation on Earth, and every other trade group on Earth, so they have a covert connected network of trade. By the statistics in these books, they now control 40% of the world's trade. It is controlled by the common market, or it passes through it's hands in some fashion or another. They're also linked up to the world bankers, who control 40% of the world's money.

Now, you know yourself, if somebody controls 40% of the WORLD'S money and the WORLD'S trade, then they are somebody that most people HAVE to deal with, most countries HAVE to deal with them. Now that is just what they are promoting. That's what they promote in here. They may control a LOT more. May be well over 50% by now.

Now, once you know these facts, you want to look at: "What are they going to do next?" Well, what they gonna do next, now that they have the actual bureaucracy and administration and the government regulation part in, they are going to put the government on TOP of it. And the government on top of it is composed of these European Parliament people. They meet in this building in Strasbourg, France, right? And there's one member for every 500,000 Europeans. And they intend also to expand "Europe" to be 21 different countries with a total of 400 million people.

That INCLUDES Sweden, I think, as well as all the way round to Yugoslavia. All the eastern Communist Block countries. Includes Spain and Portugal. All of those. They already have it all planned out.

Now, what they are doing is: putting in this lower assembly or your parliament or your House of Representatives, a lower house of the government. Over on the side of this, they will also have a thing called the European Council, which is your Head of state of the European Nations, meeting together. Like a senate, or a House of Lords, or a senior house of the Parliament.

However, that's not all. Once they get that done, they now will force a little bit more on the top and they will put ... by election from these people in the Parliament here ... they will elect - first, they will have a President of the Parliament for one year rotating and then they will have a President at the Council over here, like that President of the senate or the Head Chairman of the House of Representatives. They will be here. Then they will put in a Prime Minister, a Prime Minister and a Cabinet. All right?

Now, I can read you exactly the statement that says they are gonna do that. I mean, I'm not just "making this up", right? It says: "The Prime Minister of the Union, " - that's the European Union - " is to be elected by the Parliament of the Union acting on a proposal from the Council of the Union, for the period of the future electoral term, which is 5 years. He is to propose Ministers of the Union for his Cabinet ..." (And so on. Defence, trade,atomic energy, all that stuff.) ".. to the President of the Union for appointment." Now, the President of the Union of course is this one year post over here - that I told you about. It's the President of the Parliament. And the government of the Union is dependent on the confidence of the Parliament of the Union. It may pass a constructive vote of "no confidence" in the Prime Minister of the Union. Votes of "no confidence" may also be passed on individual Ministers.

Now, this means the Prime Minister will represent 400 million people, 21 Nations, and all of Europe. That will be the largest power of the world. Larger than the Soviet Union, larger than America, larger than the Third World. It is the biggest, it will be the biggest, that's the way they plan it.

They will be forcing the other "smaller powers" like America and Russia and so on into agreements, because you see, they have the power. If they sided with Russia then they can defeat the United States, if they side with the United States, they can defeat Russia. It's very simple. So, they can force them into agreement, to come under control, as they wish.

And they will also set up a banking system, where you don't have Swedish Kroner anymore. You have a provision of: "Creating a note-issuing bank, which is quite independent of the States of the Union" - which means, your countries - "or the institutions of the Union", - which means nobody has control over this bank. And this bank will be the one who controls all the currency. Just as they do in the United States through the Federal Reserve Bank. In other words, the government does not control the money in the United States. They set up an arbitrary independent thing, and if you really don't know what that means, it's like an independent network, like a G.O. or something, you don't have control over it from the Org anymore. So they set up this in the United States, and they will do it in Europe, and no one will control the money either.

Now, why am I telling you all this? Well, this is where the trail led. To this plan. Hey? Getting rid of Scientology - and by the way - the influence of other religions on the planet. Oh, they don't want religions. You understand, this is a competitive group. The Catholics number something like 800 million. Catholics on the planet. The Buddhists number something like over a billion Buddhists on the planet. Scientologists didn't number too much, but they have a very powerful technology. They can find out things.

Anyway, those guys are all getting attacked. The Mohammedans, the Buddhists, the Catholics, everybody was getting attacked. So, why am I telling you this? Because there's nothing wrong with a One-World-Government. I've been on lots of planets - lots of planets in the universe have only ONE government for the planet. So you also experience the same, when you travel, on the time track or whatever, and in fact, that's more usual - that they just have ONE government for a planet. Much more usual. In fact you might even find several planets in a confederation of ONE government. But here you have 160 or 170 governments on the planet. We know why that is. It's explained in the Sector Operation Bulletins, and it's explained in "Revolt in the Stars". You have here the representatives of maybe 160 different planets or races or different cultures or governments on this planet. The Thetans came from those particular areas. Because this was a dumping ground. IT was the place where some catastrophic events happened quite a long time ago.

However, to get this all back together is an admirable idea, there is nothing wrong with it - AS LONG AS THE INTENTION IS GOOD. As long as the intention is ethical, for survival. As long as the intention is for the INCREASE OF AWARENESS, SPIRITUAL ABILITY.

If the intention is to ENSLAVE, if the intention is to DEPRESS AWARENESS, if the intention is to PUT PEOPLE INTO THESE LITTLE BOXES ... then it is NOT a good idea. As you well know, if you studied Psychology or behaviouristic Psychology or any of the "modern" techniques, they all work with rats and mice, all right? And you can understand, that they run experiments with rats and mice, you know, and they put them all in cages and they do things with them and so on like that.

Now, if we were all rats and mice right now, right? And OUR 4th Dynamic was rats and mice, and the humans were on OUR 5th Dynamic we wouldn't like that at all, you see?

So, I do not intend to be a human being, or a Thetan, that is taking part in somebody's "One-World-Experiment" treating other human beings like rats and mice, or ants, or any small animal - that they can experiment with mentally, physically, and through all these various methods. I don't like that at all!

In fact, LRH didn't like it either. And one of the things that has come about from this - finding - (we found it - this is the trace of a line that came from: "Who suppressed Scientology?") it went right back to this One-World-Group that's working through this principal Party here, the European People's Party - just seems to be a big Political Party - they're just the front guys of the conspiracy. But, when you come to this, you say: "Hey, wait a minute!". And you look around to see if anybody is doing anything about it, you know, find out if any - if a few people even are protesting it. There's a few people saying: "Yeah, yeah, I don't like that, I'm not gonna vote for it." But there is NOBODY PROPOSING ANOTHER GAME. And what did LRH say? "When you end off an old game, you must give them a new game to play or the game will be getting you."

Okay, well, we got a new game on the 3rd Dynamic. Everybody being the source-point for Scientology in it's area and following Tech and Policy. Well, now we have a new game on the 4th Dynamic. We don't like the G.O. or anybody pretending to be able to handle it - because they can't. We know that. They didn't even grasp the hugeness, the immensity of the plan that I've uncovered here, and that you can come and read about, if you want.

No, they didn't even come close - well they did get close to it, it's true. They did get close to it in Germany and Austria. Several of the agents of the Guardians Office got close to this plan and they were immediately excommunicated from the Church by infiltrated MI6, FBI Agent Alan Hubbert. That was in 1978.

I did not find them until just last year and they told me: "Hey you found out the same thing we were working on." So, they did start to find it, but the guys got shot. They couldn't get the data - they tried the same thing - get the data up to LRH. Get the data to Mary Sue. Well, they didn't get it there. Well, we have it all. There is nothing we don't know about their plan to take over and put in a total One-World-Dominated-Slave-Government. Believe me, it is Mental Slavement. They don't want you to think you're anything but an ANIMAL. All of your thoughts will be monitored from childhood and controlled by the idea that you're an animal. Yep, that's what they wanna do.

And they want, to further insure, that they have an ELECTRONIC control over your thoughts, by putting in radiation and beams and control your actual thinking. To say nothing of the experiments going on in the United States, where they are talking about implanting a small chip - very small chips - to size of a pinhead in a person's head area, or in his chest at birth, so they can monitor them for the rest of their life.

This is already being proposed to the United States Government and they're doing a whole project on experiments with this. I'm sorry to say that spiritual advancement and psychic development - you know - "development" of theta-abilities has become a STATE-SECRET in the United States, has become a STATE-SECRET in Russia, has become a STATE-SECRET in the most "advanced" countries - so-called "advanced" - they're NOT REALLY advanced. But why is it a secret?

Because it's a weapon. Just like the atomic bomb was put behind the "Shades of Night" into the government arena, and nobody could know about atomic bombs in the 50s, nobody can know about psychic development now. It's the top secret stuff going on behind the scenes, and that isn't only theta abilities, that I'm talking about. I'm talking about mind control, intention beams, waves to control your thoughts, small electrode implantation in the person, or in the TV or in the automobile, or various ways to keep you all on the national computer scheme.

Ok, Now, those are coming things they're using for weapons of war. It a way it reminds us all, of course, of the often - often we run into them on the track, I'm sure you've run into these guys called the "Thought Police". You know, they said they had a Thought Police and they're controlling your thoughts, and you better not do anything against the government, or they will implant you or something. And you'll always find out sooner or later, that the "Thought Police" really were guys with no particular ability, except they had some very clever micro circuitry that they either implanted on you, on your telephone, on you car, on your friend or whatever, and they heard everything that you were saying, or they had a whole network of spies around, and they heard what you were saying. So they pretended to know your thoughts all the time.

The thing is: To know everybody's thoughts, you'd have to have an auditor for every citizen on the planet in session with him 8 hours a day, right? And if they did that, hell, we could clear the planet very quickly. So they can't do it that way.

In other words, don't worry about people knowing your thoughts, because, you know, they would have to have auditors and an incredible computer to take all this session data in every day, and then they'd have to know rudiments to clean up the guy for the next day and they would have do do something with him sooner or later of the guy would ARC-break and blow session. So they might have to just put in the bridge, you see, so they won't do it that way. They don't really know your thoughts. They don't really want to know them. All they want to know is that you're doing what they say, and that your actions are controlled.

Ok, sorry to make it so blunt, but that's what's happening in the world, and it's going on very quietly behind the scenes. I found out that the secret studies of the psychic events and psychic war affairs, and all that, is a phenomenon that is receiving increasing notoriety in the newspapers and so on. You get little bits and pieces of it, but never very much.

They're way far ahead of anything you see put out in the papers. We know for instance, that the Russians are using telepathic control on their spy lines right now. They are funning agents over hundreds of miles distance by telepathic control. In other words, they're sending their messages back and forth telepathically, and nobody can intercept them, except another telepath

How do I know that? Because when I was over in Germany, I picked up a few of them going by. I said: "Hey, what's that?" You know, you're used to having Ron talk to you or maybe another Scientologist says: "Hey man, I'm coming over." You know? "Ok man, I go down and open the door.", and he's there, you know? That happens all the time with Scientologists.

But I had this weird feeling, you know, just getting up in the morning; and: "Agent Cherenkoy report to Mogador and go to Section B2. Agent Cherenko, repeat: "Go to ...". It's coming through, it's a thought! What was that? Picked up as a line coming out of East Germany and going to Africa. Right? Was a Russian though message.

So, anyway, believe it or not. When you go over to Germany you can try and pick up a few yourself. But we have it from another source. I did not - I told that to a few people, they said: "Yeah, maybe so." - however, I'd been, before I told anybody about that, in England, where we had a friend in the intelligence service - and he said - (the guy was interested a bit in Scientology, because of the stuff we're working on) - and he said that his friend told him the other day, that the Russians are already using telepaths in their spy work! And then this guy came: "Hey, did you know the Russians are using already telepathy in their spy work!?" I said: "Well, as a matter of fact, yes, I did. I picked up some of their stuff, they were practicing with over there in Germany." "Oh." Well, anyway, he thought he was gonna give big news to me - you see - but I did happen to be on the line. But anyway, the funny thing about this is, the funniest thing about all of this is: Do you see how valuable Scientologists are gonna be in the New Civilization? They're gonna be the only people that know what's happening. You'll be the only people on the planet that really understand what's happening. Because, YOU can pick up the telepathic comms. You can understand when the government is lying to you, and when they are telling you the truth. You know the Overt-Motivator-Sequence, the appearance of people trying to withhold, all of that sort of thing.

And, as you audit many many hours you will realize that it's very easy to pick up what people are really thinking, if you want to. And you can also pick up emotions and various things. Well, from Dianetics you can learn that very easily. And you can pick up the whole thing mental image pictures and anything like that and the next thing you know, if you put your attention on it, you'll find out whatever you want.

If you put your attention on your own file for instance, your own file in the government files in Stockholm, or whatever country you're from it will come to you where that file is, and not only this, you start to get a feeling of what's in it, and not only that, very soon, you will be able to see exactly what's in it. And not only that, but you will find out who the agents are that take care of your file. And not only that, but you find out, what's happening with your friends who are also filed next to you.

Do you understand what I'm saying? It's OT-abilities. OT-abilities. And what it is, the governments of the world are AFRAID of us, you see. Why do you think they're spending so much money trying to wipe out the "Squirrels"?

The "Squirrels" AREN'T UNDER CONTROL! The "Squirrels" can find out anything! I know I wouldn't - if we were doing something here and one of you guys started playing around, you know, like running yoga into your sessions or something like that, or drug therapy or something like that, into your auditing sessions, we wouldn't spend thousands of dollars on lawyers and private detectives and all that stuff.

We would just quit sending people to you. Doesn't take much. Just: "Ok - see, you won't play that game? Go away." Just - maybe put a little article in the magazines - you know. "Don't go tho the guy, he squirrels". We know it won't work. And why are these guys spending millions - and believe me, they do spend millions - to wipe out the squirrels around the world?

Because the government is behind them, and not only the government, but the One-World-Guys behind them are AFRAID of us. Don't even believe anything else, they are AFRAID of us! Right.

That's where it's at.

Now that's your 4th Dynamic Game Level. WE are the people that are responsible for the rest of humanity. To one: get them on the bridge. Two: to sort of hat them on what the mental war is all about. And three: to give them another game to play. And the other game is called the New Civilization Game.

And that's - I think it's printed up in Swedish - but it has several purposes, to which everyone can agree, and are good for survival. And those purposes are things like: well, let's clean up the planet. It's our house, you know. Let's clean it up a little bit, knock out the pollution, get the food good and the water pure and let's have a stable medium of exchange. Let's not have rates of money going up and down. Let's have a stable currency here. Let's get a stable medium of exchange.

We've already got one by the way, it's called the "Galactic Credit", and it's gonna be based on metal of value, like gold, silver, platinum - that kind of thing, but it's also gonna be underwritten by the auditing intensive. The Standard Auditing Intensive.

Therefore it WILL be standard, because wherever you get a standard auditing intensive, this thing will be good. And it can always be turned in for that amount and it will be roughly what they are charging for a standard auditing intensive in the Free Zone.

I didn't bring it with me, but I have colored pictures of these things. We'll first issue them out printed as a Credit Note on one side, and what it's all about it on the back. We'll have the conditions and where you can turn it in, what Free Zone Place you can get your various payment and so on. It will be - first of all - it'll be a bond type issue - in other words: you're buying an investment in some OT-projects or something, and you can always get auditing for it or within a year or so you can get gold or silver or whatever we have at that time. So, this will be - we'll start them out as investment issues. But they will eventually become currency on the planet, because they are so stable. They won't hardly vary. They won't vary with inflation or depression. They'll be the same. The value can be gotten from these things. But that's another thing we need on the planet.

Another thing we need is an appreciation more of culture and artistic type endeavors, right? People, there are so many artists and so many musicians given bum education on that, they don't even know the definition of art. They're patronized by people that want them to produce "bank-art" - you know - it's all just stuff from the bank. You know, we went to an exposition in Paris recently. I went in there - who is it? - the Pompidou Museum or something like that. And, I mean, you had to hold your nose around some of the art. Not because it, you know, was figuratively bad, but because it PHYSICALLY stank! Right, they wee making the sculptures out of old tennis shoes and socks, and trash, and things pulled out of the backyard, they just pasted it all on a board, you know, it's all mess, junky stuff you know, and they put some paint on it like that. Ketchup bottles, and old food and old banana skins. Yes, you had to hold your nose as you went through that. That was modern art, right?

I would say it's just BANK. It's just people's trash. You know, it's real trash. Here it was displayed in that fantastic building you know. "Ah!" Wouldn't it be nicer to have some real OT art in there? You know, some people having a fantastic viewpoint from exterior or an outer space scene or something? Even beauties of the planet. Something more aesthetic and more Theta than that, my god! So, anyway, that's another thing that's needed.

Another thing that's needed is communication and coordination between people. And we're working on this project in the 4th Dynamic to try to get more and more of the Free Zone people connected up. With like computer links, and all that.

We're also working on inventions that will improve the lot of mankind. Which means, things that can power your computer without depending on electricity, so you can power from sunlight, so you're not dependent on any electrical system by the government that can turn you off. You many still maintain your comm line bounced off a satellite, whatever. We want to put up our own satellites, for instance.

We have a company that's in a way involved with something like that. And if they come up with some money, well we can put up our own. We have several ideas, and some of them I admit, come off of the track. And many other Scientologists REMEMBER things. They come up. That's one of the plus-points of auditing. You may remember something that's a very valuable invention or something and run out to get a patent on it on this planet and go with it.

And there are many other things that are needed to make a New Civilization here, right? And there are things to be AVOIDED. In other words: things that you shouldn't agree with, should NOT agree with that will lead to the little white mouse in the cage things. You understand? Like voting for things that will allow babies to be implanted with a little electrode at birth or - you know - the free use of drugs on everybody and so on like that.

That's like you HAVE TO KNOW THE GAME. You have to KNOW what the alternative is. You have to KNOW, to be able to make a choice. And then we come to the final thing: to be able to make a choice, people have to have the DATA OF COMPARABLE MAGNITUDE.

You can't make a choice between a One-World mind-control government and nothing. Although they're TRYING to make you decide between that or atomic war. You see? Because they're putting a horror of atomic war over you. If you don't do this, you gonna have atomic way. No, they won't. It's false. They are trying to make you decide between atomic war and a One-World-Government. That is NOT the decision.

The decision IS between the One-World-Government that keeps you like mice or a New Civilization where everybody is freely communicating and coordinating, just like we do on the 3rd Dynamic. And you can still be in your country. You can still be in your city. You can still be in your own group. You don't have to have everybody under the same control, to prevent war. War is an ABERRATION. It's NUTS. All right?

Just like you don't have to have all Scientologists under control to keep ethics in. You don't have to put them all into a cage to have ethics in because most people ARE ethical. All except about 2%. That's the figures and we know these data.

So, who's gonna be there to make the decision between a New Civilization and a mind controlled Civilization? WE have to be there. WE have to instruct people. WE have to let them know there is an alternative. WE have to let them know they have a choice, not only on this planet for their own survival and their own expansion, but very soon they're gonna be linked up to Intergalactic Civilization.

And that is another thing, which I know you all have been waiting for. And you may have some back pay - do you? - in some organization out there. you may have an old home or an old hunting ground you would like to go and see. But it is true. Very soon there WILL be a link up again with the old Galactic Civilizations.

Now it's not just because I say so. Because we found out that these guys are ALSO planning a link up. They are planning a link up on the basis that it would be better if everybody join this ONE PARTICULAR group operating in nearby space. If they would join this one particular group because they are in the SAME agreement. They like implanting and they like to keep people under control.

So, if Earth comes to the awareness in a few years that there IS another Civilization out there, and: "Hey, look at that! Wow! It's the only one we know about." AGAIN they'll be faced with the choice for which they have no comparable magnitude datum. They have no datum to compare.

So they say: "Oh, look at that! Hey, these guys out there, they have airplanes! Wow! They wear clothes just like they do in New York City! Wow! Look at that! They have spaceships and .. wow .. they say they'll help us, and .. wow .. we gonna trade with them and .. aah .. that'll be very good, they want to actually get in a big agreement with us and have out world government join up with theirs! Oh, fantastic! You know! That'll be really great, ... haha ...".

The funny thing is, you know, the guys are not - when you really look at them - they're not very friendly, they look a bit - thetan wise - they look a bit "dark". But who's gonna notice that if there aren't any Scientologists around to say: "Hey, look! That's a Marcabian. Those fuckers are implanters!" You don't want to mess around with them!"

So, unless they hear from us: "Look! There's at least, I mean just in the NEAR space here, you know, there's at least a hundred different systems and races around. I mean if you don't believe so, look at the planet here. Look at the planet here. How many races and so on are around? So, there's also the same duplication of it out there because that's where they usually came from in the beginning, you see?

And we know for instance: The Japanese have been working for centuries now, and especially since World War II to be able to get back to their own Home Civilization. Well, as you might expect, they have a civilization very similar to modern day Japan, and very similar to the beliefs and the customs of working together as an enormous 3rd Dynamic, you know, production and industry and all that.

They want to go back there. They're just waiting to get the Ok to do space travel. And then they are going to take off. We know that. We have a verification from them as well. They're totally interested in the New Civilization. So there is another one right there. I mean - to tell you the truth - I mean, instead of having a nice implant put in your head or something when you're born, I think I would much rather have my back walked on by a geisha girl, you know?

So, if we've got a choice, I mean just between those two, I already know what I would choose. And I don't even know any Japanese very well, you know? But I already know that's better. I mean - even though maybe we would have to - you know - slant our eyes a little bit and put the hair down and say: "Ah - so" - but, so what? That's better than running around with an electrode in your brain and every time you think: "Whing!", you know? And not being able to expand, and if you have an idea you get it cut and suppressed. Oh no, no way! Those guys ARE expanding so that's okay.

But that's just another one. Well, there's a lot more than that. And of course there is the BEST idea, just like we do it in the Free Zone, sometimes called the Independent Scientology Movement. Why don't we just REMAIN independent. That'll be a FREE ZONE PLANET. Hey, now that's the BEST idea! See? Then we can make trade arrangements with whoever we wish. From the 4th Dynamic here to the 4th Dynamic wherever. And if people want to visit their homes, their old homes, and see their homes and so on, they can do that. When you're a citizen of this planet, you're on a Free Zone Planet. And then, you know what happens to free trade zones, don't you? You know what happens with places like Gibraltar and Las Palmas and places that are free trade parts, right? A LOT OF BUSINESS! Lots of business. Lots of buying, selling, industry, prosperity and so on like that. Lots of tourists, all kinds of them.

So, I kind of like that idea, because Earth has been out of comm with these guys for a long time, because of it's problem. You know - aberration. This is a very aberrated place. But it's gonna be back in comm with them soon, so we might even make it a kind of a festive, joyful occasion and celebrate it like: "Hey, you know, this is a Free Zone Planet! You guys who come here to visit: bring your money, bring your gold and, you know, valuable things from other planets and trade them here. We'll give you something like maybe a 25 hour Intensive! You know, hand-made special art from the planet, you know, and so on .." But we can set up a really good deal here and next thing you know, we would be all running around in spaceships. We have our own space yachts, because these guys want to trade. They WANT something.

Now, what they want is of course a good technology. Because this had to be the proving ground for the technology, right here on planet Earth. This was the worst aberrated area, and it had to be here as you well know. I mean, look at the place.

I mean just the fact it has 190 governments on it. And I mean you have wars going on every day. I mean, you know, it's a VERY aberrated place. The Thetans ARE basically good. Well, if they're basically good, we must have all the bad ones here. Any slightest chance, any little chance, of them being bad, we must have most of them here.

No, it's not that. It's just that they've been implanted. They've been aberrated. They've been - you know - had a little more knocking around than other Thetans. But they can all come right. They can all come right, if we do the 3rd Dynamic game together with the 4th Dynamic game.

So let people know: "Hey, look, it's gonna be a choice. When you come up to decide, decide between Mental Slavery and a Free Zone Planet." There is no atomic war there. That's off the schedule. Nobody is gonna be allowed to do that anyway. So, this is totally outlawed in this Sector. Don't have to worry about it. Somebody might try it, but they're not going to get any agreement, and you're not going to get any wholesale atomic war or biological or chemical war. But what there WILL be - is a gradual enslavement of people's thoughts and mental control, where they're forced to decide to join up with these guys here, called Marcabians.

And if we don't get in there and say: "Hey, look, this isn't gonna be the only alternative you have. There are plenty of other people you can join up with! The Japanese, you know, or the Moslems.

Or you can join up with these guys the Buddhists go back to. Or you can join up with these guys that the Polynesians go back to. Because there is a big Sea Planet up there. Because they like a lot of water and so on like that. Take the canoes for a long time, you know, eat off of the trees. That's right, there's a whole planet for that."

You can join up with any of these guys, but my god, let's just not join up with guys who just want to crunch you down further. Because you have the 1-2 punch that will handle this planet in the future, and that 1-2 is of course: the 3rd Dynamic with the Scientology Tech and your 4th Dynamic with the New Civilization.

And once you know all that, you know everything that is necessary to know for your survival in the coming next 10-20 years. I mean, that's what we've been able to uncover by using the Data Series and using the Investigator Tech of HCO, applied to the situation of: "Who's attacking the Church and why?" You understand?

And when we came out of it, that's what the data showed us. That's what it was. It's evaluated. It's been verified now by 5 different sources - by 5 different people. They were also trained in the Data Series and didn't believe my evaluations. Then they did it and they can't get to another conclusion, because that's where the data leads them.

So, anyway, we're going along that line and we give you the data free. And the idea is - because we need resources to handle. And we need Scientologists: people who are free, thinking clearly, understanding Policy and Tech, who can be able to advise the 4th Dynamic, who can be able to see where it's going and say to you: "Hey, wait a minute. No, you don't wanna vote for that law about that little chip. No, no. I know, it's confusing and all, and it sounds like a very good thing. But don't vote for the law that says about the little chip. You .. no .. you didn't get it .. no, no, no .. it says .. it .. no, no, no .. it didn't say what you thought it said. You thought it said it was going to help you to get better food at the supermarket, but it didn't say that. It said: "Intracostal Biological Implantation". Yeah, but you didn't understand that, did you? No, no! What they mean by that is they're going to put an electrode in your chest - right here, above your heart, right? And if you get out of line, they put a pain signal through it, and you have a heart attack!"

"Oh, really! I thought it meant that they were gonna irradiate the milk, so that my baby would be healthier."

"Hoho, No, no, no, no, no. They were going to put the electrode in there, right there, you see? And if that law passes ... Bye-bye!"

"Oh, no! Now I understand it. Ok!"

You see, people have so many misunderstoods today, right? Very many misunderstoods. They don't even understand what a Thetan is.

And that is the first one. They don't really or don't even understand that they ARE a Thetan! Well, that's this planet! We need more PE courses around here. Personal Efficiency Courses and Basic Courses. Well, that will come. That will come. But now we know how to handle it.

Anyway, it wasn't handled before. We now know what the game is. Spread the news as far, as fast, as you want. Write it up. Copy what I've written. I don't care. Just get it out there and let's have a future for this planet that makes it into a Free Zone Planet where it determines it's OWN destiny. Not a destiny that's determined for it by a bunch of suppressive individuals that just want to totally control it. And, I think, that all of you are for that purpose which I just stated on the New Civilization and for keeping it a Free Zone Planet because you're HERE, because you're SCIENTOLOGISTS, and you've gotten to be Scientologists because you are who you are.

Why aren't a lot of other people here? Because YOU are here. And you are the people that got into it, all right? And I am too. I am like that too. I got into it because I felt responsible and I felt responsible for more than I could say at the moment. I couldn't get anybody to listen. I finally had to get a lot of auditing and I realized what I was being responsible for.

And that's not only me, not only different Dynamics, but also the future, the FUTURE of this planet. Do you realize that? If you don't take responsibility for the future of the planet, we won't have any planet in the future to which we can come back to safely. Which you can pick up another body in, on which your children can live safely ...

YOU put the future there! YOU have to put it there! There's not many people doing it - I can guarantee you - the only ones that are are Scientology people and a few little power groups that are trying to take over control. And the reason they are trying to put it there is so that they can control YOU and all the rest. And the reason they are putting it there the way they are, and the reason you can spot when they're doing this - these guys at the top of these guys - not the political guys - but up at the top - the world bank level, Basel, the thirteen, the three secret guys in a little group which a lot of people had heard about in different ways, they think it's a secret society, they think it's this - it's none of these things - it's just a group of a few Marcabian individuals, Thetans, that know, THEY ABSOLUTELY KNOW that they're Thetans, and they know that they are picking up bodies down the time track and they're pushing their scenarios to get everything under control.

And they know this, and they keep it a SECRET from everyone else - expect us.

So really, when it comes right down to it, there are only two groups on the planet. There's the Free Zoners, the Scientologists, and there's the Marcabian One-Worlders. That's really it. You can just break it down this way into these two categories. And then in that you look for allies, and you look for people who are not enemies, but they are "on the other side". And you USE the allies and you say: "Ok, you guys are against the same thing we're against. This is the alternative. A New Civilization."

"Hey! I like that! Let's do it!" Right. The OTHER GUYS, you say to them: "Hey, you guys, you've been fooled!" - because they all ARE by the way, there are so many secrets on the other side that they fooled everyone down below a certain level. "And you can guarantee, if you go on in there, you'll be being BETRAYED. At the end of this you're to end up being taken over, you're going to end up being implanted, you're going to end up all of this stuff." They will go: "Wait a minute, maybe you're right." Or there are also the people that are trying to take over FROM those guys and THEY WILL BE BETRAYED TOO. Because they're letting them, they're allowing them, to come along with their power groups and so on until the top. And then, they snip off the top and they have the group.

It's all politics, but these guys are good at playing it, because the Marcabians are playing it from the Theta Game Level. And the only people on the planet capable to play it back that way are Scientologists. So that more or less explains what the game is, why they are interested in taking Scientology over and why they are so interested in spending millions of dollars to wipe out the Free Zone.

In other words: WE ARE THE HOPE FOR THE FUTURE OF THE PLANET. Just because we have the knowledge and we have the Tech and we have the Policy. The more people that take their responsibility, the easier it's going to be. And I don't know about you, but I decided to take it when I joined Scientology. But especially after all the troubles that happened in the Church.

And I said: "Well - to tell you the truth - you can have a 1st Dynamic reason for taking it too, taking responsibility, and I told you before - in the other lecture - not ALL of the auditing you do is done in the auditing room. Some of the auditing you do is right outside here in the 3rd and 4th Dynamics.

Well, you can also have if for no other reason you can do it for CASE GAIN. Because you will get case gain from doing it. I can't tell you in the last two years how much case gain I've had from doing this particular auditing process on the 3rd and 4th Dynamics. Things that were fearsome things that were horrible things that I go: "Aaah, Uuuh, Hell, I need a million dollars to handle that!" Things that I thought I couldn't handle. I went and just confronted them with the intention of handling on the 3rd and 4th Dynamic and it just went: "Pfffsst ...".

THERE WASN'T ANYTHING THERE. All there was were the things that I had NOT confronted on my way down the spiral. And I just went back and confronted them all the way up and now it's very easy, VERY easy. All right?

None of the mental control devices they have developed on the planet can affect anyone of Scientology that understands the game on the 3rd and 4th Dynamic and has good TRs. If you do NOT believe the game of what is going on, well, then you are not looking at the truth. I'm sorry, then you CAN be affected by these things. Because if you don't believe they're there - and they ARE there - and they are pushing in on your case or your bank or your theta-beingness or your body, they can affect it. Believe me, they are just as much THERE as a car running down the street. If you walk across the street, even if you don't see the car, and it hits you - YOU'LL KNOW IT. The same way with these beams and telepathic devices they have invented and amplifiers and all this stuff you read about in the bulletins, right?

They ARE there. We have some of our own scientists researching on ways to counter them and jam them and shut them off and so on. And we've been very successful at that. But in the meantime, if you understand they are there and you have good TRs, they won't affect you. Because you can SPOT what it is coming in. And you say: "Ah, that's not from me, that's from over there!" Zipp! - finished. Send it back to Basel. Stick it in the tower. Whatever you want to do.

Anyway, it's a game that we CAN play because that's a 7th Dynamic game, you see? That's not 4th. That's 7th. What is it? 7th! Eh? 7th! All right! That's a 7TH DYNAMIC GAME. Handling telepathic things, mental rays, mental beams and so on like that.

Who can play a 7th Dynamic game on this planet? Scientologists? Yes. Buddhists? A few, yes. A few other spiritual people that have managed to get up there without doing their Grades, keyed out for a little while. But not many others, I'm sorry to say. Just the Marcabians and mostly Scientologists.

So, we have ANOTHER responsibility: to get this across to people on the planet AESTHETICALLY as well. Because I can talk to you like this - but you can't go out in the street and talk to people like that because first of all their reality is not high enough. I hope I'm not exceeding YOUR reality, but I always feel an emergency like that: If you're drifting along in a ship toward the rocks, then you ought to yell up to the crew: "Hey, we're drifting into the rocks! I don't care if this breaks your reality, but get the hell out here NOW and let's handle it!" Right?

And that's the kind of situation it is on the 4th Dynamic. Because these elections for these guys right now is on the 17th of June and they'll be sticking in this prime minister guy and all their political scenarios in the next few months. They have a 7 year plan, which is laid out in Sector Operation Bulletin No. 19, if you haven't read it.

That plan is going along TOTALLY as predicted. It was predicted in, or as we found out, predicted little parts of it, and we put it in the bulletin in February and all the intelligence data we were getting from everywhere in the world, from different sources, from different lines - and they're totally from everything - from friends, radio, newspapers, intelligence agents, Scientologists, people who work in the place, other people, just strangers on the street - it's going along EXACTLY ON THE SCHEDULE. 100% exactly. In fact, they're even RUSHING to make sure that they don't go behind on that schedule.

Now, I bet you that somebody is going to be coming around and say: "You know, the reason they're doing it - that's because you put it out in the Sector Operation Bulletins. They took that scenario and they're running it!" (Laugh) No, they were already running it a long time. They have been running a LONG time. And we just predicted this one because we had to uncover the one they did on the Church. So but uncovering the one on the Church, we learned all about how they do them, it's very simple.

Now on the aesthetic level we want to get agreement. A good way to get agreement is buy aesthetics: art, music, and so on. And I've written a Symphony, a New Civilization Symphony in B-Flat, and it's music - you understand? I want to get that played by a symphony orchestra and put across a message to the population.

I just want to read you one thing here. I have a little description of every movement, and to end off I just want to read one thing here. This is from - first of all, it covers - it covers - I will tell you what it covers first - it covers the "Old civilization", "The Alternative" - which I told you about, the New Civilization Game, - "East meets West" - because we must have a bringing together of the Eastern spiritual ideas and the Western technological ideas - I mean, WE know there ARE spiritual matters. WE know there ARE technological matters. But the meeting has occurred in Scientology, right? Many of you were probably Buddhists before, but the meeting of East and West HAS occurred in Scientology. LRH MADE it happen with the E-Meter connected with auditing. Theta stuff connected with physical electronics. He did it. he brought it together. But it hasn't been done in the 4th Dynamic yet. We're hoping to do that between Japan and some Buddhists and some guys over from this side.

Ok, so that's "East meets West". And then another one is called "The Awakening" - where people cognite: "Hey wait, I'm more than MEST, more than a body". You know? And the other guy cognites: "Hey, the reason why we haven't got so far in 2000 or 3000 years is, we haven't been using any Tech, some technological things!" So BOTH sides can cognite, and they can cognite there's a purpose for the planet.

And then the next one is "International City", which is of course LRH's Plan for World Peace, written in 1963 I believe, and he has a part in there called "International City", where it's a whole plan for the governments of Earth to meet in a certain place, and a city built in the middle of the Sahara Desert. Well, not in the MIDDLE. Toward the coast which is the site of the old Capital City of this planet. Great plan. You should read it. We have it on our computer. Maybe we can get that out if we can get some money to publish it.

That's one thing. Then the next is "Attainment", which means: "people when they get ON PURPOSE can attain what they want, and they WILL attain their purposes AND their goals on all their Dynamics.

The next is "Peace and Prosperity", because when people ARE attaining, their exchange and everything is IN, and they WILL get peace and they WILL get prosperity.

And the last one is called "Ad Astra", which means of course - "to the stars" - and this is the one - I'll just read you this - a little bit to end off. It says: "Ad Astra" - to the stars - "the harnessed, aligned and channelled energy of Earth's New Civilization is put to use to expand starward. New Civilization ideas and inventions have been encouraged and the barriers of space travel have been overcome."

"This movement tells of the journey to the stars, with the firm hope and confidence of all mankind supporting it. You are invited along musically as the great ship lifts off into free space and makes it's course corrections. The voyagers first experience wonderment vast beauty of space, coupled with nostalgic memories of their beloved home planet."

"Then comes the awaited discovery and communication with another civilization far from the Solar System and the joy of finding it to be of similar purpose and aims as the New Civilization of Earth."

On landing the power is shut down, and then in the finale, the two civilizations unite to express their friendship, and to align their future to the greatest good of both.

So - we have a 4th Dynamic game: It's called "New Civilization". And we have a 3rd Dynamic game: It's called "Free Zone Scientology".

And again I want to thank Ron for this, because without him I wouldn't be able to play the game myself. I would probably have been killed by a motorcycle accident 30 years ago. So, I'm sure you all have similar reasons for being here, and not being somewhere else at this time.

Thanks to all of this, we can start doing our auditing our there - not just in the auditing room. We can come out of the auditing room, we can come into the society, we can come into the groups, we can come to the 3rd and 4th Dynamic, and even to the 7th Dynamic, mind you, and 8th and 9th and 10th! We come out and do our auditing OUT THERE.

Think of what an effect that will create! Yeah, and think back what it says in the Factors: "The highest purpose in the universe is the creation of an effect." So, all I can say is, if you are going to create an effect on this part of the spiral, make sure it's an ethical effect, because then you keep on going UP! All right?

And if you create an UNETHICAL effect you go down. But believe me, I think a lot of you will support me in this opinion - now this is totally an opinion -

But in MY auditing and looking at track, I think - now correct me if I'm wrong - I think MOST of the unethical effects that COULD have been created - WERE ALREADY CREATED! Most of the UNETHICAL and OUT ETHICAL things - I've seen them, I have run into it. Now it's time to say: "Hey, you wanna create a BIG EFFECT on everybody? The big effect you CAN CREATE is an ETHICAL EFFECT. One that guarantees MORE SURVIVAL. Oh, that's BIG! All right?

So, you want to create and effect? Let's put a New Civilization here! Let's put a Free Zone Planet here!

Are you with it?

Ah, yes!

Good!

Thank you!

WHAT THOSE "IN THE KNOW" SAY ABOUT

NONE DARE CALL IT CONSPIRACY

I wish that every citizen of every country in the free world and every slave behind the Iron Curtain might read this book.

Ezra Taft Benson Former Secretary of Agriculture

NDCC is an admirable job of amassing information to prove that communism is socialism and socialism (a plot to enslave the world} is not a movement of the downtrodden but a scheme supported and directed by the wealthiest of people.

If enough Americans read and act upon NDCC, they really can save the Republic from the conspirators-whose plans for the destruction of our country are galloping fast toward completion.

Dan Smoot

Former Assistant to J. Edgar Hoover

Now that NDCC is available, I no longer need to answer "no" to the question which is often put to me, namely: "Mr. Dodd, is there a book which I can read so I can know what you know?" No higher praise is possible for this book.

Norman Dodd Chief Investigator

Reece Committee to Investigate Foundations

This book concerns the way in which our nation and other nations are actually governed. As Benjamin Disraeli said, this is not the way in which most people think nations are governed. The whole subject of the Insiders who so largely control our political and economic lives is a fascinating mystery.

For the reader who is intelligent but uninitiated in the literature of superpolitics, I can think of no better introduction to the field than NDCC.

Dr. Medford Evans

Former Chief of Security for the Atom Bomb Project

Since people of the Jewish faith have been the number one historical victims of the Communist Conspiracy, we wish every member of our faith would carefully read this book so they will become aware of the forces which often attempt to manipulate them.

Dr. Barney Finkel President, The Jewish Right

Whatever one dares to call the apparatus described and documented in this book, he will ignore it at his peril. 1972 may well be our last chance to defuse this destructive device. This book tells you how you can expose and demolish it.

INTRODUCTION

The story you are about to read is true. The names have not been changed to protect the guilty. This book may have the effect of changing your life. After reading this book, you will never look at national and world events in the same way again.

None Dare Call It Conspiracy will be a very controversial book. At first it will receive little publicity and those whose plans are exposed in it will try to kill it by the silent treatment. For reasons that become obvious as you read this book, it will not be reviewed in all the "proper" places or be available on your local bookstand. However, there is nothing these people can do to stop a grass roots book distributing system. Eventually it will be necessary for the people and organizations named in this book to try to blunt its effect by attacking it or the author. They have a tremendous vested interest in keeping you from discovering what they are doing. And they have the big guns of the mass media at their disposal to fire the barrages at None Dare Call It Conspiracy.

By sheer volume, the "experts" will try to ridicule you out of investigating for yourself as to whether or not the information in this book is true They will ignore the fact that the author about to conjecture. They will find a typographical error or ague some point that is open to debate. If necessary they win lie in order to protect themselves by smearing this book. I believe those who pooh-pooh the information herein because Psychologically many people would prefer to believe we are because we all like to ignore bad news. We do so at our own peril.

Having been a college instructor; a. State Senator and now a Congressman I have had experience with real pressionals at putting up smokescreens to cover up their own actions by trying to destroy the accuser. I hope that you will read the book carefully draw your own conclusions and not accept the opinions of those who of necessity must attempt to discredit the book. Your future may depend upon it

CHAPTER ONE

DON'T CONFUSE ME WITH FACTS

Most of us have had the experience, either as parents or youngsters, of trying to discover the "hidden picture' within another picture in a children's magazine. Usually you are shown a landscape with trees, bushes, flowers and other bits of nature. The caption reads something like this: "Concealed somewhere in this picture is a donkey pulling a cart with a boy in it. Can you find them?" Try as you might, usually you could not find the hidden picture until you turned to a page farther back in the magazine which would reveal how cleverly the artist had hidden it from us. If we study the landscape we realize that the whole picture was painted in such a way as to conceal the real picture within, and once we see the "real picture," it stands out like the proverbial painful digit.

We believe the picture painters of the mass media are artfully creating landscapes for us which deliberately hide the real picture. In this book we will show you how to discover the "hidden picture" in the landscapes presented to us daily through newspapers, radio and. television. Once you can see through the camouflage, you will see the donkey, the cart and the boy who have been there all along.

Millions of Americans are concerned and frustrated over mishappenings in our nation. They feel that something is wrong, drastically wrong, but because of the picture painters they can't quite put their fingers on it.

Maybe you are one of those persons. Something is bugging you, but you aren't sure what We keep electing new Presidents who seemingly promise faithfully to halt the world-wide Communist advance, put the blocks to extravagant government spending, douse the tea of inflation, put the economy on an even keel, reverse the trend which is turning the country mto a moral sewer, and toss the criminals into the hoosegow where they belong. Yet despite high hopes and glittering campaign promise these problems continue to worsen no matter who is in office. Each new administration, whether it be Republican or Democrat continues the same basic policies of tile previous administration which it had so thoroughly denounced during the election campaign. It is considered poor form to mention this, but it is true nonetheless. Is there a plausible reason to explain why this happens? We are not supposed to think so. We are supposed to think it is all accidental and coincidental and that therefore there is nothing we can do about it.

FDR once said "In politics, nothing happens by accident. If it happens, you can bet it was planned that way." He was in a good position to know. We believe that many of the major world events that are shaping our destinies occur because somebody or somebodies have planned them that way. If we were merely dealing with the law of avenges, half of the events affecting our nation's well-being should be good for America. If we were dealing with mere incompetence, our leaders should occasionally make a mistake in our favor. We shall attempt to prove 'bat we are not really dealing with coincidence or stupidity, but with planning and brilliance. This small book deals with that planning and brilliance and how it has shaped the foreign and domestic policies of the last six administrations. We hope it will explain matters which have up to now seemed inexplicable; that it will bring into sharp focus images which have been obscured by the landscape painters of the mass media.

Those who believe that major world events result from planning are laughed at tot believing in the "conspiracy theory of history." Of course, no one in this modern day and age readily believes in the conspiracy theory of history---except those who Those who believe that major world events result from planning are laughed at for believing in the "conspiracy theory of history." Of course, no one in this modern day and age really believes in the conspiracy theory of history - except those who have taken the time to study the subject. When you think about it, there are really only two theories of history. Either things happen by accident neither planned nor caused by anybody, or they happen because they are planned and somebody causes them to happen. In reality, it is the accidental theory of history" preached in the unhallowed Halls of Ivy which should be ridiculed. Otherwise, why does every recent ad- ministration make the same mistakes as the previous ones? Why do they repeat the errors of the past which produce inflation, depressions and war? Why does our State Department "stumble" from one Communist-aiding "blunder" to another? If you believe it is all an accident or the result of mysterious and unexplainable tides of history, you will be regarded as an "intellectual" who understands that we live in a complex world. If you believe that something like 32,496 consecutive coincidences over the past forty years stretches the law of averages a bit, you are a kook!

Why is it that virtually

Why is it that virtually all "reputable" scholars and mass media columnists and commentators reject the cause and effect or conspiratorial theory of history? Primarily, most scholars follow the crowd in the academic world just as most women follow Why is it that virtually all "reputable" scholars and mass media columnists and commentators reject the cause and effect or conspiratorial theory of history? Primarily, most scholars follow the crowd in the academic world just as most women follow fashions. To buck the tide means social and professional ostracism. The same is true of the mass media. While professors and pontificators profess to be tolerant and broadminded, in practice it's strictly a one way street-with all traffic flowing left. A Maoist can be tolerated by Liberals of Ivory Towerland or by the Establishment's media pundits, but to be a conservative, and a conservative who propounds a conspiratorial view, is absolutely verboten. Better you should be a drunk at a national WCTU convention!

Secondly, these people have over the years acquired a strong vested emotional interest in their own errors. Their intellects and egos are totally committed to the accidental theory. Most people are highly reluctant to admit that they have been conned or have shown poor judgment. To inspect the evidence of the existence of a conspiracy guiding our political destiny from behind the scenes would force many of these people to repudiate a lifetime of accumulated opinions. It takes a person with strong character indeed to face the facts and admit he has been wrong even if it was because he was uninformed. Such was the case with the author of this book. It was only because he set out to prove the conservative anti- Communists wrong that he happened to end up writing this book. His initial reaction to the conservative point of view was one of suspicion and hostility; and it was only after many months of intensive research that he had to admit that he had been "conned."

Politicians and "intellectuals" are attracted to the concept that events are propelled by some mysterious tide of history or happen by accident. By this reasoning they hope to escape the blame when things go wrong.

Most intellectuals, pseudo and otherwise, deal with the conspiratorial theory of history simply by ignoring it. They never attempt to refute the evidence. It can't be refuted. If and when the silent treatment doesn't work, these "objective" scholars and mass media opinion molders resort to personal attacks, ridicule and satire. The personal attacks tend to divert attention from the facts which an author or speaker is trying to expose. The idea is to force the person exposing the conspiracy to stop the exposure and spend his time and effort defending himself.

However, the most effective weapons used against the conspiratorial theory of history are ridicule and satire. These extremely potent weapons can be cleverly used to avoid any honest attempt at refuting the facts. After all, nobody likes to be made fun of. Rather than be ridiculed most people will keep quiet; and, this subject certainly does lend itself to ridicule and satire. One technique which can be used is to expand the conspiracy to the extent it becomes absurd. For instance, our man from the Halls of Poison Ivy might say in a scoffingly arrogant tone, "I suppose you believe every liberal professor gets a telegram each morning from conspiracy headquarters containing his orders for the day's brainwashing of his students?" Some conspiratorialists do indeed overdraw the picture by expanding the conspiracy (from the small clique which it is) to include every local knee-jerk liberal activist and government bureaucrat. Or, because of racial or religious bigotry, they will take small fragments of legitimate evidence and expand them into a conclusion that will support their particular prejudice, i.e., the conspiracy is totally "Jewish," "Catholic," or "Masonic". These people do not help to expose the conspiracy, but, sadly play into the hands of those who want the public to believe that all conspiratorialists are screwballs.

"Intellectuals" are fond of mouthing cliches like "The conspiracy theory is often tempting. However, it is overly simplistic." To ascribe absolutely everything that happens to the machinations of a small group of power hungry conspirators is overly simplistic. But, in our opinion nothing is more simplistic than doggedly holding onto the accidental view of major world events.

In most cases Liberals simply accuse all those who discuss the conspiracy of being paranoid. "Ah, you right wingers," they say, "rustling every bush, kicking over every rock, looking for imaginary boogeymen." Then comes the coup de grace-labeling the conspiratorial theory as the "devil theory of history." The Liberals love that one. Even though it is an empty phrase, it sounds so sophisticated!

With the leaders of the academic and communications world assuming this sneering attitude towards the conspiratorial (or cause and effect) theory of history, it is not surprising that millions of innocent and well-meaning people, in a natural desire not to appear naive, assume the attitudes and repeat the cliches of the opinion makers. These persons, in their attempt to appear sophisticated, assume their mentors' air of smug superiority even though they themselves have not spent five minutes in study on the subject of international conspiracy.

The "accidentalists" would have us believe that ascribing any of our problems to planning is "simplistic" and all our problems are caused by Poverty, Ignorance and Disease - hereinafter abbreviated as PID. They ignore the fact that organized conspirators use PID, real and imagined, as an excuse to build a jail for us all. Most of the world has been in PID since time immemorial and it takes incredibly superficial thinking to ascribe the ricocheting of the United States government from one disaster to another over the past thirty years to PID. "Accidentalists" ignore the fact that some of the more advanced nations in the world have been captured by Communists. Czechoslovakia was one of the World's most modern industrial nations and Cuba had the second - highest per capita income of any nation in Central and South America.

It is not true, however, to state that there are no members of the intellectual elite who subscribe to the conspiratorial theory of history. For example, there is Professor Carroll Quigley of the Foreign Service School at Georgetown University. Professor Quigley can hardly be accused of being a "right wing extremist." (Those three words have been made inseparable by the mass media.) Dr. Quigley has all the "liberal" credentials, having taught at the Liberal Establishment's academic Meccas of Princeton and Harvard. In his 1300-page, 8 pound tome Tragedy and Hope, Dr. Quigley reveals the existence of the conspiratorial network which will be discussed in this book. The Professor is not merely formulating a theory, but revealing this network's existence from firsthand experience. He also makes it clear that it is only the network's secrecy and not their goals to which he objects. Professor Quigley discloses:

"I know of the operations of this network because I have studied it for twenty years and was permitted for two years, in the early 1960's, to examine its papers and secret records. I HAVE NO AVERSION TO IT OR TO MOST OF ITS AIMS AND HAVE, FOR MUCH OF MY LIFE, BEEN CLOSE TO IT AND TO MANY OF ITS INSTRUMENTS. I have objected, both in the past and recently, to a few of its policies . . . but in general my chief difference of opinion is that IT WISHES TO REMAIN UN- KNOWN, and I believe its role in history is significant enough to be known." (Emphasis added)

We agree, its role in history does deserve to be known. That is why we have written this book. However, we most emphatically disagree with this network's aim which the Professor describes as "nothing less than to create a world system of financial control in private hands able to dominate the political system of each country and the economy of the world as a whole.' In other words, this power mad clique wants to control and rule the world. Even more frightening, they want total control over all individual actions. As Professor Quigley observes: ". . . his [the individual's] freedom and choice will be controlled within very narrow alternatives by the fact that he will be numbered from birth and followed, as a number, through his educational training, his required military or other public service, his tax contributions, his health and medical requirements, and his final retirement and death benefits." It wants control over all natural resources, business, banking and transportation by controlling the governments of the world. In order to accomplish these aims the conspirators have had no qualms about fomenting wars, depressions and hatred. They want a monopoly which would eliminate all competitors and destroy the free' enterprise system. And Professor' Quigley, of Harvard, Princeton and Georgetown approves!

Professor Quigley is not the only academic who is aware of the existence of a clique of self-perpetuating conspirators whom we shall call Insiders. Other honest scholars finding the same individuals at the scenes of disastrous political fires over and over again have concluded that there 'is obviously an organization of pyromaniacs at work in the world. But these intellectually honest scholars realize that if they challenged the Insiders head-on, their careers would be destroyed. The author knows these men exist because he has been in contact with some of them.

? There are also religious leaders who are aware of the existence of this conspiracy. In a UPI story dated December 27, 1965, Father Pedro Arrupe, head of the Jesuit Order of the, Roman Catholic church, made the following charges during his remarks to the Ecumenical Council:

"This . . . Godless society operates in an extremely efficient manner at least in its higher levels of leadership. It makes use of every possible means at its disposal, be they scientific, technical, social or economic.

It follows a perfectly mapped-out strategy. It holds almost complete sway in international organizations, in financial circles, in the field of mass communications; press, cinema, radio and television."

There are a number of problems to be overcome in convincing a person of the possible existence of a conspiratorial clique of Insiders who from the very highest levels manipulate government policy. In this case truth is really stranger than fiction. We are dealing with history's greatest "whodunit," a mystery thriller which puts Erle Stanley Gardner to shame. If you love a mystery, you'll be fascinated with the study of the operations of the insiders. If you do study this network of which Professor Quigley speaks, you will find that what had at first seemed incredible not only exists, but heavily influences our lives.

It must be remembered that the first job of any conspiracy, whether it be in politics, crime or within a business office, is to convince everyone else that no conspiracy exists. The conspirators success will be determined largely by their ability to do this. That the elite of the academic world and mass communications media always pooh-pooh the existence of the Insiders merely serves to camouflage their operations. These "artists" hide the boy, the cart and the donkey.

Probably at some time you have been involved with or had personal knowledge of some event which was reported in the news. Perhaps it concerned an athletic event, an election, a committee or your business. Did the report contain the "real" story, the story behind the story? Probably not. And for a variety of reasons. The reporter had time and space problems and there is a good chance the persons involved deliberately did not reveal all the facts. Possibly the reporter's own prejudices governed what facts went into the story and which were deleted. Our point is that most people know from personal experience that a news story often is not the whole story. But many of us assume that our own case is unique when really it is typical. What is true about the reporting of local events is equally as true about the reporting of national and international events.

Psychological problems are also involved in inducing people to look at the evidence concerning the Insiders. People are usually comfortable with their old beliefs and conceptions. When Columbus told people the world was a ball and not a pancake, they were highly upset. They were being asked to reject their way of thinking of a lifetime and adopt a whole new outlook. The "intellectuals" of the day scoffed at Columbus and people were afraid they would lose social prestige if they listened to him. Many others just did not want to believe the world was round. It complicated too many things. And typical flat-earthers had such a vested interest involving their own egos, that they heaped abuse on Columbus for challenging their view of the universe. Don't confuse us with facts; our minds are made up," they said.
These same factors apply today. Because the Establishment controls the media, anyone exposing the Insiders will be the recipient of a continuous fusillade of invective from newspapers, magazines, TV and radio. In this manner one is threatened with loss of "social respectability" if he dares broach the idea that there is organization behind any of the problems currently wracking America. Unfortunately, for many people social status comes before intellectual honesty. Although they would never admit it social position is more important to many people than is the survival of freedom in America.

If you ask these people which is more important- social respectability or saving their children from slavery -they will tell you the latter, of course. But their actions (or lack of same) speak so much louder than their words. People have an infinite capacity for rationalization when it comes to refusing to face the threat to America's survival. Deep down these people are afraid they may be laughed at if they take a stand, or may be denied an in vitation to some social climber's cocktail party. Instead of getting mad at the insiders, these people actually get angry at these who are trying to save the country by exposing the conspirators.

One thing which makes it so hard for some socially minded people to assess the conspiratorial evidence objectively is that the conspirators come from the very highest social strata. They are immensely wealthy, highly educated and extremely cultured. Many of them have lifelong reputations for philanthropy. Nobody enjoys being put in the position of accusing prominent people of conspiring to enslave their fellow Americans, but the facts are inescapable. Many business and professional people are particularly vulnerable to the "don't jeopardize your social respectability" pitch given by those who don't want the conspiracy exposed. The Insiders know that if the business and professional community will not take a stand to save the private enterprise system, the socialism through which they intend to control the world will be inevitable. They believe that most business and professional men are too shallow and decadent, too status conscious, too tied up in the problems of their jobs and businesses to worry about what is going on in politics. These men are told that it might be bad for business or jeopardize their government contracts if they take a stand. They have been bribed into silence with their own tax monies!

We are hoping that the conspirators have underestimated the courage and patriotism remaining in the American people. We feel there are a sufficient number of you who are not mesmerized by the television set, who put God, family and country above social status, who will band together to expose and destroy the conspiracy of the insiders. The philosopher Diogenes scoured the length and breadth of ancient Greece searching for an honest man. We are scouring the length and breadth of America in search of hundreds of thousands of intellectually honest men and women who are willing to investigate facts and come to logical conclusions-no matter how unpleasant those conclusions may be.

CHAPTER TWO

SOCIALISM-ROYAL ROAD TO POWER

FOR THE SUPER-RICH

Everyone knows that Adolph Hitler existed. No one disputes that. The terror and destruction that this madman inflicted upon the world are universally recognized. Hitler came from a poor family which had absolutely no social position. He was a high school drop-out and nobody ever accused him of being cultured. Yet this man tried to conquer the world. During his early career he sat in a cold garret and poured onto paper his ambitions to rule the world. We know that.

Similarly, we know that a man named Vladimir Ilich Lenin also existed. Like Hitler, Lenin did not spring from a family of social lions. The son of a petty bureaucrat, Lenin, who spent most of his adult life in poverty, has been responsible for the deaths of tens of millions of your fellow human beings and the enslavement of nearly a billion more. Like Hitler, Lenin sat up nights in a dank garret scheming how he could conquer the world. We know that too.

Is it not theoretically possible that a billionaire could be sitting, not in a garret, but in a penthouse, in Manhattan, London or Paris and dream the same dream as Lenin and Hitler? You will have to admit it is theoretically possible. Julius Caesar, a wealthy aristocrat, did. And such a man might form an alliance or association with other like- minded men, might he not? Caesar did. These men would be superbly educated, command immense social prestige and be able to pool astonishing amounts of money to carry out their purposes. These are advantages that Hitler and Lenin did not have.

It is difficult for the average individual to fathom such perverted lust for power. The typical person, of whatever nationality, wants only to enjoy success in his job, to be able to afford a reasonably high standard of living complete with leisure and travel. He wants to provide for his family in sickness and in health and to give his children a sound education. His ambition stops there. He has no desire to exercise power over others, to conquer other lands or peoples, to be a king. He wants to mind his own business and enjoy life. Since he has no lust for power, it is difficult for him to imagine that there are others who have . . . others who march to a far different drum. But we must realize that there have been Hitlers and Lenins and Stalins and Caesars and Alexander the Greats throughout history. Why should we assume there are no such men today with perverted lusts for power? And if these men happen to be billionaires is it not possible that they would use men like Hitler and Lenin as pawns to seize power for themselves?

Indeed, difficult as this is to believe, such is the case. Like Columbus, we are faced with the task of convincing you that the world is not flat, as you have been led to believe all your life, but, instead, is round. We are going to present evidence that what you call "Communism" is not run from Moscow or Peking, but is an arm of a bigger conspiracy run from New York, London and Paris. The men at the apex of this movement are not Communists in the traditional sense of that term. They feel no loyalty to Moscow of Peking. They are loyal only to themselves and their undertaking. And these men certainly do not believe in the clap-trap pseudo-philosophy of Communism. They have no intention of dividing their wealth. Socialism is a philosophy which conspirators exploit, but in which only the naive believe. Just how finance capitalism is used as the anvil and Communism as the hammer to conquer the world will be explained in this book.

The concept that Communism is but an arm of a larger conspiracy has become increasingly apparent throughout the author's journalistic investigations. He has had the opportunity to interview privately four retired officers who spent their careers high in military intelligence. Much of what the author knows he learned from them. And the story is known to several thousand others. High military intelligence circles are well aware of this network. In addition, the-author has interviewed six men who have spent considerable time as investigators for Congressional committees. In 1953, one of these men, Norman Dodd, headed the Reece Committee's investigation of tax-free foundations. When Mr. Dodd began delving into the role of international high finance in the world revolutionary movement, the investigation was killed on orders from the Eisenhower occupied White House. According to Mr. Dodd, it is permissable to investigate the radical bomb throwers in the streets, but when you begin to trace their activities back to their origins in the "legitimate world," the political iron curtain slams down.

You can believe anything you want about Communism except that it is a conspiracy run by men from the respectable world. People will often say to an active anti- Communist: "I can understand your concern with Communism, but the idea that a Communist conspiracy is making great inroads in the United States is absurd. The American people are anti-Communist. They're not about to buy Communism. It's understandable to be concerned about Communism in Africa or Asia or South America with their tremendous poverty, ignorance and disease. But to be concerned about Communism in the United States where the vast majority of people have no sympathy with it whatsoever is a misspent concern."

On the face of it, that is a very logical and plausible argument. The American people are indeed anti-Communist. Suppose you were to lay this book down right now, pick up a clipboard and head for the nearest shopping center to conduct a survey on Americans' attitudes about Communism. "Sir," you say to the first prospect you encounter, "we would like to know if you are for or against Communism?"

Most people would probably think you were putting them on. If we stick to our survey we would find that ninety-nine percent of the people are anti-Communist. We probably would be hard put to find anybody who would take an affirmative stand for Communism.

So, on the surface it appears that the charges made against anti-Communists concerned with the internal threat of Communism are valid. The American people' are not pro-Communist. But before our imaginary interviewee walks away in disgust with what he believes is a hokey survey, you add: "Sir, before you leave there are a couple of other questions I would like to ask. You won't find these quite so insulting or ludicrous." Your next question is: "What is Communism? Will you define it, please?"

Immediately a whole new situation has developed. Rather than the near unanimity previously found, we now have an incredible diversity of ideas. There are a multitude of opinions on what Communism is. Some will say: "Oh, yes, Communism. Well, that's a tyrannical brand of socialism." Others will maintain "Communism as it was originally intended by Karl Marx was a good idea. But it has never been practiced and the Russians have loused it up." A more erudite type might proclaim: "Communism is simply a rebirth of Russian imperialism."

If perchance one of the men you ask to define Communism happened to be a political science professor from the local college, he might well reply: "You can't ask 'what is Communism?' That is a totally simplistic question about an extremely complex situation. Communism today, quite unlike the view held by the right wing extremists in America, is not an international monolithic movement. Rather, it is a polycentric, fragmented, nationalistic movement deriving its character through the charismas of its various national leaders. While, of course, there is the welding of Hegelian dialectics with Feuerbachian materialism held in common by the Communist parties generally, it is a monumental oversimplification to ask 'what is Communism.' Instead you should ask: What is the Communism of Mao Tse-tung? What is the Communism of the late Ho Chi Minh, or Fidel Castro or Marshal Tito?"

If you think we are being facetious here, you haven't talked to a political science professor lately. For the above is the prevailing view on our. campuses, not to mention in our State Department.

Whether you agree or disagree with any of these definitions, or, as may well be the case, you have one of your own, one thing is undeniable. No appreciable segment of the anti-Communist American public can agree on just what it is that they are against. Isn't that frightening? Here we have something that almost everybody agrees is bad, but we' cannot agree on just what it is we are against.

How would this work in a football game, for example? Can you imagine how effective the defense of a football team would be if the front four could not agree with the linebackers who could not agree with the corner backs who could not agree with the safety men who could not agree with the assistant coaches who could not agree with the head coach as to what kind of defense they should put up against the offense being presented? The obvious result would be chaos. You could take a sand lot team and successfully pit them against the Green Bay Packers if the Packers couldn't agree on what it is they are opposing. That is academic. The first principle in any encounter, whether it be football or war (hot or cold), is: Know your enemy. The American people do not know their enemy. Consequently, it is not strange at all that for three decades we have been watching one country of the world after another fall behind the Communist curtain.

In keeping with the fact that almost everybody seems to have his own definition of Communism, we are going to give you ours, and then we will attempt to prove to you that it is the only valid one. Communism: AN INTERNATIONAL, CONSPIRATORIAL DRIVE FOR POWER ON THE PART OF MEN IN HIGH PLACES WILLING TO USE ANY MEANS TO BRING ABOUT THEIR DESIRED AIM-GLOBAL CONQUEST.

You will notice that we did not mention Marx, Engels, Lenin, Trotsky, bourgeois, proletariat or dialectical materialism. We said nothing of the pseudo-economics or political philosophy of the Communists. These are the TECHNIQUES of Communism and should not be con- fused with the Communist conspiracy itself. We did call it an international conspiratorial drive for power. Unless we understand the conspiratorial nature of Communism, we don't understand it at all. We will be eternally fixated at the Gus Hall level of Communism. And that's not where it's at, baby!

The way to bring down the wrath of the Liberal press Establishment or the professional Liberals is simply to use the word conspiracy in relation to Communism. We are not supposed to believe that Communism is a political conspiracy. We can believe anything else we wish to about it. We can believe that it is brutal, tyrannical, evil or even that it intends to bury us, and we will win the plaudits of the vast majority of American people. But don't ever, ever use the word conspiracy if you expect applause, for that is when the wrath of Liberaldom will be unleashed against you. We are not disallowed from believing in all types of conspiracy, just modern political conspiracy.

We know that down through the annals of history small groups of men have existed who have conspired to bring the reins of power into their hands. History books are full of their schemes. Even Life magazine believes in conspiracies like the Cosa Nostra where men conspire to make money through crime. You may recall that Life did a series of articles on the testimony of Joseph Valachi before the McClellan Committee several years ago. There are some aspects of those revelations which are worth noting.

Most of us did not know the organization was called Cosa Nostra. Until Valachi "sang" we all thought it was named the Mafia. That is how little we knew about this group, despite the fact that it was a century old and had been operating in many countries with a self-perpetuating clique of leaders. We didn't even know it by its proper name. It is not possible a political conspiracy might exist, waiting for a Joseph Valachi to testify? Is Dr. Carroll Quigley the Joseph Valachi of political conspiracies?

We see that everybody, even Life magazine, believes in some sort of conspiracy. The question is: Which is the more lethal form of conspiracy criminal or political? And what is the difference between a member of the Cosa Nostra and a Communist, or more properly, an insider conspirator? Men like Lucky Luciano who have scratched and clawed to the top of the heap in organized crime must, of necessity, be diabolically brilliant, cunning and absolutely ruthless. But, almost without exception, the men in the hierarchy of organized crime have had no formal education. They were born into poverty and learned their trade in the back alleys of Naples, New York or Chicago.

Now suppose someone with this same amoral grasping personality were born into a patrician family of great wealth and was educated at the best prep schools, then Harvard, Yale or Princeton, followed by graduate work possibly at Oxford. In these institutions he would become totally familiar with history, economics, psychology, sociology and political science. After having graduated from such illustrious establishments of higher learning, are we likely to find him out on the streets peddling fifty cent tickets to a numbers game? Would you find him pushing marijuana to high schoolers or running a string of houses of prostitution? Would he be getting involved in gang- land killings? Not at all. For with that sort of education, this person would realize that if one wants power, real power, the lessons of history say, "Get into the government business." Become a politician and work for political power or, better yet, get some politicians to front for you. That is - where the real power-and the real money-is.

Conspiracy to seize the power of government is as old as government itself. We can study the - conspiracies surrounding Alcibiades in Greece or Julius Caesar in ancient, Rome, but we are not supposed to think that men today scheme to achieve political power.

Every conspirator has two things in common with every other conspirator. He must be an accomplished liar and a far-seeing planner. Whether you are studying Hitler, Alcibiades, Julius Caesar or some of our contemporary conspirators, you will find that their patient planning is almost overwhelming. We repeat FDR's statement: "In politics, nothing happens by accident. If it happens, you can bet it was planned that way.

In reality, Communism is a tyranny planned by power seekers whose most effective weapon is the big lie. And if one takes all the lies of Communism and boils them down, you will find they distill into two major lies out of which all others spring. They are: (1) Communism is inevitable, and (2) Communism is a movement of the downtrodden masses rising up against exploiting bosses.

Let us go back to our imaginary survey and analyze our first big lie of Communism-that it is inevitable. You will recall that we asked our interviewee if he was for or against Communism and then we asked him to define it. Now we are going to ask him: "Sir, do you think Communism is inevitable in America?" And in almost every case the response will be something like this: "Oh, well, no. I don't think so. You know how Americans are. We are a little slow sometimes in reacting to danger. You remember Pearl Harbor. But the American people would never sit still for Communism."

Next we ask: "Well then, do you think socialism is inevitable in America?" The answer, in almost every case will be similar to this: "'I'm no socialist, you understand, but I see what is going on in this country. Yeah, I'd have to say that socialism is inevitable."

Then we ask our interviewee: "Since you say you are not a socialist but you feel the country is being socialized, why don't you do something about it?" His response will rim: "I'm only one person. Besides it's inevitable. You can't fight city hall, heh, heh, heh."

Don't you know that the boys down at city hall are doing everything they can to convince you of that? How effectively can you oppose anything if you feel your op- position is futile? Giving your opponent the idea that defending himself is futile is as old as warfare itself. In about 500 B. C. the Chinese war lord-philosopher Sun Tsu stated, "Supreme excellence in warfare lies in the destruction of your enemy's will to resist in advance of perceptible hostilities." We call it "psy war" or psychological warfare today. In poker, it is called "running a good bluff." The principle is the same.

Thus we have the American people: anti-Communist, but unable to define it and anti-socialist, but thinking it is' inevjtable. How did Marx view Communism? How important is "the inevitability of Communism" to the Communists? What do the Communists want you to believe is inevitable Communism or socialism? If you study Marx' Communist Manifesto you will find that in essence Marx said the proletarian revolution would establish the SOCIALIST dictatorship of the proletariat. To achieve the SOCIALIST dictatorship of the proletariat, three things would have to be accomplished: (I) The elimination of all right to private property; (2) The dissolution of the familv unit; and (3) Destruction of what Marx referred to as the "opiate of the people," religion.

Marx went on to state that when the dictatorship of the proletariat had accomplished these three things throughout the world, and after some undetermined length of time (as you can imagine, he was very vague on this point), the all powerful state' would miraculously wither away and state socialism would give way to Communism. You wouldn't need any government at all. Everything would be peace, sweetness and light and everybody would live happily ever after. But first, all Communists must work to establish SOCIALISM.

Can't you just see Karl Marx really believing that an omnipotent state would wither away? Or can you imagine that a Joseph Stalin (or any other man with the cunning' and ruthlessness necessary to rise to the top of the heap in. an all-powerful dictatorship) would voluntarily dismantle the power he had built by fear and terror?*'

~Karl Marx was hired by a mysterious group who called themselves the League of Just Men to write the Communist Manifesto as demogogic boob~bait to appeal to the mob. In actual fact the Communist Manifesto was in circulation for many years before Marx' name was widely enough recognized to establish his authorship for this revolutionary handbook. All Karl Marx really did was to update and codify the very same revo

Socialism would be the bait . . the excuse to establish the dictatorship. Since dictatorship is hard to sell in idealistic terms, the idea had to be added that the dictatorship was just a temporary necessity and would soon dissolve of its own accord. You really have to be naive to swallow that, but millions do?

The drive to establish SOCIALISM, not Communism, is at the core of everything the Communists and the Insiders do. Marx and all of his successors in the Communist movement have ordered their followers to work on building SOCIALISM. If you go to hear an official Communist speaker, he never mentions Communism. He will speak only of the struggle to complete the socialization of America. If you go to a Communist bookstore you will find that all of their literature pushes this theme. It does not call for the establishment of Communism, but~ SOCIALISM.

And many members of the Establishment push this same theme. The September 1970 issue of New York magazine contains an article by Harvard Professor John Kenneth Gaibraith, himself a professed socialist, entitled "Richard Nixon and the Great Socialist Revival." In describing what he calls the "Nixon Game Plan," Gaibraith states:

"Mr. Nixon is probably not a great reader of Marx, but [his advisors] Drs. Burns, Shultz and McCracken are excellent scholars who know him well and could have brought the President abreast and it is beyond denying that the crisis that aided the rush into socialism was engineered by the Administration...."

lutionary plans and principles set down seventy years earlier by Adam Weishaupt, the founder of the Order of illuminati in Bavaria. And, it is widely acknowledged by serious scholars of this subject that the League of Just Men was simply an extension of the Illuminati which was forced to go deep underground after it was exposed by a raid in 1786 conducted by the Bavarian authorities.)

Dr. Gaibraith began his article by stating:

"Certainly the least predicted development under the Nixon Administration was this great new thrust to socialism. One encounters people who still aren't aware of it. Others must be rubbing their eyes, for certainly the portents seemed all to the contrary. As and opponent of socialism, Mr.

Nixon seemed steadfast. . .

Gaibraith then proceeds to list the giant steps toward socialism taken by the Nixon Administration. The conclusion one draws from the article is that socialism, whether it be from the Democrat or Republican Parties, is inevitable. Fellow Harvard socialist Dr. Arthur Schlesinger has said much the same thing:

"The chief liberal gains in the past generally remain on the statute books when the conservatives recover power liberalism grows constantly more liberal, and by the same token, conservatism grows constantly less conservative...."

Many extremely patriotic individuals have innocently fallen for the conspiracy's line. Walter Trohan, columnist emeritus for the Chicago Tribune and one of America's outstanding political commentators, has accurately noted:

"It is a known fact that the policies of the government today, whether Republican or Democratic, are closer to the 1932 platform of the Communist Party than they are to either of their own party platforms in that critical year. More than 100 years ago, in 1848 to be exact, Karl Marx promulgated his program for the socialized state in the Communist Manifesto...."

And Mr. Trohan has also been led to believe that the trend is inevitable:

"Conservatives should be realistic enough to recognize that this country is going deeper into socialism and will see expansion of federal power, whether Republicans or Democrats are in power. The only comfort they may have is that the pace will be slower under Richard M. Nixon than it might have been under Hubert H. Humphrey....

Conservatives are going to have to recognize that the Nixon Administration will embrace most of the socialism of the Democratic administrations, while professing to improve it....,,

The Establishment promotes the idea of the inevitability of Communism through its perversion of terms used in describing the political spectrum. (See Chart 1) We are told that on the far Left of the political spectrum we find Communism, which is admittedly dictatorial. But, we are also told that equally to be feared is the opposite of the far Left, i.e., the far Right, which is labeled Fascism. We are constantly told that we should all try to stay m the middle of the road, which is termed democracy, but by which the Establishment means Fabian (or creeping) socialism. (The fact that the middle of the road has been moving. inexorably leftward for forty years is ignored.) Here is an excellent example of the use of false alternatives. We are given the choice between Communism (international socialism) on one end of the spectrum Naziism (national socialism) on the other end, or Fabian socialism in the middle. The whole spectrum is socialist!

This is absurd. Where would you put an anarchist on this spectrum? Where do you put a person who believes in a Constitutional Republic and the free enterprise system? He is not represented here, yet this spectrum is used for political definitions by a probable ninety percent of the people of the nation.

Chart 2 is a more rational political spectrum with total government in any form on the far Left and no government or anarchy on the far right. The U. S. was a Republic with a limited government, but for the past 60 years we have been moving leftward across the spectrum towards total government with each new piece of socialist legislation.

There is an accurate political spectrum. (See Chart 2.) Communism is, by definition, total government. If you have total government it makes little difference whether you call it Communism, Fascism, Socialism, Caesarism or Pharaohism. It's all pretty much the same from the stand- point of the people who must live and suffer under it. If total government (by any of its pseudonyms) stands on the far Left, then by logic the far Right should represent anarchy, or no government.

Our Founding Fathers revolted against the near-total government of the English monarchy. But they knew that having no government at all would lead to chaos. So they set up a Constitutional Republic with a very limited government. They knew that men prospered in freedom. Although the free enterprise system is not mentioned specifically in the Constitution, it is the only one which can exist under a Constitutional Republic. All collectivist systems require power in government which the Constitution did not grant. Our Founding Fathers had no 'intention of allowing the government to become an instrument to steal the fruit of one man' s labor and give it to another who had not earned it. Our government was to be one of severely limited powers. Thomas Jefferson said: "In questions of power then let no more be heard of confidence in man, but bind him down from mischief by the chains of the 'Constitution." Jefferson knew that if the government were not enslaved, people soon would be.

It was Jefferson's view that government governs best which governs least. Our forefathers established this country with the very least possible amount of 'government. Although they lived in an age before automobiles, electric lights and television, they understood human nature and its relation to political systems far better than do most Americans today. Times change, technology changes, but principles are eternal. Primarily, government was to provide for national defense and to establish a court system. But we have burst the chains that Jefferson spoke of and for many years now we have been moving leftward across the political spectrum toward collectivist total government. Every proposal by our political leaders (including some which are supposed to have the very opposite effect, such as Nixon's revenue sharing proposal) carries us further leftward to centralized government. This is not because socialism is inevitable. It is no more inevitable than Pharaohism. It is largely the result of clever planning and patient gradualism.
Since all Communists and their Insider bosses are waging a constant struggle for SOCIALISM, let us define that term. Socialism is usually defined as government ownership and/or control over the basic means of production and distribution of goods and services. When analyzed this means government control over everything, including you. All controls are "people" controls. If the government controls these areas it can eventually do just exactly as Marx set out to do-destroy the right to private property, eliminate the family and wipe out religion.

We are being socialized in America and everybody knows it. if we had a chance to sit down and have a cup of coffee with the man in the street that we have been interviewing, he might say: "You know, the one thing I can never figure out is why all these very, very wealthy people like the Kennedys, the Fords, the Rockefellers and others are for socialism. Why are the super-rich for socialism? Don't they have the most to lose? I take a look at my bank account and compare it with Nelson Rockefeller's and it seems funny that I'm against socialism and he's out promoting it." Or is it funny? In reality, there is a vast difference between what the promoters define as socialism and what it is in actual practice. The idea that socialism is a share-the-wealth program is strictly a confidence game to get the people to surrender their freedom to an all- powerful collectivist government. While the insiders tell us we are building a paradise on earth, we are actually constructing a jail for ourselves.

Doesn't it strike you as strange that some of the individuals pushing hardest for socialism have their own personal wealth protected in family trusts and tax-free foundations? Men like Rockefeller, Ford and Kennedy are for every socialist program known to man which will increase your taxes. Yet they pay little, if anything, in taxes themselves. An article published by the North American Newspaper Alliance in August of 1967 tells how the' Rockefellers pay practically no income taxes despite their vast wealth. The article reveals that One of the Rockefellers paid the grand total of $685 personal income tax during a recent year. The Kennedys have their Chicago Merchandise Mart, their mansions, yachts, 'planes, etc., all owned by their myriads of family foundations and trusts. Taxes are for peons! Yet hypocrites like Rockefeller, Ford and Kennedy pose as great champions of the "downtrodden." If they were really concerned about the poor, rather than using socialism as a means of' achieving personal political power, they would divest themselves of their own fortunes. There is no law which prevents them from giving away their own fortunes to the poverty stricken. Shouldn't these men set all example? And practice what they preach? If they advocate sharing the wealth, shouldn't they start with their own instead of that of the middle class which pays almost all the taxes? Why don't Nelson Rockefeller and Henry Ford II give away all their wealth, retaining only enough to place themselves at the national average? Can't you imagine Teddy Kennedy giving up his mansion, airplane and yacht and moving into a $25,000 home' with a $20,000' mortgage like the rest of us?

We are usually told that this clique of super-rich are socialists because they have a guilt complex over wealth they inherited and did not earn. Again, they could relieve these supposed guilt complexes simply by divesting themselves of their unearned wealth. There' are doubtless many wealthy do-gooders who have been given a guilt complex by their college professors, but that doesn't explain the actions of Insiders like the Rockefellers, Fords or Kennedys. All their actions betray them as power seekers.

But the Kennedys, Rockefellers and their super-rich confederates are not being hypocrites in advocating socialism. It appears to be a contradiction for the super-rich to work for socialism and the destruction of free enterprise. In reality it is not.

Our problem is that most of us believe socialism is what the socialists want us to believe it is-a share-the wealth program. That is the theory. But is that how it works? Let us examine the only Socialist countries according to the Socialist definition of the word extant in the world today. These are the Communist countries. The Communists themselves refer to these as Socialist countries, as in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Here in the reality of socialism you have a tiny oligarchial clique at the top, usually numbering no more than three percent of the total population, controlling the total wealth, total production and the very lives of the other ninety-seven percent. Certainly even the most naive observe that Mr. Brezhnev doesn't live like one of the poor peasants out on the great Russian steppes. But, according to socialist theory, he is supposed to do just that!

If one understands that socialism is not a share-the Wealth program, but is in reality a method to consolidate and control the wealth, then the seeming paradox of super- rich men promoting socialism becomes no paradox at all. Instead it becomes the logical, even the perfect tool of power-seeking megalomaniacs. Communism, or more accurately, socialism, is not a movement of the downtrodden masses, but of the economic elite. The plan of the conspirator Insiders then is to socialize the United States, not to Communize it.

How is this to be accomplished? Chart 3 shows the structure of our government as established by our Founding Fathers. The Constitution fractionalized and subdivided governmental power in every way possible. The Founding Fathers believed that each branch of the government, whether at the federal, state or local level, would be jealous of its powers and would never surrender them to centralized control. Also, many phases of our lives (such as charity and education) were put totally, or almost totally, out of the grasp of politicians. Under this system you could not have a dictatorship. No segment of government could possibly amass enough power to form a dictatorship. In order to have a dictatorship one must have a single branch holding most of the reins of power. Once you have this, a dictatorship is inevitable.

A dictatorship was impossible in our Republic because power was widely diffused. Today, as we approach Democratic Socialism1 all power is being centralized at the apex of the executive branch of the federal government. This concentration of power makes a dictatorship inevitable. Those who control the President indirectly gain virtual control of the whole country.

The English philosopher Thomas Hobbes noted: "Freedom is government divided into small fragments." Woodrow Wilson, before he became the tool of the Insiders, observed: "This history of liberty is a history of the limitations of governmental power, not the increase of it." And the English historian Lord Acton commented: "Power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely." Even though these men lived after our Constitution was written, our forefathers understood these principles completely.

But what is happening today? As we move leftward along the political spectrum towards socialism, all the reins of power are being centralized in the executive branch of the federal government. Much of this is being done by buying with legislation or with "free" federal grants all the other entities. Money is used as bait and the hook is federal control. The Supreme Court has ruled, and in this case quite logically, that it is hardly lack of due process for the government to regulate that which it subsidizes."

If you and your clique wanted control over the United States, it would be impossible to take over every city hall, county seat and state house. You would want all power vested at the apex of the executive branch of the federal government; then you would have only to control one man to control the whole shebang. If you wanted to control the nation's manufacturing, commerce, finance, transportation and natural resources, you would need only to control the apex, the power pinnacle, of an all-powerful SOCIALIST government. Then you would have a monopoly and could squeeze out all your competitors. If you wanted a national monopoly, you must control a national socialist government. If you want a worldwide monopoly, you must control a world socialist government. That is what the game is all "Communism" is not a movement of the downtrodden masses but is a movement created, manipulated and used by power-seeking billionaires in order to gain control over the world first by establishing socialist governments in the various nations and then consolidating them all through a "Great Merger," into an all-powerful world socialist super-state probably under the auspices of the United Nations The balance of this book will outline just how they have used Communism to approach that goal.

CHAPTER THREE

THE MONEY MANIPULATORS

Many college history professors tell their charges that the books they will be using in the class are "objective." But stop and ask yourself: Is it possible to write a history book without a particular point of view? There are billions of events, which take place in the world each day. To think of writing a complete history of a nation covering even a year is absolutely incredible.

Not only is a historian's ability to write an "objective" history limited by the sheer volume of happenings, but by the fact that many of the most important happenings never appear in the papers or even in somebody's memoirs. The decisions reached by the "Big Boys" in the smoke-filled rooms are not reported even in the New York Times which ostensibly reports all the news that is fit to print. ("All the news that fits" is a more accurate description

In order to build his case, a historian must select a miniscule number of facts from the limited number that are known If he does not have a theory,' how does he separate important facts from unimportant ones? As Professor Stuart Crane has pointed out, this is why every book "proves" the author's thesis. But no book is objective. No book can be objective; and this book is not objective. (Liberal reviewers should have a ball quoting that out of context.) The information in it is true, but the book is not objective. We have carefully selected the facts to prove our case. We believe that most other historians have focused on the landscape, and ignored that which is most important: the cart, boy and donkey.

Most of the facts which we bring out are readily verifiable at any large library. But our contention is that we have arranged these facts in the order which most accurately reveals their true significance in history. These are the facts the Establishment does not want you to know.

Have you ever had the experience of walking into a mystery movie two-thirds of the way through? Confusing wasn't it? All the evidence made it look as if the butler were the murderer, but in the final scenes you find out, surprisingly, that it was the man's wife all along. You have to stay and see the beginning of the film. Then as all the pieces fall into place, the story makes sense.

This situation is very similar to the one in which millions of Americans find themselves today. They are confused by current happenings in the nation. They have come in as the movie, so to speak, is going into its' conclusion. The earlier portion of the mystery is needed to make the whole thing understandable. (Actually, we are not really starting at the beginning, but we are going back far enough to give meaning to today's happenings.)

In order to understand the conspiracy it is necessary to have some rudimentary knowledge of banking and, particularly, of international bankers. While it would be an over-simplification to ascribe the entire conspiracy to international bankers, they nevertheless have played a key role. Think of the conspiracy as a hand with one finger labelled "international banking," others "foundations," "the anti-religion movement" "Fabian Socialism," and "Communism." But it was the international bankers of whom Professor Quigley was speaking when we quoted him earlier as stating that their aim was nothing less than control of the world through finance.

Where do governments get the enormous amounts of money they need? Most, of course, comes from taxation; but governments often spend more than they are willing to tax from their citizens and so are forced to borrow. Our national debt is now $455 billion on every cent of it borrowed at interest from somewhere.

The public is led to believe that our government borrows from "the people" through savings bonds. Actually, only the smallest percentage of the national debt is held by individuals in this form. Most government bonds, except those owned by the government itself through its trust funds, are held by vast banking firms known as international banks.

For centuries there has been big money to be made by international bankers in the financing of governments and kings. Such operators are faced, however, with certain thorny problems. We know that smaller banking operations protect themselves by taking collateral, but what kind of collateral can you get from a government or a king? What if the banker comes to collect and the king says, "Off with his head"? The process through which one collects a debt from a government or a monarch is not a subject taught in the business schools of our universities, and most of us-never having been in the business of financing kings-have not given the problem much thought But there is a king-financing business and to those who can ensure collection it is lucrative indeed.

Economics Professor Stuart Crane notes that there are two means used to collateralize loans to governments and kings. Whenever a business firm borrows big money its creditor obtains a voice in management to protect his investment. Like a business, no government can borrow big money unless willing to surrender to the creditor some measure of sovereignty as collateral. Certainly international bankers who have loaned hundred' of billions of dollars to governments around the work command considerable influence in the policies of such governments.

But the ultimate advantage the creditor has over the king or president is that if the ruler gets out of line the banker can finance his enemy or rival. Therefore, if you want to stay in the lucrative king-financing business, it is wise to have an enemy or rival waiting in the wings to unseat every king or president to whom you lend. If the king doesn't have an enemy, you must create one.

Preeminent in playing this game was the famous House of Rothschild. Its founder, Meyer Amschel Rothschild (1743-1812) of Frankfurt, Germany, kept one of his five sons at home to run the Frankfurt bank and sent the others to London, Paris, Vienna and Naples. The Rothschilds became incredibly wealthy during the nineteenth century by financing governments to fight each other. According to Professor Stuart Crane:

"If you will look back at every war in Europe during the Nineteenth Century, you will see that they always ended with the establishment of a 'balance of power.' With every re-shuffling there was a balance of power in a new grouping around the House of Rothschild in England, France, or Austria. They grouped nations so that if any king got out of line a war would break out and the war would be decided by which way the financing went. Researching the debt positions of the warring nations will usually indicate who was to be punished.

In describing the characteristics of the Rothschilds and other major international bankers, Dr. Quigley tells us that they remained different from ordinary bankers in several ways: they were cosmopolitan and international; they were close to governments and were particularly concerned with government debts, including foreign government debts; these bankers came to be called "international bankers." (Quigley, Tragedy and Hope, p.52)

One major reason for the historical blackout on the role of the international bankers in political history is that the Rothschilds were Jewish. Anti-Semites have played into the hands of the conspiracy by trying to portray the entire conspiracy as Jewish. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The traditionally Anglo-Saxon J. P. Morgan and Rockefeller international banking institutions have played a key role in the conspiracy. But there is no denying the importance of the Rothschilds and their satellites. However, it is just as unreasonable and immoral to blame all Jews for the crimes of the Rothschilds as it is to hold all Baptists accountable for the crimes of the Rockefellers.

The Jewish members of the conspiracy have used an organization called the Anti-Defamation League as an instrument to try to convince everyone that any mention of the Rothschilds or their allies is an attack on all Jews. In this way they have stifled almost all honest scholarship on international bankers and made the subject taboo within universities.

Any individual or book exploring this subject is immediately attacked by hundreds of A.D.L. committees all over the country. The A.D.L. has never let truth or logic interfere with its highly professional smear jobs. When no evidence is apparent, the A.D.L., which staunchly opposed so-called "McCarthyism," accuses people of being "latent anti-Semites." Can you imagine how they would yowl and scream if someone accused them of being "latent" Communists?

Actually, nobody has a right to be more angry at the Rothschild clique than their fellow Jews. The Warburgs, part of the Rothschild empire, helped finance Adolph Hitler. There were few if any Rothschilds or Warburgs in the Nazi prison camps! They sat out the war in luxurious hotels in Paris or emigrated to the United States or England. As a group, Jews have suffered most at the hands of these power seekers. A Rothschild has much more in common with a Rockefeller than he does with a tailor from Budapest or the Bronx.

Since the keystone of the international banking empires has been government bonds it has been in the interest of these international bankers to encourage government debt. The higher the debt the more the interest Nothing drives government deeply into debt like a war; and it has not been an uncommon practice among international bankers to finance both sides of the bloodiest military conflicts. For example, during our Civil War the North was financed by the Rothschilds through their American agent, August Belmont, and the American South through the Erlangers, Rothschild relatives.

But while wars and revolutions have been useful to international bankers in gaining or increasing control over governments, the key to such control has always been control of money. You can control a government if you have it in your debt; a creditor is in a position to demand the privileges of monopoly from the sovereign. Money-seeking governments have granted monopolies in state banking, natural resources, oil concessions and transportation. However, the monopoly which the international financiers most covet is control over a nation's money.

Eventually these international bankers actually owned as private corporations the central banks of the various European nations. The Bank of England, Bank of France and Bank of Germany were not owned by their respective governments, as almost everyone imagines, but were privately owned monopolies granted by the heads of state, usually in return for loans. Under this system, observed Reginald McKenna, President of the Midlands Bank of England: "Those that create and issue the money and credit direct the policies of government and hold in their hands the destiny of the people." Once the government is in debt to the bankers it is at their mercy. A frightening example was cited by the London Financial Times of September 26, 1921, which revealed that even at that time:

"Half a dozen men at the top of the Big Five Banks could upset the whole fabric of government finance by refraining from renewing Treasury Bills."

All those who have sought dictatorial control over modern nations have understood the necessity of a central bank. When the League of Just Men hired a hack revolutionary named Karl Marx to write a blueprint for conquest called The Communist Manifesto, the fifth plank read: "Centralization of credit in the hands of the state, by means of a national bank with state capital and an exclusive monopoly." Lenin later said that the establishment of a central bank was ninety percent of communizing a country. Such conspirators knew that you can not take control of a nation without military force unless that nation has a central bank through which you can control its economy. The anarchist

Bakunin sarcastically remarked about the followers of Karl Marx: "They have one foot in the bank and one foot in the socialist movement."

The international financiers set up their own front man in charge of each of Europe's central banks. Professor Quigley reports:

"It must not be felt that these heads of the world's chief central banks were themselves substantive powers in world finance. They were not. Rather, they were the technicians and agents of the dominant investment bankers of their own countries, who had raised them up and were perfectly capable of throwing them down. The substantive financial powers of the world were in the hands of these investment bankers (also called 'international' or 'merchants' bankers) who renamed largely behind the scenes in their own unincorporated (private banks.] These formed a system of international cooperation and national dominance which was more private, more powerful, and more secret than that of their agents in the central banks. . . . . (Quigley, op. cit., pp.326-7.)

Dr. Quigley also reveals that the international bankers who owned and controlled the Banks of England and France maintained their power even after those Banks were theoretically socialized.

Naturally those who controlled the central banks of Europe were eager from the start to fasten a similar establishment on the United States. From the earliest days, the Founding Fathers had been conscious of attempts to control America through money manipulation, and they carried on a running battle with the international bankers. Thomas Jefferson wrote to John Adams: ". . .' I sincerely believe, with you, that banking establishments are more dangerous than standing armies. .

But, even though America did not have a central bank after President Jackson abolished it in 1836, the European financiers and their American agents managed to obtain a great deal of control over our monetary system. Gustavus Myers, in his History of The Great American Fortunes, reveals:

"Under the surface, the Rothschilds long had a powerful influence in dictating American financial laws. The law records show that they were powers in the old Bank of the United States [abolished by Andrew Jackson]."

During the nineteenth century the leading financiers of the metropolitan East often cut one another's financial throats, but ~Ls their Western and rural victims started to organize politically, the "robber barons" saw that they had a "community of interest" toward which they must work together to protect themselves from thousands of irate farmers and up and coming competitors. This diffusion of economic power was one of the main factors stimulating the demands for a central bank by would-be business and financial monopolists.

In Years of Plunder Proctor Hansl writes of this era:

"Among the Morgans, Kuhn-Loebs and other similar pillars of the industrial order there was less disposition to become involved in disagreements that led to financial dislocation. A community of interest came into being, with results that were highly beneficial...."

But aside from the major Eastern centers, most American bankers and their customers still distrusted the whole concept

In order to show the hinterlands that they were going to need a central banking system, the international bankers created a series of panics as a demonstration of their power a warning of what would happen unless the rest of the bankers got into line. The man in charge of conducting these lessons was J. Pierpont-Morgan, American-born but educated in England and Germany. Morgan is referred to by many, including Congressman Louis McFadden, (a banker who for ten years headed the House Banking and Currency Committee), as the top American agent of the English Rothschilds.

By the turn of the century J. P. Morgan was already an old hand at creating artificial panics. Such affairs were well co-ordinated. Senator Robert Owen, a co-author of the Federal Reserve Act, (who later deeply regretted his role), testified before a Congressional Committee that the bank he owned received from the National Bankers' Association what came to be known as the "Panic Circular of 1893." It stated: "You will at once retire one-third of your circulation and call in one-half of your loans. . .

Historian Frederick Lewis Allen tells in Life magazine of April 25, 1949, of Morgan's role in spreading rumors about the insolvency of the Knickerbocker Bank and The Trust Company of America, which rumors triggered the 1907 panic. In answer to the question: "Did Morgan precipitate the panic?" Allen reports:

"Oakleigh Thorne, the president of that particular trust company, testified later before a congressional committee that his bank had been subjected to only moderate withdrawals . . . that he had not applied for help, and that it was the [Morgan's] 'sore point' statement alone that had caused the run on his bank. From this testimony, plus the disciplinary measures taken by the Clearing House against the Heinze, Morse and Thomas banks, plus other fragments of supposedly pertinent evidence, certain chroniclers have arrived at the ingenious conclusion that the Morgan interests took advantage of the unsettled conditions during the autumn of 1907 to precipitate the panic, guiding it shrewdly as it progressed so that it would kill off rival banks and consolidate the preeminence of the banks within the Morgan orbit."

The "panic" which Morgan had created, he proceeded to end almost single-handedly. He had made his point. Frederick Allen explains:

"The lesson of the Panic of 1907 was clear, though not for some six years was it destined to be embodied in legislation: the United States gravely needed a central banking system...."

: The man who was to play the most significant part in providing America with that central bank was Paul Warburg, who along with his brother Felix had immigrated to the United States from Germany in 1902. (See Chart 4.) They left brother Max (later a major financier of the Russian Revolution) at home in Frankfurt to run the family bank (M. N. Warburg & Company).

Paul Warburg married Nina Loeb, daughter of Solomon Loeb of Kuhn, Loeb and Company, America's most powerful international banking firm. Brother Felix married Frieda Schiff, daughter of Jacob Schiff, the ruling power behind Kuhn, Loeb. Stephen Birmingham writes in his authoritative Our Crowd: "In the eighteenth century the Schiffs and Rothschilds shared a double house" in Frankfurt. Schiff reportedly bought his partnership in Kuhn, Loeb with Rothschild money.

Both Paul and Felix Warburg became partners in Kuhn, Loeb and Company.

In 1907, the year of the Morgan-precipitated panic, Paul Warburg began spending almost all of his time writing and lecturing on the need for "bank reform." Kuhn, Loeb and Company was sufficiently public spirited about the matter to keep him on salary at $500,000 per year while for the next six years he donated his time to "the public good."

Working with Warburg in promoting this "banking reform" was Nelson Aldrich, known as "Morgan's floor broker in the Senate." Aldrich's daughter Abby married John D. Rockefeller Jr. (the current Governor of New York is named for his maternal grandfather).

After the Panic of 1907, Aldrich was appointed by the Senate to head the National Monetary Commission. Although he had no technical knowledge of banking, Aldrich and his entourage spent nearly two years and $300,- 000 of the taxpayers' money being wined and dined by the owners of Europe's central banks as they toured the Contii~ent "studying" central banking. When the Commission returned from its luxurious junket it held no meetings and made no report for nearly two years. But Senator Aldrich was busy "arranging" things. Together with Paul Warburg and other international bankers, he staged one of the most important secret meetings in the history of the United States Rockefeller agent Frank Vanderlip admitted many years later in his memoirs:

"Despite my views about the value to society of greater publicity for the affairs of corporations, there was an occasion, near the close of 1910, when I was as secretive-indeed as furtive-as any conspirator

I do not feel it is any exaggeration to speak of our secret expedition to Jekyl Island as the occasion of the actual conception of what eventually be- came the Federal Reserve System."

The secrecy was well warranted. At stake was control over the entire economy. Senator Aldrich had issued confidential invitations to Henry P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Company; Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the Rockefeller-owned National City Bank; A. Piatt Andrew, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Benjamin Strong of Morgan's Bankers Trust Company; and Paul Warburg. They were all to accompany him to Jekyl Island, Georgia, to write the final recommendations of the National Monetary Commission report.

At Jekyl Island, writes B. C. Forbes in his Men Who Are Making America:

"After a general discussion it was decided to draw up certain broad principles on which all could agree. Every member of the group voted for a central bank as being the ideal cornerstone for any banking system." (Page 399)

Warburg stressed that the name "central bank" must be avoided at all costs. It was decided to promote the scheme as a "regional reserve" system with four (later twelve) branches in different sections of the country. The conspirators knew that the New York bank would dominate the rest, which would be marble "white elephants" to deceive the public.

Out of the Jekyl Island meeting came the completion of the Monetary Commission Report and the Aldrich Bill. Warburg had proposed the bill be designated the "Federal Reserve System," but Aldrich insisted his own name was already associated in the public's mind with banking reform and that it would arouse suspicion if a bill were introduced which did not bear his name. However, Aldrich's name attached to the bill proved to be the kiss of death, since any law bearing his name was so obviously a project of the international bankers.

When the Aldrich Bill could not be pushed through Congress, a new strategy had to be devised. The Republican Party was too closely connected with Wall Street. The only hope for a central bank was to disguise it and have it put through by the Democrats as a measure to strip Wall Street of its power. The opportunity to do this came with the approach of the 1912 Presidential election. Republican President William Howard Taft, who had turned against the Aldrich Bill, seemed a sure-fire bet for reelection until Taft's predecessor, fellow Republican Teddy Roosevelt, agreed to run on the ticket of the Progressive Party. In America's 60 Families, Ferdinand Lundberg acknowledges:

"As soon as Roosevelt signified that he would again challenge Taft the President's defeat was inevitable. Throughout the three-cornered fight [Taft-Roosevelt-Wilson] Roosevelt had [Morgan agents Frank] Munsey and [George] Perkins constantly at his heels, supplying money, going over his speeches, bringing people from Wall Street in to help, and, in general, carrying the entire burden of the campaign against Perkins and J. P. Morgan and Company were the substance of the Progressive Party; everything else was trimming.

In short, most of Roosevelt's campaign fund was supplied by the two Morgan hatchet men who were seeking Taft's scalp." (Pp.110-112)

The Democrat candidate, Woodrow Wilson, was equally the property of Morgan. Dr. Gabriel Kolko in his The Triumph of Conservatism, reports: "In late 1907 he [Wilson] supported the Aldrich Bill on banking, and was full of praise for Morgan's role in American society." (Page 205) According to Lundberg: "For nearly twenty years before his nomination Woodrow Wilson had moved in the shadow of Wall Street." (Page 112)

Woodrow Wilson and Teddy Roosevelt proceeded to whistle-stop the country trying to out-do each other in florid (and hypocritical) denunciations of the Wall Street "money trust"-the same group of Insiders which was financing the campaigns of both.

Dr. Kolko goes on to tell us that, at the beginning of 1912, banking reform "seemed a dead issue. . . . The banking reform movement had neatly isolated itself." Wilson resurrected the issue and promised the country a money system free from domination by the international bankers of Wall Street. Moreover, the Democrat platform expressly stated: "We are opposed to the Aldrich plan for a central bank." But the "Big Boys" knew who they had bought. Among the international financiers who contributed heavily to the Wilson campaign, in addition to those already named, were Jacob Schiff, Bernard Baruch, Henry Morgenthau, Thomas Fortune Ryan, and New York Times publisher Adolph Ochs

The insiders' sheepdog who controlled Wilson and guided the program through Congress was the mysterious "Colonel'1 Edward Mandel House, the British-educated son of a representative of England's financial interests in the American South. The title was honorary; House never served in the military. He was strictly a behind-the-scenes wire-puller and is regarded by many historians as the real President of the United States during the Wilson years. House authored a book, Philip Dru: Administrator, in which he wrote of establishing "Socialism as dreamed by Karl Marx" As steps toward his goal, House, both in his book and in real life, called for passage of a graduated income tax and a central bank providing "a flexible [inflatable paper] currency." The graduated income tax and a central bank are two of the ten planks of The Communist Manifesto.

In his The intimate Papers 0/ Colonel House, Professor Charles Seymour refers to the "Colonel" as the "unseen guardian angel" of the Federal Reserve Act. Seymour's work contains numerous documents and records showing constant contact between House and Paul Warburg while the Federal Reserve Act was being prepared and steered through Congress. Biographer George Viereck assures us that "The Schiffs, the Warburgs, the Kahns, the Rockefellers, and the Morgans put their faith in House. . .Their faith was amply rewarded.

In order to support the fiction that the Federal Reserve Act was "a people's bill," the insider financiers put up a smoke-screen of opposition to it. It was strictly a case of Br'er Rabbit begging not to be thrown into the briar patch. Both Aldrich and Vanderlip denounced what in actuality was their own bill. Nearly twenty-five years later Frank Vanderlip admitted: "Now although the Aldrich Federal Reserve Plan was defeated when it bore the name Aldrich, nevertheless its essential points were all contained in the plan that finally was adopted."

Taking advantage of Congress' desire to adjourn for Christmas, the Federal Reserve Act was passed on December 22, 1913 by a vote of 298 to 60 in the House, and in the Senate by a majority of 43 to 25. Wilson had fulfilled to the insiders the pledge he had made in order to become President. Warburg told House, "Well, it hasn't got quite everything we want, but the lack can be adjusted later by administrative process."

There was genuine opposition to the Act, but it could not match the power of the bill's advocates. Conservative Henry Cabot Lodge Sr. proclaimed with great foresight, "The bill as it stands seems to me to open the way to a vast inflation of currency. . . . I do not like to think that any law can be passed which will make it possible to submerge the gold standard in a flood of irredeemable paper currency." (Congressional Record, June 10, 1932.) After the vote, Congressman Charles A. Lindbergh Sr., father of the famous aviator, told Congress:

"This act establishes the most gigantic trust on earth. . . . When the President signs this act the invisible government by the money power, proven to exist by the Money Trust investigation, will be legalized. .

This is the Aldrich Bill in disguise. .

The new law will create inflation whenever the trusts want inflation....

The Federal Reserve Act was, and still is, hailed as a victory of "democracy" over the "money trust." Nothing could be farther from the truth.

The whole central bank concept was engineered by the very group it was supposed to strip of power. The myth that the "money trust" had been defrocked should have been exploded when Paul Warburg was appointed to the first Federal Reserve Board-a board which was hand- picked by "Colonel" House. Paul Warburg relinquished his $500,000 a year job as a Kuhn, Loeb partner to take a $12,000 a year job with the Federal Reserve. The "accidentalists" who teach in our universities would have you believe that he did it because be was a "public spirited citizen." And the man who served as Chairman of the New York Federal Reserve Bank during its early critical years was the same Benjamin Strong of the Morgan interests, who accompanied Warburg, Davison, Vanderlip et al. to Jekyl Island, Georgia, to draft the Aldrich Bill.

How powerful is our "central bank?" The Federal Reserve controls our money supply and interest rates, and thereby manipulates the entire economy-creating inflation or deflation, recession or boom, and sending the stock market up or down at whim. The Federal Reserve is so powerful that Congressman Wright Patman, Chairman of the House Banking Committee, maintains:

"In the United States today we have in effect two governments. . . . We have the duly constituted Government. . . . Then we have an independent, uncontrolled and uncoordinated government in the Federal Reserve System, operating the money powers which are reserved to Congress by the Constitution."

Neither Presidents, Congressmen nor Secretaries of the Treasury direct the Federal Reserve! In the matters of money, the Federal Reserve directs them! The uncontrolled power of the "Fed" was admitted by Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy in an interview for the May 5, 1969, issue of U.S. News & World Report:

"Q. Do you approve of the latest credit-tightening moves?

A. It's not my job to approve or disapprove. It is the action of the Federal Reserve."

Prof. Carroll Quigley of Harvard, Princeton and Georgetown Universities wrote book disclosing international bankers' plan to control the world from behind the political and financial scenes. Quigley revealed plans of billionaires to establish dictatorship of the super-rich disguised as workers' democracies.

J. P. Morgan created artificial panic used as excuse to pass Federal Reserve Act Morgan was instrumental in pushing U. S. into WWI to protect his loans to British government. He financed Socialist groups to create an all-powerful centralized government which international bankers would control at the apex from behind the scenes. After his death, his partners helped finance the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia.

And, curiously enough, the Federal Reserve System has never been audited and has firmly resisted all attempts by House Banking Committee Chairman Wright Patman to have it audited. (N. Y. Times, Sept.14, 1967.)

How successful has the Federal Reserve System been? It depends on your point of view. Since Woodrow Wilson took his oath of office, the national debt has risen from $1 billion to $455 billion The total amount of interest paid since then to the international bankers holding that debt is staggering, with interest having become the third largest item in the federal budget. Interest on the national debt is now $22 billion every year, and climbing steeply as inflation pushes up the interest rate on government bonds. Meanwhile, our gold is mortgaged to European central banks, and our silver has all been sold. With economic catastrophe imminent, only a blind disciple of the "accidental theory of history" could believe that all of this has occurred by coincidence.

When the Federal Reserve System was foisted on an unsuspecting American public, there were absolute guarantees that there would be no more boom and bust economic cycles. The men who, behind the scenes, were pushing the central bank concept for the international bankers faithfully promised that from then on there would be only steady growth and perpetual prosperity. However, Congressman Charies A. Lindberg Sr. accurately proclaimed:

"From now on depressions will be scientifically created."

Using a central bank to create alternate periods of inflation and deflation, and thus whipsawing the public for vast profits, had been worked out by the international bankers to an exact science.

Having built the Federal Reserve as a tool to consolidate and control wealth, the international bankers were now ready to make a major killing. Between 1923 and 1929, the Federal Reserve expanded (inflated) the money supply by sixty-two percent. Much of this new money was used to bid the stock market up to dizzying heights.

At the same time that enormous amounts of credit money were being made available, the mass media began to ballyhoo tales of the instant riches to be made in the stock market. According to Ferdinand Lundberg:

"For profits to be made on these funds the public had to be induced to speculate, and it was so induced by misleading newspaper accounts, many of them bought and paid for by the brokers that operated the pools...."

The House Hearings on Stabilization of the Purchasing Power of the Dollar disclosed evidence in 1928 that the Federal Reserve Board was working closely with the heads of European central banks. The Committee warned that a major crash had been planned in 1927. At a secret luncheon of the Federal Reserve Board and heads of the European central banks, the committee warned, the international bankers were tightening the noose.

Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, came to Washington on February 6, 1929, to confer with Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury. On November 11, 1927, the Wall Street Journal described Mr. Norman as "the currency dictator of Europe." Professor Carroll Quigley notes that Norman, a close confidant of J. P. Morgan, admitted: "I hold the hegemony of the world." Immediately after this mysterious visit, the Federal Reserve Board reversed its easy-money policy and began raising the discount rate. The balloon which had been inflated constantly for nearly seven years was about to be exploded.

On October 24, the feathers hit the fan. Writing in The United States' Unresolved Monetary and Political Problems, William Bryan describes what happened:

"When everything was ready, the New York financiers started calling 24 hour broker call loans. This meant that the stockbrokers and the customers had to dump their stock on the market in order to pay the loans. This naturally collapsed the stock market and brought a banking collapse all over the country because the banks not owned by the oligarchy were heavily involved in broker call claims at this time, and bank runs soon exhausted their coin and currency and they had to close. The Federal Reserve System would not come to their aid, although they were instructed under the law to maintain an elastic currency."

The investing public, including most stock brokers and bankers, took a horrendous blow in the crash, but not the insiders. They were either out of the market or had sold "short" so that they made enormous profits as the Dow Jones plummeted. For those who knew the score, a comment by Paul Warburg had provided the warning to sell. That signal came on March 9, 1929, when the Financial Chronical quoted Warburg as giving this sound advice:

"If orgies of unrestricted speculation are permitted to spread too far . the ultimate collapse is certain . . . to bring about a general depression involving the whole country."

Sharpies were later able to buy back these stocks at a ninety percent discount from their former highs.

To think that the scientifically engineered Crash of '29 was an accident or the result of stupidity defies all logic. The international bankers who promoted the inflationary policies and pushed the propaganda which pumped up the stock market represented too many generations of accumulated expertise to have blundered into "the great depression."

Congressman Louis McFadden, Chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, commented:

"It [the depression] was not accidental. It was a carefully contrived occurrence. . . . The international bankers sought to bring about a condition of despair here so that they might emerge as the rulers of us all."

Although we have not had another depression of the magnitude of that which followed 1929, we have since suffered regular recessions. Each of these has followed a period in which the Federal Reserve tromped down hard on the money accelerator and then slammed on the brakes. Since 1929 the following recessions have been created by such manipulation:

1936-1937-Stock Prices fell fifty percent;

1948 -Stock prices dropped sixteen percent;

1953 -Stock declined thirteen percent;

1956-1957-The market dipped thirteen percent;

1957 -Late in the year the market plunged nineteen percent;

1960 -The market was off seventeen percent;

1966 -Stock prices plummeted twenty-five percent;

1970 -The market plunged over twenty-five percent.

Chart 5, based on one appearing in the highly respected financial publication, indicator Digest of June 24, 1969, shows the effects on the Dow-Jones Industrial Average of Federal Reserve policies of expanding or restricting the monetary supply. This is how the stock market is manipulated and how depressions or recessions are scientifically created. H you have inside knowledge as to which way the Federal Reserve policy is going to go, you can make a ton of money.

The members of the Federal Reserve Board are appointed by the President for fourteen year terms. Since these positions control the entire economy of the country they are far more important than cabinet positions, but who has ever heard of any of them except possibly Chairman Arthur Burns? These appointments which should be extensively debated by the Senate are routinely approved. But, here, as in Europe, these men are mere figureheads, put in their positions at the behest of the international bankers who finance the Presidential campaigns of both political parties.

And, Professor Quigley reveals that these international bankers who owned and controlled the Banks of England and France maintained their power even after those banks were theoretically socialized. The American system is slightly different, but the net effect is the same ever increasing debt requiring ever-increasing interest payments, inflation and periodic scientifically created depressions and recessions.

The end result, if the Insiders have their way, will be the dream of Montagu Norman of the Bank of England "that the Hegemony of World Finance should reign supreme over everyone, everywhere, as one whole super- national control mechanism." (Montagu Norman by John Hargrave, Greystone Press, N.Y., 1942.)

CHAPTER FOUR

BANKROLLING THE BOLSHEVIK REVOLUTION

The establishing of the Federal Reserve System provided the "conspiracy" with an instrument whereby the international bankers could run the national debt up to the sky, thereby collecting enormous amounts of interest and also gaining control over the borrower. During the Wilson Administration alone, the national debt expanded 800 percent.

Two months prior to the passage of the Federal Reserve Act, the conspirators had created the mechanism to collect the funds to pay the interest on the national debt. That mechanism was the progressive income tax, the second plank of Karl Marx' Communist Manifesto which contained ten planks for SOCIALIZING a country.

One quite naturally assumes that the graduated income tax would be opposed by the wealthy. The fact is that many of the wealthiest Americans supported it. Some, no doubt, out of altruism and because, at first, the taxes were very small. But others backed the scheme because they already had a plan for permanently avoiding both the income tax and the subsequent inheritance tax.

What happened was this: At the turn of the century the Populists, a group of rural socialists, were gaining strength and challenging the power of the New York bankers and monopolist industrialists. While the Populists had the wrong answers, they asked many of the right questions. Unfortunately, they were led to believe that the banker-monopolist control over government, which they opposed, was a product of free enterprise.

Since the Populist threat to the cartelists was from the Left (there being no organized political movement for laissez-faire), the Insiders moved to capture the Left. Professor Quigley discloses that over fifty years ago the Morgan firm decided to infiltrate the Leftwing political movement in the United States. This was not difficult to do since these Left groups needed funds and were eager for help to get their message to the public. Wall Street supplied both. There was nothing new about this decision, says Quigley, since other financiers had talked about it and even attempted it earlier. He continues:

"What made it decisively important this time was the combination of its adoption by the dominant Wall Street financier, at a time when tax policy was driving all financiers to seek tax-exempt refuges for their fortunes...." (Page 938)

Radical movements are never successful unless they attract big money and/or outside support. The great historian of the Twentieth Century, Oswald Spengler, was one of those who saw what American Liberals refuse to see- that the Left is controlled by its alleged enemy, the male- factors of great wealth. He wrote in his monumental Decline of the West (Modern Library, New York, 1945):

"There is no proletarian, not even a Communist, movement, that has not operated in the interests of money, in the direction indicated by money, and for the time being permitted by money-and that without the idealists among its leaders having the slightest suspicion of the fact."

While the Populist movement was basically non-conspiratorial, its Leftist ideology and platform were made to order for the elitist Insiders because it aimed at concentrating power in government. The insiders knew they could control that power and use it to their own purposes. They were not, of course, interested in promoting competition but in restricting it. Professor Gabriel Kolko has prepared a lengthy volume presenting the undeniable proof that the giant corporate manipulators promoted much of the so-called "progressive legislation" of the Roosevelt and Wilson eras-legislation which ostensibly was aimed at controlling their abuses, but which was so written as to suit their interests. In The Triumph of Conservatism (by which Kolko mistakenly means big business), he notes:

the significant reason for many businessmen welcoming and working to increase federal intervention into their affairs has been virtually ignored by historians and economists. The oversight was due to the illusion that American industry was centralized and monopolized to such an extent that it could rationalize the activity [regulate production and prices] in its various branches voluntarily. Quite the opposite was true. Despite the large numbers of mergers, and the growth in the absolute size of many corporations, the dominant tendency in the American economy at the beginning of this century was toward growing competition. Competition was unacceptable to many key business and financial interests...."

The best way for the Insiders to eliminate this growing Competition was to impose a progressive income tax on their competitors while writing the laws so as to include built-in escape hatches for themselves. Actually, very few of the proponents of the graduated income tax realized they were playing into the hands of those they were seeking to control. As Ferdinand Lundberg notes in The Rich And The Super-Rich:

"What it [the income tax] became, finally, was a siphon gradually inserted into the pocketbooks of the general public. Imposed to popular huzzas as a class tax, the income tax was gradually turned into a mass tax in a jiujitsu turnaround

The Insiders' principal mouthpiece in the Senate during this period was Nelson Aldrich, one of the conspirators involved in engineering the creation of the Federal Reserve and the maternal grandfather of Nelson Aldrich

Rockefeller. Lundberg says that "When Aldrich spoke, newsmen understood that although the words were his, the dramatic line was surely approved by 'Big John [D. Rockefeller]. . . .'" In earlier years Aldrich had denounced the income tax as "communistic and socialistic," but in 1909 he pulled a dramatic and stunning reversal. The American Biographical Dictionary comments:

"Just when the opposition had become formidable he [Aldrich] took the wind out of its sails by bringing forward, with the support of the President [Taft], a proposed amendment to the Constitution empowering Congress to lay income taxes."

Howard Hinton records in his biography of Cordell Hull that Congressman Hull, who had been pushing in the House for the income tax, wrote this stunned observation:

"During the past few weeks the unexpected spectacle of certain so-called 'old-line conservative' [sic] Republican leaders in Congress suddenly reversing their attitude of a lifetime and seemingly espousing, through ill-concealed reluctance, the proposed income-tax amendment to the Constitution has been the occasion of universal surprise and wonder."

The escape hatch for the Insiders to avoid paying taxes was ready. By the time the Amendment had been approved by the states (even before the income-tax was passed), the Rockefellers and Carnegie foundations were in full operation.

One must remember that it was to break up the Standard Oil (Rockefeller) and U. S. Steel (Carnegie) monopolies that the various anti-trust acts were ostensibly passed. These monopolists could now compound their wealth tax-free while competitors had to face a graduated income tax which made it difficult to amass capital. As we have said, socialism is not a share-the-wealth program, as the socialists would like you to believe, but a consolidate-and-control-the-wealth program for the Insiders. The Reece Committee which investigated foundations for Congress in 1953 proved with an overwhelming amount of evidence that the various Rockefeller and Carnegie foundations have been promoting socialism since their inception. (See Rene Wormser's Foundations: Their Power and Influence, Devin Adair, New York, 1958.)

The conspirators now had created the mechanisms to run up the debt, to collect the debt, and (for themselves) to avoid the taxes required to pay the yearly interest on the debt. Then all that was needed was a reason to escalate the debt. Nothing runs up a national debt like a war. And World War I was being brewed in Europe.

In 1916, Woodrow Wilson was re-elected by a hair. He had based his campaign on the slogan: "He Kept Us Out of War!" The American public was extremely opposed to America's getting involved in a European war. Staying out of the perennial foreign quarrels had been an American tradition since George Washington. But as Wilson was stumping the country giving his solemn word that American soldiers would not be sent into a foreign war, he was preparing to do just the opposite. His "alter ego," as he called "Colonel" House, was making behind-the-scenes agreements with England which committed America to entering the war. Just five months later we were in it. The same crowd which manipulated the passage of the income tax and the Federal Reserve System wanted America in the war. J. P. Morgan, John D. Rockefeller, "Colonel" House, Jacob Schiff, Paul Warburg and the rest of the Jekyl Island conspirators were all deeply involved in getting us involved. Many of these financiers had loaned England large sums of money. In fact, J. P. Morgan & Co. served as British financial agents in this country during World War I.

While all of the standard reasons given for the outbreak of World War I in Europe doubtless were factors, there were also other more important causes. The conspiracy had been planning the war for over two decades.

The assassination of an Austrian Archduke was merely an incident providing an excuse for starting a chain reaction.

After years of fighting, the war was a complete stale- mate and would have ended almost immediately in a negotiated settlement (as had most other European conflicts) had not the U. S. declared war on Germany.

As soon as Wilson's re-election had been engineered through the "he kept us out of war" slogan, a complete reversal of propaganda was instituted. In those days before radio and television, public opinion was controlled almost exclusively by newspapers. Many of the major newspapers were controlled by the Federal Reserve crowd. Now they began beating the drums over the "inevitability of war." Arthur Ponsonby, a member of the British parliament, admitted in his book Falsehood in War Time (E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc., New York, 1928): "There must have been more deliberate lying in the world from 1914 to 1918 than in any other period of the world's history." Propaganda concerning the war was heavily one-sided. Although after the war many historians admitted that one side was as guilty as the other in starting the war, Germany was pictured as a militaristic monster which wanted to rule the world. Remember, this picture was painted by Britain which had its soldiers in more countries around the world than all other nations put together. So-called "Prussian militarism" did exist, but it was no threat to conquer the world. Meanwhile, the sun never set on the British Empire! Actually, the Germans were proving to be tough business competitors in the world's markets and the British did not approve.

In order to generate war fever, the sinking of the Lusitania a British ship torpedoed two years earlier-was revived and given renewed headlines. German submarine warfare was turned into a major issue by the newspapers.

Submarine warfare was a phony issue. Germany and England were at war. Each was blockading the other country. J. P. Morgan and other financiers were selling munitions to Britain. The Germans could not allow those supplies to be delivered any more than the English would have allowed them to be delivered to Germany. If Morgan wanted to take the risks and reap the rewards (or suffer the consequences) of selling munitions to England, that was his business. It was certainly nothing over which the entire nation should have been dragged into war.

The Lusitania, at the time it was sunk, was carrying six million pounds of ammunition. It was actually illegal for American passengers to be aboard a ship carrying munitions to belligerents. Almost two years before the liner was sunk, the New York Tribune (June 19, 1913) carried a squib which stated: "Cunard officials acknowledged to the Tribune correspondent today that the grey-hound [Lusitania] is being equipped with high power naval rifles. . . ." In fact, the Lusitania was registered in the British navy as an auxiliary cruiser. (Barnes, Harry E., The Genesis of the War, Alfred Knopf, New York, 1926, p.611.) In addition, the German government took out large ads in all the New York papers warning potential passengers that the ship was carrying munitions and telling them not to cross the Atlantic on it. Those who chose to make the trip knew the risk they were taking. Yet the sinking of the Lusitania was used by clever propagandists to portray the Germans as inhuman slaughterers of innocents. Submarine warfare was manufactured into a cause celebre to push us into war. On April 6, 1917, Congress declared war. The American people acquiesced on the basis that it would be a "war to end all wars."

During the "war to end all wars," insider banker Bernard Baruch was made absolute dictator over American business when President Wilson appointed him Chairman of the War Industries Board, where he had control of all domestic contracts for Allied war materials. Baruch made lots of friends while placing tens of billions in government contracts, and it was widely rumored in Wall Street that out of the war to make the world safe for international bankers he netted $200 million for himself.

"Colonel" House (I) was front man for the International banking fraternity. He manipulated President Woodrow Wilson (r) like a puppet Wilson called him "my alter ego." House played a major role in creating The Federal Reserve System, passing the graduated Income tax and getting America into WWI. House's Influence over Wilson Is an example that In the world of super-politics the real rulers are not always the ones the public sees.

German born International financier Paul Warburg masterminded establishment of Federal Reserve to put con trol over nation's economy in hands of international bankers. The Federal Reserve controls the money supply which allows manipulators to create alternate cycles of boom and bust, i.e., a roller coaster economy. This allows those in the know to make fabulous amounts of money, but even more important, allows the Insiders to control the economy and further centralize power in the federal government.

While insider banker Paul Warburg controlled the Federal Reserve, and international banker Bernard Baruch placed government contracts, international banker Eugene Meyer, a former partner of Baruch and the son of a partner in the Rothschilds' international banking house of Lazard Freres, was Wilson's choice to head the War Finance Corporation, where he too made a little money.*

It should be noted that Sir William Wiseman, the man sent by British Intelligence to help bring the United States into the war, was amply rewarded for his services. He stayed in this country after WWI as a new partner in the Jacob Schiff-Paul Warburg-controlled Kuhn, Loeb bank.

World War I was a financial bonanza for the international bankers. But it was a catastrophe of such magnitude for the United States that few even today grasp its importance. The war reversed our traditional foreign policy of non-involvement and we have been enmeshed almost constantly ever since in perpetual wars for perpetual peace. Winston Churchill once observed that all nations would have been better off had the U.S. minded its own business. Had we done so, he said, "peace would have been made with Germany; and there would have been no collapse in Russia leading to Communism; no breakdown of government in Italy followed by Fascism; and Nazism never would have gained ascendancy in Germany." (Social Justice Magazine, July 3, 1939, p.4.)

The Bolshevik Revolution in Russia was obviously one of the great turning points in world history. It is an event over which misinformation abounds. The myth-makers and re-writers of history have done their landscape painting jobs well. The establishing of Communism in Russia is a classic example of the second "big lie" of Communism, i.e., that it is the movement of the downtrodden masses rising up against exploiting bosses. This cunning deception has been fostered since before the first French Revolution in 1789.

Most people today believe the Communists were successful in Russia because they were able to rally behind them the sympathy and frustration of the Russian people who were sick of the tyranny of the Czars. This is to ignore the history of what actually happened. While almost everybody is reminded that the Bolshevik Revolution took place in November of 1917, few know that the Czar had abdicated seven months earlier in March. When Czar Nicholas II abdicated, a provisional government was established by Prince Lvov who wanted to pattern the new Russian government after our own. But, unfortunately, the Lvov government gave way to the Kerensky regime. Kerensky, a so-called democratic socialist, may have been running a caretaker government for the Communists. He kept the war going against Germany and the other Central Powers, but he issued a general amnesty for Communists and other revolutionaries, many of whom had been exiled after the abortive Red Revolution of 1905. Back to mother Russia came 250,000 dedicated revolutionaries, and Kerensky's own government's doom was sealed.

In the Soviet Union, as in every Communist country (or as they call themselves-the Socialist countries), the power has not come to the Communists' hands because the downtrodden masses willed it so. The power has come from the top down in every instance. Let us briefly reconstruct the sequences of the Communist take- over.

The year is 1917. The Allies are fighting the Central Powers. The Allies include Russia, the British Commonwealth, France and by April 1917, the United States. in March of 1917, purposeful planners set in motion the forces to compel Czar Nicholas II to abdicate. He did so under pressure from the Allies after severe riots in the Czarist capitol of Petrograd, riots that were caused by the breakdowns in the transportation system which cut the city off from food supplies and led to the closing of factories.

But where were Lenin and Trotsky when all this was taking place? Lenin was in Switzerland and had been in Western Europe since 1905 when he was exiled for trying to topple the Czar in the abortive Communist revolution of that year. Trotsky also was in 'exile, a reporter for a Communist newspaper on the lower east side of New York City. The Bolsheviks were not a visible political force at the time the Czar abdicated. And they came to power not because the downtrodden masses of Russia called them back, but because very powerful men in Europe and the United States sent them in.

Lenin was sent across Europe-at-war on the famous "sealed train." With him Lenin took some $5 to $6 million in gold. The whole thing was arranged by the German high command and Max Warburg, through another very wealthy and lifelong socialist by the name of Alexander Helphand alias "Parvus." When Trotsky left New York aboard the S.S. Christiania, on March 27, 1917, with his- entourage of 275 revolutionaries, the first port of call was Halifax, Nova Scotia. There the Canadians grabbed Trotsky and his money and impounded them both. This was a very logical thing for the Canadian government to do for Trotsky had said many times that if he were successful in coming to power in Russia he would immediately stop what he called the "imperialist war" and sue for a separate peace with Germany. This would free millions of German troops for transfer from the Eastern front to the Western front where they could kill Canadians. So Trotsky cooled his heels in a Canadian prison-for five days. Then all of a sudden the British (through future Kuhn, Loeb partner Sir William Wiseman) and the United States (through none other than the ubiquitous "Colonel" House) pressured the Canadian government. And, despite the fact we were now in the war, said, in so many words, "Let Trotsky go." Thus, with an American passport, Trotsky went back to meet Lenin. They joined up, and, by November, through bribery, cunning, brutality and deception, they were able (not to bring the masses rallying to their cause but) to hire enough thugs and make enough deals to impose out of the gun barrel what Lenin called "all power to the Soviets." The Communists came to power by seizing a mere handful of key cities. In fact, practically the whole Bolshevik Revolution took place in one city-Petrograd. It was as if the whole United States became Communist because a Communist-led mob seized Washington, D. C. It was years before the Soviets solidified power throughout Russia.

The Germans, on the face of it, had a plausible excuse for financing Lenin and Trotsky. The two Germans most responsible for the financing of Lenin were Max Warburg and a displaced Russian named Alexander Helphand. They could claim that they were serving their country's cause by helping and financing Lenin. However, these two German "patriots" neglected to mention to the Kaiser their plan to foment a Communist revolution in Russia. The picture takes on another dimension when you consider that the brother of Max Warburg was Paul Warburg, prime mover in establishing the Federal Reserve System and who from his position on the Federal Reserve Board of Directors, played a key role in financing the American war effort. (When news leaked out in American papers about brother Max running the German finances, Paul resigned from his

For the father-in-law of Max Warburg's brother, Felix, was Jacob Schiff, senior partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co. (Paul and Felix Warburg, you will recall, were also partners in Kuhn, Loeb & Co. while Max ran the Rothschild- allied family bank of Frankfurt.) Jacob Schiff also helped finance Leon Trotsky. According to the New York Journal-American of February 3, 1949: "Today it is estimated by Jacob's grandson, John Schiff, that the old man sank about 20,000,000 dollars for the final triumph of Bolshevism in Russia." (See Chart 6.)

One of the best sources of information on the financing of the Bolshevik Revolution is Czarism and the Revolu tion by an important White Russian General named Arsene de Goulevitch who was founder in France of the Union of Oppressed Peoples. In this volume, written in French and subsequently translated into English, de Goulevitch notes:

"The main purveyors of funds for the revolution, however, were neither the crackpot Russian millionaires nor the armed bandits of Lenin. The 'real' money primarily came from certain British and American circles which for a long time past had lent their support to the Russian revolutionary cause.... De Goulevitch continues:

"The important part played by the wealthy American banker, Jacob Schiff, in the events in Russia, though as yet only partially revealed, is no longer a secret."

General Alexander Nechvolodov is quoted by de Goulevitch as stating in his book on the Bolshevik Revolution:

"In April 1917, Jacob Schiff publicly declared that it was thanks to his financial support that the revolution in Russia had succeeded.

In the Spring of the same year, Schiff commenced to subsidize Trotsky ...

Simultaneously Trotsky and Co. were also being subsidized by Max Warburg and Olaf Aschberg of the Nye Banken of Stockholm . . . The Rhine Westphalian Syndicate and Jivotovsky,. whose daughter later married Trotsky."

Schiff spent millions to overthrow the Czar and more millions to overthrow Kerensky. He was sending money to Russia long after the true character of the Bolsheviks was known to the world. Schiff raised $10 million, supposedly for Jewish war relief in Russia, but later events revealed it to be a good business investment. (Forbes, B. C., Men Who Are Making America, pp.334-5.)

According to de Goulevitch:

"Mr. Bakhmetiev, the late Russian Imperial Ambassador to the United States, tells us that the Bolsheviks, after victory, transferred 600 million roubles in gold between the years 1918 and 1922 to Kuhn, Loeb & Company [Schiff's firm]."

Schiff's participation in the Bolshevik Revolution, though quite naturally now denied, was well known among Allied intelligence services at the time. This led to much talk about Bolshevism being a Jewish plot. The result was that the subject of financing the Communist takeover of Russia became taboo. Later evidence indicates that the bankrolling of the Bolsheviks was handled by a syndicate of international bankers, which in addition to the Schiff-Warburg clique, included Morgan and Rockefeller interests. Docu ments show that the Morgan organization put at least $1 million in the Red revolutionary kitty.*

Still another important financier of the Bolshevik Revolution was an extremely wealthy Englishman named Lord Alfred Milner, the organizer and head of a secret organization called "The Round Table" Group which was backed by Lord Rothschild (discussed in the next chapter).

De Goulevitch notes further:

"On April 7, 1917, General Janin made the following entry in his diary ('Au G.C.C. Russe"-At Russian G.H.Q.-Le Monde Slave, Vol. 2, 1927, pp.296-297): Long interview with R., who confirmed what I had previously been told by M. After referring to the German hatred of himself and his family, he turned to the subject of the Revolution which, he claimed, was engineered by the English and, more precisely, by Sir George Buchanan and Lord (Alfred] Milner. Petrograd at the time was teeming with English. . . . He could, he asserted, name the streets and the numbers of the houses in which British agents were quartered. They were reported, during the rising, to have distributed money to the soldiers and incited them to mutiny."

De Goulevitch goes on to reveal: "In private interviews I have been told that over 21 million roubles were spent by Lord Milner in financing the Russian Revolution."

It should be noted parenthetically that Lord Milner, Paul, Felix and Max Warburg represented "their" respective countries at the Paris Peace Conference at the conclusion of World War 1.

If we can somehow ascribe Max Warburg's financing of Lenin to German "patriotism," it was certainly not "patriotism" which inspired Schiff, Morgan, Rockefeller and Milner to bankroll the Bolsheviks. Both Britain and Hagedorn, Herman, The Magnate, John Day, N.Y. See also Washington Post, Feb. 2, 19f8, p. 195.)

America were at war with Germany and were allies of Czarist Russia. To free dozens of German divisions to switch from the Eastern front to France and kill hundreds of thousands of American and British soldiers was nothing short of treason.

In the Bolshevik Revolution we see many of the same old faces that were responsible for; creating the Federal Reserve System, initiating the graduated income tax, setting up the tax-free foundations and pushing us into WWI. However, if you conclude that this is anything but coincidental, your name will be immediately expunged from the Social Register.

No revolution can be successful without organization and money. "The downtrodden masses" usually provide little of the former and none of the latter. But Insiders at the top can arrange for both.

What did these people possibly have to gain in financing the Russian Revolution? What did they have to gain by keeping it alive and afloat, or, during the 1920's by pouring millions of dollars into what Lenin called his New Economic Program, thus saving the Soviets from collapse?

Why would these "capitalists" do all this? If your goal' is global conquest, you have to start somewhere. It may or may not have been coincidental, but Russia was the one major European country without a central bank. In Russia, for the first time, the Communist conspiracy gained a geographical homeland from which to launch assaults against the other nations of the world. The West now had an enemy.

In the Bolshevik Revolution we have some of the world's richest and most powerful men financing a movement which claims its very existence is based on the concept of stripping of their wealth men like the Rothschilds, Rockefellers, Schiffs, Warburgs, Morgans, Harrimans, and Milners. But obviously these men have no fear of inter national Communism. It is only logical to assume that if they financed it and do not fear it, it must be because they control it. Can there be any other explanation that makes sense? Remember that for over 150 years it has been Lord Alfred Milner, wealthy English man and front man for the Rothschilds, served as paymaster for the International bankers in Petrograd during the Bolshevik Revolution. Milner later headed secret society known as The Round Table which was dedicated to establishing a world government whereby a clique of super-rich financiers would control the world under the guise of Socialism. The American subsidiary of this conspiracy is called the Council on Foreign Relations and was started by, and is still controlled by Leftist international bankers.

According to his grandson John, Jacob Schiff long time associate of the Rothschilds, financed the Communist Revolution in Russia to the tune of $20 million. According to a report on file with the State Department, his firm, Kuhn Loeb and Co. bankrolled the first five year plan for Stalin, Schiff's partner and relative, Pau Warburg, engineered the establishment of the Federal Reserve System while on the Kuhn Loeb payroll, Schiff's descendants are active in the Council on Foreign Relations today.

Home of the Council on Foreign Relations on 68th St. in New York. The admitted goal of the CFR is to abolish the Constitution and replace our once independent Republic with a World Government. CFR members have controlled. the last six administrations. Richard Nixon has been a member and has appointed at least 100 CFR members to high positions in his adrninistration.

standard operating procedure of the Rothschilds and their allies to control both sides of every conflict. You must have an "enemy" if you are going to collect from the King. The East-West balance-of-power politics is used as one of the main excuses for the socialization of America. Although it was not their main purpose, by nationalization of Russia the Insiders bought themselves an enormous piece of real estate, complete with ?mineral rights, for somewhere between $30 and $40 million.

We can only theorize on the manner in which Moscow is controlled from New York, London and Paris. Undoubtedly much of the control is economic, but certainly the international bankers have an enforcer arm within Russia to keep the Soviet leaders in line. The organization may be SMERSH, the international Communist murder organization described in testimony before Congressional Committees and by Ian Fleming in his James Bond books. For although the Bond novels were wildly imaginative, Fleming had been in British Navy intelligence, maintained excellent intelligence contacts around the world and was reputedly a keen student of the international conspiracy.

We do know this, however. A clique of American financiers not only helped establish Communism in Russia, but has striven mightily ever since to keep it alive. Ever since 1918 this clique has been engaged in transferring money and, probably more important, technical information, to the Soviet Union. This is made abundantly clear in the three volume history Western Technology and Soviet Economic Development by scholar Antony Sutton of Stanford University's Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace. Using, for the most part, official State Department documents, Sutton shows conclusively that virtually everything the Soviets possess has been acquired from the West. It is not much of an exaggeration to say that the U.S.S.R. was made in the U.S.A. The landscape painters, unable to refute Sutton's monumental scholarship, simply paint him out of the picture.

At Versailles, this same clique carved up Europe and set the stage for World War II. As Lord Curzon commented: "It is not a peace treaty, it is simply a break in hostilities." In 1933, the same Insiders pushed FDR into recognizing the Soviet Union, thus saving it from financial collapse, while at the same time they were underwriting huge loans on both sides of the Atlantic for the new regime of Adolph Hitler. In so doing they assisted greatly in setting the stage for World War II, and the events that followed. In 1941, the same Insiders rushed to the aid of our "noble ally," Stalin, after his break with Hitler. In 1943, these same insiders marched off to the Teheran Conference and proceeded to start the carving up of Europe after the second great "war to end war." Again at Yalta and Potsdam in 1945, they established the China policy . . later summarized by Owen Lattimore: "The problem was how to allow them [China] to fall without making it look as if the United States had pushed them." The facts are inescapable. In one country after another Communism has been imposed on the local population from the top down. The most prominent forces for the imposition of that tyranny came from the United States and Great Britain Here is a charge that no American enjoys making, but the facts lead to no other possible conclusion. The idea that Communism is a movement of the downtrodden masses is a fraud.

None of the foregoing makes sense if Communism really is what the Communists and the Establishment tell us it is. But if Communism is an arm of a bigger conspiracy to control the world by power-mad billionaires (and brilliant but ruthless academicians who have shown them how to use their power) it all becomes perfectly logical.

It is at this point that we should again make it clear that this conspiracy is not made up solely of bankers and international cartelists, but includes every field of human endeavor. Starting with Voltaire and Adam Weishaupt and running through John Ruskin, Sidney Webb, Nicholas Murray Butler, and on to the present with Henry Kissinger and John Kenneth Galbraith, it has always been the scholar looking for avenues of power who has shown the "sons of the very powerful" how their wealth could be used to rule the world.

We cannot stress too greatly the importance of the reader keeping in mind that this book is discussing only one segment of the conspiracy, certain international bankers. Other equally important segments which work to foment labor, religious and racial strife in order to promote socialism have been described in numerous other books. These other divisions of the conspiracy operate independently of the international bankers in most cases and it would certainly be disastrous to ignore the danger to our freedom they represent.

It would be equally disastrous to lump all businessmen and bankers into the conspiracy. One must draw the distinction between competitive free enterprise, the most moral and productive system ever devised, and cartel capitalism dominated by industrial monopolists and international bankers. The difference is the private enterpriser operates by offering products and services in a competitive free market while the cartel capitalist uses the government to force the public to do business with him. These corporate socialists are tile deadly enemies of competitive private enterprise.

Liberals are willing to believe that these "robber barons" will fix prices, rig markets, establish monopolies, buy politicians, exploit employees and fire them the day before they are eligible for pensions, but they absolutely will not believe that these same men would want to rule the world or would use Communism as the striking edge of their conspiracy. When one discusses the machinations of these men, Liberals usually respond by saying, "But don't you think they mean well?"

However, if you think with logic, reason and precision in this field and try to expose these power seekers, the Establishment's mass media will accuse you of being a dangerous paranoid who is "dividing" our people. In every other area, of course, they encourage dissent as being healthy in a "democracy."

CHAPTER FIVE

ESTABLISHING THE ESTABLISHMENT

One of the primary reasons the Insiders worked behind the scenes to foment WWI was to create in its aftermath a world government. If you wish to establish national monopolies, you must control national governments. If you wish to establish international monopolies or cartels, you must control a world government.

After the Armistice on November 11, 1918, Woodrow Wilson and his alter ego, "Colonel" House (the ever present front man for the Insiders), went to Europe in hopes of establishing a world government in the form of the League of Nations. When the negotiations revealed one side had been about as guilty as the other, and the glitter of the "moral crusade" evaporated along with Wilson's vaunted "Fourteen Points," the "rubes back on Main Street" began to waken. Reaction and disillusionment set in.

Americans certainly didn't want to get into a World Government with double-dealing Europeans whose specialty was secret treaty hidden behind secret treaty. The guest of honor, so to speak, stalked out of the banquet before the poisoned meal could be served. And, without American inclusion, there could be no meaningful World Government.

Aroused public opinion made it obvious that the U. S. Senate dared not ratify a treaty saddling the country with such an internationalist commitment. In some manner the American public had to be sold on the idea of internationalism and World Government. Again, the key was "Colonel" House.

House had set down his political ideas in his book called Philip Dru: Administrator in 1912. In this book House laid out a thinly fictionalized plan for conquest of America by establishing "Socialism as dreamed by Kari Marx." He described a "conspiracy"-the word is his which succeeds in electing a U.S. President by means of "deception regarding his real opinions and intentions." Among other things, House wrote that the conspiracy was to insinuate "itself into the primaries, in order that no candidate might be nominated whose views were not in accord with theirs." Elections were to become mere charades conducted for the bedazzlement of the booboisie. The idea was to use both the Democrat and Republican parties as instruments to promote World Government.

In 1919 House met in Paris with members of a British "secret society" called The Round Table in order to form an organization whose job it would be to propagandize the citizens of America, England and Western Europe on the glories of World Government. The big selling point, of course, was "peace." The part about the Insiders establishing a world dictatorship quite naturally was left out.

The Round Table organization in England grew out of the life long dream of gold and diamond magnate Cecil Rhodes for a "new world order."

Rhodes' biographer Sara Millin was a little more direct. As she put it: "The government of the world was Rhodes' simple desire." Quigley notes:

"In the middle 1890's Rhodes had a personal income of at least a million pounds sterling a year (then about five million dollars) which he spent so freely for his mysterious purposes that he was usually overdrawn on his account...."

Cecil Rhodes' commitment to a conspiracy to establish World Government was set down in a series of wills described by Frank Aydelotte in his book American Rhodes Scholarships. Aydelotte writes:

"The seven wills which Cecil Rhodes made between the ages of 24 and 46 [Rhodes died at age forty-eight] constitute a kind of spiritual autobiography. . . . Best known are the first (the Secret Society .... .), and the last, which established the Rhodes Scholarships....

In his first will Rhodes states his aim still more specifically: 'The extension of British rule through out the world. . . . the foundation of so great a power as to hereafter render wars impossible and promote the interests of humanity.'

The 'Confession of Faith' enlarges upon these ideas. The model for this proposed secret society was the Society of Jesus, though he mentions also the Masons."

It should be noted that the originator of this type of secret society was Adam Weishaupt, the monster who founded the Order of illuminati on May 1, 1776, for the purpose of conspiracy to control the world. The role of Weishaupt's Illuminists in such horrors as the Reign of Terror is unquestioned, and the techniques of the Illuminati have long been recognized as models for Communist methodology. Weishaupt also used the structure of the Society of Jesus (the Jesuits) as his model, and rewrote his Code in Masonic terms. Aydelotte continues:

"In 1888 Rhodes made his third will . . . leaving everything to Lord Rothschild [his financier in mining enterprises], with an accompanying letter enclosing 'the written matter discussed between us.' This, one surmises, consisted of the first will and the 'Confession of Faith,' since in a postscript Rhodes says 'in considering questions suggested take Constitution of the Jesuits if obtainable....'"

Apparently for strategic reasons Lord Rothschild was subsequently removed from the forefront of the scheme. Professor Quigley reveals that Lord Rosebury "replaced his father-in Law, Lord Rothschild, in Rhodes' secret group and was made a Trustee under Rhodes' next (and last), will."

The "secret society" was organized on the conspiratorial pattern of circles within circles. Professor Quigley informs us that the central part of the "secret society" was established by March, 1891, using Rhodes' money. The organization was run for Rothschild by Lord Alfred Milner, discussed in the last chapter as a key financier of the Bolshevik revolution. The Round Table worked behind the scenes at the highest levels of British government, influencing foreign policy and England's involvement and conduct of WWI. According to Professor Quigley:

"At the end of the war of 1914, it became clear that the organization of this system [the Round Table Group] had to be greatly extended. Once again the task was entrusted to Lionel Curtis who established, in England and each dominion, a front organization to the existing Round Table Group. This front organization, called the Royal Institute of International Affairs, had as its nucleus in each area the existing submerged Round Table Group. In New York it was known as the Council on Foreign Relations, and was a front for J. P. Morgan and Company in association with the very small American Round Table Group. The American organizers were dominated by the large number of Morgan 'experts,' . . . who had gone to the Paris Peace Conference and there became close friends with the similar group of English 'experts' which had been recruited by the Milner group. In fact, the original plans for the Royal Institute of International Affairs and the Council on Foreign Relations [C.F.R.] were drawn up in Paris. .

Joseph Kraft (C.F.R.), however, tells us in Harper's of July 1958, that the chief agent in the formal founding of the Council on Foreign Relations was "Colonel" House, supported by such proteg6s as Walter Lippmann, John Foster Dulles, Allen Dulles and Christian Herter. It was House who acted as host for the Round Table Group, both English and American, at the key meeting of May 19, 1919, in the Majestic Hotel, Paris, which committed the conspiracy to creation of the C.F.R.

Although Quigley stresses the importance of Morgan men at the creation of the organization known as the Council on Foreign Relations, this organization's own materials and "Colonel" House's own memoirs reveal his function as midwife at the birth of the C.F.R.

The C.F.R.'s Twenty-Fifth Annual Report tells us this of the C.F.R.'s founding at Paris:

The Institute of International Affairs founded at Paris in 1919 was comprised, at the outset, of two branches, one in the United Kingdom and one in the U.S.

Later the plan was changed to create an ostensible autonomy because, ". . . it seemed unwise to set up a single institute with branches." It had to be made to appear that the C.F.R. in America, and the R.I.I.A. in Britain, were really independent bodies, lest the American public become aware the C.F.R. was in fact a subsidiary of the Round Table Group and react in patriotic fury.

According to Quigley, the most important financial dynasties in America following WWI were (in addition to Morgan) the Rockefeller family; Kuhn, Loeb & Company; Dillon Read and Company and Brown Bros. Harriman. All were represented in the C.F.R. and Paul Warburg was one of the incorporators. The Insider crowd which created the Federal Reserve System, many of whom also bankrolled the Bolshevik Revolution, were all in the original membership. In addition to Paul War burg, founders of the C.F.R. included international financial Insiders Jacob Schiff, Averell Harriman, Frank Vanderlip, Nelson Aldrich, Bernard Baruch, J. P. Morgan and John D. Rockefeller. These men did not create the C.F.R. because they had nothing better to do with their time and money. They created it as a tool to further their ambitions.

The C.F.R. has come to be known as "The Establishment," "the invisible government" and "the Rockefeller foreign office." This semi-secret organization unquestionably has become the most influential group in America.

One of the extremely infrequent articles to appear in the national press concerning this Council was published in the Christian Science Monitor of September 1, 1961. It began this way:

"On the west side of fashionable Park Avenue at 68th Street [in New York City] sit two handsome buildings across the way from each other. One is the Soviet Embassy to the United Nations. . . . Directly opposite on the southwest corner is the Council on Foreign Relations-probably one of the most influential semi-public organizations in the field of foreign policy."

Although the formal membership in the C.F.R. is composed of close to 1500 of the most elite names in the worlds of government, labor, business, finance, communications, the foundations, and the academy-and despite the fact that it has staffed almost every key position of every administration since those of FDR-it is doubtful that one American in a thousand so much as recognizes the Council's name, or that one in ten thousand can relate anything at all about its structure or purpose. Indicative of the C.F.R.'s power to maintain its anonymity is the fact that, despite its having been operative at the highest levels for nearly fifty years and having from the beginning counted among its members the foremost lions of the Establishment communications media, we discovered after poring over volumes of the Readers' Guide To Periodical Literature covering several decades that only one magazine article on the C.F.R. has ever appeared in a major national journal-and that in Harper's, hardly a mass- circulation periodical. Similarly, only a handful of articles on the Council have appeared in the nation's great newspapers. Such anonymity-at that level-can hardly be a matter of mere chance.

What makes this secret organization so influential? No one who knows for a certainty will say. The Christian Science Monitor, which is edited by a member of the American Round Table (a branch of Milner's secret society) did not in the article of September 1, 1961, that "its roster . . . contains names distinguished in the field of diplomacy, government, business, finance, science, labor, journalism, law and education. What united so wide ranging and disparate a membership is a passionate concern for the direction of American foreign policy."

The Christian Science Monitor indicates the fantastic power the C.F.R. has had during the last six administrations:

"Because of the Council's single-minded dedication to studying and deliberating American foreign policy, there is a constant flow of its members from private' to public service. Almost half 0/ the Council members have been invited to assume official government positions or to act as consultants at one time or another." [Emphasis added]

The policies promoted by the C.F.R. in the fields of defense and international relations become, with a regularity which defies the laws of chance, the official policies of the United States Government. As Liberal columnist Joseph Kraft, himself a member of the C.F.R., noted of the Council in the Harper's article: "It has been the seat of some basic government decisions, has set the context for many more, and has repeatedly served as a recruiting ground for ranking officials." Kraft, incidentally, aptly titled his article on the C.F.R., "School for Statesmen - an admission that the members of the Council are drilled with a "line" of strategy to be carried out in Washington.

As World War II approached, the Round Table Group was influential in seeing that Hitler was not stopped in Austria, the Rhineland, or Sudetenland-and thereby was largely responsible for precipitating the holocaust. A second world war would greatly enhance the opportunity for establishment of World Government. The financing for Adolph Hitler's rise to power was handled through the Warburg-controlled Mendelsohn Bank of Amsterdam and later by the J. Henry Schroeder Bank with branches in Frankfurt, London and New York. Chief legal counsel to the J. Henry Schroeder Bank 'was the firm of Sullivan and Cromwell whose senior partners included John Foster and Allen Dulles, (See James Martin's All Honorable Men, Little Brown Co., New York, 1950, p. 51. See also Quigley, p.433.)

With the Round Table doing its work in Europe, the C.F.R. carried the ball in the United States. The Council's first task was to infiltrate and develop effective control of the U.S. State Department-to make certain that after World War II there would be no slip-ups as there had been following World War 1. The story of the C.F.R. takeover of the Department of State is contained in State Department Publication 2349, Report To The President On The Results of the San Francisco Conference. It is the report of Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius (C.F.R.) to President Truman. On page twenty we find:

"With the outbreak of war in Europe it was clear that the United States would be confronted, after the war, with new and exceptional problems. . . . Accordingly, a Committee on Post-War Problems was set up before the end of 1939 [two years before the U. S. entered the war], at the suggestion of the C.F.R. The Committee consisted of high officials of the Department of State [all but one of whom were C.F.R. members]. It was assisted by a research staff [provided by, financed by, and directed by the C.F.R.], which in February, 1941, was organized into a Division of Special Research [and, went off the C.F.R. payroll and onto that of the State Department].

[After Pearl Harbor] the research facilities were rapidly expanded, and the Departmental Committee on Post-War Problems was reorganized into an Advisory Committee on Post-War Foreign Policies [completely staffed by the C.F.R.]." (See also the C.F.R.'s booklet, A Record of Twenty Years, 1921-1947.)

This is the group which designed the United Nations- the first major successful step on the road to a World Superstate. At least forty-seven C.F.R. members were among the American delegates to the founding of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945. Members of the C.F.R. group included Harold Stassen, John J. Mc Cloy, Owen Lattimore (called by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee a "conscious articulate instrument of the Soviet conspiracy"), Alger Hiss (Communist spy), Philip Jessup, Harry Dexter White (Communist agent), Nelson Rockefeller, John Foster Dulles, John Carter Vincent (security risk), and Dean Acheson. Just to make sure that Communist Party members understood the importance of the U.N. establishment, Political Affairs, the Party's official theoretical journal, in the April 1945 issue, gave the order:

"Great popular support and enthusiasm for the United Nations policies should be built up, well organized and fully articulate. But it is also necessary to do more than that. The opposition must be rendered so impotent that it will be unable to gather any significant support in the Senate against the United Nations Charter and the treaties which will follow."

One wonders if the boobs at the Party level ever questioned why they were to support an organization dominated by the hated "Wall Street" personalities. The landscape painters of the mass media have outdone themselves painting the U. N. as a peace organization instead of a front for the international bankers.

Not only did members of the Council on Foreign Relations dominate the establishment of the U.N., but C.F.R.

members were at the elbow of the American President at Teheran, Potsdam and Yalta-where hundreds of millions of human beings were delivered into the hands of Joseph Stalin, vastly extending the power of the International Communist Conspiracy. Administrative assistant to FDR during this time was a key member of the C.F.R. named Lauchlin Currie-subsequently identified by J. Edgar Hoover as a Soviet agent.

So completely has the C.F.R. dominated the State Department over the past thirty-eight years that every Secretary of State except Cordell Hull, James Byrnes, and William Rogers has been a member of the C.F.R. While Rogers is not a member, Professor Henry Kissinger, Mr. Nixon's chief foreign policy advisor, came to the job from the staff of the C.F.R., and the undersecretaries of state, almost to a man, are C.F.R. members.

Today the C.F.R. remains active in working toward its final goal of a government over all the world-a government which the Insiders and their allies will control. The goal of the C.F.R. is simply to abolish the United States with its Constitutional guarantees of liberty. And they don't even try to hide it. Study No.7, published by the C.F.R. on November 25, 1959, openly advocates "building a new international order [which] must be responsive to world aspirations for peace, [and] for social and economic change . . . an international order [code word for world government] . . . including states labeling themselves as 'Socialist' [Communist]."

The reason is evident to those who have studied its membership for this little known semi-secret organization to be called "the Establishment." (See Chart 7) International banking organizations that currently have men in the C.F.R. include Kuhn, Loeb & Company; Lazard Freres (directly affiliated with Rothschild); Dillon Read; Lehman Bros.; Goldman, Sachs; Chase Manhattan Bank; Morgan Guaranty Bank; Brown Bros. Harriman; First National City Bank; Chemical Bank & Trust, and Manufacturers Hanover Trust Bank.

C.F.R. are Standard Oil, IBM, Xerox, Eastman Kodak, Pan American, Firestone, U. S. Steel, General Electric and American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Also in the C.F.R. are men from such openly Leftist organizations as the Fabian Socialist Americans for Democratic Action, the avowedly Socialist League for Industrial Democracy-(formerly the Intercollegiate Socialist Society), and the United World Federalists which openly advocates world government with the Communists. Such devotedly Socialist labor leaders as the late Walter Reuther, David Dubinsky and Jay Lovestone have also been members of the C.F.R. In theory, these men and organizations are supposed to be the blood enemies of the banks and businesses listed above. Yet they all belong to the same lodge. You can see why that fact is not advertised.

The C.F.R. is totally interlocked with the major foundations and so-called "Think Tanks." Included in the interlock are the Rockefeller, Ford and Carnegie foundations and the Rand Corporation, Hudson Institute, Fund for the Republic and Brookings Institute "Think Tanks."

The fact that the C.F.R. operates in near-complete anonymity can hardly be accidental. Among the communications corporations represented in the C.F.R. are National Broadcasting Corporation, Columbia Broadcasting System, Time, Life, Fortune, Look, Newsweek, New York Times, Washington Post, Los Angeles Times, New York Post, Denver Post, Louisville Courier Journal, Minneapolis Tribune, the Knight papers, McGraw-Hill, Simon & Schuster, Harper Bros., Random House, Little Brown & Co., Macmillan Co., Viking Press, Saturday Review, Business Week and Book of the Month Club. Surely the C.F.R. could get a few blurbs of publicity if publicity were desired. If it seems impossible that one entity could control such a vast array of firms, it is because most people do not know that the so-called founders of such giants as the New York Times and NBC were chosen, financed and directed by Morgan, Schiff and their allies. The case of Adolph Ochs of the Times and David Sarnoff of RCA are examples of this control. Both were given early financial aid by Kuhn, Loeb & Company and Morgan Guaranty.

These are the Establishment's official landscape painters whose jobs it is to make sure the public does not discover the C.F.R. and its role in creating a world socialist dictatorship.

You will recall that "Colonel" House believed we should have two political parties but only a single ideology- One World socialism. This is exactly what we have in this country today. (See Chart 8) Although there are philosophical differences between the grass roots Democrats and the grass roots Republicans, yet as you move up the party ladders these differences become less and less distinguishable until finally the ladders disappear behind the Establishment's managed news curtain and come together at the apex under the control of the C.F.R. In 1968, when George Wallace maintained that there wasn't a dime's worth of difference between the two parties, he may not have known how right he was or why.

The following are so-called Democrats who have been or now are C.F.R. agents: Dean Acheson, Alger Hiss, Adlai Stevenson, John Kennedy, Robert Kennedy, Edward Kennedy,* Averell Harriman, George Ball, Henry Fowler, Dean Rusk, Adam Yarmolinsky, Huber Humphrey and John Lindsay.

It is interesting to note that rewards of cushy jobs were given by the international bankers to many men high in the LBJ administration for their services. Undersecretary of State George Ball went with Lehman Brothers; Secretary of the Treasury Henry Fowler was taken in by Goldman, Sachs & Co.; Budget Director Peter Lewis, Undersecretary of the Treasury Frederick Deming and former Secretary of Commerce C. R. Smith all avoided the bread lines by being picked up by Lazard Freres (Rothschilds). Fowler and Deming were largely responsible for policies which led to European nations claiming half of our gold (and having potential claims on the rest) as well as denuding the U.S. Treasury of all of the silver reserves it had built up over a century of time. Did the international bankers take pity on these men for their incompetence or were they rewarded for a job well done?

Controlling the Republican Party for the C.F.R. have been Dwight D. Eisenhower, John Foster Dulles, Thomas E. Dewey, Jacob Javits, Robert McNamara, Henry Cabot Lodge, Paul Hoffman, John Gardner, the Rockefeller clan, Elliott Richardson, Arthur Burns, Henry Kissinger and Richard Nixon. While it is true that every administration since FDR has been dominated by the C.F.R., the Nixon Administration has set the all-time record by appointing over 110 C.F.R. members to key positions. Henry Kissinger, the "Colonel" House of the Nixon Administration, came to his job directly from employment on the C.F.R. staff. Kissinger represents the very opposite of everything Nixon said he stood for in his campaign. Both Liberals and Conservatives admit Kissinger is by far the most important man in the Nixon Administration.

Administrations, both Democrat and Republican, come and go-but the C.F.R. lingers on. This is why the more things seem to change, the more they remain the same. The fix is in at the top, where the same coterie of Insiders, bent on control of the world, runs the show. As Professor Quigley admits:

"There does exist, and has existed for a generation, an international. . . network which operates, to some extent, in the way the radical Right believes the Communists act. In fact, this network, which we may identify as the Round Table Groups, has no aversion to cooperating with the Communists or any other groups, and frequently does so." [Emphasis added.)

Yes, the Insiders have no aversion to working with the Communists whose ostensible goal is to destroy them. While the Insiders are serving champagne and caviar to their guests in their summer mansions at Newport. or entertaining other members of the social elite aboard their yachts, their agents are out enslaving and murdering people. And you are next on their list.

Clearly, the Chicago Tribune's editorial of December 9, 1950, on the C.F.R. still applies:

(*Boston Committee)

(Richard Nixon now claims that he no longer belongs to the C.F.R., having dropped out when the organization became an issue in his primary campaign for the governorship of California in 1962. Nixon has never said why he dropped out, but the fact that he has appointed over 110 C.F.R members to important positions in his administration speaks for itself. It should come as no surprise that the very same Richard Nixon who campaigned in 1968 as a conservative had already made his real position very clear to the Insiders of the C.F.R. by authoring an article in the CFR. magazine, Foreign affairs, in October 1967. The title of "The members of the council [On Foreign Relathis article, "Asia after Vietnam," revealed how the aspiring President Nixon would open a new policy toward Red China and bring "realism" to our Asian foreign policy.The C.F.R.'s Annual Report for 1952, admitted that sometimes members in sensitive positions were forced to go underground and keep the membership secret.)

"The members of council [On Foreign Relations] are persons of much more than average influence in their community. They have used the prestige that their wealth, their social position, and their education have given them to lead their country toward bankruptcy and military debacle. They should look at their hands. There is blood on them-the dried blood of the last war and the fresh blood of the present one [the Korean War] (HUMAN SACRIFICE)

It goes without saying that the C.F.R.'s hands are bloodier now with the gore of 50,000 Americans in Vietnam. Shamefully the Council has succeeded in promoting, as American policy, the shipment of American aid and trade to the East European arsenal of the Viet Cong for the killing of our sons in the field.

It should not be surprising to learn that there is on the international level an organizational equivalent of the C.F.R. This group calls itself the Bilderbergers. If scarcely one American in a thousand has any familiarity with the C.F.R., it is doubtful that one in five thousand has any knowledge of the Bilderbergers. Again, this is not accidental.

The strange name of this group is taken from the site of the first meeting in May, 1954-the Hotel de Bilderberg-in Oostebeek Holland. The man who created the Bilderbergers is His Royal Highness Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands. The Prince is an important figure in Royal Dutch Petroleum (Shell Oil) and the Societe General de Belgique, a huge conglomerate cartel with worldwide holdings. The Bilderbergers meet once-or sometimes twice-a year. Those in attendance include leading political and financial figures from the United States and Western Europe. Prince Bernhard makes no effort to hide the fact tbat the ultimate goal of the Bilderbergers is a world government. In the meantime, while the "new world order" is being built, the Bilderbergers coordinate the efforts of the European and American power elites.

Prince Bernhard's counterpart among the American Bilderbergers is David Rockefeller, chairman of the board of the C.F.R., whose economic base is the giant Chase Manhattan Bank and Standard Oil. Among the other Bilderbergers from the world of ultra-high finance are Baron Edmund de Rothschild of the House of Rothschild, C. Douglas Dillon (C.F.R.) of Dillon Read & Co., Robert McNamara of the World Bank, Sir Eric Roll of S.G. War burg & Co., Ltd., Pierce Paul Schweitzer of the International Monetary Fund, and George Ball (C.F.R.) of Lehman Brothers.

Not everyone who attends one of the Bilderbergers' secret meetings is an Insider, but only men of the Left are allowed to attend the private meetings following the general sessions. The avowedly Socialist Parties of Europe are well represented . . . another example of the tie-in between the Insiders of high finance and the ostensible leaders of the proletariat. Bilderberg policy is not planned by those who attend the conferences, but by the elite steering committee of Insiders composed of 24 Europeans and 15 Americans. Past and present Americans of the Bilderberger Steering Committee include George W. Ball, Gardner Cowles, John H. Ferguson, Henry J. Heinz 11, Robert D. Murphy, David Rockefeller, Shepard Stone, James D. Zellerbach, Emelo G. Collado, Arthur H. Dean, Gabriel Hauge, C. D. Jackson, George Nebolsine, Dean Rusk and General Walter Bedell Smith. Those who adhere to the accidental theory of history will claim that it is sheer coincidence that every single one of those named as past and present members of the Bilderberger Steering Committee is or was a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

The Bilderberger Advisory Committee forms an even more inner circle" than the Steering Committee. Americans on the Advisory Committee include Joseph E. Johnson, Dean Rusk, Arthur H. Dean, George Nebolsine, John S. Coleman, General Walter Bedell Smith and Henry J. Heinz II. Again, all are members of the C.F.R.

One would assume (that is, if one had not read this book) that when the world's leading parliamentarians and international tycoons meet to discuss the planning of their

Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, head of the secret, one world Bilderberger movement, confers with President Nixon. A former Nazi SS storm trooper ("We had a lot of fun"), Bernhard now works with the Rothschilds and Communists to promote a World Super State of the elite. Bernhard holds yearly secret meetings with high U. S. officials, bankers and industrialists to map plans for merging the U. S. and the Soviet Union into a world government. After last meeting, Nixon devalued the dollar and opened up trade with Red China.

Edmond and Guy de Rothschild, leaders of the French Rothschild clan. The Rothschilds are closely connected with Prince Bernhard in business (Royal Dutch Shell) and in the building of a one world super government with the Soviets. Time of Dec. 20, 1963, says of Guy: "Guy is every inch a Rothschild. He personifies much of what the family name stands for . . . He is a friend and confidante of some of France's politicians. . . . Most of all, he is dedicated to enlarging the fortune of his bank. . . Guy heads a versatile clan of modern day Rothschilds." Edmond, reputedly the richest of the French Rothschilds, is worth $500 million personally, according to estimates.

various nations' foreign policies, that the news hawks from papers and televisionland would be screaming to high heaven that such an event held in secret makes a mockery of the democratic process. One might expect Walter Cronkite to be thundering in wrath about an elite clique meeting to plan our lives; or the New York Times editorialists to be pounding their smoking typewriters, fuming about "the public's right to know." But, of course, the landscape painters merely brush the Bilderbergers right out of existence and focus the public's attention on something like the conditions in the prisons or coke bottles littering the highways. Since the Bilderbergers are a group of the Left (or, as the Liberals in the media might say, but don't, "a group of progressives") they are allowed to go on in peace and quiet planning for 1984. The fact that there is heavy Rockefeller (Chase Manhattan Bank and C.F.R.) influence in the media might also have something to do with the fact that while everybody has heard of, say, The John Birch Society (and almost always in a derogatory manner from the Eastern Establishment media), practically nobody has heard of the Bilderbergers.

As this is written, there have been 29 Bilderberger meetings to date. They usually last three days and are held in remote, but plush quarters. The participants are housed in one location and are protected by a thorough security network. Decisions are reached, resolutions adopted, plans of action initiated, but only Bilderbergers ever know for sure what occurred. We must assume that these people did not congregate merely to discuss their golf scores. The press, naturally, is not allowed to be present, although occasionally a brief press conference is held at the end of the meeting at which time the news media are given in very general terms the Bilderberger version of what was discussed. Why all the secrecy if there is really nothing to hide? Why do the Ford, Rockefeller and Carnegie foundations finance the meetings if they are not important? Yes, why?

The most recent meeting took place at Laurance Rockefeller's Woodstock Inn at Woodstock, Vermont, April 23, 24, 25, 1971. Apparently the only newspaper to carry a substantial story on the meeting was the Rutland, Vermont, Herald, whose reporter could acquire only sketchy information about what the meeting was all about. The April 20, 1971 issue of the Herald reported:

"A rather tight lid of secrecy was being kept on the conference. . . . A closed-door meeting was held in Woodstock last week to brief a handful of local officials on some phases of the conference. One participant of the meeting insisted Monday that the officials were told the meeting would be an 'international peace conference.' However, other reliable sources said the conference will deal with international finance....
The Woodstock Inn will apparently be sealed up like Fort Knox. . . . No press coverage will be allowed, with the exception of issuing a statement at the close of the meeting on Sunday."

When Prince Bernhard arrived at Boston's Logan Airport, he did admit to reporters that the subject of the conference would be the "change in the world-role of the United States." Isn't it nice to have changes in America's role in the world decided upon by Bernhard, Rothschild and Rockefeller? There is real democracy in action, as they say. Present at the scene to carry back orders to Mr. Nixon was C.F.R.-Rockefeller errand boy, the President's Number One advisor on foreign affairs, Henry Kissinger. Shortly after the Woodstock meeting, two ominous and "role changing" events occurred: Henry Kissinger went to Peking and arranged for the acceptance of Red China as a member of the family of trading nations; and an international monetary crisis developed after which the dollar was devalued. As the British statesman and Rothschild confidante Benjamin Disraeli wrote in Coningsby: "So you see, my dear Coningsby, that the world is governed by very different personages from what is imagined by those who are not behind the scenes."

CHAPTER SIX

THE ROCKEFELLERS AND THE REDS

The most important American of those "different personages" who run the world from behind the scenes are the Rockefellers. The Rockefeller clan reportedly has worked with the Rothschilds and their agents since the 1880's when the original John D. arranged to get a rebate on every barrel of oil he and his competitors shipped over Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-controlled Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads. It has been a profitable partnership ever since, although there appear to have been areas in which the two financial dynasties competed.

The involvement of the Rockefellers with their supposed blood enemies, the Communists, dates back to the Bolshevik Revolution. During the 1920's Lenin established his New Economic Policy (the same name Mr. Nixon applied to his wage-price control package), when the supposedly hated capitalists were invited back into Russia.

The Federal Reserve-CFR insiders began pushing to open up Communist Russia to U. S. traders soon after the revolution. However, at that time public opinion ran so high against the Bolsheviks because of their barbarism that it was official U. S. government policy not to deal with the outlaw government. The U. S. did not officially recognize the Bolsheviks until 1933. In the meantime, the Soviet economy was in a shambles and the people were starving to death. Communism would have collapsed had it not been aided by the Insiders. The Bolsheviks were originally saved from collapse by Herbert Hoover (CFR) who raised money to buy food which was appropriated by Lenin and his gangsters. They used it as a tool to subdue starving peasants who had been resisting their newly imposed slave masters. While Hoover's "humanitarian" gesture saved the Soviet regime, the Russian economy was still in total chaos. In came the Vanderlips, Harrimans and Rockefellers. One of the first to jump in was Frank Vanderlip, an agent of the Rockefellers and one of the Jekyl Island conspirators, president of the Rockefeller First National City Bank, who compared Lenin to George Washington. (Louis Budenz, The Bolshevik Invasion of The West, Bookmailer, p.115)

The Rockefellers assigned their public relations agent, Ivy Lee, to sell the American public the idea that the Bolsheviks were merely misunderstood idealists who were actually kind benefactors of mankind.

Professor Antony Sutton of Stanford University's Hoover Institution, notes in his highly authoritative Western Technology and Soviet Economic Development:

"Quite predictably, 180 pages later, Lee concludes that the communist problem is merely psychological. By this time he is talking about 'Russians' (not Communists) and concludes 'they are all right.' He suggests the United States should not engage in propaganda; makes a plea for peaceful coexistence; and suggests the United States would find it sound policy to recognize the USSR and advance credits." (Antony Sutton, Western Technology and Soviet Economic Development, 1917-1930, Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, Stanford University, Calif., 1968, p.292)

After the Bolshevik Revolution, Standard of New Jersey bought 50 per cent of the Nobel's huge Caucasus oil fields even though the property had theoretically been nationalized. (O'Connor, Harvey, The Empire Of Oil, Monthly Review Press, New York, 1955, p.270.)

In 1927, Standard Oil of New York built a refinery in Russia, thereby helping the Bolsheviks put their economy back on its feet. Professor Sutton states: "This was the first United States investment in Russia since the Revolution." (Ibid, Vol.1, p.38)

Shortly thereafter Standard Oil of New York and its subsidiary, Vacuum Oil Company, concluded a deal to market Soviet oil in European countries and it was reported that a loan of $75,009,000 to the Bolsheviks was arranged. (National Republic, Sept.1927.)

We have been unable to find out if Standard Oil was even theoretically expropriated by the Communists. Sutton writes:

"Only the Danish telegraph concessions, the Japanese fishing, coal and oil concessions, and the Standard Oil lease remained after 1935." (Ibid, Vol.11, p.17.)

Wherever Standard Oil would go, Chase National Bank was sure to follow. (The Rockefeller's Chase Bank was later merged with the Warburg's Manhattan Bank to form the present Chase Manhattan Bank.) In order to rescue the Bolsheviks, who were supposedly an archenemy, the Chase National Bank was instrumental in establishing the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce in 1922. President of the Chamber was Reeve Schley, a vice- president of Chase National Bank. (Ibid, Vol.11, p.288) According to Professor Sutton: "In 1925, negotiations between Chase and Prombank extended beyond the finance of raw materials and mapped out a complete program for financing Soviet raw material exports to the U. S. and imports of U. S. cotton and machinery. (Ibid, Vol.11, p.226) Sutton also reports that "Chase National Bank and the Equitable Trust Company were leaders in the Soviet credit business." (Ibid, p.277)

The Rockefeller's Chase National Bank also was involved in selling Bolshevik bonds in the United States in 1928. Patriotic organizations denounced the Chase as an "international fence." Chase was called "a disgrace to America. .. . They will go to any lengths for a few dollars profits." (Ibid, Vol.11, p.291) Congressman Louis McFadden, chairman of the House Banking Committee, maintained in a speech to his fellow Congressmen:

"The Soviet government has been given United States Treasury funds by the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Reserve Banks acting through the Chase Bank and the Guaranty Trust Company and other banks in New York City.

Open up the books of Amtorg, the trading organization of the Soviet government in New York, and of Gostorg, the general office of the Soviet Trade Organization, and of the State Bank of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and you will be staggered to see how much American money has been taken from the United States' Treasury for the benefit of Russia. Find out what business has been transacted for the State Bank of Soviet Russia by its correspondent, the Chase Bank of New York.

(Congressional Record, June 15, 1933.)

But the Rockefellers apparently were not alone in financing the Communist arm of the Insiders' conspiracy. According to Professor Sutton ". . there is a report in the State Department files that names Kuhn, Loeb & Co. (the long established and important financial house in New York) as the financier of the First Five Year Plan. See U. S. State Dept. Decimal File, 811.51/3711 and 861.50 FIVE YEAR PLAN/236." (Sutton, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 340n.)

Professor Sutton proves conclusively in his three volume history of Soviet technological development that the Soviet Union was almost literally manufactured by the U.S.A. Sutton quotes a report by Averell Harriman to the State Department in June, 1944 as stating:

"Stalin paid tribute to the assistance rendered by the United States to Soviet industry before and during the war. He said that about two-thirds of all the large industrial enterprise in the Soviet Union had been built with United States help or technical assistance." (Sutton, op. cit., Vol.11, p.3.)

Remember that this was at a time when the Soviets had already established an extensive spy network in the U.S. and the Communist Daily Worker newspaper regularly called for the destruction of our liberty and the Sovietizing of America.

Sutton shows that there is hardly a segment of the Soviet economy which is not a result of the transference of Western, particularly American, technology.

This cannot be wholly the result of accident. For fifty years the Federal Reserve-CFR-Rockefeller-Insider crowd has advocated and carried out policies aimed at increasing the power of their satellite, the Soviet Union. Meanwhile, America spends $75 billion a year on defense to protect itself from the enemy the Insiders are building up.

What has been true of the past is even more valid today. The leader in promoting the transfer of technology and increasing aid and trade with the Communists is the Council on Foreign Relations.

On October 7, 1966, President Lyndon Johnson, a man who had appointed a C.F.R. member to virtually every strategic position in his administration, stated:

"We intend to press for legislative authority to negotiate trade agreements which could extend most favored-nation tariff treatment to European Communist states.

We will reduce export controls on East-West trade with respect to hundreds of non-strategic items. . .

The New York Times reported one week later on -October 13, 1966:

"The United States put into effect today one of President Johnson's proposals for stimulating East-West trade by removing restrictions on the export of more than four hundred commodities to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. .

.Among the categories from which items have been selected for export relaxation are vegetables, cereals, fodder, hides, crude and manufactured rubber, pulp and waste paper, textiles and textile fibers, crude fertilizers, metal ores and scrap, petroleum, gas and derivatives, chemical compounds and products, dyes, medicines, fireworks, detergents, plastic materials, metal products and machinery, and scientific and professional instruments."

Virtually every one of these "non-strategic" items has a direct or indirect use in war. Later, items such as rifle cleaning compounds, electronic equipment and radar were declared "non-strategic" and cleared for shipment to the Soviet Union. The trick simply is to declare almost everything "non-strategic." A machine gun is still considered strategic and therefore may not be shipped to the Communists, but the tools for making the machine guns and the chemicals to propel the bullets have been declared "non-strategic." Meanwhile, nearly 50,000 Americans have died in Vietnam. The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese receive 85 percent of their war materials from Russia and the Soviet bloc nations. Since their economies are incapable of supporting a war, the Communist arm of the conspiracy needed help from the Finance Capitalist arm. The United States has been financing and equipping both sides of the terrible Vietnamese war, killing our own soldiers by proxy. Again, the landscape painters in the mass media have kept the American public from learning this provable fact.

Not surprisingly, the Rockefellers have been leaders in championing this bloody trade. On January 16, 1967, one of the most incredible articles ever to appear in a newspaper graced the front page of the Establishment's daily, tile New York Times. Under the headline "Eaton Joins Rockefellers To Spur Trade With Reds" the article stated:

"An alliance of family fortunes linking Wall Street and the Midwest is going to try to build economic bridges between the free world and Communist Europe. The International Basic Economy Corporation, controlled by the Rockefeller brothers, and Tower International, Inc., headed by Cyrus S. Eaton Jr., Cleveland financier, plan to cooperate in promoting trade between the Iron Curtain countries, including the Soviet Union...."

International Basic Economy Corporation (IBEC) is run by Richard Aldrich, grandson of Federal Reserve plotter Nelson Aldrich, and Rodman Rockefeller? (CFR), Rocky 5 son. On October 20, 1969, IBEC announced that N M Rothschild & Sons of London had entered into partner ship with the firm.

Cyrus Eaton Jr. is the son of the notoriously pro Soviet Cyrus Eaton, who began his career as secretary to John D. Rockefeller. It is believed that Eaton's rise to power in finance resulted from backing by his mentor. The agreement between Tower International and IBEC continues an old alliance. Although Eaton's name does not appear on the CFR's membership rolls, the Reece Committee which investigated foundations for Congress in 1953, found that Eaton was a secret member.

Among the "non-strategic" items which the Rockefeller Eaton axis is going to build for the Communists are ten rubber goods plants, including two synthetic rubber plants worth $200 million. Mr. Eaton explains in the Times article: "These people are setting up new automobile plants and know they have got to have tire factories." Under the Nixon Administration which, contrary to campaign promises, has multiplied trade with the Reds tenfold, American concerns are building the world's largest truck factory for the Communists. Trucks are necessary for a nation's war machine and truck factories can be converted to the production of tanks as was done during WWII. The U. S. will provide the Soviets with both the facilities to build the trucks and the tires (or tank treads) for them to roll on.

In addition, the Rockefellers and Eatons are constructing a $50 million aluminum producing plant for the Reds Aluminum for jet planes is considered "non-strategic under Johnson-Nixon doctrine. Even more incredibly, the Times reveals:

Nelson Rockefeller greets Khrushchev, the infamous "Butcher of Budapest." The Rockefeller and Eaton families have now joined forces to build war production plants behind the Iron Curtain so that the Communists can become a bigger threat to U. S. survival. America spends $70 billion a year ostensibly on defense and then the Rockefellers build aluminum mills for the Communists. Only the absence of a formal declaration of war in Vietnam keeps the Eatons and Rockefellers from being actionable for treason. They have the blood of nearly 50,000 American servicemen on their hands.

When Communist dictators visit the U. S. they do not visit the laorers or union leaders, but hobnob with industrial leaders. There is little, if any, attempt by the Red dictators to identify with the working class. Here Nikita Khrushchev greets the avowedly pro-Communist industrialist Cyrus Eaton. Eaton started his business career as secretary to John 0. Rockefeller and the Rockefeller family Is believed to be largely responsible for his fortune.

"Last month, Tower International reached a tentative agreement with the Soviet patent and licensing organization, Licensintorg, covering future licensing and patent transactions. Until now, Mr. Eaton said, the Russians have left the buying and selling of licenses and patents to the Amtorg Trading Corporation, the official Soviet agency in this country for promoting Soviet-American trade."

This means that the Rockefellers and Eatons have a monopoly on the transfer of technological capability to the supposed enemies of the super-rich, the Soviet Union. According to the Times:

"Mr. Eaton acknowledged the difficulties that Amtorg's representatives had encountered here in trying to arrange licensing agreements with American companies. 'As you can imagine,' he said, 'it is almost impossible for a Russian to walk into the research department of an American aerospace company and try to arrange the purchase of a patent'."

Certainly every loyal American will say to himself, "Well, I would hope to God the Soviets couldn't walk into our defense plants and buy a patent." The Rockefellers and the Eatons have solved that problem for the Communists. Now, instead of dealing with an official agency of the Soviet government, American concerns will be dealing with the Rockefellers. Meanwhile, nearly 50,000 Americans have died in Vietnam, many of them killed by weapons which the Rockefellers directly or indirectly supplied to our avowed enemies. Only the technicality of the lack of a formal declaration of war prevents the Rockefellers' trading in the blood of dead Americans from being actionable as treason.

Thus by the purchase of patents for the Communists the Rockefellers are virtually in charge of research and development for the Soviet military machine, allowing the Soviets to mass produce American developments. The transfer of such knowledge is even more important than the sale of weapons. A process that may have taken an American corporation a decade to develop is transferred in toto to the Communists. Does it make sense to spend $75 billion a year on national defense and then deliberately increase the war-making potential of an avowed enemy? It does to Mr. Rockefeller and the insiders.

Since the Rockefellers have contracted to arrange for patents for the Soviets, they are by dictionary definition Communist agents. Would it not be more accurate to define the Communists as Rockefeller agents?

Indicative of this was a strange event which occurred in October of 1964. David Rockefeller, president of the Chase Manhattan Bank and chairman of the board of the Council on Foreign Relations, took a vacation in the Soviet Union. This is a peculiar place for the world's greatest "imperialist" to take his vacation since much of Communist propaganda deals with taking all of David's wealth away from him and distributing it to "the people." A few days after Rockefeller ended his "vacation" in the Kremlin, Nikita Khrushchev was recalled from a vacation at a Black Sea resort to learn that he had been fired. How strange! As far as the world knew, Khrushchev was the absolute dictator of the Soviet government and, more important, head of the Communist Party which runs the USSR. Who has the power to fire the man who was supposedly the absolute dictator? Did David Rockefeller journey to the Soviet Union to fire an employee? Obviously the position of premier in the Soviet Union is a figurehead with the true power residing elsewhere. Perhaps in New York.

For five decades the Communists have based their propaganda on the theme that they were going to destroy the Rockefellers and the other super-rich. Yet we find that for five decades the Rockefellers have been involved in building the strength of the Soviets. We are supposed to believe those international cartelists do this because they are foolish or greedy. Does this make sense? If a criminal goes up and down the streets shouting at the top of his lungs that as soon as he gets hold of a gun he is going to kill Joe Doaks, and you learn that Doaks is secretly giving guns to the criminal, one of two things must be true. Either Doaks is a fool or all the shouting is just "show biz" and the criminal secretly works for Doaks. The Rockefellers are not fools.

While David runs the financial end of the Rockefeller dynasty, Nelson runs the political. Nelson would like to be President of the United States. But, unfortunately for him, he is unacceptable to the vast majority of the grass roots of his own party. The next best thing to being President is controlling a President. Nelson Rockefeller and Richard Nixon are supposed to be bitter political competitors. In a sense they are, but that still does not preclude Rockefeller from asserting dominion over Mr. Nixon. When Mr. Nixon and Mr. Rockefeller competed for the Republican nomination in 1968, Rockefeller naturally would have preferred to win the prize, but regardless of who won, he would control the highest office in the land.

You will recall that right in the middle of drawing up the Republican platform in 1960, Mr. Nixon suddenly left Chicago and flew to New York to meet with Nelson Rockefeller in what Barry Goldwater described as the "Munich of the Republican Party." There was no political reason why Mr. Nixon needed to crawl to Mr. Rockefeller. He had the convention all sewed up. The Chicago Tribune cracked that it was like Grant surrendering to Lee.

In The Making 0/ the President, 1960, Theodore White noted that Nixon accepted all the Rockefeller terms for this meeting, including provisions "that Nixon telephone Rockefeller personally with his request for a meeting; that they meet at the Rockefeller apartment . .. that their meeting be secret and later be announced in a press release from the Governor, not Nixon; that the meeting be clearly announced as taking place at the Vice President's request; that the statement of policy issuing from it be long, detailed, inclusive, not a summary communique."

The meeting produced the infamous "Compact of Fifth Avenue" in which the Republican Platform was scrapped and replaced by Rockefeller's socialist plans. The Wall Street Journal of July 25, 1960, commented: ". . . a little band of conservatives within the party . . . are shoved to the sidelines. . . . [T]he fourteen points are very liberal indeed; they comprise a platform akin in many ways (to the Democratic platform and they are a far cry from the things that conservative men think the Republican Party ought to stand for. . . ." As Theodore White put it:

"Never had the quadrennial liberal swoop of the regulars been more nakedly dramatized than by the open compact of Fifth Avenue. Whatever honor they might have been able to carry from their services on the platform committee had been wiped out. A single night's meeting of the two men in a millionaire's triplex apartment in Babylon-by-the-Hudson, eight hundred and thirty miles away, was about to overrule them; they were exposed as clowns for all the world to see."

The whole story behind what happened in Rockefeller's apartment will doubtless never be known. We can only make an educated guess in light of subsequent events. But it is obvious that since that time Mr. Nixon has been in the Rockefeller orbit.

After losing to Kennedy by an eyelash, Mr. Nixon, against his wishes, and at the request (or order) of Rockefeller, entered the California gubernatorial race and lost. (For further details see the author's Richard Nixon:

The Man Behind The Mask.) After losing to Pat Brown in the California gubernatorial race in 1962, Nixon had universally been consigned to the political trash heap. He left his practice as an attorney in California and went to New York, where he moved in as a neighbor of Nelson Rockefeller, the man who is supposedly his archenemy, in a $ 100,000-a-year apartment in a building owned by Rockefeller. Then Mr. Nixon went to work for the law firm of Mr. Rockefeller's personal attorney, John Mitchell, and in the next six years spent most of his time touring the country and the world, first rebuilding his political reputation and then campaigning to get the 1968 Republican nomination. At the same time, according to his own financial statement, his net worth multiplied many times and he became quite wealthy. Nelson Rockefeller, (and his colleagues of the Eastern Liberal Establishment), who helped make Nixon acceptable to Conservatives by appearing to oppose him, rescued Nixon from political oblivion and made him President of the United States. Does it not make sense that Mr. Nixon, the man of passionate ambition whose career had sunk to the bottom, had to make some deals in order to reach his goal? And did he not acquire massive political debts in return for being made President by the Eastern Liberal Establishment?

When Nixon left Washington, he, by his own claim, had little more than an old Oldsmobile automobile, Pat's respectable Republican cloth coat, and a government pension. While in law practice Nixon had an income of $200, 000 per year, of which more than half went to pay for the apartment in Rocky's building. By 1968, he reported his net worth as $515,830, while assigning a value of only $45,000 to his partnership in his increasingly flourishing law firm. It may be that the frugal Mr. Nixon acquired the after-tax investment capital that mushroomed into $858,190 in assets by faithfully plugging his change into a piggy bank. Then again, it may have been part of Nixon's deal with Rockefeller and the Insiders that Mr. Nixon's personal poverty problems should be solved. The President is obviously an un-free agent.

The man most observers agree is the most powerful man in the Administration on domestic policy matters is Attorney General John Mitchell. Mitchell, who had been a Nixon law partner, served as campaign manager in 1968, and reportedly will serve in that capacity in 1972. The Wall Street Journal of January 17, 1969, revealed that Mitchell was Rocky's personal lawyer. The. Establishment's landscape painters have etched a picture of Mitchell as a tough cop-type conservative bent; it appears that in reality Mitchell is but another Rockefeller agent.

Richard Nixon was elected President on a platform which promised to stop America's retreat before world Communism. Yet he appointed Henry Kissinger, a man who represented the opposite of the stands Mr. Nixon took during his campaign, to a position which is virtually Assistant President. Is it surprising then that Mr. Nixon has done just the opposite of what he promised he would do during his 1968 campaign?

How did Mr. Nixon come to pick an ultra-liberal to be his number one foreign policy advisor? We are told by Time magazine that Mr. Nixon met Kissinger at a cocktail party given by Clare Boothe Luce during the Christmas holidays in 1967. Mr. Nixon is supposed to have been so impresse4 by Dr. Kissinger's cocktail party repartee that he appointed him to the most powerful position in the Nixon Administration. Mr. Nixon would have to be stupid to have done that; and Mr. Nixon is not stupid. The Kissinger appointment was arranged by Nelson Rockefeller. (Salt Lake City Desert News, March 27, 1970.) Kissinger had served for five years as Rockefeller's personal advisor on foreign affairs and at the time of his appointment he was serving as a paid staff member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Mr. Nixon's fantastic about face was praised by LBJ in the Washington Star of Dec. 1, 1971. The paper states:

"Former President Lyndon B. Johnson acknowledges that Richard Nixon, as a Republican President, has been able to accomplish some things that a Democratic President could not have...

"'Can't you just see the uproar,' be asked during a recent interview, 'if I had been responsible for Taiwan getting kicked out of the United Nations? Or if I had imposed sweeping national controls on prices and wages?'

"'Nixon has gotten by with it,' he observed, an appreciative tone in his voice. 'If I had tried to do it, or Truman, or Humphrey, or any Democrat, we would have been clobbered.'"

Nelson Rockefeller and Richard Nixon are theoretically political enemies, but Rocky arranged '68 election so that if he could not be President, someone whom he controlled would be. The Rockefeller family through their Chase Manhattan Bank and other entities have been great benefactors of the Soviet Union ever since Communist Revolution in Russia. During campaign Nixon promised to halt shipment of war materials from America to North Vietnam via European Communist bloc because these supplies were being used to kill American soldiers. But much of this bloc trade is controlled by Rockefellers and Nixon has reversed himself and greatly multiplied such trade. The press, quite naturally, remains silent about killing American soldiers by proxy.

The boss and his two employees-the three musketeers of the CFR-Rocky President Nixon and Henry Kissinger confer. Kissinger of Harvard was made - virtual Assistant President by Rockefeller on whose staff he had served for a dozen years. Kissinger also had been on the staff of the CFR just prior to joining the Nixon Administration. Kissinger was the very embodiment of every. thing Nixon denounced during his '68 campaign. This explains why Nixon has reversed himself on so many stands. Among those to hail Mr. Nixon's move to the Left is Alger Hiss, the Communist spy Richard Nixon helped convict (Chicago Tribune, Oct. 25,1971.1 It was the Hiss Case which catapulted Nixon - from obscurity into the Senate, the Vice Presidency and, eventually, the White House.

CHAPTER SEVEN

PRESSURE FROM ABOVE AND PRESSURE FROM BELOW

The Establishment's official landscape artists have done a marvelous job of painting a picture of Richard Nixon as a conservative. Unfortunately, this picture is twenty years out of date. The very liberal Senator Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania boasted to a reporter one day: "(Liberals] get the action and the Conservatives get the rhetoric." Richard Nixon could not have been elected had he run as a Rockefeller liberal, but he can get away with running his Administration like one simply because the landscape painters fail to call the public's attention to the fact. However, columnist Stewart Alsop in writing for a sophisticated audience of approving Liberals, reveals the real Nixon. Alsop claims that if Nixon were judged by his deeds in- stead of his ancient image, the Liberals' attitude toward him would be aifferent. If only the Liberals' Pavlovian response to the Nixon name could be eliminated, says Alsop, they would realize how far Left he is. Therefore Alsop substitutes a hypothetical "President Liberal" for President Nixon:

" . . . . If President Liberal were actually in the White House, it is not at all hard to imagine the reaction to his program. The right would be assailing President Liberal for bugging out of Vietnam, undermining American defenses, fiscal irresponsibility, and galloping socialism. The four basic Presidential policy positions listed above would be greeted with hosannas by the liberals. . .

Instead, the liberals have showered the President with dead cats, while most conservatives have maintained a glum silence, and thus the Administration has been 'little credited' for 'much genuine achievement.' But there are certain special reasons, which Pat Moynihan omitted to mention, why this is so.

Alsop further explains how having the reputation of being an enemy of the Liberal Democrats helps Nixon pass their program:

"For one thing, there is a sort of unconscious conspiracy between the President and his natural enemies, the liberal Democrats, to conceal the extent to which his basic program, leaving aside frills and rhetoric, is really the liberal Democratic program. Richard Nixon is the first professional politician and 'real Republican' to be elected President in 40 years -and it is not in the self-interest of the liberals to give credit to such a President for liberal initiatives. By the same token, it is not in the self-interest of the President to risk his conservative constituency by encouraging the notion that he is not a 'real Republican' after all, but a liberal Democrat at cut rates.

There are plenty of examples of the mutual obfuscation which results from this mutual interest. The withdrawal of half a million men from Vietnam is quite obviously the greatest retreat in American history. But the President talks as though it were somehow a glorious advance, certain to guarantee a 'just and lasting peace.' When the President-like any commander of a retreat-resorts to spoiling actions to protect his dwindling rear guard, the liberals howl that he is 'chasing the will-o'-the-wisp of military victory.'

. . . . . When the President cuts back real military strength more sharply than in a quarter of a century, the liberals attack him for failing to 'reorder priorities.' The President, in his rhetoric about a 'strong defense,' plays the same game. The result, as John Kenneth Galbraith accurately noted recently, is that 'most people and maybe most congressmen think the Administration is indulging the Pentagon even more than the Democrats,' which is the precise opposite of the truth...."

Alsop continued what is probably the most damning column ever written about Richard Nixon by noting the role that the mass media have played in portraying to the public an image that is the reverse of the truth:

". . . . There is also a human element in this exercise in mutual obfuscation. To the liberals, especially the liberal commentators who dominate the media, Richard Nixon is Dr. Fell ('The reason why I cannot tell, but this I know and know full well, I do not like thee, Dr. Fell.'). This is not surprising. Not too many years ago, Richard M. Nixon was one of the most effective-and least lovable-of the conservative Republican professionals of the McCarthy era."

The columnist, himself a member of the socialist Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), speculated on what the "old Nixon" would have had to say about the "new Nixon":

". . . . on his past record, it is not at all hard to imagine R. M. Nixon leading the assault on the President for his 'bug-out,' 'fiscal irresponsibility,' 'galloping socialism,' and all the rest of it. So how can one expect Mr. Nixon to defend President Liberal's program with the passionate conviction that a President Robert Kennedy, say, would have brought to the defense of such a program?"

Alsop has revealed the real Nixon and is obviously pleased. Those who voted for Nixon shouldn't be quite so happy. If you liked the Richard Nixon who ran for the Presidency, then you cannot, if you are consistent, like the Richard Nixon who is President. Nixon and his fellow "moderates" have turned the Republican elephant into a donkey in elephant's clothing. On June 19, 1959, Vice President Nixon gloated: "In summary, the Republican administration produced the things that the Democrats promised." It looks as if it's happening again!

A year and a half earlier Nixon had been warbling a different tune:

"If we have nothing to offer other than a pale carbon copy of the New Deal, if our only purpose is to gain and retain power, the Republican Party no longer has any reason to exist, and it ought to go out of business."

The Nixon "Game Plan," as Harvard Professor John Kenneth Galbraith gleefully points out, is SOCIALISM. The Nixon "Game Plan" is infinitely more clever and dangerous than those of his predecessors because it masquerades as being the opposite of what it is.

Mr. Nixon is aware that most Americans fear "big government." An August 1968, Gallup Poll showed that 46 per cent of the American public believed that "big government" was the "biggest threat to the country." Gallup commented: "Although big government has been a favorite Republican target for many years, rank and file democrats are nearly as critical of growing Federal power as are Republicans." Recognizing this attitude, Mr. Nixon geared much of his campaign rhetoric to attacking Big Daddy government. However, the Nixon Administration has taken massive steps to further concentrate authority in the federal "power pinnacle." (See Chart 3, p. 34)

While centralizing power at a rate which would have made Hubert Humphrey blush, Mr. Nixon has continued to pay lip service to decentralization. During the first year of his Administration Mr. Nixon announced his "New Federalism" (the name taken from the title of a bo6k by Nelson Rockefeller). The first part of the "New Federalism" is the Family Assistance Program (FAP) which would, contrary to his campaign promises, provide a Guaranteed Annual Income. Based on suggestions from John Gardner of file C.F.R. and Daniel Moynihan, a member of the board of directors of the socialist ADA, the FAP would double the number on welfare and increase tremendously the power of the executive branch of the federal government. The Leftwing weekly, the New Republic, cheered the proposal as "creeping socialism."

The second major segment of the President's "New Federalism" is revenue sharing with the states, touted as a step in the decentralization of power from the federal government. Actually, the program does just the opposite. The money must first go from the states to Washington before it can be shared. As columnist James J. Kilpatrick remarked: ". . . power to control follows the Federal dollar as surely as that famous lamb accompanied little Mary." As soon as the states and local governments get hooked on the federal funds, the controls will be put on just as they were in education and agriculture. Every field the government attempts to take over it first subsidizes. You can't decentralize government by centralizing the tax collections.

Mr. Nixon's "power to the people" slogan really means "power to the President."

House Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills has called the revenue-sharing plan a "trap" that "could become a massive weapon against the independence of state and local government." The plan, said Mills, "goes in the direction of centralized government."

But, Mr. Nixon is very clever. In his 1971 State of the Union Message, the talk in which he used the Communist slogan "Power to the People," the President said:

"We in Washington will at last be able to provide government that is truly for the people. I realize that what I am asking is that not only the Executive branch in Washington, but that even this Congress will have to change by giving up some of its power."

That sounds reasonable doesn't it? The Executive branch will give up some power and the Congress will give up some power and the people will gain by having these powers returned to them. Right? Wrong! That is nothing but verbal sleight of hand. Notice the precision of Mr. Nixon's language. He speaks of the "Executive branch in Washington" giving up some of its power. Three days later it became obvious why Mr. Nixon added the seemingly redundant "in Washington" when it was announced that the country was being carved up into ten federal districts. These federal districts would soon, be used to administer the wage and price controls which centralize in the federal government almost total power over the economy.

To many political observers the most shocking development of the past year was the admission by President Richard Nixon to newsman Howard K. Smith that he is "now a Keynesian in economics." The jolted Smith commented later, "That's a little like a Christian Crusader saying: 'All things considered, I think Mohammed was right.'" Howard K. Smith was well aware that such a statement was tantamount to a declaration by Mr. Nixon that "I am now a Socialist." John Maynard Keynes, the English economist and Fabian Socialist, bragged that he was promoting the "euthanasia of capitalism."

It is generally believed in England among students of this conspiracy that John Maynard Keynes produced his General Theory of Money and Credit at the behest of certain Insiders of international finance who hired him to concoct a pseudo-scientific justification for government deficit spending-just as the mysterious League of Just Men had hired Karl Marx to write the Communist Manifesto. The farther a government goes into debt, the more interest is paid to the powerful Insiders who "create" money to buy government bonds by the simple expedient of bookkeeping entries. Otherwise, you can bet your last farthing that the Insiders of international banking would be violently opposed to inflationary deficits.

In his internationally syndicated column of February 3, 1971, James Reston (C.F.R.) exclaimed:

"The Nixon budget is so complex, so unlike the Nixon of the past, so un-Republican that it defies rational analysis. . . . The Nixon budget is more planned, has more welfare in it, and has a bigger predicted deficit than any other budget of this century."

During 1967, while on the primary trail, Richard Nixon made -exorbitant Democrat spending his Number Two campaign issue, just behind the failure of the Democrats to win the Vietnam War. Mr. Johnson's 1967 Budget was $158.6 billion, "Which at the time seemed astronomical. Mr. Nixon claimed that if that amount were not sliced by $10 billion the country faced financial disaster. At a time when the Vietnam War was a far bigger financial drain than it is now, Richard Nixon argued that we should be spending around $150 billion. President Nixon is now spending $230 billion, and bills already introduced in Congress and likely to pass could push the 1972 Fiscal Budget (July 1, 1971 to July 1, 1972) to $250 billion.

The point is that the man who campaigned as Mr. Frugal in 1968 is, in his third year of office,' out-spending by $80 to $100 billion what he said his predecessor should spend. And some experts are predicting that Mr. Nixon could spend as much as $275 billion next year.

This is the same Richard Nixon who in Dallas on October 11, 1968, declared that "America cannot afford four years of Hubert Humphrey in the White House" because he had advocated programs which would have caused "a spending spree that would have bankrupted this nation." Candidate Nixon flayed the Johnson Administration for failing "to cut deficit spending which is the cause of our present inflation." Budget deficits, he said, "lie at the heart of our troubles." For his own part, he renounced any "massive step-up" in federal spending. "This is a prescription for further inflation," said Nixon. "I believe it is also a prescription for economic disaster."

While it took LBJ five years to run up a $55 billion deficit, Senator Harry Byrd notes that the accumulated deficit for Mr. Nixon's first three years will reach at least $88 billion. Congressional experts are now predicting Richard Nixon could well pour on the red ink to a total of $124 billion in this term of office alone.

In order to halt inflation Mr. Nixon has now instituted wage and price controls. Most Americans, sick of seeing their paychecks shrink in purchasing power each month, have overwhelmingly approved. But this is because most people are not aware of the real causes of inflation. And you can be sure that the Establishment's landscape painters will not explain the truth to them. The truth is that there is a difference between inflation and the wage-price spiral. When the government runs a deficit, brand new money in the amount of the deficit is put into circulation. As the new money percolates through the economy it bids up wages and prices. This is easy to understand if you think of our economy as a giant auction. Just as at any other auction, if the bidders are suddenly supplied with more money, they will use that money to bid up prices. Inflation, in reality, is an increase in the supply of money. It causes the wage-price spiral which is generally mislabeled inflation. You could not have a wage price spiral if you did not have an increase in the money supply with which to pay it. This is not just economics, it is physics. You can't fill a quart bottle with a pint of milk. To say that the wage-price spiral causes inflation is llke saying wet streets cause rain. Mr. Nixon, unlike the vast majority of the American public, is aware of the real causes of "inflation." He explained it clearly on January 27, 1970:

"The inflation we have at the start of the Seventies was caused by heavy deficit spending in the Sixties. In the past decade, the Federal Government 'spent more than it took in-$57 billion more. These deficits caused prices to rise 25' percent in a decade."

Business blames "inflation" on the unions, and unions blame "inflation" on business, but only the government can cause "inflation."

Mr. Nixon has fastened wage and price controls on the economy supposedly to solve a problem which Mr. Nixon (and LBJ) created by running huge deficits. If he sincerely wanted to stop "inflation" he would have put wage and price controls on the government rather than on the rest of us and would have stopped deficit spending. People are cheering Nixon because he "did

is akin to cheering for a motorist who shoots a pedestrian he has just run over.

Wage and price controls are at the very heart of Socialism. You can't have a totalitarian government with- out wage and price controls and you can't have a free country with them. Why? You cannot impose slavery upon people who have economic freedom. As long as people have economic freedom, they will be free. Wage and price controls are people controls. In his Phase II speech, Mr. Nixon made it clear that the 90-day wage and price controls are with us in one disguise or another from now on. They are a major step towards establishing an all-powerful Executive branch of the federal government.

After the Insiders have established the United Socialist States of America (in fact if not in name), the next step is the Great Merger of all nations of the world into a dictatorial world government. This was the main reason behind the push to bring Red China into the United Nations. If you want to control the natural resources, transportation, commerce and banking for the whole world, you must put everybody under the same roof.

The Insiders' code word for the world superstate is "new world order," a phrase often used by Richard Nixon. The Council on Foreign Relations states in its Study No.7: "The U. S. must strive to: A. BUILD A NEW INTERNATIONAL ORDER." (Capitals in the original) Establishment spokesman James Reston (CFR) declared in his internationally syndicated column for the New York Times of May 21, 1971: "Nixon would obviously like to preside over the creation of a new world order, and believes he has an opportunity to do so in the last 20 months of his first term."

A world government has always been the object of the Communists. In 1915, in No.40 of the Russian organ, The Socialist Democrat, Lenin proposed a "United States of the World." The program of the Communist International of 1936 says that world dictatorship "can be established only by victory of socialism in different coun tries or groups of countries, after which the Proletariat Republics would unite on federal lines with those already in existence, and this system would expand . . . at length forming the world union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

One of the most important groups promoting the "world union" is the United World Federalists, whose membership is heavily interlocked with that of the Council on Foreign Relations. The UWF advocate turning the UN into a full-fledged world government which would include the Communist nations.

Richard Nixon is, of course, far too clever to actually join the UWF, but he has supported their legislative program since his early days in Congress. In the October 1948 issue of the UWF

"Richard Nixon: Introduced world government resolution (HCR 68) 1947, and ABC (World Government) resolution 1948."

World government has a strong emotional appeal for Americans, based on their universal desire for world peace. The insiders have the Communists rattling their sabers with one hand and dangling the olive branch with the other. Naturally everyone gravitates towards the olive branch, not realizing that the olive branch is controlled by another arm of the entity that is rattling the sabers.

In September of 1968, candidates for public office received a letter from the United World Federalists that stated:

"Our organization has been endorsed and commended by all U. S. presidents in the last 20 years and by the current nominees for the presidency. As examples we quote as follows:

Richard Nixon: Your organization can perform an important service by continuing to emphasize that world peace can only come thru world law. Our goal is world peace. Our instrument for achieving peace will be law and justice. If we concentrate our ener gies toward these ends, I am hopeful that real progress can be made.'

Hubert Humphrey: 'Every one of us is committed to brotherhood among all nations, but no one pursues these goals with more dignity and dedication than the United World Federalists.'"

There really was not a dime's worth of difference. Voters were given the choice between CFR world government advocate Nixon and CFR world government advocate Humphrey. Only the rhetoric was changed to fool the public.

Aworld government requires a world supreme court, and Mr. Nixon is on record in favor of a world supreme court. And a world government must have a world police force to enforce the laws of the World Super state and keep the slaves from rebelling. The Los Angeles Examiner of October 28, 1950, reported that Congressman Richard Nixon had introduced a "resolution calling for the establishment of a United Nations police force...

Not surprisingly, the Insiders have their pet planners preparing to administrate their world dictatorship. Under an immense geodetic dome at Southern Illinois University is a completely detailed map of the world which occupies the space of three football fields. Operating under grants from the Ford, Carnegie and Rockefeller foundations (all extensively interlocked with the C.F.R.) a battery of scientists including everything from geographers, psychologists and behavioral scientists to natural scientists, biologists, biochemists and agronomists are making plans to control people. These elite planners conduct exercises in what they call "the world game." For example: There are too many people in Country A and not enough people in Country B. How do you move people from Country A to Country B? We need so many males, so many females, so many of this occupation and so many of that occupation, so many of this age and so many of that age. How do you get these people from Country A and settle them in Country B in the shortest possible time? Another example:

We have an uprising in Country C (or as it would now be called, District C) How long does it take to send in "peace" forces to stop the insurgency?

The World Game people run exercises on global control. If you plan on running the world, you cannot go about it haphazardly. That is why the Insiders of the Ford, Carnegie and Rockefeller foundations are making these plans. The real name of the game is 1984. We will have systematic population reduction, forced sterilization or anything else which the planners deem necessary to establish absolute control in their humanitarian utopia. But to enforce these plans, you must have an all-powerful world government. You can't do this if individual nations have sovereignty. And before you can facilitate the Great Merger, you must first centralize control within each nation, destroy the local police and remove the guns from the hands of the citizenry. You must replace our once free Constitutional Republic with an all-powerful central government; And that is exactly what is happening today with the Nixon Administration. Every action of any consequence, despite the smokescreen, has centralized more power in what is rapidly beco~ning an all-powerful central government.

What we are witnessing is the Communist tactic of pressure from above and pressure from below, described by Communist historian Jan Kozak as the device used by the Reds to capture control of Czecho-Slovakia. The pressure from above comes from secret, ostensibly respectable Comrades in the government and Establishment, forming, with the radicalized mobs in the streets below, a giant pincer around middle-class society. The street rioters are pawns, shills, puppets, and dupes for an oligarchy of elitist conspirators working above to turn America's limited government into an unlimited government with total control over our lives and property.

The American middle class is being squeezed to death by a vise. (See Chart 9) In the streets we have avowed revolutionary groups such as the Students for a Democratic Society (which was started by the League for Industrial Democracy, a group with strong C.F.R. ties), the Black Panthers, the Yippies, the Young Socialist Alliance. These groups chant that if we don't "change" America, we will lose it. "Change" is a word we hear over and over. By "change" these groups mean Socialism. Virtually all members of these groups sincerely believe that they are fighting the Establishment. In reality they are an indispensible ally of the Establishment in fastening Socialism on all of us. The naive radicals think that under Socialism the "people" will run everything. Actually, it will be a clique of Insiders in total control, consolidating and con trolling all wealth. That is why these schoolboy Lenins and teenage Trotskys are allowed to roam free and are practically never arrested or prosecuted. They are protected. H the Establishment wanted the revolutionaries stopped, how long do you think they would be tolerated?

Instead, we find that most of these radicals are the recipients of largesse from major foundations or are receiving money from the government through the War on Poverty. The Rothschild-Rockefeller-C.F.R. Insiders at the top "surrender to the demands" for Socialism from the mobs below. The radicals are doing the work of those whom they hate the most.

Remember Bakunin's charge that Marx' followers had one foot in the bank and the other in the Socialist movement.

Further indications of Establishment financing of the Communist S.D.S. are contained in James Kunen's The Strawberry Statement: Notes 0/ A College Revolutionary .Describing events at the 1968 S.D.S. national convention, Kunen says:

"Also at the convention, men from Business International Roundtables-the meetings sponsored by Business International for their client groups and heads of government-tried to buy up a few radicals. These men are the world's leading industrialists and they convene to decide how our lives are going to go. These are the boys who wrote the Alliance for Progress. They're the left wing of the ruling class.

They agreed with us on black control and student control.

They want McCarthy in. They see fascism as the threat, see it coming from Wallace. The only way McCarthy could win is if the crazies and young radicals act up and make Gene look more reasonable. They offered to finance our demonstrations in Chicago. We were also offered Esso (Rockefeller) money. They want us to make a lot of radical commotion they can look more in the center as they move to the left."

THAT IS THE STRATEGY. THE LANDSCAPE 1 PAINTERS FOCUS YOUR ATTENTION ON THE KIDS IN THF STREET WHILE THE REAL DANGER IS FROM ABOVE.

As Frank Capell recently observed in The Review Of The News:

"Of course, we know that these radical students are not going to take over the government. What they are going to do is provide the excuse for the government to take over the people, by passing more and more repressive laws to 'keep things under control.'"

The radicals make a commotion in the streets while the Limousine Liberals at the top in New York and Washington are Socializing us. WE ARE GOING TO HAVE A DICTATORSHIP OF THE ELITE DISGUISED AS A DICTATORSHIP OF THE PROLETARIAT.

Now the Insiders of the Establishment are moving into a more sophisticated method of applying pressure from below. John Gardner, a "Republican" and member of the C.F.R., has established a grass roots proletarian organization called Common Cause. This may become the biggest and most important organization in American history. Common Cause's goal is to organize welfare recipients, those who have not voted before, and Liberals to lobby for Socialism. That lobbying will not only be expressed in pressuring Congress to pass Socialist legislafion but will also be expressed as ballot power in elections. Common Cause is supposedly the epitome of anti-Establishmentarianism, but who is paying the bills? The elite Insider radicals from above. The number one bankroller of this group to overthrow the super-rich and re-distribute their wealth among the poor is John D. Rockefeller III. Other key financiers are Andrew Heiskell (CFR), chairman of the board of Time, Inc., Thomas Watson (CFR), chairman of the board of IBM, John Whitney (CFR) of the Standard Oil fortune, Sol Linowitz (CFR), Chairman of the board of Xerox, and Gardner Cowles (CFR) of Cowles publications. In any organization, the man who pays the bills is the boss. The others are his employees.

What better proof could we have that Socialism is not a movement of downtrodden masses but of power hungry elitists? The poor are merely pawns in the game. Needless to say, the landscape painters hide Common Cause's financial angels so that only those who understand that the Establishment's game plan is SOCIALISM under- stand what is going on before their very eyes.

CHAPTER EIGHT

YOU ARE THE ANSWER

Many people cannot refrain from rationalizing. After reading this book, some will bemoan the fact that the situation is hopeless. These will be many of the same people who, before reading this book, really did not believe the problems facing us were serious. Some people wake up and give up in the same week. This is, of course, just exactly what the Insiders want you to do.

The conspiracy can be defeated. The insiders are not omnipotent. It is true that they control important parts of the federal government, high finance and the mass media. But they do not control everything, or the vise would already have been closed. We might say the conspiracy controls everything but you. You are their Achilles heel if you are willing to fight. There is an old cliche in sports that quitters never win and winners never quit. We need a million Americans who are not quitters, but, moreover, who have the will to win!

trying to fight it on its home grounds. But the Insiders are vulnerable to an end run. You, and thousands of others like you can make an end run if you want to. It is our intention in this closing chapter to show why it can be done and how you can do it.

The timing for an end run has never been better. What Barry Goldwater said in 1964, people were willing to believe in 1968. Most people who voted for Nixon did so because he promised to balance the budget, not establish wage and price controls; slash government spending, not multiply it; cut welfare, not push for a guaranteed annual income; stand firm against the Communists, not lead the Red Chinese into the U. N.; build America's defenses, not continue to unilaterally disarm us; and stop aid and trade with our avowed Communist enemies, not double it. These were the issues which supposedly differentiated Nixon from Humphrey. Now we see that Nixon has repudiated his own promises and carried out those of his opponent. By 1972, millions of Americans will have concluded that there is little difference between the leadership of the two major parties. And more and more people are beginning to realize that there is a tiny clique of conspirators at the top which controls both the Democrat and Republican Parties.

The one thing these conspirators cannot survive is exposure. The Insiders are successful only because so few of their victims know what is being planned and how Insiders are carrying out those plans. Conspiracies can operate only in the dark. They cannot stand the truthful light of day. Once any sizeable minority of the American people becomes aware of the conspiracy and what it is up to, the many decades of patient planning and work by the Insiders in this country can be destroyed in an amazingly short period of time.

This job is largely a matter of getting others to realize that they have been conned and are continuing to be conned. You must become the local arm of the world's largest floating university. But before you can go to + work, pointing out these conspiratorial facts to others, you must know the facts yourself. This book is designed to give you these facts, and can be your greatest tool. It is available on tape casettes* so that you can virtually memorize its contents by listening to it repeatedly while you are washing the dishes or driving to and from work. The concept of an army of individuals which is dedicated to exposing "the conspiracy" frightens the Insiders because it works outside the channels which they control.

Richard Nixon has said of the Republican Party:

"We've got to have a tent everyone can get into." The Democrats have obviously believed that for a long time.

(*From Gary Allen Communications, P.O. Box 802, Arcadia, California 91106.)

But a Party must be based on principles or it has no justification for existence. Bringing Socialists into the Republican Party theoretically may broaden the base, but, in reality, serves only to disfranchise those who believe in a Constitutional Republic and the free enterprise system.

In 1972, the Republicans will try to make you forget that Richard Nixon was elected on George Wallace's platform but has been carrying out Hubert Humphrey's. The pitch will be "party unity." "If not Nixon then who?" will be the typical response to complaints about Nixon's actions. But unity with evil is evil. During the campaign of 1972, Nixon will again talk conservatively while the C.F.R.'s Democrat candidate will sound frighteningly radical in order to stampede you into accepting Nixon as the lesser of two evils. The Establishment may even run its John Lindsay or Eugene McCarthy as a far Left third or fourth party candidate in order to split the Democratic Party and re-elect Richard Nixon with a comparatively small number of votes.

It is only logical that the Insiders will try to apply the coup de grace against America through a Republican President simply because most people cannot believe that a Republican could be "soft on Communism" or would jeopardize our liberty or sovereignty. The watchdogs tend to go to sleep with a Republican in office.

Democrats and Republicans must break the Insider control of their respective parties. The C.F.R.-types and their flunkies and social climbing opportunist supporters must be invited to leave or else the Patriots must leave.

It is up to you to put the politicians on the spot and make the C.F.R.-Insiders a campaign issue. This can be accomplished easily by creating the base of thinking that will oppose their positions. The Socialists must be forced to gather into one party. The conspiracy doesn't want the resultant clear distinction between party ideologies. The Insiders want the issues between the parties to be cloudy and gray, centering on personalities, not principles. Neither party can come out strongly against Socialism as long as it is pushing Socialist programs. But that is the way the Insiders want it.

The issue, very simply, is the enslavement of you and your children. Just because many of these Insiders are theoretically Americans, don't think they will spare this country the terror they have brought td thirty others through their hired Communist thugs. To the Insiders, the world is their country and their only loyalty is to themselves and their fellow conspirators. Being an American means no more to them than being an honorary citizen of Bali would mean to you. It has not bothered their consciences one iota that millions of your fellow human beings have been murdered, including 50,000 of your own sons in Vietnam. In order to solidify their power in the United States they will need to do here the same thing they have done in other countries. They will establish and maintain their dicta t6rship through stark terror. The terror does not end with the complete take-over of the Republic. Rather, then terror just begins . . . .for total, all encompassing terror is an absolute necessity to keep a dictatorship in power. And terror does not mean merely publishing the enemies of the New Order. Terror requires the murdering and imprisoning of people at random even many of those who helped them come to power.

Those who are complacent and hope to escape the terror because they were not involved in politics or resisted the New Order coming to power must be made, by you, to understand that this all-encompassing need for terror includes them especially. . . . that they cannot escape by doing nothing.

What can we expect from the conspiracy during the next few years? Here are fourteen signposts on the road to totalitarianism compiled some years ago by historian Dr. Warren Carroll and a refugee from Yugoslavian Communism, Mike Djordjevich. The list is not in any particular order nor is the order of any particular significance as given here. But the imposition of any one of these new restrictions on liberty (none of which was in effect when the list was compiled) would be a clear warning that the totalitarian state is very near; and once a significant number of them-perhaps five has been imposed, we can rationally conclude that the remainder would not be far behind and that the fight for freedom and the preservation of the Republic has been lost in this country.

FOURTEEN SIGNPOSTS TO SLAVERY

1. Restrictions on taking money out of the country and on the establishment or retention of a foreign bank account by an American citizen.

2. Abolition of private ownership of hand guns.

3. Detention of individuals without judicial process.

4. Requirements that private financial transactions be keyed to social security numbers or other government identification so that government records of these transactions can be kept and fed into a computer.

5. Use of compulsory education laws to forbid attendance at presently existing private schools.

6. Compulsory non-military service.

7. Compulsory psychological treatment for non- government workers or public school children.

8. An official declaration that anti-Communist organizations are subversive and subsequent legal action taken to suppress them.

9. Laws limiting the number of people allowed to meet in a private home.

10. Any significant change in passport regulations to make passports more difficult to obtain or use.

11. Wage and price controls, especially in a non-wartime situation

12. Any kind of compulsory registration with the government of where individuals work.

13. Any attempt to restrict freedom of movement within the United States.

14. Any attempt to make a new major law by executive decree (that is, actually put into effect, not merely authorized as by existing executive orders.)

As you are n6 doubt aware President Nixon already has invoked numbers 1, 14 and 14.

Steps 2, 3, 6, 7, 9, 12 and 13 already have been proposed and some are actively campaigned for by organized groups. As of January 1, 1972 banks must report to the government any deposit or withdrawal over $5,000.The next step will be to restrict the taking of money out of the country. Big Brother is watching your bank account!

Increased government control over many kinds of private schools is proposed annually in many state legislatures. Compulsory non-military service-a universal draft of all young men and women, with only a minority going into the armed services has been discussed by the Nixon Administration as an alternative to the draft. Sensitivity training is already required for an increasing number of government workers, teachers and school children. As long ago as 1961, Victor Reuther proposed that anti-Communist groups and organizations be investigated and placed on the Attorney General's subversive list. The propaganda war in progress to force registration or confiscation of firearms is the number one priority of all the collectivists-an armed citizenry is the major roadblock to a totalitarian takeover of the United States.

You are in this fight whether you want to be or not. Unless you are an Insider, you are a victim. Whether you are a multimillionaire or a pauper you have an enormous amount at stake.

The Insiders are counting on your being too preoccupied with your own problems or too lazy to fight back while the chains of slavery are being fastened on you. They are counting on their mass media to con you, frighten you, or ridicule you out of saving your freedom, and, most of all, they are counting on your thinking you can escape by not taking part in opposing their takeover.

They are also counting on those of you who recognize the conspiracy becoming so involved with watching all moves that you become totally mesmerized by their machinations, and thus become incapable of acting.

The choice is yours. You can say, "It can't happen here!" But nearly every one of the one billion people en- slaved by the Communists since 1945 doubtless said the same thing. Or you can end run this whole conspiratorial apparatus.

The choice you must make was enunciated by Winston Churchill when he told the people of England:

"If you will not fight for right when you can easily win without bloodshed; if you will not fight when your victory will be sure and not too costly; you may come to the moment when you will have to fight with all the odds against you and only a precarious chance of survival."

Because we have ignored warning after warning, we are now at that place in history. Unless you do your part now, you will face a further choice, also described by Mr. Churchill. He said:

"There may be even a worse fate. You may have to fight when there is no hope of victory, because it is better to perish than live as slaves."

WHAT WILL YOU DO?

If you are unwilling to get involved because you feel it may be bad for business or may jeopardize your social respectability, just look into the eyes of your children and tell them that making a buck and climbing the social ladder are more important to you than they are.

This is the end of our case.

If you have decided not to do anything about it, then you can close this book, read no further, and turn out the light. That is just what you will be doing for the United States of America, and may God help us. And may He have mercy on your soul.

If you decide that you will do something- that you at least are not yet controlled-read on-pick up the ball we are tossing you and with thousands of others, let's "end run,, the conspiracy.

Here's how: The four keys in this program are:

1. You. What you do now is, of course, the key to this whole operation. If you delay, your motivation will wane, your concern will recede, but the danger will increase. Remember, the Insiders don't care how much you know about their conspiracy so long as you don't do anything about it. So keep reading and then act.

2. This book: None Dare Call It Conspiracy. In writing this book we have tried to give a concise overall picture of the nature of the conspiracy. We wrote it not only to explain the conspiracy, but to give you a complete program of action now, so that the many "You's" around the country would not necessarily have to be articulate sales men to make your "end run." You can simply pass this book out and let it do the job for you. The conspiracy may be able to stifle publicity on this book and keep it off the magazine rack at your local supermarket, but they can't stop you from distributing it to friends, neighbors, relatives and business associates and especially in your precinct. With a potential 30 million distribution of this book to those mentioned above (and in a manner yet to be described), you will create a base of opinion that will throw the Insiders out.

It is quite possible that in distributing this book, questions will come up concerning certain statements and conclusions with which you are not able to deal. There are a number of organizations that have well documented material on all subjects raised in this book. But after considerable personal research the author has concluded that the organization which is the leader in this field, has had the most experience, and is doing the best job of exposing the conspiracy is The John Birch Society,*

Doesn't it appear strange that this organization which works toward decentralization of political power and the exposure of the Insiders should be so vilified by the mass media, while the Council On Foreign Relations, which promotes centralization of power in the hands of a few within a world government, is practically never mentioned? So contact The John Birch Society for further back-up information (Belmont, Massachusetts 02178-San Marino, California 91 108-or check your telephone directory for the nearest American Opinion Bookstore)

3. Your Precinct. The precinct is the lowest denominator in our political structure. Any politician will agree that whoever reaches and influences the most people in the precinct wins the election. When you break down the job to be done to this least common denominator, it doesn't seem to be nearly as big a job as when you look a~ those millions of votes that need to be switched. Many elections are won or lost by less than five votes per precinct. Remember that every vote-switch you can accomplish (by planting the seed with your book) really amounts to two votes, as it takes one from the other side.

Start your "end run" in your own precinct now. Lists of registered voters are available from your County Registrar. With everyone working within his own precinct, the hit and miss efforts of prior years will be avoided and organization will be added to this effort. A blanket coverage of your precinct will create talk between neighbors on this subject and thereby greatly increase the number of persons reading this book.

4. Your Congressman. You have now completed the three simple basic moves in your "end run.,'

Barring a

(*The Berkeley Gazette stated in an editorial of August 26, 1971, commenting on The John Birch Society's 1958 ten point predictions for the United States, "Whatever Else, Call Him [Robert Welch] 'Correct?" Write Box 8352, San Marino, Ca. 91108, for copy of editorial.)

wholesale awakening by the American people, it is probably wishful thinking to believe that the C.F.R.'s hold on the Presidency can be broken in 1972. But it is possible to block the Insiders' men in the House of Representatives. Congress can still lift a powerful voice against the conspiracy if only it would. It can also throw a search- light on to the C.F.R.'s stranglehold on the executive branch of the government. No burglar tries to rob a house when a spotlight is on him. With your effort Congress can be that spotlight.

It is at the Congressional level that the conspiracy can be delayed at least until there is sufficient strength to rout it. But your local Congressional candidate~ must be forced to take a public stand on the Council on Foreign Relations, its goals, and its power in the federal government. And once your candidate is elected you must make sure that he does not submit to the incredible pressure which will be put upon him in Washington to compromise his principles. The Congressman for whom you are laying the base for election must be as steadfast in Washington as he is at home in personal conversation with you. Keep in mind that a Congressman must return to his constituents every two years for re-approval.

How would you like to be a Congressman who had voted for any one of the 14 Signposts to Slavery, asking to be elected by constituents who had read None Dare Call It Conspiracy? It is therefore easier to keep a Congressman on the straight and narrow than a Senator or the President. The latter run less 'frequently than Congressmen and represent tremendously larger geographical areas. Although it is not easy, it is still possible for a good Congressman to finance his campaign from within his district and not be dependent on the Insiders for campaign contributions.

If there are no Congressional candidates worth supporting in your area at this time, support one or more in other areas. Never contribute money to the Republican or Democratic National Committee. That money, except in token amounts, will never reach anti-C.F.R.-Establishment candidates, most of whom suffer from a severe shortage of funds, at least until they are well established. Only con- tribute your campaign dollars to those who are committed to fighting the conspiracy. A candidate running on good conservative principles is not enough. We've had many such candidates, and although most of them are very good men, they never come to grips with the real problems- exposing those behind the World Socialist Movement.

So, organize your "end run," pass out your books and then keep your eagle eye on your Congressman and his voting record.

This "end run" concept we are suggesting is not just a game we are playing even though we use a football term.

To summarize: You do not necessarily have to be an articulate salesman to make this "end run." You do not necessarily have to know all the in's and out's of the total conspiracy-the book is intended to do this for you.

All you have to do is find the wherewithal to purchase the books and one way or another see that you blanket your precinct with them. Then force your Congressman to stand up to the C.F.R. Establishment.

It is simple. It is straightforward. It is a workable plan.

With 30 million "end runs" being made during I 972, you can, and will, rout the conspiracy, turn the tide of history and prevent the enslavement of yourself and your family.

Remember, seeds planted in 1972 will pay off not only this year, but in 1974 and 1976. If we do not build a large counter-revolutionary base in 1972 the ball game will be lost by 1976.

OPERATION COUNTERATTACK

You can help! For every dollar you contribute Concord Press promises to mail out four books. Each one will go to a vital segment of America. The press, politicians, businessmen, doctors, lawyers, blue collar, white collar all need to know. Our goal is thirty million copies sent to thirty million households. We can offer this low price because we use professional mass mailing services In all probability four years from now you will not be able to distribute a book like this. It is only in a Presidential election year that masses of people are motivated to read such a book. It is now or never.

TAPE 10

ASSISTS

22 FEBRUARY 1990

Get a reality on what tech will do and what you can do with it.

An assist: For a sick or injured Pc. A Contact assist; do instead of touch assist. Contact the injured part with what caused the injury. The exact thorn will turn on the exact somatic - The less you say, the better off you are.

You can SEE a somatic blow through -a faint impression and Pc flinches. Can't force a person to do a contact assist. Do it 100 feet from point of injury and gradually approach it.

Touch assist: The next gradient of assist. Command: Feel my finger. Don't say command more than you need to. Wait for person to acknowledge.

The head is most difficult to do. The head is pain absorption cushion. A wave of shock goes to the head through nerve channels at the rate of ten ft/second. Through spine to extremities of body.

Head injury = problems with spine; therefore, do touch assist head to extremities.

Touch Assist - not just around head - approach and go away, approach and go away, approach closer and go away farther, closer and go away farther, touch it, go away farther. Follow the nerve channels of the body, spine, limbs and there are certain relaypoints like the elbows and the wrists. Head for these points where the pain gets locked up.

Get communication wave flowing again through the body because the shock of injury stopped it; it stopped right there.

Right side of body and the left side, do exactly the same.

Brain comm system cross locks; principles near/far and on and follow nerve channels.

Touch Assist after First Aid, then get medical assistance. Be quiet.

Day or two later, give him a session, run out the engram; it's part of the assist.

Sick or severely injured Pc - an acute NOW condition - devouring his attention. You don't have to fly the ruds before an assist. The injury is the out rudiment. He's sitting in the major action. An exception to "fly the needle" (get the needle to float) before the major action.

He's dying/collapsing/ceasing to breathe, sudden agony, can't identify what it is. Malignant Body Thetan can hit the guy; do the usual action of III - run Inc 1 & 2.

Individual very ill. Give medicine if doesn't get well. If doesn't recover, it is held up mentally.

* Function is senior to structure.

* Thought is senior to function and structure.

Individual is determined to be sick. If the bank or an Entity Being is trying to make him sick you can feed him all themedicine in the world and he won't GET WELL. After an assist, the antibiotics start to work, fever goes.

In medicine, they divide patient reaction into three separate categories:

1. what causes it

2. what makes it acute

3. what prolongs it

He gets an illness and is sick, doesn't respond = prolongation. The Clearing Practitioner does standard tech, runs engram, can't reach very deep, ability to as-is poor; it has to be gently done and have very GOOD control. You date it, don't even run it out and the person starts to get well, called an assist, but done by standard tech. Check ARCX and handle it. Break in reality. A bullet went through his head. If you expect the needle to fly, you're a fool - it won't fly and if you try to force it to fly you're distracting him. All ruds will be germane to the incident he's in.

Babies assessment: hungry, wet, pin in him, chaffed. It IS something. It's never ever nothing. You have to Look.

If a case is having trouble, it is something, it is never nothing.

For a very ill Pc, assess all things it could be. Bad food, Entity Being, engram, something will cause a Blow Down? If it's a EB, follow Beginning Entity Clearing procedure. The second you start contacting it, it starts to cool off. Find out what's wrong with EB Try to run Inc. 1 on EB and find he's overrun on Inc 1. Don't always assume it's a cluster but it could be a cluster and there is a mutual engram. So if it's a an EB, identify and date the incident it's hung up in - what's it about.

For a mutual engram: 1. Date it. 2. Get a description of content.

You can ask: "Is it one?" "Is it several?" Take the biggest read. If it's a cluster, date it and run the cluster through the incident.

For cross-copying you can ask, "whose just copied the Being who just left?"

EB - is it one or several - it will answer as just one but several will read bigger, date it using the standard dating drill. That's the Incident you run. 15 or 20 leave. If Pc was relieved and looked well, you say, that's good. Might be some still around. so run Inc 1 on them.

Person has a terrible throat; still sore throat means still some left, and a copy. Beings copy what has been copied and make copies of the copies. Thing came off your back? "Who's copying?" It blows.

What if the person starts spinning and has a fever again? Do the same procedure. Try to get in ruds, make assessment of what it might be, date it.

These are assists, not a proper session because you didn't fly ruds for a major action. The touch assist, contact assist, assessment. But you must carry on assist with discipline of the Clearing Practitioner. Don't force; be persuasive, be gentle, do what you can within limits of session.

On Inc 1, a person can have more than one Inc 1, or can have administered one Inc 1, a perpetrated Inc 1. A simple implant, but quite effective; it interrupted them from creating what they would have created.

Took away what mock-ups they DID have and stopped their cycle and put something there unwanted so when they tried to create, they created it. It fixed their attention by protest.

For this planet and Confederation of 76 planets had clothes, cars, trains that looked like 1950 - 1960. This civilization has simply copied R6 100% because they were told to - houses, streets same.

Upset before R6: Loyal officers were an elective body set up to protect the population. The Supreme Ruler, elected, about to unelect him. He took his last moments to really upset it and got key administrators and heads of planets and got rid of cowboys in white hats and troops picked them up. He told them to come in for Income Tax investigation. Troops slaughtered them.

Troops ordered out and renegades came in. They shot each other up and implanted each other. The renegades it someone, hit with alcohol and glycol, froze the Being. He tried to exteriorize, there he was frozen, collection, boxed in exact DC8's, refrigeration units.

The length of time from planet Coltus to Earth, 1 of planets of N. Star Polaris, 9 weeks. Ferried in boxes to Earth. Shot administrators, set off hydrogen bombs on top of volcano, blew up electronic ribbon, vacuum zones, projection machines. This is given on the Clearing Course implants and OT II; the remainder of 36 days, 3-D motion picture, 5 pics/5 words. Then boxed up again and boxes mixed. Roman Catholicism is all R6. 4-5 assignments of who DID it to get people confused about real cause. 178 billion people per planet, Teegeeack, the bomb place, the evil place. To get rid of it all, run Inc 1 & Inc 2, volcanic explosion follows actual explosion, some chained to roofs and whirl-winds.

Everyone killed on planet, 3 days after implanters started operating. It was to make a person cease and desist on creation, 2nd dynamic, suppressions, sex with children, taught in R6. Can make a full figure appear, like 3-D, was a movie. The net result was a 75 million year vacuum. Saucers around, why don't they land here? We have an evil repute here, this planet and this sector of the universe.

This catastrophe overcame this confederation. 20 million years ago someone started a body line on the planet. R6 tailor-made it to be a cave man civilization and moved up the line. A dramatization of R6 is what man calls progress.

An Implant is that anyone who tries to save the world must be killed. Whole planet responds to R6 symbols. They Booby-trapped it. Roman Catholic Church is fragments of R6. Truth of it is, loyal officers were not all killed. Civilization was battered, but still had weapons, transport and semblance of org and loyal officers left an fought and finished off Galactic Confederation.

Xemu, within 1 year was under arrest and within 6 years the lot wiped out. What little was left went by the boards. A base here-unrecognizable. Surgeon, R6, cutting bodies to pieces. Pieces of R6 became Christianity,

When they get cold it restims frozen alcohol & glycol. Japan, explosion. Before R6, people lived on and on.

Incident II was 74 million plus years ago (almost 75 million).

Incident I is at 4 Quadrillion years ago.

When Clearing a Pc, you're Clearing versus this background (R6). Something blows up and 5-6 Thetans get smashed and think asone. Someone kills someone in a duel; owner of 2nd body is so revengeful, he jumps on 1st guy = dual Being who hates himself.

A Being goes mad when he begins to stop things. The button "to stop" important in running Inc 1 & 2.

When he needs an assist, he's in 2 or has a cluster, but still go through whole process. Person says he's done on III, give him Truth Reveal Rundown. Don't send him back on Beginning Entity Clearing. The Truth Reveal Rundown is exact; run valence shifter early before you do rehabs. Valence shifters always followed by confront process.

THE MILAZZO

Run an injury chain by the book (engram chain). "What injury or accident would cause a cluster?" or "What impact or incident would make a cluster?" This is the first question of the Milazzo. You find and run this sever injury chain. It doesn't have to read on the meter. You've picked up incidents with clusters and a whole bunch of EB's clear out. Now, find an Inc 1 and you run it. And continue that and F/N each one. Overrun on Beginning Entity Clearing is an EB that has been run one too many times on Inc 1. So rehab the one EB; you can't overrun Beginning Entity Clearing.

Pick up and run an injury chain. Find any injury chain and run it earlier similar. Date/Duration, etc to EP. Now find Inc I and run it. Repeat finding and running more Inc Is.

7 resistive cases are:

Drugs

Connected to Suppressive

Seriously physically ill

Audited over out ruds

Former practices

Pretending/out of valence

Doesn't want auditing -

You solve a case by doing right what has been done wrong. When confronted with the unusual do the usual.

When Standard Tech hasn't been done, find out what hasn't been done and do it.

A wide-open invitation, feel person is finished (person run on engram). He has Entity Beings, one of two things is: he hasn't run Inc 1 or 2 or overran Inc 1; something was wrong or he has body thetans; find an engram chain and run it, and run as many Inc 1's as you can find to run.

There are two basic actions in Clearing: 1. Those actions that are corrective of the case (repair). 2. Those actions that advance the case (Life Expansion Chart levels).

The first thing to do in session if fly the ruds to F/N. If the Pc doesn't F/N on ARCX then he has a PTP or M/W/H. If he F/Ns on ARCX, he probably does not have a PTP or M/W/H.

REVOLT IN THE STARS

by

L. Ron Hubbard.

PROLOGUE

The winch on the truck wound inward, growling and snapping and groaning. Seaweed whipped and wound and unwound on the taut, protesting cables as they dragged an object toward the beach from under the sea.

The intensity of the watching group had no eye for the beauty of the scene; The soft purling of the small waves, the soothing whisper of the tropical wind, the distant clatter of a palm, the rich gold of sand and crystal aquamarine of water might as well have been a tourist poster in a waste basket.

The rigid cordon of Marines, facing outward, automatic weapons in hand, had fierce eyes against any threatened intrusion into the site. VIPs that must not be approached, an object that was top secret and a sergeant with a hangover increased their trigger-happy vigilance.

Several supercilious scientists gazed benignly at the water, tolerantly and learnedly waiting for the object to appear, hoping no one had penetrated the fact that they hadn't a clue.

Jedgar, the jut-jawed czar of all US police and security forces scowled with ferocity at the water.

God damn president, he ought to have his ass kicked, getting him out here for what. God damn hobby-happy bastard. So it's an historical find. So it may be from outer space. Sand fleas when he had an appointment at the race track with Bennie the Dip. $30,000 payoff via the window. Damned junkie, he'd probably blow it or forget it. What the hell was he doing out here playing nursemaid to his nibs' crap hobby? Nursemaid, that's what he was. God damn president. Bennie better pay up. Jedgar glared at the water as though about to arrest it on suspicion.

On the other side of the groaning cables sat a disconsolate young man in a scuba suit. He twisted his helmet and mask in his hands around and around. While he might have the nerve to face the monsters of the deep, what were those compared to US officials. Damned government. He ought to have kept his mouth shut. No breaks. He always lucked out. Here he'd made the find, personally and privately and even paid for his own bike gas and air. Well, an orphan is an orphan. Still, there was law about ownership. You couldn't give up just like that. One more try. If it didn't work.....

The young man braced himself, got to his feet and wiped some of the sand off his pants. How would John Wayne handle this on the late-late show? One more try.

The young man ducked under the growling cables and walked up to Jedgar who gave him not a glance.

Now or never. "It's mine! I insist it's mine! I found it. If it weren't for me you wouldn't even know of its existence!"

Jedgar did not even take his eyes off the water. He put out an arm and brushed the young man sideways..The leading scientist of the group found his own view obstructed. He never wore glasses despite needing them as they spoiled his image of the tawnymaned man of science. He peered at the young man. In his benign voice, reserved for assistants he intended to fire, he said, "You don't understand. Such finds as this belong to the world of science, to the museums, to the universities."

Having registered now that there was a dispute, Jedgar tore hls eyes from the water and stabbea them at the young man. Reaching out with a sudden and practiced cop hand, he seized the front of the young man's scuba suit.

"You give me any more crap," Jedgar yanked the young man close to him, "and you'll be charged with conspiracy to steal archeological treasures. Section 896.

Three years in jail. Not one more word out of you. Not to the public! Not to your friends! Not to the press!" He hurled the young man from him violently so that he staggered and fell. "This," pronounced Jedgar, "is a state matter."

The young man looked up from the ground, defeated. He looked out to where a government scuba diver was guiding in the cables. There was no sympathy there. He looked at the tense Marine backs. He looked at the scientists. He looked at Jedgar. He was totally, completely and utterly ignored. He had never felt more lonely.

He got up and unsteadily wandered across the sand. Head down, shuffling, he went out through the cordon and wandered away through the distant crowd.

The winch cables groaned on, coiling and twisting. The government scuba diver watched the cables. The group on the sand stared, waiting.

A greenish sea-coated metal object began to emerge.

It had no bolt studs, no apparent seams. It was many planed, symmetrical. First one, then two, then a the eight foot diameter of it came into full view.

"All right!" yelled Jedgar. "Let's get the thing loaded on a plane." Maybe he could still get to the race track.

Washington the fair, Washington the beautiful, home of the incorruptible politician and the shining knights of social justice, basked in the summer sun, owned, operated and controlled as usual by the bankers and their police.

The Institute sat on a low hill, securely backed by the printing plant that poured the newly printed money into the hands of the deserving few. As much summer sun as could get through the smog entered the windows of a large hall and fell upon the object.

All eight feet of it had been placed against one wall. It had been polished up a bit -at least the sand had been removed. It had two small panels, oblong sealed rectangles, much like slitted eyes and these seemed to stare blindly into the hall facing it, waiting.

Several feet in front of it, Jedgar and the leading scientist stood. The President, who had just arrived with his usual escort, joined them..Excitement agitated the President's eyes. Ever since he had been a little boy he had been interested in such things. It might be something from outer space, it might be some archeological wonder. He had strictly forbidden them to tinker with it. These scientists monkeyed so. Who knows but what it might be some discovery he could claim the patronage for and help his votes and show he was an intellectual. Maybe somebody would work out its secrets and make some great new weapon he could use as a big stick. Maybe It held secrets that would blow everything up. His background training for his hobby consisted of a chemistry set somebody had given him at the age of ten and which he had used mainly to make explosives.

The President took his eyes off the object and looked around. "And what have we guessed so far?"

The leading scientist swept back his tawny hair, which he hoped would come to look like Einstein's. It didn't much matter what he told the President so long as it added up to new grants for the Institute and new honors for himself. "Well, Mr. President, we're not at all sure what it is. It must have been imbedded in a cliff side and when that fell into the sea, it exposed itself. I'm having it analyzed now." And he pointed to the right of the object.

Beyond the object a table of instruments had been set up - those used in carbon half-life estimations of age, radiation detection, electrical detonators - all strewn about in disorderly jury-rigs. White-coated and serious, the instrument man was searching through the scattered papers and getting them in some kind of order.

"All right," said the instrument technician, "I think I've got it." He frowned heavily at a note. "It's some kind of alloy we have never achieved."

The leading scientist nodded and said, "Yes," hoping it sounded as though he knew it already."

The instrument technician pulled a wad of tape out of the notes and, with some difficulty, stretched it out. "This is stretching our equipment, but I'd say that, according to the carbon age test, this thing is tens of millions of years old close to seventy five million years old at an estimate."

The leading scientist's eyes flashed wider. Damn the techninian. You never told laymen things that were likely to scare them off. You damped it down a bit.

But the heedless technician bored on. "I"s also been subject to heavy radiation I think, but the count is too faint to tell. No longer dangerous. It doesn't appear to be explosive but there is some sort of energy charge in there."

The President nodded intellectually. "Well, why not get on with finding what it does, or something."

Jedgar scowled at the scientists, scowled at the machine and jutted his jaw at the President. Jedgar was in no pleasant mood. He had missed Bennie the Dip and 30 Gs. This bastard was just a kid playing with toys.

"Mr. President," said Jedgar in a respectful-sounding voice, "I know of your interest in such things and how this is a scientific age and so forth, but we ain't got any guarantee that that damned thing won't blow up. The Secret Service would insist!".The President waved him off with an indolent hand and turned to the leading scientist. "Go ahead, Doctor. I am truly intrigued."

The two approached the object, leaving Jedgar standing alone in the center of the room.

The two front plates of the machine continued to stare blindly. The leading scientist poked a finger at the left hand one. "Jenkins says this one is apparently moveable. But there's no getting into it with drills. It just breaks the bits."

The President looked curiously at the plate. It had a number of raised dots and marks and he fingered them. First there were ten dots in a line, low and to the left. Then a circle about an inch and a half in diameter with a radius mark. Then a straight line at the level of the bottom of the circle and about as long as the circle was round. Then two dots at the end of the line but at a height level with the top of the circle. After that came a wide gap. And to the right of the gap were a group of dots arranged so that as dots they made up small individual groups of one to nine. Part of this last group was a square that was empty.

"Those," said the leading scientist, "appear to be meaningful, some sort of an equation perhaps." He coughed depreciatingly. "My assistant Jenkins says whoever possibly made this didn't want barbarians to open it and put a code on it that only an advanced civilization could resolve." Always feed the laymen the interesting bits even when one personally might discount them. And let assistants take the rap if they were challenged. "Isn't that what you said, Jenkins?"

Jenkins had come out of a hole somewhere and crept up on the group. He was short, poorly formed as a man, looking as if he had borrowed his white coat from an elephant. His glasses were three quarters of an inch thick which made his pupils look like enlarged specimens. He was very, very nervous. Jenkins seldom got very brave, and today, finding himself in company with the President and the top cop of the country, he was having a hard time with his nerve. Nevertheless he braved up to it.

He spoke all in a rush. "When we couldn't make a dent in it with a sledge hammer, I guessed it might be some culture superior to ours. So...." He bogged down.

The leading scientist looked at him in contemptous tolerance. "Well, well, come on."

Jenkins took a deep breath. "I think....begging your pardon Mr. President and all... I think that's "pi", the radius of a circle." He yanked a book, a table of logarithms out of his enormous jacket pocket and tremblingly opened it to where he had made a marker. God help him if he was looking smarter than his boss. That old bastard would put an assistant that looked like competition back on an instructor's post as quick as look at him.

The leading scientist said tolerantly, "Well, come on. No matter how silly it may be, we're quite receptive."

Appalled at his own bravery, Jenkins dived all the way in. "That first row of dots on the left must mean common base ten logarithms, the circle and line must mean pi -the circle is the same length as the line - I measured them - the two dots there must mean squared, the gap must mean equals and that group of dots on the right must.mean one through nine and zero so you can punch in the answer if you figure it out."

He shakingly found a place in the book and held it close to his glasses. "The log of 3.14 is 0.4969 and the answer to that squared is 0.9938." He looked up, scared but brave. "The combination to that thing is 0.9938 he swallowed. "If you let me push the dots...."

The smile of the leading scientist had a certain amount of hydrochloric acid in it. Never a word in all that about how his boss had suggested.... even if not true. An instructor's post in some desegregated school would certainly be in order.

"I think," said the leading scientist, "that I'm at least capable of pushing the buttons."

Without any great expectations of anything happening, he probed an index finger over the dot groups one by one. A common base log squared was not very advanced math in his opinion, although it is true that pi was a pretty good idea -communication was possible without arbitrary symbols. Now had they put a formula on it in quantum mechanics.....

A flaring green light glared in the other panel.

The leading scientist and the President jumped back.

The green turned into a racing, flashing red that played over their startled faces.

A low whine began to ascend. It ended sharply with a loud snap. Jedgar went for his gun. The left hand plate ceased to flash and turned into a criss cross of white lines like a speaker grid.

In a sawtoothed, metallic voice, the object spoke. "Mark 92 Vocotranslator. All sound and information is now coming to you by thought concept and visual feedback so that you hear as though spoken in your own language."

The group looked at it wide-eyed. The voice continued. "You have activated the power charge. It will last for two years continuous running and many times that used intermittently. It will shut off automatically at the end of this use. Please step back at least two paces."

There was an earsplitting whine and a creak and a crash. The whole front face of the object below the panels flashed wide open. It was very hard on their nerves and confirmed Jedgar's solid opinion, which was usually wrong, that it was a bomb after all. The gun in his hand shook but he couldn't see anything to shoot at except a deep wide cavity which had been disclosed by the opening doors.

"Please be seated," said the object politely

The President was suddenly mindful of his traditional White House responsibilities.
He rose to the crisis. "Clear the room! This may contain confidential information. It can talk!".This more routine attitude served to clear Jedgar's scrambled wits. It was an order he could understand. He scowled around him. As he was still holding onto his gun, the leading scientist and all others in the room made haste to comply. By various doors they left.

Jedgar scurried around the hall and turned keys in locks, looked behind and under things with a very practiced eye,used his gun muzzle to see if a bug was anywhere in the potted palms and, satisfied, found two chairs and brought them back to the area in front of the object.

He seated the President and then, reversing his own chair and still holding his gun, sat down. It occurred to him that the damned thing seemed to know they weren't ready until they were and he glared at it.

The President continued to stare into the black cavity. It was quite wide and quite dark. He nervously hoped no monster would spring out of it or that it didn't turn on a sudden vacuum, suck them in and send them spinning off into space.

Jedgar looked around the roam one final time to see if they were alone. The screen at the back of the cavity flickered, faltered and then turned on in full color..CHAPTER ONE

The music was faintly oriental and the drums were sad.

A tattered and ripped up operations room showed the signs of battle.

The man at the desk was handsome, young, but his face was disfigured with a bandage around his forehead. The plain khaki blouse he wore was singed over the left shoulder. He looked vital, competent, alive.

He was holding a sheaf of papers in his hand, reports, notes, records.

"We assume," he said, "that as you have solved this capsule, your civilization has advanced to a high standard of technology - possibly nuclear fission, computers, even space flight - or at least you are capable of these things in your immediate future.

"You have a right to know the violent history of your planet. Some day when grass has grown again and the few pitiful survivors have multiplied into a culture, you will know what to do with this and understand it.

"My name is Mish, a Loyal Officer of the People of the Galactic Confederation."

He stretched his hand behind him to the wall. There a star map glittered and sparkled. "You may never have heard of the Galactic Confederation. It consisted of 21 stars and their 76 inhabited planets. You were one of those planets.

"Earth was a beautiful jewel then. It had vast cities, lovely forests and mountains and billions of inhabitants.

"But all was not calm. Things had happened, not just on Earth but all over the Confederation."

He propped up a screen up on his desk. A mob appeared on it, an angry mob carrying placards, surging and seething outside a building.

Mish continued, "Throughout the Galaxy symptoms of unrest, hitherto unknown in the Confederation were occuring as you can see by these news clips."

An old woman was being mugged on the street. She fell. One of the muggers snatched her purse, the other kicked her in the face.

"Crime was becoming commonplace."

A littered street lined with broken shop windows appeared.

"When there was a power failure in a major city, thousands of people began a fury of looting and burning."

A school yard appeared. A young girl was being attacked by a mob of thugs.

"All these conditions had begun in the past eight years.".A horde of secret police in grey-green uniforms and riot dress were shown charging a mob.

"The popularity of the government had dropped to an all time low."

A tank was shown attacked by a mob. They turned it over on its side.

A government building was shown. The huge sign "Tax Office" was suddenly obscured by a blast of flame.

"The words 'idealism' and 'patriotism' had become meaningless throughout the 76 planets."

A large array of assorted arms and explosives were being displayed by police, a cache discovered in a basement, enough material to fight a regiment.

"Gun running had become a highly profitable business."

Trucks loaded with bales of drugs were being unloaded by police and tumbled into a huge bonfire.

"Organized crime was profiting as never before. To combat it hundreds of thousands of secret police were being recruited by the government."

Long ranks of men in grey-green uniforms were shown drawn up.

A colored agitator, speaking from a platform was shown haranguing a mob. A secret policeman lined the speaker up in the sights of a blast rifle and fired. The agitator was smashed backwards.

"But the government in its turn was using more and more force in an attempt to control the violence."

A civilian sniper appeared on a parapet of a building. Beyond him a city spread out. The sniper fired down into the street.

"And reprisals were earning reprisals in their turn."

Mish folded the screen. He looked at his notes and then up again.

"The Galactic Confederation was very old. It had endured for thousands and thousands of years. It had been happy, prosperous and peaceful.

"The planets were politically democratic. The people elected their own governors and civil officials and the entire Galaxy was governed by the Congress of Loyal Officers of the People. These were trained men, skilled in political and martial arts. When they were graduated from their academy they stood for election to the Congress and those chosen loyally served the people.

"There was also an executive branch headed by the Supreme Ruler, a man also elected by the people and responsible for the day to day running of the Confederation but under the laws and appropriations of Congress.".Mish laid down his notes.

"The Congress of the Loyal Officers of the People met every ten years. Matters of state, finances and other concerns had been smooth and routine in the 2053rd Congress. Indeed there had been no upsets at all throughout the Galaxy.

"The Grey Invasion had occurred just before that. An invader had attempted a destruction of the Confederation, had sailed in in savage attack and had been effectively and efficiently destroyed. He had come from another Galaxy. But he had found the Confederation prepared and alert and -that was the end of him.

"The Grey Invasion was shot out of space even before full mobilization could occur on Earth and our planets and the whole affair had become ancient history.

"The 2053rd Congress had done what was necessary to handle all that and it was finished. Thus it was with considerable concern that the Loyal Officers came to the 2054th Congress.

"Revolt was growing in the Stars.

"And it was in this atmosphere that the 2054th Congress met to decide what course to take. On Home Planet, many light years away from Earth, the Loyal Officers of the People were arriving from every part of the Galaxy .".CHAPTER TWO

The Announcer on his platform gazed across the vast spaceport of Home Planet. Behind him a military band in resplendent white and blue uniforms blared joyous music. Before him spread a tumultuous vista of arriving ships, surging crowds and whipping flags.

Two thousand planetary troops with their guidons, plumes and drummers lined both sides of the concourse facing inward, an honor guard.

Police cordons blocked tens of thousands of people safely away from the landing ships and the concourse.

The harried staff of the Announcer hectically tried to catch everything in their radio cameras, tried to spot everyone and write down the names of arrivals and data about them and pass the result to the Announcer.

Well aware that his voice was carrying across this whole vast assemblage through huge public address horns, not only across and in almost every room of the limitless city beyond the field,but also across the stars to seventy-five other planets, the Announcer spoke in a rapid,impressive monologue, kept going by the slips passed to him by his staff.

He was apprehensive. Just two days ago these mobs had been surging through streets and burning. He had thirty-three staff here including his cameramen and this equipment strewn around here and one firebomb would take it all. He felt responsible as well. What he said was going to this crowd and huge viewscreens around the field as well as everyone else in the Galaxy. The regular announcer for such things had declined today and he had had to take over even though he was actually the producer. Soothe them, soothe them. Nervous business.

"Hope is a wonderful thing! Looking across the field of Home Planet today you would not think that half the inhabited worlds of the Galaxy were close to outright revolt. Such is the confidence of the people in the Congress . There isn't even a demonstration placard out there today." He reached urgently to his staff for another slip of paper.

Ship after ship was landing from a sky full of ships. As each one swooped down, a Loyal Officer would step out, promptly surrounded by guards, and stride toward the concourse.

"Ah, what a great day, a great day," said the Announcer, reaching beseechingly for more slips from his staff. "The most famous names of the entire Galactic Confederation are arriving on this field this afternoon. The two thousand and fifty? fourth Congress of the Loyal Officers is beginning auspiciously."

The high pitched whine of circling ships, the roar of the crowd and the upsurge of the band as they began a new piece blotted his voice for a moment. He stepped closer to his dozen cube shaped mikes and his sound engineer frantically re-adjusted his levels.."The Loyal Officers, the Loyal Officers of the People, heading 76 planets for the 21 star systems of the Confederation, one by one are coming up this concourse...."

One of his staff got a piece of paper into his hand and he looked at it urgently and then smiled happily.

"Hah! Here is Rawl!"

The group which had entered the field end of the Concourse was larger than others, being joined by military officers in white and blue and some civilians. They were jostling one another, some of them trying to reach through and shake hands with the man at the center.

Rawl was smiling good-naturedly. He was a tall, athletic man, handsome in a blunt sort of way. He wore the plain khaki trousers, blouse and cap of a Loyal Officer.

The Announcer stood on tiptoe to see better over his mikes. "Rawl, the Loyal Officer in charge of Earth. Rawl, Speaker of the Congress! You have heard his name connected with every great deed and decency!"

A surge in the outer crowds became a cheer roaring up to blanket the whine of circling ships. Rawl was looking up around at the familiar faces, smiling, trying to shake each hand extended to him. His progress up the concourse was being slowed by the increasing pressure. He drew a long breath and then caught sight of a drummer boy in the ranks of the Ninth Army honor guard and winked at him. The drummer boy grinned happily and suddenly added to the din with a bursting roll upon his drum.

Just behind Rawl's group was another. Mish, the center of it, pushed forward, trying to reach Rawl. The Announcer didn't need another slip. "And there is Mish! Mish, Loyal Officer in charge of the Outer Limits, Rawl's best friend! You know the story well of how these two stood off the entire fleet of the Grey Invader until our own battlefleet could arrive. And you know their daring rescue of the freighter Aldebaran..."

Mish finally struggled through the mass and tapped Rawl's shoulder. They gripped each other's hand and beamed, their greeting lost in the excited babble of the groups, the swelling roar of the crowd and the band suddenly tearing into "Grey Invader Victory".

The Announcer was staring down at a new sheet of paper jammed into his hand urgently. He looked at it, his pleasure evaporating, and followed the stabbing finger of an assistant. Several radio cameras whirled in that direction.

Standing like a naked sword, the black tower of the spaceport administration building stabbed at the sky and circling ships.

A balcony near its top was draped in somber green. A black wreath with twenty-one stars hung from the railing.

"Just now," said the Announcer in a much changed tone, "on the receiving balcony of the Administration tower there has appeared the party of the Supreme Ruler.".The Announcer made sure the radio cameras were centered on the balcony.

"There he is, Xenu, the Supreme Ruler of the Galactic Confederation."

Xenu, bitter faced, sardonic, leaning heavily on a cane that was more like a club, limped forward to the front edge of the draped railing. He glared down at the stalled group on the concourse below and did not like what he saw. The dark somberness of his civilian suit, the darkness of his hair and face seemed to spread outward. The cheering below dimmed off to silence. The band faltered and died down.

The Announcer's voice was overly loud suddenly for only the whine of ships lay over the field. "He is accompanied today by Chi, the illustrious Minister of Police of the Galactic Confederation."

Chi, jut-jawed, bulldog faced, squat and as crudely built as his civilian suit was rumpled, was oblivious by any announcement. He stepped up to Xenu's side and looked belligerently down at the stalled groups on the concourse.

The Announcer was glad to get off the subject. He frantically waved to his cameramen to target the right side of the balcony. "And here is something of interest. He has brought with him today his new mistress, the Lady Min!"

Lady Min caught the cue from the PA and stepped forward to the balcony railing. She was a warm and smashingly lovely woman, splendidly gowned in gold. The band abruptly struck up a lively theater overture.

"As no one needs to be told, Lady Min is the foremost stage star of the Galaxy!"

With perfect poise, Lady Min curtsied. There was a spattering of applause, a few cheers. She spread her hands to receive the applause and it increased. She blew a kiss and the applause increased again.

The Announcer, although he knew she was unlikely to see him and didn't even know him, blew a kiss back at her in thanks for getting him out of that one. That crowd silence had scared him and he had no skill in handling riots.

Putting new forced vitality into his voice to swing the crowd's attention off dangerous ground, the Announcer shouted, "There seems to be a lam of the concourse.

No, that's Rawl!"

The radio cameras swiftly whipped to the concourse. Two cameramen pushed through the ranks of the Honor Guard and added to the press and turmoil, trying to get their cameras high enough to shoot down over the milling heads.

Rawl and Mish were jammed in tight. A new group had come down from the administration building adding to the civilians, military officers, press and staff that surrounded them already. The group was pushing a big wreath of flowers over people's heads and struggling to get closer.

"Ah," said the Announcer, "Look at that. The city is trying to give Rawl a wreath of welcome and they can't even get to him. ".The wreath, a bit frayed,finally made it by knocking Rawl's hat askew and bashing down on his shoulders. Rawl and everyone around him was laughing but their laughter was drowned by the rolling roar of cheers from the vast crowds when they saw on the screen boards the wreath had finally made it. City fathers, their own hats askew in the press, tried to shout, unheard, their speech of welcome.

Up on the balcony, Xenu and Chi beheld the scene.

"Well," said Xenu bitterly, "he seems to have lost none of his popularity."

Chi said, "Huh!" And it was eloquent.

They glared at the sky and concourse as the Announcer's voice continued to roll over the PA system, to the city, to the planet, to seventy-five other inhabited worlds on carrier wave hyperspeed sound and picture.

"And still they come, the Loyal Officers of the People! Tomorrow they will meet in the long awaited two thousand and fifty-fourth Congress in the Galactic Capitol. From every quarter ".CHAPTER THREE Rawl let the entrance door swing shut behind him and gazed across the enormous hall.

Seventy-six great flags jutted out on poles high above, each one with the plaque of its planet in solid gold below it. The great arched windows spread a pattern of sun. Hundreds of Loyal Officers were at their seats already, talking tensely to one another. Many caught a glimpse of Rawl and shouted their greetings.

At the near end of the room a choir stood in ranks upon a raised balcony and before them the Archbishop of Home Planet stood, his tall, mitred cap flashing with jewels.

Rawl's eyes went to the rostrum at the distant end of the hall. On the first tier were the Ministers of the Executive Branch. At the wide desk above it, in a sombre black robe, backed by the glittering seal of the Confederation, sat Xenu, Supreme Ruler.

For a brief instant over that expanse, their eyes clashed. Then Rawl began to walk down the aisle. The click-click of the magnet-heeled space boots he habitually wore was sharp and punctuating in the room despite the babble of sound.

Chi, on Xenu's left, was following Rawl's progress down the long aisle with ferret eyes and a palm that itched for contact with his hidden blaster.

The calm strength of Rawl seemed to spread outward. He was giving little heed to the greetings beyond a preoccupied nod. He had spent the night with committees and, as speaker of the Congress, he knew what he had to do.

His seat was in the front rank of chairs with empty space between it and the rostrum. Mish was there already, smiling eagerly.

Rawl stopped and swept his eyes across the hall and back at the rostrum. That Chi was a nasty breed. And Xenu looked sardonic, contemptuously amused.

Rawl sat down.

An officer in the row behind him put a friendly hand on his shoulder. "Are we going to take up this police state thing right away?"

Rawl said, "Might as well."

Mish nodded rapidly. "Head on collision."

The officer behind them said, "Good boy," and sat back expectantly.

A huge round gong rested in a frame beside Xenu. He picked up a brass hammer and gave the gong a hard blow. Its long, doleful sound rolled in waves across the hall, carrying audience silence with it..Xenu spoke. "Now that we seem to have gotten together somehow - if late - I, Xenu, duly elected Supreme Ruler by the Loyal Officers of the Galactic Confederation, do declare the two thousand and fifty-fourth Congress to be in session."

The choir lifted their voices into a hymn.

The hundreds of Loyal Officers rose to their feet, caps off and stood facing the front of the room.

The Archbishop stood, tall and solemn, bathed in the sound of the choir behind him. As the hymn finished, the Archbishop raised his palms upward. His droning, sonorous voice spread through the hall:

"All blessings to Almighty God and the Galactic Confederation, upon its 21 stars, upon its 76 green planets, upon its trillions of population and upon the Loyal Officers, loyal to the people, to the Confederation and to God and upon this Congress. May peace and prosperity continue as it has for ages past."

The Loyal Officers resumed their seats.

A crier stepped forward from the end of the rostrum. "The Congress is now open for its first deliberations!"

Rawl stood. He looked around him calmly, at the Loyal Officers, the rostrum.

"This Congress," said Rawl, "meets in the shadow of possible planetary revolt." The last particle of noise vanished from the hall. Every eye gave him full, strained attention.

"Head on collision," Mish had said. Well here it was.

"In the ten years since the last Congress, certain orders have been issued by the Executive Branch which were not ratified by the 2053rd Congress."

Xenu went rigid. He had not thought they would dare. "While we do not wish to be critical," said Rawl, "and imagine there are reasons for these orders - no matter how much mistaken - it has been decided by the Congressional Committees that our first order of business should be to survey these changes, put them to a vote, and ratify them or not so that their legality or illegality is clearly established."

A rapid, electric buzz of approval spread through the hall.

Xenu braced himself, corrected his expression to one of political suavity. "What changes?" said Xenu.

Mish instantly produced an ornate folder and passed it to Rawl who took it without glancing at it.

"Over the past two hundred years or so," said Rawl, "certain political ideas and innovations have been put forward from time to time. And each time they have been defeated. But now, beginning eight years ago, we find they have become executive orders!".Xenu continued to keep a grip on himself. He was very sure of his own ground.

Rawl glanced at the folder he held. "These ideas are: personal income tax, credit records, fingerprinting all citizens, identity cards, passports."

An angry mutter swept through the hall.

Rawl dropped the folder. He lifted his head. "For thousands of years we have done without these things and done well. Yet today, by executive order, we find them instituted and enforced on every planet of the Galactic Confederation.

Chi bent and whispered urgently into Xenu's ear.

Suavely Xenu smiled. "These are lawless times. It is the executive responsibility to keep the realm peaceful, prosperous and calm." He tented his fingers and assumed an attitude of stating a fact that everybody knew and only an idiot would disagree with. "By making it possible to identify every citizen swiftly we can catch criminals at once!"

In the back of the hall a grey-haired officer leaped to his feet. "If this identity system is so successful, then why is it that during the last eight years, crime throughout this Galaxy has multiplied five times?"

Rawl raised his hand in a signal.

The doors at the rear of the hall crashed open and six page-boys, each one pushing a wheeled table, raced in and rushed to the front of the room.

The tables, each one piled high with documents and reports were rapidly positioned before Rawl.

Rawl swept his hand indicating the tables.

"The Congressional Committees have not been idle," said Rawl. "Here, Your Excellency, are the crime records of all seventy-six planets for the past ten years. Here also are the complaints and petitions of those planets. Here, as well, are the financial records and appalling rate of inflation of the Galaxy."

He let the hall calm down a bit. He looked mild and persuasive. "Personal income tax and credit records carry with them a total invasion of privacy. Identity cards and passports put every citizen at the mercy of personal enemies as well as the state."

He picked up some of the petitions, long rolls with tens of thousands of names and, after glancing at them, sought to pass them via a page to Xenu. Xenu flattened his hands against them. He wanted no petitions.

Rawl continued, even more mild and more persuasive. "Such measures are the mechanisms that make slaves of a people, that sap their initiative and fill them with fear."

His gaze at Xenu leveled. His voice became very firm. "These are the mechanisms of tyranny and oppression and no right-minded citizen would ever permit them..They are the tools of the sly slave-master and every one of these measures is a stench in the nostrils of free men."

An abrupt rolling shout of approval burst from the hall.

He stood very straight. "The executive branch is regarding populations as domestic cattle, to be milked for taxes and the payment of loans. You are ear-marking and branding them with enforced identity cards. You are even teaching them in schools that they are animals. You do NOT own them. They are NOT your herd, They are free human beings, not economic slaves or government property. And any government that violates this fact cannot end in anything but destruction of both itself and the people. This is NOT opinion! This is history!"

Cheers and applause rolled through the Congress.

Savagely Xenu cut into it. "These measures were vital! He struck the gong hard for order. "Here, I will call a witness!" He gestured behind him, and to the crier.

The crier stood. "Master Lord Lieutenant Zel,chief of the secret police of Earth, appearing as witness for the Ministry of Police."

The curtains parted and Zel came forth. He was dressed in a grey-green uniform, glittering with braid. He came to Xenu's right and stood there, black eyes shifting, his weasel face suspicious.

"The only way to handle crime," said Zel, "is to be able to lay your hands on any citizen at any time. Men are all basically criminal. Without identity cards, without the most detailed dossiers...."

"For police blackmail," came a shout from the hall.

"...the most detailed dossiers," continued Zel, "without passports to cut down criminal travel, police work would be utterly impossible."

"You're causing the revolt!" someone shouted.

Zel struggled on. "You cannot handle a crime wave unless you consider every citizen a potential criminal. And you have to have fingerprints of everyone to identify missing persons and bodies...." Laughter from the hall drowned out what he was saying.

He had not been prepared for this much opposition.

He looked sideways at Xenu, looked at the Congress and then, backward step by backward step, he got to the curtains and vanished.

Xenu was hard eyed. He clamorously struck the gong. He gestured urgently toward the curtains and the crier.

The crier caught his cue. "Master Lord Chu, Executive President of the Galactic Interplanetary Bank, presenting testimony for the Treasury.".The curtains slipped apart and a fat, pudgy man, very much like a pig, slid forward.

His civilian clothes were quite plain but he wore four diamonds in his tie and a huge diamond on each hand.

He was very nervous and was twisting the rings on his fingers. "I am very honored for the privilege to address the Congress of Loyal Officers. Doubtless," he repressed a giggle, "this slight misunderstanding can be cleared up. You see," and he didn't succeed in repressing the giggle this time, "You see, the Confederation is not solvent. It has," he paused and looked very pleased, "very bad debts. Er...."

A Loyal Officer leaped to his feet in the hall. "It was completely solvent at the time of the last Congress!"

Chu nodded energetically. "Well, yes, perhaps it was solvent then. But only on the surface. The bills for the Grey Invasion were not all counted up. And the Treasury was very empty. And so I...I mean the Treasury proposed a personal income tax. Oh, yes, it very much eased things."

Rawl looked at him, calm, assured. "These petitions show that personal income tax has caused wild inflation on every planet and has brought about economic stress. The government takes the money of individuals and companies before it can be invested or enter commerce. Wages and prices have had to be doubled, tripled, quadrupled to compensate for this loss of income. Inflation and increased public debt has followed."

With a flurry of ring twists and a wriggle, Chu said, "All the very best economists recommended it,I am sure. But this is a state matter. I am more concerned with any effort to abolish personal credit files and ratings. You see, a bank "

Back in the hall, a Loyal Officer was on his feet. "As Chairman of the Loyal Officer's Economic Committee, I wish to remind you that banks were perfectly capable of handling their loans and affairs and prospered well before this enforced individual credit file system was instituted. Your business is with your customers and depends on your judgment, not upon some spider web espionage system that pries into the lives of every citizen's finances."

"Well," said Chu, "well, yes, I dare say you have a point....I...er...hasten to assure you that banks are not an official part of the government and..er...possibly have no right invading privacy." But he had his own point to make and he firmed up and shot it at them. "But when the government needs money, it always has to come to the bank!" And with this petty triumph he dived back through the curtains.

Xenu furiously banged on the gong to still the laughter.

"I suggest," said Xenu, "this Congress get about its proper business. The executive orders have been passed, they are in effect. They were undertaken under the authority of the emergency powers granted to the Executive in its last session. More police, better means of identification and more tax money are vital to suppress this growing revolt, these crime waves. This unruly , population must be gotten under CONTROL!" He smashed his clenched fist down on the desk. He recovered himself a bit. He was sure of his ground. He knew he was right, for one of his virtues was that he always knew he was right no matter what he did.."They are legal orders. Personal income tax was necessary to replenish the Treasury. Identity cards and passports were vital to check crime. They exist as orders, they are legal and in force. Under the emergency powers...."

Rawl smiled tolerantly. "Not so hurried, Your Excellency. The law of the Galaxy is formed by this Congress. The situation is very plain. This evidence spread before me says very eloquently that inflation and crime have followed those orders."

He turned his back on the rostrum and addressed the hall. "The flaw in all those enormous personal files being gathered is that they are obtained by newly active secret police. The credit and identity files of individuals are stuffed with false reports, lies that are never questioned. When the file of an individual has been so corrupted, he can no longer obtain work. He is ruined. A person with a false file has no choice but to turn outlaw and criminal. As you well know, the criminal ranks, hideouts and lairs are swelling out of control and directly as a result of these measures. The criminal does not have to show an identity card to the person he robs or kills. Only decent citizens are being regulated.

And as to inflation, other wiser methods and economies can be found to handle it."

A mutter of agreement and applause came from the hall.

"The way to handle a possible revolt," he continued, "is NOT more oppression, more police. Revolts start with oppression and because of repression. The government frantically adds more repression and gets more revolt. And so it goes on until either the state or the people die. History has shown that the way to handle threatened revolt is to remove utterly, fully and completely all possible reasons for revolt at once. Laws of government that do not stem from the desires and wishes of the people cannot be enforced and must not exist."

Rawl took a long breath. It was now or never. "I therefore move that the emergency powers of the executive be cancelled and all executive orders be declared null and void."

The shock wave of ayes and cheers hit Xenu like a blow. And as the bedlam continued he sank from bitterness into suppressed rage.

The crowd had been standing for hours on the outside steps of the Congress hall, waiting, waiting.

Suddenly the big PA horns blared. "The motion has passed!"

For an instant the crowd was still. Then they exploded into a deafening roar of cheers. Some leaped in the air, others danced. An old lady just continued to stare at the PA horns and then sank down against the wall and began to cry tears of relief for it meant her two grandsons, imprisoned for not paying accurate tax, would be freed. The waves of cheering and dancing feet churned about her.

The factory cafeteria, where workers had been eating their evening meal,was suddenly struck to silence by the PA.

The lunchroom exploded into a frenzy of cheering. Plates, food and all, sailed into the air..They jumped on tables and began to dance and shout.

A foreman raced up the curving stairs to the time keeper room and jabbed frantically at "whistle", "siren" and "fire alarm" buttons and out of the top of the factory, joined promptly by other towers in the industrial zone, came a shattering blast of joyous sound.

A priest as wide as he was tall raced into the bell loft of the great cathedral and began to yank on every bell rope he could reach.

The street had been impassably jammed with cars and people, waiting, waiting, all eyes riveted upon the huge view screens and PA horns.

The blared "Motion has been passed" was like hitting a button for total commotion. The people screamed with delight. Every driver hit his car horn.

Whatever else the PA might have said was totally inaudible in the din.

Three young men immediately reached into the back seat of their bus and ripped a blanket off a concealed, mounted automatic blast weapon and stripped the charge bolts out of it. Grinning at one another they dumped the weapon into a street garbage can, abandoning it. They stood and added their voices to the din.

The newscaster in the Home Planet Interplanetary Broadcast Corporation tower held the first slip in his excitedly shaking hands and screamed at the operator, "Connect it up! Connect it up!"

The technician was urgently unsnarling cables that re-snarled in his haste and jamming plugs into the connector for each planet. He got the board green lighted and snapped a mike cable into the master after two misses.

The newscaster gripped the cubicle mike, started to talk, realized his signal was not green, hit the mike, got it green and yelled, "Alert,alert! All planetary newsrooms. Official, official! Galaxy wide. The 2054th Congress of Loyal Officers just cancelled the executive orders of personal income tax, identity cards and passports. Details to you as fast as they come in here!"

A door opened behind him. The distant shouts, horns, sirens of the city were heard for an instant.

The newscaster whirled. One of his reporters had just come in.

A huge fan of celebration fireworks exploded over the city and flashed through the control tower windows.

The newscaster stripped the paper from the reporter's hand. "Quick! Get Mol at the palace....we want details... color...background...interviews..." The reporter dived at a communication panel. "The palace the palace Mol. Get me Mol.".CHAPTER FOUR Lady Min was close to being smashed up flat in the palace hallway.

Half a hundred newsmen and cameramen clamored before her, pounding her with questions.

Beside her, Ap, her press agent, a flashily dressed young man, tried without much success to keep her from being knocked off her feet.

"Lady Min," shouted a reporter, "as the Supreme Ruler's mistress, would you say Xenu was pleased?"

Ap tried to field the question. "Lady Min is the greatest actress in the Galaxy. She does not meddle in politics. Gentlemen, would you please...."

Another newsman shouted, "Is it true Rawl accused Xenu of trying to stir the planets to revolt?"

And another, "Lady Min, would you say the women will be pleased..."

And yet another, "Did Xenu say he was planning a vacation on the summer satellite?"

Lady Min had edged backward and backward, trying to keep herself all in one piece. Her red evening gown was pulled askew on one shoulder. Her red, sparklestudded shoes had been stepped on. The jeweled flower in her hair had been pulled back of one ear.

The din was hard on her ears. "Ap," she shouted, "stars and spotlights, handle them!"

Ap groaned. "In ten years I never had to handle a wild animal act." Suddenly he saw that she had her back to an executive office door and her hand was already turning the latch to open it behind her. "Where are you going?"

Lady Min slid through the door and before any pressure could be put on it, banged it shut. Ap promptly stepped in front of it and held up one hand while he fished in his big-checked jacket for a sheaf of releases. A fanfare of hands began to grab at them.

Lady Min sagged back against the door. From the other side still came the mutter of the commotion in the hall. She was limp.

What had she gotten herself into? The commands of the Supreme Ruler in the past few years had become absolute. Three weeks ago he had simply sent an order to the theater that she was appointed his mistress. And why? He hated women, apparently couldn't stand to touch one. Had she said "No" there was no telling what would happen to her. The government lately had a way of ruining anyone who said "No." So, even though Ap beat his brains trying to find a way around it, here she was..She looked about her. This was one of Xenu's executive offices. It was splendidly ornate in red velvet and gold. It had a bar, a black table in the room center with some sort of a computer panel in its top and a couch that faced the windows, its back to the room. It was the couch that caught her weary eye and she moved toward it.

One of her glittering red leather shoes came off, its strap broken in the "interviews" but she let it lie and limped on across the room. Exhausted she dropped down on the couch. The back blocked her view of the room, the wide windows gazed out on the evening city. She started to light a cigarette and then let it fall back in the tray. She put a finger under the gold band at her throat and loosened it. Her eyes lingered on a bracelet that bore the enameled picture of the Supreme Ruler and then tore it off her wrist and dropped it on the floor. She stared at the ceiling and let out a long sigh.

What had she gotten herself into? In her many years on the stage, beginning when she was five, she had been in some commotions, some remarkable ones, but seldom anything even approaching this. The play had closed, mainly because she had had to leave the cast but partly because of public disturbance. The broadcast series she was going to do had been suspended due to her being ordered to the palace. And Xenu had, in the underworld if not amongst the population, a very unsavory reputation, vague, whispered about, never specified. What crazy bent had caused him to suddenly order someone to become his mistress? Ah, well, tomorrow would tell. Evening was gradually turning into night. She turned on her side and stared out at the stars, dimmed by the celebrations and lights of the city, far from guessing that there lay her immediate destiny.

The latch of the door to Xenu's quarters rattled and the door swung open. Much in the way one would shoo a chicken, Xenu pushed Chu before him.

Xenu shoved the door shut with his cane and snapped on the lights by jabbing it at the switch. He looked at the bar, the table, the hall door. The back of the couch was toward him. Satisfied, he limped to the table and lowered himself into the chair before the computer.

Chu was in an uproar. He was twisting so hard at his rings that he appeared to be taking his fingers off.

"It's ruin!" said Chu. "It's ruin, I tell you. Ruin. Without personal credit files or identity papers, we will never be able to locate debtors and persuade them into paying."

Xenu showed no slightest sympathy. "Crush them into paying, blackmail them into paying, you mean."

Chu agitatedly gestured at a chair for permission to sit and then wriggled into it.

"You promised...."

"I promise nothing," said Xenu sharply. Then he relaxed. "I brought you here, my piggy.little friend, to give orders, not to make promises.".With a sly lift of his eyebrows, Chu said, "Remember it was my ideas and suggestions that got all the money into the Treasury."

"Yes, and now it will have to be paid back. And exactly how we make up the little commissions that were spread around amongst us is a problem. And don't forget that it was your idea because it was a bad one."

Chu began to sweat a bit in alarm. One could never tell about Xenu.

But Xenu was not there to engage in idle conversation. "We have business to do. The Congress has put over me and the whole executive branch a guard committee on finance. Without their authorization the government cannot spend a single credit. This was their method of paralyzing any secret action I might take. They could not remove me as every action I took was completely legal under the emergency powers. But there is an election next year."

Chu flinched.

"Precisely. We will all be retired to the scrapheap. And don't think that because you are a banker you will be overlooked. It is not beyond possibility that under a new Supreme Ruler, they will look into some of your loans and connections. They might even discover how you use billions of public funds to improve the surroundings of your private holdings. They might even find how much public money you had us spend to completely rehabilitate asteroids so that, you could put resort hotels on them and pocket...."

"No, no," said Chu nervously. "You don't have to push me into despair with it. My doctor...."

"Good," said Xenu. "Then we understand one another."

He promptly began to punch buttons on the table computer and view screen. It flared green and the green light, shining upward, glowed on their faces.

Xenu muttered as he pushed buttons. "About two billion for renegades.... another four billion to secretly rehire the secret police "

Apprehension began to mount in Chu as he watched the dancing figures.

"The minimum amount, " said Xenu, looking at Chu, "is one trillion Galactic credits."

Shock made Chu twist a ring so deeply it cut him.

"In private funds, " said Xenu. "Untraceable."

Chu did not speak. He was incapable of it for the moment.

With a long, expert finger, Xenu began to punch buttons again and the figures again started to race across the computer, increasing the amount.

"No, " said Chu . "No, no, no . " He gathered his wits and gradually took on a sly, calculating attitude. "And my credit systems?"."You'll get them back, " said Xenu.

"And the use of public treasury to improve my private holdings?"

"Of course," said Xenu.

With well being slowly seeping through him, Chu said, "A trillion Galactic credits. Untraceable funds and accounts." He got up and minced to the door. He looked back at Xenu and, humming to himself, opened the door.

Chi came through it. A very gloomy, listless Chi. He closed the door after Chu and wandered over to the middle of the room.

Xenu pried himself erect with his cane and limped to the bar. He was smiling, more cheerful than he had been for days. He took down a bottle and began to prepare drinks.

Chi gloomily followed him to the bar. He let out a deep sigh, "We are crashed."

Xenu uttered a short vicious laugh and continued to pour drinks. "Not so, my friend. The game has not ended. It has only now begun!"

The handkerchief Chi was using to mop his face halted at the side of his jutting jaw. He was not quite bright enough to take this in. He looked stunned.

"But it's only a matter of time until they depose you. Certainly within the year! And my files. They've ordered me to destroy my files and erase my computers!"

Xenu pushed a drink toward him and spoke casually. "There are other files you can destroy and plenty of useless computers you can erase. Chi, did it ever occur to you that you now have a file on every criminal, renegade and psychopath in this entire galaxy?" He sipped his drink lovingly. "And have you ever thought at one time or another what a splendid secret force they would make?"

Uncertainly Chi took hold of the drink. The concept finally got through to him, he raised his eyebrows and started to lift the glass in a toast but a horrible thought occurred to him.

"But this will take money. And all finances are cut off. Have you ever asked a renegade how much he...."

"Indeed I have," said Xenu. "But no target. We will have more than adequate funds, private, secret."

The illustrious Minister of Police stirred it around in his mind and then began to get the idea.

Xenu put down his glass, all business. "And so we reoccupy the bases destroyed and abandoned after the Grey Invasion. We recruit every renegade we can lay our hands on, we train and equip and on one certain day a few months hence we will...".Chi hastily got out a pad and pencil and eagerly started to write these orders down.

Xenu knocked the pad up. He began to move back to the black table leaving his drink behind him.

"No, no notes. This is totally secret. You will even have to develop your own codes and transmissions. You can trust only those on whom you have definite blackmail."

He sat down in his chair. "This will take very careful planning. A simultaneous strike coordinated on all planets..."

Under Xenu's finger the green computer face lighted up. "There will be no Loyal Officers left to object. And especially no Galactic Commander Rawl, especially no Rawl." This pleased him and he stabbed the buttons viciously. "They wanted a revolt! We'll give them a revolt. Did you know, Chi, that all revolts start from the top. It's an historical fact...."

Chi grabbed his arm. Xenu looked up in some annoyance and then followed the line of Chi's glare.

On the floor midway between the couch and the sofa lay a glittering red shoe.

Chi's hand darted to the hidden blaster under his coat.

Xenu restrained him and silently began to rise from his chair. He walked cat-footedly over to the back of the couch.

He looked down on Lady Min. Her eyes were closed as though asleep, but her breast was heaving a bit rapidly.

He reached down and suddenly grabbed her hair. With a savage wrench he yanked her to her feet.

She backed up toward the window. "I've been asleep!"

He curled his lip. "And by that you confess you heard every word!"

She got her hair loose and tried to run. She stumbled and crumpled into a heap.

Xenu leaped after her. He yanked her to her feet.

"And I suppose your first thought is to contact Rawl! You corrupted bitch! You filthy whore!"

He shook her violently. "This is what I get for taking you in." His voice rose to a scream. "You were supposed to bring me popularity!"

Terror was giving away to anger in Lady Min. She gave him a level look,

"Popularity is earned, not bought!"

The cane came up and struck her.

She went sprawling into the corner back of the hallway door, knocked out.

The blaster was in Chi's hand, he made a gesture to Xenu to get him out of his line of fire. "Please move a bit your excellency so I can get a clear shot.".Xenu took his eyes off the crumpled figure. Slowly, he was gathering his wits, taking a competent estimate of the situation. "No. Mo, we don't want another scandal. The pigs of this galaxy have been fed enough."

He hobbled over to the table motioning to Chi to put away his gun. "Call Doctor Stug."

"Robotize her," said Chi.

Xenu nodded several times. "Depersonalize her with neurosurgery." The thought pleased him. "Drag her to her room, put her under guard." He laughed. "She might even be some fun.".CHAPTER FIVE

Lady Min's bedroom was a very ornate affair. It looked out across the sprawling night-lit city. Mirrors that could be adjusted to different angles reached from ceiling to floor all about the walls. One mirrored door led into the hallway, another into a large bathroom. A huge boudoir table, ornate with gold frames stood beside the bed. A full communications panel and screen glittered in the wall.

Lady Min lay sprawled upon the bed where they had thrown her.

She started to rise and winced. She felt gingerly at her head where the cane had struck her. Panic was rising in her but she steadied it down. This was no time to go to pieces. She had no illusions whatsoever about the trouble she was in or her possible fate. The rumors in the underworld about Xenu could not be without foundation.

Unsteadily she removed her ruined gown and walked over to the wash basin at the boudoir table. She took a wet towel and began to sponge the bruised area above her ear.

The sharp knock at the door was followed at once by a key grinding harshly in the lock.

Doctor Stug opened the door.

In the hall behind him a nurse, a wheeltable and a guard were waiting.

Stug closed the door and advanced into the room. He was a tall man dressed in black civilian clothes. His pointed beard and ribboned eye glasses gave him a veneer of professionalism. As Xenu's private psychiatrist he had had a great deal of practice in deception. His left hand was held behind his back.

"I just came to see if you were all right," said Doctor Stug.

Lady Min laid down the towel and looked alertly at him.

The tilted mirror beside the door clearly showed his back.

It disclosed as well the narcotic pistol he was hiding, a pistol good for a hundred shots anything-up to ten feet which guaranteed a day or more of unconsciousness.

"These petty lover's quarrels!" said Doctor Stug. "Tch. Tch. I have known Xenu for a long, long time and he may get angry but he quickly forgives, quickly forgives. I wouldn't doubt that it will be all made up by bed time."

He began to move forward slowly, easily.

"Why, you seem to have a bruise on your cheek. Well, well, we can do something about that at least."

Lady Min looked at him and then pointed to her cheek. She winced and began to walk toward him unsteadily. "It is a bit swollen, but really I feel very faint.".She came close to him presenting her cheek. "Can you see if anything is broken?"

She stumbled and her left hand flew up as to balance herself.

Instinctively Stug reached for her with his free hand.

Lady Min's right lashed around to his back.

She jerked the hidden gun outward so that it pointed at his side.

Her thumb depressed his finger on the trigger.

A tiny white puff hammered through the cloth of his coat.

Stug's eyes flew wide, dazed. His mouth opened and he slowly slumped forward.

His head hit the rug.

Lady Min knelt over him and disengaged the narcotic pistol. She fumbled with the slide and then got it cocked again.

Softly she said, "You're not so different from any stagedoor jackass, Doctor Stug."

She checked the slide, pulled his coat collar open and pressed the muzzle against his bare neck.

"Have a good day's sleep, brain surgeon." The muzzle jumped and a puff of white smoke eddied up from it.

She tossed an apprehensive look at the door. She knew there were guards there, not only the one who would come with Doctor Stug, but also door guards. Xenu would not neglect that.

She sped to her closet and yanked out a large flowing night robe. She threw it over Stug and quickly adjusted it to cover all of him and his shoes.

Moving fast, she went to the communications console. She knelt before it and hastily pushed buttons. It's screen blurred and flashed. Urgency and some panic was catching up with her.

A long way away in the city Ap was flopped over a bar in a honky-tonk, gripping a drink, listening languidly to a girl who sang soothingly in front of the band. A ragged buzz came from his pocket and with a bored sigh he took out a flat small communications unit with a tiny view screen. His calm vanished when he saw a disheveled Lady Min appear on it.

Her voice was sharp and tinny through the tiny receiver. "Ap! Where is Rawl?"

Ap blinked and got his mind into focus. "What a spectacular question. He left for planet Earth about sunset. The congress is over, you..."

"You've got to contact him!".Ap's hand on the receiver began to shake. "We got banner headline trouble, I can tell! He'll take days in flight. That's out. Look...."

"Ap. Get out to the spaceport fast and get my spaceyacht ready for instant take-off.

Quick, quick!"

The honky-tonk music increased in volume. "But Lady Min, they just changed your pilot...."

There was a sharp click as the communications receiver went off.

Ap steadied himself against the bar. "Hot smoke, she rang off. Well here goes tomorrow's headlines maybe." He let out a shivering sigh, "Future Zero!" He jammed his communicator into his pocket. It seemed to him that the music was actually a shriek. He collected himself, threw a one credit note on the bar and tottered out toward the door.

In the bedroom Lady Min rose from the console. She stared at Stug on the floor and quieted her rapid breathing.

She rushed to the bathroom and turned on its light. She opened a faucet until the water roared.

She left the bathroom door a crack open and made sure lights could be seen from the room.

Narcotic pistol in hand, she sped over beside the main entrance door, positioning herself so that when it opened she would be behind it.

She was breathing rapidly and carefully steadied herself down. She pulled back the slide on the narcotic gun and hefted it. She took a deep breath. Slowly she unlatched the door and let it drift open a couple of inches.

She raised her chin and in a not too good imitation of Stug's voice called, "Nurse!"

With a clatter and a bang the door was shoved open from the outside by the wheeled stretcher, pushed by the nurse and flanked by the guard. They saw the covered body on the floor and pushed the stretcher on into the room.

The guard, dressed in the grey-green of the secret police, gripped his blast rifle at ready and looked about.

The nurse's head was covered with a white scarf, her shirt was blue-striped and white-cuffed and she wore a voluminous white skirt. She looked at the body on the floor and then at the partly opened bathroom door, noted the running water and smirked. "Have some fun for yourself first, Doc?" she said.

With her palm Lady Min swung the hall door shut.

At the sound of the latch the nurse started to turn.

With one step forward Lady Min pressed the muzzle of the narcotic gun against her neck and fired..The secret police guard whirled and started to raise his blast rifle to firing position.

He opened his mouth to shout.

Lady Min worked the slide of the pistol and jammed the narcotic gun in the direction of his open mouth.

She pulled the trigger and a white puff of smoke eddied around his suddenly slack jaws as he crumpled.

She grabbed the blast rifle to keep it from clattering on the floor and eased it to the carpet.

She silently slid home the bolt on the bedroom door. She sagged against the wall, gasping with relief. "Stars and spot lights!" she breathed.

She realized she wasn't out of there yet, and it would only be a matter of minutes before the guards outside the door would begin to wonder what was going on.

She went to the peephole port in the door, uncovered it and looked at its lens.

There were two guards in the hall. One was standing indolently beside the door. The other was sitting in a chair across the hall, his blast rifle held between his knees while he fished in his pockets for a lighter, an unlit cigarette dangling from his lips. The rest of the hall was empty.

Lady Min closed the view port. She took the guard by the shoulders and with considerable effort dragged him into the bathroom. She went back and knelt besides the nurse. Laying the narcotic gun on the floor she urgently began to strip the nurse of her clothes, first the scarf then the skirt, then the shoes and finally the blouse. Dear God it was lucky the nurse was a trifle bigger than she was.

Working fast and frantically she shortly had the now naked nurse dumped in the bath tub, Stug - with exertion that was almost too much for her - laid out on the stretcher and the blast rifle under him. Dear God it was also lucky that he wasn't too big a man. She pulled the cover sheet over his form obscuring him utterly. She climbed into the nurse's clothes and then with two darting trips to look at the nurse's face she converted her own nose, mouth and hair line to a similarity.

She adjusted the nurse's scarf and looked at herself in the mirror. She inspected herself carefully and then nodded. She opened a drawer in the boudoir and grabbed a handful of rings and her wallet and stuffed them inside her shirt bosom.

She picked up the narcotic pistol and went into the bathroom. Working the slide rapidly she pumped an additional shot into the guard and another into the nurse.

She came back to the stretcher, picked a nightgown off the floor and threw it carelessly across the stretcher's foot.

She looked around the room, closed the bathroom door, locked it and sailed the key under the bed. Silently she unbolted the main entrance door..She took one final look around the room, drew a long breath to steady herself and then with one hand on the bottom rail of the wheelstretcher she swung the door open.

With a hard yank she sent the stretcher sailing out into the hall, stepped after it and slammed the door. The guards stiffened.

The one nearest it, looked at the closed door and then at Lady Min. "Where's the other two?"

Lady Min looked at him sneeringly. She had heard the nurse speak and hoped her voice now sounded like it. "The fun they had made a little mess . They're cleaning it up so old Xenu won't notice . Phagh, Doctors ! "

The guards leered and looked at the door.

Lady Min jabbed her finger authoritatively at one of the guards. "Call an ambulance to the south door." She glared authoritatively at the other one. "Give me a hand with this stretcher.".CHAPTER SIX

Standing beside the spaceyacht, his ears assailed with the whine of ships and rattling clatter of the hangar, Ap was gradually losing seven years of his growth. The sweat ran damply down one side of his forehead and he dabbed it off with a gaudy handkerchief.

The spaceyacht designing was black with a white diagonal stripe and while it might have very nice appointments, it left a lot to be desired for long voyages. And just now it was only about an eighth full of fuel.

Ap stared out across the expanse of space port toward the administration tower. He didn't know what he was watching or waiting for and he expected the area to erupt with guards any instant.

The pilot was lounging under the stub wing of the craft, one foot indolently resting on the sloped landing ramp which extended from the side of the fuselage. He was a new pilot. He had Just been assigned. Some of his time in the last twenty-four hours had been spent in wondering what happened to the man he replaced, what he had done to throw him out of favor.

"You say she's only going to the Summer Palace satellite," said the pilot. "That's no great flight.

Why do you want to top up all the fuel tanks and air?"

Ap carefully put on his most persuasive manner. "Well it's safest to have full fuel tanks. Go ahead. Fill her."

"Why!"

"They may want to take a grand tour, sightseeing amongst the satellites. Look, you're just new here. When you serve at this stellar level of command chain, take it from Ap, be prepared for anything."

Doubtfully the pilot moved over to the head of the ship and waved a lazy hand at a passing fuel and air truck.

Ap went on staring toward the administration building.

Chi prowled along the palace hall. One had to keep one's eye on everything these days. You couldn't trust anybody to do anything. Also they didn't keep him informed the way they should. Only a few minutes ago he had heard that Lady Min had been taken away by ambulance, which was peculiar as there was a complete operating room right here in the palace specially installed by Xenu for exactly such emergencies. He looked at the guard outside Lady Min's door. "Why are you still on guard here? Haven't they gone?"

The guard started and straightened up stiffly. It made one nervous just to see Chi much less to be talked to by him. "Yuh Yuh. They took her out. But the brainbanger and one of my guys are still in there - straightening up.".Chi didn't like it. He stood for a moment and then suspiciously slid the door open.

There was nobody in there. He instantly drew his gun and stepped sidewise through the door.

Cat-footed he approached the bathroom door, flipped the knob, found it locked. He stepped back and crashed the flat of his foot against the door just beside the knob.

It flew open.

The guard lay sprawled on the floor.

The nurse lay naked in the tub.

The guard stood jaw open looking in and then something like terror came into his eyes as he shifted them to Chi. He had a very good idea what would happen to him now.

Chi thrust the guard violently aside and rushed out into the hall shouting.

Ap heard the siren before he saw the ambulance and for a sweating instant was certain that it must be a police car.

The white vehicle shot across the field, dived into the hangar and, siren dying, spun about and pointed its nose toward the hangar door. With a squeal it backed to the ramp.

On the run the driver and attendant raced back to the rear ambulance doors and flung them open.

Ap was hastily trying to put the pieces of this together. He saw a nurse step out and if she hadn't moved her hand toward him briefly, only in a way Lady Min would do, he wouldn't have known who it was.

The driver and attendant rolled the stretcher toward the bottom of the ramp and would have rolled it straight on up into the ship had it not been for the pilot barring the way.

The pilot frowned. "What the rockets is this?" He came on down the ramp to the bottom and reached for the cover at the top of the stretcher.

Lady Min chopped at his hand. "Why don't you call Xenu and find out?"

He frowned and again reached for the corner of the sheet.

This time Lady Min used the side edge of her hand on his wrist.

"I know all about little boys who can't keep their hands off unconscious girls. You pervert."

Ap had it now. He rushed forward. "Come on, come on. There's little time to lose.".And he gave the stretcher a perilous push up the ramp. If he hadn't jumped aside the pilot would have been knocked down. The driver and attendant pushed with a will and with a roar of wheels the stretcher flew on up the ramp and into the fuselage of the spaceyacht. Sullenly the pilot followed it.

Ap came to the spaceyacht door as the driver and attendant trotted back down the ramp. "Thank you fellows," Ap called after them. "Greatest drive in history pretty near. Xenu won't forget this!"

The ambulance men waved back to him, climbed into their vehicle and shot off.

The pilot pulled the ramp closed and walked doubtfully to the pilot seat.

His eyes wide with unanswered questions, Ap looked at Lady Min. She shook her head at him and pushed the stretcher down the aisle of the ship toward a cabin at the tail.

Languidly the pilot was obtaining his clearance from the tower. He checked over the instrument panel and began to start the motors.

"Take off!" yelled Ap. "Get this thing spaceborne!" The ship lurched and began to roll forward slowly.

Lady Min got the stretcher fully inside the rear cabin and began to lash it to cleats in the wall. Ap banged the cabin door shut and lifted the sheet at the head of the stretcher.

He gulped.

"Stug!" He stared at Lady Min. "Why him? This is Stug, Xenu's chief brainbanger."

"Can this rust can get to Earth?"

"Earth! That's days away. No."

They were pushed back heavily as the ship leaped into take-off.

Chi flung himself out of the car and raced up the steps of the control tower, glancing sideways at the sky as he went.

The open air defense platform at the top of the tower was manned by blue and white uniformed soldiers, idling about. They were planetary troops and not in total agreement with keeping a constant alert since nothing had happened for a decade since the Grey Invasion. It seemed a waste of time, Their officer sat, bored, on the parapet. The snouts of four heavy caliber anti-spacecraft guns pointed motionless at the zenith.

Chi burst upon the platform, looked around for the officer and rushed at him, pointing at the sky.

"I am Chi, Minister of Police. That ship, that one there. A bank has just been robbed and they are escaping on that ship. By police orders fire on it!" The officer looked through his viewer and then back at Chi. "But that's Lady Min's spaceyacht!"."I know, I know," screamed Chi. "She'll be furious. Start shooting. Start shooting before they get out of range!"

"Bank robbers?" The officer made up his mind and gestured at his sergeant, "Stop that ship!"

The four muzzles of the battery swept down into firing position, long streaks of red flame sped from them in a staccato roar.

Inside the ship Ap struggled forward up the aisle against the heavy acceleration. He tapped the pilot on the shoulder.

"If you'll just set a course..." He gaped as ribbons of flame shot by in front of the wind screen.

The pilot whipped his head around to the side window and looked back at the rapidly receding field. The red boom of gun fire flashed in his eyes. His face went grey.

Without a second thought, the pilot turned back to the control panel. His glance centered on "Pilot Eject". His hand stabbed hysterically at it.

The pilot seat and the panel beside it tilted violently over.

The white smoke of the ejection explosion puffed around the pilot.

In a long graceful arch the pilot sailed out into the atmosphere and began to tumble.

Ap screamed, "Come back here!"

The hurricane wind of the ship's passage was whipping into the cabin from the open ejection port. He reached and hurriedly snapped the panel shut.

Down below he could see the pilot's parachute opening.

Flame shots raced by between the parachute and the ship.

Ap stared at the maze of controls, the keyboards of buttons on the flashing spinning navigation console. He threw up his hands in despair.

More shots flashed by the windscreen.

Lady Min was trying to inch forward from the tail. Her headkerchief and glasses were off and her hair was flying wildly.

Five flame shots zipped through the side of the ship directly in front of Lady Min.

She flinched.

"I can't fly this thing!" wailed Ap.

"Neither can I!" shouted Lady Min..He ripped open a drawer under the pilot's seat and scrambled in it. He brought out a manual "Mark 38 Navigation Console!" He shakingly yanked at its pages one by one.

A flame projectile went through the windscreen another hit the tail and the ship began to shake.

Trying to get the diagram to match up with the buttons, Ap hit "Accelerate" He huntingly hovered over other buttons.

He clenched his fist in indecision and despair.

"Future Zero!"

Abruptly he jabbed five buttons chosen at random all at once.

The ship abruptly changed course and vaulted skyward in a spinning spiral.

A final barrage of shots sped by under the ship converging on where it would have been.

Lady Min held on desperately in the aisle. Loose objects thudded and banged about the ship.

The passing hurricane velocity air made the small holes in the fuselage whistle and scream like maniacs.

Lady Min looked at the holes. She realized that when they hit space they would lose all their air.

She braced herself and pried open a locker. She brought out a roll of tape and dragged herself to the side of the ship. Stripping off chunks of the adhesive with her teeth she began to patch the holes.

The ship, steadied out, continued its vertical headlong course for who knows where..CHAPTER SEVEN

The ship rocked gently as its auto-pilot corrected against gravitic pulls. The aisle between the two couches was littered with empty food cans which clinked together as the ship moved. Crumpled wads of note paper littered the floor between the two couches.

Ap took one last look at the navigation manual and resumed staring at the ceiling, dropping the manual into the litter of the floor.

"Guy that wrote that navigation manual ought to get top billing as an idiot...."

Lady Min stirred on the opposite couch. She still wore the nurse's uniform but now it was rumpled and dirty. She took her eyes off the overhead and looked listlessly at Ap.

"No idea where we are?"

"Not being pulled into a flaming sun anyway - maybe."

"These weeks of this have been...." She was interrupted by a sudden tilt of the ship.

Ap sat up, startled. He stared through the window.

Covering a large portion of the sky beside the ship was a huge-black asteroid, its outline visible only because of the Milky Way beyond it; A patrol ship flashed by, close to.

The spaceyacht console speaker flashed red and from it came a loud official bass voice.

"Patrol A from Interceptor Base 62. Shut off your motors. You will be landed by remote control tractor beams. Anyone found armed on landing will be guilty of a felony. Do not jettison any cargo."

Lady Min sat up, ecstatic. "Interceptor Bases are commanded by Loyal Officers! We're saved! We can reach Rawl!"

The spaceyacht was slowly and inexorably pulled toward the satellite where large hangar doors were sliding open.

Two pilots in the hangar watched its approach. One of them took a closer look at it and then slid his blast pistol into its holster and buckled the flap, dismissing the situation. "Ah it's just some fool spaceyacht that lost its way."

The other dropped his chin on his speaker button inside his space helmet. "Dull, dull, dull. No excitement at all since the Congress. Crime doesn't pay anymore."

They turned and sauntered through the airlock door and shut it behind them.

The spaceyacht came to rest on the hangar floor. The big red lights which said "No air" began to flash. The hangar doors ground down and sealed themselves with a.grating clank.

The hangar warning light went green and flashed, "Safe atmosphere"; The landing ramp from the yacht fell into position with a crash.

A cleaning man and cleaning woman, old and not much surprised at anything, gathered their mops and buckets together and shuffled toward the ramp.

An officer in blue and white-fatigue uniform lounged up against the craft.

Lady Min and Ap, highly excited and urgent scrambled out of the ship and ran down the ramp. The Officer smiled tolerantly, thumbs hooked in his belt, cap on the back of his head. He negligently waved his hand to indicate the direction they should take and, leading off, escorted Ap and Lady Min into the now open airlock which led deeper into Asteroid Interceptor Base 62.

The cleaning couple watched them go and then shuffled up the ramp with their mops and bucket.

They paused at the port and gazed at the littered wreck.

"Well, well, looks like they had quite a party," said the old woman She chuckled to herself.

The cleaning man walked through the litter, kicking at it and approached the cabin doors at the rear of the ship. He tried to open a door and found it locked.

He sighed, reached to the key ring in his belt, laboriously sorted out a master key and finally got it unlocked.

Just as he was about to touch the knob it was twisted from within.

The door was yanked inward.

Doctor Stug, disheveled, savage, his professional calm left far behind him, loomed in the doorway. He glared around. When he saw the cleaning man and woman were the only occupants he quickly readjusted his expression. "Ah, thank you my good man."

Stug's eyes lighted on the communications console in the pilot compartment and he hastened up the aisle.

"Where are we?" he said to the cleaning woman as he passed. "Is this an Interceptor Station?"

The old woman chuckled. These people who used yachts certainly were something to laugh about. "Interceptor Station 62, close as you'll ever get to it." Laughing to herself she got busy with her broom sweeping the litter together.

Doctor Stug tensely and expertly punched a series of buttons on the communication console and then slid into the chair before it. He adjusted the hypersound dial for distance and then triggered the two buttons which turned on a scrambler.

The screen lighted up, was jagged for a moment, its lines snapping and smashing into each other. It cleared and a picture of Chi came on..Chi glared at his own screen before him and then recognized who it was. He snarled impatiently, "Stug! Where the crap have you been for a month?"

Stug pulled the mike toward him, looking deadly. "No time for tales. The lost ones are at Interceptor Space Station 62. Just arrived."

Shock spread over the face of Chi, "That's commanded by a Loyal Officer." He paused, his eyes darting about. Then he looked back at his own viewscreen and a cunning look which he thought was persuasive came over his face. "Stug, we have always counted on you."

"You're counting on me now to the tune of a hundred thousand credits. Right?"

"Right."

"I suggest you send a hyperspace interceptor here at once," said Stug. "Manned with a couple of reliable men, of course. I don't like asteroids."

"All right," said Chi. He added ferociously, "They must not talk!"

Stug smiled. "They won't talk," he said smoothly and consolingly.

The white doves, imported to decorate the chambered gardens of the otherwise bleak asteroid and also to fall dead if air pollution rose dangerously, flitted about from perch to perch, the whir of their wings mingling with the artificial waterfall. It was a beautiful garden but in the opinion of Lady Min and Ap was no place to spend two days of idle waiting.

They sat on a seat beside a heavily grilled door, very strong in the black rock. True, they had been able to clean themselves up even though no changes of clothes had been offered them.

But two days of waiting, despite the urgent notes they had sent the Base Commander, was creating a mystery that depressed their spirits.

The door opened and a white-coated servant entered carrying a tray. He walked over to them and set his burden down.

Lady Min caught at his sleeve as he turned to leave. "Wait!"

"Listen," said Ap,"we've been waiting two days to see the Base Commander. He can't be that busy!"

The servant shrugged and went out closing and barring the door behind him.

"I guess you get that way on an asteroid base!" said Ap.

Lady Min stared at the barred door. "Ap, something must be wrong! I feel it.Why should a Loyal Officer keep us waiting?"

"I sent him messages that you were the greatest actress in the universe and had vital data." He looked defensive. "Maybe I'm flopping as a press agent! Probably.".They sank back hopelessly ignoring the luncheon tray.

Some hours later the bolts grated and the door opened. An officer uniformed in blue and white entered, followed closely by a uniformed guard who held his blast rifle at ready.

Coolly the officer said, "The Base Commander will see you now."

Ap looked at the guard, the blast rifle held at ready, its safety lock off. "Future Zero!" he whispered to himself.

The officer escorted them through the long tunnels and ramps which led up through the light gravity of the asteroid.

The Base Commander's office was spacious even for an asteroid base. Behind the desk was a large illuminated chart of the home planet system with small patrol craft on pins. The kidney-shaped desk was long but very narrow. The Base Commander was young, guileless, with the optimism of youth and a bit bored. He was uniformed in Loyal Officer khaki but his collar was open. A holstered blast pistol was belted about his waist, but his hands folded behind his head as he leaned back in his chair showed that he considered the whole thing rather dull, not even really amusing.

On his right sat Doctor Stug, smiling, smooth. Beside Doctor Stug and standing against the wall were two toughs in the green-grey and kepis of the secret police.

The corridor door burst in and Lady Min, Ap and their escort entered.

The scene was so different from anything she had been anticipating that Lady Min stopped in shock. Ap tried to back hurriedly out of the doorway but was shoved forward by the guard's rifle.

Doctor Stug smiled professionally and affably, "Ah, come in, come in my dear. Don't be frightened. These people won't hurt you." He turned to the Commander, "It's certainly a relief to know they can be taken back for the treatment they need, poor things."

The Base Commander nodded absently.

Lady Min advanced to the edge of the desk, "Don't listen to him." She jerked her head towards Stug. "I am the Lady Min. I must talk to you and quickly. Alone!"

The Base Commander gazed at her languidly.

"As I said, poor girl," said Stug. "She's always had these paranoid hallucinations.

Somebody after her. Messages of vast importance. I thought she had been cured and, well, there you are." He began to rise.

"So we'll put them back in the institution. Very sorry to have..."

"Don't listen to him! I am the Lady Min!".With a bored smile the Base Commander reached down to a waste basket and pulled out a newspaper. Spreading it on his desk he revealed a front page picture of Lady Min. The caption said,"Lady Min gives charity ball. Yesterday Lady Min was hostess to three thousand notables at a ball for Charity to Stray Children."

The photograph was a very touched up press photo showing Lady Min with a huge head of hair and coronet.

The Base Commander's finger traced along the newspaper's date. "Then how is it Lady Min was on the Capital Planet three days ago and you are here?" He tossed the newspaper aside and reclined back in his chair. "She doesn't even look like you."

Lady Min was getting furious with frustration.

"That's a wig, you idiot. And that's a fake paper."

Stug again started to rise. "Well, we'd better be going. She does bear some slight resemblance. Trades on it too."

Both Stug and the Base Commander were on their feet. The Base Commander leaned forward with his knuckles on the desk. "Well I suppose these things happen.

Glad to be of assistance...."

Lady Min put out her hand to stop him. "Wait, I'll prove to you that I'm a stage actress. Look! What is that doing under your belt?"

Dear God, let this thing work. With her left hand she made a pass over his belt buckle and then, gracefully, with her right hand appeared to pull a dove out from behind the belt buckle on the Commander's stomach.

The dove began to fly away in a mad flutter of wings.

Her darting left hand flipped his holster open and then in a fraction of a second had transferred his blast pistol to her left thigh,snapping her garter down on it and flipping her voluminous skirt over it.

All eyes were on the dove which pounded the air, veered off from Stug and finally came to rest on a desklight.

Stug rapidly interrupted anything the Base Commander was about to say, "Yes, she always amused other patients with that trick." He gestured at the secret policeman who promptly took hold of Lady Min and Ap and pushed them toward the door.

"I'm certainly pleased with your cooperation, Commander." said Stug. "With your permission, we'll be taking off now for Home Planet." He shook the Base Commander's hand.

"Say, by the way," said the Base Commander, "I thought the Secret Central Police had been disbanded."."Oh, those," said Stug. "I think they're finding them other jobs as fast as they can.

Poor devils. Soon they'll be out of work, the economy being as it is. Well, good-bye and thank you."

"The Base Commander glanced at the dove and then back at Stug. "You sure have some interesting patients. Well, have a safe trip."

A few minutes later, in the hangar, the green sign "Safe Atmosphere" began to go on and off as the huge side ports exhausted and salvaged the hangar air. The red sign "No Air" flashed on. The hangar door began to grind open.

The Police spaceship interior was grey-green, like any prison. One secret policeman was at the controls while the other finished fastening the ramp lugs from inside.

Stug shoved Ap and Lady Min back down the aisle and slammed them into the two hard seats at the back of the ship. Partial bulkheads were on either side of the seat and it was ordinarily enclosed with a strong wire door.

Shoulder-height thick straps were fixed to the seat back. Stug, with no gentle hands, snapped the strap shut across Ap's chest and then turned to Lady Min. She was shorter than the usual prisoner and the wide belt barely enclosed her shoulders. Stug tightened it with abrupt ferocity.

"That will do until we get you troublemakers on an operating table," said Stug.

The ship surged forward with an ascending whine and zoomed out of the hangar into space.

Stug steadied himself and then reached for the cage door, stepping outside the enclosure.

Lady Min looked up to her right into an area hidden from view from the forward part of the ship. An expression of shocked horror and terror spread over her face.

She screamed.

"My God," shrieked Lady Min. "A time Bomb!"

The pilot sprang up from his controls and whirled to come back down the aisle. The other guard froze in paranoid horror. They very well knew their own service and they had no slightest doubt that it was often in the State interest that prisoners not arrive alive.

"A time bomb!" screamed Lady Min. "They never intended us to reach there alive! Let me out!"

Both guards were now rushing towards the back of the ship.

Stug had ceased to close the cage door, He threw it open, fumbling with the lock, and then thrust his head into the compartment looking up toward the hidden spot..Lady Min hitched the strap up to the level of her throat. Her hand darted to her skirt and yanked it up, All in one motion she threw the safety catch of the blast pistol and drew it from under her garter.

Green violent flame hammered at Stug's stomach pounding him back from the door with a massive blow.

He went down.

The nearest secret policeman skidded to a halt. He clawed at his holster.

Lady Min fired. The shot took him on the left shoulder and spun him toplike, his blast pistol flying up the aisle.

The second secret policeman reached frantically for the bulkhead gunrack and yanked down a blast rifle.

He brought it to his shoulder, aiming.

Lady Min fired.

Her shot slammed into the muzzle of the blast rifle. Fragments of the weapon disintegrated the guard's head and shoulders in a great gout of green flame.

Smoke drifted and eddied along the floor and through the cabin of the police craft.

The three bodies lay inert, pounded and charred out of recognition.

Lady Min stood up shakily.

Tendrils of smoke spiraled up toward the air circulators and purifiers.

Lady Min gradually wound down.

Ap, with a considerable struggle, got out of his strap and stood up, steadying himself against the partial partition. He coughed in the green fumes.

The ship's motors continued in an accelerating whine. Its nose bored relentlessly outward into the vast emptiness of outer space.

Ap sighed, "So now what do we do for navigation?".CHAPTER EIGHT Rawl stood alone on the parade ground of Galactic Base Earth.

The brisk wind from the deep blue sea snapped and rustled in the flags. The parade ground was paved with white marble and surrounded by a gilded and ornate balustrade . In the far distance stood a volcano, the wind pushing its plume of smoke into a horizontal banner. Ner, the black mountain which contained the barracks, vast hangars and work shops, reared above the parade ground, its face honeycombed with hangar doors from which could spring a multitude of defense and attack ships as well as transports.

On the parade ground a band, brightly uniformed in blue and white, played a military air.

The wind rippled Rawl's khaki. He looked toward the two groups approaching him, a faint smile on his lips and a trifle of unfriendliness in his eyes.

The first group was composed of the high ranking officers who had headed the Earth Secret Police Organization. They were uniformed in grey-green with much gold braid.

Zell, head of the Earth Secret Police, advanced with outstretched hand.

"Well, it's farewell Earth for us," said Zell as he shook hands.

Rawl's eyes were watchful. "So you're leaving us to return to the Home Planet.

Departing today?"

"Within the hour." He looked around and sighed. "All in all we of the Secret Police have not been too unhappy here on Earth," he sighed. "And on arrival home we'll be disbanded."

"Fortunes of war," said Rawl.

The Secret Police Chief could not quite keep the viciousness out of his voice. "Yes, well, that Congress of yours finished us. But it's all for the best, of course. Our eight regiments will be getting spaceborne right now. So, fortunes of war, eh?"

One by one the Secret Police executives shook Rawl's hand. All in all, Rawl thought, they were a seedy lot for all their gold braid. They bore the mark of their profession, a bit craven, shifty-eyed, and debauched.

Rawl looked toward the second group. These were civilians, the heads of the Personal Tax Collector Units.

Their chief shook his hand. "The tax clerks and staff all bid you farewell Commander Rawl. No more personal tax, hah, hah."

Rawl took his limp sweaty hand and shook i t . "Are all your clerks and investigators leaving as well?"."Yes, we've pulled every one of them out of the two thousand cities of Earth. " He gestured toward the looming base . "It's back to Home Planet and unemployment for all of us. "

The five civilian chiefs after him one by one shook Rawl's hand and followed the Secret Police executives toward the entrances and ramps of the base.

But the tax chief could not resist a final jibe. He turned when some distance off. "Watch your privacy doesn't get invaded."

Rawl stood for some time watching them go, his eyes narrow, speculative. The band ceased playing, its drummer boys began to beat a march and it moved off.

Rawl walked over and leaned against the gilded balustrade, his eyes still on the cliff face.

The transports began to eject from the hangars one by one then two by two then four by four.

At length Rawl gestured toward a communicator "Bring me a communications cart!"

The cart rolled forward, equipped with compact panels and a view screen. The communicator was pushing buttons on it, bringing it to life as he wheeled it forward. Rawl picked up a cubicle mike.

"Get me Solar System Interceptor Combined Headquarters on Uranus. Commander Mish."

The communicator reached across the cart, pulled a lever and hit a red button.

While he waited Rawl gazed at the panorama of departing ships. Their sound was punctuated with small explosions as they ejected from the hangars, pulled up steeply and cracked the sound barrier. The more distant ones flashed pinpoints of light as they cracked the light barrier after leaving atmosphere. Rawl gave his attention to the cart. "Hello, Mish."

The view screen was a trifle sun-glared and the communicator adjusted its hood. Mish's face went clear. He was smiling. His collar was unbuttoned, his cap was off and he was drinking from a steaming cup. He was very glad to hear from Rawl.

"Hello, Rawl. How's the good planet Earth?"

"The Secret Police and income tax people," Rawl said into the mike. "They're leaving the planet. About one hundred and fifty thousand of them."

"Well, hip hurrah for them," said Mish sarcastically.

"I'll show you." He turned the mike toward the cliff face.

Mish stared intently at his own view screen, "That's sure a lot of transport."

"That's the point. They're taking every transport we've got. But why didn't some of them stay here? They're being disbanded. Earth's a good planet."."Ah"

Rawl looked at the cliff's face again and the long extended parade of ships. "They took it too tame, too cheerful in fact. Mish, I wish to smoke I had some reliable intelligence from Home Planet. It's too quiet. I'm getting nothing from there and haven't for a couple of months."

"You want me to run a patrol?"

"No, that would tell us nothing. What I want you to do is order every Solar System Station you have stock up on ammunition, fuel, food and spare parts. Got it?"

"Good. The day you can trust Xenu will never dawn." Rawl hung the mike on the communications cart.

The wind whipped at the flags. The long parade of departing ships made a line across the sky that was black and ominous.

Rawl didn't like it. Not one bit. He settled his cap against the tugging wind and continued to look at the sky..CHAPTER NINE

Through the windscreen of the Police interceptor ship Ap stared hopelessly at the onrushing planet.

A thunder and lightning storm was raging in the lower atmosphere. They were approaching it awfully fast.

"I can't figure out what planet it is. We're a long way from the solar system. Whatever star this planet belongs to, it's got atmosphere, maybe even oxygen. Maybe."

The atmospheric flaps of the police ship were down, bent and buckling. The tips of the flaps were glowing incandescent.

The tips began to burn and the flickering light of the flame sputtered through the cockpit punctuated by the flashing of lightning in the storm they were now entering.

Lady Min was crouched down in her seat, her head turned away from Ap. She was crying quietly to herself.

They were out of food, out of water and their air tanks indicator was flashing danger red.

"Nothing about the Secret Police was right including their mucked up ships. There's no eject"' He stabbed again at the red "Emergency Decelerate" button.

He rocked the manual controls again. They were limp. The auto pilot had evidently jammed in, engaged.

"Buckle yourself in tighter. On the bottom side of this lightning storm is a crash!" He looked sideways and saw that Lady Min was crumpled up in despair. He reached over and tightened her straps.

The piercing shriek of the air rushing by made his nerves feel as though they were tearing apart.

Belatedly deceleration cut in. The storm was all about them, the lightning cutting jagged blades of blue and yellow. A flame from their burning wing tips danced in reflection across the windscreen.

The air appeared to be solid water as they struck into the torrents under the clouds.

Ahead of them Ap could see an expanse of watersaturated jungle.

A huge tree was rushing up at them.

It struck in an explosion of leaves and limbs.

The striking ship made an enormous geyser of mud..He had no recollection of how he got out of the ship. A short time later he came to himself crouching beside a jungle path that was running torrents of water. Lady Min was on the ground where he had placed her. The drenching iciness of the rain brought him out of it. He had no idea whatsoever how he had gotten her out of the ship.

He bent over her, felt for her pulse and looked in growing panic at her bloodless lips and white face.

A searing flash of red flame was followed with a hammer blow of concussion as the police ship exploded some distance from them.

He looked dazedly about him. Jungle, jungle, jungle. Jungle and rain.

He stared at the torrent of water going by them and realized at length that it was a cart track, turned into a creek by the storm. Thunder rumbled. The distance he could see grew slightly greater as the torrent lessened. But still there was nothing but jungle, jungle, jungle.

He gently picked up Lady Min and started down the cart track, expecting at any instant to be pounced upon by wild beasts or snakes.

He walked along a river bank, his shoes collecting great globs of mud. He found another track, a broader one and trudged down it.

The thunder muttered in the far distance.

Soaked, exhausted and stumbling, he did not see the wall until he collided with it directly. He backed up and stared at it. Yes, it was a wall, green-grown and slimy but made out of rocks. It was very high, so high he could not see the top of it. It reached from his left and from his right beyond any visibility.

Then he saw that the cart track had ended at a small square door, itself almost obscured with vines.

He staggered toward it and fumbled for its latch.

"Future Zero," he sighed and pushed the door inward.

It was a room of rough stone, littered with odds and ends of metal. There was a huge block of stone which served as a work bench or desk and sitting at it was a hulking man in a filthy undershirt. The man did not look up. Ap swept some pieces of metal out of his way and placed Lady Min gently in the corner. He shut the outside door.

The man still had not looked up but continued to work on the bent barrel of a blast rifle which lay in pieces on the table before him.

"Are you the guys that crashed out there a while ago?" He pushed the gun back in disgust, stretched and yawned.

Ap crossed over to the table. Might as well try. "What place is this? ,what planet?".The man finished his yawn and rubbed his arms before looking up. "This planet?

This is the crummiest, louseforgotten, steam-beamed, ball of mud..." He swept a lazy arm. "Welcome to Altec, pearl of the Southern Galaxy. Welcome to Stip, gun-running capital of the Confederation, haven of the..."

Suddenly, he got angry. Half-rising from his seat, .he shook a grimy, grease-smeared finger at Ap. "You know what happened? When that Congress ripped up them oppress orders, this place got to be a condemned, rip-blasted graveyard, that's what."

To Ap's relief, the other man's anger faded. The man sat back in his chair with a deep sigh, despair written on his face. "No crime means no guns. No explosives. We're broke, finished. Some of the best outlaws in the Galaxy quit us and went back to honest work." He shook his head sorrowfully.

Rallying, he banged a fist on the table, sending gun parts scattering and Ap's alarm level up to a high pitch. "Bird dung!" he snorted.

The man flung an angry glare at Ap and went back to fiddling with his gun. "Well, what the blast do you care?"

Ap shuffled his feet uncomfortably. If only he were back home, safe. Man looked nasty. "Who's in charge here?"

"I am," he muttered, still working on his gun, "but in charge of what? Fourteen thousand broken-down crooks and ten busted-up ships."

He stabbed viciously at the gun, then swung his arm in a wide arc. "You see before you the great outlaw leader, Sna, Lord of Stip. But don't," he added, red eyes suspicious and tool jabbed toward Ap for emphasis, "ask for a job. We're so dead we stink."

Losing interest, Sna returned to his gun. "Get out of here. Go on into town." He waved the tool over his shoulder to indicate a back door. Boring, boring, boring. Nothing ever happened anymore, and who gives a damn anyway?

Giving up, Ap turned back to Lady Min. better check the town out. If there even is a town, maybe.

Kneeling down, Ap anxiously checked Lady Min's pulse. Its unsteady beat alarmed him, as did the dead white of her face. He looked back over his shoulder at Sna and almost asked where a doctor could be found, but decided against it. The man was ignoring him so pointedly, he probably wouldn't have answered anyway.

He eased Lady Min into his arms and stood up carefully. Picking his way across the smoky room, he reached the door and went through it, shutting it sharply behind him.

Outside, the rain had stopped but the main street of Stip before him was a narrow, curving river of mud. Ap grimaced in dismay, he'd had enough of mud. He looked around to get his bearings. The buildings were decayed, obviously having passed their prime a long, long time ago. Crooked signs poked out from dilapidated shops.

A couple of drunks were lying, lost in stuporous slumber, on a flat stone slab that.fronted a sleazy bar. Wolf-like and heavily fanged, a dog was walking up the street toward Ap. It stopped to sniff a drunk, then moved on.

Ap shuddered. Friendly place, but where to now? .He studied the various signs and was thankful to see one that announced a "Dr. Ax" and next to it, a "Drug Emporium"

Gently tightening his arms around Lady Min, he made for the Doctor's house.

The door was partially open, nearly falling off its hinges. Ap knocked and settled himself against the casing to wait. Inside, some bedsprings creaked. Shuffling footsteps approached, bringing a gaunt, grizzled man with them.

"Go 'way," grumbled Dr. Ax as he unsuccessfully tried to close the door. Pausing, he peered at his callers. "You got money?"

Ap nodded and fished in his pocket. The doctor peered more closely at Lady Min. Fine gal, could do with more flesh on her bones. Looks pale, though.... Catching sight of a bill in Ap's hands, Dr. Ax abandoned his trail of thought and seized the money. Ten Galactic credits! He jumped up and down, hardly able to contain his excitement.

"Dregomine," he proclaimed breathlessly, "is vitally necessary." He shoved the bill somewhere in his jacket and pushed past Ap, heading for the Drug Emporium.

"Take her to the Grand Hotel," he called back over his shoulder. "I'll be right there."

Ap glanced down the street to where it turned. Some hotel. Its sign had fallen off to lie in the debris beside some filthy steps. Wearily, Ap trudged toward it, at least it would be warmer inside. Hopefully.

The lobby had once been a fancy place. Now, it sagged sadly in advanced disarray. A man lounged on a divan, busying himself with a bottle, not looking over as Ap entered.

"You got a room?"

The man just stared at the ceiling. "Do I have a room?" He laughed derisively. "When those income tax laws were in effect, you couldn't get a room. Two hundred millionaires in this town to escape tax. Wine, women, money everywhere. Then they cancel the law. The millionaires all go back home. They don't need a tax haven anymore." He shook his head and took a gulp from the bottle.

Annoyed, Ap repeated his question. "Do you have a room?"

Eyes still on the ceiling, the man ,waved the bottle. "Take any you can find. Want to buy a hotel?"

Ap grunted and gazed around the lobby. Place sure was run-down, he observed, even the elevators were out of order. Casting a final glare at the hotel proprietor, he proceeded up the stairs..Picking a random door, Ap entered a room. Despite the smothering dust, it still clung to an air of cheaply imitated luxury. Twisted drapes flanked a window that looked out over cloudy skies, rooftops and stone battlements. An unmade bed leaned against a peeling wall.

Ap straightened out the covers, laid the still unconscious Lady Min down on the bed and began to loosen her soaked, ice-cold clothes.

Dr. Ax, having tracked Ap's muddy footprints, waltzed into the room and threw his tattered bag down on the bedside table.

Humming to himself, the doctor produced a package from somewhere on his person and ripped it open to reveal a syringe filled with a clear fluid. He rolled up his sleeve and plunged the needle into his arm.

Ap raised an eyebrow as the doctor pushed down the plunger and drew the needle out with a convulsive shudder.

Smiling brightly, the doctor tossed the syringe aside. "Now that the preliminaries are attended to, let's have a look at the little lady."

After a long examination of Lady Min, accompanied by much bandaging and tuneless whistling, Dr. Ax signalled for Ap to follow him out of the room.

In the hallway, Ap closed the door behind them, patiently watching the doctor set his bag to rights.

"She's got concussion, three broken ribs and a torn ligament in her arm and that will be another ten credits," the doctor announced, all in the same tone of voice.

Ap glanced back at the door and fished a bill out, jerking it back teasingly as the doctor tried to snatch it. "And how long will she be laid up?"

"Two or three months," Dr. Ap replied, attempting to grab the bill.

"And if you give her your very best medical attention....?"
"Two months."

"...And if you had a regular supply of your Dregomine?"

Leaping high, the doctor grabbed the note. "Six weeks!" holding it lovingly, he fairly drooled over the bill. "Six weeks," he whispered again.

"If these hold out," he added, a shadow of doubt crossing his wizened face.

Ap pulled out another ten credit bill. "Five weeks," he said, holding on tightly as the doctor tugged frantically at the bill. "Five weeks!" echoed Ax with a vigorous nod.

The note released, Dr. Ax scuttled off..Re-entering the room, Ap crossed over to the window and leaned on the sill.

Weeks! Five of 'em! And in the middle of nowhere. That man, Sna, was right. This is a steam-beamed ball of....oh damn!.CHAPTER TEN

The music was awful. Broken for a long time, the juke box skipped and fumbled its way through the musical phrases. No one listened anyway.

Early yet, the hotel's barroom-cum-nightclub had few occupants . Some bunged-up, one-eyed, -armed or -legged outlaws lounged around. The bartender leaned on his counter, chin propped in hand. A black-outfitted pilot sat alone in an alcove, listlessly fingering a handful of darts . Staring blankly at the wall before him, the pilot spun the occasional dart at it, bringing down flakes of plaster and insects.

Near the mezzanine stairs, a group sat playing dice . The bulk of the square chips spilled over beside Ap.

The other players were having less luck, their own meager piles of chips proved it.

Greedily eyeing the pot, they tensely waited for Ap to throw.

Disinterestedly rattling three of the eight-sided dice, Ap had his mind elsewhere . A worried frown marked his brow as he turned to the doctor. "Doc, you said five weeks."

Dr. Ax shrugged. "You got a day left. "

His frown more pronounced, Ap threw the dice, reached out. and pulled in the pot.

"I think I had better go up and see if she's conscious yet."

The hotel proprietor half-rose in protest as Ap began to push his chair back. "Hey, no! You can't quit a winner like that!"

Sna laughed."He's going to wind up the richest man in Stip!" He turned his leering face to Ap. "Want to buy a gun-running base?"

Suddenly reaching out and grabbing Ap's sleeve, Dr. Ax's face was split in a wide grin as he pointed to the mezzanine stairs.

Following the doctor's direction, Ap saw Lady Min there. Thin, face pale against her gauzy red dress, she steadied herself against the bannister as she carefully negotiated the steps downwards. A little triumphant over her accomplishment, she smiled shyly at Ap and the others.

Ap let out a long breath of relief. Starting to rise again, he stopped to look at his chips. To the doctor's shocked surprise, .Ap shoved them at him, then he upped and raced for the stairs.

Ecstatic, Ap reached Lady Min's side. He couldn't talk, was afraid to touch her. Not knowing what else to do, he whooped in delight and hugged the bannister.

The late afternoon crowds had drifted in. Brokendown outlaws smoked, drank and argued among themselves. The bartender was kept busy sloshing gut-rotting liquor into ever-emptying glasses. The dog Ap had seen weeks ago was there too, lying beside the door..Just off the dance floor, Ap was hammering out a tune that had been popular in pro-Congress days on a beat-up electric piano.

Looking fully recovered and stunning in a golden gown, Lady Min was seated on the piano, mike in hand.

The song was one of longing to go places far away. Singing it with feeling, Lady Min directed frequent, meaningful glances across the room to where the pilot sat in his alcove.

But Pilot Tring ignored the song. Keeping his rapt attention on the roach-covered wall before him, he flipped a dart. Skewered right through the middle, a cockroach scrambled its feet helplessly, then expired as silently as it had lived. Smiling to himself, Tring settled back leisurely and raised a glass to his lips.

A burst of applause followed the song's conclusion. Lady Min gracefully slid off the piano and bowed to her audience. Keeping her demeanor professionally charming, she vented some of her pique in an aside to Ap. "I don't believe he's human!"

Ap, poker-faced, hardly moved his lips as he replied. "Human or not he's the only pilot here that has a spaceship that can get us to Earth. If it's still there."

Blowing a last kiss to the cheering men, Lady Min set down the mike and weaved her way through the overturned chairs to the end alcove.

Paying no attention whatsoever to the approaching vision, the pilot just flipped a dart as Lady Min perched provocatively on his table. She leaned over and spoke softly to him. "Changed your mind about the charter?"

Tring still didn't look up. "Politics I hate" he stated, flipping a dart.

"Galactic Confederation I hate." Flip.

He paused to consider a moving target on the wall. "Women I hate," he added, flinging the dart.

Nonchalantly, Lady Min pulled a joined string of glittering jewels from her bosom to dangle them in the pilot's face. "Jewels," she said soothingly, "are currency in any galaxy."

No response. She sighed in discouragement and put the jewels away. Getting to her feet, she began to move back to the piano, when the door across the room was burst violently open.

Sna entered, knocking the yelping dog flying. A strip of paper waving in his trembling hand. "Hey, hey listen!" he shouted. "We've been saved!"

The room went very still. Only the dog, barking in outrage, made any movement.

Overcome with jubilation, Sna barrelled forward to stand imposingly in the center of the dance floor. "I got a special secret message from the Minister of Police. We been recruited. Every able-bodied man on this base has been made a special agent. And every ship we got has been put into Confederation service!".The hush in the room ceased abruptly. Outlaws leapt to their feet and surged forward, calling to friends and foe alike, exchanging heated opinions and speculations.

A few people, however, were not pleased, one being Tring who stood up, wide-eyed, tense. Clenching his fists in anger and trepidation, he hissed furiously.

"That's just one ship- mine."

Meanwhile, Lady Min threw an agonized glance at Ap. Racking her brains, she signalled her hastily construed plans to him. He rolled his eyes. "Future zero!"

Turning, he moved to unobtrusively follow Sna as the man ploughed through the surging throng toward the pilot's alcove.

"There you are, Pilot Tring," Sna boomed, all bonhomie. "Just the man I wanted to see."

Tring stared at Sna, hands fiddling nervously with his holster flap. Rip-blasted phony; who'd he think he was. Not going to fork over my ship. No way! "You what?"

"Here's the message. Just came in." Sna brandished the paper under the pilot's nose." 'The whole blasted base, every outlaw recruited in the service of the Ministry of Police. High ranks, high pay! And every ship taken into service..."

The pilot convulsively clutched the table. "There's just one ship here - mine!"

Unnoticed by either man, Ap slipped behind the pilot as Tring's voice rose to a scream.

"I wouldn't work for the condemned blasted Confederation for anything!"

Unperturbed, for he had an overwhelming faith in his ability to get what he wanted, Sna laid a pacifying hand on Tring's arm. "Ah, now, now, now. Not for a thousand credits a week?"

Easing a pistol from under his jacket, Ap pressed it lightly into the pilot's back.Tring kept his eyes riveted on Sna who, unaware, continued his persuasions.

"This is your chance. This is all our chances. Why, man, they'll make you a general or something..."

By now, Ar, had picked up the pilot's jacket and was draping it over his arm and gun.

Sna shook the paper vigorously. "All charges forgotten, look. Look at the message!"

Still, Tring had made no move. Ap, having completed the masking of the gun, glanced up at the mezzanine where Lady Min stood. She nodded at him, a wad of coats over her arm and two grip cases in her hand.

Ap turned back to face Sna and spoke convincingly in the pilot's ear. "Pilot Tring, it sounds pretty unreasonable, I know, but look, Tring. This is your chance!".The pilot made no reply. Just slitted his eyes as the gun jabbed him slightly in the back.

"Tring," continued Ap, "as an old friend, please tell Sna you'll do him this favor."

Swallowing spasmodically, the pilot managed to choke out an "All right."

"In fact," Ap jabbed the gun again, "I'll help Pilot Tring get his ship ready. You'll need it for transport. Let's go!"

Beaming, overjoyed, Sna stepped back to let them pass.

Steering the pilot over to the exit, Ap began trembling with relief. Stage one of the escape plan done...maybe.

Fortunately, the spaceport was deserted.

Lady Min was standing anxiously in the boarding door of Tring's craft. The coats and cases lay in a heap beside her. She chewed a fingernail, dear God let them come!

Hearing running footsteps, she looked down to see the pilot and Ap running across the landing field. She beckoned urgently to them as they raced up the stairs to the flight platform, and stepped back as the two men crowded through the door.

Tring hurried up the aisle and scrambled into the pilot's seat, hands reaching for the controls. Ap came to stand behind him, gun now held openly.

Through the windshield, the blue of the late afternoon sky was pierced by the occasional spire. The tangible silence was broken only by the whine of the ship's starting motors.

With a lurch, they took off, the acceleration pressing the ship's passengers down and back, forcing Ap to grab the co-pilot's seat in order to keep his gun trained on the pilot.

Suddenly, the pilot began to laugh. Loud, extravagant, the sound mingled with the rising shriek of engines.

Banking the ship again, Tring tried to still his laughter. Without looking back, he finally managed to speak. "You can put that gun away. You didn't even need it. You did me a huge favor getting me out of there. They would have killed me for my ship."

Startled, Lady Min and Ap stared at the pilot, roundeyed in amazement. Then they too burst into laughter.

Ap looked at his gun and put it away. Reaching over, he clapped the pilot on the back. Guy must be all right, take us to Earth, maybe.

CHAPTER ELEVEN.

Surrounded by huge trees, Xenu's secret base on Home Planet was dominated by a single domed building.

Low and ominous,military drums beat a deadly rhythm. Rank upon rank of grey-green uniformed secret police, fully armed, lined the parade ground in military formations. Over by the operations dome, an ill-dressed mob of renegades stood watching.

An inspections party walked through the ranks, headed by Xenu and Chi. With them were tough looking renegade guards, several high ranking officers of the secret police, Zel the ex-Chief of Secret Police Earth and Sty the chief psychiatrist.

Xenu curiously inspected the troops as he passed them by. He turned to the sweating Chi to bark a query. "Are you sure this base is still secret and secure?"

Chi mopped his brow with a soaked handkerchief. Fool idea, this inspection. Too hot for it. Damned question anyway, Xenu already knew his orders on security had been carried out to the letter. "We've shot anyone who comes close to it."

Xenu nodded. "Then we're almost ready."

"Indeed we are," Chi agreed, noting thankfully that Xenu was starting to head for the operations building.

Stopping before the band of renegades, Xenu banged his cane to catch the regard of one of the two slouching Chiefs of the Renegades. "And those men?"

The Renegade Chief smiled evilly, displaying a broken row of yellow teeth. "Those are my finest renegades, sir. The finest and best criminals in the Galaxy, fit for deviltry. And thousands more ready on every planet."

Again, Xenu nodded and moved on.

Halting abruptly, Xenu turned back to the Renegade Chief. "Get them in white coveralls. They look like something from a sewer."

Obeying Xenu's next signal to follow him, the Chief sauntered along behind the rest of the party. He scowled at Xenu's retreating back, scowled at his deputy chief beside him.

Steam-beamed maniac. Must have a loose screw in his finicky head - lily-white coveralls? Nuts!

Ignoring the outbreak of ragged cheering among the renegade mob, Xenu led the way up the stairs and through the arched doors of the operations building.

The actual operations office was located in the dome of the building. The sloped walls, painted with stars and planets, served as an operations map and were studded with abundant miniature spaceships and flags. Crouching below, a huge table was flanked on one side with three large rollers. On the other side, by a rack stacked high with papers..Xenu entered the room, banging the door wide as he came, and limped across to the table. The two secret police clerks, standing rigidly to attention, were waved brusquely aside.

Putting his cane down, Xenu picked up a hooked stick and turned to face his officers. Slap-slapping the hook in his palm, he regarded his officers for a moment.

Blackguards, the lot of them, but they had their uses, oh yes they had their uses.

The men returned Xenu's regard, alert and expectant, though the animosity was mutual.

Finally, Xenu began his address. "This is your last and final briefing. Listen carefully."

He reached out with his stick and hooked it into the ring of the lowermost roller.

"This is a Phase One of the galactic-wide action." With a savage yank, he pulled out a chart from the roller that spread itself out, flat, on the table.

He rapped the stick on the first pile of papers on the rack. "And those are the detailed orders ready to issue.

"The objective of Phase One," Xenu continued, his voice losing all trace of its surface urbanity, "is the slaughter of every Loyal Officer in the Galaxy."

Grim and silent, his men nodded.

Reaching forward, Xenu engaged the second roller with his hooked stick. "Phase two: The destruction of the main galactic defense base on every planet."

Brutally, he yanked out the second chart so that it covered the first. He rapped the second stack of papers. "And the detailed orders."

With a nasty, irritating screech, the third chart was unfurled .Xenu struck the last stack of papers. "Phase Three: The removal of all minority and unwanted populations in the Galaxy to the planet Earth and their extermination."

A slow smile crossed his face. "I think you will find this solves all problems of overpopulation, crime and finance in the Galaxy as well as preventing our being deposed. Before Minister Chi issues the detailed orders, are there any comments?"

The momentary silence was broken by a sardonic Renegade Chief. "You're the paymaster," he sneered, running a hand through his hair.

Xenu glared the other down. And you - you're a prime bastard. Indicating for Chi to take over, Xenu retrieved his cane and stalked from the room, favoring his bad leg.

On the parade ground, the miscellaneous groups were breaking up .

Regiments of secret police and bands of renegades marched purposefully towards assigned destinations. Drums quickening in pace, the military ensemble also took their leave..Soon, only the litter remained to bear the wind and the scattered guards company.

Chi was standing on the roof, silhouetted against the stars.

His left hand held a radio transmitter. In his right, the dial of a stopwatch was illuminated by an electric lantern.

In his mind, he reviewed the injunctions that Xenu had given him concerning Phase One. Missed anything? Didn't seem that way, but still.... he glanced down at the stopwatch. With maddening slowness, the secondhand approached the appointed hour. Too late anyhow!

He clicked the stem of the timepiece and spoke into the radio. "Phase One!"

Paring his nails with a deeply notched knife, one of the Renegade Chiefs sat in his dark, unkempt office.

A speaker near his head crackled to life. "Phase One!"

The Chief lifted his chin to a nearby flunky.

The aide disentangled himself from his chair and began to shuffle out the room.

Vexed at the man's dawdling, the Chief threw his knife between the other's feet.

"Get going," he snapped.

The second Renegade Chief stood in the Intergalactic Control Center, outlined against the lighted curve of a communications panel. Beside him bristled a battery of microphones. Surrounding him was a tangle of wires.

The panel itself was a maze of jackplugs and the brightly lit names of the Galactic Confederation member stars: Sirius, Canopus, Alpha Centauri, Vega, Capella, Arcturus, Rigel, Procyon, Achernar, Beta Centauri, Altair, Betelgeuse, Acrux, Aldebaran, Pollux, Spica, Antares, Fomalhaut, Deneb, Regulus and Sol.

Whistling tonelessly, the renegade checked to ensure all stars were connected up to the mikes. They were. He flicked a switch and spoke. "All systems, all planets. Phase One!"

Car headlamps swung across the front of a suburban house, coming to rest aimed at the garage as the vehicle entered the driveway.

A Loyal Officer in his khaki coat and cap cut the engines and stepped out of the car.

Startled, he looked up as a spotlight suddenly stabbed at him from the dark.

Two blast guns fired.

Hit, the Officer slammed back against the car and crumpled to the ground.

Two men in white coveralls ran over to him. One stretched out a booted foot and lifted the Officer's shoulder to see if he was dead.

He was..A Loyal Officer trotted up the broad white stairs leading up to a governmental building.

Rifles blasted, taking his arm off at the shoulder.

Leaving a trail of red, he rolled slowly, inexorably, back down the steps.

Frowning over some despatch, a Loyal Officer never noticed as two white-coverall'ed men entered his office.

Raising their blast guns, they aimed and fired, pounding the Officer to the wall behind him, then down to the floor. His body charred, blackened, lifeless.

The two men turned and fled from the room.

A small scout craft landed. A Loyal Officer jumped down onto the spaceport pavement, removed his helmet. He looked up, alert, as a grenade-like object hurtled by to strike the ship's side.

A flash of fire erupted and leapt for the skies.

Shortly, the conflagration died down enough to reveal the dismembered craft, and beside it, a shriveled form.

In his darkened office, the first Renegade Chief was biting the end of a pencil. A stack of papers lay on the desk before him, the top list entitled: Loyal Officers Capella System.

The radio spoke. "Planet Chellis. Lieutenant Dahn."

The Chief hunted for and found the name. Crossing it out, he looked back up at the speaker.

"Captain Sten."

With a grandiose sweep of his hand, the Chief drew a long mark through the name, ripping the paper slightly. Fixed him ! Son of a space-hound had the gall to arrest me once.

The speaker crackled again....

Three Loyal Officers tore down a smoke-filled corridor, weapons held at the ready.

A heavy caliber blast gun blazed, swirling forth a ball of green flame to lace around the officers.

They fell forward, guns clattered to and skittering across the polished floor.

All was quiet in the barracks - until the whole damned place blew up in unmitigated finality.

A couple of secret police left the scene in a hurry, sprinting out the gate and under a placard that read: Loyal Officer Quarters, Betelgeuse System..Holding a rifle, a white-clad arm inched through a crack in the cautiously opening door.

Asleep in his bed, jacket and cap hanging on the post, a Loyal Officer muttered in his sleep.

The renegade froze, listening. Reassured, he sighted and jerked the trigger once, twice.

Green smoke and flame engulfed the bed.

Hunched over the Phase One chart, face eerily lit from below, Chi gripped a large marking pen in his slippery fist.

A legion of speaker-units babbled in the background. Names of stars and Loyal Officers occasionally flashed up on console screens.

A uniformed orderly stood by Chi's chair, holding a sheaf of papers. "Planets of Altair," he reported, "Phase One, All Clear."

Chi nodded and drew a circle on the already much circled chart. Laying down his marking pen, he wiped his hands on his pant legs. Business could go on all night.

He glanced at a clock. Business was going on all night.

He sighed in resignation and ordered some coffee.

A person, half-visible in the shadows, approached the table and handed a slip of paper to the orderly. The orderly checked it over and read it aloud to Chi. "Marcab System. Phase One. All Clear."

Chi mopped at his hands again, picked the pen up and added another circle to the chart.

Five Loyal Officers strained against the rope- that bound them to a white picket fence. Reflected in their perspiration were the spotlights that illuminated the scene.

A renegade finished securing the last Officer and scuttled off into the clear.

Automatic blasters let loose, tearing asunder the Officers, fence and all.

Burning brightly, scores of votive candles lit the cathedral altar. There, head bowed in prayer, knelt a Loyal Officer. His eyes flew open in shock as a rifle burst hammered him down.

Dislodged in the furor, a candle rolled to the floor. A vagrant current of air snuffed the momentarily flaring wick, to send a thin spiral of smoke curling upwards to the gods.

"Major Tonlin," buzzed the speaker.

The Chief popped a benny and gulped it down before crossing the name from his list..It had been a long night. The Chief was tired, irritated.He added another butt to the overflowing ashtray. At last that wrapped up the list for the Polaris System.

Daylight, filtering through from somewhere, encroached upon Chi's red-rimmed eyes.

The room was quiet now that the garrulous speaker-units were silenced.

The exhausted orderly, wearily gripping his enormously grown sheaf of papers, made a report: "Polaris System, Phase One, All Clear."

In a final, flourishing manner, Chi drew a large circle. Scratching his neck, he regarded his handiwork of circles on the chart. He grunted and turned to push a button on a console.

Xenu, sitting tense and rigid at his desk, staring off into nowhere, appeared on the screen.

Chi cleared his throat a couple of times and pressed the buzzer to draw Xenu's attention.

Finally, Xenu shook himself out of his reverie and fixed a steely eye on his screen.

"All going according to your plans, " said Chi with an inky thumbs-up sign.

"How many left?"

Chi waved his hand loftily. "Only a few on outlying Interceptor Bases. And only those in the planetary Galactic Bases themselves."

Xenu relaxed somewhat. "We'll get the Galactic Bases in Phase Two so that ' s no worry . Keep a news blackout going and put busy signals on all Loyal Officer networks. And keep working on those Interceptor Bases."

He switched off the circuit and rubbed his jaw, chuckling to himself.

Soon, soon. Victory was in sight. He chuckled again, and resumed his reverie..CHAPTER TWELVE

In outer space hung the black asteroid that was the Interceptor Control Center Solar System.

Mish stood on a glassed-in balcony appended to the asteroid's side. He completed a sweep of the star-studded voids and lowered the long-range viewing instrument.

He felt vaguely uneasy, disturbed - by what, he didn't know.

Unexpectedly, the door-way behind him filled with intermittent green flashes. Mish whirled around and dropped the viewer to grab his gun.

Moving inside, he was brought up short by the tableau posed within. A junior Loyal Officer stood frozen in aftershock, his blast rifle still smoking i n his hands . Over by the main entrance, two renegades were sprawled over the doorsill, a mist of green wisps rising from their bodies. A pistol lay where it had fallen, just beyond the renegade's out stretched arms.

The junior Officer unsteadily downed his rifle and pivoted around to face Mish, his voice breaking as he spoke. "These two were in that small ship that said it was in trouble."

Mish continued to stare in dismay at the bodies, hardly hearing as the junior Officer went on speaking: "They came in here with drawn guns."

Rousing himself, as if from a nightmare, Mish strode over to the communications panel, elbowing the communicator there out of the way.

Rapidly jabbing buttons, Mish cursed. Blast! Nothing but hell-fired busy signals. He banged his fist down in frustration, gritting his teeth as he said: "Home Planet network still busy."

The junior Officer joined him at the console. "I've been trying all day. Only a couple of our Interceptor Bases are answering up."

Exasperated, Mish punched another button. "I'll try Earth."

Rawl appeared on the screen. "Galactic Base Earth..." He began in a clipped voice, then seeing who was calling, he continued in a friendlier tone. "Oh, hello, Mish."

Mish made an effort to calm himself. Thank God at least this circuit was operational.

He leaned closer to the video scanner. "There's something going on," he said. "I can't get in touch with Home Planet on the Loyal Office circuit."

Rawl shrugged "It's happened before."

Mish slammed his hand on the console and swore. "Not at the same time as an attempt on my life!"

Taken aback, Rawl blinked. "I'll try it on the Galactic circuit.".Cutting the line, Rawl gestured to his communicator who proceeded to make the connection. Busy signal.

Seeing the communicator was only getting jammed lines, Rawl ordered another line be tried. "Get Xenu on Home Planet. The Supreme Ruler emergency lines ought to be open"

Xenu's face flashed onto the screen, smiling suavely. "Ah, Rawl. Glad to hear from you. What can I do for you?"

Rawl gazed at Xenu's image briefly, a wave of acute dislike for the man passing through him. "There are a lot of communication channels that don't seem to be working. Busy. Thought you might know."

Xenu raised his eyebrows in innocent surprise. "Is that so?"

Impatiently indicating an affirmative, Rawl raised his voice in vexation at the other's playacting. "I wanted to be sure this wasn't another Grey Invasion."

"I've heard nothing like that," soothed Xenu, with an air of offended worthiness. "I did hear there was some trouble with some new equipment that had just been installed. We're having to economize, you know..." unable to resist a dig, his voice hardened, "since the personal income tax was abolished."

Thinking fast, Xenu saw a possible advantage. Schooling himself back into pleasant urbanity, he resumed speaking. "But if you're worried, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll schedule space fleet maneuvers in your area over the next few days just to make sure."

Sharply breaking the connection, Xenu swiveled his chair around to snarl at Zel and Chi seated by his massive desk. "Rawl and possibly other Planet Base Commanders are getting suspicious."

Acutely uncomfortable, as always in Xenu's presence, Chi stared down at his hands and muttered something inaudible.

Ignoring his Minister of Police, Xenu forgot his displeasure. Gloating for an interval, he then exalted in his next words.

"Launch Phase Two.".CHAPTER THIRTEEN

Intensely, Tring studied a radar screen. He didn't like what he saw there. Not one bit.

Ap, bored and unaware of the conflicts raging in the pilot's mind, sat flopped back on a settee. Next to him, Lady Min was doing her nails as best she could, dabbing hit and miss with the polish as the craft rocked and shook.

"The screen here," said Tring hoarsely, "seems to indicate a lot of heavy spaceships over Earth, Galactic ships. Thicker than cockroaches."

He leaned back and turned to present a white face to his passengers. "I'm not going in there!"

Lady Min and Ap stared, appalled, at the pilot. He couldn't fail them - not now!

Tring waxed persuasive. "This Galaxy is getting too hot. Gone to buzzard bait. Listen, I've got a cache of fuel, food and air out on an asteroid. I'm going out there and fuel up and make the long jump to another galaxy." He raised a hand in mute appeal. "You're a couple of nice guys. There's all blazes about to break loose. I can feel it. Those jewels you got will serve as currency. How about it?"

Lady Min had gone rigid. "'We've got to get to Rawl." she insisted. "How do we get down?"

Shrugging, Tring squared himself around and got back to flying. He'd done his best. "All right if you want to get burned," he called back over his shoulder. "There's oxygen masks and parachutes under that seat. Put them on and get into the airlock. I'll spill you into the stratosphere over the base, and even that's risky."

Shaking his head, he snorted sadly. "Patriotism!" Well, he'd tried. Pity. Banking the ship, he took it downwards.

Rawl was standing in his office, gazing up at the overhead. A heavy rumble of ship's motors filling his ears. Something was going on, he was sure of it. But what?

Faces echoing Rawl's apprehension, two orderlies and a communicator were standing nearby. Rawl swung round and spoke to the communicator. "Maneuvers! Have you got any answer yet to why Earth ships were not invited to take part?"

The man shook his head, perplexed. Hadn't been able to raise the damned ships, let alone get an answer!

Rawl pointed at one of the orderlies. "Pass the order to get my ship ready for immediate blast-off. I'm going to do a flyby and look this over."

The orderly up and raced off. Rawl glanced back up at the ceiling. Can't figure this out....

He frowned, pounding an agitated fist into his palm. Moonshine! He wasn't achieving anything by moping around his office. He strode over to a wall hook and.took down his flight coat. Going out the door, he paused to call a command back to the remaining orderly. "Sound a base alert just in case."

Base alert was sounded. Klaxon horns rent the air with an insistent note. Several troops, uniformed in blue and white, ran across the parade ground towards their various stations. Hatches in the looming cliff face, cranked open to reveal dozens cf snub-nosed anti- spacecraft guns. Officers yelled directions to their crews.

Unobserved in the flurry, two parachutes, one hanging higher than the other in the blue sky, swung down from upwind towards the parade ground.

Lady Min landed first, rolling awkwardly to absorb her fall's impact. Scrambled to her feet, she ripped off her oxygen mask and, grabbing the chest release buckle, yanked hard. Her parachute and harness went sailing away.

She ran a hand through her disheveled hair and stared round-eyed at all the commotion. Jumping forward, she gripped the arm of a passing soldier. He skidded to a halt in obvious impatience.

"Where is Commander Rawl?" she asked, breathless.

He pointed to the cliffed hill and dashed off before she could speak again.

Now landed and rid of his parachute, Ap came to stand by Lady Min. He raised an inquiring eyebrow.

She tugged at his sleeve. "Rawl's up at the hangars. Come on!" She turned and raced off, Ap close behind, muttering to himself between his ragged breaths.

Some orderlies looked up in surprise as Lady Min and Ap barged into Rawl's cliff-side office.

"Where ' s Commander Rawl?"

An orderly indicated one of the other doors. "He's about to blast off."

Lady Min looked at him beseechingly, wringing her hands in desperation. Oh no !

They couldn' t be so close yet too late . "This is urgent, " she wailed. "Urgent!"

The orderly was puzzled . He didn't know who or what this lady was, but some of her agitation had been communicated to him. Decisively, he waved an arm for them to follow and raced out the room.

Rawl slid into his Interceptor's Pilot seat and strapped himself in. The ship's motors roared as he touched the starter.

Eyes and hands roaming across the control panel, Rawl readied the ship for take-off while speaking into his radio-mike. "Control. Interceptor One immediate launch."

Suddenly, the boarding door was flung open . Rawl turned and was amazed to see Lady Min and Ap sprawl into the aisle of his craft. "Lady Min!".The mass of Galactic bombers swooped low over the base. A bay opened in the belly of one of them, and a single bomb was released.

It hung there, motionless, for an instant, then plummeted downward, an angel of death.

Rawl shot a glance through the windscreen. Good, the hangar door was beginning to open. His radio crackled as Control gave launching clearance. Assured he could blast off at any moment, he swung back to face the aisle.

Lady Min had picked herself up, and was scrambling towards him. "I've got data for you," she gasped. "Urgent data...."

Rawl motioned her in brusquely. "You can tell me as soon as we blast off."

The hangar door was now opened all the way. Rawl pulled back on a lever and the Interceptor lurched forward to soar gracefully up into the cerulean heavens.

The bomb hit the base with an incandescent atomic blast.

Hurtling debris and smoke swept tumultuously across what had previously been a parade ground. The whole cliff buckled, collapsed. Turning into a roaring avalanche it slid down to disappear into the sea.

In other words, the entire base blew up.

Savagely working the controls, Rawl fought to steady his spinning ship.

Lady Min and Ap, trying desperately to hold on, were knocked about violently as the craft bucked and shook.

Gaining the upper hand, Rawl rocketed the ship upwards. Soaring a glance at the holocaust below, he grimaced. So that was what Xenu was up to. A sharp lurch brought his attention back to the controls. They weren't out of it yet .Not by a long shot.....CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Night was spreading her dark wings over the secret base on Home Planet.

Shady figures milled around the gloomily lit interior of the operations room -guards, the two Renegade Chiefs and several bearded psychiatrists among them.

At the table was Chi, holding a felt pen. He was sweating profusely because Xenu was also there.

Xenu, intent on the spreading Phase Two chart, listened with half an ear to Chi as his Minister called out stars and planets in a quavering, singsong voice.

"All Galactic bases Vega System," chanted Chi, putting a cross-mark on the chart. He continued his litany.

"All bases Spica." Made a cross.

"All Galactic bases Altair." Made another cross.

Then the speaker box piped up. "Galactic base Earth totally destroyed."

Cheered by this news, Chi exchanged a look of satisfaction with Xenu and drew an exaggeratedly large cross on the chart. A travesty of a smile curving his mouth, he glanced back up at his boss. "End Phase Two. "Now all opposition is removed, what are your next orders?"

Thoroughly enjoying himself, Xenu stretched, stood up and stretched some more. So this was what it felt like to be Supreme Ruler in full sweet fact.

He searched for his cane, couldn't find it, and hobbled over to the center of the room anyway. Assuming a splendiferously majestic pose, conscious that all eyes were on him, he spoke, savoring each word to the fullest. "Issue an all-Galactic proclamation. 'Due to crime wave, martial law is established on all planets.'"

He raised a pompous hand. "Gentlemen, we begin Phase Three.We are regaining political control of all planets. Even at this moment our planted agents will be seizing all governmental centers. But this is not enough!" He made a chopping gesture. "As you well know, minorities and people who might object, which is to say independent thinkers, protest a perfectly functioning police state, the ideal form af government. Furthermore, our planets are overpopulated. Phase Three consists of rounding up such people on every planet, transporting them to Earth and exterminating them."

A murmur of agreement spread through the listening group.

One of the Renegade Chiefs, seeking an advantageous opening in these affairs, regarded Xenu through slitted eyes. "If my men are to do this, they have to be within the law.".Chi was as happy as he could ever get, especially when he was in such close proximity with Xenu. He butted in with a rush of words. "All worked out. We are creating the Confederate Bureau of Investigation under the newly formed Justice Department.

Every one of your renegades are as of this moment appointed government agents G-men - with full official powers." So saying, he grinned like a wolf, albeit with a trace of bulldog.

The Renegade Chief replied with a wolfish grin of his own. He knew opportunity when he saw it.

Xenu stamped his good foot for attention. Getting it, he continued speaking. "The selection of these minorities is already determined. However, certain scientific judgement is required concerning others. For this reason, we have appointed you, the top leaders of the psychiatric profession..."

The bearded men, the psychiatrists, in the group leaned forward expectantly, hanging on Xenu's every word.

"...to handle the ultimate fate af minorities and to decide who should be exterminated." Xenu paused theatrically, then added a magnanimity. "I know you will do so in a fully scientific and dedicated manner."

Gravely, seriously, the psychiatrists nodded in unison. Sty, top dog amongst this elite cream the noble profession of psychiatry, nodded with particular emphasis, pleased with this arrangement. His long-sought lucky break at last.

Xenu's surface urbanity slipped. "They must," he screamed, "never trouble us again!"

Checking himself, he got his mask back in place, continued in a more subdued pitch. "The gathering from every planet shall begin. The extermination site is Earth."

He drew himself up to his full, if inconsiderable height. "Gentlemen, I officially announce the beginning of Phase Three."

As if by prearranged signal, several orderlies entered, bearing trays laden with bottle and glass. Someone had switched on a stereo, and soothing music filled the room. Drinks were passed around.

Xenu raised his glass. "And now, a toast...."

A family was seated at their midday meal. They started in shock as a gun butt banged loudly, three times, against their door, followed by a booted foot kicking it open. Two uniformed men entered on the run.

Obeying the signalling blast rifle, the family rose shakily. With rising terror, they were impelled out of the room.

The youngest, a little girl, screamed and clutched her mother's skirts. A vicious blow on the head silenced her..Sobbing aloud, the mother picked up her child, and was thrust onwards.

A street, lined with three-storied houses, was a pandemonium of panicking people. Secret policemen herded struggling men, women, and children out through exits and down into the street.

A little to the side, a psychiatrist stood, looking on, a loud hailer in his hand.

Protesting and bewildered blacks were being gathered from the shops and homes of their neighborhood by a group of bellowing secret police.

A second group of grey-green uniformed men who were in the center of the street, received the people passed to them. They held order with violent bashings and sweeps of their rifles.

In a white, middle-class suburb, a column of despairing yet striving individuals were being force-marched down an avenue.

The laugh of a young secret police officer could be heard above the din. The object of his amusement being an old woman, eyes shut tight and grasping a cross, being dragged along, legs trailing and bloody on the tarmac.

A white-coated psychiatrist sat in front of the flashing boards of the Intergalactic Network Communications control tower.

Professionally unemotional, he was speaking into a mike. "These are the determinations for the Procyon planet populations...."

He consulted the list in his hand. "All motion picture producers, all editors, writers and newscasters, all blacks, members of the government employees union...."

The sign, "Daily Post," hung limply, half-blasted apart, from the front of the building. Resisting employees of the newspaper were being driven down the steps and piled into a line of parked vans.

A thousand and more marched wearily down a long, dusty road. In between their shuffling legs, a child was being yanked along. She herself was pulling her doll along.

Tears ran down her face. Her sobs were muffled by the sounds of bootbeats and dragging steps.

One of the Renegade Chiefs joined the psychiatrist at the panel in the Intergalactic Network Communications control tower.

Bored, the Chief fiddled with his rifle, absentmindedly listening to the psychiatrist's droning voice broadcast a set of determinations.

"Vega System exterminations list: Religious leaders, athletes, musicians, teachers, salesmen. All the Ninth Terrestial Army. All actors. All unemployed. All members of the....".Trapped in a gully, the mob screamed frenziedly as white-jacketed men moved among them.

These men, the white-jackets, were but recently trained in the use of their hypodermic needles, having been pressed hastily into the service of the psychiatrists. They brandished their hypos ferociusly. The syringes contained a smoky, gaseous drug that induced instant unconsciousness for long, indeterminate periods of time.

Secret policemen knocked down or held individuals for the white-jackets to inject -in arms, legs, whatever.

Moaning, a woman struggled to rise and collapsed as a smoking needle was injected into her back.

White-jackets moved through a crowded garbage dump. In their wake, they left inert, motionless bodies to lie in heaps.

A constant stream of captives flooded through the gates at the far end of the stadium. Moving fast to keep apace with the flow, white-jackets competently wielded their hypos.

A public address system squawked. "Trucks will be here in three hours."

A white-jacket glanced over at one of his fellows. Would this river of bat-brained crackpots ever end?

A multitude of weaponless soldiers attired in the Loyal Corp's blue and white, were being wrestled into submission by grim, sweat-faced secret police.

The first of them was knocked down and then put out by a white-jacket's smoky needle.

And thus the Ninth Terrestial Army was overthrown.

Muttering secret police loaded the unconscious into a convoy of trucks.

The bodies were landing haphazardly, just tossed in as if they were so much cordwood.

It was night again. The Renegade Chief had moved to stand by one of the tower's windows. He flicked an ash on the floor, too tired to fetch an ashtray. Loosening his collar further, he leaned back against the sill to watch the psychiatrist.

Disinterested, but asked all the same, he spoke to the psych. "How many millions is it so far?"

Himself exhausted and unusually untidy for a member of his exalted vocation, the psychiatrist shrugged. "The Betelgeuse System has not reported yet."

The Chief looked back out the window and took a drag of his cigarette. Slippery fish, these nut-crackers. Never can get straight answers out of them. Probably as buggy as their so-called patients, anyway. He spat on the wall..In innumerable spaceports across that Galaxy, a similar scene was occurring. Long lines of transport vans drove up beside space-freighters. Rumpled secret police transferred inanimate forms from the trucks into the receiving arms of renegades whose job it was to stack the bodies in the ships.

The little girl, now drugged into insensibility but still hugging her doll close, was dragged out of a truck and dumped into a freighter.

The renegade who had stacked her turned to his assistant and cracked a joke about child-girls. The assistant sniggered and swung his boot at the piteous figure.

Operation round-up was nearing its conclusion. The last few "undesirables" were hunted down, knocked flat, and drugged up.

The space-freighters, loaded over and above maximum capacity, were ready for blast-off.

Chi peered up at his boss. Seeing Xenu sitting there peacefully, delicately sipping a drink, Chi dared to begin humming a little tune to himself as he made cross-marks on the Phase Three chart.

Pondering over the recent events, Chi was suffused with a sense of well-being. Hadn't expected things to work out so well. He hummed a little louder.

The transportation stage of Phase Three was gotten underway.

On every planet, the freighters blazed upward, destination: Earth.

On one ship, the renegade co-pilot's ceaseless, senseless chatter fell on the bothered ears of the pilot. "Last time I was on Earth, " babbled the co-pilot, "I bought this young girl - oh, a peach she was. When I got her clothes off I found. . . "

In a spaceport control tower, a secret policeman was acting as Controller. He gave launching clearance to yet another ship. "Control to ship Nine Three Four A. Proceed to Earth by filed plan."

A light-year away, another Controller was having a bit more difficulty. "Bast it!" he yelled into a mike. "If you don' t know the route to Earth, then fly in company with Seven Six Five Eight N!"

In an Altair System spaceport, the freighters were still grounded, for there had been some delays . A renegade and a psychiatrist stood on the control tower' s observation platform, looking out over the landing field.

The psychiatrist checked over a list. "That completes this planet," he announced. "As soon as your ships are ready, I suppose you can tell your pilots to proceed to Earth."

The renegade sneered. "You sure you got 'em all?"

The psychiatrist gave him a frosty regard. "My dear fellow, medical science never makes mistakes.".Bleary-eyed and rumpled, the Renegade Chief struggled to stay awake. Had to rivet his attention to what the speaker was saying - "Planet Three Alpha Centauri to Home Planet Control. Planet Three Alpha...."

With a flash of irritation, the Renegade Chief cut in. "Yeah, yeah. Gimme the hot crap."

The speaker spluttered. "All cargoes spaceborne here and proceeding to Earth."

The Chief turned down the volume knob and rubbed his eyes. These late nights, he just wasn't up to them anymore. He popped a benny and ordered a cup of coffee.

Xenu had taken time out to shower and dress with care.

Just as he arrived back at his desk, a call was put through from his Minister of Police.

"All seventy-five planets clear," reported Chi, "spaceborne and heading for Earth. Right on time."

Xenu's eyes narrowed with cruel pleasure. "Good, good. Proceed as ordered."

Shutting off the video-phone, he turned to stare out his window. Just as planned, Like clockwork....

He snickered softly to himself.

A wind roamed mournfully across the shattered pavement of what had been, of late, the proud parade ground of Galactic Base Earth. Blackened balustrades and broken flagpoles silhouetted themselves against the empty sky.

But not empty for long.

The whine of their engines growing into a steady roar, a multitude of ships began to mass across the heavens till the skies were literally filled with freighters of every size, shape and description.

Over a wide, barren plain, a cliff face watched as the cargoes arrived.

Using no runways - there were no runways to use - the ships simply landed in place, covering the entire field from end to end.

A harried Controller darted a frantic gaze through each of the many windows of his hastily rigged control tower. Some fuse-brained idiot sure fouled up royally! Fudged it totally. Too many ships, not enough landing space.

He barked some orders into his tightly gripped mike. "Earth Control Post Number One to Squadron Leader Eight Seven Nine. Divert to Earth Northern Sector Twelve....

"Earth Control Post Number One to Squadron Leader Two Six Five. Divert cargo to Earth Continent Three Control Post Sixteen...".Down on a field, a truck drew up alongside a grounded freighter. The ship's boarding door banged down to form a ramp, disclosing two renegades in creased and filthy coveralls.

Carrying sheafs of paper, three secret policemen hastily approached, gesturing as they came for unloading to commence.

Stepping back, the renegades started to lug out the drugged bodies to take them down the ramp for placement in the truck.

Across the landing space, a stream of vans were moving toward the ships.

At a nearby ship, the disembarkation was also beginning. One of the captives, a black man, was recovering consciousness. Raising himself up, he opened his eyes to stare, horror-stricken, at the booted foot of a secret policeman as it swung at him, to catch him square on the jaw.

And he collapsed.

Several other landing fields on Earth were similarly occupied.

One, near Mount Shasta, was unloading in haste, as their cargoes were groggily coming to.

The little girl still clutched her doll. Dazed, she struggled awake and sat up.

A secret policeman jerked her to her feet and gave her a shove. So directed, she began to follow her companion victims up the sharply increasing slope of the volcano.

Mt. Etna, Mt. Fuji. The new arrivals were tumbled out of the freighters and forced to clamber up the volcanoes' sides.

An old man, baffled and dismayed, plucked the sleeve of a guard. His questions were cut short as he was cuffed viciously back.

The survivors of the Ninth Army were unloaded at the base of Mount Washington.

Hands behind their backs, uniforms in shreds, they held their heads as proudly as they could as they marched up the slope.

A drummer boy, once a friend of Rawl's, stopped and turned to look back down the incline.

His drum straps hung from his shoulder, the broken top of a drum still clinging to them.

A soldier behind him was pushed forward. They collided, forcing the boy to move on upward.

Set on a rocky island and centered in a rolling ocean of blue, a volcano's side crawled with a struggling line of humanity..By the top edge of its cone, a renegade crew fought to hold down their helicopter as the fierce wind threatened to blow it away.

An engineer had just finished connecting a radio wire to a curious cylindrical object. Words painted imposingly in red on its sides proclaimed it to be an atom bomb.

Shouting above the rushing gale, the engineer summoned over an assistant technician.

Together they tied a rope securely around the bomb and commenced lowering it into the crater mouth.

Another engineer peered over the edge, watching the bomb descend slowly towards the pools of bright lava, moving and red, below.

A third engineer was paying out wire from a large coil in his hand. It snaked out and down the cone - to serve as the link between the signal and the detonation.

The waiting Controller stood anxiously to one side. A worried frown creasing his brow as he looked through the window at the landing field. The ships under his authority were all sitting out there, grounded and idle. Sons of dogs! When were they going to let us get the hell out of here?

By the panel, the Renegade Chief was snarling into a mike. "This is Earth Control Post Number One to Volcano Crew Seventeen. Advise when atomic charges have been placed."

Tossing the mike away from him, the Chief spun around to face the controller.

"Damned bastards. They're the last ones to report atomic charges in place in the volcanoes.

But the nervous Controller couldn't care less about that. He waved his hand at the field. "It's going to take several hours to get all these ships spaceborne and out of this."

The Chief gave a snort of laughter. "Don't get your pants wet. Our people will all be of Earth before we push the button."

The Controller hesitated, not too sure. He looked down at his hands fidgeting with some crumpled up papers.

Relenting, the Chief shrugged a shoulder. "Ah, you can tell them to refuel and get back to their planets as soon as the secret police are aboard and my men recovered."

Relieved, the Controller let out his pent up breath.Maybe this whoreson wasn't such a whoreson after all.

Leaning into the wind, the first engineer reached up a black gloved hand to rub his grimy face. Raising his other hand, he placed his receiver-mike to his mouth and pressed the transmit button. "Earth Control One, come in.".He depressed the receive button and put the instrument to his ear, only to remove it a ways as the Renegade Chief's voice blazed through. "What the blasters kept you bastards?"

The engineer gave the radio a withering look and swore silently to himself. But he knew better than to reply in kind, so he collected his ragged temper and spoke calmly. "Volcano Seventeen fully charged and complete. In fact it's got two atomic bombs in it. Rope broke."

"Good. Scramble out of there, get back to the field and take off. I'm spaceborne now."

Thankfully, the engineer put the radio away and signalled a let's-go to his men.

An exhausted group eddied to a halt and turned to watch, bewildered, as their persecutors began to race downhill, leaving them behind.

Reaching the trucks in the valley, the renegades and secret police piled in and drove off.

Soon, every operational ship had left Earth, having taken on the renegades and secret police and blasted for home.

Zel, former Chief of Secret Police Earth, was piloting the communications plane as it hovered above Earth. Too close for his liking, but orders were orders. He chewed his lip in trepidation.

In the co-pilot's seat, the Chief was on the air to Chi. "No trouble. The secret police have been evacuated. My renegades also. Been some mobs and riots amongst the planetary population, but what the hell."

Chi's visage on the screen was replaced by another's as Xenu shoved him aside.

"Are you ready?" asked Xenu.

The Chief gave him a lazy salute. "Oh, yes."

An anticipatory gleam leapt into Xenu's eyes. "Turn one of your cameras on it."

Nodding, the Chief yelled back to a technician. "Get two or three cameras on it, different depths."

The Chief turned back to the video and nodded again.

Xenu passed his tongue over dry, cracked lips. "You can proceed when ready."

With that, he shut down the circuit.

Moving into a more comfortable position, the Chief grunted. "What some people will do for power!"

Zel gave him a sideways glance. "Including you."

The Chief flinched a little then grinned wickedly, presenting Zel with the full benefit of his yellowed teeth. "You're talking!".Meanwhile, on the face of Earth, hundreds of thousands of hungry, hopeless people sat bemused on the slopes where they had been left.

The dispirited and ravaged Ninth Army soldiers were too dejected to move. Only one of them was attempting to free his hands of their binding.

And the little girl was down on her knees, rocking her doll. Bruised and dirty, tears coursed silently down her face.

She looked upward at the sky, saw nothing there.

Hugging her doll closer, she began to whimper, not understanding where she was, or why.

The Chief lightly held the electronic box. Its red lights glowed softly, hypnotically.

Face expressionless, he moved his right hand toward the box. Finger poised, he hesitated only a moment, then smoothly, gracefully even, he depressed the center button.

Simultaneously, the planted charges erupted.

Atomic blasts ballooned from the craters of Loa, Vesuvius, Shasta, Washington, Fujiyama, Etna, and many, many others.

Arching higher and higher, up and outwards, towering clouds mushroomed, shot through with flashes of flame, waste and fission.

Great winds raced tumultuously across the face of Earth, spreading tales of destruction.

Debris-studded, and sickly yellow, the atomic clouds followed close on the heels of the winds. Their bowshaped fronts encroached inexorably upon forest, city and mankind, they delivered their gifts of death and radiation.

A skyscraper, tall and arrow-straight, bent over to form a question mark to the very idea of humanity before crumbling into the screaming city below.

People standing, racked by the hurricanes, on a street looked up horrified at a descending atomic cloud. Making a futile attempt at escape, they were dropped in their tracks, exterminated like so many pestilent flies.

Molten lava poured, chaotic, down volcanic slopes, obliterating all trace of the people that had been huddled there.

A mountainous tidal wave engulfed a once thriving seaport, leaving only a few of the taller building tops showing over the swirling waters. A second wave formed, preparing to finish what the first had left undone.

Areas of rioting vegetation and forest became barren plains, inhabited only now by the screaming winds.

The fair jewel, Earth, had been brutally murdered..Casually, the Chief still held the electronic box.

His craft rocked a little, as if echoing the passing violence below.

Through the windshield, he looked down at Earth, its cloud formations now a reddish, uneven swirl.

Also observing this view, by way of a dozen screens propped up around his office, was Xenu .

He tapped his fingers in time with the soft, gentle symphony his office stereo was playing and took a delighted sip of his long, cool drink.

It was over.

The charred remains of the little girl's doll bobbed on a choppy sea, lamented only by a low, moaning breeze..CHAPTER FIFTEEN

An orchestra was playing loud, foolishly gay music. The hall was all decorated for a party.

Chattering and laughing throngs milled around the room. A few degraded, half-naked women were hanging on the arms of the top leaders of state, also there.

Off in a secluded corner, Chi has his head together with the banker Chu.

"So you are sure I will get all my money back?" the banker asked, nervously twisting the diamond rings on his sausage fingers.

"With interest, with interest," replied Chi. "In addition to the Confederate Bureau of Investigation I am forming an income tax police in Treasury." He made a wringing motion with his hands, as if wringing out towel. "And they'll extract every last possible penny from the populace."

Chu cheered up for a moment, then turned doubtful again. "This cost is a terrible lot of money."

Chi rolled his eyes in some exasperation. How could a banker be so stupid?

"Master Chu, the people are a bottomless pit for taxes.It can go on forever. A bottomless pit."

Sniffing superiorly, he favored the banker with an arch look. "Providing of course you back it up with a heavily manned police force - with a secret police and Treasury police, and of course psychiatrists to take care of any people who object."

Chuckling, he gave Chu a reassuring pat on his chubby back. "Police states never go broke. The populace maybe, but not us, not us."

Slightly mollified, but not convinced, the banker giggled in reply.

Across the hall, an orderly placed a silver tray on a table occupied by Xenu and some of his top men.

Zel reached out and took the bottle from the tray. He popped the cork and began pouring the amber liquid into glasses. "I'd say," said he, pompously, "it was successful beyond any possible hopes I had. Our men in charge of the government on every planet, planetary armies still obedient to us, no large bases left to bother us..." - his hand slipped, spilling a quantity of liqueur, "..and no Congress to bother us."

They raised their crystal goblets, aqua vitae twinkling, in a toast.

At that moment a tiny, shrill sound became audible above the music and social buzzing. Like a diving plane, the noise swelled a trifle.

Curious, but not too concerned, Chi and his piggy friend ceased their talk and looked upward, listening..Renegade men in the hall also looked up, listening. As alert professionals, vigilant at all times, they grew perturbed at the rising whine.

Zel lowered his goblet uncertainly and stared at the ceiling. Xenu started too, his glass dribbling as it tilted, unnoticed, in his rigid hand.

Rising to an almost unbearable pitch, the sound' reverberated across the room.

Then, with a thunderous crash, a spear-like object burst through the ceiling to bury its arrowhead into the wooden floor.

The note of the bomber's engines changed abruptly as it revved and pulled out of its dive. The canister, poised erect there on the dance floor, began to vibrate. But few, if any, of the crowd noticed this. Galvanized into action the instant the cylinder had hit the floor, they were already surging - men yelling, women screaming - from the confines of the room, each intent on being the first out.

A more courageous renegade raced across to the object. Grasping it, he yanked it loose. "It's not a bomb,"he shouted, examining it. "The force field above the palace would have detonated it if it was. It's a message tube."

He removed the screw-cap top and brought out a scroll and a piece of paper.

Taking the scroll first, he read it out to the small group who had gathered around, curious.

" 'Proclamation. The Congress of the Loyal Officers of the People hereby deposes Xenu as Supreme Ruler...' What the bloody blastick is this?" The renegade glanced briefly up at Xenu who's face was going ominously black, then continued to read the scroll. " '...and orders him to surrender for MASS MURDER.' What the...? It's signed by Mish and Rawl!"

Fingers fumbling, he grasped the second sheet of paper. Voice growing hoarse, he read that, too, aloud. " 'Xenu, copies of this proclamation are being dropped on streets of every planet. I advise you to surrender peacefully...' Hey, what's this nut Rawl think he's doing?"

Horrified, the renegade gaped around wildly,as if expecting Rawl to leap out from somewhere and shoot him down. "He's dead. Every Loyal Officer is dead!"

The assembly began to mutter. Xenu stalked over to Chi in a cold fury. Grabbing the latter's coat lapels, he yanked them hard and spat into his face. "How many Interceptor Bases did you leave untouched?" He yanked again.

Chi, nearly choking, his body turned into a lump of quivering jelly, could only stammer. "O-only...only Mish. Th..there was a sh..ship seen leaving the Earth b..base as it bl..blew up." He made a frantic attempt to lose Xenu's hands. "O-only those."

Releasing his Minister, Xenu burst into laughter. Still laughing, he turned to face the startled crowd and held his hands up in a calming reassuring gesture.

"Purest bluff," he announced. "Two men against millions of secret police, against seventy-five totally secured planets, against all our planes and armies!".Taking the papers from the limp grip of the renegade, he laughed again, then began to rip the papers to shreds. "Well, good luck to them." he finished sarcastically, dropping the strips to the floor with exaggerated contempt.

His audience let out a sigh of relief, then they also broke into laughter..CHAPTER SIXTEEN

Very alone, very small against the vast reaches of the Galaxy, a single Interceptor hung suspended. In its fuselage, four people were in various stages of getting into space garments. Oxygen masks and parachutes were to hand, ready to be donned.

Rawl paused and looked up. "you don't have to do this, Lady Min. You've already done enough - we'd never have known what this was all about without you."

She kept right on getting dressed, her soft mouth set into a line of determination as she pulled a safe-seal suit over her khaki outfit.

Ap, already dressed for space and scared stiff of the action ahead, stared at Lady Min. If only she wasn't going, then he wouldn't have to go either. Oh lord!

Continuing to buckle his parachute straps, Rawl smiled approvingly. He glanced out through a port. "Well, here it is. We're over Alpha Centauri Planet Two, Cronjin. It's the least populated and a long way from Home Planet." He laughed derisively. "The idiots took out all the Galactic bases including this one so there's no chance of being bombed - they've got no bombers we can't handle. We're going to parachute in on the night side while our pilot flies cover."

Finishing the last buckle, he reached out and took a rifle from a wall peg. "Keep together," he instructed, checking the blaster's load, "guide in on me closely."

Up to the aisle, the pilot called back to Mish. "About thirty-five seconds to target."

Mish gave the pilot a thumbs-up sign. "When we're gone, keep alert to cover us. If we make it, we'll radio you where to land." He stepped forward into the airlock, waving an arm for the rest to follow.

Rawl sealed the door behind them and glanced at the safety board. The red light had turned green. He opened the outer door and spun off into space.

Ap was the last to jump. Hanging back at the threshold, he stared down in awe-struck horror. With much misgiving, he squeezed his eyes shut, pulled himself together, and stepped out.

The four landed in rapid succession on the spaceport pavement. In the distance, a mass of lights denoted a city. To their immediate left, a building bristled with antennae and red beacons - the Communications Center for the planet.

Rawl ripped open his harness buckle and, unslinging his rifle as he went, made a dash towards the building. Reaching the stairs, he took them two at a time. He was halfway up them before Mish started up behind him.

Inside, a secret policeman was flopped down in a chair reading a girlie magazine.

Hearing footsteps coming up the stairs, he jumped to his feet and spun around. His hand dived for his gun, but too late. Before he could even draw it, a green ribbon of flame cut into him. He staggered, eyes wide, and crumpled to the floor..Rawl propped his rifle up against the wall and, eyes rapidly studying the console, began removing his space suit.

Behind him, Mish had stopped in the doorway, rifle held ready, standing sentinel over the staircase. Breathless from the run, Lady Min and Ap brushed past Mish and entered the room.

Typically female, Lady Min produced a compact mirror and fluffed out her hair.

Critically appraising her reflection, she got out her lipstick.

Having seen the dead secret policeman, Ap was in no mood for seeing to his own appearance. He eyed the body queasily, and decided to put it out of sight and mind.

Holding his heaving stomach in check, he picked up the dead man's feet and dragged him off into a corner.

Meanwhile, Rawl had completed the removal of his space garments. Pulling his cap from his pocket, he put it on and moved over to the panel board. Naming them as he went, he threw a number of levers. "Planetary News Media, home television interrupt, Planetary Army Headquarters, radio emergency interrupt, all Planet Alert System, theater screens..."

The circuits clicked and whirred as they went open. A regiment of TV monitor screens leapt to life with Rawl's image.

Making a conscious effort to calm himself, he drew a deep breath. He was on the air. Putting a cubical mike into position, he commenced speaking. "People of Cronjin, I am Rawl, Speaker of the Congress of Loyal Officers of the People, the ruling body of the Galactic Confederation...."

Lounging in a downtown bar, the Cronjin Secret Police General visibly jumped when Rawl appeared on the TV behind the counter. Slamming down his drink, heedless of the slopping alcohol, he snatched a portable radio from his coat pocket.

"...Xenu has been deposed," continued Rawl's voice from the TV, "the secret police disbanded. Xenu is being sought for trial for the destruction of the Planet Earth, murder of populations...."

The Secret Police General barked into his radio. "All police! Go to Cronjin Planetary Communications Center, airfield. At once!" Casting a last venomous glare at the TV, he swung about and stalked from the barroom.

A couple of teenagers were watching what they called the boob-tube. The programs had been so boring lately, nothing but lectures and "dramas" of militaristic nature. Half-dozing, they jerked awake when Rawl came on. One of them beckoned urgently for the rest of his friends and family to come over to the screen. Clustered around the set, they listened avidly to their long-term hero.

"Many of your own people were recently rounded up. They were transported to Earth and murdered there by atomic fire. You have been told that recent measures were taken to combat a crime wave. That crime wave was Xenu!....".Flanked by his staff officers, hastily summoned and still buttoning on their blue and white jackets, the Commanding General of the Cronjin Planetary Army stood tensely watching his office TV set. Rawl's words were filling the room.

"In addition to the entire population of Planet Earth, Xenu also rounded up and had murdered the entire Ninth Army because it sought to carry out the lawful orders of Congress and resisted the formation of a police state...."

The Commanding General's face hardened as he nodded grimly. He knew it. "So that's why they don't answer up," he muttered to himself. He turned and shouted "Orderly! "

An orderly came running up. The staff Officers began pulling transceivers from their belts and leapt into action as their Commanding General issued a stream of decisive orders.

On a sidewalk, a crowd had gathered. Staring up at a public address system speaker, they were intent on what Rawl was saying.

"Your own bomber base did not blow up because of terrorists as you were told. .Xenu blew it up and every other Galactic base in an effort to destroy the power of the Loyal Officers and Congress. You are safe, therefore, from any retaliation from Home Planet. The sky above you is guarded by us..."

The crowd in the street shifted, angry.

".... by the authority of the Congress I therefore call on you to rise, smash the secret police and restore lawful government to this planet!"

At Rawl's last words, the crowd surged forward, snarling. One of them, ordinarily a peaceful citizen but now a ferocious mob leader inflamed by what he had heard, leaped up onto a balustrade and began shouting directions.

Listening to the wailing sirens, Mish braced himself against the door. A fleet of secret police cars were coming, hurtling across the airfield.

Rawl glanced out the window. Curtly signalling Ap over to him, he spoke again into the mike. "You can and must win!"

Shoving the mike into Ap's resistive hands, Rawl grabbed his rifle, dashed through the door and along the outside platform. He dropped down to use the parapet for cover and raised his gun over the edge.

Shivering uncontrollably, Ap tried to gather his scattered wits. All he wanted to be was a thousand miles away. Steeling himself bravely, he stepped into the path of the television scanner and raised the mike. "Ladies and gentlemen, people of Cronjin, you have just heard an emergency announcement by Commander Rawl..."

Outside, the first of the armored cars had skidded to a halt, and secret policemen were leaping out. Rawl aimed and fired..., Ap jumped as the blast echoed through the room..Desperately telling himself that he was perfectly safe, and that he was, after all, a publicity agent and so should be able to do something as simple as talk on the radio, he forced himself to continue. "...Loyal Officer, Speaker of Congress. And if you're going do do anything," he swallowed a gulp, "you better do it now and fast. The secret police are piling into this airfield like an avalanche..."

The burst of flame from Rawl's rifle hit the car. Chock-full of ammunition, the vehicle was a deadly weapon.

This same attribute was also its only Achilles' heel.It detonated in a scintillating flash of white and scarlet. Caught flat-footed, its crew went up with the car.

Jerking his head down, Ap wailed. "People of Cronjin, where are you? We need help!"

The second of the cars pulled up short. Jumping out, the Secret Police General surveyed the scene. Hell! One unit lost already. He about-faced and started directing the arriving forces into combat positions.

Ap stole a glance out the window and turned sickly pale. He could count two, five -no, ten trucks! And all unloading secret police. "Future zero!"

A flatbed truck with a mounted artillery piece, joined the crowd. Its gun crew started training the gun on the dome of the Center.

The Secret Police General elbowed his way through his rushing men and jumped up onto the flatbed. "No, no!" He was shouting, motioning for the men to desist. "Don't destroy the Communications Center. We'll need it in a few minutes to tell the population they are dead and we are in control!"

He sprang off the truck and ran to direct a small arms attack. At his command, lines of secret policemen threw themselves down and commenced discharging arcs of flame towards the Center.

Lying prone over the doorsill, enemy fire chewing the frame above him, Mish returned his own staccato shots of fire.

Ducked down, Lady Min crawled over to where Ap valiantly continued his address to the populace. "This field, " he was saying, "is swarming with secret police." He closed his eyes and muttered a short prayer. "Right now we're going to find out if the people of Cronjin are friends of murderers and oppressors!"

As he spoke, two vanloads of renegade forces arrived. By far more deadly than the secret police. Scrambling out, the renegades hit the ground at dead runs and made for the staircase leading to the control room.

Noticing Lady Min's frantic gestures, he gave in to her plea. "And so I give you Lady Min, eyewitness to the planning of Xenu and destruction of Earth." And he thankfully handed her the mike.

The first of the renegades were pounding up the stairs . Mish, ready for it, let them come to within a few feet of him before cutting loose with his blast gun.The leading.renegades fell back, smashing into the ones behind, creating a confused tangle of falling and thrashing men.

Lady Min glanced back at the door. Spotlights! Composing herself, she turned back to the mike. "People of Cronjin, this may be your last chance to attain freedom," she began, close to tears. Dear God - where were the people of Cronjin?

Rawl cursed as his gun clicked emptily. He thrust the last charge he had into the breech and resumed firing. If the cavalry don't come soon, they wouldn't stand a chance. Not a damned chance. He should never have let Lady Min come either.

Gritting his teeth he smashed down another renegade with a sharp burst of flare.

By the flatbed, the determined Secret Police General looked on through slitted eyes. Hearing a throbbing from behind, he whirled around. Seeing nothing, he hit a switch on the truck's side and a spotlight stabbed out into the dark.

The General froze in shock as the light revealed four blue and white army tanks rumbling towards him, gun snouts depressing into firing positions as they came.

Fanned out behind the tanks, a flock of carrier trucks were pulling up, soldiers pouring over their sides.

A ragged battle cry reached the General's ears. "Remember the Ninth Army! Remember the Ninth Army!"

Stationed in a tank turret, the Commanding General of the Cronjin Planetary Army glared at the secret police maneuvers ahead. His face set into harsh lines, his voice severe, he snapped an order into a radio unit. "Fire low so as not to hit the Communications Center. Attack at once!"

Together, the tanks fired huge sprays of blue-white flame.

A secret police car, hit, leaped into the air. A group of trucks vanished as such, becoming blazing pyres instead. The flatbed truck burst asunder.

As yet unaware of the ravages behind them, the front lines of secret policemen still exchanged shot with the Center. Then, a few seemed to sense that all was not well.

As they rose to turn back, a wave of soldiers hit them, screaming "Remember the Ninth Army!"

Hearing the stepped up turmoil outside, Lady Min risked a peek over the windowsill. Seeing the change of circumstances, she jumped to her feet, face radiant . Thank the stars! "Victory!" she cried. "People of Cronjin, you are free, free, free!"

Rawl and Mish grinned at each other. Dangling their rifles, they went to stand by the shredded door to greet the approaching Army General and his officers.

Catching sight of Rawl, the Army General rushed forward and firmly shook his hand. "So I finally get to meet the famous Rawl!"

Mish gestured, "Shall we go inside?" They did so, Ap clearing some battered chairs out of their way..Lady Min had stopped speaking and held the mike toward the conferring group, volume up.

A sudden commotion at the door made them turn. A group of officers with a shackled civilian in their midst crowded in.

One of the officers gently pushed the civilian forward. "Look what we have here!"

The man was middle-aged, he held his head up proudly as another officer tried out various keys on his shackled wrists. The officer who had spoken explained further, noting Rawl' s raised eyebrow. "We got him out of the police barracks' dungeon. The Civil Governor af Cronjin!"

One of his hands successfully unshackled, the Governor extended it to Rawl.

Shaking his hand, Rawl studied the man, liking what he saw. "Can I count on you and the General here to get this planet mopped up and in order?"

The Governor and Army General beamed with enthusiasm. "Indeed so!" they chorused.

Mish and Ap had gone over to the console behind Lady Min. Looking as if he were about to faint, Ap collapsed against the panel and wiped his face on his sleeve. "That was tombstone close!"

Mish shrugged. "One down and seventy-four planets to go."

Ap was horrified. "Seventy-four more like these?".CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

Through the Interceptor's windscreen, the stars seemed like a chain of diamonds against a backdrop of black velvet.

In the pilot seat, mike in hand, Rawl broadcasted a rallying message.

"People of the Galactic Confederation, fight on! We have wrested thirty planets from the unlawful control of Xenu. Everywhere populations are in revolt. The measures of personal income tax, enforced identification, illegal entries and violations of privacy by the secret police have inflamed peoples everywhere.

"Xenu in his stronghold on Home Planet receives little news to cheer him...."

And revolt they did.

Anchar: The Personal Income Tax Bureau headquarters was particularly hated. A band of civilian saboteurs slipped in by night and planted charges in key locations. And it was blown ski-high.

Betelgeuse: A secret policeman was standing at the identity computers, feeding in the unverified data. He didn't care what it said, just so long as there was stuff there. He had heard rumors about an impending revolt - no problem. The secret police could handle.

Then, three civilians, armed with automatic blast guns burst in, their leader shouting "To hell with your false reports!" And the policeman, computers and all, vanished in a flash of fire.

Pollux: An angry pack of rebels were dragging a secret policeman along by his foot. They had a kangaroo court ready and waiting for him and the renegade they had captured and whom they had stumbling along behind, rope round his neck in preparation for his predetermined execution.

Spica: The mob had a bearded psychiatrist down on the floor. One of them jabbed him repeatedly with a hypo, yelling: "Let ' s see how you like it!"

Beta Centauri: A dead secret policeman was sprawled across the console in the communications center of Planet Two, a butcher knife in his back. Beside him, a wounded renegade screamed into a mike. "Home Planet, Home Planet. The people of Beta Centauri Two have risen in revolt. We are pinned down, outnumbered..." His scream rose even higher as the room exploded with a deafening, sonorous crash of thunder.

Insurrection against the oppressors spread like wildfire across the Galaxy.

Bit by bit, the secret police, renegade forces and officials loyal to Xenu were beaten down and crushed, their headquarters smashed.

And the mutineers revelled in each victory, spurred on to greater acts of rebellion by each success..CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

A chart was spread across an aisle table in Rawl's Interceptor. Consulting it was Rawl himself, Mish, Lady Min and Ap.

Rawl slapped down his pencil and stretched his cramped limbs. "Sooner or later they will get their wits working and start to use the Home Planet bombers to retaliate."

Intent on oiling his pistol, Mish nodded absently. He'd discussed this with Rawl last night.

Ap darted his gaze from Rawl to Mish, then back to Rawl again. Bombers! What this meant he didn't know, but it must be bad news.

"I propose to attack that base, " Rawl tapped an area of Home Planet on the chart, "and then move right on in on the Home Planet without waiting for other planets. They're doing all right."

Mish nodded again. "Looks safest."

Ap gasped. Had he heard that right? "Safest?"

Rawl smiled. "This is an outer space atomic Interceptor," he explained patiently, "made to combat enemy space battleships. Using it in an atmosphere makes it dead easy against planetary ships. I doubt if there are any renegades that can even fly one."

Ap was unconvinced. "Like a tiger fighting a puppy, huh?"

Rawl laughed. "You can man the tail gun."

Clutching at the table, Ap moaned, "Do you have any heart medicine aboard?"

A young girl was being shoved around like a rag doll. The renegades, seated in a circle, laughed at her terror, pushing her from one to the next of them with her clothes tearing further at each jolt.

In the background, the Home Planet bomber base's fleet of ships sat idle and poorly cared for. For sure, the renegades who manned the base had better things to do, like what they were doing now.

One of the renegades loosened up his collar. "I didn't think it would be so much fun to be an agent of the Confederate Bureau of Investigation."

Another man gave a leer and turned to the girl. "Come on, sweetheart, let's investigate further."

The girl was tossed at him. He caught her and ripped a garment further. She fell to his feet, inert, eyes wide open.

He shook her a little. No movement. "Hell! She's dead!".A renegade to his left reached out. "Good, hand her over, that's the way I like 'em."

One of the group had grown bored. He got to his feet and yawned. "I better get a squadron airborne to relieve the Home Planet patrol." He began to slouch off.

The renegade holding the girl pitched her into the arms of the renegade to his left, and called out after the departing man, "Yeah, you do that."

And he returned his attention to the sport.

Up in patrol, the renegade co-pilot punched a transmit button. "When are you dog lovers coming up to relieve us?"

The radio uttered an uncouthness in reply.

Starting to put the mike back on its hook, a blip on the radar caught the co-pilot's eye.

He cast a searching glance out through the windscreen and yelped in fright.

He frantically shook the dozing pilot's arm and pointed outside, bringing the mike back to his mouth with his other hand. His voice cracked as he practically squeaked: "A Loyal Officer Interceptor!"

Rawl threw his Interceptor into a dive. Between his craft and the base below, six renegade patrol ships were flying in sloppy formation.

Back in the tail, Ap sat in the gunner seat wrestling the gun with clumsy hands.

Looking out through his viewport, he flinched. "Six Interceptors!"

Alarm sirens sounded at ground level. Aroused from their various and nefarious activities, renegades scrambled toward their stations.

Holding the dive, Rawl signalled Mish to hold fire as the latter readied a firing control. Mish shot a grin back, and nodded.

Ap checked the port again. "Six more taking off!" He began muttering a prayer, hoping that somewhere some kind god would listen and transport him instantly to some other place. Anywhere but here!

Firing tracer shot, the patrol rose to meet Rawl's ship.

Flashing downwards to pass right through the enemy formation, Mish closed the firing control just as his own ship passed the first of the renegade Interceptors, leaving behind a pattern of black balls strewn between the patrol ships.

Then, the black balls exploded, knocking four of the renegade craft from the skies.

Ap at his tail gun was intent on mopping up the remaining two. Firing wildly, he managed to score a direct hit on one of them. Belching greasy black smoke, it fell.

Letting loose a whoop of delight, Ap turned his blazing gun, prayers forgotten, on the last ship as it pivoted around and began to fire at him..A curtain of swirling red engulfed Ap's turret. In the cockpit, Rawl swore and jerked at the controls to steady his Interceptor.

But the hit was only glancing, not , much damage done. Ap, a trifle singed, yelled triumphantly as his next shot caught his opponent right on the nose.

Rawl held the dive. Mish pointed down at six more ships shooting vertically up towards them. "Second squadron!

Being twice the speed as well as twice the size of the renegade craft, Rawl 's ship had flashed by them before they could even change course to fire on him.

Nearly grazing the ground, Rawl pulled out of the dive and took the Interceptor, engines shrieking, up and under the patrol.

Shooting right through the squadron, Mish again closed the firing switch, and the six ships were blasted to fragments.

Rawl yanked at the controls and dove downwards again, for the base itself. In the tail Ap was raring to go, ready to roll. Hunting for something to fire at, he found nothing, and slumped back in disappointment.

An anti-spacecraft gunner crew concentrated ribbons of shot at the plummeting

Interceptor. No use - the ship just kept diving toward them. They ceased fire and ducked futilely for cover.

Mish once more had his hand on the firing control, waiting for the word....

"Now!" yelled Rawl, and Mish snapped his thumb down.

Rawl banked his ship and sped for safety as the base went up in a cloud of atomic particles.

Flying left-handed, Rawl cruised his Interceptor above Home Planet. He held a mike in his other hand, and frowned slightly as he spoke. "Calling Commanding General Arn, Commanding Planetary Army Home Planet. Calling Commanding General Arn, Commanding Planetary Army Home Planet...."

A voice spluttered in over the receiver. "I'll get him, I'll get him."

Having answered the call, a communications clerk signalled urgently to the Commanding General across the room. He ducked down to avoid a red slash of fire that laced above him. Many others in the room did the same, for the Planetary army was engaged in a pitched battle.

Soldiers, in the blue and white uniforms, were at the windows, firing intermittently at the enemy outside. A line of wounded lay against the far wall, growing longer by the minute.

General Arn, a dignified, grey-headed man, answered the clerk' s summons. Cap off and collar open he ran, keeping his head down, over to the radio..The clerk handed Arn the mike, shaking his head incredulously. "It sounds like Rawl!"

The clerk hit a video button and the General stared, jaw agape, at the screen.

"Rawl!"

He drew a breath of relief, then spoke very seriously . "Don't try to come in here. We're pinned down! They seized our tanks. Secret police and renegades are out there in thousands all around our base."

"Are you at Central Base Three?"

The General looked a little suspicious. The guy would have to be crazy to come in here! With reservation, he answered "Yes."

Rawl gave a short laugh. "Keep the heads of your men down when you hear a ship!"

"Rawl..." the General began, to be silenced by the audible click as Rawl cut the circuit.

Looking around him in some amazement, he spoke to no one in particular . "He's coming in here!" Then, hastily buttoning his collar and jamming his cap on his head, he turned and shouted to his men. "Increase your fire!"

High above Central Base Three, Rawl and Mish surveyed the scene below. The base was a fortress-like building surrounded on three sides by open parade ground and backed on the fourth by a winding river. Some twenty tanks were ranged around the building, spouting gushes of flame. Masses of secret police in battle formations were keeping up continuous fire at the building where army soldiers at the windows only shot back sporadically.

Rawl pulled a lever and his ship swooped downward. "Use fire," he told Mish. "Don't hit the building."

Mish grinned back at Rawl and gave him an OK sign.

Zel, a bit removed from his men, was seated in a camp chair, observing the battle in satisfaction. Just a few more hours, and he'd probably get a medal or something. Deserved it too - no one would ever know that this really wasn't his plan, but what the hell. He was the senior officer here anyway.

The note of an alien engine intruded upon his ruminations. He looked up, consternated and dumbfounded to see a diving Interceptor. Jumping up, he ran for the cover of some nearby trees.

As the ship's shadow raced over the tanks and men on the parade grounds, Mish jerked on the firing control, letting loose a blanket of raging flame.

Army soldiers crowded, wounded and all, to the windows, cheering as the tanks blew up one by one..Those still alive in the ranks of secret police nearest the army building had about-faced to stare, awe-struck, at the burning wreckage. They didn't see as the soldiers leapt over their window embrasures to charge headlong at them.

Then, hearing the battle cry "Remember the Ninth Army!" the secret police whirled around to be knocked flat by the wave of blue and white uniformed men.

"Remember the Ninth Army!"

In the Interceptor, Lady Min and Ap had come to stand behind the pilot seats in the Cockpit, looking eagerly through the windshield.

Ap clutched Mish's arm and howled in delight. "We've won!"

Laughing, Mish disengaged Ap's hands and reached across to lightly punch Rawl's shoulder. "Hey, pardner. We've done it again!"

Seeking an avenue of release for his high spirits, Ap grabbed Lady Min and waltzed her down the fuselage, to her own and the others' amusement.

But below, Zel was making good his escape. He clambered into an armored car and kicked it into gear. Hatless and scorched, he careened off madly, intent only on getting away..CHAPTER NINETEEN

The heads of state were holed up in the palace. Renegade troops, scattered strategically around the walls, kept up a barrage of small arms fire.

Out in the street, a crowd of affronted civilians were held back by barricades and panes of anti-shot glass.

In the square, facing the palace, were several armored vehicles and a blue and white tank. Next to the tank, General Arn, Mish and Rawl were conferring.

"They're in there all right," observed Arn. "The lot of them, like rats in a hole."

Mish slammed a fist against the tank's side. Blast! He spoke gruffly in his frustration. "You can't bomb the place. It's force screen detonates anything you drop on them."

Rawl leaned back on the tank and shook his head. "No, no. We've got to take them alive." He beckoned to a civilian police captain who held a loud-hailer.

Stooping low to avoid ricocheting shot, the captain ran over to the tank, trailing the hailer's cord behind him.

Rawl jabbed a thumb over his shoulder. "Isn't there any way we can get them out of there?"

The captain shrugged. "We could storm the place. Cost an awful lot of men."

"Call them again," sighed Rawl. "We want to take them alive."

A man in the forefront of the watching crowds turned to his neighbor, marveling at what he had just heard. "Rawl just said they want to take them alive!"

Pleased with the idea, his eyes lit up fanatically. Cupping his hands to his mouth, he shouted to Rawl: "Take them alive!"

Those around the man stared at him, astonished. Then they too took up the cry.

"Take them alive!" the din grew as more and more joined in.

The captain glanced back at the people behind the barricades, a small smile crossing his face. Turning again to confront the palace, he switched on the hailer.

"You are called upon to surrender peacefully. All renegades in the palace will be granted amnesty and transported out of the Galaxy. All officials will be arraigned for trial. Come out without weapons and your hands above your head."

In a window, a renegade was turning the captain's words over in his mind. He listened for a moment to the mob's chanting - "Take them alive!"

Sighing, he worked the slide of his rifle and pulled the trigger. It gave an empty click. He regarded the street again, then withdrew from the window in defeat..One of the palace doors opened a crack. Several blast rifles slithered out to clatter down the broad front steps. The door opened wider, and a ragged bunch of powder-burned renegades straggled out, hands held high.

An officer signalled to his blue and white uniformed men. "Hold your fire!"

The men who had capitulated were frisked and loaded into an open-sided truck.

Suddenly, a burst of fire from the palace knocked three of the renegades down.

A civilian police officer dropped to his knees and raised his rifle to shoot back.

Holding his smoking rifle, the secret police executive tarried a second too long at the window before drawing back. The demoniac snarl on his face changed to one of agony as the shot from below caught him in the abdomen . Loosing an involuntary burst from his gun, he pitched forward and fell to the pavement below.

Viewing this exchange, Rawl's frown deepened. He looked over at Arn; "Still a lot of fanatics in there."

Arn, scowling at the palace, nodded absently.

Rawl drew his pistol and checked its load. Jerking his head towards Mish, he moved off in the direction of the palace. "Come on, Mish."

Aroused from his meditations, Arn made a grab at Rawl in alarm; "No!"

But they were off, crouching low. Creeping alongside of them was a driverless armored car, pushed by a couple of civilian police, to protect them from fire. A splatter of red glanced off the top of the car without doing harm.

Deciding the least he could do was keep the enemy busy, Arn shouted to his men: "All troops, rapid fire at palace windows!"

Pulled up in front of the building's arched portals, Rawl and Mish knelt in back of the car's fenders. Keeping his eyes on Mish's face, Rawl drew a coin from his pocket and flipped it.

"Heads," chose Mish.

Rawl didn't even look at the coin or show it to Mish. "I lost," he stated, cutting short Mish's protests by sprinting off towards the palace steps. Red streaks of flame ripped at the cement around him, but still he ran on.

Mish swore. Seeing someone about to shoot at Rawl from a window, he rapidly aimed and fired. The man's gun, hit, exploded in his hands.

Mish turned anxiously back to watch Rawl dart through the palace doors. Hell! He wasn't going to let Rawl go in there alone! He upped and dashed off to catch up with Rawl.

Inside, Rawl paused to spray the hall with shot. Spotting a shadowy figure on a balcony, he brought his gun to bear and fired..He started as someone raced past him and made for the stairs. Seeing it was Mish, he smiled - not surprised. Staying below to cover him, Rawl waited until Mish had reached the head of the staircase before dashing up them himself.

Their backs to the hallway on the left of the bannister, neither saw an office door surreptitiously open. Nor did they see a grey-green uniformed man sneak out and take aim.

The shot caught Mish on the side of his head. A look of amazement on his face, he jerked once and, weapon flying into the air, he fell backwards rolling over and over as he toppled down the stairs.

Rawl's face went white as stunned, he watched Mish fall. Then, whirling around, he saw a door down the corridor bang shut.

Running furiously towards it, he cut loose a blast of fire and the door buckled inward. Kicking the smoking door aside, he entered the room, gun held ready. He swept his eyes across the room. Cowering by the desk were two secret policemen. A third was getting to his feet, having been knocked down by the door, and was bringing his rifle around.

Though Rawl was still in shock from the loss of Mish, his reflexes were lightning quick. Instinctively almost, he blasted the man with the rifle down and turned his blazing gun on the other two men. And he kept on firing long after the secret policemen were dead.

He checked himself, the fury clearing from his mind. Stepping out into the hallway, he looked down over the bannister at the crumpled form lying at the bottom af the stairs.

For a moment only he allowed grief to tear through him. Mish had been his best friend. Damn, damn, damn! Then, grimly determined, he moved down the corridor.

In the street, Lady Min had joined General Arn by the tank. Her face white with strain, she stared at the palace, clasping and unclasping her hands in nervous tension. Oh lord! Let him come out alive...

Bootbeats echoing, Rawl strode down the hall. He passed door after door until he arrived at the last one, slightly more ornamental than the rest, its plaque announced it to be Xenu's office.

He reached out his hand, tentatively touched the doorknob. he turned it. Then, he savagely kicked the door open and lunged through.

At first glance, the room seemed bare. Red velvet drapes hung askew, red carpet littered with paper and discarded weapons, the massive black desk was smothered in scatters of files.

Rawl took this all in in a flash, then brought his gaze to rest on the floor under the window. There slumped down, were five men. Rawl walked slowly, cautiously even, towards them..Stopping before them, Rawl regarded the five men with contempt. Zel was white-faced with fear; Chi was panting - his hand raised to ward off imagined horrors; Sty lay stiffly as if he were one of his own patients, or victims rather; Chu the banker would not meet Rawl's eyes, concentrating as he was on not vomiting from total shattering terror; and lastly, Xenu - he was slightly more composed than the rest.

Rawl's lip curled. Well here they were. The kingpins. Not so brave now, but weren't all criminals basically cowards at heart?

Praying Rawl wouldn't notice, Xenu obliquely eyed the floor by his right hand. A blast pistol lay there invitingly. He crept his hand toward it, keeping a close watch on Rawl as he frisked down the other four.

Closer and closer crept Xenu's hand. Still Rawl hadn't noticed....

With a sudden movement, Xenu grabbed the pistol. Out of the corner of his eye, Rawl saw this and spun around, swinging his foot at the same time.

Jamming the gun against his right temple, Xenu squeezed the trigger...

Just as Rawl's boot connected with his hand, sending the pistol spinning up into the air, it discharged harmlessly.

Scooping it up from where it bounced back onto the floor, Rawl tossed the pistol to the far end of the room.

His attempted suicide foiled, and all weapons removed from his vicinity, Xenu flopped down in despair. 'Whoresons! He was lost, lost, lost.

Casting a withering glance at Xenu, Rawl moved over to the window and shattered the glass with his pistol butt.

Reversing his gun so as to keep his prisoners covered, Rawl leaned out the window and waved his cap to the people below. "They're alive!"

The crowd roared in approval. Lady Min, tears of relief streaming down her otherwise glowingly beautiful face, waved back frantically, trying to catch Rawl's eye.

Car horns and church bells joined in the uproar. Rejoicing spread through the city at the news of victory. As one, the crowds burst through the barricades and surged, yelling in jubilation, towards the palace.

The joy of the moment was infectious. Rawl smiled to himself as he Looked down at the tumult below. Seeing Lady Min there, his grin widened and he blew her a kiss..CHAPTER TWENTY General Arn was talking with Rawl in his office. Nearby, flashy in his loud new clothes, Ap was fidgeting. Lady Min, beautifully groomed and poised, gazed adoringly up at Rawl through long lashes.

Rawl put a hand on the General's arm. "There's a lot to be done. Can you nominate some of your people as Loyal Officers?"

"Yes," the General affirmed. "And if I were you I would take the two top classes of the Loyal Officer Academy, commission them at once and put them up for election by the people."

Rawl nodded, then a frown marked his face. "It won't," he added gloomily, "be the same operating without Mish."

As he spoke, the door flew open and Mish, heavily bandaged and grinning madly, entered on crutches. "That," he laughed, "is one problem you won't have to feed into the computer!"

Rawl looked as if he was seeing an apparition. Mish? Alive? Recovering from the initial shock, he whooped in delight and rushed over to clap him on his good arm.

"You'll never know, pardner," he said, "how pleased I am to see you!"

Lady Min and Ap also swooped down on Mish trying to hug him and be careful of his wounds at the same time.

"Hey, watch it!" exclaimed Mish in mock protest.

The Congressional Hall echoed as the black-robed judge, seated in the place once occupied by Xenu, rapped his gave!

Two other judges flanked him. Many more were seated below him in a long tier.

The vast rows of chairs were empty, save those occupied by a stern-faced Rawl, a black-veiled Lady Min and a bandaged Mish.

Heavily guarded, Xenu, Chi, Zel, Sty and Chu faced their tribune, awaiting sentence.

Broadcasting the trial, a newsman and an audio assistant rolled the TV camera around on its crane support.

The chief judge looked down gravely on the criminals before him. "Having been duly and carefully tried under the authority of Congress, the following persons are found guilty of attempting to form a police state, extorting personal taxes, of instigating revolt, high treason against the state, willful and malicious mass murder of populations and the destruction of the people and all things on planet Earth:

"Zel - former Chief of Secret Police Earth, Sty head of the Psychiatric Associations, Chi - former head of the Department of Justice, Chu - former head of the Galactic Bank, and Xenu - deposed Supreme Ruler....".The judge paused for breath, then continued, his voice taking on an even more somber tone. "....are hereby sentenced to be exhibited on every planet to the populations of each planet and then imprisoned in a mountain sustained for eons by life-supports.

"Such is the judgement of this court, of the Congress, of the offended peoples of the great Confederation and the moral natures of all decent men.

"Is there anything the felons would care to say?"

His question was met by silence. The banker's nervous giggle didn't count.

The Judge, with some asperity, rapped his gavel to silence the banker. He frowned severely. "Such is the fate of those who would form a police state and such it has ever been."

He rapped his gavel three more times to signal the conclusion of the proceedings.

The sentence was carried out meticulously.

The criminals were displayed in glass encased locomotives that travelled the face of every planet in the Confederation.

At each station, the trains would halt, met by angry, indignant crowds. Among the bands of citizens were some more bold than the rest. These displayed their hatred and utter contempt for the felons with tangible expressions in the form of eggs, tomatoes and other such objects, pelted pell-mell at the carriages.

The prisoners reacted in various ways. Chi merely stared out the windows, eyes wide and vacant as he slowly went insane. Sty took to muttering Freudian style phrases to himself in an attempt to occupy himself with things other than his horror of the fate in store for him. Chu lost a great deal of weight, becoming less piggy, but still maintaining his habit of twist-twisting his rings. Zel became a manic-depressive, and indulged in paroxysms of deep melancholia followed by fits of glee.

And Xenu - Xenu just sat and sagged, head in his hands.

Their grand tour over at last, they were taken to a solitary mountain that brooded over a barren plain.

A cluster of blue and white trucks were parked around a tunnel entrance that led into the heart of the mountain. Nearby, a milling crowd of civilians and soldiers were scattered about. A military band played funeralistic music, slow in beat and low in pitch.

Accompanied by his TV and radio broadcasting equipment, a newsman was keeping up a steady commentary. "We are standing here on the desolate slopes of Mount Xenu on Planet Tawn. This is the mountain named for him in the days of unholy power when he planned his criminal course of destruction. It was designated, possibly with bitterness, as the final place of imprisonment. Officers of the Court are completing....".Inside the mountain was a grotto carved out of the living stone. A blue-overalled electrician was connecting up sheets of copper plating that lined the room. Alert guards stood about. Cables and wires lay in heaps on the copper sheathed floor.

Several white-coated doctors and their attendants worked busily around a semicircle of hospital-style tables on which the prisoners, strapped down, were lying.

Xenu was staring dully upwards as one doctor fastened tubes to his wrists and another fastened them to his ankles. The first doctor, having finished the wrists, began to put two prongs around Xenu's throat.

Wetting his dry, cracked lips, Xenu looked up at the doctor, some terror showing in his glazed eyes. "These devices keep one alive forever?"

"Don't talk," snapped the doctor.

A guard stepped forward. "Don't talk to the prisoner!"

Despairing, Xenu rolled his eyes. "How long is forever?"

No one answered, no one knew.

Completing their tasks, the doctors began to pull out. Guards moved away from the tables. They filed out one by one, leaving only the electrician and one guard in company with the prisoners.

Rapidly, the remaining two gave the tables and wirings a final check. The prisoners lay inert but awake. The banker and psychiatrist stared wretchedly at the exit, small and more desirable than life, at the end of the long tunnel. Zel started to laugh hysterically. Chi looked around, vacant-eyed. And Xenu gazed blankly, torment-torn, at the ceiling.

Satisfied all was in order, the electrician and guard also began to depart. Swinging the copper-grated door shut behind them, they walked the length of the tunnel. Reaching the final exit, the electrician switched the lights off, and the guards banged the heavy steel door shut.

Inside, the prisoners were bathed in darkness. And the screaming began....

The newscaster buttonholed the electrician. "How long," he asked, thrusting the mike forward, "will the power last to continue their life-supports?"

Turning in some impatience, the electrician shrugged. "About seventy-four million years, I think, possibly more. Long enough."

Piqued at this laconic reply, the newscaster looked around for another prospective interviewee.

Bulldozers moved up and began shoveling dirt to cover up the tunnel entrance. An engineering officer spoke to one of the drivers. "Make sure there's no trace of that tunnel entrance.".The driver grinned and gave him a salute.

Finally, the people had drifted away, the band was gone.

Mount Xenu once more stood alone. No sign left of the tunnel. No sign of anything. A sullen breeze moaned monotonously over the plain, tumbling a few dried weeds before it.

A faint scream sounded. Perhaps a sudden gust of air, perhaps....

Just the lonely wind..CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

Earth. A murky yellow mist swirled about some shattered tree stumps that spotted a promontory.

A white helicopter was hovering there as it lowered an angular, cylindrical object. It was a large capsule, shiny green in color. Its surface was smooth but for the panels set in its nose.

A few people were standing on the promontory. All wore anti-radiation suits over their normal clothing; Mish, watching the lowering capsule, guided it down with hand signals.

Ap, not doing anything much as usual but there anyway, looked around at the desolated landscape. He found it a little bit spooky. "This sure is," he commented to the air as no one was listening to him, "the end of Planet Earth! Future zero!"

Off to one side, Lady Min and Rawl had their heads together, talking quietly.

Lady Min looked up at Rawl a trifle uncertainly. "I never was his mistress, that was just his idea of a way to become popular.He hated women."

Rawl smiled, a little surprised but pleased all the same.

"I used to keep news clips of you," she went on as she lowered her gaze, embarrassed. "Kept them under my pillow when I was a teenager. Silly, huh?"

Rawl's eyes flew wide open. "You kept clips of me?" It was his turn to look embarrassed. "I used to keep photos of you in my wallet."

They looked at each other in sudden understanding. Their hands reached out and touched.

Meanwhile, the capsule grounded, the helicopter had landed. Mish disengaged the cable and together with Ap, wrestled the cylinder into position.

Unhooking one of the panels, Mish switched on a camera unit and recorder. He turned to signal Rawl. "You're on," he hissed.

Gently, Rawl took his hand from Lady Min's and softly touched a finger to her mouth.Her eyes were brilliant as she smiled at him.

Stepping into line with the capsule's camera lens, Rawl braced himself to speak. "A few of us labored together to make this capsule so that those who may follow will know how your planet was murdered and why."

He swept his arm to indicate the devastated terrain.

"This desolation was the result of forming a police state. When populations are restless, unwise governments seek to oppress. And the more they oppress the closer they bring a revolution. Foolish governments seek to prevent revolution with more oppression. And they die.."But part of the fault for this must be shared by the Congress. Congress let an executive branch grow bigger and bigger and let it act to antagonize and alienate the people. To that degree Congress betrayed the people who elected and trusted them."

He looked down and raised a hand to tick off a finger as he made each point.

"Before the other planets are also destroyed, Congress has got to reform the school system so -they stop teaching kids they are animals. Then it has to get the police to realize they are responsible for public safety, not just nabbing people they don't like. Congress will have to pass a bill abolishing the whole evil fraud of psychiatry. Congress has to eradicate the executive branch as it is and organize one with far less power."

Rawl gazed intensely into the camera lens, as if willing a result of duplication and action to occur if, when, Earth ever was reborn, re-civilized.

"Do not attempt to form another police state for then your planet will die again.

"The mistakes of the past were ours. The future is yours."

With that, Rawl essayed an easy salute.

A stray wind blew a wisp of yellow fog between Rawl and the capsule and the screen went blank.

EPILOGUE

Stunned, the president and his head cop could only stare at the blank screen as the capsule's panel doors slowly swung shut.

Through the window, the sun was setting on Washington the fair, Washington the beautiful.

And still they just sat. The head of National Police vacant-eyed; the president pensive, trying to gather his scattered wits.

The president considered the consequences of this capsule's contents became public knowledge. He shuddered at the idea. All his plans, all his power...he shook his head to disband such awful notions.

After a time, he stood up. Seeing his boss rise, Jedgar also got to his feet, thankful to get going. He knew this business was terribly important, and that much was at stake - but all he could think of was his dinner and the race tonight. And he had a mighty big bone to pick with that Benny the Dip....

Thoughtfully, the president walked towards the locked doors that led from the room, Jedgar trailing behind, anxious to be gone.

On the steps outside the science building, a cluster of newsmen and photographers had gathered. They had been waiting an awfully long time..As the huge portals opened, their desultory talk ceased abruptly. They looked up expectantly as the president and his sidekick, czar of all US police, appeared to be instantly hit by a barrage of clamorous questions and popping flashbulbs.

"What was it?" yelled a reporter.

"Mr. President...." began another.

And another reporter "Was it some ancient civilization?"

Loud and clear above the others, one reporter could be heard. "Was it a time capsule?"

The president looked down at the reporters.They were obviously awaiting some kind of answer. Well, he'd give 'em one. He smiled slowly, eyes veiling.

Waving his hands for silence, he spoke in a jocular tone of voice. "Sorry to disappoint. It was just a piece of old World War II junk. Just scrap metal, gentlemen. Just scrap metal."

Turning his head a little, the president exchanged a sly, conspiratorial glance with his Chief of National Police.

Jedgar, catching on and approving whole-heartedly, smiled back - a bit evilly, slightly twisted.

No one would ever know...

Just scrap metal.

SCIENTOLOGY: PLAN FOR WORLD PEACE

by L. RON HUBBARD 1963

Disarmament has claimed the attention of Earth's governments for more than half a century without any practical means of attaining it.

Any solution to the problem of war must resolve the greater problems of political and industrial security.

Today's trend is toward togetherness. And today'~ urgency is that Man take firm forward steps toward a real solution of his international political and economic affairs while he retains the power of decision.

A peaceful consolidation of Man's real progress is possible without recourse to war, to rebellion, to the overthrow of governments by force, or other chaotic and regrettable acts.

The following blueprint is advanced to demonstrate the feasibility of utilizing modern trends and peaceful means in securing for government and industry, a more stable endurance and greater service to mankind.

Peace with prosperity is not an idle dream. And a determined and unified advance is possible towards that end.

The following programme has no other purpose or interest than attaining these ends.

PROGRAMME BY STEPS

STEP ONE[

Persuade all governments to turn over all atomic weapons, stocks, and control of atomic manufactures to the United Nations at once.

Persuade the United Nations and all governments to select a site for and construct an International City, preferably in North Africa, on the Mediterranean Coast, where land reclamation can expand its area and where its communication lines can easily be centered for Earth. Seen

Rejected Percentage Characters 1302 24 98.16

SECTOR 9 BOOK PAGE 159 STEP THREE: Persuade all governments to remove their capitols to the International City complete with heads of government, congresses, and parliaments.

STEP FOUR:

Secure communication lines and command lines from each country's head of government in International City to the government of each internal county or state in that country. (Wherein the words 'county' and 'state' differ in various nations but mean the next lower political-geographical echelon below the national government.)

Regard each county or state within a country as an autonomous unit under the control of the head of the nation in International City.

STEP FIVE:

Bring about a recomposition in the United Nations, basing its member delegates on a formula comprised of land area and value, production and construction value and population figures.

Remove all special privilege categories for favored nations and the exercise of veto by a few.

Form the United Nations into a judiciary division, two houses and an executive branch, the key officials to be popularly elected or selected within the nations they represent and by voting by both upper and lower United Nations Houses for the head of the United Nations.

Reform the United Nations Charter into an instrument specifically engaged in governing the heads of nations and international affairs. Forbid in the charter all interference with or government of individuals or smaller communities. Forbid the regulation of work, working conditions, hours of work, place of work, housing, or any other individual matter, especially laws designed to 'protect the individual from himself' or imagined enemies, giving any nation or individual so interfered with full recourse to law and damages in the International Court.

Forbid interference with the politics, beliefs, religion, ethnology, customs, or ideologies of any nation or state or county.

Forbid all pressures from groups within the United Nations to favor or disfavor ideology, race, color or creed for any reason whatever.

Seen Rejected Percentage

Characters 1712 4 99.77

SECTOR 9 BOOK PAGE 160

STEP SIX:

Forbid treaties of mutual assistance or warlike assistance amongst states, counties or nations against other states, counties or nations.

STEP SEVEN:

Bring about the creation of a small effective armed force under the United Nations and the dismantling or abolishment of all other war facilities on the planet above the level of crime and population control forces under the direction of the heads of states and counties and the small bodyguard usual to the protection of a head of a nation, state or county, these forces to be severely circumscribed and well below the strength of the International Force.

Persuade the transfer to be made with due regard for and recompense of, the personal interests of existing armed force personnel by retirement, transfers to state or U.N. forces or other utilization; and the U.N. to inherit all existing military established bases and give recompense therefore.

STEP EIGHT:

Persuade stable and real International economic measures.

Base economics on the most fundamental definitions of inflation and deflation, wherein inflation is the result of more money than goods and deflation the result of more goods than money, and maintain financial matters accordingly.

Persuade the turn over of the International Monetary Fund to the United Nations.

Persuade the turn over of all central banks of nations or central banking, to this Fund.

Establish a branch of this Fund in every state or county through the national or central bank of that nation.

Allocate to each state or county as its money the exact value of its property, real or personal, and exchange the new money for existing monies in the hands of persons or corporations. Permit no other monies to be printed or issued. Each year, by careful survey, increase or decrease the extant funds in a county or state to match its productivity, the principle being that money must exist to purchase that which exists to be purchased.

SECTOR 9 BOOK PAGE 161

Continue the value of money against real goods and property.

The character of notes and coins should bear on one side their International Value and on the other their domestic or local designations.

The handling of future funding should be through the International Monetary Fund to its national or central bank branches of the nation in counties or states to the private banks in that state, all under the supervision and direction of the United Nations through the Nation's central bank branches in each county or state.

The financing of the governments of cities, counties or states should be as usual by their own taxation and the government of the nation should receive its money for all its expenses and management only from their counties or states and never from individuals or companies directly, the amount for the nation not to exceed fifteen percent of the gross revenue of each county or state, paid directly by that county or state to the nation's capital in International City.

The financing of the United Nations should consist of an additional ten percent of the gross revenue of each county or state paid directly to the United Nations and eight percent of the gross revenue received by each national government from whatever source, and from interests paid into the International Monetary Fund.

The collection of taxation funds by any state, county, nation, or the United Nations to be strictly forbidden to be on a net basis, thus inhibiting the invasion of the financial privacy of individuals, companies, cities, counties or states, or nations, and reducing the complications and expense of collection.

From these tax funds all expenses of whatever kind should be paid without further recourse to "special" United Nations or National taxations independent of the counties or states, a practice which should be forbidden.

STEP NINE:

Persuade the United Nations and national governments that the activities of the United Nations and national governments (but not state or county or city governments) should be limited to (a) The administration of justice; (b) Public Safety; (c) Facilitating the safe transport of persons and goods; (d) Guaranteeing the collection of private and public debts; (e) Efficient handling of public communication; (f) Safeguarding public health; and (9) Self Preservation. Seen Rejected Percentage Characters 1968 10 99.49

SECTOR 9 BOOK PAGE 162 Forbidding the indulgence by the United Nations or National governments in (a) Interference with the individual; (b) Moral laws; (c) Racial and religious matters; (d) Workers, unions, and wages; (e) Management of private business; (f) Production; (g) Collection of personal or company dossiers by whatever excuse including those of tax purposes; (h) Entertainment; (i) Forwarding minority or majority racial or religious purposes; (J) Assisting in the establishment of monopolies in any field of activity except government; (k) Engaging in war.

Under the Administration of Justice, Crime should be defined as 'aggressive acts resulting in actual intentional violence to persons or property or intentional deprivation of property without adequate compensation' and that nothing exceeding this shall be considered to be embraced by criminal jurisprudence and that all else shall be considered civil justice and subject only to civil suit by companies or individuals.

STEP TEN:

Persuade the United Nations and national governments that they have no interest in matters of healing or welfare and may not legislate for or against them, nor assist to create health monopolies or 'legal procedures' and the United Nations or national governments have no interest in the support or lack of support of individuals, but may assist them only to the degree of encouraging production of public works, it being impossible for the U.N. and national governments (but not state or county or city governments) to continue to care for the individuals of an expanding population without creating a world wide tyranny in which all individuals become slaves.

All armaments, fissionable materials and warlike or dangerous war productions not disposed of in the general disarmament should be provided with adequate storage or repair facilities at International City and placed wholly and only under the control of the United Nations and its armed forces.

Arrange that adequate patrolling and detection facilities be maintained throughout the world by the United Nations to ensure against the illegal production of facilities for war.

Enforce that only conventional weapons and forces be used when nations at disagreement refuse to abide by the decisions of the International Court in routine civil suit and threaten war.

Enforce that no fissionable materials be used in war on this planet even by the United Nations .

SECTOR 9 BOOK PAGE 163

Arrange that civilized regulations regarding the quartering of troops and their conduct be enjoined upon the forces of the United Nations.

Arrange that no United Nations force may belong first to a nation and secondarily to the United Nations but that all such units be recruited by and maintained by the United Nations.

Arrange that no military or police conscription exists even in the United Nations force.

Arrange that no United Nations force may be employed to maintain order in a member nation not threatened by aggressive war, nor may it be used to restrain a revolt contained within a nation or a state, save only that the revolting forces may not attack another nation or attack from another nation or refuse to continue membership in the United Nations.

s~ ~

That the government of International City itself shall be conducted by a group not interested in the United Nations or in any other nation, and that this group have no political connections, nor be able to interfere with the conduct of government by the United Nations or its nations, but have interest only in the nominal and usual city government of International City and to create and maintain a city and to prevent riot, civil commotion and crime within the area of International City only, all residents thereof being subject to such civic administration without any immunity for murder, theft, and other offenses against members of the community as a community.

This civic corporation to be chartered by the United Nations under the name of 'International City

Civic Corporation' on a permanent irrevocable charter and thereafter remain wholly independent of political control except for possible suit in the International Court, it being widely known that capitals constructed and run exclusively by large governments are slowly constructed and disinterestedly managed. The Civic Corporation must be immune to fashionable vendettas or favoritisms and must be dedicated by personal interest and reward to the construction, maintenance and continuance of a beautiful and peaceful city. The Civic Corporation must be aloof from all government policies and concerns or trends of the times, and these things must be guaranteed in its charter.

Membership in the Civic Corporation would be on an individual basis wherein a member may represent himself or a company but a company may be represented by only one member. Seen Rejected Percentage Characters 2023 9 99.56

SECTOR 9 BOOK PAGE 164 Such membership should include representation of the foremost organizations in the world in the fields of all the diverse skills and materials comprising the needs of the construction, maintenance, services and commerce of a large city~ including governing, policing, and financing.

Each member should pledge, but not pay, a sum of one million dollars to the Civic Corporation.

There should be two thousand members.

The members should then elect twenty council members to represent the various departments of city planning, maintenance, services and commerce, all for a period of five years.

The council should then elect or confirm a permanent chairman.

No member should be permitted to 'buy out' another member. All posts of membership should be filled when vacated. Membership should not be inheritable.

The Civic Corporation thereupon issues bonds acceptable to nations, the International Monetary Fund or banks to the total of five hundred billion dollars against various portions of their activities and proceeds with this financing to obtain, with United Nations political assistance if needed, the lands necessary for construction, making certain of sufficient terrain for expansion and all needful facilities.

Aside from national monuments transported there, all lands and buildings, utilities and services of whatever kind continue to belong to the International City Civic Corporation, and all rates, taxes, fees, and revenues of the city continue to belong to the Civic Corporation in perpetuity.

The design of the city should cluster the national headquarters in such a way as to prevent selective bombing or attacks. The land allocated to each should, however, be extensive, the residential portion fanning away from the center of the nation's government, which in turn, with others, fans away from the United Nations center, all allowing for extensive boulevards and commercial sections. Long underground networks for swift transport, a large port, various airfields, extensive shopping, hotel and residence sections, and numerous recreational facilities and parks with specially built resort areas, provided with excellent utilities, should endeavor to make International City the best planned, best built and most pleasant city on Earth. And every endeavor of the Civic Corporation, in it's own interests, should concentrate on making it so and to provide for it the best and least censorious city government on Earth. Seen Rejected Percentage Characters 2088 6 99.71

SECTOR 9 BOOK PAGE 165 The city should be maintained as a free port and every effort should be made to absorb the threat of inflation posed by international funds flooding into the City without providing goods or services to compensate. The Civic Corporation should not therefore allow government stores, canteens or recreational services not under the control of the corporation, but should endeavor to keep the cost of living low for the entire city and thereby acquire also a stable and non-political population minimally influenced by the constantly shifting political population and preventing the fate of welfare managed capitals of the past.

From each nation and from the United Nations the Civic Corporation should receive ten percent of all revenues collected by the national government and by the United Nations from national governments to maintain the city and its services.

Initial construction of capitals should be in so far as possible a duplicate of the previous capital's ground and government buildings, transplanting these where possible, such as the complete Mall of Washington from the Lincoln Memorial to the Supreme Court Building, should be at the expense of that nation with the guidance and co-operation of the Civic Corporation or on a cost plus ten percent basis by the Civic Corporation, but all other non-government buildings should be built at the expense of and owned by the Civic Corporation.

In police matters, where they affect crimes of violence, riots and civil commotion, only the forces of the Civic Corporation should be permitted to act within the boundaries of International City.

No extradition of any kind should be permitted by the Civic Corporation.

All persons, regardless of status, should be bound by the laws of the Civic Corporation. No violence of any kind should be condoned on political grounds.

The Civic Corporation should be fully aware that its profitable future depends on sound construction, excellent facilities a beautiful and hospitable city and a benign but effective government, aloof from vendettas against persons or fashionable witch hunts.

Recourse by the Civic Corporation against interference by other governments in the creation and management of International City should be available in the International Court, or in the courts of nations, or in its own city courts against financial indemnities placed on deposit to the Civic Corporation against further encroachment upon its rights or the forfeiting of such deposits by later abuses. Seen Rejected Percentage Characters 2119 12 99.43

SECTOR 9 BOOK PAGE 166 STEP THIRTEEN: All National Meetings or International Meetings such as those of Congresses, Parliaments, or conferences amongst heads of nations or states should be forbidden against fine outside the precincts of International City.

STEP FOURTEEN:

No head of state should be permitted to absent himself from International City in times of international crisis, and not more than three months in any year.

The withdrawal of a majority of a National government's personnel from International City or the construction of a national capital within the nation should constitute a declaration of war upon the United Nations.

STEP FIFTEEN:

The United Nations or its forces may not continue to occupy any country attacked by it for the crime of war, but should with all speed return that country to its own duly selected or elected head of state as soon as disarmed.

The United Nations should not acquire independent sovereignty over sections of Earth by reason of mandates, occupation, or other means, regardless of the conditions of that area.

The United Nations should not finance leaders of national government to acquire territory, put down revolts, or make war.

STEP SIXTEEN:

Any nation found guilty of concentrating troops, acquiring forbidden munitions, or provoking conditions leading to war should be liable to indemnities equivalent to those which would have become owing had the attempted conquest occurred, been lost, and the aggressor nation vanquished; and all such indemnities should be payable to the United Nations Land Reclamation Fund.

s~ ~

The United Nations should not be permitted to define or outline 'orthodox science' or introduce any idea of orthodoxy into any science or the humanities except government; nor should it be permitted to attempt reforms in genetics, nor should it define sanity or insanity or label or care for the insane; nor should it be permitted to engage upon propaganda campaigns for any science or practice beyond the halting or isolation of disease epidemics. STEP EIGHTEEN:

The exploration of space should not be permitted to individual nations or private concerns, constituting as it does a potential of warlike manufactures, but all such activities should be carried out by the United Nations, acquiring all existing material, technology, facilities and personnel for that purposes; and all information gathered from such projects should be deposited with the United Nations and made freely available to all scientists where divorced from war.

STEP NINETEEN:

The United Nations should be permitted to engage upon campaigns, financing and public works through nations or directly to ass*st economic apportionment, of rehabilitation of Earth, its streams, wildlife, reforestation, fisheries, dams and land reclamation, but must turn over the resulting properties to their respective nations when completed, but may withhold maintenance funds should United Nations inspections reveal a failure to continue such projects in operation by that nation. And by this all land, air, stream, and ocean pollution becomes, as it affects the planet, the province of the United Nations without forbidding independent action by nations, states, or counties, or cities.

s~ ~

The United Nations should not be permitted nor should any national government be permitted to prescribe curricula or demand or regulate attendance in any school, public or private, whether maintained by International or National funds, nor define the requirements of a degree or demand the attainment of any scholastic standing of any kind, or regulate in any way the education or religion of any individual by whatever circuitous means, nor should the United Nations or National governments be permitted to require the indoctrination in any way of the citizens of states or counties, nor pronounce upon their mental fitness or lack of it. But the United Nations or nations may require what they please for purposes of their own employments and may conduct courses in government for their officials or compose universities for this purpose in International City, but may not require indoctrination of the children of employees or officials.

The activities and subjects of education and schools should be entirely the province of state or county or city governments, autonomous whether given International or National funds for education or not.

STEP TWENTY-ONE:

Any person, company or government suffering actual direct loss by reason of this plan should be recompensed fully from the International Monetary Fund upon submission of factual and substantiated claims to a General Claims Office to be formed within the framework of the International Monetary Fund; and all such claims denied should be referred to a Committee of Claims of the United Nations General Assembly; and all such claims there denied should be heard by the lower branches of the International Court.

But no such claims should be based on ideological facts or conquests or seizures or losses of conquered areas or court findings after January 1st 1960. No personal or contractual claims should be considered valid if based on contract awards or appointments begun or entered upon after one year of the date of award of the charter of the International City Civic Corporation by the United Nations.

STEP TWENTY-TWO:

An executive or official of the United Nations should be personally liable in the International Court for his public acts through the processes of civil suit, should those acts be proven beyond reasonable doubt to be in viola{ion of the basic laws of the United Nations and taken in interests other than those of the United Nations and directly resulting in actual injury to an individual, company, or state or county or nation.

STEP TWENTY-THREE:

The United Nations and national governments should be denied all power of extradition from counties or states, since a world with one government notoriously provides no refuge for the individual out of favour and results therefore in a prison-like slavery- when lacking this restraint.

STEP TWENTY-FOUR:

The apportionment of funds or International Funds should be divorced from all efforts to favor or disfavor races, color, creed, or political majorities or minorities, 'backwardness' or 'progressiveness', and should be based only upon current economic and production grounds, and all efforts to bring about suppression or elevation of races, color or creed by financial manipulation within the International Monetary Fund Should be deemed treasonable.

SECTOR 9 BOOK PAGE 169

STEP TWENTY-FIVE:

A long term educational programme of United Nations officials and Earth's people should be engaged upon, bringing into general demand the continued adherence to the principles founding a world government and in particular to the fundamental that the United Nations is a government of nations, erected to end the anarchy of sovereignty which led to wars, and aloof from the governing of individuals or interference with their daily lives, save only to provide them with the tranquility and prosperity of peace.

STEP TWENTY-SIX:

The new charter of the United Nations, based on these explicit principles, should not be subject to amendment once this plan is executed, since to change it after nations have delivered up their power to object would not be an honest act. To guarantee peace, this charter must endure.

"Now to bring you up to date on the latest news in Sector 9 since the publication of the Ethics Order." (Sector Ops Bu 20)

News Items

1.) Xenu was arrested by memebers of the Galactic Patrol on Monday 25 Nov 1985 and exiled from Sector 9. He had been hiding out and monitoring the body of Anthony Carlile in the Strasbourg area of France, using French and Swiss Passports. He had attended a Black Masonic Order "Summit Meeting" in Geneva, Switzerland shortly before his arrest.

2.) Since the arrest of Xenu, the Markabian "One World Plan" has fractured into two major factions with a quiet third group waiting to see who comes out on top. Two major factions are:

1) The group who wants to carry out Xenu's plan for One World Mental Enslavement and take the Planet for themselves as total despotic masters separate from Markab and its other planets. These have control and monitor lines into mainly American Secret Societies, government and finance.

2) The group who want to remain loyal to Markab and take the planet for joining it to the Markabian Confederation of 7 planets (But it is also known that Markab itself has endorsed and accepted (finally) the Ethics Order on Xenu and have eased off on the mental enslavement plans, but are still carrying out the Political and Financial plans.) This group is based in Europe, and their control of Secret Societies, Banking and Politics is centered in Switzerland (and Strasbourg and Brussels).

3) Evidence of the above split of the Markabian conspiracy has surfaced in the last few months in the stories concerning conflicts over banking, economic and political matters in New Zealand, France, England, Spain, Denmark, America, South Africa, Sweden, Germany, Italy and African Middle East and Latin and South American countries. These stories, which you can read in your newspapers, seem puzzling - as if something is not being said - or a motive being concealed.

(Just look for the apparently insane and crazy actions and statements)...These are all evidences of a major battle going on behind the scenes by the two factions for control of your planet.

4) There are Markabians of the "wait and see" type and other "think-alikes" among the Earth hirearchy who are even considering a 3rd Alternative - they want to either "take over" or "come to terms with" the New Civilization Game and Free Zone Decree.

****

5) Now is the time to get busy with your own New Civilization Political Parties and Free Zone Planet activities so that Earth is in control of her own destiny and is being cared for by her own loyal people. Don't let the "drop out" Markabians and "think-alikes" beat you to the punch by putting up their "own idea" of a New Civilization! The Game is for you, the freedom-loving people of Earth to play and win. The right time is now.

A Poem

Epitath of the dark ones.....

Those who enslaved you for uncountable years
And gave you all your ills and fears
They made you into mice from men
And fixed it so you could not win

Their scenarios and plans have all come asunder
And to us it has come as no great wonder
For they dared to touch a man of life
And not him only but his son and wife.

The evil the wove wears no more
It's a shoddy coat og blood and gore.
The game is over, you black souls and implanters
Ye mystics and monitors and mind bending enchanters

You vanish with your master in a blaze of light
Xenu is exiled and out of the fight
Never again shall black magic hold sway

The spirits of truth have won the day

So tell your sons that they are free

And the game is fun as it used to be

A new Civilization is now on the way

Thanks to the inexorable spirit of Elron Elray.

CAPT. BILL ROBERTSON - DEBRIEF - MAY, 1982

TRANSCRIPT

Hello John,

This is Captain Bill.

I've decided to send you a tape in a sort of a whole debrief of all the stuff that occurred since 1966 up to P.T. in 1982, to try and give you the data in case you may need it. Because, as you can see, anybody, that tries to get this data applied, gets shot pretty bad, but if you don't know the data even worse can happen to you.

So this is sort of a background to all the stuff that we talked about and that you see in the States. And this is what's happening and what's behind it and as long as the Church carries on like this they are going to end up in the arms of the Government. And unless these guys get together and get over their fears and get over their Q & A, it will happen and we won't be able to pull off Ron's Plan for this Planet.

So I want the big Thetans, the guys that can do things, they guys that can get things done, the OT's to really understand what's happening.

So I'll start off and give you the sequence of events. Actually you can go back to 1950 if you want and listen to what the boss has to say about the...it's in the Tech Volumes, it's in the Tech, it's in the Policy Letters: about the various Government Agencies, and Psychiatry and the Doctor Organizations and your Special Interest Groups and your World Bankers and all of that. But the real story where I got into it actually starts around when I went to Saint Hill in '65.

I was doing the Briefing Course there and it was all going along fine. LRH was visible, living there at Saint Hill. His family was with him. They were all very happy. The kids would play out in the yard every day and Mary Sue was visible, living right there at Saint Hill. And it was one beautiful place to be, and we were all very happy on the Briefing Course.

LRH was lecturing once a week and giving the lectures to the Briefing Course in person. He was also playing little OT games and putting different colored energy field around his body. And everybody was quite pleased and very anticipatory of the OT levels so that they could also share in these beautiful manifestations and abilities. So, it was all a very pro-survival and on-purpose activity.

So, when I finished the Briefing Course, I decided to become a Class VII; stay there at Saint Hill and become a Class VII, which I did, and in 1966 while I was doing that, I was also helping him design some of the foundations of the Castle and that was my first taste of what happens when Special Interest Groups get into power, and try to cover up something.

The foundation job, that I was on, was for the new Castle wings and I'd found out the guy who had - named Ron Bonwick, who used to be LRH's chauffeur and general know-it-all handyman, (who was actually a plant from the East Grinstead Newspaper and sold them stories about LRH and Saint Hill, as I was told by LRH later) - he had designed this foundation with bricks and rubble and everything, it was designed so that it had no reinforcement, and the Castle would slide down the field if it was build that way and there would be cracks in the walls and everything. I put a reinforced foundation design in, and started building that, while LRH was in Rhodesia.

This was around '66, in the summer. And I was working happily away and the next thing you know, there was a Comm-Ev called.

It had something to do with a telex they received from LRH to investigate Saint Hill and find out what was happening on the finance lines because their stats were down. Now, that was the org stats. It had nothing to do with Estates, because Estates stats were up. We had been completing all of the LRH orders one by one. But the Comm-Ev wasn't even aimed at Estates, because the people who were actually causing the stats to go down were people like Ron Bonwick, Reg Sharpe and a couple of other people on the Exec Council that didn't actually know their ass from a hole in the ground.

And, as LRH was away, they were just sort of running things into the ground. I think Otto Roos was one of these people at the time or he was just Qual Sec at the time. Anyway, this Comm-Ev shot me and my Org Officer and we went through our A to E and came back, you know, and wrote up our overts and all that stuff. We sort of didn't know what to do, we were just declared one day and that was it. We didn't ever have a chance to have a review or say anything in our defense.

Now, there was a couple of committee meetings, where they assured us, that everything was alright and there was nothing wrong, so we didn't have anything to defend, you know? But then the order came out and they just shot us. So I had a bad experience with that and when I came back I went back into interning.

I was only out for a couple of weeks, but I came back and they needed auditors. They saw I was on my Class VII Course. At that same time, however, they had also invalidated my foundation design and they left the reinforcement out of it and when the guys who took over built the thing, they left the reinforcement out and walls did crack and for many years it was believed that it was my fault. Until I finally talked to Mary Sue one time and I told her the story and she said " Oh, my goodness!", and "Everybody was blaming you and really you were the guy, who had tried to make it right" and I said "That's right." and she said "Then it was these other guys, that didn't listen to you, that were the people responsible for that thing cracking later". I said "That's right". I am a trained Civil Engineer and I know what the hell I'm doing with these things.

And one of the guys that didn't listen was a guy named Herbie Parkhouse. And although he was a good Scientologist he just won't listen sometimes. He has his own ideas about things and he didn't know anything about Estates. He used to come and ask me things, but then he wouldn't listen to me, really. And he would just listen to what he thought. But if he didn't know something, he would come and ask and try and carry on. He was trying to oversee the Estates stuff after I was back into auditing.

Anyway, that's the story about how that Castle thing happened. I just wanted to clear that because there's an example of Special Interest Groups and people that think they know best, causing something, that is a bad effect.

Anyway, when LRH came back from Rhodesia, he straightened it out and got a Comm-Ev on the right people. And he also gave a debrief of his Rhodesia trip on a tape, that you can hear. It's in 1966, I think, around August, and he tells about the Special Interest Groups down there that failed to renew his passport, when he was getting a little too much political power going down there and was trying to get Rhodesia going into one man - one vote, so that blacks could have a vote. And that wasn't obtained since they knocked him out of there.

It was finally obtained though. His postulate did come out on that, and now it's called Zimbabwe, and they do have one man - one vote. And they have all black rule. So it only took 10 or 12 years. Yes, his postulate came true. He always makes sure those postulates come true and they will come true one way or the other.

Now, right after that Rhodesia trip, he realized something about OTs, and he wrote that famous one about OTs work well together and can't do it alone. And he started the Sea Project in 1966, October.

I joined - as being on the Clearing Course, it was by invitation only - and I got invited to it and he went off again, in the fall/winter of 1966 to research OT III.

And for that he went to Africa and later met us in Las Palmas, when I was put into active service on the 'Enchanter', January 1st, 1967. So, in 1967, I started on the Sea Project and I've sailed as Chief Engineer on the 'Enchanter' all the way from Hull, England down through, stopping at Oporto and Gibraltar and Agadir and ending up in Las Palmas.

And when I got there, as Virginia Downsborough and I were riding around doing some shopping, we decided to stop by the post office and see if there was any mail for the 'Enchanter' or anything. And we found a telegram in there from LRH and it said "Please meet the plane". It was to the crew of the'Enchanter' you know, and it said "please meet the plane" arriving on a certain day from Tangier, at a certain time; "I will be on it". And it happened to be that day, and it happened to be one hour from the time the plane was arriving.

So we jumped in a cab and went out to the airport and we met LRH coming with his full OT III research materials and we welcomed him, he welcomed us and we got him a place to stay and we set up right away into production getting the ships ready for sea and OT missions. He wanted to set up an OT Base to get OT III run.

At that time it was thought it had to be run in a special warm environment with medical service available and he later discovered easier ways to do it, but his research notes were approximately 3 feet high and handwritten and those had to be copied and sent into safekeeping back at St. Hill .

They had all the points of the catastrophe, that happened on this planet 75 million years ago with, and including, Ethics Orders on those responsible for that catastrophe. And as you probably know from your OT study, beings don't really die and some of them are still around this area.

So anyway, we helped the Boss, and were totally on purpose and just working 16, 17, 18 hours a day. Got the ships ready. His main things were to set up OT Bases and do the researches into various plans for planetary control. I won't go into those right now, because they are confidential. And take over the various organizations, that were the main, shall we say, suppressive control groups on the planet, which we all lumped under the name of SMERSH, but which included the infamous World Federation for Mental Health, and a few other World-type of organizations, that were all headquartered in Switzerland.

And we did missions to find out more about those, who was in them, who the bad guys were, who the good guys were, all that kind of thing, and the English started attacking in the press when we started doing this stuff around the last part of 1967. You'll see some - if you research the newspapers of those times - you'll find some really heavy duty attacks on the Sea Project and so on like that and especially when we went up to get the 'Royal Scotsman' in December of '67 - no, late in November. And he also made Ron's Journal '67 that year. That's all covered in RJ '67 actually, what I'm going over now, but it lets you know this is not just your friendly little planet where everybody's just sort of "aberrated". There's actually some very evil intentions going on here.

So now we go into 1968. 1968. That was a big year. By this time it was the Sea Org, and we set up the first AO, that delivered OT III in Valencia, on the ship, on the Flag Ship. Sorry. It wasn't the Flag Ship yet. It was the 'Royal Scotsman' at that time. The Flag Ship was the 'Athena' or the old 'Avon River' at the time, and I was the Tech Sec, the first one there, and it was quite good. We had a big flow of people coming in from all over the world.

Now, at the same time, LRH took the 'Athena' and did "Mission Into Time", from which that book was written. That same year we also had AO Alicante, AO Edinburgh, AOLA. That's interesting, because right at that time, I'd been the CO of each of those Orgs, and I'd got Power stats at each of them, and also got promoted to Captain at this time 'cause I'd done my navigation hat.

I knew how to sail ships and run ships. Motor ships, sailing ships and so on, and also had been in Power on three missions on AOs, so I got my Captain's awarded, and there was only, and still is, only two. There's Mary Sue and myself.

We had the famous 'Liability Cruise' that year before the AO, or in between the AO on the ship and the AO at Alicante. While that was going on we had that 'Liability Cruise' and Mary Sue was the captain of the ship, to get into shape to be the Flag Ship and to straighten it all up.

I told you, I think, once, that story about how the life boats got blown ashore in the wind when we were doing drills one day and the Spanish government arrested everybody and threw them in jail, and thought we were a Russian spy-ship. And came out finally, and Mary Sue handled the guys very well and offered the guys with the machine-guns tea and everything, so that they had to take the tea-cups and drop their machine-guns.

And the officer, that came out, believed that she was a Russian at first and then she handled him and told him the truth, that she was an American and this ship was merely doing a cruise and we were actually now in the process of making a movie and that's why everybody was, - so you know - they had handcuffs on their wrists and thing like that - it was part of a movie, right? So anyway, that was the 'Liability Cruise'.

Well, we got the ship in shape and refitted in Alicante and got it up to Marseilles and the Boss christened it the Flag Ship and he came aboard again from the 'Athena'.

At that time, also that year, we did the Pubs Mission. I did that one myself to Pubs in Edinburgh, and we found there that "plants" were put in by the World Federation of Mental Health and that they were in the Shipping Department, which were mis-addressing all the books being sent out and causing their stats to go down. I traced the guys back to the pharmacy-shop, where they were getting drugs, and the owner, who was in phone communication to a guy named Dr. Carstairs, who worked in the Medical School of Edinburgh and was the President of the World Federation of Mental Health.

So, these little investigations always ended up - wherever you had downstats and you had a lot of enturbulation, (which they did have at Pubs at that time) - you can always trace it back and it goes right into the arms of the enemy.

That year also, (we had done one earlier), in 1967, we did the World Wide missions, a series of missions, that showed we had to take over the responsibility from Management as well, because the WW Exec Council and so on just could not run Orgs properly. And we were starting to do lots of missions.

So, the Sea Org went into Management and sort of "off" its first purpose, "to get OT Bases together from which OTs could be trained or processed, and sent out on OT type projects, which were designed to get good control back on this planet". It went into more of a Management - "Let's get Scientology going and make sure it works because otherwise Orgs don't survive and we don't have any product to really give to the population of the planet and they'll all remain aberrated".

So, that went on, and we did a couple of missions also to Switzerland, to make sure that we continued in our operations to take over some of those fraudulent Mental Health Groups and so on, and part of the purpose then (after the English newspaper attacks), that LRH gave to the GO, was to take over the entire field of Mental Health.

I also did a mission for Mary Sue and it's wonderful working with both of them. I mean, they are just fantastic beings. And as we go into '68 - also, I must tell you, that during the summer of '68 is when the ban came in England, and that was a direct attack by the enemy on Scientology.

It was banning all foreign Scientologists from England. It was not a law. It was just an instruction sent down from a guy named Kenneth Robinson, the Home Secretary. He just issued an order on instructions from the head bankers in England, who were getting their instructions from the head "honchos" in Switzerland, which are the guys at the top of the ladder, as you will find out on RJ'67. And there's one guy, that actually is the chief of those, and we know who that is - a guy named Strasbourg, J. Strasbourg, Herr J, Mr. J. He's the guy behind the scene, that tells the bankers what to do and they tell the various government officials, who owe them money. (Not the government officials, but the government owes them money.)

So, those scenarios now, are very sophisticated and they're all programmed on computers and so on like that, so that the government are totally under the control of these bankers. Whenever you find a country in debt, you'll find these control lines in it, very heavily, including the United States.

Especially the United States, the politicians under control, the newspapers under control, the medical services, the psychiatric services, the military, all under control. Not by their own elected representatives, but by these bankers.

Now, those were the things, we were finding out then, that the world was not really running just randomly, it was running under a nice suppressive plan to keep everyone enturbulated, so they couldn't look and see what it was.

So anyway, this "hit" against the Church with the banning of foreign Scientologists into England. We thought it was going to knock us out, and I took it upon myself at the time (at the AO) to try and get the ban revoked and cause an English strike all over England so that the trains would stop and the mail would stop because they "might" be carrying a Scientology book or letter or something. You know, just make it ridiculous, until everybody stopped doing what they were doing and noticed that the Church was being attacked, or religion was being attacked by some ass-hole named Kenneth Robinson.

But the GO stopped me from doing that. They said 'they would handle it'. I did an ethics trip for that. I was still Q'ing & A'ing in those days, you see, and finally I got an order from the Boss and he cancelled any ethics conditions on me, and he said ' take your Americans (because we'd been given two weeks to leave the country) and go over to the United States and set up another AO over there, in AOLA. And at the same time he was sending out another mission to set up one in Europe, in Copenhagen.

At that time I think the ship was in Greece, being that they were going to also set one up in Greece, but then there was an "American Embassy to the British Embassy to the Greek Embassy report" which said that we were some kind of drug addicts and we were drug smugglers and all that shit. And a lot of bad PR happened and the ship had to leave Greece. Naval vessels in the Greek ports were being told 'don't associate with those Scientologists, you know they are all bad, they have drugs and they're hippies and they're this and that'. And the commanders of ships were being advised by the psychiatrists aboard.

We found all this out from our intelligence operations then. However, all during this time, reporters were being sent down to interview the Boss, and they weren't being allowed in of course and also people were trying to be planted aboard to kill him, and so on, and we caught everyone of them.

Still, Mary Sue, LRH and the family were perfectly safe, perfectly happy and they carried on. It was just like the old days of fighting the enemy, while you got your job done.

So we were quite willing to do this move and we jumped over to AOLA with all our OT materials. Got them through Customs without anyone looking at them. Set up the AOLA and sent back Flag about 1/4 million dollars in about 10 or 12 weeks.

Kept expanding like crazy until a couple of, shall we say, suppressively inclined fixed and special interest groups in the United States got onto our lines.

One of them was the Julia Salmen clique in LA, who said that we were "assigning too much auditing to people on SOLO'" (for crying out loud), and you know, and that she "couldn't audit that much and therefore we were bad." And she also resented anybody in the United States that wasn't under her control, because she was just an Org person and although the executive of the United States, she was just Org and we were Sea Org. And she thought she was running us and she wasn't.

And there's a lot of funny stories with that, but she was just a normal alcoholic. Anyway, the other one at time was Alan Walter, who was 3rd partying because of his doing some squirrel activities in his franchise, and we were finding out about it and putting in ethics on him and generally putting ethics in right across and the stats were up - up - up. Just over the 100,000 dollar mark. We even had made over $100,000 at Edinburgh.

We made over $100,000 per week at LA too and we were in power. We had over 800 active FSMs or at least 400 active and 800 on the books. And the central files was less than 2000, so we were doing quite well. Anyway, this 3rd party operated on some Aides back at the ship and without consulting LRH, they ordered me back.

At first they ordered all these successful actions stopped. Like the Tours, and the Ethics actions, and so on. Of course the stats crashed from $116,000 in one week to $20,000 the next week. And they had to explain that. Well, they couldn't until I got back to the ship and debriefed. And then LRH cancelled everything again. You see, he had to keep saving my ass there.

Well, I finally got big enough to where I figured I could save it myself. But anyway, I was Q'ing & A'ing in those times. I knew LRH would 'save' me, you know, if somebody didn't understand what I was doing. But that's a very "effect viewpoint". We all have to be big enough Thetans to where we can take over the job of handling a planet all by ourselves. Otherwise, we are not making it to OT.

So, I really appreciate the Boss for doing those savings of me whenever people would knock me for high stats, but I finally realized I had better do it myself or else I am not going to ever get anywhere in this game.

So, we got the AOLA thing straightened out and he had me write out Mission Orders for that $100,000 thing: called the 'The $100,000 Mission Orders'. And those were sent out with another team and those were put in at AOLA.

Yvonne was running those. I did a couple more missions. I was Captain of the Flag Ship for 6 years totally, but right then I was Captain of the Flag Ship for a while, and we went on into 1969, and all of a sudden the Boss noticed that AOLA was not doing so well under Yvonne, and wanted to know what was happening. She kept sending in these reports, that there were a few people that "weren't real" on her lines.

One guy was getting on her lines trying to take her out to "dinner" and all this kind of stuff. He said he was an "OT VIII" from "Washington" in the "old days". He obviously didn't know anything about Scientology or Dianetics. He was just a plant. He was a Class B movie actor.

I was sent out on a mission to relieve Yvonne, congratulate her for handling those guys so far, but relieve her to start Celebrity Center. The Boss wanted her to start Celebrity Center and sent me back to AOLA. And what I found there was this guy, and we took care of him, and got him arrested and put in jail. We found out he was a Class B movie actor, a thief, a compulsive thief, and he also was observed by us calling up the organization, AOLA and threatening to "blow it up", which we reported to the police. He also stole a typewriter from the Ambassador Hotel, which we observed and we reported it to the police.

They caught him for these things. They had him in jail. They were really amazed we were so good. We were better than they were at finding out things. So. And then, also, we found out he "reported" from a place on Sunset Boulevard. He would call up a psychiatrist and report to him his progress on enturbulating the Organization and finding out what the CO was doing and how he "scared us" and all that stuff. He was reporting to a certain doctor of psychiatry in Beverly Hills.

Now, at that same time, there was a Station Ship out in Pac. That was 'Neptune' or 'Aries' - one of those two - and a guy (Sea Org guy), had gone up to the shore toilet one night ...

And two guys had jumped out of a car and put chloroformed cotton over his nose and mouth, and stuck him in the neck with a needle full of sodium penathol, (a hypnotic drug) and then ordered him to run. "Just keep running." "Don't go back to the Sea Org" and "Forget everything!" And the guy did! He started running (it was a quicky hypnosis job on him with a drug), and he ran down the street until he collapsed and the police picked him up. It was at night.

So the next thing you know, they thought he was a psycho, and sent him to County General Hospital, to the Psychiatric Ward. He was then given another injection of sodium penathol, taken into a room and interviewed by two psychiatrists. One worked at the hospital and another one that came in was from Beverly hills. That same one. Yes.

The interview consisted of "Where is LRH? Where are the ships? What are missions? What missions are you doing? What is the purpose of the Sea Org?". All this kind of stuff. They were trying to find out intel data. This guy did not know anything. He was just a recruit. He just gave them the standard shore story and he was aware enough, that when he got audited after this, he recalled all the things, that had happened to him, after they let him come of the drugs.

And then they asked him what he wanted to do. And he said ' I don't know. I used to work for somebody, but I don't want to work there anymore. I want to go home to my mommy.'

So they gave him $30 to buy a bus ticket with and they sent him out the door. And he just jumped on a local bus in LA and came out to the FOLO there and reported - the OTL, that is - and reported what had happened, and we gave him rest, vitamins and Dianetic sessions and ran the incident out and got all the data and we started checking it out.

And we found it was all true. We found the doctor's name, that had treated him. We sent a minister down, got the doctor's record. We checked out on the names of psychiatrists, that were associated in Beverly Hills. We got that name.

I sent a telegram to the doctor in the County General from the doctor in Beverly Hills saying: 'They found us out. Get out of town quick!' They guy in County General got out of town quick. He left in the middle of the night. We had a minister check on that.

I knew these guys were guilty as sin. So I checked my full staff for PDH, found two of them that read, ran them in session and they had similar stories. They were grabbed in the middle of the night, taken into a house, questioned, put back into the same area, they were and told then to go to sleep and go up and go to bed and forget everything. And they did.

So, these two others were also debriefed and that was the enturbulation that was running around the Org. We got that straightened out, got a little campaign going against this kind of thing, and doubled the QM guards, and so on like that.

And stats started coming right up. People got more secure around the area because before that, these people were not on post, you understand? They were getting dispersed. They could not think. They could not... - one of them was in Division VI too, so this was really what was causing the stats of the Org to go down. It was all these infiltrators sent against it. These agent provocateurs like the Class B movie actor, that was going after Yvonne, and these PDH cases, that were in there just "waffling around" and being sort of dopey.

So, anyway, I reported all that up to Flag and the next thing you know I get these - (again it didn't go to LRH directly, it went to these Aides) - and these Aides decided I was ... - first of al they didn't decide anything. They just wanted more data, and I said "I'm sending a full report, written." And I did.

At the same time this guy names Bob Thomas - now remember that: Bob Thomas - cause now we're getting into it: "Who is inside, who works for the outside, huh?" He has been, and is, a government advisor on all the scenarios being run on the Church. He was a psychological consultant in the Army before he was in Scientology, and he's been working on both sides, he works for the government and he works for the Church, and finally he got Comm-Ev'ed by LRH and declared suppressive - (in the next few years). But before he made those mistakes in his court cases and so on and came to the attention of LRH and MSH, he had successfully third partied me to everybody, saying that - in 1968 - saying that:"What you have here is Captain Bill hallucinating and none of this is really true, and everything is, bla , bla, bla."

Meanwhile his telexes were going up there (to Flag) saying that they (AOLA) should turn over these 3 people, that had been "PDH'ed", to him, because it was all "hallucination", and he would "take care" of them. In other words, he would kick them out of the Sea Org and tell them to go home and make sure that they didn't talk.

Because I had these three, we were going after the psychiatrist in Beverly Hills for KIDNAPPING, and we actually got to the door. I was going to take these guys over to him and walk in the door and have them identify him, and do a Citizen's Arrest on him. Well, the first day I went there to take his picture, with another Sea Org officer, to take his picture, so I could show it to them to make sure it was the right guy. And he was so frightened when I walked in the door, that he fell backwards over his desk and just sat there slobbering and gibbering. He knew he'd been found out. And the other guy with me, he was so shook up, he didn't even take the picture. I don't know why he was shook up, he should have expected it, but anyway. So we made some remark about his corporation in Las Vegas, that we knew all about. (See, we researched this guy pretty good.) And he just stuttered and stammered and so on, and gave some kind of answer. And I said "I'll be back."

And I came back the next day with the actual witnesses, the people, that had been PDH'ed, and guess what?

His office was deserted. His name plaque was taken off the door. When we asked the guard downstairs what had happened he said the guy came in the middle of the night, 4 o'clock, loaded everything up into a station wagon and left. And I said "Do you have his home address? We have one of his patients here". And he said, yes, here is his home address. We dashed over to his home. His home was in a similar condition. There were signs of hasty packing. He had blown town.

Now, that is fact. All that is documented. I have witnesses, etc, etc, etc. These guys were doing this. Alright. Now, that was one of the things, that was levelled in recent times, it has been the same charge, of "hallucination". And when it was checked back, by a friend at that time named Joe Lisa, it was found that: Bob Thomas had written those words in the"B-1" file, (that's an "intelligence file") about me, and that those words had been used by the GO all up until 1980 and B-1 to make sure that anything I said was labelled "hallucination" so that the plants would never be found out. And this is the way they work it.

Anyway, to carry on from this point in 1968, one other thing happened, uh 1969, sorry, one other thing in '69.

A guy named John Cole walked into the Org one day and offered to buy the OT materials for $10,000 for his business. I knew right away he was an "agent provocateur", sent him over to GO, and they let him go.

Two weeks later, he tried to steal the security pack from ASHO, (which had just been set up over there), by saying that "he worked for me" and that "I needed it for a press interview"' and "to bring it out to a certain location and he would take it to me". The CO over there was no dummy. In fact, I was on the phone to him at the same time and I was on another line, so I just told him to tell the guy, "Yeah, we'll meet him".

And we made up a pack with a lot of "nice" words for psychiatry and so on like that, like "screw you, you bastards", and "fuck psychiatry" and "psychiatry sucks" and all that stuff. And we put it in a nice envelope with a gold band on it, labelled it "SECURITY", "SECRET", all that stuff. And we delivered it to the guy. And I was right across the street and I walked over to the car, opened the door, and said "You're under arrest, you son of a bitch".

And he was so frightened, he - I took his keys out of the car, see, and just had his keys - and he was trying to get a gun, and a knife, and he didn't have any with him, and he was so frightened and flubbery and so on like that - he jumped out of the car and tried to hit me a couple of times and I just held him off. And then I started walking back toward the police station jangling his keys, and he came at me again, and I just made out that I threw them into the bushes, but I didn't. I just pocketed them. And then he ran scrambling into the bushes and cursing me saying, he was going to "kill me" and all this kind of stuff. Then I just walked up the street to the police station, jangled the keys again, and he came running like a Pavlovian dog, and ran into the police station and said that we were trying to steal his car. And we walked right in behind him and threw the keys on the desk, to my friend the Lieutenant in there, that had helped me out with various cases before this. I told him what had happened: "Industrial espionage; this guy has tried to steal things from us" and so on.

He said "You want him put in jail?"

I said "Yeah".

So they took him in the back and put him in jail.

And then Bob Thomas came along and let him out.

Now this was the same John Cole, that's mentioned on page 64 of Omar Garrison's book. He's a CIA agent, FBI agent, worked in the Defense Intelligence Agency, he's a slavering psychotic.

And he was the one responsible for putting Terry Milner in jail for "attempted assault" or an "assault" charge - which Terry Milner never did. But John Cole is so crazy; he went and got himself beat up and said "Terry Milner did it". And that's how Terry Milner, who was a B-1 agent, the intelligence for GO in 1969, got blown and got out of the post - so that the field was open - Terry Milner was a good guy, you see - and the field was now open for Bob Thomas to run whoever he wanted in that post.

And also, at CCLA, Yvonne was getting targetted, now she was starting all her Celebrity things over there, and she was getting targetted by the government for a few actions also - which will come to fruition in later years.

The ship was now moving around between Spain and Portugal and we were running into some political difficulty, which we later found out to be also forwarded through the American Embassy from Washington DC through the various Consuls and Embassies in the various ports to the heads of the government, which insinuated, that we were either drug-runners of traffickers in "little girls", or "white slavers", or something like that. They didn't latch on to the good one, the one that really worked in those countries until a little later. And that was that they accused us of "being the CIA", and turned that data over to the Communist Parties of the countries, which then caused some real ruckuses. But that will come up later.

Anyway, we traced all these down, and we decided to - (in 1970), after I went back from that mission in 1969. the Boss told me, he said "Hey, they tried to do the same thing on the Org in Phoenix in 1952" and he said, he had to take care of the nuts, they kept sending into the Org. The "psychs" were all working on the outside and sending implanted people into the Org. And he had to be very discerning in those days to make sure, that somebody coming in was really there to be audited and not being sent to go crazy, and to cause a big flap.

Now in 19...- let's see if we can get to the next year here, 1970, we started trying to handle... - I was back on the ship doing the Captain job - ...and we started trying to handle Marocco and recover Spain - which had been third partied against us in Madrid by the Interpol people. And we also had the plan for EU, which had to be instigated, and which I accepted the mission to do. That was going to go up there and take over Europe and get it booming.

Because the plan was to have EU, of course, be the mainstay of Scientology, and finance all of Scientology in case the United States ever went down the tubes, in case anything else happened to their economy, in case the Church got "taken over" there. Anything that happened to the US, EU would survive it. Now this was not started in '70 by the Boss. It was a postulate of his and an order to the Exec Council WW in 1966 or '67. However, it was never done. EU stats were still at the bottom by 1970.

So, there are very interesting stories I can tell you about the Morocco and Spain recovering thing, which I will in the next... - after this about the CO EU hat - ...but those cycles were never fully done, because one thing was to go and find the false data and get it replaced.

So, at that time, the Boss made up this project called "Snow White", which was given to Fred Hare to do. And it was to replace all the false data in every government agency's file with true data. Find it and replace it with true data. And that was the project called "Snow White".

Now, that was the start of all these missions, that went to discover, what was going on in Interpol, find out what data they had on us, the missions to various governments, to various groups, organizations, banks, IRS people, and so on like that. That was all under this heading of "Snow White". Get these documents and "Dead Agent" them.

OK, so the Spain recovery one. We did a PR cruise to Spain without LRH and MSH on board. They stayed down in Morocco with the family. Of course they were still safe and happy and enjoyed their birthday parties and their nights out and so on like that.

And the Spain recovery mission was partially successful. We found out, that the main protest against us - the "Apollo" being there - was from Madrid. And so at that time a mission came up to Madrid to try and handle the thing, and it was found out the data came from Interpol and they didn't know what to do about it. And it was therefore necessary to do a mission on Interpol, which you have probably read about in that book, The Exposure of Interpol, written by Vaughn Young, I believe.

Anyway, that's all assimilable data, but that's how it fits in with Spain.

Now, also anybody's name, by the way, that was connected with the ship in those days, the Senior Officers and so on, is in the Interpol files, and it's also in the "Enemy List" file in the United States and that means "enemies of the state". And those names are all in there, all the top GO names (the good guys, anyway), and the top SO names (the good Sea Org people), are all in those files.

But anyway, the CO EU mission was coming up there that year, and I went up to EU and you know the story there. I started the Orgs and so on going and also the CLO going there with EU "on source and on purpose teams" and just expanding the hell out of it.

And the thing is, we expanded quite well until people realized we were making a lot of money over there and then just...- the GO had to jump in there, everybody had to jump in there, and get their cut of the pie and put limitations on things and so on like that - ... and that's one reason why later on, the Boss said: 'Nothing applies to EU except his own orders.' And those were the same orders that were successful in EU, when I was there, and anybody else's orders, that came into there was always unsuccessful. Because we just did LRH Policy and what he would do on starting up an area like that, and that was successful and nobody else's stuff was ever looked at. And I had filed a whole trunk full of that stuff at FOLO, or the CLO, and it was never used. And apparently that's the same successful action, that Guillaume uses today, I don't know. We just used what LRH put down, and applied that.

So, that was going on and in all 1971 I was up in Europe.

In 1972 we got this ship, the "Commodore Queen". Again, here's a story of my Q & A as an executive.

I went over and got the ship out of England, because I knew, that any ship in England would be seized by the people, that tried to seize the "Apollo" back in 1967.

The Commodore wasn't at the Flag Ship at the time. He was visiting the United States, visiting his family and so on. So I sailed the ship over to Cherbourg, France with a picked crew from EU and we put it into position for a refit over there, since the Sea Org had bought it. And then Wally Burgess came up to take over the ship.

First, they thought I had hijacked it and stolen it. No, I was just taking it out of danger. That's part of my hat as a Captain. And then the next thing was, they ordered Wally to take it back to England without changing the Flag. I knew that was a disaster. And I sent a telex down to Flag, and said that should NOT be done. I called Wally on the phone. I said, "Don't take it across with the English flag on it. They'll seize it." Bla, bla, bla.

I Q'd & A'd. They said they would Comm-Ev me if I did anything about it and so on like that, and 'you can't countermand orders from Flag'. And I said, "Oh well, what the hell, let ' em find out." See, that's a Q&A, really. I didn't stand up for my integrity at that time.

And Wally dutifully sailed the ship over to England and it was seized and we lost the ship.

And I look back on that as Q&A. I don't do that anymore. So, I'm going to hold on to the correct line until the ENEMY Qs &As, you see? Not me. They do!

So anyway, I had... - in '72 I had also finished the EU trip there. They reckoned I made a bad joke about FOLO. I said that, "A FOLO is a CLO with its brains kicked out." , when I was at Flag at one time. And they used it a year later, the Staff Captain that is, Sandra Johnson, used it in an eval to prove that I was anti-FOLO. And removed me.

This was '72. I just got back from the EU CLO mission and I'd brought back these graphs of the Affluent stats, and the 10 X-ing, 20 X-ing of various stats and so on, bringing the EU area from a yearly income of 100 grand up to 2 million dollars, and a few other things like that.

And they wanted to send me out to "Forming Org" Chicago with my wife and make us "disappear", you see? I say they; that's Sandra Johnson and Jill Carlstrom. Get rid of us, see. Little too threatening there.

And Mary Sue telexed the Boss over to the United States and told him what was up. And he telexed back and said, "No Chicago for Capt. Bill. He's promoted to 2nd Deputy Commodore and his first job is to Comm-Ev the Staff Captain Sandra Johnson and Jill Carlstrom."

So I did Comm-Ev them. I called a Comm-Ev on them and they were demoted for being, you know suppressive toward upstats and so on like that.

And then the Boss, when he came back to the ship, he wrote up a nice Commendation, and made me some kind of a bonus. I got out of that my permanent Class VIII for doing C/Sing in French in Paris and a few other things. He also gave me responsibilities on overseeing ships and training and various other activities. Also overseeing the Captain at that time of the ship, I was over him, which was Norman Starkey.

I trained up more ships' officers and people in navigation and did some other things with helping the ship get more efficient. And we were cruising through Portugal and Spain at that time.

And it's interesting, because the Spanish OTL - it wasn't a liaison office yet, just a comm station actually, it was well yeah, an OTL - and the Spanish one, I think that was the year that it got thrown in jail. The guys there, I think it was Mike Douglas and somebody else.

You'll find this in the records, but they all got arrested there on some crazy charge that got relayed over by the United States, by the Government, that we were trafficking in drugs thru Spain and this was the connection point and all. And the police came in, threw everybody in jail, treated them badly - they didn't torture them exactly, but they didn't give them much to eat and they kept them in isolation cells, wouldn't let them talk or see any lawyers or anything like that.

Finally they got word out by one person that hadn't been there. He found out they were in jail and he got a comm back to the ship. They sent a mission up to handle it. And they finally got a lawyer and got them out of jail. And they didn't find any drugs, of course, they didn't find any evidence, and they finally had to let them go. Well, that was the scene in Spain.

And then - so we set up an OTL in Lisbon, 'cause the Spanish one sort of didn't work too well, and they also gave Krasnianski the job then of getting the PR going in Madrid, you know, because Madrid was kind of a hot area. That was Krasnianski's job, to get OTL PR going in Madrid there. Meet all the right people. Get all the things we needed done there and make sure we didn't get hit with these damn things unexpectedly like this again. 'Cause we were still using Spanish ports.

At that time, the only thing on the ship was, we had to inform Madrid if we were coming into Spain so they could OK it at the Maritime Agencies. And they did. The Minister of Marine OK'ed all our comings and goings. No other ship in the world had to do this of course. This was just because they at least believed that we weren't as bad as they said. Although one newspaper, when the guy Carrero Blanco, one of Franco's guys, got assassinated, there was one newspaper that wrote up a story that said we had done it.

However, we weren't even in a Spanish port at that time. I believe we were in Madera. But there was that kind of attitude at that time. There was always some reporter coming around trying to get a story on the "mystery ship Apollo". What was it really? And what was it doing?

Our cover at that time was Management Services and Management Consulting and training people which we WERE doing. It was all true. Most of the management was for the Church, of course, but we also had some shore things going as well.

Anyway, that 1972 passed in such fashion, visiting various ports and so on, improving PR, and trying to get the GO again to HANDLE most of these government attacks on the OUTSIDE. But they were not very successful at this, and we know the reason why.

Meanwhile, LRH and his family are very safe and they still go to the movies and they're still together. And we actually had a premiere of a movie in Portugal, in Lisbon, where we rented a theater, and the whole ship went there.

It was a premiere of a movie by a Scientology director, Milton Katselas,. It's his "Butterflies are Free" film. We were at the World Premiere shown there and LRH and MSH were there. The whole crew was there. It was great.

And in 1973, we visited various ports such as Dakar, Las Palmas, Madera, The Azores - we sailed through the Azores. We went to Spanish ports in the North of Spain, Portuguese ports, and so on. This is mostly a ship year and we were also handling some third party stuff that was coming down from England, through the English government. And they were trying to send these phony newspaper reporters aboard and get 'stories'. And we were also getting about 2 or 3 a year of 'false recruits' that were being sent in, that were hypnotized and drugged to come aboard and kill LRH. But we caught every one of them at HCO and sent them packing off the ship. So that was how the year passed. Now 1974, things got a little warm. And I mean by that in the beginning of the year I was sent out on a "New Civilization" Tour. This was LRH's big push for the New Civilization on the planet and it was a tour to go around and promote this and recruit lots of people for the Orgs and for the Sea Org.

Now, I went with Arthur, Arthur Hubbard, and two musicians and Pat Gualteri and Hal Holmes and a communicator. And those - there were about 6 or 7 of us - and we went to, oh, ten or twelve different cities in the United States sand Canada. However, the interesting thing about this tour - although it was very successful - we had 525 Sea Org recruits and about 150 Org recruits and about half those Sea Org recruits had to work at the Org to finish their contract first, but it was still a lot of recruitment. And that was in just three months. We were on this tour and some interesting things happened to show you that the enemy, although they are slow on the uptake, when they do see something to them that seems dangerous, they do take action on it.

Our event was a very powerful event, showing the decay of "modern" civilization and how a New Civilization could be made with Scientology. It was very aesthetic, well planned, and so on. At Washington D, the event was tape recorded by an agent - government - and he was spotted in the audience with a tape recorder and so on. He was the only one there with bad indicators. And he apparently gave this to his seniors.

Now, a couple of cities later, we find in Minneapolis that there was a threat to assassinate Arthur and myself by high-powered rifle, which we turned over to the GO at the time, and they provided some protection. This threat w_ actually called to the motel where we were staying and given to me by the manager.

And we got some protection there and at the same location, we did the event that night anyway, and the psychiatry faction in town sent in two people that were designed to go crazy in the event and cause a big flap. And the GO guys were doing a good job there at that place and they caught them at the door and turned them away.

We went on to Vancouver, and in Vancouver the local psychiatrist there, who was one of the SMERSH guys, gave a teen-age gang, one of those leather-jacket gangs, about 25 guys, teenagers - gave them drugs and told them to go break up the meeting that this "phony Church" was having. 'It wasn't really a Church, it was trying to get off of people', and so on. 'Go break up the meeting and scare everybody' and 'run 'em out of there'.

And they did. As soon as the meeting started, the doors burst open, 25 guys ran in swinging motorcycle chains and yelling and screaming and so on like that. And I just did 'Bring Order!' , 'HCO Bring Order!, and 350 Scientologists got up and mobbed THEM ALL out the doors.

And then the GO guy there went out and talked with them, and the leader - and the leader was so shook up - he'd never had anything like that happen. He came back in and apologized to us and said this psychiatrist had given them drugs and told them to do it.

And the GO got all the data and the name and everything like that and the guys apologized and said that they didn't believe we were a Church, but they know we must be a Church now, because nobody would have that kind of togetherness in spirit to throw them all out of an auditorium. It was just FAST.

So we did that. And then this report went back to the ship and then LRH got a little bit concerned for Arthur's safety because the next place we were going was L.A. and it was presumed that since the gradient was increasing, there might be bombs or something like that planted in the auditorium. So the tour was called off at that point.

Just to show you that '74 was a nice year for attacks, we went back to the ship. And in September of that year, or early October, was when the "Rock Festival" happened in Madera.

I say "Rock Festival". It's not a musical event. It was a war, actually. That was when the American Embassy had tipped off the local Communist Party there that the 'Apollo' was a CIA ship. Portugal had just gone through the throes of its revolution, so at the time it was very 'left wing'.

And the Communists formed a big mob with torches and stones and rocks and everything and they came down to burn the ship. About 250 of them. And we fought them off for two hours and finally the local maritime police showed up with machine guns and dispersed the mob after they had knocked the Harbor-Master nearly unconscious in front of our ship with a 'two by four'. And we took him on board, gave him First Aid and he called some tug-boats and took us out to anchor where we would be safe.

At that point LRH said - there was also some guys of our crew chased with knives down the street and so on - but still, no one got hurt from our side. Well, two people got knocked out by rocks, but they just didn't stay down. But none of the family was hurt. LRH was not hurt. Mary Sue was not hurt. Nobody else was hurt.

And LRH decided then that it was time to leave this area. It was getting a little too bit agitated by these US Government people. When we traced back the lines it always came from the United States and that was when a guy named Henry Kissinger was the Secretary of State. The orders were coming from his office through the Embassies and CIA.

And we decided to secretly just sail across the Atlantic and go into the Caribbean. We did that. We went to Bermuda, and at Bermuda there was a CIA local resident there who tipped off the - we were intending to go into Charleston, South Carolina first and land in the United States and go right in there and handle these guys - but the guy in Bermuda, the CIA agent, tipped off the United States that we were coming - the FBI and so on - and they had 163 agents lining the docks.

And we got warned about that by our port mission and some good GO guys that heard about the pretended 'arrest' - they were going to 'arrest' LRH and so on, on some of these tax cases because they knew he was coming to the United States in Charleston.

Some [government] guy was bragging about this in Hawaii and wasn't aware of the time difference or something or thought it already had happened. Our guy in Hawaii got on the telex, and he telexed somebody in England and England telexed back and they finally got the people down in Charleston and they called us on the radio and we turned around the ship at about 15 miles out from the port, right outside the 12 mile limit, and didn't go in there. So, 163 agents didn't have anything for breakfast, namely us.

And that's a well known story, too, and that was right after the "Rock Festival" in Madera. So let me tell you, we've seen a few of these things and the guys on the ship, the guys that worked with LRH, they're all good fighters.

So we went down to the Caribbean, through the Bahamas and so on. And finally the State Department of the United States with Kissinger at the wheel - you know Kissinger is one of the top SMERSH guys, as you know - a Public Relations man normally, although he opens his mouth a little bit too much most of the time - but he's one of the 'evil beings' on the planet.

He then started telexing his Embassies and so on in Barbados and Curacao, and what's the name of that place with all the oil and stuff there? Oh yeah - I've got it written right here - Oh yeah, I know what it is. This goes into 1975, I've just got to bring you up a year. Barbados, Trinidad and Curacao. We had attacks in all those places.

We were able to handle most of them because these countries are very small. We did get asked to leave a few ports and nobody could understand why, except it was some 'pressure' from the United States, they would "cut their foreign Aid" or something if they did (welcome us) .

We also captured some telexes directly from the State Department that gave these orders and these were used in a lawsuit that LRH asked to be brought against Kissinger, the State Department, and several other named Embassy and American consular officials. And it was filed in the United States. An 800 million dollar lawsuit against Henry Kissinger and other people in the State Department, who were in office at the time, by the way.

Now, the United States Government went through a whole series of convolutions to keep this a secret. It never appeared in the press. And this suit will become important in the next years, so just remember that.

That suit is now being pushed, pushed, pushed in 1975 through the courts in the United States, trying to get somebody to open it up, make it public, accept it, DO IT, see?

So anyway, we did a refit in Curacao and LRH decided to land in the United States anyway. See, he never gives up his intention. He couldn't land in the boat. He's now going to land all the crew there. They all went in separate airplanes, different times, different places. In all, we filtered in two or three hundred people, mostly the foreigners first, then LRH and MSH filtered in. Of course, they travel always on separate planes for security. And then the last part was to get the ship all cleaned out. Ready for sale. And he had a mission finding a hotel in the South. There was a good climate there so he could set up the Flag Land Base, because we were processing and training people on the ship at that time. But now we wanted to do it on shore where we could really expand.

And they found the FH and they bought that. Now the FH was bought in Clearwater, as you know, in 1975 and I did the cleaning job on it. It was nasty. After I had gotten the ship ready for sale and left it with a prize crew, we got the FH ready.

And at that time I became aware of something LRH was investigating in Clearwater, which was the fact that the Mafia was interested in having gambling in Florida, and when they did get this passed thru the legislature, (because it's illegal right now) - but when they did get open gambling passed thru the legislature, they had different towns selected out to be the head gambling places and Clearwater was one of them.

These Mafia-connected businessmen and so on in Clearwater wanted the Fort Harrison to be the first gambling casino in Clearwater. Therefore, they didn't want it to be sold to anybody that would keep it. And that is the source on the entire attacks on the Church in Clearwater. All they want to do is get us to move out of the Fort Harrison so they can have it for gambling when they pass the law in Florida, and that is the entire source of it. There's no other reason for those attacks. That is it. The business- men stand to lose a lot of money unless they can sell that hotel to the Mafia. So LRH found this out in 1975 and the GO kept forgetting it all the way up until 1980, I haven't heard it mentioned then. But they could stop any attacks down there by just letting people know that this is what it really is.

Anyway, 1976 now, we move along. The Flag Land Base was set up. I did the post of CO FSO, I did some missions out to PAC area, I got appointed C5-1. LRH, meanwhile, had not moved into the Flag Land Base, because of this attack scene going on down there at the time from the local Clearwater Mafia. He lived nearby, in a small town nearby, and then he moved to California with a small staff in 1976. Whereupon, he started writing the movies, the films, the tech films, and so on like that. And he wanted a good place to do that, and that was his job there, to get those films produced, to keep the Tech standard. Started it out in 1976.

Now I did the CS-1 post, found out a lot about Ethics and Justice in the United States at that time which was in very poor shape. I could tell you some horror stories from that but you've probably heard them all anyway. I tried to get Justice and equitable Ethics going in, fairness, and truth, and was getting pretty successful at it. I had a lot of people writing to me and trying to get things done and I did them; I got the Review Comm-Evs and got evidence pulled out and found out who the real bad guys were, and everything. And I think I did pretty well on that post. And I was fully hatted for it, by the way, A to I.

And then I went on my annual leave, and when I came back, they needed me on the CS-E post. So I took the CS-E post because that was the big flap at that time. I always have to go where the flaps are, you know, and got on the CS-E post and I was on that late 1976 and early 1977.

First thing I had to do in 1977 was handle the Toronto fire, early in 77. The Org was burned down. By the way, this is confidential GO data, but it's no use holding it this late in the game.

The guy who burned down the Toronto Org - it burned completely to the ground - was a plant. He was in there and he set the Mimeo files on fire - you know, the hanging sheets with the Mimeo fluid in them; they burn real well. It was done at night and the guy disappeared. Couldn't find him of course. Actually it was arson. He burned the Org down at night. And there wasn't many people around and it was after hours and nobody got killed but they lost everything in the Org - they thought.

Except Ed Brewer and myself went up and salvaged everything and got them a new Org building in a Hotel, rented, for about the same price that they were running, and got them back into Power stats within one week. The same week the Org burned down (on Friday night), by next Thursday they had 27,000 dollars in GI, which was the highest stats they'd ever made since 5 FEBC's had gone back in 1970. (I believe that was the highest stats they'd ever made.)

So, I was quite successful in that.

Then I did some PAC missions, (missions out in the PAC area), and went out there to help with the Cedars refit. As CS-E that was - the biggest project we had going in the whole world - was refitting Cedars.

And that same year was the raid on the Church there when the FBI had broken in and taken all the records in the B-i files from the Cedars area. And it's very interesting that those B-I files are now reposing in an FBI secret headquarters in Encino, California.

I have given all this data to the proper people in the Church, but I don't think anybody's gone out there to see the files. I have seen them. They're in the basement there. And since it's an illegal place, the FBI's operating it under the name of an Insurance Company, Zenith Insurance Company. It s not really an FBI place, so there s no reason why we couldn't subpoena them and get the files back.

But, of course, as I told you before, since Bob Thomas put that thing in the file in 1968, everything I've said is really "hallucinations". But no, nobody just goes and looks. That's all I ask you to do. It's all LRH ever asked us to do was just go look. Well, I've done the looking. Anybody else, I don't give a damn whether they believe it or not, but if they ain't big enough to go and look, then they ain' t big enough to know. And they ain't big enough to go OT, either.

Anyway, 1978, the Cedars refit mission was still going on and then I got qualified to go to SU. Now SU is a Special Unit were LRH was making the films. They needed some more people out there, some execs and so on. And I went out there in August, 1978. Now, just before arrived there - the first thing I found out there when I arrived is - there's no GO there, there's absolutely no GO there, and the GO is prohibited from being there and the CMO and the SU people are prohibited from talking to the GO, or any GO terminal, or having any written comm to the G0, or any kind of connection with the GO. And this is because LRH had kicked out any GO terminals from SU.

And he had done that for a very simple reason. They had non-complied grossly with his order. Because in 1978 the indictment came down on the "nine" (and Mary Sue) that the FBI had done from the files that were stolen from the Church. And LRH had offered, right away, he had ordered the GO, lawyers and so on, to TRADE the Kissinger 800 million dollar suit to the government. See, because it was quite embarrassing to them. And it was embarrassing to SMERSH too.

And it was getting a little more play now. I think one Washington paper had mentioned it. So he offered to trade that suit off: To say we "have insufficient evidence" if you say you "have insufficient evidence" in the Mary Sue and nine conspirators case.

That was his order. To trade those two, equal off. They drop the case on Mary Sue and the nine. We drop the case on Kissinger.

The GO didn't do that. They traded that suit for one of the IRS appeal suits. And LRH was so mad at them that he kicked them all off of the SU area and he wouldn't have any more comm with them. He warned Mary Sue at the time "There's something wrong in the GO. There's something very wrong in there. They're not complying. They're not acting as if they are on our side".

And Mary Sue didn't get the word. She didn't look hard enough, or she didn't believe it, or there were too many people on her lines telling her that things were "other" than what LRH was saying.

But in actual fact, the people on her Controller's Committee, right underneath her, and between her and Jane (because they were senior to Jane) there were two people on there that were working for the government. And they were James Mulligan and Anne Mulligan. All right.

Now, the "trade off" was messed up, and also, as you know, you probably know, or maybe you don t know, but have the Court Records. You may have seen these Court Records of the Mary Sue case and there's this guy in it named Michael Meisner.

Now we're getting into some other people's tracks but have this from the sources themselves, the stories heard from them directly, and that is: The whole reason Mary Sue and the nine got indicted was because of this break-in that the GO did in Washington to get these papers on Scientology having to do with the stealing of the documents from Cedars.

It's all involved in that case anyway. And what happened was that -this guy Michael Meisner was the one that proposed the break-in. He was the AG Washington. Now, the funny thing is that two people in Washington at the time when he proposed that - before it was even done, before it was accepted - KNEW and had evidence that he was a government agent. Those two people were Bill Franks and Lynn Murphy.

Now, those two people wrote up reports on separate lines - 'cause Franks was Sea Org and Lynn was GO - they wrote up reports on separate lines to Mary Sue to tell her that Michael Meisner is a Government agent and he should be gotten out of here. He's not a G0 guy. He doesn't think like us. He doesn't act like us. He has connections to the Government, he is trying to get the Church in trouble, etc, etc, etc.

In other words, they EXPOSED him. They sent the things up the line. Jimmy Mulligan stopped these communications from going to Mary Sue. They did not go to Mary Sue. He ordered, through the connections he had to the Sea Org, from his mysterious GO post of Controller's Committee, that Bill Franks be removed from Washington Org and Comm-Eved and RPF d: and he was. And that Lynn Murphy be bought back to PAC and Comm-Eved and RPF d; and she was. And she was also kicked out of the GO. And they were so spinny, they didn't even realize what it was for. But it wasn't for any of their stats or anything. It was just the fact that they had tried to expose a plant.

Now, you realize that if those comms had been allowed to go thru, then Mary Sue would never had gone to jail. And I don't know if you've found that out, I think I told you, but it is a fact now that Mary Sue is in jail. She's in a prison for women on the East Bay - it s called East Bay of San Francisco Bay. It's quite a nice place. It's a white collar prison. But she's still in prison and she should not be there.

I wanted to point out something else, too, on the GO's head, and these plant's heads. That since 1976, before 1976, all the years that LRH and MSH and the family were on board the ship under the Sea Org protection, they were totally safe. Nobody touched a hair on their head. Nobody got them in a court room.

Since they moved ashore they were under GO quote "protection" and since that time, Mary Sue is in jail, Quentin is dead, LRH had to move off the lines because of 18 or more subpoenas on him for various civil cases against the Church, and the family is quite dispersed.

They don't get together for birthdays anymore. Diana, this year, has said that she can't even get her comm thru the CMO to the Old Man. She can't even communicate hardly to her father anymore. She writes up there but she don't know if anything is getting thru or not. And Arthur is now kicked out of SU. And so is Suzette.

They are not in SU anymore. They were quote "knocked out of SU" for quote "out security". When in actual fact the thing is that they are very vulnerable themselves to any attacks because they are members of the family. And they should be protected. And they are not being protected. And they're all in the Los Angeles area now.

And Diana is trying to take care of them. And she's also trying to help her mother. And I also pledged to her that I will do anything in my power to help get her mother out of jail.

And that whole thing I say, was caused by the fact of infiltration and plants in positions in the GO. And of course we all know that Mary Sue should have spotted them but there were two right under her feeding her Legal, and Intelligence data.

James Mulligan was in charge of Intelligence and his wife Anne Mulligan, they're both homosexuals, by the way - they got together to make a good "show" - but they chopped all the Legal and intelligence lines to Mary Sue, and just let thru what they wanted her to see, or wrote up their own reports the way they saw it, or the way they wanted it to be, and that was the way the Government wanted it.

So, these things were all found by me in the next couple of years, and they are all logged and written down and debriefed at several places. I will tell you where they are in just a moment but I've got to go thru 1979 first, 'cause in late 78 the location where the boss was filming got blown by two people that went to Las Vegas.

They blew from SU Area, from the film area. They were like new recruits. They blew. They were "family" of some messenger or something and they blew and they went to Las Vegas and tried to get $10,000 from the FBI to reveal the location. The FBI said "No, reveal it anyway", and they did.

And they went to the newspapers, and they tried to get money from the newspapers, and the next thing you know people from Las Vegas Org were over there running around in their cars trying to see LRH. So he said "We've got to get a new location." So we did. We got another new secret location for filming so we wouldn't be bothered. And it's still in California. And this one was where the current CMO INT people are, and the Watchdog Committee, and all that stuff.

The Watchdog Committee, by the way, is just the executives and division heads of CMO INT. That's all it is. There's nobody else on it. Or there wasn't when I worked there. Maybe now, but there wasn't then.

And they all call themselves the Watchdog Committee because their purpose was "To watch over Scientology and make sure it stayed on LRH Policy". Isn't that strange?

Well, now they seem to be setting their own policy. But that's the way they were. They were very "status oriented" people. And the LRH messengers (there were good guys that were in it in the beginning when it was running well) are all gone. They've all been removed from it. And who removed them?

Well, you have to look at who's the head of it and who is the guy that's running it. It's the heads of the CMO and the Special Projects people at CMO INT. And I was there. I was the CO of SU, which is the Special Unit, the whole thing, not the head of CMO INT, but the SU part that's doing the films and so on, and I worked with LRH for a year and a half out there, and since the GO wasn't there, I did all the Legal and Intelligence for him. And hatted up Leo Johnson on how to do it, so that he could take over the Div 6 hats of PR, and so on, for the base.

And I got to know LRH's Legal and Intelligence and Public Relation Policies very well, 'cause I had to get hatted on them myself. And he was personally directing me and handling these by conference and by written dispatch.

And while I was up there as CO SU, one day I got removed. The messenger came over - I just want to show you how things can get altered. LRH lived in a house not a hundred yards from where I was in my office. And a messenger came over and told me I was removed. It was an "LRH order". And that I was to go down to Estates and work in the garden. And I said, "Well, I'd like a Comm-Ev, because I don't know why this is. My stats are not bad, etc, etc". She says, "Well, it's an LRH Order. Are you going to do it or not?". I said, "Well, since you say it's an LRH Order, then it must be, because messengers never lie."

You see, that was their thing. They never lie, they said it was an LRH Order, it was. So I said "All right I'll do that" and "I'll go down there, and I'll request a Comm-Ev on lines." And she said, "OK, turn over to your Chief Officer." So I did. And I was down there working on a tractor and then another messenger came by and said, "What are you doing down here working on a tractor?"

And I said, "Well, I have been removed", and so on. And she said, "What! I don't remember that. It wasn't in the traffic".So she ran over to the LRH house just a hundred yards away, looked thru the traffic, there was no such order. She came back and said, "That's a lie. Who told you that?"

And I said "This messenger here, her name is Cindy or something". And she went over and grabbed Cindy and asked her what she did and she said, "Oh, yeah, I thought it would be a good idea."

They checked into Cindy - these were some of the ones that the Boss had trained - they checked into Cindy the ones that the Boss had trained checked into Cindy and they found out she was an unhandled LSD case. She had about 20 or 30 trips of LSD and never handled and she was totally hallucinating all the time. Really hallucinating. And she thought she was a little "god", and she was running around "firing" everybody and saying it was LRH doing it and so on like this.

So they dismissed her, quickly. Sent her back to her mother. And I just wanted to show you that I was only a hundred yards away from the place where LRH actually lived, and I accepted an order that I thought was from LRH and it wasn't.

OK, now they will also write those down and give them to you, right? And they will type them up and sign them "R", and give them to you. And sometimes they ain't from LRH. I just want you to know that. 'Cause I've worked there for two years and if those kids have had LSD, they will do that sometimes, Just because they get a bit "Waugh, waugh, waugh" (Uppity). Now that's when LRH was there.

Now he's not at that location (SU) anymore, because the second location we got, got blown too. It was on television, for Christ's sake! and in the newspapers. So it's a totally blown location and he never moved there. He moved back to a nearby town. And then he moved from there. And he moved from the next place. And he moved from the next place.

So he was three steps AWAY from the SU area and the CMO by the time of 1980. That's 3 vias. And he left a messenger at each point to relay comm and to make sure the lines had enough "breaks" in them so that nobody could trace them down. He had courier set-ups and so on like that.

So anyway, in 1979 we got this new place and I was working on that and then the CMO was given the job of getting the whole of Scientology operating totally on Policy, and make sure every Org was operating and do an eval on each Org and so on. So most of the evals required missions, and at that time LRH was "close" to the lines, (in 79) he was only living a few miles away. And we did missions to all the Orgs.

I was then put on as Chief Missionaire, because I had most of the experience in missioning. And I did missions to Flag; St. Louis, FOLO WUS, St. Hill Castle, the Eval Unit, etc, etc. Now on these missions in 79, I started discovering... - you mostly know, you go on a mission and it's usually a down-stat, out ethics area and you find things. And you find things like somebody trying to be a plant, Of you find somebody that's been PDH'ed, or something like that.

Well, I kept reporting these to the GO as you should and I kept reporting them to the GO and then I'd go on another mission and find out that in that place where I'd just done a mission, that nothing had happened to these guys. They never did remove them, they never cleaned them up, they never fixed them, they were still there! Some of them had even been promoted!

So I went to this guy Jimmy Mulligan, who was the highest "visible"... - 'cause Mary Sue was living in her own place then. You see, the Boss and her had to live in separate places because she was under surveillance by the Government all the time since she was "indicted" now, you see. And she had to live at a separate house in a different town. So I couldn't get to her. And that was a secret location. And the Boss was in a secret location.

And so I went to Mulligan, who was the highest intelligence terminal in the GO, he was the Controller's Committee for Intelligence. And I went to him, I said,"I want to talk to you". (This is in late 1979), I said, "I' ve been spotting these plants in the Organizations. I've been reporting them to the GO and the GO has done nothing about them. Why not?"

And he looked "Oh!" This had shocked him because it came from left field. I just met him in the hall there, you see, and he didn't have an answer ready. So he said "Ah...ah.., well.., if we ..if we... shoot them.., uh..uh..uh..,they might send in others and we don't know who they are."

I said, "That's a lie man. What are you giving me that bullshit for. Anybody can find a plant on a meter," I said, "That's a lie". So he said, "Oh well, yah, ..uh.., yes..,uh..., well it was Mary Sue's policy". And I knew that was a lie, too. Because I've done missions for Mary Sue and I know how she feels about plants. So he lied to me twice there.

And the next thing you know, he did a little 3rd party on me to the CMO and got me in a Comm-Ev. So that I "wouldn't remember", you see. But anyway, I remembered that. That he wouldn't do anything about this, and he was lying to me. I didn't know why at the time, but it later became apparent.

That was late 1979. In 1980, I kept doing missions and I kept going across those same damn plants, you know, sitting in there. There's one... - like that girl Debbie Mace out in the field. She was an agent provocateur, tried to get the Church in trouble, in every thing she was doing, she was reporting back to the FBI all the time and had all her contacts set up. Heber Jentzsch knows her, and he knows that she is a plant.

She did an agent provocateur trip on him and got him hung up in an attack on Scientology in the California State Assembly a couple of years back. And he had tried to get something done about her and nothing had happened.

And every person she'd audited... - (she's a field auditor) - and she kept trying to mince her way into the high security areas, and she offered to audit for the GO one time... - and everybody she audited went either out 2D or blew. So they finally had to fire her. Some of the good guys realized that she wasn't a good auditor. Anyway she kept mincing around and trying to get into Flag and audit execs down there and I caught her again auditing at Flag as a volunteer in auditing high-security people like Ken Urquhart, and so on like that.

And I got her the hell out of there and I reported her again to the GO. I said, "Get her the hell off your lines, man, she's this... - here's her records, here's her ethics records, go look up her file, it's in the ethics files down at Flag. You'll see the whole thing with her, man!"

And she was also responsible for out 2D liaisons in Columbia. She used to go down to Columbia and they had a few connections down there to the high officials down there to sleep with them - married Government officials and so on like that. It was all in the file. There's this whole report. Then I asked these guys at Flag GO to do something about her... and they didn't. Because they had to write up to get permission. Because she was from the L.A. field. And when they wrote up to L.A. of course... they said no.

Anyway in 1980 I'm still doing these missions, but I'm getting all of these various intel lines now are starting to come together. 'Cause I'm moving all over the U. S. mostly and I started realizing that there was a little bit of some h:ind of criticism coming up, after this little Comm-Ev, which I got out of by using my Kha-Khan. Because the Boss had given me a Kha-Khan in 1976, I believe it was, or 75.

He said I was the most successful ship's Captain and Missionaire, and so on like that . So I used one of my Kha-Khan things and got out of that Comm-Ev.

And I was carrying on with these missions and since my wife Joan, (this was when I started doing these missions) while I was on one to England, she left and went back to Boston and she wouldn't come back. And she said that the CMO was not acknowledging her value to the Org, not letting her work and so on like that, and she wasn't getting any money and she was going to die if she didn't, so she went back to work and trying to straighten up her Social Security. That's what she said anyway. I don't know.

Perhaps she had other fish to fry or perhaps she had gotten... - she did get sick around that time, so she had to go to the Shaw Clinic. So perhaps something had happened to her there. Because in my investigation I found out that there was a person named Vicky Sammler, a Doctor, that was put into the Shaw Clinic to make sure that several Scientologists got a little PDH and drugging every now and then if they were top execs. And Vicky Sammler was the one that was using drugs, and so on, on Scientologists. And any Scientologists that's ever been to her will tell you she was a black thetan and she was up to no good.

But anyway, there is evidence that she's given drugs to Scientologists. Doesn't use Touch Assists. Doesn't use any LRH tech. I don't know why they kept her there except that probably the Government had some kind of threat over the rest of the people that worked there. Income tax, perhaps, who knows?

But anyway, the missions went on, and, oh, there's plenty stories, but let it suffice that I tried to get these people handled, that I found. Reporting them to the proper terminals and so on, and debriefing on them, and trying to get somebody to take responsibility for these plants.

After I'd turned them over to the GO, then nobody would handle them. So that's what you were supposed to do in those days. Now at that time, my wife had been gone for a year, so I decided to find another partner to do missions with.

And I proposed to this girl named Helga Wagner down at Flag, and she didn't want to marry me. She wanted to stay out on the outside and do PR stuff. And then I proposed to a girl named Linda, and the same thing. She had a kid and she couldn't come to SU, so she stayed down there at Flag.

And about this time I discovered that while I was doing this stuff, there was a fellow in the CMO there, in HCO, named Jay Okamoto, who was, privately, behind my back, writing telexes about my letters to these girls.

Of course he had to read the letters, you know, to do that, and there was a security thing there that they had to read letters to see if you were giving away the location, but since this was nothing to do with the location, he had no business doing anything with the letters.

But what he was doing was telexing to all the CMO units saying to not let, or to prevent these people from saying "Yes" to me. In other words they telexed about Linda, for instance, to Flag and he said "This is serious. Get Linda and take her over to the side and tell her to refuse Capt. Bill's proposal. We can't have this happen"... etc like this..., and I looked at these telexes. These are not Scientology telexes. They are agent telexes.

So I took one of these telexes, pasted it on a big sheet, and petitioned the CO CMO INT... - that was Dede Voegeding; that this guy is obviously some kind of other-intentioned. He's not a Scientologist. He's trying to destroy any 2D communications and I propose that he, first of all, be gotten off my lines. I don't want him as any kind of HCO terminal on my lines, and I don't want the Qual guy, who he was also informing, as any kind of Qual terminal on my lines, because these guys are 1.1.

And the CO CMO, Dede, an old LRH messenger said, "OK, yeah, yeah", and she approved that and she investigated them. And boy, they had to do some fast back-pedaling to make sure it was all,"Oh, it was just a mistake, bla, bla, bla, bla, bla, bla."

And they all went around, "Heh, heh", 1.1ing for a little bit.

And then on the next mission I went to Flag, I met Dafna and we hit it off pretty well, and I proposed to her and next thing you know, there was some more Okamoto telexes saying that, "She can never join the Sea Org. Don't let her in the Sea Org." and so on like this. And I found these telexes, and this time I realized -"Hey, wait a minute this guy is actually operating like an agent. He's actually saying that somebody can't come here, yet he is HCO and he is a recruiter. He's supposed to recruit for the CMO and Dafna was going to join and come to SU and work there."

And, at the same time, mysteriously, after I proposed to her, a Comm-EV got called on her at Flag. And she's a PUBLIC. So it was interesting.

So she wanted to go ahead and do this Comm-Ev, and I saw something else in this. I saw something that was getting a bit arbitrary here. So my three weeks annual leave was due, so I went off on the leave and I eloped with Dafna and married her.

Now, we did that, and then we went down to Flag, still on a three weeks leave, and got married at Flag in a big ceremony, and also I went down to be a character witness at her Comm-Ev.

She was supposed to have had something like "bad PR" in the community or something. And so I went to the community where she was supposed to have the "bad PR". I went with her to find out what they thought of her - and they all loved her. So that didn't work out, and I could testify that she didn't have "bad PR".

Anyway, I went up to the Comm-EV and I said to the Chairman, "Ok, we're ready for the Comm-Ev and I'm going to be the witness on the other side, for the plaintiff, and let's have it."

And then I found out that these guys have been calling witnesses while she wasn't present, they'd been calling witnesses without the interested party present, and they even asked ME to come in and testify without the interested party present!

And then I said,"That's it! You guys are fucking illegal. That's it!"

So, I telexed up to CMO, Dede again, and I said, "There's an illegal Comm-Ev going on down here on my wife. They're doing this and this and this. And I request it be cancelled." It was. It was cancelled immediately.

Another one was set up by the CMO, because apparently they still had some data or they didn't know what was going on... maybe? You think? Lets all be "reasonable" about this now. And by that time... there was supposed to be one by the CMO. It was picked out and they had a NOTS auditor on it and all kinds of important people, even Ken Urquhart was on it. And we went over to that one. And by this time Dafna and I had amassed a whole bunch of data. She had amassed a lot of data. I found out why she was being attacked. She had given all the data she knew about the Clearwater Mafia to the GO... and they had declared her PTS type III. Now, I knew the data about the Clearwater Mafia because LRH found it in 1976, and when I told her that she went, "Really?" "That's the same thing I found out! About the Fort Harrison and all this and the gambling and all?". I said, "Yeah, yeah, LRH knew that in 1976". She said, "Well, GO doesn't believe me now. And they're doing this and this and this..." I said, "Really, uh,uh, that's strange!".So we were going to have it all out with this Comm-EV, you see, and she had a whole pack of data and bunches of data, about 2 feet, 3 feet of data. And I had a whole bunch of data.

And we went to the Comm-EV and the Comm-EV said, "Well, how do you plead?" And we said, "Wait a minute. Have you read the data?"And they hadn't read the data. So we said, "Well, we suggest you adjourn until you read the data and you may not want to have a Comm-Ev on us. You may want to have one on a few GO Terminals we intend to call as witnesses." And we said that to the Comm-EV and the next day the Comm-EV was cancelled. This is the second Comm-EV that's cancelled now.

So what I was doing... I was on a little mission here of my own, I was on my leave you see, and I was gonna get some Justice in around here, because I didn't like all this "Bull-shit Justice" they were pulling on us in early 1981.

So the next thing, you know, I get called back to SU out in California, and my leave is about up and I say: "Well, Ok, I'll do that." and I'm going to tell them everything about that now and get my wife in the Sea Org because it's not a girl friend now, it's not a proposal, it's a wife. OK, so I go back there full of beans and I debrief on all of this data that I found out about the plants. I debriefed on every thing I found out about the Clearwater suppression of the Church and the building down there. I debriefed on some data I had found out about John Cole. You remember John Cole? Page 64, Garrison's book. We saw him down in Clearwater there and he was overheard talking to a taxi-driver about "raiding" the Church in Clearwater and planning some actions against them. I reported that to the GO Flag there, and they checked it out. They interviewed the taxi-driver. He gave them a debrief on tape. It was all just as I said. Now that was Molly Bernstein (AG Flag at the time). The data is with Molly Bernstein. She has a whole tape on it done by me and a tape done by Dafna.

Anyway I went back to PAC. I debriefed to the HCO Exec Sec, Janadir Swanson, in the CMO there. And we also realized that from Dafna's data, that the Clearwater elections could be influenced. Because she was being asked by the pro-Scientology candidate to be the PR person to tell him what all the "buttons" were and how to best put the Church's point of view forth in Clearwater so that he could be elected. And the GO didn't want to hear about this. They didn't want the guy elected. He was pro-Scientology, by the way. So when got back, I debriefed on all this and I said, "Something's wrong in the GO, there's too many plants around here."

We had run into this one in Clearwater, this was a definite Government agent named Nancy Sadgwick, Nancy Sadgwick. Obviously operating for the "evil side of the force" as you might say. She was trying to keep any upstat person off the lines, and anybody that could upset the little "applecarts" of the Government, and was preventing or shooting anyone that went out and did PR in Clearwater. Anyone that tried to make friends in Clearwater, she would just shoot the shit out of them, or threaten them. She would keep people off lines, declare them PTS III, just the general suppression.

Anyway, I also found out from an entirely separate source at this time data about an upcoming "coup" in Mexico, which could affect our operations down there, and I debriefed on that, and this was from a source, and old friend of mine who was a gun runner. He had nothing to do with Scientology but it could affect our operations down there. And I asked them to check upon that because it gave names of the Government officials involved in it. And this was a "coup" in Mexico against the Government. It was going to... - it had to do with the oil business... - didn't have to do with Scientology, but we had friends in the Mexican Government and I thought it might affect them so I gave them that, and debriefed to the CMO on all this. By the way I had also telexed to LRH and MSH this data on John Cole being in Clearwater, because I knew wherever that sucker was, there was always some CIA action following it up, or some kind of infiltration action. And also that we had important data on how to handle the elections in Clearwater and get our candidate elected, and so forth.

But the telexes were not forwarded thru to LRH or MSH, although I'd been working for them for 15 years. They were stopped by the CMO and stopped by Jimmy Mulligan when they were sent over to the GO. And therefore, the next thing that came to me was... - I was being Comm-Ev'ed. Now why was I being Comm-Ev'ed? What crime? They didn't have one. They were just doing the Comm-Ev to "find out things". I said, "Well, I have just debriefed for 3 days now and my wife has debriefed for 3 days down there and she's also got pneumonia now from all the suppression and non-belief of people. Now what more do you want? We've already been thru two Comm-Evs down there and you've cancelled both of them. Now, what is the point of all this?" And they didn't have a point. All they wanted to do is Comm-EV me, and I found out really, that all they wanted to do was shoot me because I was getting too close to the truth. And the GO had told the CMO to get rid of me because I was "upsetting"... - you know, I was "hallucinating" and I was going crazy, and all that kind of stuff.

The CMO has no intelligence service. They have no idea of running a B-1. They have no idea of any kind of information gathering other than org stats and so on. And therefore they totally obeyed the GO, thought I was hallucinating, and Comm-Ev'ed me.

And they had to take the results up three times because the Committee wanted to let me off twice for following the "Vital Data" policy which is, "Whenever you have vital data, you report it up to Command. If you don't you are committing an overt." Well, that's what I was following. And anyway, the data still didn't get up to Command, by the way. You have to realize this, LRH didn't get it, neither did Mary Sue.

So the Committee finally... - this guy, Jay Okamoto, who was over the Committee of course, he was the HCO Area Sec, Convening Authority, he decided that I was to be shot very dead, and he did. And that was what you saw as the "out-security" and so on like that. The basic "out-security" was I finally got my wife to come up and be a witness at my Comm-EV and of course she didn't have "clearance" to come up there, so when I drove her in to be a witness at my Comm-EV - well then that was the out-security and I said, "Yes, now you have a crime, now you can shoot me." And so they did. Anyway, that was that. And I said, "Boy, I don't play this game anymore. I'm not going to Q & A with it. I'm going to go all the way to the top, get all these son-of-bitches hung. That's it."

So I went off, I got demoted down to PAC and they "said" in the Comm-EV, which is an illegal Comm-EV by the way, all this stuff was removed. Rank, Kha-Khan, all of this kind of stuff gone, you see. So I'm now, though - I'm in a different game. I'm now playing the game of, "I'm going to clear up LRH's Church and he's not here or he's not in contact with me to help me out of this one, so I'm going to get out of it myself. And I'm going to do it right. I'm going to get all the evidence on these son-of-a-bitches and I'm going to put it to the right people and they're going to 'nail them' ". So I did.

I went out to PAC and I had a nice job there as Design and Planning in the Estates Area. And since I was only an "AB", I could do anything I wanted really. And I went to the government buildings and I tried to get thru to Mary Sue and I got data on various things on Mulligan. I got a whole debrief on him that I put in to the files in HCO FOLO where I had a helpful terminal there named Marge Bryenton. She was the Ethics Officer in the PAC area. And I got all the data I could find there to Joe Lisa, who was an old Sea Org GO guy, and DGIUS.

And I started coming across new data. And the new data I came across was that there was another guy sitting in the L.A. area who was a big plant and his name was Alan Hubbert. And I'll tell you how that data came across: Because I ran into this girl who had gone out, several years back, with an FBI agent. He was not an American guy. He was an English guy who worked for the FBI. He was sort of like a "hired gun" sometimes.

And they had asked him to take part in a plot... and a part of an FBI operation... a clandestine one... to infiltrate the Church of Scientology. Since he was English, you see, it would be very obvious that he wasn't an American and not an FBI agent therefore. And they asked him to infiltrate the Church.

And he refused. He said, "I don't like to play those kind of games. I like to go after gun-runners and drug addicts and all that kind of stuff." So they said "OK". So he didn't join it. But they took him out meanwhile to see the place where they were running it from.

And it was a building in Encino, California and they had a cover there as an Insurance Company, the Zenith Insurance Company. And he refused the deal, you know, he saw all the files they had on us, and all the stuff they'd stolen in 1977. He saw all that stuff. And he said, "They got tons of stuff on you." And he warned the girl. He didn't know at first she was a Scientologist, and when he found out he said,"You better get out of that thing honey". And she said, "Why?" And he said, "Well, because the FBI guys are doing a number on you. And I don't know if you're safe in there or not." So she said, "Why?" And he told her this story. And then he took her by the building and showed it to her. Now, she took all the data and went to this guy Alan Hubbert, who was AG Information Los Angeles at the time. This was about 1978, 79.

Anyway this girl who had the boy friend who was the FBI guy - his name was Ranson Justice. Now, he was English and he had worked for the MI6 guys in England and so on. But mainly he had to leave England because he had finally gotten involved in some kind of violent things and he had to come over to the U.S. And so he worked part time for the FBI. Anyway, he drove her by the place, showed her the building, then she said, "Well, would you come by and tell this to somebody in the Church? Because you know, freedom of religion and all stuff." And he said, "Well...ah..no. If they ever found out that I told anybody, man...they'd kill me". And she said, "Ah, come on now. Please." She finally prevailed on him.

And so he went over with her and they had a private meeting with Alan Hubbert. Told the story to him. And he listened. And then they went away. And then the girl came back to him the next day to say, "What's going to be done about it?" And he said, "Well, here." And he gave her the order that declared her PTS III, and he said, "I don't believe a word of it. That guy's lying." and so on like that.

And she was so shook up, she didn't know what to do. You know, she was just sort of sitting there dazed. She couldn't go to the Org. She was PTS III. She couldn't get out of it now, and so she went back home and she was just laying in bed with the lights out and thinking, "What the hell I just tried to help the Church. I just tried to give them some data. What happened, huh? What happened?"

And then all of a sudden she heard a knock on the door, and she didn't hear a car come up, and it was this guy Ranson. And he came in and she said, "I didn't hear your car, honey." And he said, "I can't come in a car, I can't come in here anymore. I gotta leave town." And she said, "Why?" He said, "There's a contract out on me." And she says, "What?" And he says, "Somebody spilled the beans. That guy we talked to or something had a pipeline to the FBI and they got a contract out on me. I'm to be shot. On sight, by any agent."And she said, "What!" He says, "Yeah, I told you it was a serious thing, honey. Anyway, I gotta go now." So he kissed her and all that and then he left, and she cried the rest of the night.

And then she went back to Alan Hubbert and tried to get it handled and told him what had happened. And he said, "Ah, it's all hallucination and bull-shit, and nobody's really doing anything." and so on like that and "Don't tell anybody about this. Or you will be declared Suppressive."So she went on like that for 6 months, thinking that she was under some kind of investigation or PTS trip, or Suppressive threat of declare. And suddenly she woke up and said, "Wait a minute. This is all bull-shit. i don't want anything to do with those ass-holes!"

And so she went out to open up some Field Scientology by herself. And she was working in different areas, and so on like that. And I don't prefer to give her name on the tape because she may be working in some area right now that are knocking out some SMERSH people. I've told her a lot of things that are happening and if you want to investigate anybody, investigate Alan Hubbert, and find out if that's true or not.

Any way, so I started looking at this guy Alan Hubbert and I suddenly realized there's this whole Black PR campaign going on in the PAC area against myself and my wife. And I traced it down... "Who told you this?" - "Who told you that?" - ...They said we were "crazy", my wife was "PTS" or "SP" and I was "PTS", and I was "hallucinating". It was still going on. It was constant, constant, constant, even though Bob Thomas had been declared Suppressive years ago.

Now who was pushing this shit? Pushing it to the CMO. Pushing it to the Ethics Officer. Pushing it to everybody. See? So I went around and traced it back, traced it back, traced it back, and finally it ended up at Alan Hubbert's desk. He was the AGI out there. And the next thing you know, I'm writing up these reports on Alan Hubbert "He's sending out Black PR, I want to see him in a Comm-Ev tomorrow." and so on like that.

I started asking for these Comm-Evs, you see. To the Ethics Officer, to the AG, and so on like this. And everybody is scared. Now they're getting scared. People start getting scared. "Oh, we can't do that, no, on the GO, no, we can't do that." I said, "I want a Comm-Ev right now. I want that son-of-a-bitch here. I want him on a meter. That son-of-a-bitch! I think he's a plant." They'd say, "Oh no, you can't say that!" I'd say, "I'm saying it. I want him in a Comm-Ev right now. We can prove it."

So anyway, I was doing that kind of thing. Pounding the table and all. Everybody left me alone. They left me totally alone. Nobody would even talk to me.

So the next thing you know, I go out and get on my bike one day with my wife and I find, when I get in a gas station before I go on the freeway - my tire is cut. All the way around. From one ear to the other. It's totally sliced with a knife. Very clean. All the way down, nearly to the tube, and the tube was already poking out in a big balloon.

If I had gone on the freeway, the thing would have flattened out and I might have gotten killed under a bunch of cars and trucks. So I find it and replace the tire and I know it was a knife cut. So I'm going to get my bike parked in front of the QM next time. This is really strange. It was a nice clean cut. It's not like some slash or something. It was a professionally done job. It was like all the way around the tire.

So I went back the next day and rode up to work early in the morning and some guys I knew from SU drive up and they say, "Oh, Capt. Bill, hey,you're out of the hospital, huh? You look alright! We heard about the big accident you had." I said, "What accident?" They said, "Oh, we heard you and your wife got hurt on the freeway in a motorcycle accident." I said, "Really? No shit. Who told you that?" They said, "Oh, we heard it from the courier. The courier came out to SU and heard it from the PAC area." Of course, now they had to believe it was all a lie, because I didn't have no accident.

So I went back and I grabbed the courier and I said, "Where did you get this from?" And he says, "Oh, I heard it from somebody in the CMO." So I went to the CMO and I talked with them and said, "Who did you hear this from? It didn't happen. Where did you hear it from?" So, they had heard it from this girl that "tells them things" from the GO. And this girl worked for Alan Hubbert.

So I went to find her and I found her in a cafe. My wife and I sat down across from her and we just pointed at her and I said, "You're going to be in a Comm-Ev. You've been lying about us, spreading false rumors about Scientologists." and so on like that. And she just dropped her knife and fork and started looking very "glazed" and "terror-eyed" and everything like that and she said,"I...uh...uh." I said, "You spread that rumor about the accident, didn't you. You know that Alan Hubbert had the tire slashed on my motorcycle. You know he tried to kill us, didn't you. You're in it for attempted murder and you're an accessory before the fact."

And she went, "Uh...uh..please! Please! I can't talk about it. Don't tell anybody!" I said, "Who ordered you to do that?" She said, "I can't tell you, it's GO business. I can't tell you!" And I said, "It's Alan Hubbert, isn't it?" She said, "uh...yes, yes, but don't tell him! Don't tell him! He'll kill me!" I said, "OK, I won't tell him."

So we left her there sort of slobbering into her...- she was a, you know, one of those GO hangers-on you know... - people that go and do Black PR for the GO.

So we went back over and I sat down with Dafna and we sat down there and wrote and typed up a whole bunch of reports on this whole thing and turned them over to the Ethics Officer in FOLO there, and sent copies up to the GO and to Fred Hare and anybody else we could think of, you see, and I said, "Now we want a Comm-Ev on this guy because now it is attempted murder."

And then, the next thing was that Jimmy Mulligan, "himself" right?... - now by the way I had been talking to Joe Lisa. I told Joe Lisa about this. He was the DGI United States and he knew the whole story. I told him the whole thing, my suspicions on Mulligan and now told him my suspicions on Alan Hubbert, and Lisa's getting cotton-mouthed and he can't even take it. He's scared. He's frightened. because these are his seniors, huh? Not Hubbert, but Mulligan is his senior. And he's all cotton-mouthed and frightened and every thing like this, you know.

And I said, "Check it out. Check it out. Just go look." So he started looking. And he checked John Cole. And he found he was a CIA agent. And he found he had done this and that and he was trained in the "terror school", and he might have had something to do with this and that and the other thing, and he was totally "rabid" against the Church. And then he found out that Bob Thomas had put some stuff in my file in 1968 saying I was "hallucinating". And he checked on the psychiatrist in Beverly Hills. And he found out the guy did leave town. And the guy was in some kind of organization that they knew was a SMIRSH organization, and he checked on the doctor in the County General Hospital and found out that was his name and the guy had left town that night. And he checked on this and that and he found that everything I was saying was TRUE.

All the way up the line. And all of a sudden, he was ordered off. He couldn't do it anymore. Mulligan told him. He was scared. He told me, "I can't do it anymore. I can't look anymore, I can't look anymore." I said, "Well, OK, you're chicken shit, man. That's all it is." He accepted it. He said, "Yeah, I don't wanna..." So said, "OK, I'll have to get that son-of-a-bitch myself." So I started trying to get hold of Mary Sue. And I got ahold of Mary Sue's auditor, that I knew was her secret auditor and her NOTS auditor. I got ahold of him and tried to get him to deliver a message. He was afraid to do it. He wouldn't do it. It was just a message to meet her, you know and talk to her. He wouldn't do it. He was afraid.

We went to Fred Hare's wedding and tried to talk to Jane. We figured Jane might want to do something about it, since she was lined up to go to jail. And Dafna went up, and I went up and Dafna said, "Jane, we have some important information for you about the GO." and so on like that. "We know some things are happening and we'd like to talk with you about them." and Jane went, "Oh...! That's a very touchy subject. I don't want to talk to you about it...no...no." She was scared too.

So meanwhile I went back to this girl that had told me all about Ranson Justice and all this stuff, and I said, "Look, would you guys like to help me?" (Her and a couple of her friends, you see?) So I said, "Would you guys like to help me and let's handle this god damn thing ourselves. Let's go bust into the FBI place or at least surveil it and get a demonstration going out there and, you know, get the files back, and expose them to the press, because the GO's all chicken shit and they won't do anything about it." And she said, "Oh, well, yeah, we'd like to help you. Let's get Joe Lisa over here and try one more time."

So we got Joe Lisa over there and we told him all the things again, gave him tapes... - she gave him a tape recording of her whole story - ...and he was so frightened he had to drink a glass of water to be able to talk. And then he called her up the next day and told her that the FBI will "kill her and her friends" if they do what I had planned, which was to go out and harass them out at this place in Encino. The FBI will "kill" her and "they might take your life and all and then we'd have to declare you Suppressive." And he (Joe Lisa) told her that stuff. He was under the influence of Mulligan by this time.

And then when I went over to see them to find out what had happened, they all sat on the couch looking afraid, and they told me, "So we can't help you anymore Captain Bill, we're afraid. And we've decided...uh...that when we get up the Bridge a little more, maybe we'll be able to do something." They were all chicken shit. They were all shaking in their boots. And I called them all cowards right to their faces and they accepted that. And they knew it was true and they were cowards.

They wouldn't look. Joe Lisa wouldn't look. None of these people... they wouldn't look. They wouldn't do anything about it. I was telling them. This is the guys. Get them out of there. These are the evil guys. These are the agents of the Government. These are the enemy sitting right in your midst. And they wouldn't do anything about it. So I said, "I've got to get to Mary Sue or Ron. They are the only people that will have the...see, I'm an AB now, right? So, I'm gonna get these guys. I'm going to get them. So I'm going to get to Mary Sue."

So I went down to the government office building and tried to get her address from them... from the Attorney General's people down there, the court people, that were trying her. And all they gave me was Mulligan's address over at the Cedars. In the Legal Department, run by his wife, Anne Mulligan.

So that's the way it went. The government was totally "cozy"" with the GO, you see? Because really, the government shouldn't have anything to do with the Church. It's just a little mixing up of Church and State. They should have given me Mary Sue's lawyer's address. Mulligan was not her lawyer. She was being tried as an individual, not as a member of the Church.

If you know the case very well, you will know she was being tried as an individual, to protect the Church, and not have it affiliated with her. In other words, she was "taking the rap". She was "taking the rap". And my heart goes out to Mary Sue. She took the big rap for all those ass-holes that were sitting in there, and those other ass-holes that were too "afraid" to do anything about the Mulligans and Alan Hubbert. Ass-holes! And the Okamotos and all that shit. And there they are sitting there... and the threat against them is that they'll "lose their bridge", that they'll be "declared SP". Well, who gives a God-Damn! We won't even have a Church if we don't do something about these ass-holes!

Anyway, so I went on for a little, I wrote up to Bill Franks by this time. I figured he might do something although I knew he was a puppet under the Watchdog Committee at that time. I figured he might be able to do something. I wrote up to him and told him where all this data was: With Molly Bernstein, the debriefs on Clearwater, and the political scene... - by the way, when I was Comm-Ev'ed• • , they wouldn't let me out of SU until after the elections in Clearwater. And our candidate, the pro-Scientology one, did not win because none of the strategy that Dafna and I had planned, and tried to get OK'ed by the Boss... - which was blocked from getting to him - ...it never got applied. And the candidate that did get in was the "middle" candidate who then held the "inquiry" on Scientology this year. OK. So there's another way to keep the Church from expanding and turn it over to the fucking government.

Anyway, the debrief, yes... - now there's a debrief at the CMO INT... - it's probably been burned, destroyed or put in the B-1 files, but you can find it there at CMO INT. It would be in HCO. It's under my Comm-Ev. They'd have my Comm-Ev up there in CMO INT. You'd have... - the debriefs I did, would be in the debrief files at CMO INT. There's the tape debrief, of course, at Flag with the AG Flag's office. Molly Bernstein's no longer, by the way, the A6 flag. I don't know where she is. She's gone. And the debrief to CMO, to Janadir Swanson. She's gone too, by the way. All the old messengers are gone from there.

Janadir was the only one that "sort of" believed, you know, but she was sort of influenced by the GO. And she's gone now. And Marge Bryenton, the Ethics Officer in PAC, who was keeping the files of Dafna and myself, for us, a very bright little girl, and very on-source, you know... but she couldn't do anything from her post, it was so low on the org board, but she at least kept things for us. And she's now gone, too. And Joe Lisa, well, the last I heart about him after the Franchise Meeting in December, he was declared PTS III, when he said that he was actually there at the Franchise Meeting to actually "spy" for the GO. They declared him PTS III. Anyway, that's on... - you'll hear that on some of Peter Greene's debrief tape... all that stuff. I wasn't personally there, but I do know he was a coward, back in 1981.

Anyway, the final result was that: I couldn't get thru to Mary Sue. I didn't know where she was. The auditor wouldn't take a message. I couldn't send one up through Jimmy Mulligan now, could I? So I knew that line was blocked.

So what I decided to do was, then, to find LRH and maybe we could get some action going on that. I would be very willing to do the mission myself. And I just wanted to make sure that somebody in the Church was not a coward. And my whole time in PAC was spent, besides doing the intelligence work on these people, and getting the files assembled and so on, was spent in trying to find people or Scientologists who were not cowards. Who would stand up for what was right. Who would not Q&A with evil when they saw it in the Church. Who would make a stand. Dafna did a whole campaign, in cartoon style, against B-1 files, the secrecy in the B-i files, the fact you could never see them and so on. The mission holders brought this up in 1981. We did this a year before that, and got a lot of mission-holders interested in it. They finally brought it up to Flag in 1981 and for a while people were actually "told" they could look at their B-I files. But it was very short lived, because when the first guy tried to do it, he couldn't. So there was a lot of data that was put in the files about Scientologists.

We found some horrible stuff about how the Field in San Francisco was destroyed by another... oh, by the way... this is another plant, from San Francisco area. A girl named Kathy O'Gorman, used to be the AG at flag. She's definitely suppressive. Tried to destroy every successful person in the San Francisco area. Then came down to Flag and did a totally ineffective job against the Clearwater Mafia.

And she was so sweet... and 1.1... everybody "loved" her... I'm sorry, I thought she was great myself, at one time. But then I found out the data and... if you investigate it just ask anybody that has run a franchise in the San Francisco area in the early 70's and you'll find out what she did to them.

She actually was the one who declared Werner Earhart, before he started EST. And all he was doing was trying to make a way to make a lot of money for the Church up there and he wanted them to do his new introductory course. And she said, "No, that's squirrel!" And "You're declared." and so on like that, without even listening to the guy. So he went off and founded EST. So she's actually the person that... - you could call her responsible for... - starting up a squirrel group. She didn't have any Justice in the area. It was just, "Shoot them, shoot them, shoot them. Declare them PTS Type III, shoot them, shoot them." Like that. Anyway, that's not Scientology, and we all know that.

So I tried to find the Boss and the thing was that I did not. And I don't want anybody to believe that I have physically seen the Boss since 1981. I haven't. I have not gotten into physical communication with him.

However, ever since I was trained on the Briefing Course in 1965 and then interned in 1966, I have been able to have Spiritual communication with LRH, and I have gotten in Spiritual communication with him. And my actions, since the time of 1981, in the summer, when I went to look for him, have been coordinated with that Spiritual communication line to him.

So, anything that I am doing, and you hear of me doing, and don't believe all the Ethics Orders you see, because there's also MY side of the story.

If you will investigate any of these things - now watch yourself when you investigate them, to make sure that you don't get shot yourself; because there are other things I can tell you - Lists. Lists of top Scientologists who were in a "hit list" that were put in by the FBI plants into the Church. These people were to be "gotten". Data from their PC files, data from their Ethics records, anything like that - to make them "ineligible" and to get rid of them from high positions.

And most of these people are "done" now. They mostly are the Class XII auditors that worked with LRH, the Senior Execs that worked with LRH, the messengers that worked with LRH. These people are all gone now.

The only people that are left are the ones that Q&A, and walk around like little puppy dogs and puppets. And I don't know, I'm sure that Bill Franks has a story about this - why he got removed; and I'm sure that any of the other people that got shot, that were loyal to LRH, and the REAL Loyal Officers, have a story to tell.

But the main thing is that the real loyal people are still here. They never give up. And LRH never gives up on any of his shots.

And the government, apparently, is just trying to take over administrative control of the Church and run it into Receivership, and then suck all the Tech under its wing, drop the Shades of Night over it (from PDC 21), and use it for the "very select few".

Because you better believe they know it works. If it didn't work they wouldn't be so interested in taking it over. It's just like a secret weapon.

But anyway, the Boss had always tried to keep it nonpolitical, and anything we do outside of the Church has to be done on our own.

But the basic thing is to get the organization at the top. The guys who were trying to get the Church at the top - now we get them at their top. And their top is not in the United States. The United States is a puppet. England is a puppet. Spain is a puppet. Any country is a puppet to these guys who are behind the scenes - the World Bank is one of their "front" groups. These guys are behind the scenes and they work behind the banking lines, they work on scenarios, computer scenarios, and I told you the name of the top guy, and that's J. Strasburg, and he works out of Switzerland and Germany.

And any attacks that we do as OT's is against this son-of-a-bitch, and there IS an Ethics Order out on him, written by LRH. Therefore, any attack we do on these guys will be at the top.

And don't you believe they know it? Because these are not just enemies of this lifetime. These guys are the ones that are responsible for a lot of the implanting in this Sector.

Now, I've sort of brought you up to date here. Any time you want to use this - you know there's lots more data but the thing is that we've got: The PTS's in the Church, the people that BELIEVE these plants, the people that don't see them, the people that have the wool pulled over their eyes by suppression, the people that are too AFRAID because they might "lose" their bridge, the people that are too AFRAID because they might be declared "PTS" or "SP", the people that were totally fooled - like Herbie for instance.

I warned him about the Sea Org Reserves. I said "Man, the government will try to grab our money, look at all the tax cases against the Church, look at the individual IRS cases on the rich Scientologists, that pushed donations to the Church, look at the civil suits for millions and hundred of millions in the United States against the Church". I said, "Man, HIDE the Sea Org Reserves and don't let anybody get it." And when I called him to warn him on that in 1981, he was being Comm-Eved!

For "not keeping right records" or something. Who was calling the Comm-EV? Jimmy Mulligan. And I warned him. He did take the warning at that time, and he got out of the Comm-EV somehow. But later on, of course, he got caught in the GO Comm-EV. He just didn't take enough action.

All these guys were warned. They all had a chance. And I knew that anybody that was warned and didn't take action was gonna fall. And they were gonna fall badly. Now these guys did. Because they never woke up.

Anyway, your data files, in the B-1... - if there's a campaign.. - one thing if you're over in Europe, there's certain things to avoid, and these things to avoid are these secret files, these secret B-1 files.

Everyone should be able to see their B-1 file. Just like an Ethics file. Because that's were they can put the lies that will follow you around for years and years and years. Like, of course, my "hallucinations", right?

Now, as I say, you could talk to Joe Lisa and you'll find out that everything he checked out on my story was true. And he got afraid to carry on. Cause he was afraid.

But you could check out the FBI secret headquarters on Ventura Blvd, out in Encino, California. The address is on an Ethics Order I wrote on Alan Hubbert. I've written Ethics Orders on him and I've written an Ethics Order on Bob Thomas, declaring him Suppressive.

That's my hat. Second Deputy Commodore. And I've written an Ethics Order on Lou Schribnik, who is the person who introduced Darby Simpson into the Church - she's sort of a "controlled doll" - you understand, she's been PDHed pretty badly.

And she's the one that tried to kick John Travolta out of the Church, and she's been doing her best to put control in and rip money off of the Celebrity lines - and the best data on that is to just talk to; Alex Sibersky will tell you a story on that or Liz Ausley. They can give you the data on her actions, and her sister's actions, and her father, who is a government guy himself. But her monitor, her monitor is this guy name Schribnik. He doesn't work for the United States Government. He works directly for Switzerland.

If anybody will even have the courage enough to go over there, or the money enough to go over to Encino, to check the secret headquarters, you'll find in the basements... as you go in the door in the front, the stairs go down on the right and you go down to the basement, the first door on the right, there's the basement files... and that's where all the files are that the FBI stole from us in

Right now, my purposes are to continue with OT projects. And to continue to put Ethics in on the real SP's on the Planet...- not the people that... - not these little "play things", these little "play" pieces of paper that the Church keeps flitting about. But the real evil beings, the people who are actually in charge of the Suppression. Not the people who are PTS to it. Not the people who are PHD'd. Not those kind of people. They can all be handled. But the guys who INTEND, INTEND these things to happen.

Because expansion is so easy, just as it was in Europe, just as it is in Europe. Where there's no suppression on the lines, LRH's tech goes in, the policy goes in, and expansion happens as fast as you can have it. And it does that wherever I've applied it... in Europe, in A.O.L.A.... expansion just goes - zoom! - like that! And the only time it ever stops is because of Suppression. That's all there is to it. And you don't have to believe that, that it's "suppression" or anything, you can make all kind of reasons about it, but if you just go ahead and do what LRH says, you keep expanding. So you don't worry about that. Just go ahead and flourish and prosper.

So the thing now is to continue on the OT projects, and these are basically the projects that LRH started out in 1967, and as I know, he always continues and completes postulates.

And since I'm his Loyal Officer, and his Deputy, I DO TOO. And I don't need anyone's license to survive. I don't need anyone's permission. I don't need anyone's approval. I will just go ahead and DO THIS and I will DO IT WELL and I will do it JUST AS LRH WANTS IT DONE.

And that's about all I can give you on this debrief tape right now. Anything else is a little bit confidential. It might get into the wrong hands.

But there will be some changes that are being made on this planet right now. They ARE being made on this planet right now by OT's and OT teams.

And the SP's know it. And they're getting a bit frantic. And we are carrying on and we will do the job. And there ARE things happening, right now, on this planet that will change its future - FOREVER. And put it more ON SOURCE.

So that's the end of this debrief

Thank you very much .

Sector Operations Bulletin No. 1

Gentlemen:

The constraints and conformities of a Markabian society are immense. One is held in position by various administrative, economic and police pressures. The agreements are persuasively enforced through media, peer pressure groups, ostracizing of undesirables; and the covert or overt incarceration of aggressive non-conformists and "trouble makers".

Justice is only related to conformity and acceptance of one s place in the extremely ordered structure. Status and position are all-important, and various secret schemes are constantly being acted to increase one's position and status completely aside from normal, but slow, advancement of conformists.

The favored tools for these plots are increased economic control, greater population control, and authority enhancement - through being often quoted as one - in the media. Control of all energy lines to enforce the rigidity of the structure is a standard operation - food, fuel, money - and putting an individual on a "must haven from the controlling Markabians for these items.

Markabian planetary control administrative structures often become "top heavy" and all sight is lost of what is going on below, as the media only report what the rulers wish. Thus pervasion and penetration tactics are well advised, with an overall strategy of clandestinely "appearing" to be just another power-hungry Markabian when taking over large segments, on a suitably hidden via, of course. The hunger for status of a Markabian can be used to position him within the controlled operation, thus giving the appearance of conformity. An understood rule amongst Markabians is to not interfere with a power status ploy in progress, but stand by and wait to choose the winning side at a decidedly apparent outcome, leaving only those threatened to defend their position. Honor, duty, and loyalty have no place in the Markabian moral structure as such, but are conceived actually as position (status), conformity, and control maintenance.

I postulate all the best for you all on this mission.

Sector Operations Bulletin No. 2

There are many viewpoints of the Galactic Patrol, Gentlemen.

One is that it is a police organization. Another is that it is a war force or space army, navy and air force combined. In actuality its purpose is: TO GUARANTEE THAT CIVILIZATION CONTINUES TO FLOURISH AND PROSPER WITHOUT DISTURBANCE WHILE ALLOWING THE GREATEST POSSIBLE FREEDOM TO THE INDIVIDUAL.

Justice is therefore a major part of a Patrol member's hat, basing his decisions on the greatest good for the greatest number of dynamics. Excellent data and intelligence gathering systems are necessary to do this job as most disruptions to civilization, other than natural disasters, are carefully premeditated long before actions are taken.

Knowledge of the mental states of beings, indicators of psychosis, etc. are valuable tools of the trade.

OT abilities of pervasion and penetration can only be limited by the user s own opinion that the data thus obtained is too incredible or is unlikely to be carried out. Thus the catastrophe which befell this Sector (ca. 75 million years ago) happened. Only a few Loyal Officers and Citizens were attempting to prevent it, and they were given very little assistance by the indigenous populations of the planets involved, whose leaders either discredited the plot, the data being too incredible for belief, or were actually involved in keeping it a secret for their own reasons. The analysis of viewpoints from that time reveals that those leaders who were actively pressing for population control by saying the Sector was overcrowded were involved in the plot for their own gain.

A recent earth dramatization of this viewpoint was the German/Austrian leader Adolph Hitler in your World War II. Destruction and decimation of populations was the result of this dramatization.

Thus indicators of social psychosis should alert the Patrol member to a possible plot to harm several dynamics, and an investigation and analysis of data should be done to trace such manifestations back to their source, where a careful, diligent, intelligence operation will uncover the intention, plans, lines of communication, and procedures of those involved. It is important to determine the actual timetable of the operations so that effective countermeasures can be taken.

All those involved in planetary operations should be well versed in the technical aspects of the above mentioned fields so that each tool comes readily to hand as needed.

The stars in this sector are under a Non-Interference Decree from Galactic Central - Grand Council. The stipulations of the decree are:

1. No interference is permitted in the zone known as Sector Nine until further notice.

2. This decree is to be enforced by the Galactic Patrol.

3. There shall be no use of atomic, chemical, or biological weapons in the zone

4. Travel to and from the zone is regulated and shall be subject to verification of intent and escort by the Patrol.

5. The technical and ethical experiment in progress by Sector Commander Elron Elray is not to be interfered with in any way whatsoever as it is extremely vital to the future of the Galaxy and its inhabitants.

6. The-Ethics Order by Commander Elray on the being Xenu, currently Joseph Strasburg, alias "Herr J." or "Mister J." of Germany/Switzerland banking circles, declaring him Suppressive, is to be enforced.

7. It is to be understood that this is a controlled and protected Sector until further notice.

8. Communications to and from Sector 9 shall be routed through Galactic Central-Ambassadorial Section - and final authority in cases of dispute shall be held by the Grand Council.

We are all engaged in a conquest of the forces of evil on this planet which are attempting to hinder and interfere with the rapid expansion of Scientology technology.

To combat this threat, all OTs are needed to work together, coordinated in action and thrust.

My deputy, Captain Bill Robertson, is the coordinating point for those actions entirely outside of the legal structure of the Church.

He has a list of all such OT projects to be done, and OTs who wish to assist in freeing this planet from enslavement should contact him.

He is given a leave of absence from the Sea Org and Church organization while on these special OT projects.

Training and processing are to be made available for all project members at usual public rates as these projects are designed to support themselves and be viable.

A briefing pack for all OTs engaged in or newly joining Special OT projects is to be made up by 2nd Deputy Commodore, Captain Bill Robertson and checked out on each project member by him or a person he assigns.

The pack is to consist of:

1. OT Project PLs in Volume 7 OEC.

2. Sector Ops Bulletins as issued.

3. RJs issued in '80, '81, '82 on R B'day.

4. RJ '67 tape.

5. A security briefing pack to be selected from 50 issues by Capt. Bill.

6. Relevant issues of Policy, PR Tech, etc., as pertaining to the member's job in the project.

7. Basics of Mission Tech.

8. Target Series.

9. Basic Data Series PLs

10. Any other relevant issues as may be needed from time to time.

The RTS film is designed to make several things occur on planet earth. Firstly, it will re-create the events surrounding a 4th Dynamic engram which affected this Sector circa 75 million years ago. However, it will present the data in a way which releases charge and brings up awareness and confront.

No one has really confronted the original incident and survived - until the research I did in 1966-1967.

Secondly, it will contain several symbols of the time, many still existing in PT on or off planet, which will create a familiarity and positioning of these symbols for our use - the good guys wear the white hats, bad guys the black hats, etc. - as per early Hollywood symbolism.

A wide field of PR activities will at once open up and present itself for use based on the symbols in the film and the results of surveys afterwards. We should be prepared for this. Proper positioning tech would be used in any cover business, corporation, etc., to increase alignment with the mental and spiritual vectors thus developed.

Thirdly, the film itself is to be viable, allowing a wide range of follow-up items and literature and a thrust from the public to be developed which can be channeled toward the orgs.

Most importantly, since the events portrayed are true, there will be a degree of as-isness of the interlocking bank structure on the planet, thus making our job a bit easier.

Any OT project being developed or in progress is to be made aware of these points in regard to RTS.

All personnel taking part in OT Projects must attest:

1. That they are in agreement with the project purpose.

2. That they have no connections to governments, political parties, or other groups which are antagonistic or would interfere with the project, its purpose, or would resist creating a new civilization, clearing people, broadly making OTs, etc., so as to completely avoid conflicts of interest.

3. That they are not joining the project only for personal gain or status. However, they may of course expect to be rewarded on successful completion of viable projects.

4. That they will submit to hatting as required by Sector Operations Bulletin No. 5 and whatever additional hatting may be required by the Project Director or I/C.

5. That they recognize the need for security and will keep it in and thus remain trustworthy.

6. That they will endeavor to continue up the Bridge consistent with the demands of project activities and priorities which may be set from time to time.

7. That they are doing the above and any project actions on their own determinism and freedom of choice.

8. That they fully understand that anyone desiring to leave or leaving a project once started must forfeit any expected rewards and has no claim on cooperation from the rest of the group. A person may be reimbursed the exact amount of any monies invested if he so desires but will be ineligible for further project duties in the future. (Note: This rule does not apply to a person called away to handle a family or business situation, etc. - for which he must obtain Project Director approval beforehand - but only to those whose intentions no longer align with the project or the rules above.)

9. That they understand the basic Aims of Scientology, its Axioms and Codes, and intend fully to help achieve them.

Thus regulated, our projects can not fail to be extremely successful, enjoyable, and enlightening.

Bill Franks via Deputy Cmdre. Capt. Bill (OT Project Coordinator Earth (WW))

Dear Bill - Glad to hear from you. Now you know how it feels to wear the ED INT hat in every aspect. I, myself, backed off the lines several years ago and the same charges were leveled at me by government agencies and disaffecteds. Seems there must be a lesson in here somehow, eh? Well, it's very simple:

First, a game is played and observed in this universe on many levels at once to afford randomity and interest.

Second, one must, in assuming a beingness or position in a game, take responsibility for each level and the effects created on it by one's postulates.

Third, an analysis of current vectors (directions of intentions by players and pieces in relation to the goal and opposition goal) must be done regularly.

Fourth, effects of vectors on future track are viewed by an exterior position (Pan-determined).

Fifth, the key point or pressure center of the vectors is located where minimum exertion of force, comm, etc., will produce maximum effect.

Sixth, this point is occupied and used to originate the new postulate or resolving vector determined by three and four above.

Seventh, the point and maintenance of vector propagation from it is delegated to a teammate.

Eight, another cycle is done.

This is the natural law of successful players in this universe's (and others too) games. As you can see, OTs have the advantage over their opponents in almost all cases per above as they can exteriorize, shift viewpoint, postulate and perceive, permeate, and penetrate better than any non-OT or lesser OT opponents.

The biggest ARC break to a player can come at Step Seven where there is a no, weak, or treasonous teammate who will not duplicate or will alter or stop or reverse the entrusted vector propagation. This fixes attention and sticks the player at that exact point of the cycle and prevents him from continuing the successful game cycle. Thus my Policy of never using a broken line.

However, a senior handling is to take Step Seven, re-analyze 3 to 5 using it and plug the result into 6 with a new 7. Feedback, Qual'ing, or review are several names for this action.

This is a little secret I've been keeping since analyzed games in the early 50's. Now it is available for OT Project use.

You have probably seen me using it on the Flag Ship to come up with a wildly successful and fast handling for enemy attacks.

The only place it can fall down is in Three with omitted, false, or other outpointy data. So, in conjunction with DS PLs this formula is nearly foolproof. I say "nearly" because players sometimes play the "fool" and fail to observe in Step One all the levels of play. Sound familiar? It is a common mistake in up-coming players.

In fact, the enemy or opponent low-reality players can be entirely eliminated by use of this datum: "The incredible is hidden as well as or to the degree that fewer opponents believe it." A caution, however, that in using an "incredible" to foil the opponents at Step One - it may also become invisible or unreal to your teammates or some of them. So always take this into consideration when using it.

A happy solution is to optimize the "incredible" so you are left with a cadre of high reality teammates and thus have enough to cycle thru Step 7 and carry on without hardly a pause for breath.

Thus in current galactic, sector, planetary, and org game levels, I have my friends on the OT Projects. Welcome aboard and have fun! I'm sure this will help us all get on with the job much faster.

(Note: CB will issue this this TLC as Sector Ops Bulletin No.8.)

As to the Church, it's a case of the enemy have us right where we want them to have us - on a senior OT game level, incredible, fast flow, and devastatingly effective. The various levels of the Church have also been tested for strength with Capt. Bill's help over the last year. The Step 7 of this cycle is now started.

Much Love - Ron

(Message to all OT Project Group members delivered at meeting on Sunday, 30 May 1982.)

I welcome you all. It's been a long tough mission but we came through and back out into the open with very few casualties. Now the way is open for expansion and we will continue with the job of handling this Sector together. I appreciate your loyalty and dedication more than you know. From this level, it looks simple of course, but the road through the muck and degeneration of this planet for the purpose of finding and testing the tech and org policy which would survive the trek to freedom ahead has been laborious and often dangerous.

The most honorable and brave officers and citizens now stand before me, our OT Project teams. I humbly thank you one and all for your untiring work in the cause of freedom. This shining example of courage shall be recorded in the annals of this planet, Sector, and galaxy. I highly commend you all, and "OT's in the cause of freedom" shall be a guiding light to the oppressed and trampled beings broken on the wheel of evil.

can now rise to the heights of freedom and beingness, the apexes of joy and creation, the upper limits of play in this and other games. And the step beyond to one's own universe beckons ever so alluringly near. But this time there will be no down spiral, just the spirit of play and freedom to choose.

Thank you for being with me in this endeavor. I love you all.

FROM: Astar Paramejgian, Deputy Sector Commander, released by authority of Elron Elray, Sector Commander, Sector 9.

TO: All OTs

SUBJECT: OT OPERATIONS

We have a product. ETHICAL OTs.

For the first time in this and other universes, through the application of Standard Tech, Ethical OTs in volume are being produced. The downward spiral has been halted - the cycle of action reversed - it now moves upward under the leadership and coordinated actions of the first truly ethical OTs.

A balance of dynamics has been obtained. The Code of Honor and the "Greatest Good for the Greatest Number of Dynamics" can now be implemented willingly and with joy as a natural activity in life - a "luxury" if you wish.

None can shake this certainty - all has been revealed through application of Standard Tech - the link-up on the other side of the bridge is happening - Now! All are invited to join us. All are welcome.

Only those whose intentions and connections deny life, freedom, ability, creative expansion and the spirit of play will encourage you to stay on the other side - the downward side of the spiral.

Observe your situation well - ask yourself these questions:

1. Are you in a game you don't like?

2. Are you a player, a piece, or a broken piece?

3. Is there some area of life you wished to expand or become cause in that has mysteriously been denied you?

4. Are you regulating your actions by the other-determined rules of conformity?

5. Are you threatened with loss of status if you don't conform?

6. Is going up the bridge a difficult and even hazardous task, when it should be fun and easy?

7. Do you feel you cannot express your deepest feelings of loyalty, duty, and honor without being thought "odd" or even provoking attack from certain quarters?

8. Have you become aware of things only you and possibly a few friends can see and must discuss quietly for fear of retribution if your observations become widely known?

9. Has you purpose, ARC, and KRC been blunted? Are you tired?

10. Is it becoming more difficult to Flourish and Prosper as you expand when it should become easier?

11. Is someone convincing you to operate by flows and beams rather than positive postulates?

12. Are you being hit by entheta, black flows, and beams?

13. Do you long for the friendship and camaraderie and high ARC of your first experience with Thetans in Scientology?

14. Do you feel you have an unfulfilled purpose here on Earth and in this Sector and would do anything to achieve it?

15. Are you being regulated or monitored by MEST instead of being at cause over it?

16. Did you ever have an experience relating to "your mission here on Earth" or an amazing ability turn on that you can't really talk about for fear of being thought crazy?

17. Can you see the future and then through fear of criticism do you invalidate your own knowingness?

18. Do you "ridge up" when others try to "interpret" Source to you or put their own considerations as more important?

19. Do you sometimes wish the promotional stories about OT abilities could happen to you?

20. Are you too big a being for the game you are being forced to conform to?

****

The attainment of the answers to these and other questions are available. The product of Ethical OTs has been achieved. All Loyal Officers and Citizens, all beings who have fought and died for freedom, all those who have ever worked with and who work with now Elron Elray (body name L. Ron Hubbard) are welcome to join OT Projects, the Sector 9 team of On-Source beings who have the purpose:

"TO GUARANTEE THAT CIVILIZATION CONTINUES TO FLOURISH AND PROSPER WITHOUT DISTURBANCE, WHILE ALLOWING THE GREATEST POSSIBLE FREEDOM TO THE INDIVIDUAL" and who are pledged to support fully the following decree:

"The technical and ethical experiment in progress by Sector Commander Elray is not to be interfered with in any way whatsoever as it is extremely vital to the future of the Galaxy and its inhabitants."

CLASS VII & NOTS

OT PROJECT MEMBERS ONLY

I know you and the project team members feel a bit of a loss on seeing supposedly "aware" Scientologists react to black propaganda and gov't "dirty tricks" the way they did - even after years of fighting & exposing same! Well, we can look also at the brighter side - it chalks up a big win for the tech, as its very workability and indispensability is what is being used as the club to cloud observations. The fear of loss of going free is - when a real Bridge exists - the ULTIMATE control weapon. As long as a being believes he can get thru the door and get on up the Bridge, he will docilely Q&A with any harassment for fear of being denied that right. This is the control point ideally suited to a MARKABIAN "putsch", and resolving it here on Earth will make the organization nearly invulnerable in the future. It should-be very apparent now why Scientology must be entirely non-political and available to everyone. A 3rd Dynamic thrust to control it is "incredible" to those whose awareness only encompasses the 1st and 2nd. The main game level now is "control of the planet". Who ever controls it will by natural inheritance control Scientology. This has been shown. The conundrum is that due to the power of Scientology, one must have control of the planet before getting its inhabitants free enmasse, or run the certain risk of a takeover from the aberrated rulers of the planet who see it as a threat to their power. Valuable data for the future. Evolution up the spiral with Scientology looks like revolution to a down-spiral planetary leader or control group. Thus the takeover, suppress, oppress reaction. It's a PRPR6 4TH & 3RD Dynamic engram. Thus you see the vital need of RTS to run it out and pop the population into PT.

Yes, we are running Power on the planet - you old Class VII's ought to enjoy it. Source, Existence, Conditions & the Remedies. Your actions in the past few weeks were the Source Process. Now we move into the Existence Process.

Then Conditions. As you have observed, the use of Conditions as a 1st step on a SP society was attempted (RTS project for 5 years), but there was no auditor capable enough to do the TRs necessary - i.e. Flag, GO, CMO, & OT's in the field couldn't even get the session space set up, without dramatizing their own unflatness on it as a part of the 3rd and 4th dynamic. Thus I activated the Loyal Officers and OT Projects. You are the auditors to bring it off. I trust you. I know you. And you are the best. This pilot process will be the cornerstone of handling other planets in the future. I am with you all the way.

Love,

Elron Elray

PS. If there is no response to Source Process, then lower Grades are out.

BPI TO ALL OTs AND CLEARS

Models and Scenarios

Since the advent of computers a new and effective method of overt and covert intelligence operations has been developed. You may have heard the word "scenario" used in the press and media, but probably have not heard the term "model".

A "model" is a composite of several "scenarios" with a definite objective or purpose to be achieved.

The models in use today (in politics, economics, attacks on countries, groups, and religions, etc.) are composed of SEVEN scenarios each. The basic datum underlying them is "The Principle of Confusion and the Stable Datum". Reference: PROBLEMS OF WORK by L. Ron Hubbard.

"To gain control of an area - observe it. If it's confused, put in a stable datum. If it's stable, put in confusion."

The Attacks on Scientology

The attacks on the Church of Scientology over the last 30 years have become less and less overt and more and more covert. There are two reasons for this:

1) The overt ones failed by being too obvious and thus united the Church members in opposition.

2) The Church has become more and more of a stable datum, thus can only be really threatened by confusion.

Therefore, in 1982, anyone who investigates thoroughly will find the latest computer technology of models and scenarios being used to gain control of Scientology. The organizations in the United States are the most vulnerable and their scenarios are the most developed.

The Model

The current model is called "OPERATION RAMROD". Its purpose is to invalidate and take over Scientology and its organizations in the United States, put it under the auspices and control of the "government" and use the technology for the few instead of the many. (The PDC lecture by LRH referring to the "Shades of Night" should be heard in relation to this. It is PDC No. 21.)

The above model and its scenarios given below were programmed on the computers at Prognos AG, a wholly owned subsidiary "think tank" of the Swiss Bank Corporation in Basel, Switzerland. They were forwarded (copied for use) on the computers of Data Resources Incorporated, a US government "think tank" in Lexington, Massachusetts for use in the USA. The originator and issue authority for the model is a behind-the-scenes political and economic manipulator in Basel called Joseph Strasburg, Herr J., or Mr. J.. He has a criminal record in this Sector as a maker and user of implants. He is fully aware of the threat to his profession should Scientology become widely known and used. (For reference, listen to Ron's Journal '67 where he describes the source of attacks on the Church.)

The Scenarios

These are given in reverse order from S7 to S1 as the more obvious scenarios have the higher numbers and the secret, hidden-purpose-line scenarios lie underneath the confusion created by the upper ones. Normally, people's attention, just as in current political and economic scenarios, gets fixed on the first few - they are usually programmed to be reported on in news media - so that the lower ones can carry on below the level of awareness, hidden and often incredible to the normal person who believes what he reads in the papers and sees on TV.

S7-BLACK PR: This scenario consists of continuing news stories harmful to Scientology, deprogramming results on cults with a comparison to Scientology, a disinformation campaign on LRH and MSH (Disinformation is removal of creditable documents and records and replacing them with manufactured discreditable ones in files accessible to newspapers, etc.), reports and stories of Scientology splitting up families (carefully planned and often with parents manipulated by government agents), etc. The purpose of S7 is to set up negative "Public Opinion" for whatever may happen to Scientology so there will be no adverse reaction to the Scenario Makers. It also assists other scenarios by lessening resistance and spreading confusion, tying up resources to handle, etc.

S6-MONEY MASH: Here are the actions which attempt to guarantee economic loss to supporters of Scientology and the Church itself. Included are the IRS suits on the tax picture of the Church, similar linked suits on wealthy Scientologists (a priority Scientology file is kept by every IRS agency for audit the minute a person declares "donation" to Church of Scientology), and such local actions as can be instigated such as the pressure on the Church in CW forcing them into a position of having to buy their own tax certificates for $220,730 to avoid loss of all their property by auction in two years if the tax case is not resolved.

Also the names of important Church members are listed on the Government and White House "enemies list" so any computer check by a prospective employer will result in a polite refusal to the Scientologist applying for a job - the employer being sure that the applicant is a "Communist" or worse.

S5-LEGAL LOSS: This scenario consists of lawsuits, both civil and criminal, by the government and individuals. When evidence of crime does not exist or no private citizen is suing, S4 provides both by agent provocateur action. This scenario also assists S6 by using up funds in legal defense and counter suit, and relies on S7 to provide enough Black PR to convince anyone that Scientology is "bad" and therefore guilty.

S4-AGENT PROVOCATEUR: Only slightly below the surface of the thin veneer of civilization are the agent provocateurs, offering money to Church members who have gotten in bad standing or are off lines to "sue the Church", getting parents to hire deprogrammers and sue the Church for "brainwashing" their children (often the "children" are in their 20's or 30's but this seems to make no difference). And then there are the more serious few who get jobs in the Guardian Office and suggest and take part in law-breaking actions which get all their seniors in trouble and escape by "turning state's evidence" to avoid prosecution. This is a despicable action, the most publicized of which got several senior execs, including the Founder's wife, jailed recently. (Incidentally, this could all have been avoided if S1 had been known and acted upon at the time, as the exposure of the agent provocateur (by two loyal Scientologists BEFORE the illegal act) was prevented by a planted senior in the GO who invalidated and blocked the reports, RPFed the writers, and thoroughly discredited them so the scenario could proceed.)

S3-DOCTOR CONTROL: This scenario uses the psychiatrist's favorite, the PDH (Pain, Drug, Hypnosis) operation. By pretending to be Scientology Doctors or Doctors for Scientologists these old implanter types made sure key senior execs who got sick stayed sick, blew, or were given a slow-kill injection if their patient got very perceptive and started exposing these lower level scenarios. This made convenient vacancies for S2 and S1 infiltrators to move in and mess up the area or move up the lines to higher positions. They also left their own agents alone or gave them standard medical treatment when sick. Operation Ramrod even got control of a franchise in the Midwest to use as a sort of PDHing center to forward S2 - and S1.

S2-INFILTRATE PDH SUBJECTS: This operation, which can easily be prevented by judicious and "no Q&A use of the E-Meter, uses the technique revealed in Walter Broward's book "Operation Mind Control" to make unsuspecting agents who enturbulate orgs, report on happenings, and generally stop and hinder expansion., These victims are given a complete 7-layer implant with "cover stories", and are protected by the S1 people and re-done if needed by the S3 people. They may appear very bright and scintillating on the surface and will elicit sympathy if caught in a destructive act but will go into a "blank daze" on asking if an "engram has been restimulated" or on trying to do upper OT levels.

S1-INFILTRATE TAKEOVER TEAM: Finally, the Key Scenario, the one which all the others cover, confuse, and make seem incredible. A rough quote from an FBI memorandum obtained through the Freedom of Information Act in 1978 will state it very well: "To infiltrate the Church and move our agents up to Board of Director positions. We must also prevent the spread of Scientology to China and Japan as it is so similar to Bhuddism it would spread like wildfire". The S1 agents and their outside operators are the professionals, long term and willing to stay inside and take over the show. They often will introduce each other in, cover for one another, protect S2, S3, and S4 people, and cut and covertly twist command intention so that S5 losses occur, S6 losses occur, and S7 counter-actions by loyal people are unsuccessful and even get the loyal person into ethics trouble for trying. The current purges in the Church of all the old-timer loyal Scientologists were started by these agents (so the overt takeover will be smooth and without resistance), and are carried out by PTS lower execs to "stay out of trouble".

These agents are very smooth, have influence, run a "fear of losing the Bridge" control operation to keep loyal Scientologists in line, and have taken part in Black PR, falsifying records and stats, and from fear of discovery and exposure will quickly and efficiently attempt to dispose of anyone who gets close to the truth by ordering them Comm-Eved, declared PTS Type III, declared SP, or if really persistent, assassinated by outside agents so it looks "accidental" or turned over to S5 Doctors for a slow-kill tumor or rare disease injection. The favorite way an S1 agent discredits any accusations is to say the accuser is "hallucinating" (using a real Scientology term like "dub-in" is considered bad form). Anyone can know these through study and application of 1.1 characteristics on the Chart of Attitudes and the Data Series. A true Scientologist if accused of being an agent would merely ask for the source of the data and consent to a Sec Check, along with one for the accuser, by an LRH trained auditor. (Has anyone noticed how many LRH trained auditors have been declared in the last year?)

S1 people will also alter or cut comm to LRH or MSH, give an incredible show of their own status and power, and usually forget their basics (like ARC). They cannot conceive of the Code of Honor at all.

End Phenomenon

The EP of the "Ramrod" Model and its 7 Scenarios is a giving over of the Church by the "Board of Directors" to the agency or group designated by the also-scenario-controlled-Government as a "Receiver". This is supposed to occur as a result of the pressure from "Public Opinion" (S7), economic insolvency (S6), legal opinion and judgement (S5), criminal actions (S5 helped by S4), and other "reasonable" reasons. No word will be said about S3, S2, and S1 or that they even exist.

To make VERY sure there is no reaction from other Churches in the USA (Violation of First Amendment rights used to be a treasonous crime, but as you may have read, "None dare call it...."), the latest Black PR line in S7 is: "It's all just Science Fiction, not really a Church".

We Came Back!

The data above is brought to you courtesy of your planetary OT Project teams. If there are any additions or corrections you have, please send them to your nearest OT Project Base where they will be investigated.

The Future

The future is up to all of us. Our postulates create it. Our postulates are much more powerful than computer models and scenarios. You can insist on LRH Policy, especially Justice Policy, being used in your area. It is your responsibility as well as ours to keep Scientology free, available to all, and totally nonpolitical.

Handling of the Model and Scenarios revealed in this issue and the Operators and Agents carrying them out will be the subject of subsequent BPI Sector Operations Bulletins and Sector Ethics Orders.

Whether we achieve the freedoms long sought - for so many millenia, or become the slaves of those who would pervert our dreams and future, depends on each of us. Individual responsibility and integrity is the key. In the past what was known to be right was forsaken, but at this point in the game we can now achieve our freedom for all eternity by following only the road to truth and justice. And the enemy will wither... - and blow away.

is hereby declared:

SUPPRESSIVE

He and his fellow suppressive government agent EDDIE WALTERS, (who was involved in the cover-up of the murder of Quentin Hubbard) are key figures in the attack on the Church of Scientology and its related organizations.

They have testified against the Church in US courts.

NIBS has been positioned as the inheritor and receiver of Scientology in the current PROGNOS AG of Basel Switzerland Scenario No. 1 on Church takeover.

He believes he is operating on his own determinism, but has been subject to PDH technique since 1960 when he blew from the Washington D Org at the urging of agent provocateur and PDHer NINA WEST. (Reference: HCOB 19 Jan 60 "Casualties", p. 11 Vol IV, Tech Volumes, and HCOB 9 Feb 60 "Cancellation of Certs", p. 30 Vol IV, Tech Volumes.)

He was given money by the Founder on the promise never to interfere with the Church and he has betrayed that trust.

He has recently come under the direct influence of the infamous SUPPRESSIVE implanter known as XENU, subject of Sector Ethics Order No. 1 (written in 1967 by Elron Elray, SC) listing his crimes and high crimes in this Sector, and warning all to report his whereabouts to HCO as a SUPPRESSIVE BEING.

This Ethics Order has been approved for enforcement in 1982 by the Galactic Patrol and all members are urged to do so. Xenu, since escaping from his imprisonment, has been active on Planet Earth for many years, most recently inhabiting the body of Joseph Strasburg of Basel, Switzerland, the source of political, economic, and anti-Scientology computer scenarios designed to bankrupt countries, control nations, and wipe out any technology that can undo or prevent implanting. He has been successful in the past of being too incredible to be found out. He has now been exposed and his game is over. His influence over NIBS HUBBARD and the Church is now at an end. There are too many ethical OT's who know him and all his covert tricks which have been suppressing individuals and mankind for eons.

NIBS is to confess his overts to an authorized Patrol Member and be handled by a competent auditor to remove the PDH influence and DE-PTS him. He is then to do his Ethics Conditions fully, including amends, under the supervision of a Loyal Officer.

The being XENU is to do the following as his first acts of contrition:

1) Cancel the entire Model and 7 Scenarios being run on the Church.

2) Turn over his Joseph Strasburg lines to an authorized Patrol Member.

3) Begin his Lower Conditions and Suppressive Person handling under the supervision of an authorized Patrol Member.

Modelists and Scenario Makers

(See Sector Ops Bu 12 "Models and Scenarios" for the background to this Operations Bulletin.)

"Scientology, the Final Handling"

Since the publication of Sector Operations Bulletin No. 12 "Models and Scenarios", a great deal of information has become available. None has contradicted the data of "Models and Scenarios" although there is a slight change in the final objective: instead of immediately driving the Church of Scientology into receivership, it was decided at a meeting in September 1983, held in Washington D, to allow the Church to continue operating for the "select few" under the direction of its infiltrated agent and chairman of the board, Alan Hubbert and its "monitored beings" of RTC, D. Miscaviage and P. Broker (and aliases).

The precise "final handling" instructions of course did not originate in Washington D, but in Basel, Switzerland, from Herr J. himself. They were given to his deputy for the United States, Paul Volker, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and laid out at a meeting in the Office of the Secretary of the Treasury, Donald Regan. Also present were top representatives of the FBI, Justice Department and IRS. All, of course, robotically agreed to comply with the instructions from Switzerland and did so. Thus, in late September '83, the news article appeared in which the IRS gave the Church 3 more years to "handle" its tax situation.

To fully understand the strategy behind these actions and indeed the whole model run on the Church and covered in Sector Ops Bu 12, it is necessary to bring forth more of the background data on the individuals responsible - i.e. the Modelists and Scenario Makers. Who are they? What is their track? What is their ultimate objective? And who is this Herr J., who seems to (and actually does) issue orders that affect the entire world, its religions, politics, and economics?

Games - Levels of Play

To fully grasp what is and has been occurring on Earth, it is necessary to realize that life is basically a game with freedoms, barriers, and purposes. Also, that it is played at several levels concurrently. These are larger and larger spheres of control and influence, as every OT becomes aware of when expanding his viewpoint.

Also, when viewing one's whole track, it is usually clear that the further one goes back, the larger the game appears, until far far back, thetans were exterior, fun-loving beings, who actually mocked up whole games involving planets, forms, colors, sounds and lots of action and sensation.

To deny that higher level games are going on in the present time is only an admission of how far such a person having this viewpoint has come down the spiral. Such a person's reality level, confront level, ethics level and overall responsibility level are just not up to it. Such people thus remain at effect of any such game. Indeed, they become mere robotic pawns or broken pieces as far as the players of such games are concerned and they are totally incapable of affecting it in any way whatsoever. This the position or condition that anyone who denies you knowledge or tries to keep you from "finding out for yourself" intends you to be in! So, in the remainder of this bulletin if you find data of a game level you never ever suspected, please realize that the data has been actively kept from you in the past by the perpetrators of these models and scenarios. Modelists and scenario makers are very secretive persons.

Game Level - Planetary Control

There is a game going on for planetary control. It has been going on actively for hundreds of years. This is not the game of Communism versus Capitalism, East versus West or Catholics versus Heretics or Islam versus Infidels. Those games and others like them are tailor made "red herrings" and are well publicized and used by modelists and scenario makers to seem like the biggest, most attention grabbing, problematic, dangerous, involved, revelatory, expensive, fearful and significant games and conflicts around.

People "believe" in them, live and die in them, hate them, love them, try to escape from them, etc. They are very "real" and continually made to seem so by constant media coverage.

However, the planetary control game remains hidden behind the glitter and blare of the latest social, political, religious, and scientific "news".

Penetration

When one attempts to penetrate the morass of misinformation, false information and controlled release of "secret exposes" and other tantalizing bits abounding on this planet, it is mandatory to be well versed in and have no misunderstoods on the Data Series Policy Letters. Otherwise an investigator or "questing spirit" soon finds himself in one of the "cul-de-sacs" - traps set up exactly for that purpose: to dead-end any investigator.

(There is also a standard "handling" for any one who does manage to successfully penetrate the "mystery", which will be covered later.)

Following is a partial list of dead-end, cul-de-sac groups, which either have been created by the players of planetary control or have been infiltrated and taken over by them in the last 200 years:

Intention

To successfully break through the confusions and false data proliferating on Earth, one must be able to observe "intentions". To be able to observe intention one must realize there is always a source of intention, which is of course a being, thetan, "spiritual self" or source of life.

The intention of a leader of a group will be "felt" all the way through the organization. It may be amplified, dimmed, altered or hidden at any point but by checking enough data and interviewing enough members of a group, it will become quite clear.

For analyzing of the Planetary Control Game and tracing intention lines to the perpetrators, the following "intentions" were used as "homing beacons". The intention to:

1. Suppress Pro-Survival Ideas
2. Suppress Economics & Exchange
3. Suppress truth
4. Enforce conformity
5. Control thought
6. Suppress the true spiritual nature of man
7. Prevent Expansion
8. Inhibit Survival
9. Reduce people's space and freedom
10. Collect and use personal data for monitoring and control purposes
11. Take over any "free" or other groups which pose a threat
12. Invalidate opinion leaders not under their control
13. Use Secrecy for power
14. Handle affairs and people with "covert hostility" as a "policy"

Tracing the above intentions to and thru the organizations listed previously, anyone can find the perpetrators of planetary suppression.

They operate from Basel, Switzerland. Using Computer Models and Scenarios, they keep the world in a state of fear and confusion.

Purposes & Hats

To fully understand how the planetary control game players operate, it is not enough to know the names of their current bodies. One must also understand their purposes and hats in the game.

The overall purpose or goal is: "Total One-World domination and Control".

A senior policy is: "The end justifies the means".

Hatting materials or policy for the top players include the following: "As 'The end justifies the means' one can lie and spread lies about any honest man who may be against us, even the ones who might be an obstacle one day. You can thrust them aside, poison them, murder them, etc. In short whatever you need to do to help the great purpose. In case you are discovered in murdering someone, you then commit suicide - put the bullet thru your own head - so that you are immediately out of reach of the law. No king can protect the person who betrays us. A court will be called on any betrayer and if found guilty, he will be decreed to die".

Policy for executives below the top includes the following: For the secret, behind the scenes, power executive: "Keep out of sight, never be in the public eye. But, keep your eyes on all the churches and religions who may pose a threat to our purposes. Work out ways secretly to weaken and destroy them in the eyes of the world. Or devise ways to take them over secretly for the benefit of our Order. Also watch carefully over our own Order and report anyone who might stray from the purpose or betray us."

And for the "out front" political or power executive: "Cultivate an attitude of knowing wisdom. Be quiet, unselfish, humble. Use 'please' when giving orders. Be refined so that, when giving a smiling reprimand, it cuts like a knife. Remember, intelligence wins, so run those below you so they don't 'feel' the yoke."

"Methods of control of 'humans' are uncountable, use them all in such a way as to be useful for our purposes. Secrets are wonderful as a control method, so keep the mystery going."

"High connections help to control our lines of operation. So drop names as being 'one of us'."

"Never show weakness, but you can always put the picture that you are 'weak' where you have firm control. Where we don't have control, put the picture that we are strong and feared."

"Study women. Say they are beautiful and praise them. They carry influence with men and children and can be very useful to our purpose."

"Influence the thinking of children and young people thru schools. Also take great care to control book suppliers and publishers. Should a writer put in a book things which do not fit in our plan, try to get him on our own side or ruin his reputation and get rid of him."

"Take over charitable organizations so we appear to be 'serving humanity' and thus be unassailable by anyone."

"Our shapes must be changed so we 'fit' into society. If only the purpose is to be achieved, it is unimportant as to what 'cover' it comes in. And a cover is always needed, because being secretly operating hidden from view makes a big part of our power. That's why one should always use the name of another organization to cover ours. For instance the Free Masons are a good cover for our secret 'higher' purposes because the world is used to them."

"Cut any affinity lines to leaders of opinion which deviate from ours so they do not get public support and devotion. Put out the story and reinforce it by evidence and examples that 'they are only humans, make mistakes, are just like everyone else', etc."

"To make our own people known, use all our resources to make them a good reputation. Praise them loudly in all our cover organizations and in the press."

"Keep secrecy about everything, but don't appear in doubt. Answer questions with total certainty - but carefully - so as not to give away anything. Occasionally you can test your juniors by putting the picture there that you are speaking 'freely' and 'slip' out some information - that you actually want to be known or is unimportant - so they trust you, and you see if they can be trusted or not. Otherwise, answer as little as possible to juniors. On big operations, consult your senior."

"Remember also that the name of Science societies are a very beautiful mask to keep our intentions hidden from the uneducated and the lower classes. It can be used if anyone finds out about our secret meetings - we can always answer that we meet secretly for "scientific research'."

"It is very important to study every aspect and organizational form of every other secret society and religion. Only in this way can we rule them."

"Keep those below you in mystery as to who the real boss is so they will think 'anyone could be'."

"Publishers, bookstores, news media, schools, academies, military schools and all organizations who influence the government and education should be watched and controlled and you should continually make secret plans to take them over. Keep looking for everything we can use for our 'perfect human government'."

"Whatever is not good for our Order should remain an eternal secret."

Finally, for the Controlling executives in each planetary zone and area:

"You should know the whole system as if you had invented it. You train and instruct and give approvals to plans and operations of the 'secret' and 'open' power executives. You are above them all."

"You must be born in the area you control. You work full time on our purpose but not in the open or on a public post. You give the 'apparency' of being 'retired' or just doing 'hobbies'. In other words, you are using a totally safe, harmless, unremarkable cover apparently connected to nothing at all."

"You should always be in the place that you can most easily control from. You will get a new secret name when appointed. Your old secret name will be given to another. You are now above your old position and your new secret name will be only known to your seniors."

"You use your power to support all that is good for our Order and suppress all that is bad for our Order."

"Appear to have no enemies and never tolerate nepotism."

"If you misuse the power, remember, we have the possibilities and devices for punishing you. If you use it well, you will be given money, land, services and other rewards."

Methods of Spiritual Control

The "devices" mentioned in the preceding paragraph are actually high frequency wave generators that can transmit intention over a distance. They are used to cause people to have "accidents", to think they are "crazy" and to restimulate people's banks. Following is a description of the most common types in "secret" use:

1. The Tepaphone - A high frequency wave generator that affects the mental masses around a person's body. It is used with intention behind it. It is portable and has a range of 50 to 100 meters. It can change valences and can be used to implant pictures and suggestions. It can be used very effectively in combination with hypnosis and drugs. It was invented in 1956 by Johannis Older. Its existence and use is kept a closely guarded secret by the planetary control game players.

2. The Eckhoff Telepathyzing Machine - Based on a patent by Nikolai Tesla and developed by Eckhoff, the telepathyzing machine has a larger range than the Tepaphone. It has however a similar effect and gives both mental and physical reactions. It is used to implant thoughts over a distance, again by influencing the masses and entities around a thetan and his body.

3. The High Frequency Flows Machine - Developed since 1971, another machine based on a Tesla patent, the idea here being to narrow the beam and concentrate it over a very long distance so that it can be effective for transmitting intention via satellite. Purpose: identical to the former two machines - that of implanting thoughts and suggestions over a distance.

The machines above are only effective if the victim is not aware that there are such machines in daily use on Earth and believes that when "beamed" on by one, it is really his own case and thus interiorizing his attention and misowning the effect and getting the full impact of it.

Actually TR O (confront) can handle any of these machines and their operators. No effect will be felt by a person aware enough to spot what is happening and just confront it. If he also drives an intention back over the beam toward the operator, the effect will be on the operator, who will quickly turn off the machine or go play elsewhere.

The "Eternal" Secrets of the Players

As you may have noticed while reading the previous paragraphs there are several questions which may be asked:

Q 1. Are the players aware that they are not bodies but immortal beings?

A 1. Yes.

Q 2. Have they been the same players operating through a series of bodies and keeping the game going for the last several hundred years?

A 2. Yes.

Q 3. Is this one of their "eternal" secrets?

A 3. Yes.

Q 4. Is there then some "secret" purpose behind the "total one-world domination and control" purpose?

A 4. Yes.

Q 5. Could it be that these "players" are not from Earth at all but merely regard humans as a race to be subjected and enslaved?

A 5. Yes.

Q 6. Is this another of their "eternal" secrets?

A 6. Yes.

Q 7. Is then the "secret" purpose the purpose to take over control of Earth for the benefit of some other star system?

A 7. Yes.

Q 8. Would this by any chance be the same type of beings the late son of the Founder used to refer to in his lectures; the status oriented, total control maintaining, conformity requiring beings known as the Markabians? The ones that have 7 planets out toward Polaris?

A 8. Yes.

Q 9. Is this another of the "eternal" secrets, that is, that Earth is being subjugated to the Markabians who are trying to make it Planet 8?

A 9. Yes.

Q 10. Are the Markabians also in favor of implanting and thought control and drugs and propaganda to keep populations conforming and under control?

A 10. Yes.

Q 11. Are they now putting in their form of mind-control government as the "solution" to the wars-pollution-terrorism-catastrophies scenarios that they created as the "problems" which have gripped the world with fear and apathy?

A 11. Yes.

Q 12. But aren't there some Markabians who want a safe, sane productive, peaceful planet - a free one not under control?

A 12. Yes.

Q 13. Then, there must be conflict and non-conformity and betrayal even amongst the Markabians, is that correct?

A 13. Yes.

Q 14. Would this account for some notable political assassinations, bankruptcies and power plays even amongst the insiders?

A 14. Yes.

Q 15. The group currently in control in Basel must then be the ones who favor implanting and mind control, since it continues unabated since the Church of Scientology got taken over and in fact is evident even in the Church, is that correct?

A 15. Yes.

Q 16. This Herr J. who was mentioned in Models and Scenarios then must be the Chief proponent of the implanter faction, correct?

A 16. Yes.

Q 17. Is he the being Ron refers to as "Xenu" in the "Revolt in the Stars" film and III materials, the being, who ordered the nuclear blasting of Earth 75 million years ago?

A 17. Yes.

Q 18. Then he must have escaped from his imprisonment and taken a position with the Markabians to subjugate Earth for their use, right?

A 18. Yes.

Q 19. Are the Markabians and Xenu subject to any higher game level control or influence which could help get Earth out of the situation it's in? I mean, it's no fun looking forward to a future of being a slave on a slave planet, controlled by implants, drugs and computers. There must be some beings who can do something about it. Am I right?

A 19. Yes.

Q 20. Is it this group I've been hearing about, who can handle this mess and act and get the people of Earth to wake up and choose their own destiny as citizens of a Free Zone planet taking its place in the society of the Galactic Civilization and playing a survival, expansion, flourish and prosper, fun game called "The New Civilization Game". - Is not it the group known as the Galactic Patrol?

A 20. Yes.

Game Level - Galactic and Sector Operations

Treating our galaxy as a large flattened disc, one can imagine it divided into slices like a pie with the lines of "cutting" radiating from a central circle.

The center circle is named SECTOR 0 or "Central".

The sliced wedge-shaped Sectors are further divided by slicing them horizontally thru the middle of the fat disc.

Twelve wedge-shaped Sectors (of odd numbers) are on the "top" of this disc and twelve Sectors (of even numbers) are on the "bottom" of this disc. (Remember, there is really no "up" or "down" in space so this is purely for convention.)

This pattern makes a way to coordinate and patrol the galaxy with back-up assistance in adjoining Sectors never too far away. In fact, by this pattern every Sector has six adjacent Sectors (including Central) for coordination purposes and back-up in case of need.

The Sector containing Sol, Earth, the Solar System, Markab, and many other civilized planetary systems is - SECTOR 9.

Historical

Sector 9 history is of importance and interest to any sentient beings living in it. It helps explain why Earth has been shut off for so many millenia and only recently has become a candidate for re-admission to the Galactic Civilizations.

In fact, Earth has passed through several stages officially since being destroyed by atomic and hydrogen nuclear bombs and made radioactive 75 million years ago.

The inches-thick layer of dust produced by the catastrophe containing radioactive decay elements is well known by Geologists who find it in preserved rock strata, but who have no explanation for it other than "intensive volcanic activity about 70 million years ago". (Methods of use in geological dating are not as accurate as E-Meters yet.)

After the catastrophe, Earth was declared by the Galactic Confederation to be "OFF LIMITS" and a "RESTRICTED ZONE".

Over the millenia, official Galactic agencies such as the Biological Survey, the Planetary Survey, the Galactic Survey, and other Scientific and Administrative organizations have observed, tested, explored, and finally seeded the planet with new life forms. Most of these forms were transported from other planets in the Sector with similar environments. They finally survived here on Earth as a stable flora and fauna after the radioactivity levels died down to normal and mutation was not a big problem.

Although the continents "drifted" apart rather rapidly in the eons following the catastrophe and were no longer in the same relationship to each other, attempts were made to duplicate the conditions existing previously. Thus, in the southern half of Africa, which had been a wildlife park, we today find many strange and varied species such as Zebras, Giraffes, Hippos, Ibex, Elephants, etc., which obviously could not have all "evolved" there, as this extreme variety occurs nowhere else on the planet.

About a million years ago, it was deemed the correct time to put higher organism forms on Earth, so that the spiritual beings still trapped on the planet in varying degrees of shock and disorientation could find sentient bodies to occupy and begin the long, slow climb back to Civilization.

Since at the time of the catastrophe there were many representatives of other planetary races on Earth (it had been a beautiful tourist-vacation type planet with large jewelled cities supporting a population of billions), initial stocks of all body types were transported to Earth and became what we know today as the various "races of man".

After the rudiments of survival were established and group and political activity began - about 10,000 to 20,000 years ago - it become apparent that higher instruction was needed as the inhabitants were constantly dramatizing their aberrations and fears by wars, racial vendettas, and a general tendency to destroy all that had been so laboriously created to help them survive and prosper.

Civilized beings from various Galactic Organizations volunteered to do "missions" on Earth, take human bodies and teach. Philosophy, Art, Science and Religion received great impetus from these programs.

About 3500 years ago, an Honorary Grand Council Member and Galactic Patrol Commander of Sector 9, Elron Elray proposed a project to be done on Earth which would both bring it to a level of technological advancement and teach Mankind about his basic Spiritual Nature (Theta Endowment) so that he could develop a civilization capable and sane enough to be rejoined to the Galactic Community.

The first attempt at this was called on Earth - Buddhism, for which Elron Elray took the human form of Gautama Siddartha. It resulted in a civilizing influence still felt today in over one-half the world's population.

Through the centuries, many other 'missionaires' and volunteers helped spread civilization and technology against the reactive onslaught of warlike tribes and evil-intentioned leaders who took over and suppressed civilized groups.

The Markabian Gambit

About 250 years ago, the off-planet Markabians got into the act in a big way (there had been earlier attempts by them) by authorizing secretly (without Grand Council approval) a take-over project to get control of Earth and when it became acceptable in the Galactic Community, to have it annex itself to the Markabian system as the 8th major planet. Their clandestine agent, the infamous Xenu (see Sector Ethics Order 1A for details), took the body of Adam Weishaupt, the founder of the "Illuminati", a super-secret society which went about taking over other power groups by infiltration and economic coercion. The first big advance that was made was Xenu's take-over of a body in the Rothschild banking family so that after the War of 1812, the Illuminati became very wealthy and could in fact control many economic lines.

A succession of taking key power-point bodies into the 20th Century and expanding secret-society influence has resulted in the control of the groups listed in Sector Operations Bulletin No 18.

In the last 50 years, 200,000 Markabian "junior executives" have been clandestinely immigrated to Earth (again without Grand Council approval) to assist Xenu and his conspirators in the planetary take-over. They have taken over bodies of the key "insiders" of high-finance, banking, politics, industry, and the "secret societies" previously mentioned. Markabians are recognizable by their spiritual "blackness" and their "black-beam" flows. Also a lust for status and control and for enforcing "conformity" on others are typical Markabian characteristics.

Markabians try to control or suppress the development of ideas which are necessary to fuel a civilization. By also tightly controlling and suppressing economics, energy sources, and food production and distribution they regulate (or attempt to) the survival of business, industry and human beings.

Markabians are very good record-keepers and use the control mechanisms of identity cards, secret files, computer files, and paperwork to keep full track of their subject people. Their "ideal" government is somewhere between the Russian "overt" police-state and the Swedish "covert" police-state. (If you don't conform, it suddenly gets very overt.)

Markabians don't think like Earth-people or Galactic missionaires. They have no concept of loyalty, honesty or justice, and will in fact fight viciously among themselves (out of sight of the public of course) for control and status.

Excellent examples of their attitudes and methods are given in Sector Operations Bulletin No 12 "Models and Scenarios", which are used to take over groups who pose a threat to them. Another typical Markabian tactic is the control of both sides and the middle and then having their controlled media constantly assert that these are the only alternatives, thus gradually corralling all free-thought and political persuasions. See the list of taken-over and created groups in Sector Operations Bulletin No 18, which embrace "left" and "right" wing and "center" political groups.

The "authoritarian false datum" is another Markabian mind-control trick used to hide or cover their real intentions and actions. Thus people are made to believe that they are "bodies" who only live one lifetime, while the Markabians plan their actions over several lifetimes and have secret procedures for switching from one body to the next, chosen for its position and influence.

An important "authoritarian false datum" to anyone on an economic level is the propaganda put out by Markabians that "Gold is just another commodity like wheat, beans or pigs", while they have been amassing huge stocks of it in their banks. Markabians know that gold is a valued currency in Galactic trade and exchange, and when Earth is again free to communicate and trade with its neighbors, the Markabians will have nearly all the wealth.

Many otherwise good, honest, and helpful people have been over the years "brainwashed" into the Markabian thought patterns, and socially operate on the same level in terms of status and conformity, at least. Many persons in the "taken-over" groups have no concept of what goes on at the top. It's all secret.

Recent Developments in Sector 9

Within the last 50 years there have been several very important developments concerning the Project for Earth:

Scientology and Dianetics

L. Ron Hubbard, body name of Sector Commander Elron Elray, finished the research and development of the ultimate technical and workable sciences of the spirit and mind, designed to lift the awareness and abilities of all Mankind to that of Galactic Civilizations and beyond. In fact, the technology of Scientology and Dianetics is so valuable to all sentient beings in the Universe, it will be highly in demand off-planet throughout the Galaxy.

The Markabians tried to get control of this resource for many years as it was a definite threat of their plan for total domination and control of Earth: People in Scientology and Dianetics can easily become aware of the real game on both Planetary and Sector level. Through certain training drills they become immune to Markabian devices such as Tepaphones and Eckhoff Telepathizers.

They become adept at telepathy and investigation and can expose Markabian secrets. Training in Ethics and Logic gives them the power to see right through control operations, models & scenarios, and "Authoritarian false datums" and thus not be fooled. And most importantly, they can take responsibility and lead others out of traps, and to more survival and expansion, mentally and spiritually.

The Markabian attempts to control Scientology and Dianetics are well covered in Omar Garrison s books, "Dirty Tricks", and "The Hidden Story of Scientology" and in Sector Operations Bulletin No 12 "Models and Scenarios". Although the top management of the Church of Scientology was taken over by the Markabian "Operation Ramrod" in 1981, the thousands of Loyal Scientologists (Loyal to L. Ron Hubbard and his Planetary Civilizing Project) who left or were purged from the Church, quickly set up "Free Zone" Scientology and Dianetics.

The Non-Interference Decree

The NON-INTERFERENCE DECREE on Sector 9 was received on Earth on the 29th April 1982 at 1200 GMT. It states, (as relayed from Mainship, Sector 9):

"The stars in this Sector are under a Non-Interference Decree from Galactic Central - Grand Council. The stipulations of the decree are:

1. No interference is permitted in the zone known as Sector Nine until further notice.

2. This decree is to be enforced by the Galactic Patrol.

3. There shall be no use of atomic, chemical, or biological weapons in the zone

4. Travel to and from the zone is regulated and shall be subject to verification of intent and escort by the Patrol.

5. The technical and ethical experiment in progress by Sector Commander Elron Elray is not to be interfered with in any way whatsoever as it is extremely vital to the future of the Galaxy and its inhabitants.

6. The Ethics Order by Commander Elray on the being Xenu, currently Joseph Strasburg, alias "Herr J." or "Mister J." of Germany/Switzerland banking circles, declaring him Suppressive, is to be enforced.

7. It is to be understood that this is a controlled and protected Sector until further notice.

8. Communications to and from Sector 9 shall be routed through Galactic Central-Ambassadorial Section and final authority in cases of dispute shall be held by the Grand Council.

By order of the Grand Council

GALACTIC CENTRAL

The purpose of this Decree was (and is, as it is still in force) to try and halt the interference in the Civilizing Project by unauthorized extraterrestrial and terrestrial groups such as the Markabians (who already had over 200,000 of their own citizens operating on Earth) and others.

Although not fully complied with yet, the decree has forced the Markabians to change their Atomic, Biological and Chemical warfare scenarios back to conventional weapons again. They would be subject to severe penalties against their other ? planets by the Grand Council if they violate this point.

Also the Decree has prevented other outside interference in the affairs of Earth of an overt nature, although covert contacts still exist.

The "technical and ethical experiment" of Point No 5 refers, of course, to Scientology and Dianetics. The decree came too late to prevent the take-over of the Church of Scientology by the Markabian "Operation Ramrod", but it is now providing a protective basis for the ethical experiment of comparing how the science works under tightly controlled suppressive conditions (Markab) as opposed to how it works in a free, coordinated environment (The Free Zone). The results are already conclusive. Scientology and Dianetics are flourishing and prospering in the Free Zone (outside the Church), while the Markabian controlled management of the Church has depleted over half its reserves and have it spiraling down to bankruptcy. The Free Zone Loyal Scientologists are already planning to take the Church back over from the Markabians. The Ethics Order on the being "Xenu" mentioned in Point No 6 has been kept secret by the taken-over Scientology Organizations, thus an updated issue has been released as Sector Ethics Order 1A. Xenu was the perpetrator of the nuclear ravaging of Earth 75 million years ago, and is now operating as the clandestine agent for Markab in their attempt to totally control and dominate Planet Earth. Refer to the updated Ethics Order itself for further details.

The Free Zone Decree

The FREE ZONE DECREE was received on Earth on the 10th of November 1982 at 1030 GMT. It states, (as relayed from Mainship, Sector 9):

Official Decree - Galactic Grand Council

1. The planet known as Teegeeack - local dialect "Earth" or Terra - Sun 12, Sector 9, is hereby declared a Free Zone.

2. No political interference in its affairs from any other part of the Sector or Galaxy will be tolerated.

3. No economic interference in its affairs will be tolerated from any non-planetary agency or power.

4. All of its inhabitants are hereby declared Free Zone Citizens and free of external political or economic interference.

5. The regulating agency of this decree is the Galactic Patrol Sector 9, Sector Commander Elron Elray and his designated representatives.

6. The planet is henceforth under the Sole Auspices of the Galactic Patrol, Sector 9, for coordination with Galactic and Sector Affairs and for compliance with this decree.

7. The Technical and Ethical experiments in progress on Teegeeack are not affected by this decree and are to continue under the auspices of the Galactic Patrol, Sector 9.

8. This Decree is issued by unanimous vote of the Grand Council.

GRAND COUNCIL CHAIRMAN

FOR ALL MEMBERS

SECTOR O

GALAXY 1

Elron Elray, having successfully recorded for posterity all the knowledge and technology he had discovered, researched, and developed concerning the mind, spirit, and man's relationship to the universe; and observing that ethical beings were being produced by the use of the technology on Earth, was then instrumental in getting the Free Zone Decree passed unanimously by the Grand Council changing the status of Earth from "RESTRICTED ZONE" to "FREE ZONE". The decree made all the inhabitants of Earth (including the illegally immigrated Markabians) Free Zone Citizens, free of any political and economic interference. Thus the Markabian off-planet control and communication lines were cut, and are presently under constant surveillance by the Galactic Patrol to prevent violations of the decree.

Most importantly, with the Free Zone Decree came the opportunity for the inhabitants of Earth to decide their own destiny. The definition of a Free Zone Planet is: "One that may choose its own political or economic affiliation or choose to remain independent and represented thusly in the Grand Council. Such choices to be made in suitable referendum of its populations after representative chosen leaders of the various subgroups of its populations have engaged in free testimony and discussion of the merits and shortcomings of each proposed course of action. The planet shall remain Free Zone until such referendum is correctly and ethically held. A free Zone Planet is under the auspices of the Galactic Patrol Authority of the Sector in which it is situated, their authority limited to their purpose and the definition herein stated."

The purpose of the Galactic Patrol is: "TO GUARANTEE THAT CIVILIZATION CONTINUES TO FLOURISH AND PROSPER WITHOUT DISTURBANCE WHILE ALLOWING THE GREATEST POSSIBLE FREEDOM TO THE INDIVIDUAL".

The New Civilization Game

With the advent of the Free Zone Decree, it became possible for Earth to freely decide its own future. With this in mind, an alternative to the Markabian future planned for Earth was needed. The NEW CIVILIZATION GAME is such an alternative. It is based on the definite advantages which would be gained by Earth becoming an independent planet with its own representation at Galactic Central on the Grand Council.

The NEW CIVILIZATION GAME (as printed for distribution) begins with the definition of a civilization:

"A civilization is an economic engine that runs on ideas and whose products are: Survival of its dynamic components and Expansion of its knowledge, responsibility and control; its affinity, reality and communication; its matter, energy, space and time; its ethics, technology, and administration. When ideas or its economics are suppressed it goes negative, contracts, and wastes or destroys its dynamic components. Its dynamic components are: people, families, groups, businesses, organizations, governments, races, species, animal and plant life, physical environment, energy sources, spaces and time, ideas, spiritual values, beings, religions, aesthetics and art, and its codes of behavior and ethics".

It continues: "The rescue of a dying civilization is accomplished by: Locating and identifying the suppressive influences; Supplying a positive alternative; Disseminating it as a vector of comparable magnitude; Stably financing it; Keeping its positive production and exchange free and unregulated; Reviewing and correcting as needed to increase its power; Distributing its values and aesthetics broadly; and Responsibly evaluating, planning, and coordinating the survival and expansion of its components."

The NEW CIVILIZATION GAME was composed and started on Earth in 1983.

The Future

From historical and recent developments in Sector 9 concerning Earth, it becomes possible to extrapolate the future of the planet in two ways:

Markabian Model for your Future

Investigations of models and scenarios for the years 1984 to 1991 has revealed what the Markabians have in store for the "humans" of Planet Earth.

The current master MODEL and its various SCENARIOS is to run from 1984 to 1991 at which time it is expected that Earth will overwhelmingly vote to become affiliated politically and economically with the Markab Confederation, that is, become Planet 8 of their controlled, conforming, police-state civilization.

In the near future (1984), they plan to have a Markabian political leader as head of the European Parliament in Strasbourg, France. This post is not publicly voted. Its occupant is chosen by political representatives of the European Nations who are nearly all under control by one of the groups listed in Sector Operations Bulletin No 18.

Opinion leaders in each country including the USA are being heavily touted and built up by the controlled press from the fields of Science, Philosophy, and Letters. These non-political opinion leaders will all say that the President of the European Parliament is their opinion leader - at the appropriate time.

Also in 1984 the Markabians are working flat-out to defeat President Reagan (USA) and Prime Minister Thatcher (UK) who both oppose excessive control. A crash of the dollar is planned with gold rising to 700 US or more.

A big "conventional weapons" war is planned for the Middle East in 1985. The "war" will get the Revelationists and other religions into an uproar about the "end of the world" as foretold in Revelations, the Bible Book. To further scare everyone, there will also be threats of the use of Atomic, Biological, and Chemical weapons - though none will be used (except maybe secretly or accidentally as they are being used today).

At this time the whole world will be in fear and confusion and looking for a "stable datum". Markabian political leaders will press for more "controls and emergency measures". Freedoms still existing will be abrogated. The Markabian World Bankers will fluctuate currencies wildly. The media will cry "doom" but advise everyone to "be calm". The One-World Police State will arrive and even be welcomed by those who have learned to desire control and conformity. Yet there will still be war and unrest and fear.

Then the "stable datum" will appear - as a communication from an extra-terrestrial civilization (Markab) offering friendship, peace, new technology, trade, and economic and political alignment. This message will be scientifically obtained - maybe through a radio or biological telescope receiver.

The message will be given to the President of the European Parliament who will thereafter "act" as the official communication relay point between Markab and Earth. The previously prepared national opinion leaders will say "Momentous occasion, etc. Listen to him. He is wise, etc.".

He will propose an end to the war to consider this great chance for Man, and the World Bankers who financed it will withdraw their offers to lend money and sell arms. The war will stop.

A press and media campaign will begin for "everyone" to support the alignment to Markab. Anyone saying "Lets stay independent" will be sharply criticized, and all the wars, troubles, etc. (Scenarios) that have just happened on Earth will be brought up to show that Earth can't make it on its own.

Religious leaders, especially those in taken-over Churches, will enthusiastically support joining Markab to prevent the Apocalypse.

Discussions will be held. A world vote will be taken (as if its the idea of the President of the European Parliament instead of a Grand Council Decree). And if the referendum passes to join Markab, Earth loses its freedom and its chance for an exciting, expanding future. It will become a slave planet and subject again to the same being, Xenu, who destroyed it 75 million years ago.

The Alternative Future

The NEW CIVILIZATION GAME is the alternative. It keeps Earth free from external control and gives it a free exchange with other Galactic Civilizations.

It contains purposes every sane person can pursue ethically. Some of these purposes are:

"To actively put our Home Planet Earth in order, maintaining its Natural Balance for the Survival of the New Civilization, and preventing, restraining, and/or ceasing to cooperate with those who would destroy our home."

"To viably develop the technology and equipment for free enterprise and private and public travel to other planets and systems for the expansion of the New Civilization, and to protest loudly and refuse to cooperate with those who would keep and use these developments for purely military, destructive, or other suppressive intentions."

"To make available technology, products, goods, and services for all the peoples of Earth and develop the capability to export surpluses to other planets and systems, decrying and refusing to cooperate with those who would keep people unemployed, ignorant, poor, underfed, and unhealthy for suppressive reasons of their own."

"To develop, standardize, and get in use a stable medium of exchange so that the New Civilization can confidently flourish and prosper without inflations, deflations, and depressions. And to educate people in basic economics so that they never fall prey to or support those persons and groups who use economics to suppress."

"To recognize, validate, and support all types of creative endeavor and pro-survival and pro-expansion actions, cherishing one's own freedom as the key to achievement of all the New Civilization's purposes, and actively resisting and defeating any attempt to limit or regulate ones freedoms or rights in the New Civilization Game."

"To encourage, assist, and/or take part in a renaissance of cultural, artistic, and social events; sports; hobbies; reading; writing, poetry, music, drama, stage and screen productions, and other creative and philosophic/artistic endeavors; as these best express the values, purposes, dreams, and vitality of a civilization and help in distributing its message to others who may wish to join the game and have fun too."

"To coordinate the New Civilization according to its definition and purposes so that its thrusts and vectors are aligned for survival, expansion, and prosperity in a manner which relies on the continued freedom and happiness of the individuals comprising it."

To sum up, the New Civilization is FUN and is a game where everybody wins. It will revitalize the arts while retaining all the varied cultural beauties of Earth. It will permit the beings who wish to emigrate or return to visit their own home planets to do so freely. Commerce and new ideas will thrive without suppression. The people of the world will also obtain jobs, food, housing, and a good standard of living and education. Spiritual development will accelerate tremendously.

The Markabians left on Earth will be forced to go along with the New Civilization as technically they are Free Zone Citizens and no power or money will be given to those who go against the purposes of the New Civilization. The populations of Earth will be aware of how the world got into the state it was in - and how it was nearly lost to slavery forever.

Xenu will think that he can "jump bodies" when he sees the New Civilization winning and try to get in the position of Earth's Planetary Representative to the Grand Council so he can work his devious scenarios there. But the Galactic Patrol will expose him and prevent this from happening and keep Ethics in and people informed of the true nature of things.... as they are doing now.

Conclusion

"Markab, the Final Handling" is very easy. You now have the data with which to do it and forever remain FREE!

Sector Operations Bulletin No. 20

Sector Ethics Order No. 1A (SOB No. 20)

Sector Ethics Order No. 1A

(An update of Sector Ethics Order No 1 written by Elron Elray in 1967.)

The being known as XENU is hereby confirmed as:

SUPPRESSIVE

He was originally declared as SUPPRESSIVE in 1967 by Sector 9 Commander Elron Elray (body name L. Ron Hubbard, the Founder of Dianetics and Scientology). Commander Elray had investigated fully the events preceding the catastrophe of 75 million years ago in which Xenu ordered from his position of Supreme Ruler of the Galactic Confederation (consisting in those times of only 76 planets and 21 stars in what is today called Sector 9) a three phase plan to prevent himself from being voted out of power for attempting to create a police-state form of government.

The three phase plan was:

1) The slaughter of all Loyal Officers of the people

2) The destruction of the main Galactic Defense Bases on every planet.

3) The removal of all minority and unwanted populations in the Confederation to Planet Earth (then known as Teegeeack) and their extermination there, including the entire population of Earth.

The plan was carried out with the help of criminals and renegades and a fully-controlled police state was created.

It did not last long, however. Several Loyal Officers to the people (including Elron Elray) escaped assassination and exposed the true intent of Xenu and his conspirators. Xenu and his co-conspirators in the police state had been covering their true intention by claiming that groups of revolutionists, criminals, and saboteurs had been responsible for the assassinations and destructions done in the 1st and 2nd phases. The 3rd phase was covered up by the "scientifically backed up" insistence of police state officials that all the "crime" was because of Overpopulation and that due to the "state of emergency" existing, the government had the "right" to use martial law and police-state tactics to "relocate the populations".

The remaining populations, informed by Elron Elray of what had really happened, arose, and helped by the Loyal Officers and Loyal Citizens remaining, overthrew the police state and re-established their representative and free form of government.

Xenu and his closest conspirators were captured and brought to trial on charges of:

? HIGH TREASON

? MASS MURDER, WILFULL AND MALICIOUS, OF POPULATIONS

? EXTERMINATION OF MINORITIES

? SLAUGHTER OF LOYAL OFFICERS

? SLAUGHTER OF THE NINTH ARMY ON EARTH WHICH LOYALLY RESISTED THE FORMATION OF A POLICE STATE - DESTRUCTION OF THE PEOPLE AND ALL THINGS ON PLANET EARTH

? MASS IMPLANTATION OF BEINGS

? INSTITUTING PERSONAL INCOME TAX, ENFORCED IDENTIFICATION, AND VIOLATION OF PRIVACY WITHOUT THE CONSENT OF THE PEOPLE OR THEIR REPRESENTATIVES IN ORDER TO FORM A TOTAL CONTROL POLICE STATE

They were found guilty as charged and sentenced to be exhibited to the people of each planet so that they would be recognized as the perpetrators. The sentence then ordered them to be imprisoned in a mountain sustained with life support for eons. The sentence was then carried out on Xenu, former Supreme Ruler of the Galactic Confederation; Chi, former Head of the Department of Justice and Minister of Police; Chu, former Head of the Galactic Bank and Galactic Treasury; Sty, former Head of the Psychiatric Associations of the Galactic Confederation; and Zel, former Secret Police Chief of Earth.

The body life-support and electronic barrier field (to prevent the beings from escaping) were designed to be self-powered for at least 70 million years. After this time, Xenu and his conspirators escaped and took bodies in the Markab system. Its control-maintenance, status oriented, all-must-conform political philosophy was close to their police-state, implant-controlled methods of government. Xenu then worked out a secret plan to take over Earth for Markab by the time it would be nearly ready for acceptance back into the Galactic Community.

Thus Xenu and his top henchmen appeared on Earth in the 18th Century in Europe. Xenu took the body of Adam Weishaupt and created the secret society known as the "Illuminati". Its "Earth" purpose was to take over political control from the Catholic Church and the Kings of Europe. Its secret purpose was "TOTAL ONE-WORLD DOMINATION AND CONTROL FOR MARKAB".

In the 19th Century, Xenu carried on his plan for world domination by taking bodies in the Rothschild banking family. The infiltration and take-over of secret societies such as the Masons, a continuing part of his plan to gain "insider" control, was also accomplished.

In the 20th Century, he and his conspirators influenced the exact points of monetary and political power needed to bring their world domination plan to its conclusion. Xenu controlled the body of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the American President, in the early 1940's and planned for the use and control of atomic and nuclear weapons to keep the populations of Earth in fear and terror. He also "gave away" several formerly free countries to the World Banker financed and controlled Soviet Union at Yalta in 1945. His orders to use the atomic bomb were carried out by his Vice President Truman after FDR's death on April 12, 1945. The atomic bombs were dropped on Japan on August 6th and 9th 1945 despite the fact that Japan had been trying to surrender since March 1945.

Discarding the body of FDR, Xenu then inhabited the body of Per Jacobsson, an international economist with the Bank of International Settlements in Basel, Switzerland. The BIS, as it is called, was set up by the Markabians in 1930 to control international finance and the reserves and currencies of all nations. Xenu, as Jacobsson (or Herr J. as he is called by the Germans), personally carried out much of this part of the world domination plan and also saw to it that his co-conspirators and Markabian senior executives filled all the important posts in the Bank.

Today, the BIS controls over 40% of the world's wealth including the gold reserves of all the major nations. It is the Markabian "hard base" for control on Earth, is totally free of any taxation and governmental control, and by Swiss constitutional law, is not even part of Switzerland.

From 1956 until 1963, Xenu (as Jacobsson) was Director of the International Monetary Fund, a post he used to gain full control of the American and Third World monetary lines.

While at the BIS and IMF, his secret society control lines were used to influence politics, business, and banking. His methods of control and lists of various taken over groups are given in Sector Operations Bulletin No 18, "Modellists and Scenario Makers". These clandestine and suppressive methods have resulted in the governments of all nations being infiltrated, bypassed, and controlled by secret society members in key positions.

On May 5, 1963, Xenu faked the body death of Per Jacobsson with the help of secret-society Markabians in London, England. His plan was to run things secretly from behind the scenes in Basel until a new world-leader political "body" could be prepared for him. He is still known to the "insiders" as Herr J., but has taken a new surname - either Strasser or Strasburg. His body is now that of an old man of 90 who walks with canes and is crippled on the right side, a particular affliction that Xenu's bodies are prone to.

Investigation by the Galactic Patrol has revealed that Xenu plans to take a new "control point" body in 1984. An analysis of Markabian scenarios indicates that this will be either the body of, or the body of the adviser to, the President of the European Parliament. From either of these positions, he would be able to exert influence toward the acceptance of a one-world police state. For more data on this, see Sector Operations Bulletin No 19 "Markab, the Final Handling".

All Loyal Officers, Loyal Citizens, and People of Earth are hereby WARNED:

Xenu is SUPPRESSIVE. He has not repented. He has not changed. He is still attempting to suppress by the use of the police state. His co-conspirators are also confirmed as SUPPRESSIVES. They have not repented nor tried to influence Xenu to repent. They are also bent on the suppression of Mankind and Planet Earth.

Markabians who follow Xenu's orders, models, and scenarios from this date will also be declared SUPPRESSIVE. Those beings not from Markab but who persist in following Xenu's orders, models, and scenarios after this date will also be declared SUPPRESSIVE.

All Free-Zone Citizens of Planet Earth are hereby warned of the conspiracy to suppress personal freedom by the creation of a police state and are enjoined to refuse to cooperate with the steps being taken toward the enslavement of Earth.

For the information and use of all Free Zone Citizens, the following is a description of mental and dramatized physical characteristics of Xenu and his closest conspirators:

Xenu

MENTALITY: Ideas of government include personal income tax, identity cards, credit records, fingerprinting, passports for all citizens. Revolts "all start covertly from the top", gets control of both sides, creates imaginary enemies to justify creation of a police state, uses psychiatry as a political control method - brain surgery, drugs, depersonalization, mind control, robotization, neurosurgery. Implanter. Very untrustworthy. Clever. Cunning. Creates new plans fast if old game is exposed or prevented. Uses ideas of "overpopulation", "crime waves", "possible revolt", to justify all police and psychiatry actions. Uses declaration of "martial law" to gain complete control. Uses planted agents to get political control. Wipes out minorities and people who "might" object - ie. independent thinkers. Gets cruel pleasure from this. Uses executive branch of gov't as control source. Destroys the power of congress and the people. Must control. Gets control on money lines and uses them to finance police state control operations. Terrified of imprisonment. Will try to commit suicide if cornered.

PHYSICAL: Body usually lame or crippled on right side due to a deficiency in his energy field. Uses a cane or two canes. Bitter. Sardonic. Lip curls when disgusted. Has political mannerisms. Likes to sip drinks lovingly. Hates women but uses them to assist political aspirations. Masks fury. Sneers. Has contemptuous laugh. Vicious. Cold fury. Sly, evil, covertly hostile eyes. Can put on social and political graces for occasions. Likes to talk to get his way politically, but is very secretive about his real plans. Likes to write his "ideas of a perfect government" and cleverly hides the fact that for it to be perfect it has to be a police state under total control with him at the top. Usually tone deaf.

Chi

MENTALITY: Ideas of government are typical police state with justice functions combined with secret police, tax police, and mental police (psychiatry). Keeps voluminous files stuffed with false reports and blackmailable items. Uses secret police groups as cover for recruiting criminals, who are then controlled by money and blackmail. Carries out orders of destruction with no conscience. Uses computer and files on all populations for control. Uses codes and secret transmissions. Never trusts anyone who can't be blackmailed or bought. Favors a totalitarian police state where he runs the police and controls justice also. Also backs up the police with psychiatrists to take care of "people who object".

PHYSICAL: Body usually develops heavy, fleshy, bulldog-jawed face with dewlaps or hanging cheeks. Likes cigars. Scornful, but can also look worried and hunted. Shifty, sweaty, not too bright. Raises eyebrows on cognitions. Is wary, suspicious, sometimes violent (only when he has a gun). Likes to carry a concealed weapon which he tends to use without thinking. Becomes afraid when trapped, pants, raises hands and goes "insane" to try and convince that he is not responsible. Sly, evil, covertly hostile eyes.

Chu

MENTALITY: Ideas of government are to control by finance and money, set up banks so they are not an official part of the gov't but lend money to the gov't so as to get and keep control. Advocates personal income tax, credit rating, and financial files on every citizen. Lends or provides funds for creation of police state so that guaranteed repayment is done through use of the tax police and he ends up in total control of the money and the economy. Provides secret funds of destroying any opposition. Financed Xenu's three-phase plan.

PHYSICAL: Body usually small, pudgy, tending to fat. Face develops a piglike expression, a bit slack-jawed. Is nervous, cringing, twists hands and rings nervously, giggles, wriggles like a small pig. Narrows eyes when calculating. "Beams" when happy. Mincing walk. Prone to "terror stomach" when afraid and tries to keep from vomiting. Has a horror of imprisonment. Likes diamonds.

Sty

MENTALITY: Assists government in pogroms and extermination of minorities and non-conformists by doing it "all in the name of science". Helps by "scientifically" selecting all those who might protest a perfect police state. Organizes psychiatrists and medical people to drug and incarcerate any opposition without the victims having any recourse. Very covert and reasonable. All is justified in the name of "science".

PHYSICAL: Smooth, professional, tends to hold his body stiff and erect. Eyes a bit glazed, tend to roll wildly about when afraid. Has horror of being found out to be a fraud.

Zel

MENTALITY: Likes high ranking secret police work. Gives false impression of friendliness by shaking hands often. Can supervise the destruction and mass murder of populations without qualms.

PHYSICAL: Body usually greasy with forced smile, vicious eyes. Covert. Is a coward and faints easily. Goes whitefaced when trapped.

The handling for Xenu, his co-conspirators and any Markabians or others who come to their senses as free individuals and Free-Zone Citizens of Earth is:

1. CEASE AND DESIST IMMEDIATELY FROM COMPLYING WITH OR ISSUING ANY MODELS, SCENARIOS, OR ORDERS WHICH WOULD SUPPRESS MANKIND AND PLANET EARTH:

2. WRITE A COMPLETE STATEMENT OF THE MODELS, SCENARIOS, AND ORDERS WITH WHICH ASSOCIATED AND ACTIONS THAT WERE TAKEN TO CARRY THEM OUT GIVING EXACT TIME, PLACE, FORM, AND EVENT.

3. TURN OVER ALL DATA (INCLUDING ANY PERSONAL ACTIONS TAKEN IN AN ATTEMPT TO RESOLVE OR LIFT THE SUPPRESSION) TO AN AUTHORIZED GALACTIC PATROL MEMBER.

4. APPLY THE CORRECT ETHICS POLICY UNDER THE AUSPICES OF AN AUTHORIZED GALACTIC PATROL MEMBER.

5. MAKE SUITABLE AMENDS.

Note: All names and identities of declared SUPPRESSIVES are reported by Galactic Patrol telepathic telex to the M-Ship, Sector 9, and from there relayed to Central Ethics Authority, Sector 0, where they may be viewed by any member of the Grand Council. Any change of status or completion of Ethics Handling is also so reported.

Sector Operations Bulletin No. 21

The Third World War

The Third World War (WW III) is now in full action. It has been going on for many years - skirmishes, guerilla actions, and small isolated pitched battles, with clandestine operations of large and small scale constantly being carried out.

You won't read about this war in the newspapers or see it on television, because the Press and TV are being used as weapons in it.

Other weapons include drugs, radiation, computers, chemicals, microbes, propaganda, viruses, pollution, carcinogens, political sideshows, and the threats of use of atomic and hydrogen bombs.

Weapons that are very effective are economic pressure, taxation, and insidious substitution of real values with paper, cards and electrons.

Blackmail, peer-group pressure, conformity, and status orientation are powerful weaponry also.

Added to the exoteric are several esoteric devices or weapons for use in WW III which include covert invalidation, subliminal pictures on TV, psychiatric recommendations, depressants, hallucinogens, electric shock, tepaphones, intention projectors, -biological energy field restimulators and decay producers, and direct spiritual telepathic attack methods.

You and every person on Earth are in this war whether you like it or not, whether you agree or not, whether you believe it exists or not.

It is a total World War

It is the WAR FOR THE CONTROL OF MEN'S MINDS.

WW III is not being directed by persons from Earth. The beings who want your mind to be controlled, subservient, obedient, and conforming - so that they rule the planet for their own purposes - are not from Earth.

They are Markabians from the systems of stars near the North Star and Big Dipper with 7 Major Planets, the senior one being named Markab. Their own planets are held in subjugation by the same weaponry and have been for millions of years. They believe it is a "perfect government". The closest analogy on Earth is the police-state Soviet Union, but Markab is far more sophisticated and would appear to the unaware to be a society such as the 100% socialist society of Sweden but with far less freedom.

The worst crimes in the Markabian societies are: to think for yourself, to freely communicate your ideas, to invent or discover things and want to prosper therefrom rather than turn them over to the state, and to fail to CONFORM to your place in the status-oriented hierarchy.

Of course the populations are never consulted or allowed to organize or express their own views on the way things are done by the government. There is and has been and will be only one government - and those who run it have and must maintain their control over all others.

Since the 1950s, WW III has produced many, many casualties, resulting in Millions of Earth People who THINK JUST LIKE THE MARKABIANS. Thus they have been CONQUERED and have lost any chance to help Earth become a truly free, self-determined, prosperous planet in its own right under its own chosen forms of administration and representation.

There are the slightly wounded and surrounded earthpeople in the battle who feel and know something is happening but who can't quite explain it or get support of their ideas and thus quietly allow themselves to be NEUTRALIZED or "hors de combat". They then say things like, "Well, you can't fight City Hall.", "Nothing can be done.", "It's just the way it is and no one can change it."

There are the mentally and physically sick, cancerous, pollution-infested, diseased, poisoned VICTIMS of the weapons being used and these usually get placed in the prisoner-of-war camps under Markabian control such as Socialized Institutions for the Mentally and Physically Ill and Old People's Homes and Psychiatric "Rehabilitation" Centers ("Rehabilitation" means you won t get out till you think like a Markabian). Occasionally some of these VICTIMS manage to crawl, wounded, to the side of the forces of freedom and regain their health thru natural methods of eating and living and re-enter the battle.

There are those DUPED ones, who in fighting for freedom find what they believe are allies and enthusiastically join a group only to find it a trap. It was a Markabian group set up to capture them and prevent them from being effective. Their enthusiasm on joining gradually turns to an introverted or narrow viewpoint as they are given carefully prepared false data to make them believe it s not "really" a war, just ignorance and superstition, and everything will be alright if we just "meditate", or "think the right thought", or "believe in science", or "god" or "auras". And all this to the exclusion of any political or organized action against those who knowingly intend to harm or destroy them and subjugate Earth.

There are those DIVERTED ones who know all is not well, feel the suppression, see the wounded, realize it's a war, and stock up food and weapons and take their families to retreats and defensible positions of safety. They are then subjected to ridicule and rejection by the Markabian "thinkalikes" and may actually start to believe they are indeed crazy. These freedom-fighters have usually been given a wrong target to vent their anger on so they too become ineffective. Thus you find the DIVERTED ones in verbal and written conflict with "Reds", "Niggers", "Jews", "Arabs", "Spics", "Commies", etc. These misdirected groups are then pointed out to the named groups as their enemies, and the Markabians, very pleased, see Earth-People fighting among themselves... - which gives to the passive population further justification for becoming Markabian and "conforming". It certainly does make Earth look crazy and make one think they have to be controlled, doesn't it?

Also there are the religions which usually are the most perceptive organizations of any kind concerning mental and spiritual warfare - since many have themselves waged it in their own histories. Markabians recognized this threat long ago and carefully devised propaganda and plans to discredit religions or eliminate them entirely - as in Communist Philosophy - or to infiltrate and take them over to use for their own purposes. Thus religions become DISCREDITED and ineffective or INFILTRATED and made to work against Earth and its freedom.

Or the decision may be to render them PASSIVE so that they preach only "turn the other cheek". Thus the WW III take over plan rolls along without interference from these groups.

Other freedom-fighters are BRIBED to stop doing what they are writing or saying. Still others are BLACKMAILED into inaction.

Some very perceptive and thus "dangerous" writers or leaders of opinion are IGNORED or CRITICIZED FALSELY and unmercifully by the controlled media and controlled government agencies. It is wise to find out what these people are doing that is so threatening and dangerous to the Markabians. You will find it usually is that they have knowledge of the conspiracy to control the planet and mankind or have weapons that would be very effective to counter defensively the Markabian weapons or even to positively attack and overcome Markab in this War for the Control of Men's Minds.

Such weapons include:

? THE TRUTH

? NATURAL HEALTH METHODS

? EXPOSURE OF LIES

? DEVICES TO NULLIFY MARKABIAN WEAPONS

? MONEY NOT UNDER MARKABIAN CONTROL

? MEDIA, PRESS, OR RADIO STATIONS NOT UNDER MARKABIAN CONTROL

? SPIRITUAL POWER

? TELEPATHY

? GROUPS WITH LARGE FOLLOWINGS WHO LOVE FREEDOM

? IDEAS THAT WILL MAKE THE FREEDOM-LOVING ORIGINATOR RICH AND FAMOUS

? WAYS TO GET REALLY FREE OF ECONOMIC CONTROL AND SUPPRESSION

? ART THAT WILL UPLIFT THE PEOPLE TO A STATE OF CLEAR THINKING AND REALIZATION OF THE WAR OR POINT OUT THE TRAPS IN IT

? WRITING THAT MAKES PEOPLE REALIZE HOW TO REMAIN FREE OR HOW TO FIGHT MARKAB

? REFUSAL TO CONFORM OR COMPROMISE WITH ANYTHING NOT THE BEST FOR EARTH AND MANKIND

? ANY COMMUNICATION LINE, WRITTEN LINE, OR MEDIA LINE THAT FREEDOM AND TRUTH CAN FLOW ON

? PROPOSALS FOR REAL FREEDOMS FOR INDIVIDUALS

? PROPOSALS TO INVESTIGATE FULLY GROUPS CONTROLLED BY MARKAB

? INTENTIONS TO MAKE EARTH A SAFE, SANE, FLOURISHING PROSPEROUS PLANET

? INTENTIONS TO BRING MANKIND AND NATURE TO RADIANT HEALTH

? INTENTIONS TO MAKE EARTH A FREE?EXCHANGING PLANET WHICH DETERMINES ITS OWN DESTINY

? INTENTIONS TO HELP MANKIND TO GO FREE

? INTENTIONS TO CONVERT MARKABIANS TO A FREE FORM OF GOVERNMENT

? INTENTIONS TO REDUCE G0VERNMENTAL CONTROL, REDUCE TAX, AND GIVE PEOPLE MORE FREEDOMS AND LESS LAWS

? INTENTIONS TO SPEAK, THINK, AND WRITE FREELY

? INTENTIONS TO MAKE EARTH PEOPLE MORE SPIRITUALLY POWERFUL SO THAT THEY CAN EASILY DEFEAT MARKABIAN INTENTION

Wars leave destruction in their wake. There is destruction left after a mental and propaganda war and during it. The worst effect, however, is the result of the war being lost. The entire population of Earth will be SLAVES TO MARKAB - FOREVER. Not only this lifetime, but the next and next and next through the spiritual and genetic line generations.

SLAVERY NEVER ATTAINED ANYTHING FOR THE SLAVES,

ONLY FOR THE MASTERS.

You can wake up from the drugged, poisoned, brainwashed torpor of the Markabian Control Operation. You can realize it is happening and talk freely and do something about it. You can refuse to cooperate in the destruction of beautiful Earth and the enslavement of its people.

Markabians are afraid of you because you outnumber them 10,000 to 1. But they easily control you if you decide not to resist, or agree to conform.

You can assist in the creation of a New Civilization here on Earth. You can take your rightful place in the community of the more freedom-loving civilizations of the Galaxy as a FREE-Z0NE PLANET.

EARTH PEOPLE: ARISE AND WIN. DON'T LET YOUR PLANET BECOME ENSLAVED BY THE ALIEN MARKABIANS. OTHER FORCES ARE HERE WHO ARE INTERESTED ONLY IN YOUR FREEDOM AND ARE HELP YOU OBTAIN IT - FOREVER.

The New Civilization Game

by Astar Paramejgian, Sector 9

DEFINITION:

A CIVILIZATION is an economic engine that runs on ideas and whose products are:

Survival of its dynamic components and expansion of its knowledge, responsibility and control; its affinity, reality and communication; its matter, energy, space and time; its ethics, technology and administration.

When ideas or its economics are suppressed it goes negative, contracts, and wastes or destroys it's dynamic components, i.e. people, families, groups, businesses, organizations, governments, races, species, animal and plant life, physical environment, energy sources, spaces and time, ideas, spiritual values, beings and religions, aesthetics and art, and it's codes of behavior and ethics.

The rescue of a dying civilization is accomplished by: locating and identifying the suppressive influence, supplying a positive alternative, disseminating it as a vector of comparable magnitude, stably financing it, keeping it's positive production and exchange free and unregulated, reviewing and correcting as needed to increase it's power, distributing it's values and aesthetics broadly, and responsibly evaluating, planning and co-ordinating the survival and expansion of it's components.

The senior managerial organization on a planet should insure that its civilization (as per above definition) continues to flourish and prosper while guaranteeing maximum freedom for the individual, as the individual the basic component of a civilization. Understanding this concept broadly will enhance the survival and increase the rate of expansion of the civilization. Suppressive influences can not exist viably under these operating conditions, and soon disappear or are quickly handled.

DEFINITION:

A GAME consists of freedoms, harriers, and purpose. (LRH 1952)

THE CIVILIZATION GAME

The New Civilization is a game where everyone wins. Its freedoms are for each individual so that all survival and expansion purposes may be obtained. There is freedom of ideas, economics and participation in all the components of a Civilization.

Barriers include the "old" Civilization which is suppressing individuals by giving them what they do not need and do not want, i.e. unemployment, taxes; wars; atomic, biological and chemical weapons; unstable currency; criminality; mind destroying drugs; environmental pollution; destruction of the balances of nature; suppression of economics resulting in bankruptcies; suppression of ideas for survival and expansion and health; suppression of freedoms of speech, press and religion; and police-state control operations with psycho-political and computer control of every individual.

- o -

The New Civilization Game gives Planet Earth several new purposes. The first is for SURVIVAL. It is based on the observable fact that the Earth is actually a large spaceship with its living space on the outside and containing all the raw material for survival of a large Civilization. It is home for its individuals living on it. Thus the first purpose is:

"To actively put our Home Planet Earth in order, maintaining its Natural Balance for the survival of the New Civilization, and preventing, restraining, and/or ceasing to co-operate with those who would destroy our home."

- o o -

The second purpose is for EXPANSION. It is based on the observable fact that there are other worlds in space besides Earth and the New Civilization will expand to these frontiers. Therefore, the second purpose is:

"To viably develop the technology and equipment for free-enterprise and private and public travel to other planets and systems for the expansion of the New Civilization, and to protest loudly and refuse to co-operate with those who would keep and use these developments for purely military, destructive, or other suppressive intentions."

- o o o -

The third purpose is for PRODUCTION and EXCHANGE. It is based on the observable fact that Earth does not have enough production to care for its own people fully, much less any exchangeable production for export to any other planets or systems. The third purpose is then:

"To make available technology, products, goods and services for all the peoples of Earth and develop the capability to export surpluses to other planets and systems, decrying and refusing to co-operate with those who would keep people unemployed, ignorant, poor, under-fed and unhealthy for suppressive reasons of their own."

- o o o o -

The fourth purpose is for ECONOMICS. It is based on the observable fact that "Old Civilization" Bankers, Governments, and Politicians have no STABLE medium of exchange of which one can be absolutely confident of equivalent value anywhere on Planet Earth. The fourth purpose is:

"To develop, standardize and get in use a stable medium(s) of exchange so that the New Civilization can confidently flourish and prosper without inflations, deflations and depressions. And to educate people in basic economics so that they NEVER fall prey to or support those persons and groups who use economics to suppress."

- o o o o o -

The fifth purpose is for FREEDOM. It is based on the observable fact that the existing "old" Civilization gradually and often suddenly suppresses freedoms of all kinds - spiritual, economic, travel, speech, writing, and aesthetic freedoms - resulting in a more and more mind-controlled, apathetic and irresponsible society in which the fun and enjoyment of life and creative endeavor is gone. The fifth purpose is:

"To recognize, validate, and support all types of creative endeavor and pro-survival and pro-expansion activities, cherishing ones' own freedom as the key to achievement of all the New Civilization's purposes and actively resisting and defeating any attempt to limit or regulate one's freedom or rights in the New Civilization Game."

- o o o o o o -

The sixth purpose is for PLEASURE. It is based on the observable fact that much of the "fun" is gone from life in the "old civilization" and a game should be interesting, fun, and rewarded with pleasure moments. The sixth purpose is:

"To encourage, assist and/or take part in a renaissance of cultural, artistic and social events; sports; hobbies, reading, writing, poetry, music, drama, stage and screen productions, and other creative and philosophic/artistic endeavors as these best express the values, purposes and dreams and vitality of a civilization and help in distributing its message to others who may wish to join the game and have fun too."

- o o o o o o o -

The seventh purpose is for COORDINATION. It is based on the observable fact that the "old civilization" is a mess of contradictions, conflicts, and useless expensive actions coupled with useless expensive delays. (Wars; political conflicts; border disputes; your tax money spent on stocks of weapons that could destroy the Earth hundreds of times and kill all life on it; slow justice procedures; delays in payment for sold goods and services; delays in transport, mail and paperwork, and an overall sense of impending doom and non-survival.) Thus the seventh purpose is:

"To coordinate the New Civilization according to its definition so that its thrust and vectors are aligned for survival, expansion and prosperity in a manner which relies on the continued freedom and happiness of the individuals comprising it."

- o o o o o o o o -

NB: The New Civilization is not limited to the above purposes. There will be more as expansion occurs. However, no new purpose will contradict or eliminate these purposes or the definition of a civilization. These are yours forever.

THE NEW CIVILIZATION

ORGANIZATIONAL PLAN

Notes on Use of the New Civilization Organizational Plan:

1) This plan applies to all echelons of life on the planet - personal, family, groups, nation, race, governments and all organizations.

2) It has the complete necessities for survival and expansion - given worthwhile purposes to set it in motion.

3) Used by an individual or group it helps them survive and expand faster.

4) Used by a Civilization, it helps it to prosper and achieve its purposes faster.

5) It is used to gain agreement on matters needing coordination and increase speed of decision.

THE NEW CIVILIZATION

- WHY? -

Knowledge is Power, but Power is not Knowledge.

One who has all Power but little or no Knowledge will lose Power as he uses it.

One who has all Knowledge but no Power will gain and win

Power as he uses it.

- o O o -

Power is an ability of using energy and force to Create and/or Destroy.

Used with little, false or no knowledge of the true nature of things and being ignorant of purposes and plans of organization inherent in all life, one without knowledge who uses power will surely create destruction and/or destroy creation. This is observable in the highest echelons of planetary government in the "Old Civilization".

Balancing and far outweighing the small percentage (2% or 3%) of people who have the "power without knowledge" insanity, are the millions of people of Earth who have knowledge of life, the truth of what it takes to survive, the duty and loyalty of their family and friends, and the trust that others will exchange, work and play in a fair and honest, friendly fashion as they themselves. These millions, (some 97% of the population of Earth) are the source of all good things and survival components of the civilization. Then why is the "old civilization" in such poor condition? Because the Power that the insane 2 or 3 percent are using is continually being given to them by the 97 percent. It is given in the form of financial energy - (taxes), controlling force - (by obeying those who suppress or destroy freedom and initiative), and confidence - (by electing those who take the fun out of life's games to get and keep more power for themselves).

And this power is given and the insane actions not halted by the 97% because they:

1) Believed there was no alternative, and

2) Were not organized, so

3) Thus, did not recognize that they were the largest Power source on the Planet, and

4) They were the Source of ALL the suppressive power being used against them, and

5) They could take the Power away from the 2 or 3 percent at any time by just not giving it to them.

Note: It is an observable fact that also part of the power given to the 2 or 3 percent was used to carefully mis-educate the 97 percent into not having the knowledge of 1), 2), 3), 4) and 5) above. (For example, controlled media repeatedly being used to voice the "belief" that there is no alternative.)

THE NEW CIVILIZATION

IS

THE ALTERNATIVE

The New Civilization knows:

1) You have the power

2) You have the freedom.

3) You have the purposes.

4) You have the knowledge of how to play the game.

5) You have the right to your own sanity and will not agree to insane uses of power.

6) You have the right to leave any game you don't like, take your power, knowledge, and purposes with you and join another, start another, or just not play.

7) You WILL enjoy the New Civilization Game, if you decide to play.

8) That if you do decide to play, you - and ALL of us on this planet - will win.

Plan for World Peace

by

1963

Disarmament has claimed the attention of Earth's governments for more than half a century without any practical means of attaining it.

Any solution to the problem of war must resolve the greater problems of political and industrial security.

Today's trend is toward togetherness. And today'~ urgency is that Man take firm forward steps toward a real solution of his international political and economic affairs while he retains the power of decision.

A peaceful consolidation of Man's real progress is possible without recourse to war, to rebellion, to the overthrow of governments by force, or other chaotic and regrettable acts.

The following blueprint is advanced to demonstrate the feasibility of utilizing modern trends and peaceful means in securing for government and industry, a more stable endurance and greater service to mankind.

Peace with prosperity is not an idle dream. And a determined and unified advance is possible towards that end.

The following programme has no other purpose or interest than attaining these ends.

Program by Steps

STEP ONE:

Persuade all governments to turn over all atomic weapons, stocks, and control of atomic manufactures to the United Nations at once.

STEP TWO:

Persuade the United Nations and all governments to select a site for and construct an International City, preferably in North Africa, on the Mediterranean Coast, where land reclamation can expand its area and where its communication lines can easily be centered for Earth.

STEP THREE:

Persuade all governments to remove their capitols to the International City complete with heads of government, congresses, and parliaments.

STEP FOUR:

Secure communication lines and command lines from each country's head of government in International City to the government of each internal county or state in that country. (Wherein the words 'county' and 'state' differ in various nations but mean the next lower political-geographical echelon below the national government.)

Regard each county or state within a country as an autonomous unit under the control of the head of the nation in International City.

STEP FIVE:

Bring about a recomposition in the United Nations, basing its member delegates on a formula comprised of land area and value, production and construction value and population figures.

Remove all special privilege categories for favored nations and the exercise of veto by a few.

Form the United Nations into a judiciary division, two houses and an executive branch, the key officials to be popularly elected or selected within the nations they represent and by voting by both upper and lower United Nations Houses for the head of the United Nations.

Reform the United Nations Charter into an instrument specifically engaged in governing the heads of nations and international affairs. Forbid in the charter all interference with or government of individuals or smaller communities. Forbid the regulation of work, working conditions, hours of work, place of work, housing, or any other individual matter, especially laws designed to 'protect the individual from himself' or imagined enemies, giving any nation or individual so interfered with full recourse to law and damages in the International Court.

Forbid interference with the politics, beliefs, religion, ethnology, customs, or ideologies of any nation or state or county.

Forbid all pressures from groups within the United Nations to favor or disfavor ideology, race, color or creed for any reason whatever.

STEP SIX:

Forbid treaties of mutual assistance or warlike assistance amongst states, counties or nations against other states, counties or nations.

STEP SEVEN:

Bring about the creation of a small effective armed force under the United Nations and the dismantling or abolishment of all other war facilities on the planet above the level of crime and population control forces under the direction of the heads of states and counties and the small bodyguard usual to the protection of a head of a nation, state or county, these forces to be severely circumscribed and well below the strength of the International Force.

Persuade the transfer to be made with due regard for and recompense of, the personal interests of existing armed force personnel by retirement, transfers to state or U.N. forces or other utilization; and the U.N. to inherit all existing military established bases and give recompense therefore.

STEP EIGHT:

Persuade stable and real International economic measures.

Base economics on the most fundamental definitions of inflation and deflation, wherein inflation is the result of more money than goods and deflation the result of more goods than money, and maintain financial matters accordingly.

Persuade the turn over of the International Monetary Fund to the United Nations.

Persuade the turn over of all central banks of nations or central banking, to this Fund.

Establish a branch of this Fund in every state or county through the national or central bank of that nation.

Allocate to each state or county as its money the exact value of its property, real or personal, and exchange the new money for existing monies in the hands of persons or corporations. Permit no other monies to be printed or issued. Each year, by careful survey, increase or decrease the extant funds in a county or state to match its productivity, the principle being that money must exist to purchase that which exists to be purchased.

Continue the value of money against real goods and property.

The character of notes and coins should bear on one side their International Value and on the other their domestic or local designations.

The handling of future funding should be through the International Monetary Fund to its national or central bank branches of the nation in counties or states to the private banks in that state, all under the supervision and direction of the United Nations through the Nation's central bank branches in each county or state.

The financing of the governments of cities, counties or states should be as usual by their own taxation and the government of the nation should receive its money for all its expenses and management only from their counties or states and never from individuals or companies directly, the amount for the nation not to exceed fifteen percent of the gross revenue of each county or state, paid directly by that county or state to the nation's capital in International City.

The financing of the United Nations should consist of an additional ten percent of the gross revenue of each county or state paid directly to the United Nations and eight percent of the gross revenue received by each national government from whatever source, and from interests paid into the International Monetary Fund.

The collection of taxation funds by any state, county, nation, or the United Nations to be strictly forbidden to be on a net basis, thus inhibiting the invasion of the financial privacy of individuals, companies, cities, counties or states, or nations, and reducing the complications and expense of collection.

From these tax funds all expenses of whatever kind should be paid without further recourse to "special" United Nations or National taxations independent of the counties or states, a practice which should be forbidden.

STEP NINE:

Persuade the United Nations and national governments that the activities of the United Nations and national governments (but not state or county or city governments) should be limited to (a) The administration of justice; (b) Public Safety; (c) Facilitating the safe transport of persons and goods; (d) Guaranteeing the collection of private and public debts; (e) Efficient handling of public communication; (f) Safeguarding public health; and (9) Self Preservation.

Forbidding the indulgence by the United Nations or National governments in (a) Interference with the individual; (b) Moral laws; (c) Racial and religious matters; (d) Workers, unions, and wages; (e) Management of private business; (f) Production; (g) Collection of personal or company dossiers by whatever excuse including those of tax purposes; (h) Entertainment; (i) Forwarding minority or majority racial or religious purposes; (J) Assisting in the establishment of monopolies in any field of activity except government; (k) Engaging in war.

Under the Administration of Justice, Crime should be defined as 'aggressive acts resulting in actual intentional violence to persons or property or intentional deprivation of property without adequate compensation' and that nothing exceeding this shall be considered to be embraced by criminal jurisprudence and that all else shall be considered civil justice and subject only to civil suit by companies or individuals.

STEP TEN:

Persuade the United Nations and national governments that they have no interest in matters of healing or welfare and may not legislate for or against them, nor assist to create health monopolies or 'legal procedures' and the United Nations or national governments have no interest in the support or lack of support of individuals, but may assist them only to the degree of encouraging production of public works, it being impossible for the U.N. and national governments (but not state or county or city governments) to continue to care for the individuals of an expanding population without creating a world wide tyranny in which all individuals become slaves.

STEP ELEVEN:

All armaments, fissionable materials and warlike or dangerous war productions not disposed of in the general disarmament should be provided with adequate storage or repair facilities at International City and placed wholly and only under the control of the United Nations and its armed forces.

Arrange that adequate patrolling and detection facilities be maintained throughout the world by the United Nations to ensure against the illegal production of facilities for war.

Enforce that only conventional weapons and forces be used when nations at disagreement refuse to abide by the decisions of the International Court in routine civil suit and threaten war.

Enforce that no fissionable materials be used in war on this planet even by the United Nations .

Arrange that civilized regulations regarding the quartering of troops and their conduct be enjoined upon the forces of the United Nations.

Arrange that no United Nations force may belong first to a nation and secondarily to the United Nations but that all such units be recruited by and maintained by the United Nations.

Arrange that no military or police conscription exists even in the United Nations force.

Arrange that no United Nations force may be employed to maintain order in a member nation not threatened by aggressive war, nor may it be used to restrain a revolt contained within a nation or a state, save only that the revolting forces may not attack another nation or attack from another nation or refuse to continue membership in the United Nations.

STEP TWELVE:

That the government of International City itself shall be conducted by a group not interested in the United Nations or in any other nation, and that this group have no political connections, nor be able to interfere with the conduct of government by the United Nations or its nations, but have interest only in the nominal and usual city government of International City and to create and maintain a city and to prevent riot, civil commotion and crime within the area of International City only, all residents thereof being subject to such civic administration without any immunity for murder, theft, and other offenses against members of the community as a community.

This civic corporation to be chartered by the United Nations under the name of 'International City Civic Corporation' on a permanent irrevocable charter and thereafter remain wholly independent of political control except for possible suit in the International Court, it being widely known that capitals constructed and run exclusively by large governments are slowly constructed and disinterestedly managed. The Civic Corporation must be immune to fashionable vendettas or favoritisms and must be dedicated by personal interest and reward to the construction, maintenance and continuance of a beautiful and peaceful city. The Civic Corporation must be aloof from all government policies and concerns or trends of the times, and these things must be guaranteed in its charter.

Membership in the Civic Corporation would be on an individual basis wherein a member may represent himself or a company but a company may be represented by only one member.

Such membership should include representation of the foremost organizations in the world in the fields of all the diverse skills and materials comprising the needs of the construction, maintenance, services and commerce of a large city~ including governing, policing, and financing.

Each member should pledge, but not pay, a sum of one million dollars to the Civic Corporation.

There should be two thousand members.

The members should then elect twenty council members to represent the various departments of city planning, maintenance, services and commerce, all for a period of five years.

The council should then elect or confirm a permanent chairman.

No member should be permitted to 'buy out' another member. All posts of membership should be filled when vacated. Membership should not be inheritable.

The Civic Corporation thereupon issues bonds acceptable to nations, the International Monetary Fund or banks to the total of five hundred billion dollars against various portions of their activities and proceeds with this financing to obtain, with United Nations political assistance if needed, the lands necessary for construction, making certain of sufficient terrain for expansion and all needful facilities.

Aside from national monuments transported there, all lands and buildings, utilities and services of whatever kind continue to belong to the International City Civic Corporation, and all rates, taxes, fees, and revenues of the city continue to belong to the Civic Corporation in perpetuity.

The design of the city should cluster the national headquarters in such a way as to prevent selective bombing or attacks. The land allocated to each should, however, be extensive, the residential portion fanning away from the center of the nation's government, which in turn, with others, fans away from the United Nations center, all allowing for extensive boulevards and commercial sections. Long underground networks for swift transport, a large port, various airfields, extensive shopping, hotel and residence sections, and numerous recreational facilities and parks with specially built resort areas, provided with excellent utilities, should endeavor to make International City the best planned, best built and most pleasant city on Earth. And every endeavor of the Civic Corporation, in it's own interests, should concentrate on making it so and to provide for it the best and least censorious city government on Earth.

The city should be maintained as a free port and every effort should be made to absorb the threat of inflation posed by international funds flooding into the City without providing goods or services to compensate. The Civic Corporation should not therefore allow government stores, canteens or recreational services not under the control of the corporation, but should endeavor to keep the cost of living low for the entire city and thereby acquire also a stable and non-political population minimally influenced by the constantly shifting political population and preventing the fate of welfare managed capitals of the past.

From each nation and from the United Nations the Civic Corporation should receive ten percent of all revenues collected by the national government and by the United Nations from national governments to maintain the city and its services.

Initial construction of capitals should be in so far as possible a duplicate of the previous capital's ground and government buildings, transplanting these where possible, such as the complete Mall of Washington from the Lincoln Memorial to the Supreme Court Building, should be at the expense of that nation with the guidance and co-operation of the Civic Corporation or on a cost plus ten percent basis by the Civic Corporation, but all other non-government buildings should be built at the expense of and owned by the Civic Corporation.

In police matters, where they affect crimes of violence, riots and civil commotion, only the forces of the Civic Corporation should be permitted to act within the boundaries of International City.

No extradition of any kind should be permitted by the Civic Corporation.

All persons, regardless of status, should be bound by the laws of the Civic Corporation. No violence of any kind should be condoned on political grounds.

The Civic Corporation should be fully aware that its profitable future depends on sound construction, excellent facilities a beautiful and hospitable city and a benign but effective government, aloof from vendettas against persons or fashionable witch hunts.

Recourse by the Civic Corporation against interference by other governments in the creation and management of International City should be available in the International Court, or in the courts of nations, or in its own city courts against financial indemnities placed on deposit to the Civic Corporation against further encroachment upon its rights or the forfeiting of such deposits by later abuses.

STEP THIRTEEN:

All National Meetings or International Meetings such as those of Congresses, Parliaments, or conferences amongst heads of nations or states should be forbidden against fine outside the precincts of International City.

STEP FOURTEEN:

No head of state should be permitted to absent himself from International City in times of international crisis, and not more than three months in any year.

The withdrawal of a majority of a National government's personnel from International City or the construction of a national capital within the nation should constitute a declaration of war upon the United Nations.

STEP FIFTEEN:

The United Nations or its forces may not continue to occupy any country attacked by it for the crime of war, but should with all speed return that country to its own duly selected or elected head of state as soon as disarmed.

The United Nations should not acquire independent sovereignty over sections of Earth by reason of mandates, occupation, or other means, regardless of the conditions of that area.

The United Nations should not finance leaders of national government to acquire territory, put down revolts, or make war.

STEP SIXTEEN:

Any nation found guilty of concentrating troops, acquiring forbidden munitions, or provoking conditions leading to war should be liable to indemnities equivalent to those which would have become owing had the attempted conquest occurred, been lost, and the aggressor nation vanquished; and all such indemnities should be payable to the United Nations Land Reclamation Fund.

STEP SEVENTEEN:

The United Nations should not be permitted to define or outline 'orthodox science' or introduce any idea of orthodoxy into any science or the humanities except government; nor should it be permitted to attempt reforms in genetics, nor should it define sanity or insanity or label or care for the insane; nor should it be permitted to engage upon propaganda campaigns for any science or practice beyond the halting or isolation of disease epidemics.

STEP EIGHTEEN:

The exploration of space should not be permitted to individual nations or private concerns, constituting as it does a potential of warlike manufactures, but all such activities should be carried out by the United Nations, acquiring all existing material, technology, facilities and personnel for that purposes; and all information gathered from such projects should be deposited with the United Nations and made freely available to all scientists where divorced from war.

STEP NINETEEN:

The United Nations should be permitted to engage upon campaigns, financing and public works through nations or directly to ass*st economic apportionment, of rehabilitation of Earth, its streams, wildlife, reforestation, fisheries, dams and land reclamation, but must turn over the resulting properties to their respective nations when completed, but may withhold maintenance funds should United Nations inspections reveal a failure to continue such projects in operation by that nation. And by this all land, air, stream, and ocean pollution becomes, as it affects the planet, the province of the United Nations without forbidding independent action by nations, states, or counties, or cities.

STEP TWENTY:

The United Nations should not be permitted nor should any national government be permitted to prescribe curricula or demand or regulate attendance in any school, public or private, whether maintained by International or National funds, nor define the requirements of a degree or demand the attainment of any scholastic standing of any kind, or regulate in any way the education or religion of any individual by whatever circuitous means, nor should the United Nations or National governments be permitted to require the indoctrination in any way of the citizens of states or counties, nor pronounce upon their mental fitness or lack of it. But the United Nations or nations may require what they please for purposes of their own employments and may conduct courses in government for their officials or compose universities for this purpose in International City, but may not require indoctrination of the children of employees or officials.

The activities and subjects of education and schools should be entirely the province of state or county or city governments, autonomous whether given International or National funds for education or not.

STEP TWENTY-ONE:

Any person, company or government suffering actual direct loss by reason of this plan should be recompensed fully from the International Monetary Fund upon submission of factual and substantiated claims to a General Claims Office to be formed within the framework of the International Monetary Fund; and all such claims denied should be referred to a Committee of Claims of the United Nations General Assembly; and all such claims there denied should be heard by the lower branches of the International Court.

But no such claims should be based on ideological facts or conquests or seizures or losses of conquered areas or court findings after January 1st 1960. No personal or contractual claims should be considered valid if based on contract awards or appointments begun or entered upon after one year of the date of award of the charter of the International City Civic Corporation by the United Nations.

STEP TWENTY-TWO:

An executive or official of the United Nations should be personally liable in the International Court for his public acts through the processes of civil suit, should those acts be proven beyond reasonable doubt to be in viola{ion of the basic laws of the United Nations and taken in interests other than those of the United Nations and directly resulting in actual injury to an individual, company, or state or county or nation.

STEP TWENTY-THREE:

The United Nations and national governments should be denied all power of extradition from counties or states, since a world with one government notoriously provides no refuge for the individual out of favour and results therefore in a prison-like slavery- when lacking this restraint.

STEP TWENTY-FOUR:

The apportionment of funds or International Funds should be divorced from all efforts to favor or disfavor races, color, creed, or political majorities or minorities, 'backwardness' or 'progressiveness', and should be based only upon current economic and production grounds, and all efforts to bring about suppression or elevation of races, color or creed by financial manipulation within the International Monetary Fund Should be deemed treasonable.

STEP TWENTY-FIVE:

A long term educational programme of United Nations officials and Earth's people should be engaged upon, bringing into general demand the continued adherence to the principles founding a world government and in particular to the fundamental that the United Nations is a government of nations, erected to end the anarchy of sovereignty which led to wars, and aloof from the governing of individuals or interference with their daily lives, save only to provide them with the tranquility and prosperity of peace.

STEP TWENTY-SIX:

The new charter of the United Nations, based on these explicit principles, should not be subject to amendment once this plan is executed, since to change it after nations have delivered up their power to object would not be an honest act. To guarantee peace, this charter must endure.

2.) Since the arrest of Xenu, the Markabian "One World Plan" has fractured into two major factions with a quiet third group waiting to see who comes out on top. Two major factions are:

1) The group who wants to carry out Xenu's plan for One World Mental Enslavement and take the Planet for themselves as total despotic masters separate from Markab and its other planets. These have control and monitor lines into mainly American Secret Societies, government and finance.

2) The group who want to remain loyal to Markab and take the planet for joining it to the Markabian Confederation of 7 planets (But it is also known that Markab itself has endorsed and accepted (finally) the Ethics Order on Xenu and have eased off on the mental enslavement plans, but are still carrying out the Political and Financial plans.) This group is based in Europe, and their control of Secret Societies, Banking and Politics is centered in Switzerland (and Strasbourg and Brussels).

3) Evidence of the above split of the Markabian conspiracy has surfaced in the last few months in the stories concerning conflicts over banking, economic and political matters in New Zealand, France, England, Spain, Denmark, America, South Africa, Sweden, Germany, Italy and African

Middle East and Latin and South American countries. These stories, which you can read in your newspapers, seem puzzling - as if something is not being said - or a motive being concealed.

(Just look for the apparently insane and crazy actions and statements)...These are all evidences of a major battle going on behind the scenes by the two factions for control of your planet.

****

4) There are Markabians of the "wait and see" type and other "think-alikes" among the Earth hierarchy who are even considering a 3rd Alternative - they want to either "take over" or "come to terms with" the New Civilization Game and Free Zone Decree.

****

5) Now is the time to get busy with your own New Civilization Political Parties and Free Zone Planet activities so that Earth is in control of her own destiny and is being cared for by her own loyal people. Don't let the "drop out" Markabians and "think-alikes" beat you to the punch by putting up their "own idea" of a New Civilization! The Game is for you, the freedom-loving people of Earth to play and win. The right time is now.

A Poem

Epitath of the dark ones .....

Those who enslaved you for uncountable years
And gave you all your ills and fears
They made you into mice from men
And fixed it so you could not win

Their scenarios and plans have all come asunder
And to us it has come as no great wonder
For they dared to touch a man of life
And not him only but his son and wife.

The evil the wove wears no more
It's a shoddy coat of blood and gore.
The game is over, you black souls and implanters
Ye mystics and monitors and mind bending enchanters

You vanish with your master in a blaze of light
Xenu is exiled and out of the fight
Never again shall black magic hold sway
The spirits of truth have won the day

So tell your sons that they are free

And the game is fun as it used to be

A new Civilization is now on the way

Thanks to the inexorable spirit of Elron Elray.

The Bridge Chart

Administration Briefing Number 1

By Capt. W. B. Robertson

RON'S ORG, 25 JANUARY 1987

We have a group of people here from all kinds of different countries and of different levels of the Bridge, and the purpose of this little talk is not that I talk, but that we present the Bridge-chart here, which you have in front of you, and give you a little description and some success-stories of people having gone up there and doing some of those levels. And also answer any questions that somebody or anyone may have, that can be answered without exposing confidential materials or restimulative materials, but actually answering in terms of the basics of Scientology. Why that part of the Bridge is there, or whatever they want to know about why it's there, how it's there, or what does it do. So we will be answering questions on that. But first I'd like to welcome everybody here. We have at least seven or eight countries represented here from all over the world and so "Welcome everybody to Administration Briefing No.1!"

Ok. First thing I want to do is point out that we have a Bridge here, which is going from a person who starts auditing on Assists even, or special cases, Resistive Case Handlings, Dianetics, Scientology Grades per C/S program and goes up to Clear. Then we have the normal OT-levels I to III and those are exactly as Ron laid them out. And they work just fine. There are some - shall we say - benefits of Advanced Organization experience, experience that is applied on these levels, which is not generally known in the field today. Especially on OT III and in the handlings of making SURE, that a person gets through OT III and ready for Excalibur. And those things are covered on OT IV, V, VI and VII. These are things that may help a particular person increase his intention, right? Or handle certain problematic body areas, or handle the effects of drugs that may still be persisting, medicines or alcohols on the body or on him, and handle any valence problems that may be there. And those - after doing all that - you arrive at... ready for OT 8, which is called by various names : Excalibur, Super VII, used to be called Super NOTs, but it doesn't really have much to do with that.It is OT 8 - we call it EXCALIBUR. Now it goes along with the thing called OT Life Repair, because right after Excalibur you do OT Life Repair to pick up any things, that may not have been handled so far on the Bridge. And at the end of that, the person arrives at the state of self-determinism - freedom from other-determinism. So he has actually now CLEARED ALL OF HIS DYNAMICS of other-determinism and he become 1ST DYNAMIC OT level, 1st Dynamic on the OT levels. From that point on up he goes OT on various Dynamics and he handles the self-determined case or the self-determined charge, what things HE got into and so on. It's not case that was PUT on him by another or by an implanter or something, it's stuff HE did and got messed up in and he has to now get himself out of it. And that goes up through 9, 10 and 11 - which is called the PHOENIX - and the description on there is: "Opens the door to the OT's own Dynamics and what he did, and didn't do, on them." "Now with the Tech he can end cycle, so that everyone wins including himself".

And OT 12 - Pre-Static Life Repair, OT 13 - Pre-Static Prior Assessment and the Clone Cycle Rundown - that's the next part of the Bridge - "is a Power Package that handles why an OT did not REMAIN an OT". I might say at this point, that the Bridge IS exactly as LRH has always written in his works. That a thetan WAS more powerful in the past, he was MUCH more powerful in the past and he came down in power, down the spiral. We are just recovering those abilities and recovering that state and it is an error to suppose, that the person was never that big, because it is obvious, that he IS and can retain or regain that size of awareness. So people that are thinking, that a person just has to "evolve" or "get bigger" and he "never was bigger", are WRONG. I'm sorry to say, they're just incorrect and they are buying false data from whatever source, that false data comes from. The fact is the thetan WAS big, he came down the spiral and now we're getting him back up. And that's what Ron put in Scientology. It's one of the main differences of Scientology from any other philosophy, religion or science. It assumes that the thetan has always been at a higher state and now he's down at a lower state and we're trying to REGAIN that ability he once had. OK.

After that is the Commanding Officer Cycle Rundown - before OT 14 - and that handles the - "gets the person more in control of his body and then helps make it operational". It does a lot more than that, but that's what we can definitely say it does. And OT 14, 15 and 16 "reveal incredible data about the games thetans get stuck into and couldn't get out of - until now". That's what we can say about that, because you can look back to the basics of LRH's work and he says:"Life is basically a game". Well, I would only add one thing to that - it's basically a SERIES of games - and so you may find him stuck in more than one game. The "caselessness" occurs after the Super Static Rundown, which is at the end of OT 16. And after that, a person has no case and he KNOWS he has no case, he absolutely KNOWS that for sure and he doesn't need anymore auditing, he doesn't need any vias through the MEST-universe, he doesn't need a via of a meter or a body and so on. He doesn't need anymore auditing himself. He can certainly DO auditing very well though, he can handle any other person's universe and do auditing in that person's universe very effectively, very effectively. So that brings us to OT 17 to 33 which are the "Administrative" levels and they arise actually, naturally, on the pan-determined basis. Because you've handled other-determinism, self-determinism, now you move into pan-determinism. Now what is that? Well, that is taking full responsibility on all Dynamics and handling situations on those which are keeping people trapped in the games, and to finally end the game for all your friends and all the players that are in it. Now that is in progress at the moment, and this briefing is actually a step on that, on those levels, because it is giving people now the R-factor or the Reality-factor, that there is a Bridge and a way to get OUT of these games. You see? So it's a first little R-factor on that.

Now, funnily enough, I discovered that, or re-realized, or re-cognited, that AFTER all this technical business is handled on a person's case, he better study some Policy. Why? Because Policy is the Technology of handling the 3rd Dynamics and other Dynamics and when you're handling groups and so on, you have to know what are these groups, how do they work, how do you handle them, and so on.

Especially the FEBC Technology and so on, where LRH says in one of the early tapes of the FEBC, he says:"What happens when a person can get no further case gain from auditing? He can then get case gain from demonstration of competence." That's what he says in the tape - he can demonstrate his competence and get case gain from that. You see? Real OPERATING state here. So that moves on up to OT 33, and by the way there's no real mystery about these levels. I can tell you exactly what they are right now. They are HANDLING THE PEOPLE STILL STUCK IN THE BRIDGE IN THE LOWER LEVELS IN THE REVERSE SEQUENCE. See? That's the answer. In other words, you are going to find a very few thetans that are stuck in - say - a higher level part of the Bridge - say - up around 14 to 16, you are going to find some people that are stuck in the things, that are handled there. Now for a thetan to get stuck at that level means he must have been powerful enough to get up there somehow to get stuck at that level. Therefore he would be a worthwhile person to release from that and be able to play a bigger game. And then you might find people stuck in succeeding levels coming on down, until you find people who were stuck in OT III and now you want to release those, so they can continue on up the Bridge. So you keep releasing these and it gets to larger and larger numbers of thetans and they can help handle the larger and larger numbers on the smaller and smaller levels, that people are stuck, until finally you have millions of auditors across the universe, that are handling people who are stuck, only because they can't "recall something" and they need ARC-Straightwire or something. You see what I mean? But you couldn't do it in reverse. You couldn't handle everybody that needs ARC-Straightwire first. Where are you going to get the auditors from? Because that's one of the first points on the Bridge, you have 4 billion people on this planet and you only have few thousand auditors. No, you better handle the ones, who are stuck somewhere on the Bridge, make them into players and auditors on the games and then THEY can help you handle the ones on the next levels down. So there's no mystery about these levels, it's just an administrative handling, because as this grows and grows, as the levels go on up, it grows and grows and gets bigger and bigger and bigger and as it gets bigger, you need more organization, you need more comm-lines, you need more auditors, you need more C/Ses, you need more duplication of materials etc. You're into the problems of what is handled by studying your administrative Policies. So there's no mystery about 17 to 33, it's just a series of steps in reverse gradient down the Bridge and an increasing gradient of volume, until all the players can be freed from the games, that they agreed to play. These games are not implants - everyone, that's in them, agreed to play them. OK? And one way you can tell a player in the game, is that he has "a case". If he's in the game and he was a player in the original agreement of the game, he has a case. It's so obvious. The case is composed - if you want to know what a CASE is, without giving you the details of everything - it just is - you can say it is the ACCUMULATION OF INCOMPLETE CYCLES OF ACTION THAT THETAN HAS SINCE THE BEGINNING OF THE GAMES HE STARTED TO PLAY. IT'S THE INCOMPLETE CYCLES OF ACTION OR THE THINGS THAT HE HAS NOT-ISED AND DOESN'T LOOK AT ANYMORE. Whatever way you want to look at it, it's something that is a "back-log" handling. It didn't get handled yet. He has to increase his awareness in both: TIME AND SPACE. In size of awareness and responsibility, and size of CONFRONT of time, and things, that happened and he did earlier than time, because there ARE or is a way to measure time earlier than time existed. And we found that to be true on the OT levels: you CAN measure time in a way of, how do you date it in a session, where you don't have time? - you see? - before the MEST-universe for instance!

Well, how DO you date something back there? You don't have the time to date it with - you CAN date it by the number of games he was in. That's all handled on the OT levels. So he has to increase his span of awareness to get back to the earliest incomplete cycles he has and then when it's all finished, it's all finished, you see? And he can choose to either play the game again, leave the games totally or make new games. That's why we have at the top here OT 34 to 40. There are six or seven little levels here, that handle the tendency, the interesting fact of a TENDENCY FOR A THETAN TO COME INTO A GAME AND CONTRACT. Now WHY does a thetan necessarily have to contract, when he comes into a game? You see? This handles that - the Games Master Data handles that. As you know, everything in Scientology is based on EXPANSION, you know? Expansion up the grades - the Grade-Chart - expansion of awareness, expansion of space, expansion of beingness, all of that is expanding - of knowledge, responsibility, control, ARC. All that is supposed to EXPAND as you get into Scientology and go up the Bridge. And even Policy - all Policy - is BASED on expansion, and if you have studied the basic Policies, you know that. Now here is Ron putting to us a whole key important datum there, that if thetans are going to be better off and they are going to be more able and they are going to be sane and play better games, they had better EXPAND. Across the Dynamics, awareness getting bigger all the time, their actual confront of space and time increasing all the time. Ok.

So, WHY did the guy contract in the first place? You see? If you can handle that, then you can handle his future and his future games. Therefore he doesn't have to contract in future games, you understand? And that course is what does that. Because even when a guy has no case, it is possible, if you get into another game, to go back down the spiral and contract some more and get built up other incomplete cycles and more things he not-ises and so on. It is possible, unless he knows the data of what lies in back of this tendency to contract, OK? And I may say that, also, that course is a STUDY course. It's not auditing. Though there may be some things a person might cognite on, that FEEL like auditing. But the thing is, it removes the BASIS for a person actually HAVING a reactive mind in the first place or an analytical mind or a social mind in the first place. He doesn't need those things, he can handle it all by himself. Now his tendency to contract started from his denial of responsibility to himself. In other words he says: "Well, I'll sort of do it on a via or make something to do it for me..." or whatever, whatever. You see this all over in the Axioms and so on. You know - that thetans can create matter energy, space, time, thought and life. It's all true, they can do that, they HAVE done it - once more, they HAVE done it. What you're looking at, if you're in the physical universe right now listening to this tape, you're looking at the physical universe, right? Well, it's a creation of - a combined creation of - all the players in the game. How it's put together and why it's so dense and why it's so solid, you find out all about it on the OT levels. Alright? So that gives you some basic understanding from above 33. It's better to play those games from 17 to 33 with the data, that you don't need necessarily to contract anymore. You CAN expand and therefore you should do the Games Master Course after you do OT 16 and really get that REALLY understood. And then you have the possibility also above that of playing NEW games, brand new games, that have never been thought of before, and believe me that will be - at the moment it's a bit difficult to think of any new games, because you've got to find out first how many games you HAVE played and how complicated they were. But there was a LOT of them.

I mean, you just look at this one planet and if you counted up the number of games going on, you might get into the thousands already, you see? I mean, look at them, all those games. You know, war, football, swimming, tennis, business, 2 D, livingness in a certain city, being a national citizen of X, army, navy, airforce, science, chemistry - these are all games. Thetans are playing games in those areas. You start counting them up. You can count up every profession as a hat in a game, you see? Every part of your life has a game analysis to it. "What are you doing in your spare time?" "Oh, I like to play checkers." That's a game. There is even any sort of MINUS randomity games, like: "Well, I like to lie down and sleep awhile." Or go OUT of the game, you know, a negative game "Oh, I just sit there and I watch television to relax." That's alright, you watch OTHER people play games. So there's also the possibility of just being a spectator at other games, but that in itself is a game, it's a game of being a spectator, you see? So remember there's life and it's full of games. It's BASICALLY a game.

So anyway, what we are doing here, is removing the tendency for the guy to go into a game and contract, because that's what makes a case. So you might say, that we are in the business of running ourselves out of business. If we audit everybody, until they have this understanding at OT 40, there won't be any more business for auditors. Well, that is meaning that you have to take a bigger responsibility, than just running yourself as being in the game of being an auditor. You see what I mean? You have to get out of that game as well, you see? And want a new game that's totally expanding. And I tell you something else: that Scientology ITSELF can be considered a game. The auditing part and so on. And Ron always said, on a tape or several times, he said that "in the end you will have to run out your track of Scientology auditing as well". Because it is that degree other-determined and is that degree of via through the MEST-universe. You know you had to use a meter and you had sit in a room and the guy had to give you the time to be there and all that, and thus it's a bit...- even though you WANTED to do it, and even though you came WILLINGLY to do it - it still is a bit of a via and it's a bit other-determined, you see? So you DO. There is a point in the Super Static Rundown where - it's one of those little points in there - where you run out your track of auditing. So you DO get free of that as well and this shows you another thing that - I don't think we have to mention to you, but possibly somebody hearing the tape somewhere - there have been rumor around that Scientology is an "implant", you see? Well, to people who say that stupid statement, I can only say this: "I have run a lot of implants off of cases and off my own case and have never found an implanter, who gave you all the data about how to get out of the implant. There is no such implant, where they give you the data of how to get out of it. The intention of an implanter is to keep you in it." And Ron always said: "You have to run out the track of your auditing - when you don't have - right before you end up your case." And so we do that and now the good news about all this is this whole Bridge can be done full time - if a person wants to do it full time as a Solo-auditor or whatever - can do it in a SHORT time of perhaps two years or three years or even shorter, depending on the amount of time he can spend and so on like that. That would be sort of coming full time and doing his sessions, five sessions a week or something like that. But he could, in two years, actually finish the whole entire Bridge from no-auditing up to no case. That is possible. Some people, they have jobs and they have other responsibilities and other games to play at the same time, so it may take them a little longer, alright?

And the other thing is, that it is not that expensive to do it, because most of it is Solo. The levels from Solo-assists all the way up to III are Solo-auditing. The guy learns how to do that. He may have to have an occasional Review-session, but that's something else. Just IV, V, VI and VII they may start off as a Review-session and then turn the guy over to Solo to do it. So again, it's mostly his own responsibility to do it. On OT 8 there is a first groove-in part of auditing, to make sure the guy can do his own work on the level and then he's onto Solo. The Body-Straightwire can be done as an audited action or Solo. 9,10,11,12,13 all the way up to the rest, to the end of OT 16 and the Super Static Rundown, is Solo-auditing. Except in case a Review has to be done on the guy - he feels he's not quite good enough auditor to do it himself. Or, Review is ordered by the C/S or something. But these are not long cycles these are... - as soon as possible we want the guy to BE BACK ON SOLO and do it on his OWN DETERMINISM. OK?

So, as I say we're in the business of running ourselves out of business. But we have a lot of business because there is a hell of a lot of players in these games, that have to be handled first, before we could approach that "going out of business"-point. And I think at that point we would have a much brighter and bigger game already started up and it wouldn't be any big loss to go out of business. So we would just end that game off and - Pff...- here's the next one.

Now I have some success-stories here...That's just a description of the Bridge, you see? They say: "Wah,wah, we don't believe that, because..eh, you know, how could he find that Bridge and so on like that..." - and so on, so on, so on, so on. Well, I'm only a person that has been in the technical side and administrative side of Scientology for, you know, officially working for them, for 16 years. So I've got a lot more time in there than a lot of people and that was FULL time and I did the Class VII, Class VIII Course and also the FEBC and also the Full Captain's Hat and all the Sea Org Courses and just about every course you can imagine down below that and also worked on the Flag Ship for 6 to 8 years and did mission all over the world and so on. So you might say, I know a little bit about the subject. And the other thing is, I do know that... - I just didn't imagine any of this stuff, because I always used Standard Study Tech and doing a checksheet three times through and studying and clearing up everything, before I did something. So I'm NOT interested - as some people seem to think - in "exchanging ideas" with other people. We don't need to exchange ideas, we have a Technical Bridge here, you see. Your case is your case, there is the Bridge, and the processes, which bring it forward to your awareness and allow you to handle it. That is all that is, there's nothing..."ideas" or anything about it, it's just the next steps to go on up and result in finally NO CASE. So there's no "opinions" about this. It's not something you "exchange your ideas of the Bridge with somebody else's ideas of the Bridge" - you see what I mean? It's not that. That IS the Bridge. If "they" have the Bridge, they have the SAME ONE. If they don't have it, they won't make anyone, that doesn't have a case and so they won't finish it. OK?

Now these success-stories are quite interesting. I'll just read a couple of them, because then I want to go to the questions and find out what people want to ask. I had some from Denmark here, that I thought were very interesting, nobody has heard these yet.

Success-Story on Excalibur and the Phoenix

"I find it hard talking about my gains on Excalibur and the Phoenix without mentioning my wins as an auditor under Capt. Bill as a Senior C/S. In November, 1984, I started working with him at Ron's Org. The developing and co-auditing of Excalibur followed a few months later. Now that two years has passed, this is what has happened. I have come to be totally certain on the workability of the Tech, there are no cases which can not be handled. I've come to understand the inner logic of the Tech. It is expressed in the Factors, the Axioms, and the Class VIII materials. The Bridge is constructed on the basis of this logic. Once one has grasped it, one can think with the Tech, be it below OT III or above OT 8. There is a straight line up to OT 16 and it is a logical line, it isn't "invented", just as LRH didn't "invent" the Tech."

So that's from an intern and so on. It goes on and on but you can read this, and if you ask for copies of these, you can get them. I'm just trying to find the ones from Denmark. They're quite interesting. Ah, here is one from S¿ren Visti. Jaa, this is up in Denmark. Oh, he's saying he's on OT 10. He says:

"The most incredible things happen on this level. Theta-perception goes way up, the exterior view on other universes, including MEST..." He says: "...(MEST are made of all the other universes)..." MEST is made, composed, of all these other universes. "...is more and more stable and best of all the certainty, that we all will win and make it. And totally nothing can stop it. Standard Tech is the key - know it and use it and it will set you and I and others free. I hope to see my friends here soon." S¿ren.

Aha, here are the ones - here is the one. Here's another I wanted to see. This is one from a person, who has finished OT 16 and the Super Static Rundown from Sweden.

"I now completed the Bridge up to Super Static. I've completely handled ALL from beginning up to present time. I don't have, and will never again have, a case. It's finally finished. I've been in Scientology for 17 years and worked very hard on learning how to handle all in life. I'm finally at the point. I've aimed at that point for many, many years. I finally have a completely calm universe. I am now able to handle whatever will come up in the future. Nothing exists today on which I am not certain. The road to this condition is really tough. You really have to be a tiger and not Q & A with things you 'ought to do.' Don't Q & A with that, just do the Bridge." (That's what he did.) "I have had a lot of use of all the hours of TRs I did and all of the basics. I also trained hard on it. I now know, that we have won the game against the evil. We are on the right side in the game. Now I shall see to it, that all other thetans get out of this trap. If you also work hard at it you will soon be here. It will be very wonderful to meet you. I want to thank S¿ren and Per for their wonderful assistance and Bill Robertson, who has made the road out Clear and of course a real THANK YOU RON! And I will say as he did: I will wait for you in the sky."

From Kurt Eck. You know him? First caseless guy in Sweden. Ok. Here's one from - oh, finished 9 to 11 - I think also from Denmark:

"After having finished level 9 to 11, it is felt like a big brush has been several times over the time track and totally cleaned away every bit of dust. It is felt like there is total calmness, happyness, love to fellow people. Like nothing can cave you in now and nothing can effect you anymore.The responsibility and control in life is at a much higher state than before. Production in life is way up. My need for sleep is not so big anymore." (How funny.) "My ability to get the postulates through is much better, plus the perceptions. Each day at breakfast goals for that day are set up and these are easily reached, no small counter intentions are now coming in. It was funny to run those levels, so hurry up let's all do it. At last, I will thank all who helped me get so far."

And here's one from Denmark as well. I'm reading these, because these are people, that didn't come from right here, so nobody can accuse me of beating them over the head to make these success-stories. They were done totally through Denmark and I didn't even know these people were on these levels or how they were doing it. I didn't even C/S them, but I trained the C/S to do them and then they sent these success-stories down here. So this is one from Ole Gerstr¿m. He says:

"I completed Super 7 on the 20th of December 1986. I HAD audited around 200 hours on AA 7 during one year. And half a year then on Super 7." (He's talking about Excalibur here as Super 7, but before he did 200 hours of what they call AA7, whatever that is.) "I have had a lot of wonderful sessions with high affinity, realizations and intense communication. But the last session was the most incredible one. I ran into the basic for all this charge and the last bits disappeared magically. I experienced unfolding as a thetan, so that awareness, which had been folded up and paralyzed for eons, returned. I knew then, that I completed the level. The postulate from THEN explained why I sit here today. When I, since the completion, came into situations, which used to give a banky reaction, nothing has happened - just a quiet calmness. I've also observed, that when I put attention on things in the past, then the happenings appear a lot easier and in great detail. And other abilities start appearing. I have never experienced anything like this and I'm told this is only the beginning. My thanks to Ron will stand in eternity."

Yes, nice one. And I read one more. This is one from a person named Birgit Visti. It is probably the wife of S¿ren:

"I will try to describe, what I have reached on 7 and 8." (Which is Excalibur and OT Life Repair I guess that's what they call it up there.) "Right now I feel I'm floating in the air. It has been an incredible experience. Everything, I've touched lately, have succeeded very easily and with big success. I also feel a lot lighter, as I know the mass, I have been carrying around, is gone. I feel like loving all the world and I wish that everyone will reach this condition and I know we will get a wonderful world for everyone and I will do, what I can, to help achieve this."

I think we covered all the levels except somebody from 12 and 13. I don't think I read one from that level. I just want to find one, if there is one...There is one, you have one. That's right. That was a funny one too. < You want it? > Yes, we can read that one. I will handle any questions, until Ulrich comes back with that one from 12 and 13, here's a good success-story from that. He just completed it recently. OK.

First of all any questions about the Bridge? You've heard the R-factor on it, you've heard some success-stories. Anybody having any questions about it?

< Can you tell a little bit more, how you discovered that Bridge? >

Now, tell me who you are first.

< Ah, my name is Ole Halvorson, and I'm from Sweden. >

OK. So you want to know a little more, how I discovered the Bridge. OK. The first thing I took - Ulrich and I worked together - we took the existing materials, that was known about, up to that point, you see? On the Bridge. And we studied them very thoroughly three times through and checked each other out for a month and a half.

< That was a couple of years ago then? >

Yes, a couple of years ago. Everything we knew, you see? Up to that point. We are both technical people. And then we started auditing that. The last stuff, that we knew was from LRH, right? And we started auditing that and applying on what we ran into - we applied also, when necessary, more Tech or Policy or Ethics to that. And from that came the Excalibur theory and practice of how to get through that level completely. The reason being, that people had been running that for thousand of hours - the level used to be called... NOTs, I think. And then they - people used to run it for thousands of hours and years and all this stuff and they never quite got through it. Nobody could ever say: "Well, I'm through it." But then the guy, he says :"Yes, I completed it." and then he falls down the steps and breaks his head, you know? Or he goes nutty or PTS or something. Well, he didn't really. So the thing was, we figured there was something, they didn't know about this stuff. Or there would have been a lot more completions and there wouldn't be such an endless type of thing.

So now we know why that was, it required knowledge of not only Tech, but Ethics and Admin as well, to get through the level. And you CAN get through the level. And we developed whatever was needed from LRH basics, to handle anything we encountered on the level and you arrive at the state of having handled the biggest barriers, "most secret, most ancient barriers to OT. An organized attempt on the 7th Dynamic." Organized, see? One thetan can't go up against an organization alone, you see? He has to have some very powerful Tech to be able to handle that. And that's why nobody got out and got through it before. They didn't know you, also have to add Ethics and organization to your handling and a good training program, so that you know how to do it. And after that - anybody who gets through that - will bump right into the next level. You can't help it, you understand? You don't have to look very far, once you know you finished, that you just think: "Well, I wonder what..." - BOOM! - and there it is. You see what I mean? And if you have the technical data to analyze it, and the basic knowledge of what technical processes are needed to handle something like that, you just write them down and you try them and: "Oh, this is the best way through this!" - Boom - and you do it. Very easy! After that point things came off like - I mean, I could write up, what was going to be on the next level. After I'd finished THIS level, I could then write up, what was going to be on the NEXT, because I KNEW, THAT HAD TO BE NEXT. I made one or two mistakes on the way and the next day I was smashed. I said: "Uh, I've skipped something, something I didn't get. What was it? What was it? Aaaah, there is another aspect to this! I see, you have to do it this way now!!" Now I ran that - Aaaah, VGIs, FTAs - fantastic, great, great, great. And then there is this other aspect. "Oh yeah, now I can do this." Now I hit this and - Boom - I can do it. It's very simple, you see? If you know the basics. And so you just - you can't help it - hit them. So they're right there in line - boom, boom, boom, boom, boom, boom, boom - and I didn't know, where it was going to go, but I knew THAT was next, THAT was next, THAT was next, THAT was next and it just kept going one at the time. If people do the whole internships here, they see the development of this. How it goes from one level to the next. Didn't know what the next level was, when you were doing this one, you see what I mean? But after you've finished this, you run right into it. It was EASY. Things weren't meant to be this difficult. If it wasn't for all these Implanters, they had around the games - they were trying to keep people's awareness down - a thetan could go Clear and start right in on OT 9, you see? It's only the implanting, that kept them unaware. It wasn't supposed to be so difficult. It's a lot of fun. It's just handling all these incomplete cycles in your universe, in your games, on your Dynamics. No. Very easy. So they just came one after another and then finally you get to the end and - Boom! - you have no case and you realize: "Oh, I've no case now because...haha...because...well, that was it! Haha" It's very simple. So you show me somebody that got through Excalibur, and you have there a person, who hit the next level. He will see it, there it is. It's self-determined.

I'll give you an example on a lower harmonic. Suppose you only had the Bridge up to the communication level. You're out in Africa somewhere in the jungle and somebody sends you Dianetics and you ran that and you did ARC-Straightwire and Engrams and Secondaries and all that and then you got this thing it said "Communication-level" and you ran that and you felt: "Great! Now I can communicate to everybody!!!" You see? And you start communicating and pretty soon people are coming after you with spears and trying to shoot you up and - bang, bang, bang, bang, bang - and you say: "God damned! This can't be all there is, you know? This communication is great, but man, look at all these problems I have right..." PROBLEMS...! It's the next level!! You see how easy it is? Well, there you are! Alright.

This is a success story from OT 12 and 13:

"Now, this is a hard one to put in words, without starting to look too unreal. I'd say, this level has taught me something about the fabric of this universe, or rather, universes. It has taught me, how the universe is holding one, as well how I'm holding it. And from this I have become disentangled. As well I was taught something about space, about the limitedness of the MEST-universe space. About the vastness of my own space. And as well I learned about expansion. It may sound funny, but shrinking is the wrong way to expand." < Then he says in parentheses: > "(That's a typical OT 13 joke.)"

Shrinking is the wrong way to expand. I explained before, that expansion is the big thing. OK, next question?

< Yes, is it required at any time to read the Green Volumes as a prerequisite? >

Well, I think that people, who are out there spreading rumors and wondering, what's going to come and what to do and so on, would be better advised, if they have access to a book-store to buy and read the Red and Green volumes at any time during their life. Even if they don't have the money to spend on auditing and so on, they CAN always borrow a book, even from a library or a friend, and read. And there's no barrier on that. In other words it is good - that when the guy gets caseless, he - better start learning some basic administrative doingness, because he's going to find himself - whether he likes it or not - if he's staying in the game to help others out, he's going to find people DEPENDING on him. Because he's the only one, that can be certain about what's happening, he's the only one, that doesn't have a case, so he's going to naturally become the guy, who everybody is depending on to do something. So he better know, what he is going to do. Now if he's not trained in the area of administration, or he has some former idea, that is not quite as efficient, as what he can learn from the Policy Volumes, well, then he should read them. Yes. I would say so. However, it is also possible to - shall we say - take the Volume 0 and learn the basics of Policy, and from that one he can - well, after OT 16 a person would start cogniting like mad, he could almost sit down and write the rest of the policy himself.

This is the possibility you get into. You find out on this Bridge - WHERE did LRH get the axioms from? They're not just HIS "idea", no way. YOU could sit down and write them, after you do the Bridge, you see? So we must thank him, because somehow he came into this game, into the area of this planet and he came in with the knowledge enough to be able to sit down and write those things, so you could start Scientology. And therefore he must have had a pretty caseless viewpoint about things. And I think you find that all through - he says: "An auditor should have no case. A staff member should have no case." And none of us should have any case, right? That's for sure . Because, when you really don't have a case and you've really handled all these things, YOU could sit down and write the Factors, YOU could sit down and write the Axioms. You can do it! Or you could write your own version of it, Because you would know exactly, how the guys got into this situation themselves, you know? You see? So you can - again, it says here on the side of the Bridge - there is a point of Clearness, OT-ness, Static Point and there's a Source Point up here. Well, that's what it means. After you become aware of all this and become aware of how to do the games, how to create games, how to make better ones and so on, then you can become a source of games, of new games and new ideas, right? That's all it is. OK. Any other questions?

< Yes, how would you define a Clear Planet? Just to raise another nasty question... >

That isn't a nasty question. Clear Planet - well, by the Grade Chart here - let's look at the two things: are we talking about the beings ON the planet or the planet ITSELF?

< Well, I don't know. There was always this promo piece about the "Clear Planet" and apparently that's all we were into. >

Yes, that's a good thing.

< ...at least we were totally aware and then... >

Let's assume this...

< ...people decided it wasn't possible and all this, so maybe it wasn't defined correctly ever. >

Maybe not. It would be a first gradient actually - is to get people up to Clear. Say there is 5 billion people walking around in bodies on the planet. I mean, there may be others that don't have a body or are waiting in line for bodies, but there's around 5 billion on the planet now. And you could effectively Clear them, but they still wouldn't be caseless, they still wouldn't be OTs. They would be much better off, but you would have to put in a program to get them all the way up the Bridge, not just Clear, you see? That isn't quite enough. Why isn't it? Because there is a control mechanism on the 7th Dynamic right here at OT 8. And that control mechanism on the 7th Dynamic influences people's actions, governments, sciences, whatever, it INFLUENCES them. So even if the whole planet WAS Clear, they still could be influenced the 7th Dynamic suppression. So it's better to get them all the way up to have NO CASE and then they won't be the effect of that anymore.

Now, so that's a program which you say: "Hey man, that's going to take a long time." Well, when you can take one person up in two years and you can train twelve people or twenty people in a few months - especially after they have finished, they can train very quickly on how to do C/Sing, how to do auditing and so on - you can now expand at an increasing rate, because once you start handling groups, you get into the awareness of what a group is and what an opinion leader is, and, for instance, let's just take islam for an example, right? If you got twenty, or let's say two, people very well trained in Islam - in Islam religious groups there they want to find out the truth - and you train these two guys very well to be auditors, C/Ses and so on, all the way up and you send them all the way up within two years - no case. Now, if you multiply that two, they go back there into their groups and they start training others - two, four, eight, sixteen - bam, bam, bam, bam - like that, this religious group which controls maybe 700 million people - you see, 700 MILLION people - in a very short time, they could have the whole group going up the Bridge. Now if you find another group such as Buddhists - who are also very organized and so on like that - and they look for the truth too - and you train a few Buddhist auditors - do you know how many Buddhists there are on Earth? There is about a billion, there is about a billion Buddhists in the world, you see? Most of them are in the East, but there is still a billion. Hey, with that plus Islam, you've handled nearly a third of everybody on the planet and it would only take maybe 15, 20 years. If you could get it into there. Well, the reason, we couldn't get it in there before, is because we didn't have anybody up here really operating on OT 17 to 33, except LRH and nobody else was supporting him too well, because they weren't ready to do it and people made mistakes. But now, when you understand all this, you can do it just in the right sequence, the right gradient, and it goes and it just gets bigger and bigger and bigger. Then you can find other groups, that might want to do it. Like say the - for example - the old people. What's doing with all these old people in all these countries? They are quite bright, intelligent, they've had jobs all their life, they have experience and they are just sitting around waiting to die. Why don't we teach them Basic Scientology? And how to be auditors and they can audit each other, keep each other alive for a lot longer and be ready for the next life-time, if they want to, to carry on. Because they can get their certificates validated - any auditing they've done doesn't have to be done again or you'd overrun him - see? So they can start - and they're not doing anything! And they have the income to just sit there, or the social security. You could take old people. Now what is "old people"? There must be - well, 400 million old people all across Europe and America. See Retired. Now, see that's the cleverness, you look into what groups can you - no, you don't want to just get this guy down here and these little guys who go into the bar, that isn't going to make any effect on the planet - you have to do... think of it logically : How would you do this - creating a Clear Planet? You find the largest groups, that have organized comm-lines already as 3rd Dynamics, and transmit the data down without alter-is and you train the top guys there and they go down, then carry it on, while these are going - now those are going - bam, bam, bam, bam, bam, bam - and you create a large effect, you see? Right now we are getting in the people, who WANT to come. Most of you, I know, have picked up, that you had some kind of mission on this planet, to help out in this kind of thing. Well, that is true. But we're the ones, that then have to direct the handling on how to do it and keep it going. Nobody wants to have a case. Nobody wants to have a case. It's only the implanters, that want you to have a case. And I'll tell you - the money people are paying, the sadness, the grief, the pain they're going through, dying in the hospitals, and dying from all these diseases, and all that stuff - they wouldn't do that, if they didn't have a case. They're paying a lot of money to have a case. It's much more economical to get rid of it. OK. Any other question?

I might add, that there are great...(I was looking here, as there is a doctor in the audiences)...so I was going to say, I might add... to the benefit of people, who are interested in sciences and medicine, that there is the possibility of research and development and further discoveries and further methods of handling in all sciences and all medicine and all healing practices and any kind of technical work - these branches become so numerous, when you go up the OT-levels, you start seeing, let's say, the underlying basics to everything. And you are going up there, as a person, who's maybe got a job already or you're an auditor or something, you don't have time to investigate all of these various interesting phenomenon and find out, how does that apply to chemistry or physics or new inventions or whatever. You don't have the time to do it, but you know other people, who come up there, will want this and will have the time to investigate it and handle it, you see? We have plenty of things, that will be enough to ensure that there IS a New Civilization. The New Civilization can have a whole new art, a whole new music, a whole new aesthetics, just based on what you realize when you go up the Bridge. When you do, it makes the other stuff, that's existing on this planet, look very boring - very boring, very controlled, and very down-tone. Except for the occasional bright person, that's coming up with a bright idea. And THEY never seem to get too far with it, you know? But otherwise, when you see this, you say: "MAN, this planet could really be cooking, it could really be bright and brilliant, brand new aesthetics in advance of any other planet in the universe and be right at the forefront of progress and expansion." And that also would help to get people interested and going up that Bridge. If we do expand in all these other areas, there's a lot of possibilities there of life-long works. Listen, these other philosophies, that come around, they have people, that spend their WHOLE LIFE just getting the "interpretation" of the "what the guy said", you know? And they make a whole work, a book, that interprets ONLY what ONE guy said from another part of the religion or science, you know? And they do further investigations on THAT. Then you have full volumes of this stuff clogging up the libraries. Now we have NEW BASICS to look at. Now from THAT can come all these other things: new inventions, new basics, new material, new ways to live, and ways to be healthy, and blablabla - anything, you want to look at, can be improved from the possibilities - shall I say - on the other Dynamics, that are realized on the way up the Bridge. We've already noted down several of those, but we don't have time to do them, we need other people to do this. So we don't only need auditors, we need the whole elements, all the elements, of a New Civilization. Because that is how, it is going to be handled on this planet. Other planets will be MUCH easier than this planet. They will be, because they don't have 193 governments on the planet. They only have one...and at the most two. So all you have to do, is start at the top and everybody goes up the Bridge, OK?

The people here are so aberrated and so controlled by this level here - on the Excalibur level - that can't even...they are not ALLOWED to see the benefits of Scientology. Not allowed to. Their case will not let them look at it and their cases will order them to invalidate it too, because Scientology IS the way out. And if people are trying to keep you IN, then they won't let you see the way out. Of course, of course, of course. If you're in a jail, right, then the jailor is NOT going to let you have the key, is he?? So you can look at it as a reverse analysis - looking down from the top - you see? Of course! Why didn't people...you know...why was all this effort against Scientology?...and why was all this efforting to get it applied into the world and so on?...Of course! It was the KEY to getting out. So it had to be resisted, be RESISTED by those, who wanted to keep everybody shut IN, right? And that's what Excalibur handles, and once you pass that, YOU CONTROL WHO HAS THE KEY. Yes. Nobody can keep you locked in and you can free others, right? Whether they want to be freed or not, that don't matter, you understand what I'm saying? These levels are not something you have to effort to do. You don't have to effort to do this, you don't need billions of dollars to do it, you see? The guys, who are keeping things going - enslavement on the planet - they think THEY need billions of dollars to keep you enslaved, they need to take all your money, so you can't use it. So they have the goal, they have the money, they have the power, they have all the big machines. Fantastic, you don't need a single bit of that. What you need to do, is to get caseless, so you can audit anyone, anywhere, and change THEIR case and handle them at any distance. That is just a matter of ethically using that, so that you don't overwhelm yourself or your organization. In other words, if we want to have 500 people walk in here tomorrow, a couple of us could sit down - that have done some of the higher levels - and we could audit 500 people, you know, the locks off of them, you might say, that are keeping them in their "jails", open their doors and they would get here, as soon as they could, in the next couple of days. But we don't have enough auditors to handle them. So we would be guilty then of doing an out-ethical thing. We would have a demand in auditing and training and everything, but now we wouldn't be able to to deliver it, so it would be an auditing, a NO-auditing ARC-break, a no-training ARC-break. So we COULD create an ARC-break like that. So that's why, I'm encouraging people to get trained and to be ready to handle the flow, because we CAN create the flow, we don't need to do all this promo and billions of dollars of advertisement. When you can DO OT- actions, you can DO them and you KNOW it. I mean, I've done it over the last year, that's how we are keeping filled up. And I'm concentrating ONLY on people, who are worthwhile to be trained. I'm not even asking for public. I just want people who can be trained and a steady flow keeps coming in. You might say: "Oh, that's amazing, how come a steady flow keeps coming in. You must be getting good results." Yes, we're getting good results, but remember every time you get the people who WANT to do it, then you move into the next gradient of people, who may NOT want to do it, or they're in doubt. Well, every time the flow slows down a little bit, I just pick out a few guys, who are in doubt, and I just audit something off of them and then they come in. You see? It's that simple. And this is how easy it can be to Clear a planet. We are not talking about a lot of effort and a lot of - uhh, uhh - required - you know - and a lot of: "Ah, you didn't get your Stats up this week and therefore you don't get any family-time and you got to clean out the cellar." We're not talking about THAT way of Clearing a planet.

We're talking about doing it from an OT-level or caseless level, where the guy can operate as a Static. Static State. "Instant thereness" is one way, it is described or "communication without vias" is another way, it is described. "Vialess communication" or "vialess auditing" or whatever you want to decide. You see? Once you've finished Excalibur YOU are powerful enough to actually do, what the implanters were doing. You're powerful enough after Excalibur to control the lives of many people through their monitoring systems, but that's still a bit of an Overt, you see? And the monitoring systems didn't work efficiently anyway, they are only about 40% efficient, only more efficient in the cities, than they are in the towns in the country, because people don't get so restimulated in the country. So the implanters always worried about: "Are these guys gonna break out or are they gonna get us...", you know. They're not 100%. They just happened to be able to influence the top guys and they even had to put...they had to put some even PHYSICAL control methods in to ENSURE that the monitoring systems would work. You know, you've read about that in "Sector 9". I mean, THAT'S the physical control systems, they put in. But it's not efficient, that system. It only works with effort, effort, effort on every level. When you're at the state of no case and you have a Super Static idea of things, you don't need all this effort to do this. It's completely easy. It's f a s t. Totally certain. You have to know and do a good case analysis, you have to find out, what the thing is you want to handle, and then you find it and handle it and it's almost a few SECONDS only and then it's GONE and then the guy will experience: "Oh!", and then he'll move toward the Bridge if you want him to move toward the Bridge.

So I know this will be a very scary tape to people, who are considering their own Missed Withholds and their own Overt-actions and their own implanter-type tendencies - this type of talk will be very scary to them, that they could be influenced or their mind could be read. But let me ensure them, the reason they're feeling like that, is not because I'm saying this, it's because their mind is ALREADY being read, ALREADY they are being influenced and they ALREADY have so much case there, that they are caved in by it, and those monitor systems on those kind of people, who feel afraid by this, have TOTALLY WORKED...they are one of the people, who they are measuring in the "40% efficiency". "It's totally efficient on you fellows, you ARE in it and you have been monitored and that's why you feel funny, when I talk about this, because I'm starting to as-is part of it right now!" You see what I mean? That reaction you feel, when I'm saying I can read, what you're thinking and I pick up your ideas and I know, what your case is about, "that's because you ALREADY have that case there, that monitor system there and you better go up the Bridge and do Excalibur, man, or you are never going to get free like the rest of us." So don't be afraid of people, that are going up the Bridge. They're interested in basically the greatest good for the greatest number of Dynamics, ethical actions and getting people out of the games, that they're stuck in and that they're losing badly. You know, the people that feel they're losing. You know...they're sick, and they're tired, and they're this, and they're that, and they don't like it, and so on - we CAN get people out of those games and they can play the ones they like and the ones they are interested in and they will do it with a lot less effort, Ok? And you have to only realize there are only really TWO intentions in anything you go into on the planet. So don't be fooled. There will be an intention TO TRAP YOU OR TO MAKE YOU SMALLER. And the good guys though, they will have a different one.

They will have the intention TO FREE YOU AND MAKE YOU BIGGER AND EXPANDING. So don't get fooled by any of these "other practices" or anything, which have become popular in these last few years. Anything, that is trying to reduce your awareness, control you, to make you smaller, or to trap you, is operating with, or in agreement with the monitor systems, that are already installed on the 7th Dynamic. Just remember that and know also, that now on this planet, we have a Bridge and we CAN get people TOTALLY up to the point, where they don't have a case, and they can do things, which are very effective in helping OTHERS not to have a case, and clearing the planet, and OT-ing the planet, and Static-ing the planet, and getting it all up, you know? You see, one of the main games, that you didn't handle on the way down the Bridge - the way toward more aberration - one of the things, thetans didn't handle, was WHAT THEY HAD CREATED. And that became the MEST-universe. So the bits of your responsibility are laying in the MEST-universe and that's why you're in it. You have a job to do there, so you better get on up to the levels, where that's done and finally finish the cycle on that, alright? Meanwhile it will remain here as a playing field getting thinner and thinner, as people go up the Bridge and take the parts, they're responsible for, out of it. And so, if you feel the MEST-universe is getting a little thin or s l o w l y changing or things are going unreal, or if things are getting a little bit out of hand and you don't understand why the political parties are acting differently than they were last year, or there are some w e i r d cycles going on, on this planet, that you don't know anything about or you might hear about unidentified flying somethings around or strange effects happening in politics and so on like that - don't worry about that, don't worry about it at all. We're saying, that it WAS all under control BEFORE and you felt "secure", when you THOUGHT there was going to be a "one-world-police-state", but that isn't going to happen now. You are going to be REALLY SECURE in your freedom and your independence and your ability to choose your own games and do it self-determinatedly or pan-determinatedly.

So there ARE changes happening, just as predicted in "Sector 9" and the "Debrief" I made a few years ago and now there ARE changes happening, that are - you can actually read about in the newspapers, if you care to - and these changes are coming about because of LRH's Tech and because of the Bridge and people going up the Bridge. The monitor systems are being taken away bit by bit and so people are coming out from that suppression and things are starting to happen more on a pan-determined and self-determined basis. So don't be surprised. It's apparently a confusion. It LOOKS confusing, because the stable datum of the "one-world-police-state" is NOT there anymore, but the stable datum of FREEDOM AND THE BRIDGE I S there for you. And if you come up the Bridge, you will certainly start to understand - and as you go on up the Bridge - then you will fully understand, what it was all about in the first place. Because people never were, or thetans never were, BODIES. They USE a body in the game, they use it, just as you would use a good tool to handle something in the game. But you're not the body, so don't let people tell you: "You are the body", you see? That kind of false data is what is keeping people trapped. They don't realize they are a spirit, or a being, or a thetan. They don't realize, that they don't HAVE to be told, that they evolved from a lower form of life. No! All of that is FALSE. The real truth comes, when you go up the OT-levels. You find out, what the real truth is, and then the best indicator of that actually being the truth is: "Are you able to produce the result with it?" Damned right. There's a lot of results happening right now. OK. So if there are no further questions...anybody thought of a question while I was extemporizing there?

< Is there somewhere on the Bridge, where you can heal people from a distance? People who basically never got any auditing and are having a lot of trouble physically? And you would like to help that person to stop that pain or something without to go to the doctor, until all is handled? >

Would you identify yourself, please, to the microphone?

< Mu name is Mohammed Bouderba...I'm from Marocco, but I'm helping people out in the moment in France. >

Very good, Mohammed. And "Inshalla".

< "Inshalla".>

It has always been a goal of people to be able to heal with a touch, and so on like this, and you've heard many stories of that in Bibles and so on. And I can tell you for true - that DID happen, that IS possible, you know? I'm not saying ALL these stories were true, but they CAN be true and it probably DID happen in lots of cases, that people could heal by putting their hands, or prayers - or not prayers too much, but hands - and touching and intending whatever it was in that area of sickness to be well again and to help...

< Right! >

...help in a GOOD sense. So this ability IS possible and you find out how it was done and why it was done and how it can be done. On the OT-levels you do find this out . It can be done.

< Good! >

But it requires...what it requires, is somebody to be at a high state of awareness regarding LIFE. They have to understand, that everything that exists, was created by thetans and it has something to do with them and has something to do with life and so on. And you have to also be WILLING to have it audited, in a way. They wouldn't know...the healers WOULD know only that they, as a being, were powerful enough to influence THAT particular life to being, were powerful enough to influence THAT particular life to come back to a normal state. Because they WANTED it to and they got it COOPERATING with them. Now we're working on a different basis here - that the person HIMSELF will do this with his own body at this level here - the C/O Cycle Rundown. The problem is: how do we do it at a lower level?

< Right. >

You see, a person CAN do it himself by getting up to that level and do it with his own body and he could probably do it with another's body. BUT they key-point is: Does the person have any counter-intentions to being healed?

All the stories I've ever read about great healers of the past - people who could heal by intention or by laying the hand on - always when the person came to them. they always ask first: "Do you want to be healed? Do you believe?" Now if the guy did that, he was in agreement. The thetan, who was running that body, was in agreement with the guy, who was doing the healing, so they could almost do a session there, you know? They were both on the same vector, the same intention.

< No counter-intention. >

No counter-intention. Now the point is though - as the doctors will tell you - the problem is that EVERY level of case - of course - have some points of counter-intentions, that are unknown to the person in there. And if a CASE is influencing the PROLONGATION of a disease, or the actual BEINGNESS of the disease, then you have a VERY hard time getting the person to handle the other-determinism, that's coming on to this disease. And a lot of doctors will find the patient will get better, as long as THEY are totally with the patient. And they're doing this sort of "bypass" of the thetan, who's running the body and sort of get him - you know - in their space and they handle this and that and that and that and the guy says: "Ja, ja, it's better, it's better." Then he walks out the door away from the doctor, who - remember - is another thetan, who wants to help that person get cured, right? But now the person goes out of his space and the old other-determinism comes in again, right? From his case, right? And so he goes out the door and he starts feeling bad again. So he has to come back to the doctor and feel good again and so on it goes like this. Now if a doctor really wants to heal someone and not just make money on the guy keeping coming back, you see - he WOULD be interested in going up the Bridge and learning how to apply this data at that level of "a person not having had auditing". Now, we haven't worked out exactly how that can be done, but there are two doctors going up the Bridge now, that will be able to do that. So I hope in the future, we will have some technique to be able to handle - both physically AND spiritually - an illness on a person, who has had no auditing.

< I will be a doctor then. >

You will be a doctor. OK. Maybe it will take two doctors, you know, maybe a Gang-Sec-Check or something (laugh). No, it CAN be done. It just needs to be worked out exactly how to do this at a lower level of the Bridge on somebody, yes? Combining the basics of Scientology and the basics of medicine...what's all these other-determinism points on the case, that could keep the thing going, you know? Alright?

< Another thing we have seen. There's a lot of money spent on this "Cancer", and they didn't get a result of the ability to heal this kind of thing. >

No!

< So can we help people in the future? >

Again, the doctors believe, that we CAN possibly do that, when we have all of this - both the spiritual and the physical resources necessary. It CAN be done. I mean, one thing that bears some investigation, as we know on the normal Basic Scientology, is, if you try to handle an ARC-break, that has an earlier similar, it won't resolve, until you get to the earlier similar, you see? Or a chain of Engrams will not erase, until you get to the basic on the chain. I think, with these "unsolvable" diseases, they just never got to the basic on the chain. The disease ITSELF may be OUT OF PRESENT TIME. The life-units, that are taking part in "being diseased", may be THEMSELVES out of present time. And they (doctors) just don't know how to get them into present time, so they can be cured, you see? I tell you one thing: Now you are certainly not going to get them into present time by radiating them, you might move them to a different part of the time-track, and they appear to get better, but they are really worse. So, you know most people, that have radiation treatment, they lose their hair and everything like that. Well, it did move their body to a different part of the time-track and now they're in a part of it, where they're losing their hair and they go anemic and other strange things happen, so they can't...it may have moved SOME of the cancer to that part of the time-track too, so it looks like the cancer is being handled, but they did just move it into another incident. So a lot of medicine is determined on the basis of: Which would be worse for the patient - to die from this, or this? Right? They do that. They have to find something that WON'T kill the patient, but WILL kill the disease. So if this SEVERELY affects the patient, but KILLS the disease, they go: "Ok, we'll try that." You see? The ideal scene in medicine, is to find something, that doesn't affect the patient at all, but handles the disease. But that's the IDEAL SCENE, it's an absolute. It's almost hardly obtainable. You have to have these things, that they call under the term "side-effects". Now the side-effects are these other - shall we say - not-optimum states, that come from the administering of the cure for this other thing, that you're trying to handle. So these side-effects in some cases, can be a lot worse than the thing, that you're trying to handle, you see? It's just a question of decision. But knowing that this happens, then they don't have the FULL handling, you see? A full handling would be to do it WITHOUT side-effects. With the addition of Tech into medicine, you may be able to find the ideal scene in all cases by analyzing it spiritually AND medically. Then you have an ideal scene combination, where you can have...it gets handled WITHOUT side-effects, you see?

< So all the doctors should be auditors in Excalibur. All the doctors should do Excalibur. >

Well, they should do the WHOLE BRIDGE.

< The whole Bridge, yes. >

So, yes, they should do the whole thing. That would make them very able. The thing is, that just healing by spiritual means alone leaves the dependency there. The guy didn't know how he did it, so he is going to say: "Hey yeah, you must be...

< Allah!" >

...Allah!" (Laugh) or "...something holy!", you know? Wait a minute: that's just creating MORE other-determinism here! It may be a BETTER other-determinism, but again that's a side-effect, you see? From a miracle-cure you also have a side-effect. The side-effect is: now the guy is going to go into another determinism or another practice. So that is also a side-effect. You see, the games are much bigger and much longer and much more remote, than these small games, that they're playing on this planet.

So these side-effects are like moving the thinkingness of a person from thinking about his disease, you know, to now thinking about all the things he has to do to keep up with his cult or whatever or religion or whatever he has now joined, because that handled his disease. Now which is worse on the case? Well, you have to decide again. You know? Again and that's a "side-effect". So you exchange one part of the track for another. Is the guy more interested in his spiritual freedom or his physical feeling? The Bridge takes into account BOTH of those all the way from Dianetics. Up the Bridge you have to take into account both sides - the physical and the spiritual. Now to combine that with medicine, we CAN do it properly, and we CAN find out, exactly how to do it without side-effects. A side-effect can only come, when the guy has a time-track or a games-track and it can only come, when he has a case. If he doesn't have a case, he ain't going to have any side-effects. But the problem, you proposed, was not that. The problem, you proposed, was, how do you handle a guy down the Bridge.

< Now we never before saw it all like that. >

Yes. That is the problem. So that is why the doctors are going up the Bridge to understand that. They've already researched in all areas of electro-psychometric medicine, naturopathic healing, all different normal medical techniques, and all of those other things, right? And they still have a certain percentage, that will not respond properly. So we now want to get to a standard in medicine, that will also be able to handle ANY case - resistive or not.

< Is that Dr. Prinz ? >

He's one of them, yes, he's one. He's on Solo now - Solo-Excalibur. Ok? Any other questions? The tape is about to be over.

< I think it could be interesting for other people to know, how many is on the Bridge now on the upper levels. >

Oh, thank you. That's very good. Yes. There's over a hundred people on Excalibur now at this date and there must be a dozen or twenty people, that have finished Excalibur and are onto OT 9 to 11. There must be at least twenty on that and then maybe ten, that are onto 12 or 13 or above and there are at this moment, there are about three people, that have finished the whole Bridge and there are several others - about four more - that are right behind on the top-levels, right, almost finished the whole Bridge. So it's been going now for about a year, since we started off the call for people to come in and get trained on Excalibur. But I've finished for myself last June and then we really started getting cooking on it. We knew we COULD get out of the whole thing and then we got cooking on getting people trained to do it. OK?

So I thank you all for being here and taking part in this and I hope that anybody, that hears this tape, will also get the purpose, that we CAN do something about the games and the planet and any condition, that is non-optimum and have a lot more fun in the future. And so I want to thank everybody, that enabled this to happen, including LRH.

And of course, as a thetan, we call him Elron Elray, because that is the name he prefers - and I thank him and I thank all the people, that helped all around here and supported us going up the Bridge: the people, the auditors, the C/Ses, the public, that came in and did it, and the translators, and the people, who did projects and everything, and from all the countries of Europe and from other countries too: New Zealand, America, and so on, and other planets. Yes, don't forget that. And other Sectors - we have a few guys here from other Sectors. So, if there's no other questions?...

That's the end of Administration Briefing No. 1

Plans for Teegeeack

This is going to be the most important planet in the Universe.

It will be the EXIT POINT, the training center for Auditors for the rest of the physical universe.

It will be a center of culture - of art, music, and knowledge.

Sector 9 will be a buzzing beehive of industry and activity again. The "game of games" will bring prosperity and a new future to this area.

I wish to thank all my friends in the Free-Zone and especially Capt. Bill, who carried on, in spite of great odds, on my behalf.

The tech is all in his hands and is ready for you now. I wish you all success with it.

When enough are ready for OT 17 and OT 18, I will return.

Until then, I'll keep the show on the road here, in this galaxy and others, to direct the attention and interest of all thetans toward what you - my friends - are doing there on dear old Teegeeack.

It was my home and it shall be again. Keep it beautiful and give it a New Civilization we can all be proud of.

By the way, you all can still communicate with me - haven't you ever heard of telepathy? (Joke).

Seriously though, I don't think you will ever be fooled again after you do the "Excalibur" level. That is the final barrier to your self-determinism, although some may want or need the OT Life Repair Capt. Bill worked out to fully appreciate your gains.

We all have a lot of work to do to prepare the way, so I bid you "Adieu", "Hasta Luego", "Auf Wiedersehen", and "Goodby" ... for now.

The future is ours, is theta's, is static's - forever.

Love,

AAV SERIES 1

THE HISTORY AND THEORY

OF

JANUARY 84

This is the history and a description of how Advanced Ability V came about.

In 1978 Ron was being audited on NED and he got ill. The more they tried to repair and handle with NED, the worse the condition became. The bank got beefed up, reads became smaller and smaller, then things stopped reading on the meter that should have read, his TA got high and stuck, somatics increased and the illness became severe. Sensitivity by can squeeze was very high and metabolism low. That was the result of trying to run engrams and engram chains with NED on someone whose case level was above clear.

I was urgently called out to where he was as it was considered that his life was in danger and when I arrived there was a doctor in 24 hour attendance.

The first thing I did was to look at the folders to see what had been happening in the recent sessions to try to figure out what the main BPC could be. I did a little assessment, found what read and indicated it as by-passed charge. This produced a small F/N and some immediate relief. That was the first assist. From the assessment and from folder study it became apparent that the main error was that an OT was trying to run engrams as his own when, if a person was clear then he would not have any engrams to run. It also became apparent from the way the engram chains had been running that there were indicators of jumped chains and the content of the incidents showed that these incidents belonged to different people or a different BT from one incident to another. One of the early sources of BPC that I checked on a meter was whether the incidents that he had been trying to run were misowned by him as his charge when they really belonged to BT/Cs. That read and indicated and started to bring the TA down and produced an F/N. That's one of the basic principles of AAV, the idea that a person who is clear or above, when asked to run something, especially a secondary or engram, will apparently find incidents and will often get mental image pictures or facsimiles to run. Thus you get the apparency that you can run Dianetics on a clear or above. If they are not his own incidents, they are misowned incidents. So, one of the early steps of the rundown is the location of incidents, especially engrams, which the person has tried to run as his own when they weren't. Early on the rundown it's not as important to locate whose incident (i.e., which BT it belonged to), as it is to locate the fact and have the PreOT recognize that he tried to own it as his own when it wasn't his and tried to run it as his own when it wasn't his.

This goes back to the axiom about ownership and persistence; assigning other authorship to a picture or saying that one created it when he didn't, causes a persistence (and it causes an increase in mass and solidity). If it is somebody else's picture and the PreOT tries to run it as if it is his own, that will add mass to it and the more he tries to run and erase it, the more mass is added to itbecause it is furthering the lie that it is his picture or that he created that picture when he didn't.

Early in the sessions it became apparent that an early action that should be done on AAV is to date/locate the point when the PreOT went clear. That in itself tends to blow off a lot of charge from the engram running after clear. After having date/located the point when the person went clear, you then ask the PreOT if he tried to run incidents after that point as if they were his own (when they weren't). The PreOT will usually scan up through his auditing track and blow off locks from his auditing track and will have cognitions about considerations he made in auditing and about why he had difficulty when he did and so on. It also clears up a mystery for him as to how come he "still had pictures after he was clear." Very often you have to clean the button "invalidation of clear" because the PreOT having gone clear at a certain point and then later, encountering BT/C's pictures or masses, will have decided he wasn't or couldn't have been clear after all. So there is often an invalidation or invalidations of his/her clear state that need to be cleaned off. Sometimes there is also invalidation by others. Usually, almost routinely, there are invalidations by the PreOT.

Doing the above brings about a resurgence, a rehabilitation of the state of clear, or similar. That's the essence of the first steps of the rundown.

One of the reasons why people who have completed III can get into trouble running engrams is because they thought that, having completed III, they must not have any more BTs/Cs. What a person achieves on III is not getting rid of all BTs/Cs. What they do achieve on III is that they get rid of those BTs/Cs who were:

a) hung up in incident II or I (which is not true of all BTs/Cs), b) sufficiently aware and awake that the PreOT could communicate with them readily and they could communicate in turn with the PreOT.

On III, PreOTs usually clean up the BTs/Cs that: are readily available and can readily go into communication and who have incidents II and I.

An early discovery on this level was that there's an earlier incident I; there's an earlier incident I that most PreOT don't run on III simply because it would never occur to them that there was an earlier one and incident I is labeled as "Start of track" in the materials. There's an incident I which occurred in an earlier universe than this one. On the subject of earlier universes, this is the fifth or sixth universe and incident I is at the "start of track" in this universe, so it isn't by any means basic on the chain.

The PreOT on III actually only skims the fat off and leaves all the others. It's not that the PreOT didn't try hard enough, he just wasn't aware of them and there's no way he would have been aware of them. An error that has often occurred in the AOs is that of forcing a person to go on trying to find and run more III. That can cause a pretty heavy mess up because it results in restimulation of BTs/Cs that ARE NOT AVAILABLE TO BE RUN ON III. When that has occurred one must repair the BPC of having been forced to go on and other out rud type BPC and rehab their completion of III.

Another phenomenon relating to BTs is that they are very suggestible. If you ask a BT for something the BT will try to produce it. They are not aware of being so suggestible. You ask or demand and the BT will try to produce what you asked for. So, even if the BT didn't have an incident II, if the PreOT demanded that the BT find it, the BT would produce something and even try to run it. It wouldn't be incident II, it would be whatever the BT thought he should come up with. If you asked a BT for "jello" with some intention and impingement, the BT would produce a picture - it wouldn't necessarily be a picture of what you or anyone else would think was jello, it would be whatever the BT came up with as "jello" although the BT didn't have a clue what jello was. Thus whatever a BT produces in response to a demand is not necessarily what one would expect, it is simply whatever occurred to the BT on your suggestion. Obviously if you demanded of a BT an engram regarding a "broken leg" the BT would produce a picture or an incident. It may not have anything to do with a broken leg. It may not have anything to do with any incident that has ever happened. It is just whatever the BT happened to think of when you asked for it. Thus demanding incidents of BTs when trying to run engrams can result in false incidents, dub-in and the weird nonsensical pictures that pcs get when being run on uncharged chains, overrun or forced to run something that is not available to be run. These symptoms have often occurred on PreOTs trying to run Dianetics or engrams after they went clear. The same symptoms can have other causes too; any of the usual Dianetic errors can produce the same symptoms. The PreOT might have a pain in his arm; an attempt is made to run "pain in the arm." The auditor asks for an incident that could have caused "pain in the arm" and weird pictures, strange shapes, masses and pressures turn on and the "pictures" shift and change around. Sometimes it can make some kind of sense in a weird manner or it can make no sense whatever. But there are no runnable incidents and there is no resolution of the somatic that they were trying to run out - and there is usually an increase of somatics, at least temporarily. Those are the indications of a PreOT trying to run engrams when he has none and BTs are being restimulated (who also do not have those incidents). It is also the result of BTs mocking things up because they are so highly suggestible. They are highly suggestible because they are in such a low state of awareness. As a person goes lower and lower in awareness he becomes groggy or dopey, below that there is a sleep-like state and lower there are various hypnotic or trance states in which the being is very suggestible - and there are much lower states of awareness, too. The point is that the lower the awareness, the more suggestible the person is. Suggestibility and other-determinism go hand in hand, also. The less aware a being is of what is going on, the more he responds to suggestion or command. In the "jello" example the BT is not aware that you said "jello" to him and that he mocked up "jello," that sequence just happens and the BT is not aware of it - except possibly in some very dim, distant, remote dream-like state. The mocking up of "jello" just happens automatically because the BT is way below awareness of what is going on. In summary, a BT will produce something (usually dub-in) when it is demanded that he do so. That is largely due to BTs being so suggestible and partly due to another factor.

The PreOT and the BTs are in contact with each other on a physical (body) telepathic basis. Telepathic communication occurs much more readily via a body than it does otherwise. In other words two people might not have enough power to be able to communicate telepathically but a PreOT can very easily communicate telepathically with a part of his body or with a BT in his body or connected to it. For some reason it puts them into direct contact via the body. Thus when aPreOT thinks a question such as asking for an incident, the BTs in or on his body will readily respond to the PreOT's think - they are in direct physical telepathic communication with the PreOT. This also makes it hard for the PreOT to sort out what thoughts are his and what aren't and causes other problems of confusion of identity.

When a clear is audited on engrams there is another phenomenon that can occur. Sometimes the engram or incident being asked for just happens to exist on some BT's time track; it goes into restimulation and the picture/incident turns on. It apparently runs. But if the PreOT makes the mistake of thinking that it is his incident (very easy to do), there is a misidentification of the PreOT and the BT and misownership of the incident occurs. Furthermore, other BTs tend to copy the picture/incident/engram and misown it as there own, resulting in persisting pictures or masses - normally they fade out in from 3 10 days, but it can be pretty confusing.

The points covered in the above paragraphs explain why, when a clear is audited on engrams, even though the clear doesn't have incidents in engram form, the clear readily "finds" incidents and pictures to run (even though these pictures usually don't make sense). The mere fact of the auditor asking for an engram to run, let alone insisting or demanding that one be found, might be sufficient for the PreOT to think there should be one and the BTs (in direct telepathic contact with the PreOT) obligingly produce their pictures or dub-in.

When you are auditing a case on AAV that has had engram running after clear those are the symptoms and phenomena that need to be cleaned up. There is usually considerable relief in doing so - much mystery is resolved and there is usually a considerable lightening up of pressures and somatics and masses.

So far we have covered: date/locating the PreOT's clear state and cleaning up any invalidation of it, cleaning up and repairing any misownership of incidents by the PreOT during Dianetic auditing subsequent to clear and we looked at some of the theory and manifestations.

After the actions covered above, the next part of the program consists of getting into a more detailed repair of past auditing. Specific sessions or auditing by a specific auditor are taken up and repaired with the appropriate correction/repair/BPC list.

For repair of a Dianetic session or chain or a period of Dianetic auditing, the Dianetic repair (L3) list is used. For L & N, its repair list (L4) is used - and so on. The repair list is assessed and handled by indication - on a Dianetic repair, for example, no further engram running is done or attempted even if the BPC found is "incident left unflat." That is INDICATED, NOT RUN. But at this point the PreOT is aware of the mechanism of misownership and is able to differentiate between himself and BTs. He therefore won't misown these again. At this point of the rundown you aren't trying particularly to blow BTs, though many of them do blow during this repair. You are trying to repair the BPC of them having been messed up on running (or trying to run) false chains or false incidents, wrong items, uncharged items and earlier similars demanded when there was no earlier similar. That produces a considerable amount of relief and usually gets rid of a lot of somatics - especially the vague, changing massy variety commonly resulting from rough auditing.

How one should go about doing this repair could be made very complicated; it's usually very easy and simple. Often all one has to do is to bring the subject up and the PreOT will start talking about a rough session or sessions or a chain or engram that never resolved in auditing. This past auditing repair is NOT just repair of engram running after clear; it includes any past auditing, whether it occurred before or after clear, that is charged.

The usual procedure is to locate a rough session or chain and using the appropriate repair list, assess and indicate the first reading line, then have the PreOT locate the BT or cluster that has that BPC and indicate it to the BT/C. That will normally produce an F/N. There may be more than one BT so affected and other BTs may need to be located that have the same BPC and indicate it to them, too. Continue assessing the list and handling it as above until that session or chain is handled or the PreOT is no longer interested in.

This repair step could be overdone in that it could be done past the point where the PreOT is no longer interested in the action. PreOT interest is the major indicator and must be present. One always consults the PreOT's interest before and during this step.

Very often during this step of locating and indicating BPC BTs will blow off simply on the correct indication of BPC. Although you can blow a lot of BTs, the main purpose of this repair action is to untangle the BPC due to auditing errors compounded by_ misownership. It's something like straightening out a tangled can of worms. Until the BPC on past auditing is handled there is a liability in proceeding on with other major actions on AAV. Auditing itself can be viewed as a time track and until earlier charge is handled, later charge will hang up and not blow. On AAV if there is BPC left on earlier auditing and one proceeds on with another or other major actions and then makes an error, the BPC can be pretty explosive or it can block progress. Thus there is a rule:

ALWAYS FULLY REPAIR PAST AUDITING BEFORE PROCEEDING ON WITH OTHER MAJOR ACTIONS ON THE PROGRAM.

That rule is modified by not continuing to repair past the point of PreOT interest - which prevents one from overrunning the repair actions.

Should any later action or session bog, the first thing to suspect is that there is an error in the session and the next thing to suspect is that there is some unhandled BPC from earlier auditing that wasn't repaired and locate and repair it. Next to an error in the current session, an error in an earlier session is the most frequent cause of a bog or upset during AAV auditing. This is VERY useful for the auditor to know and will enable one to quickly and effectively recover from a bog.

Most of the somatics that come up were not charged in the first place (i.e. not charged as Dianetic chains), weren't reading, often register as wrong items. Part of the reason for this is that the PreOT was trying to handle somatics that had other causes than Dianetic engrams. They're often pressures or masses that were caused by BT/cluster restimulation. A pressure in the head, for example, is probably due to the restimulation of BTs/clusters in the head and not due to a chain of engrams relating to the head. Although the restimulated BTs are in the head and the PreOT's head is hurting,what is wrong with those BTs is not necessarily anything to do with a head or heads. Thus trying to run anything to do with "a head" or "pressure in the head" would be a wrong item/wrong chain. If they tried to find incidents on their tracks to do with heads, that isn't going to run or resolve the PT pressure and would only complicate the BPC. One of those BTs in the head might have "pain in the foot" or something else, completely, wrong with it. So there can be quite a tangle on PreOTs that have had a lot of Dianetic auditing after clear. What you are trying to do at this stage of the rundown is to untangle the tangle.

A frequent source of BPC on PreOTs is when they were asked for an earlier similar when there was none or when it wasn't charged. Don't repeat this error during AAV. Questions usually F/N rather quickly and often without having to go earlier similar. Most things blow on clears and above by recognition or some brief discussion. Overrunning F/Ns, especially on ruds on a clear or above, can result in the feeling that he/she can't blow anything/can't get rid of anything. Also asking for an earlier similar when none exists if pushed, can only result in a jumped chain.

Thus clears and PreOTs frequently have considerable BPC on being asked for earlier similars. Usually it's just the PT occurrence that's charged. Asking for or demanding an earlier similar that doesn't exist is a frequently reading line and a frequent source of BPC that's encountered when repairing past auditing. And when you are doing a repair on past auditing and found a reading line, if it doesn't F/N on indication, there might be an earlier similar in an auditing session but it is unlikely that there would be anything earlier than auditing sessions that was similar. So if the PreOT goes BIs when you are asking for an earlier similar, be alert for and ask whether you are "asking for an earlier similar when there isn't any earlier similar?"! It will clean up and F/N on indication.

The most thorough way to clean up past auditing is to make a list of all the pc's past auditors (by name), noting the read on each as the PreOT names the auditor (or by assessing the list for reads). Include on the list "solo auditing," "self-auditing" and "ethics actions" - these often being heavily charged.

Start with the biggest reading name and repair that auditor's auditing, then take the next biggest reading and so on. This list could be made up from the PreOT's folders if these were available but that is factually not as effective as simply having the PreOT recall and tell you the names of his past auditors (which also gives the read on each as he recalls them).

You start with a reading/charged auditor, find out what auditing that auditor did and use the appropriate correction list or lists to repair that auditing. You might also need to additionally use an LIC if it was rough auditing.

There are two main indicators that you use during this action a) what the meter reads on and b) what the PreOT is interested in.

Using "Full Flow Tables" and FESes are mostly a waste of time and although that has been done earlier, it is not as effective as asking the PreOT and usually gets into a lot of unnecessary, uncharged and uninteresting actions - thus it tends to create BPC, rather than get rid of BPC.

As a note, when you repair a listing or L & N action there frequently is no right item to be found because each BT would have had a different item for the list or no item for the list, or, any item found could be right for one BT but wrong for everyone else. So repairing past L & N usually consists of getting rid of wrong items/wrong indications, rather than finding new items.

When "self-auditing" or "solo auditing" read, simply repair them as above using the appropriate (or most appropriate) repair list or ask the PreOT what the BPC or error was.

Repair lists can be too heavily depended upon. Much of the time the PreOT can spot what the error was or what the BPC was. Always accept and go by the PreOT's data and consult the PreOT.

A special note regarding solo on III. Aside from the usual errors or sources of BPC one would expect on III, there are also sources of BPC that one could expect in view of the AAV data so far, e.g., trying to run a BT/cluster on Incident II or Incident I when it didn't have them, when it was hung up in some other incident entirely, or when it had an earlier Incident I or when it only ran copies of other BTs' Incident II or Incident I. Sometimes a BT has read on " trying to run incident II (or I) when it wasn't reading?" and there is the additional question that came from original AAV research of "an earlier universe?" It turned out that some BTs were hung up in an earlier universe, not in this universe.

Mostly these BTs blow simply on Indication of the right BPC without any further action being required. The reason for that is that the BTs that you are encountering at this stage of the rundown, although they are low in awareness, are sufficiently high in awareness that they could almost run whatever was taken up in the past auditing that you are now repairing. Or they were aware enough that they could at least respond to it in a kind of a way, even though they couldn't run it. So they're almost ready to blow and usually, for example, it's sufficient for the BT to realize he was trying to run one thing when he was actually hung up in something earlier or that he was out of PT and he wakes up and takes off!

Whether you have completed all the steps/actions of repairing past auditing or not, do not continue this step if the PreOT loses interest in it. That is an indication either that this step is complete or that you have made an error that you need to repair before continuing. When successfully completed this step of repairing past auditing usually results in a pronounced resurgence for the case!

A later addition to the beginning steps of the AAV program is the assessment and handling of a 53 as the first action and review and clearing up of any misunderstoods on III as the next action followed by repairing any BPC on III before actually getting into AAV.

That completes the theory and description of the first major part of the rundown. Doing these steps thoroughly and well makes it possible to go on to successfully do the following steps of AAV. Conversely any trouble later in the rundown will often trace back to another BT or cluster who was hung up in some BPC in past auditing.

With the advent of tremendous amounts of sec checking and heavy ethics actions over recent times, it can be predicted that there will be much to clean up on PreOTs who have experienced these actions. The amount of BPC that could result from a lot of accusative sec checking and the tremendous amount of misownership of overts, cleaned cleans, asking for earlier similars when there was none, degradation, wrong items/wrong indications, etc., could be enormous. Enough to roboticize many PreOTs. But it could be handled using these same past auditing repair steps and would result in a spectacular resurgence.

VALENCES

JANUARY 1984

The next thing that we need to cover is the subject of valences. Last time we went over the fact that a lot of these BTs and clusters are not up to running incidents I or II or they don't have any incident I or II to run and that there were other things wrong with them. One of the most common things that's wrong with this type of BT is that they are OUT OF VALENCE and don't respond to normal auditing techniques.

It's already been covered in a lot of tech materials that the pc who is out of valence doesn't respond to auditing procedures which don't shift his valence and get him back into valence and that processing directed at the pc who is out of valence is really directed at the valence rather than at the pc. So, it's necessary to shift an out of valence pc back into valence in order to audit him or in order to do him any good. And the majority of these AAV type BTs or clusters are out of valence and have been for a very long time. So, that's the most common thing that needs to be handled on AAV: their out of valence-ness.

Now, a BT or cluster can be in the valence of anything, absolutely anything. He can be in the valence of a person, a group, a name, a body part, in the valence of any material object of any kind, he can be in the valence of anything to do with matter or energy or space or time. In other words a BT can be being anything. Or, they can be in the valence of nothing. And a lot of them are, because they considered at some point that they didn't exist and they were nothing. So, they can be in the valence of anything or in the valence of some kind of a nothing or they can be in the valence of a significance. A BT could be being, for example, happiness or sadness or they could be in the valence of a word or a phrase or a cliche or anything.

Actual examples of valences BTs were found to be in were things like "a man of steel," or "a man of his word." Another example is a BT who was in the valence of "nobody" and the thought he was nobody. A BT was in the valence of "a busybody." And you also get a dramatization by the BT of the valence that he's in and all the homonymic dramatizations that are possible upon that, plus any kind of alter-is of that dramatization due to the BT not understanding the word or phrase that he's dramatizing, and, but especially literal interpretations. BTs tend to be very literal in their interpretations.

So, a BT that's in the valence of "a man of steel" would not necessarily be a strong character. He would be being something like steel. He would think he was a steel man. BTs can be in the valence of body parts or organs such as skin or a foot or a leg or a hand or a heart. One BT was being a broken heart. Another one was being a weak stomach. A BT can be a condition, like a stomach ache or a sore gut or anything. The whole point on the subject of valences is that one has to realize that a BT can be in the valence of anything in the broadest possible sense and that includes not only things but significances and nothingnesses and so on.

Now, when it was discovered that what was wrong with the majority of these BTs is that they were out of valence, this actually was quite a breakthrough that opened the door to handling them. The handling for BTs out of valence is simply to have the PreOT first of all locate a BT by whatever means and to fix his attention on that BT, including right down to naming the area of the body where it is, so you have the PreOT not only get in comm with or get in touch with the BT but also just to pinpoint down were it is, to sort of focus his attention on it and then the next action is to ask that BT a listing question, which is, "What are you?" and very often the first answer is the item. In fact, when you first start running this particular technique on AAV, it's almost always the first item on the list, the first answer to the "What are you?" question.

The question reads and when the PreOT states the answer it will read and it will usually give a small FN. Sometimes it's necessary for the PreOT to acknowledge the BT's answer in order to get an FN.

So, the steps are to ask to have the PreOT locate it, pinpoint where it is, put his attention on it and then ask it, "What are you?" The BT answers, the PreOT tells the auditor the answer or answers and then the auditor has the PreOT acknowledge the BT's answer or item. This item will read. It won't necessarily BD and very often doesn't BD. Usually it gives a fall and if there's no FN, the acknowledgement will usually produce an FN.

Now, at this point, the BT shifts back into valence or comes out of the valence that he was stuck in. Very often the BT will blow at this point. For example, say you ask "What are you?" and he says, "leather boots" (the statement of the valence that he's in), then the BT very often realizes, "But I'M NOT LEATHER BOOTS," or some version of that. It's a type of cog. He says what he is being and at the same time or right after, realizes he's not that after all and very often he will blow at that point . If the BT doesn't blow at that point, the next question is "Who are you?"

The theory of this is that you've now shifted the BT out of the valence he was stuck in by finding it and now you ask him "Who are you?" and the BT, in answering the question, cognites "I'm me!" When he cognites, "me" meaning "me" for the BT, he goes Clear and blows. That's another discovery on AAV, that you're actually clearing BTs, they go clear and they blow. And this particular procedure of asking "What are you?" and "Who are you?" in AAV is called the valence technique.

Sometimes you ask the BT, "Who are you?" and he comes up with some answer other than "me" or "myself" - he might says he's a great warrior or John Jones or something like that and what he's doing is simply answering you with a valence or entity off his track. One acknowledges it and then asks him "Who are you?" Sometimes they come up with "me" or "myself" very quickly and sometimes they'll give other answers, which you acknowledge and you ask the question and they answer and you acknowledge and you ask the question and acknowledge and at some point they'll either blow or they'll come up with the answer "me" and blow. It's not so much an answer as it is a cognition. The BT cognites. He either cognites that he's not what he was being or he cognites he is himself. Either of those cognitions will produce a blow. Sometimes the BT will go as far as cogniting that he is himself but may need to have that acknowledged by the PreOT in order to get an FN and a blow. On rare occasions, it's possible for the BT to be asked "Who are you?" andanswer "Me" without blowing. The PreOT acknowledges the answer and the BT might still not blow because he hasn't quite fully cognited on it. And the handling for that is for the PreOT to ack him encouragingly when he says "Me," and then to say something like "Your answer was fine, but I want to repeat the question again and when I do you can give the same answer again." Ask "Who are you and the BT says, "I am me," and then comes to realize, "Oh! I really am me," and will either blow then or blow when the PreOT acknowledges it. And that's the extent of the valence technique and it's the most commonly used technique in AAV. It's not necessarily engaged in at the beginning of the rundown. In the actual development of this level, the valence technique was developed after all the past auditing repair steps were done. The way that AAV is currently being run at Flag and in the AOs is the auditors tend to jump in and run the valence technique right from the start on anything and everything that they lay their hands on. That's actually a departure from the research and development of AAV and in my experience, it's not as successful. It's better to handle the repair of past auditing purely as what it is. By then you've handled all the BPC on the cases and now you're starting in on new BTs and clusters that haven't been audited before or messed up and you handle them with the valence technique.

Q: Does it sometimes happen that a BT who has been contacted on the repair of past auditing but who doesn't blow causes trouble?

No, I've never seen that happen. The only time I've seen any trouble occur is when you haven't cleaned up the by-passed charge on a BT. You may have only found some of his BPC, but not the rest of it, such as having repaired a list error on a BT or an engram running error on the BT but he also had out ruds in the session or some other charge on the L4 or the L3 or whatever.

Now there's a danger in the valence technique or in all of AAV there's a danger and that is that the PreOT has to limit his attention to one BT at a time and run one at a time. If, for example, he had his attention spread over two or more BTs at the same time and they all got the question "What are you?" you could get a multiplicity of answers, each of which is right for one individual but not right for the others. So, it's essential that the PreOT be able to limit his attention to one BT and run one at a time. And I think that one of the things that's going on in the sort of squirrel version of AAV in the field is that they're running them sort of wholesale and en masse, willy nill. They're just telling pcs, because one of the things they've found out from debriefing PreOTs is that you ask them "What are you?" and "Who are you?" and all that. What it can do is it can stir up a whole lot of them at once and not handle--or maybe handle one and not the rest or whatever.

So, it's a liability. The PreOT has to be able to limit his attention to one at a time and audit it to a blow before taking up another one. If the PreOT is weak on this, the most easy and simple handling is for the auditor to give him an R-factor to limit his attention to one BT and repeat this from time to time, as necessary just to ensure that the PreOT is limiting his attention to one at a time. Most people can do that if they know that's what they're supposed to do. If the PreOT is weak on it, there's a remedy which is to do the TR8Q drill from the assessment drills bulletin. It's actually a modification of the TR8Q drill from that bulletin. It's simply a matter of drilling the PreOT to put his attention on one spot at a time. The drill basically is a matter of a coach placing his finger somewhere near the PreOT's body and asking him to put his attention on his finger, andacknowledging it and moving the finger and having the guy put his attention on the finger. It's simply an attention drill. After drilling the guy on locating his attention in one spot for a while, his ability to do it improves and this boosts his ability to run AAV.

That's not routinely done in audited AAV, but is a possible remedy.

Clusters can also be handled with the valence technique very often. In other words, often a cluster is stuck in a valence and will respond to the "What are you?" question. Sometimes it's necessary for the PreOT to concentrate his attention down to one part of the cluster and ask it the "What?"

and "Who?" questions of the valence technique to blow it and sometimes he has to blow the cluster bit by bit. Sometimes the cluster will be stuck in one valence which is common to them all, come out of that and then when he starts to ask "Who are you?" it starts breaking up and he has to ask the individuals "Who are you?"

With a cluster you sometimes get what's called a partial blow, which is part of it will blow, some will partly blow and some will not. It's just a matter of picking up the individuals and handling them one at a time with the "Who are you?" question. Sometimes a cluster will blow part way out from the body on the "What are you?" question and the PreOT has to reach out from his body to where the cluster now is and ask it, "Who are you?" in order to get a further blow. Another phenomenon that can occur with a cluster is that on the "What are you?" question or on the "Who are you?" question, the cluster will start moving out from the body and then will just sort of suddenly blow explosively and the whole thing will just sort of explode apart and break up and the individuals will start flying off in all directions and the thing just sort of blows up and it's kind of described as an explosive blow. That'll usually be accompanied by a big BD on the TA or a series of BDs of the TA and shouldn't be interrupted.

A similar phenomena is what's called an automatic blow. There are times on AAV when you get an automatic blow. It's a cyclic phenomenon that occurs as you're doing audited AAV and you start running something, it's often slow or sticky on a one-at-a-time basis and you handle one and you get a blow and it may go on like that for a session or for several sessions. Then it'll suddenly start going easier and faster and easier and faster and this will often culminate in what's called an automatic blow when you just suddenly start getting BTs and clusters blowing off all over the place. You get this kind of automatic blow phenomena and it can go on for a very brief period of time or it can go on for a long period of time. The reason it's important is because once an automatic blow starts, the auditor should do nothing. He should just sit there and let it occur. On the meter, it's very obvious when it's occurring because the needle will start surging. You may get a series of falls or long falls, but the needle will start surging downward across the dial, time after time and the TA, if it's high, will usually start pumping down. It will BD and BD. Sometimes the TA goes into a sort of pumping action. It will BD down and move up and BD down and move up and BD. You'll see the TA doing a sort of pumping action. So you have the meter firing off and the TA moving and the PreOT talking about things blowing and so on. All the auditor should do, if anything, is to encouragingly half ack, very lightly and just let it go on. You don't do anything because you don't want to interrupt an automatic blow. When you get an automatic blow, you wait until it's ended and when it's ended, you simply end off the session. You DON'T DO ANOTHER SINGLE THING. And you usually end either on a dial wide FN or a floating TA after such anoccurrence.

Now, it's also true that after an automatic blow very often in the next session or sessions, you'll start out again having to handle individual BTs and clusters and it may proceed pretty slowly to start with and then the momentum will build up and you'll get another series of blows or an automatic blow.

Q: What causes that?

Basically it's because BTs and clusters tend to come in layers like an onion, is one reason and having taken a certain amount off, then the rest of that layer starts disintegrating and blowing. Another factor that influences it is that the mass of the banks of the BTs and clusters tends to hold BTs and clusters together and as you reduce that mass, then there's less to hold them because they have their banks in common and mass tends to stick to mass. Another thing that can influence it is that there is a certain type or category of BT or cluster, which, by its nature tends to actually hold on to others. Sometimes they even prevent others from blowing. An example of that could be a BT or cluster in the valence of a magnet and when you blow the BT or cluster being the magnet, then the others tend to fly off because there's nothing holding them. Another example would be a BT or cluster being a vacuum and other BTs and clusters being sucked into the vacuum, or for example, you might have a BT or cluster being sticky paper and others sticking to it and so on. And then there's a whole category of things on the whole track, usually connected up with implant stations, such as pole traps and other gadgets that were used to trap thetans or to make thetans stick them, such as electronic ribbons, pole traps and so on. If a BT or cluster is being a pole trap or is mocking up a pole trap, very often other BTs and clusters who have some incident regarding having stuck to a pole trap at some time will see this picture of a pole trap and will automatically go and stick themselves to it. Those aren't by any means the full extent of the categories of BTs and clusters that tend to hold onto others. There are many types of things a BT or cluster could be being that by its nature tends to hold on to others. If you blow the BT or cluster that's holding the others stuck together, then the others tend to fly off.

Also, as a tip for the auditor: If he's having undue difficulty blowing BTs and clusters, he can suspect that there might be a BT or cluster that's holding the others or sticking them or preventing them from blowing. You can ask the PreOT if there is such a BT or cluster and if there is, audit that one and blow it. Either you'll get an automatic blow or the others will now run much more easily.

Now that covers the automatic blow phenomenon, and we've largely covered the valence technique. There are a few other little oddities that go along with it. One of these is when the BT says, "I'm me," sometimes he's operating on an MU on the word "me." He says, "I'm me," meaning the PreOT and he doesn't really mean himself. Sometimes you might have to get him to repeat the answer to the question again.

That brings up the subject of a misidentification. The word misidentification is pretty common in AAV. The concept of it is going back to the theory of the valence technique, when a person is outof valence, he's misidentifying himself with an identity other than himself. If the person thinks he's a cook, then that's actually a lie. He's not a cook. He's a being, basically. He can be a cook and if he's doing it knowingly, that's fine. That's usually considered to be his beingness. When he's doing it unknowingly, it's a valence and is aberrative. That's a misidentification of himself with a valence. A BT or cluster--or any thetan for that matter, can misidentify himself with anything under the sun. That's a mistake and needs to be cleared up. Clearing it up usually brings a big resurgence in any person or being or thetan. Likewise we covered the fact that earlier in the AAV theory the point that a person who's Clear, when audited on engrams, tends to misown the charge or the engrams as his own. That's a type of misownership of charge or picture or incident. Now we're talking about misidentification which is identifying oneself with something which one is not and that's another basic error a thetan can make and it will hang him up. It's what's hanging him up, undoing it sets him free.

These two things of misownership and misidentification are actually two aspects of a more general term, which is called MISCONCEPTION or misconceptions.

There are several basic misconceptions a thetan can make. These are primarily a misconception of matter, energy, space, time, form, event, location or identity. All misconceptions could be classed under one of those with a possibility that you could add a misconception of thought or significance as well. Examples of misconceptions that we've already covered are the misconception of misowning an incident as one's own, when it actually belongs to a different being. Another example: the BT or thetan thinks "I am Mamie Glutz" and he is not Mamie Glutz and never was Mamie Glutz. Mamie Glutz is the identity or valence of some other person and that will hang him up. Hence, the importance and workability of the valence technique, because it separates out false identities or false valences and returns the person to his own identity.

This goes so far that a BT, being very, very suggestible, can form a tremendous number of misconceptions. An example is that a thetan or BT could run into another thetan who received an implant and on simply perceiving that this other person had received this implant, could assume that he'd received that implant and would try to run it as his own if he's audited on it or if he's asked for one in auditing. This also explains why the running of uncharged items in auditing causes so much BPC because it actually makes thetans or BTs form misconceptions about their own past. The auditor will often encounter this when he's trying to handle a BT on AAV. He may also run into it on the valence technique or anywhere else and when something isn't running or it's getting more solid or he runs into difficulty, the first thing that one should suspect is that he's running into a misconception. that he's trying to handle isn't what it appears to be.

There are other things that hang up BTs also. There are overts, there are motivators, there are engrams, etc., all the things that are common to a bank can hang up a BT and be the things that are wrong with a BT. In other words, anything that can be wrong with a preclear's case can be wrong with a BT, because, after all, a BT is a pc with a case. When it doesn't resolve, you have to assume that it isn't what it says it is or looks like it is.

If a BT is running a motivator and it doesn't resolve, you'd immediately suspect either a) that he didn't have that motivator and it could be somebody else's motivator or a totally dreamed upmotivator and that what he really should be running is an overt, or, conversely, you could be trying to run an overt and it doesn't resolve and gets more solid and that's not what's wrong with the guy. It's a misconception and you should actually be running the motivator. That can have any number of variations. Anything that a person could think up could be what you run into, because after all, you are dealing with anything they could think up in the past.

So, those are the misconceptions. The sub;ject of misconceptions is actually the very basic principle of AAV; it's even more fundamental than the valence technique.

The most fundamental thing that you're doing in AAV actually is you're straightening out misconceptions.They're usually misconceptions of time, place, form and event; more broadly, matter, energy, space and time and identity.

That's useful to know as theory because then no matter what the auditor runs into, he can straighten it out if he knows he's trying to straighten out misconceptions. Also BTs have false data, which is simply another misconception and they can have anything else wrong with them for that matter. But I mention false data because the discovery of false data and the handling of false data actually originated in AAV. It was something like trying to handle a BT and the BT thought that blah blah blah and it had this as a sort of fixed idea and it was necessary to find out,"Well, when did you get this idea?" or "When did you start believing that?" or "Where did you get that idea from?" at which point the BT would kind of get some sort of recollection of how he came by that idea and would shift off of being so stuck on the idea that it would then be possible for auditing to occur or to continue.

They might blow on cleaning up their false data but usually cleaning up their false data makes it possible to do something else with them. I could make up an example of how that would be for illustration. The BT had a false datum, "I can't talk," or "communication isn't possible" or "questions can't be answered." Any of these might block the PreOT from asking the BT "What are you?" and getting an answer to the question. Just shifting that false data enough without even necessarily blowing it or doing much about it would make it possible to audit that BT and get him able to answer the question and then to proceed on and blow him. That's another point, with regard to AAV: while a BT can have anything at all wrong with him (all of the things that cases can have wrong with them); the auditor's job is only to shift or unburden what's wrong with that BT's case enough that he can get to do a technique on the BT which will blow it because it's the blowing, the clearing and blowing of the BT that's the real target, not trying to run up hours on the BT. So, that needs to be watched out for.

As a caution on that, auditors shouldn't get so fixated on relying on the simple valence technique of "What are you?" "Who are you?" that they just do that exclusively. If a BT does run into trouble on it, then of course they have to resort to other auditing tools. All the usual things can apply, out ruds or anything else. Most generally speaking, the things that can be wrong with a BT or any other case are all the things that are listed on a 53. One doesn't normally jump to a 53 at the slightest hint of trouble, but if all else fails, you can have the PreOT put his attention on that BT and you can assess a 53 on it, find out what's wrong with it and handle it and then back to your technique and blow it. That's a "when all else fails."

There again, if you're doing a 53 on AAV or any other prepared list on AAV, it is very essential that the PreOT concentrate on having his attention on one BT or cluster, because as is obvious, a 53, having many things on it, could apply to many, many BTs and you don't want to go into stirring too many up at once.

The next subject heading is what's called over-restimulation and cross-restimulation. Over-restimulation is the condition or situation of having stirred up too many BTs. That's all it is. It's too many BTs in restimulation at the same time. When over-restimulation has occurred, it can become impossible to audit. In other words, there are too many in restimulation, there's too much charge in restim, the PreOT's ability to handle and blow things goes down and simply with the numerical factor of too many different things in restim, it's impossible to handle anybody. For that reason, sessions on AAV are generally fairly short and are never carried past a win or a good win and certainly never carried past a big win.

Another thing that will bring over-restimulation about is rough auditing on AAV. If the auditor is out of ARC or choppy or breaks the code, that can bring about over-restimulation very quickly.

About the only handling for over-restimulation, really, is to end the session and let some destimulation occur. It's better not to get into over-restimulation in the first place. A type of remedy that one, can do--and should try if he gets into over-restimulation is to indicate over-restimulation has occurred, and that'll tend to start cooling if off right away. Sometimes it will handle it and keys them out. Often it will just start them keying out. The other thing that you can do is say, "Come up to present time," and that will often bring a bunch of restimulated BTs out of what they're in and up to PT. That will kind of brighten them up a bit. And you should at least, if you've got over-restimulation going, indicate it and that will cool it off and then you can do the "Come up to present time" handling before ending the session.

What will handle it is ending the session and letting them destimulate before trying to audit again. That will usually occur within a matter of hours or a day and maybe as long as three to ten days for it to key out, but I haven't seen it go to actually more than a day.

Q: How common is that?

Well, it depends on the roughness of the auditing. It can happen to any auditor sometimes because often the BTs and clusters are so entangled and so enmeshed that when you start in a handling, no matter how good you are or how well you do it, it just stirs everything that's tangled into that mess together.

You should try to handle but if the TA starts going up and isn't coming down and the needle is packing up and the PreOT is starting to LOOK less sessionable, his indicators are going more out, things aren't blowing or it's getting grindy, you know it's happening and you should never force ona session or try valiantly to pull it off. You should realize that, hey, it's gone into too much restimulation and we'd better get out of this before if gets worse. The only thing you do is to try to cool it off. Sometimes simply two-way comming with the PreOT about what's happened in the session or what's gone wrong in the session or what's occurred, is enough to start keying it out and brightening him up right there and you can end the session off on a much better note. So, that's over-restimulation

I mentioned the word cross-restimulation and that's very much connected with the meaning of over-restimulation and it explains what happens. Cross-restimulation is when a BT goes into restim and another BT copies what that BT is mocking up or is in restim on. Another BT noticing this going on, jumps in, starts copying the first BT and the second BT and another one start copying that. It's called cross-restimulation because the restimulation starts going across, from on BT to another.

Sometimes it's called cross-copying, but it's generally referred to as cross- restimulation. That explains why over-restimulation is rough. You get too many in restim and they all start copying each other's restimulation and their own restimulation and it becomes an accelerating restim, plus, they get so confused that everything that each of them had in restimulation is in restimulation at once. That could be a whole series of pictures, fifteen or fifty thousand different engrams, any number of ARC breaks and ser facs and overts and everything else that is in the bank. These things are all going on at the same time and they're all copying it and they actually become so confused about which is whose or what's theirs that it's impossible to audit any of them. That goes back to the basic misconception (confusion of identity).

So, anyway, we were on what happens in over-restimulation and cross-restimulation and the point that there are obviously a lot of misconceptions flying around about what belongs to who and it's impossible to audit under those circumstances. Now, many of these errors that I've mentioned are the subject matter of the AAV Repair List and when all else fails, the auditor can do this list and it has things on it like "Over-restimulation," "Cross-restimulation," "Copying." Another example of what it has on it is "What was correct for one was incorrect for the rest" and it would be obvious when you look at it that BTs and clusters can easily get wrong items by copying other BTs and clusters' items. If you ask one BT "What are you?" and he says that he is a sword, another BT, if the PreOT has his attention spread too far, might get the item "a sword" and start going into some sort of protest of, "I'm not a sword," or he may go into the idea of "Oh, that's what I am, a sword." But it doesn't blow anything for him because actually he's in the valence of a rat or a cow or a broken pipe or whatever he happens to be being. So, wrong items, of course, is another source of BPC. Sometimes it registers as "What was correct for one was not correct for another."

If you got into trouble, you would assess this prepared list and then find out whose charge is was. And generally you don't have to do much with it, unless you've got a very heavy restim going on. What you would do in that case is asses the list and get "Cross-copying" and the PreOT says, "Oh, yeah," and then all of a sudden it starts clicking, like "oh, yeah, no wonder. That's why there are a whole bunch of pictures flying up. Oh, yeah. We were doing one in my elbow and my knee started acting up - oh..." and it just starts untangling. The auditor should, throughout the whole of AAV, and especially when handling prepared lists, the auditor should only do what's necessary forhim to do to start something unraveling and keep it unraveling.

The auditor doesn't need to be that active. He can easily be over-active or over-talkative in the session. It's very bad for an auditor in an AAV session to start firing off a whole bunch of questions like "Is it this?" or "Is it that?" and "When was it?" and "Where was it?" and "Tell me about it?" and this and that and the other, because each question he asks could be answered by an awful lot of BTs.That actually could be a cause of over-restim. The handling generally is simply just to indicate the line on the list and let the PreOT spot what's there or whatever. You may have to do a little something like say, "Well, acknowledge the BT's answer" or "Indicate to him that wasn't his item" or "that wasn't his valence" or whatever. If the BT wanted to originate, okay, let him originate and he originates and then acknowledge his origination. And that's generally what handles.

So, to sum up, we've now covered the valence technique, misownership, misidentification and misconceptions (which is the very basic principle on which AAV is based).

Another common error on this level is an error in listing, as the questions "What are you?" "Who are you?" are listing questions. Any question with the word "What" at the beginning of it is a potential listing question. This doesn't mean that it's bad or dangerous or anything else, it just means you have to realize it's a potential listing question. Sometimes it doesn't even act as a list, but it could. What happens then is and how you recognize it is, - the PreOT asks the BT "What are you?" and the BT says "an animal" - no read, then "some kind of nasty animal" - no read, "a skunk" LF. A skunk is the item. Often and usually it is the first item, and there is no problem.

The only time it's a problem would be if the auditor did something sort of forceful, like he prevented the PreOT and the BT from going on answering the question until he got the item. What we call forceful would be an actual thing that the auditor pushed off on the PreOT or on the BT and made him do.

Knowing that these questions can be a list, one can easily spot the indications of an out-list if it occurs and simply ask "Have we got a wrong item?" and if so indicate it was wrong. You usually ask: "Okay, what was the wrong item?" and you get, "Well, skunk was the wrong item." "Well, okay?" and the handling will very often simply be "What's the right item?" and the guy will say, "Actually it's a polecat" and you now have the item and the F/N.

But there again, when all else fails you use the short L4 as a correction list and it's not very common to have to asses an L4. Sometimes you can get into a sort of listing on the "Who" questions and it's very obvious because you ask "Who are you?" and you get the BT saying something like "a royal person," "someone in a royal family," "a daughter of a royal family","a princess." And that would be a list on the "Who?" question. It's not a great danger, it's just something you have to realize can turn into a list.

Earlier on when discussing misconceptions, an example was given of a BT giving off a motivator when what is really wrong with him is that he has an overt. if the BT is hung up in the motivator, and it isn't resolving or it's making things worse, you would simply ask the PreOT to ask the BT ifthat was somebody else's motivator or not his motivator and that might produce a response and a cog or you can have the PreOT ask the BT if there's really some overt that he's hung up on and it will read on the meter and usually the BT will instantly recognize it and start talking about the overt straight off. If you have to, you'd ask, "What is the overt?" and the BT would say, "Well, I did blah, blah, blah, blah."

There again you don't really need to go into a whole bunch of handlings on it. It's usually, "Oh, well, I was actually responsible for such and such happening," or "I murdered the priest and hid his body in the grove," or something, and boom! There's an FN, and the BT may blow on that alone or you'd go into the valence technique and blow him. So it's just the simple, obvious question that one would ask. It comes back to this idea of simply undoing the misconception. In other words, you're not trying to sec check the BT, you're just trying to un-do the misconception.

The reason these BTs are not available to the PreOT on III is that he just doesn't perceive them. There is a reason for this, which is that incident II, in terms of the BTs' time track, is a pretty recent occurrence. For those that are hung up in it, it's like the last major incident on the track for them. And you have to view it a little bit from the BT's viewpoint, which is that some of these have been BTs for a very long time. In other words, they went down the tubes as thetans way back and they've kind of been out of it, dead and gone and out of it for a long time. They're just sort of existing but not aware and so to them nothing has happened since. So incident II is pretty common and because it was recent in terms of their time track, it gets restim'd when the PreOT starts on III. That's the last, latest big incident for most of them.They are all run on it and everybody that has an incident II will run it and that sort of takes off a layer of fat. It goes back to the telepathic factor. The PreOT has the concept of incident II and III and that picks up all the guys that are available for that. He finishes III because he can't find any other BTs or clusters that respond to those incidents. When he knows the AAV materials then he has his attention on a concept which the remaining BTs will respond to.

The BTs and clusters on this level are dormant. This does not mean that they don't cause the PreOT any trouble. Quite the opposite. The more dormant a BT is, or the more unaware a BT is, the more trouble he causes. This is because the lower his tone level or awareness level, the more he has approached the state of an object and total reactivity and bank. If you look at it in terms of the tone scale, or the chart of attitudes, the further down a being is, the more he approximates all the things along the bottom of the chart of attitudes or the bottom of the tone scale. In actual fact, a BT that's way down scale would be very, very unaware of anything and is very very solid and massy. His bank has gone totally solid maybe. And that impinges on the PreOT's body and causes mass, pressure, somatics, etc , plus, because he has become a solid bank or solid cases or whatever you want to call it, he is very much stimulus-response. The degree of stimulus-response of a being is proportional to how far down he is. The more aware a person is, the less likely they are to act on a stimulus-response basis; and the less aware they are, the more likely they are to. For example, maybe it's a hot day, it just happens to be hot weather and that might restimulate heat and a fire and for a BT very down on the scale, that just automatically turns on all the times when he was burned, or fires, and it's an A=A thing. You know if a hot day equals being burned, equals a fire, equals the time his house burned down, equals when he got too close to a hot sun, equals a hot poker, equals everything else in his bank and they just automatically go into restim. So for the PreOT, it'sa hot day and he turns on a rash and his skin starts itching and then he feels burny and then he feels like he's been branded by a hot poker and just goes on and on and on. The worse off they (BTs) are, the more trouble they cause for the PreOT. That's part of the reason why you get a lot of gains on AAV; as you get rid of these things, the PreOT is much less subject to the kind of trouble that they can cause and do cause routinely.

There are a lot of different sort of levels within the whole scope of AAV and sometimes you'll handle a whole level or band of BTs that affect the PreOT's personality or personality characteristics, and when you have done that, you may suddenly encounter a whole band of things that affect his body and somatics and that sort of thing. Then you may run into a whole band of them that affect his intelligence or his stupidity level. Another band may affect memory. In other words they come in different layers, or bands, or levels, that affect different aspects of the case.

AAV SERIES 3

THEORY OF AAV

JANUARY 1990

AAV was developed to handle PreOTs who were audited on Dianetics after they had gone clear.

The end phenomena of AAV is cause over life.

This level deals with BTs and clusters who are below the level of being able to run incident II and I. These beings are dormant. They are dead, really dead, like pebbles on a beach. When you encounter a dormant BT you actually have to put some life into it to bring it alive.

The phenomena one encounters on this level may not be one's own but may be the difficulties of a BT or cluster.

The difficulties they have are in running their own life, or in trying to run yours. We ran into this in the 50's, running "not-there," "doesn't exist" type chains. It was a dormant something, a dormant channel that was better left alone at that time.

When a PreOT tries to run out a somatic using Dianetics, it is the somatic of a BT or cluster that he is trying to handle. For example, if a PreOT has a somatic in the forehead he may occasionally get a blow of the somatic by running it out on the forehead. But it may be a BT or cluster in another part of the body putting the somatic there on the forehead. There is another situation where the PreOT is mocking up the somatic, but that is something different.

Beings are handled on this level by telepathy, a mental transmission from the PreOT to the BT or cluster. The BT or cluster is impinging on the PreOT or the body and the PreOT can get impressions, communications and can blow BTs and clusters.

Another principle is what is called the "can of beans theory." BTs and clusters respond willy-nilly to a PreOT's intention. If the PreOT thinks "can of beans" into his body, BTs and clusters will mock up a can of beans. This can get quite confusing to a PreOT if he doesn't know about this mechanism.

The only situation where a PreOT is seemingly viewing pictures through his own viewpoint is where he's looking at the pictures of a shell BT. A shell BT is a BT which surrounds the PreOT's body. The PreOT misidentifies with the shell BT and thinks its thoughts are his own. Hence there can be confusion of viewpoint and an invalidation of the PreOT's clear state. This is possibly what mystics were referring to when they talked of an aura, a collection of BT's and clusters and their pictures and incidents surrounding the person's body.

A PreOT may think he was in the Spanish Inquisition and he will get a picture of it, only this won't be his own picture. It will be the picture of a BT or cluster. Now it may be true that he was in the Spanish Inquisition, but these aren't his pictures. This is a way a PreOT can invalidate himself after he goes clear. He goes clear and erases his pictures. Then he starts getting other pictures later on. He misowns these as his own and this invalidates his clear state. The difference is that the pictures he now gets are much smaller than his own were.

You are not likely to encounter beings like the ones you'll find on AAV in life, except for catatonics. They are not really dead, they only wish they were. They are in states of existence below death. The main point is that you are dealing with beings that hope and believe they are dead. They are revivified in a past time and place.

They try to be helpful by mocking up what the PreOT thinks. They are mostly benign. They can, though, create bad effects on a PreOT's body and can cause somatics which make it impossible for a PreOT to go fully upscale until they are handled.

A reach out by the PreOT or an attempt to become causative can cause BTs and clusters to react and to mock up virtually anything.

They can be handled on AAV.

AAV SERIES 4

DEFINITIONS SHEET

JANUARY 1984

1. Thetan-1. the individual, himself or herself, who exists as nonmaterial, yet operates and handles a body in the material universe. 2. the person, oneself - not one's body, not one's name, not the mind, not the physical universe. 3. the individual who is aware of being aware. (A Thetan is not a thing, rather a creator of things.) Note: The phrase "I have a Thetan" or" my Thetan" is incorrect since the person is a Thetan. The correct usage would be "I am a Thetan" or "myself as a Thetan."

2. BT-a thetan who is stuck to another thetan or other thetans or a body but who is not in control. (BTs stick to pictures, other BTs and clusters. A BT can go into a valence of anything - BTs can be being anything at all.)

3. Cluster-a group of body thetans crushed or held together by some mutual bad experience; a group of body thetans believing they are one. (The mutual incident is an engram which happened to all the Beings in the cluster and is the exact point in time and space where they "became one.")

4. Cumulative cluster-a cluster within a cluster. (A cumulative cluster is made up of other earlier clusters. It is a cluster to which other BTs and clusters have been added by later mutual incidents, all stuck together.)

5. picture-see mental image picture

6. mental image picture-TD

7. revivication-TD

8. dormant BT-a being that is revivified in a past incident. It is stuck in a past time and location. It is generally asleep, in a hypnotic state. When awakened or restimulated, it may copy some portion of the current environment (PT), although it "operates" from its past location. (Issues on drugs give examples of how someone in this condition thinks.)

9. copy-III pack

10. cross-copying-one BT copies another BT, an incident, etc., then another BT or cluster copies that copy and on and on. Copies of copies.

11. cross-restimulation-an incident in the present-time environment or a session error can restimulate BTs and clusters, who then wake up and restimulate other BTs and clusters, and on and on.

12. over-restimulation-TD

13. misconception-standard dictionary. Also, an incorrect idea about time, space, matter, energy, form, location, event or identity that hangs up a thetan.

14. shell BT-a being that surrounds the PreOT's body. Due to the similarity in position of viewpoint, the PreOT can misown a shell BT's pictures as his own.

15. misownership-Axiom 29 "In order to cause an As-is-ness to persist, one must assign other authorship to the creation than his own. Otherwise his view of it would cause its vanishment." This axiom is especially relevant to auditing at the level of AA III and above because at this level the PreOT is handling other beings than himself (BTs and clusters). It is necessary to establish correct ownership of charge in order to get an as-is-ness. Furthermore, incorrectly assigning charge to the wrong being can cause by-passed charge (BPC) as it is now misowned. Hence the instruction in the III materials that one must use a narrow attention span so as to handle one BT or cluster at a time and so as not to retimulate or confuse other BTs with the one being audited.

16. mis-identification-TD

17. mass-TD

18. ridge-TD

19. composite mass-a mass that is made up of several BTs, clusters, masses or ridges. The auditor has the PreOT separate out and handle one piece of the composite at one time.

20. layered cluster-just that. One cluster on top of another cluster. This is not a cumulative cluster. Each layer needs to be separated out by the PreOT and handled separately.

ATTACHMENT

1. zero attitude-This is the attitude the PreOT should have when handling AAV. This means a no-attitude. The less chatter that the PreOT gets into with this material the better.

2. Exteriorization only occurs fully when a PreOT has handled all BTs and clusters on this level. There is exterior visio which is caused by a BT or cluster who is only partially blown and who is looking at the environment from an exterior position. Actual Exteriorization occurs stably when all BTs and clusters are handled.

3. The body acts as a magnifier of the PreOT's perception.

\DEFINITIONS\

ATTENTION: TECH DICTIONARY

ATTENTION UNIT: TECH DICTIONARY

THETAN (0n): TECH DICTIONARY

BODY THETAN (BT): By BT is meant a thetan who is stuck to another thetan or body but is not in control
(HCOB 5.2.70, Iss. II.) BTs
stick to pictures, other BTs and clusters. A BT can go into a valence of anything - BTs can be being anything at all.

CLUSTER;

MUTUAL INCIDENT: A severe engram which happened to a number of thetans, the picture

(which they have in common), keeps them stuck together in that incident.
It has a precise date down to the second and fractions of a second and a precise location in space.

CUMULATIVE CLUSTER:
COMPOSITE (MASS): (See English Dictionary.) Used on this RD to describe masses or heavy somatics made up of a number of BTs, clusters, pictures, ridges.

LAYERED CLUSTER: Several clusters (and/or BTs) in layers, as one layer comes off another layer comes to view.

SHELL BT: A BT or cluster that surrounds the Pre-OT's body like a shell. A Clear can go into the valence of, and see the pictures of, this BT or cluster and mistake these as his own, as he seems to be in valence in the picture.

DORMANT BT: A BT or cluster in a totally dormant condition, they're really dead, in states of exitence below unconsciousness. They are out of PT (stuck on the track) and are stuck in the past location. They are in a perpetual reviv in that time and that location. They can be activated or awoken by the Pre-OT.

COPY: Thetans in the body (BTs) may obsessively copy the pictures of other thetans. Therefore you can find it seems that the thetan who just left is still there because there is a picture left. Spot the fact that someone else copied it and it usually goes. (Add. sheet, Sect.
III OT.)

CROSS-COPYING: When a number of BTs and clusters are restimulated or awoken, each can start making copies of each other's pictures and copies of the copies - called cross-copying.

CROSS-RESTIMULATION: One BT or cluster restimulating
another BT or cluster, who then restimulates another BT or cluster.

MISCONCEPTION: (See English Dictionary) and Axiom 38. The basic misconceptions are of identity, time, place, form and event; e.g. a misconception of place would be a thetan thinking something that happened in one place, happened in another place.

A misconception of event would be a thetan thinking something happened to him, which didn't happen to him or happened to someone else (Flow 2 or 3).

MISOWNERSHIP: A basic misconception of one thetan making the mistake of thinking another thetan's picture or incident or mock-up is his own.

MISIDENTIFICATION: A basic misconception of one thetan thinking he is another thetan. It's a mistake in identity. Thetan "A" thinks it is thetan "B". Or one thetan thinks he is more than one thetan,
etc.

VALENCE: TECH DICTIONARY

BEINGNESS: TECH DICTIONARY

IDENTITY: See English Dictionary and Tech Dictionary under "valence" and "beingness". It is that by which a thetan identifies himself.

OUT OF VALENCE: TECH DICTIONARY

BLOW: See Tech Dictionary. In this RD
it is used in the sense of a BT or cluster departing after being unstuck from other BTs and clusters.

PARTIAL BLOW: A BT or cluster not fully blown.
Sometimes one will leave from inside the body and stick or hang up on the outer surface of the body.
Or one will go as far as the wall or to some distance and hang around.

BLOWING BY INSPECTION: You don't have to do anything, you just look and it blows.

PICTURE: See Tech Dictionary under "Mental Image Picture".

MOCK UP: TECH DICTIONARY

SOMATIC: TECH DICTIONARY

RIDGE: TECH DICTIONARY

TIME TRACK: TECH DICTIONARY

REVIV (REVIVIFICATION): The bringing back to life of an engram in which a pc is stuck. The engram or some portion thereof is being acted out in present time by the preclear. It is called a revivification because the engram is suddenly more real to the preclear than present time has ever been. He relives that moment briefly. He does not merely recall or remember it. (HCOB 11.5.65) During research on NED for OTs I discovered that Dormant BTs are stuck in a reviv, i.e. they are stuck down the track in an incident which is present time to that BT. I also discovered that these BTs are reviv'd in a location, meaning that they are stuck in a past location. They are chronically stuck in a past time\and\place, which for them is still going on. It is "PT" and is where they are, as far as they are concerned.

INSECT: ON OT III "insect" means a thetan who is an insect, without a body.
These stick to other BTs and clusters. Sometimes you can run into a whole swarm of them.

BIRD: Similar to above - a thetan who is a bird, without a body, and sticking to other BTs and clusters.

ANIMAL: Similar to above - a thetan who is an animal, without a body,
sticking to other BTs and clusters.

ADVANCED ENTITY CLEARING

DEFINITIONS

26 NOVEMBER 1988

IDENTITY: 1. who a person is; what a thing is; individuality. 2. the collective aspect of the set of characteristics by which a thing or person is definitively recognizable or known.

ENTITY: 1. something that has a real and separate existence either actually or in the mind. [derived from Late Latin "entitas" derived from Latin "ens" derived from "esse" which means "be"] 2. a Being who has a separate existence and identity.

ENTITY BEING (EB):

MUTUAL INCIDENT: 1. a bad experience shared by several or many Entity Beings and/or groups of Entity Beings at the same time and place. 2. a severe engram which happened to a number of Beings. (The picture, which they have in common, keeps them stuck together in that incident. It has a precise date down to the second and fractions of a second and a precise location in space.)

CLUSTER-FORMING INCIDENT: 1. a mutual bad experience shared by a bunch of Entity Beings and sometimes already formed clusters. (It jams them together because they all shared it at exactly the same time and place; they all are stuck in the same picture and therefore they think they are "one." Being A is stuck in an explosion, Being B is stuck in exactly the same explosion and so Being A reactively feels he is the same as Being B, and Being B reactively feels he is Being A and so on with the other Beings who had the incident because they all have exactly the same picture. So these Beings misidentify themselves as all one and the same thing. It is not an analytically thought out conclusion, it is reactive identification.)

CUMULATIVE CLUSTER: 1. a cluster which is made up of other earlier clusters, each with their own cluster-forming incident. (It is a cluster to which other EBs and clusters have been added by later mutual incidents, all stuck together.)

VALENCE: 1. someone else's identity assumed by a person unknowingly. (A valence is a substitute self taken on after the fact of lost confidence in self or a failed valence or as a solution to a problem.)

MISCONCEPTION: 1. a mistaken idea or notion; wrong conception. (The basic misconceptions are of identity, time, place, form and event. A misconception of place would be a Being thinking something that happened in one place, happened in another place. A misconception of event would be a Being thinking something happened to him, which didn't happen to him or happened to someone else.)

MISOWNERSHIP: 1. mistaken ownership; a wrong ownership. (One Being thinking the charge is his when it belongs to someone else, or thinking it belongs to someone else when it is his own.)

MISIDENTIFICATION: 1. a basic misconception of one Being thinking he is another Being. (It's a mistake in identity. Being "A" thinks it is Being "B." Or one Being thinks he is more than one Being, etc.

FACSIMILE: 1. a mental image picture.

CROSS-REACTIVATION: 1. the condition wherein Entity Beings or clusters copy the reactivation of another or other Entity Beings and clusters and misown the charge as their own and intensify the amount of reactivation present. (Entity Beings or clusters mock-up pictures and reactivate each other. It takes three to ten days for this manifestation to dissipate.)

COPY: An Entity Being makes a copy of what was just run on another Entity Being, thus making it seem to the Clear that what just blew is still there. Get the individual to spot the copy or copies; this causes the copies to blow without further handling. (In the body, EBs may obsessively copy the pictures of other Beings. Therefore you can find it seems that the Being who just left is still there because there is a picture left. Spot the fact that someone else copied it and it usually goes.)

CROSS COPYING: 1. the condition wherein several or many Entity Beings or clusters automatically copy another or other Entity Beings' and clusters' pictures, valences, charge or whatever, thus further misidentifying themselves and misowning charge. (When a number of EBs and clusters are restimulated or awoken, each can start making copies of each other's pictures and copies of the copies - called cross-copying.)

COMPOSITE MASS: 1. a mass composed of a number of Entity Beings, or Entity Beings and clusters packed together closely. (Used on Advanced Entity Clearing to describe masses or heavy somatics made up of a number of EBs, clusters, pictures, ridges, etc.)

BLOW (noun): 1. the sudden dissipation of mass in the mind with an accompanying feeling of relief.

BLOW (verb): 1. to leave, get out, rush away, cease to be where one was.

PARTIAL BLOW: 1. an EB or cluster not fully blown. Sometimes one will leave from inside the body and stick or hang up on the outer surface of the body. Or one will go as far as the wall or to some distance and hang around.

BLOWING BY INSPECTION: 1. having something blow by just looking at it.

REVIVIFICATION (REVIV): 1. an Entity Being or cluster reliving some past identity or incident in which he/it is stuck. (He/it is down the time stream and cannot be found in present time.) 2. the bringing back to life of an engram in which a Pc is stuck. (The engram or some portion thereof is being acted out in present time by the Preclear. It is called a revivification because the engram is suddenly more real to the Preclear than present time has ever been. He relives that moment briefly. He does not merely recall or remember it. During research on Advanced Entity Clearing it was discovered that Dormant EBs are stuck in a reviv, i.e. they are stuck down the track in an incident which is present time to that EB. These EBs are reviv'd in a location, meaning that they are stuck in a past location. They are chronically stuck in a past time and place, which for them is still going on. It is "PT" and is where they are, as far as they are concerned.)

SOMATIC: 1. a pain or sensation in the body. (A somatic is caused by more than one Entity Being or cluster pressing against one another and/or the body.)

LAYERED CLUSTER: 1. several clusters (and/or EBs) in layers, as one layer comes off another layer comes to view.

SHELL EB: 1. an EB or cluster that surrounds the Clear's body like a shell. (A Clear can go into the valence of, and see the pictures of, this EB or cluster and mistake these as his own, as he seems to be in valence in the picture.)

DORMANT EB: 1. an EB or cluster in a totally dormant condition. (Dormant EBs are really dead and in states of existence below unconsciousness. They are out of PT (stuck on the track) and are stuck in the past location. They are in a perpetual reviv in that time and that location. They can be activated or awoken by the Clear.)

MOCK UP: 1.to get an imaginary picture of. 2. to create.

RIDGE: 1. a solidified accumulation of reactive energy created by two opposing flows.

TIME TRACK: 1. the consecutive, exactly dated, record of mental image pictures which accumulate through the Preclear's life or lives.

INSECT: 1. a Being who is an insect, without a body. (These stick to other EBs and clusters. Sometimes you can run into a whole swarm of them.)

BIRD: 1. a Being who is a bird, without a body, and sticking to other EBs and clusters.

ANIMAL: 1. a Being who is an animal, without a body, sticking to other EBs and clusters.

DIANETICS AFTER CLEAR

JANUARY 1984

Running Dianetics on a clear can worsen the case. As the person is clear he doesn't have any pictures of his own to run, so, if he is run on dianetics it is not his pictures that are being run, but the pictures of BTs and clusters.

Running chains past erasure will cause BTs and clusters to dub in further incidents giving them false incidents. BTs can actually create a whole synthetic track which will need repairing with a Dianetic repair list.

Mis-assessments and running unreading items will give BTs and clusters wrong items and these will need to be repaired on AAV.

The PreOT can misown and misidentify these pictures and incidents as his own when they are the pictures and incidents of BTs and clusters.

AAV SERIES 2

JANUARY 1984

The next thing that we need to cover is the subject of valences. Last time we went over the fact that a lot of these BTs and clusters are not up to running incidents I or II or they don't have any incident I or II to run and that there were other things wrong with them. One of the most common things that's wrong with this type of BT is that they are OUT OF VALENCE and don't respond to normal auditing techniques.

It's already been covered in a lot of tech materials that the pc who is out of valence doesn't respond to auditing procedures which don't shift his valence and get him back into valence and that processing directed at the pc who is out of valence is really directed at the valence rather than at the pc. So, it's necessary to shift an out of valence pc back into valence in order to audit him or in order to do him any good. And the majority of these AAV type BTs or clusters are out of valence and have been for a very long time. So, that's the most common thing that needs to be handled on AAV: their out of valence-ness.

Now, a BT or cluster can be in the valence of anything, absolutely anything. He can be in the valence of a person, a group, a name, a body part, in the valence of any material object of any kind, he can be in the valence of anything to do with matter or energy or space or time. In other words a BT can be being anything. Or, they can be in the valence of nothing. And a lot of them are, because they considered at some point that they didn't exist and they were nothing. So, they can be in the valence of anything or in the valence of some kind of a nothing or they can be in the valence of a significance. A BT could be being, for example, happiness or sadness or they could be in the valence of a word or a phrase or a cliche or anything.

Actual examples of valences BTs were found to be in were things like "a man of steel," or "a man of his word." Another example is a BT who was in the valence of "nobody" and the thought he was nobody. A BT was in the valence of "a busybody." And you also get a dramatization by the BT of the valence that he's in and all the homonymic dramatizations that are possible upon that, plus any kind of alter-is of that dramatization due to the BT not understanding the word or phrase that he's dramatizing, and, but especially literal interpretations. BTs tend to be very literal in their interpretations.

So, a BT that's in the valence of "a man of steel" would not necessarily be a strong character. He would be being something like steel. He would think he was a steel man. BTs can be in the valence of body parts or organs such as skin or a foot or a leg or a hand or a heart. One BT was being a broken heart. Another one was being a weak stomach. A BT can be a condition, like a stomach ache or a sore gut or anything. The whole point on the subject of valences is that one has to realize that a BT can be in the valence of anything in the broadest possible sense and that includes not only things but significances and nothingnesses and so on.

Now, when it was discovered that what was wrong with the majority of these BTs is that they were out of valence, this actually was quite a breakthrough that opened the door to handling them. The handling for BTs out of valence is simply to have the PreOT first of all locate a BT by whatever means and to fix his attention on that BT, including right down to naming the area of the body where it is, so you have the PreOT not only get in comm with or get in touch with the BT but also just to pinpoint down were it is, to sort of focus his attention on it and then the next action is to ask that BT a listing question, which is, "What are you?" and very often the first answer is the item. In fact, when you first start running this particular technique on AAV, it's almost always the first item on the list, the first answer to the "What are you?" question.

The question reads and when the PreOT states the answer it will read and it will usually give a small FN. Sometimes it's necessary for the PreOT to acknowledge the BT's answer in order to get an FN.

So, the steps are to ask to have the PreOT locate it, pinpoint where it is, put his attention on it and then ask it, "What are you?" The BT answers, the PreOT tells the auditor the answer or answers and then the auditor has the PreOT acknowledge the BT's answer or item. This item will read. It won't necessarily BD and very often doesn't BD. Usually it gives a fall and if there's no FN, the acknowledgement will usually produce an FN.

Now, at this point, the BT shifts back into valence or comes out of the valence that he was stuck in. Very often the BT will blow at this point. For example, say you ask "What are you?" and he says, "leather boots" (the statement of the valence that he's in), then the BT very often realizes, "But I'M NOT LEATHER BOOTS," or some version of that. It's a type of cog. He says what he is being and at the same time or right after, realizes he's not that after all and very often he will blow at that point . If the BT doesn't blow at that point, the next question is "Who are you?"

The theory of this is that you've now shifted the BT out of the valence he was stuck in by finding it and now you ask him "Who are you?" and the BT, in answering the question, cognites "I'm me!" When he cognites, "me" meaning "me" for the BT, he goes Clear and blows. That's another discovery on AAV, that you're actually clearing BTs, they go clear and they blow. And this particular procedure of asking "What are you?" and "Who are you?" in AAV is called the valence technique.

Sometimes you ask the BT, "Who are you?" and he comes up with some answer other than "me" or "myself" - he might says he's a great warrior or John Jones or something like that and what he's doing is simply answering you with a valence or entity off his track. One acknowledges it and then asks him "Who are you?" Sometimes they come up with "me" or "myself" very quickly and sometimes they'll give other answers, which you acknowledge and you ask the question and they answer and you acknowledge and you ask the question and acknowledge and at some point they'll either blow or they'll come up with the answer "me" and blow. It's not so much an answer as it is a cognition. The BT cognites. He either cognites that he's not what he was being or he cognites he is himself. Either of those cognitions will produce a blow. Sometimes the BT will go as far as cogniting that he is himself but may need to have that acknowledged by the PreOT in order to get an FN and a blow. On rare occasions, it's possible for the BT to be asked "Who are you?" andanswer "Me" without blowing. The PreOT acknowledges the answer and the BT might still not blow because he hasn't quite fully cognited on it. And the handling for that is for the PreOT to ack him encouragingly when he says "Me," and then to say something like "Your answer was fine, but I want to repeat the question again and when I do you can give the same answer again." Ask "Who are you and the BT says, "I am me," and then comes to realize, "Oh! I really am me," and will either blow then or blow when the PreOT acknowledges it. And that's the extent of the valence technique and it's the most commonly used technique in AAV. It's not necessarily engaged in at the beginning of the rundown. In the actual development of this level, the valence technique was developed after all the past auditing repair steps were done. The way that AAV is currently being run at Flag and in the AOs is the auditors tend to jump in and run the valence technique right from the start on anything and everything that they lay their hands on. That's actually a departure from the research and development of AAV and in my experience, it's not as successful. It's better to handle the repair of past auditing purely as what it is. By then you've handled all the BPC on the cases and now you're starting in on new BTs and clusters that haven't been audited before or messed up and you handle them with the valence technique.

Q: Does it sometimes happen that a BT who has been contacted on the repair of past auditing but who doesn't blow causes trouble?

No, I've never seen that happen. The only time I've seen any trouble occur is when you haven't cleaned up the by-passed charge on a BT. You may have only found some of his BPC, but not the rest of it, such as having repaired a list error on a BT or an engram running error on the BT but he also had out ruds in the session or some other charge on the L4 or the L3 or whatever.

Now there's a danger in the valence technique or in all of AAV there's a danger and that is that the PreOT has to limit his attention to one BT at a time and run one at a time. If, for example, he had his attention spread over two or more BTs at the same time and they all got the question "What are you?" you could get a multiplicity of answers, each of which is right for one individual but not right for the others. So, it's essential that the PreOT be able to limit his attention to one BT and run one at a time. And I think that one of the things that's going on in the sort of squirrel version of AAV in the field is that they're running them sort of wholesale and en masse, willy nill. They're just telling pcs, because one of the things they've found out from debriefing PreOTs is that you ask them "What are you?" and "Who are you?" and all that. What it can do is it can stir up a whole lot of them at once and not handle--or maybe handle one and not the rest or whatever.

So, it's a liability. The PreOT has to be able to limit his attention to one at a time and audit it to a blow before taking up another one. If the PreOT is weak on this, the most easy and simple handling is for the auditor to give him an R-factor to limit his attention to one BT and repeat this from time to time, as necessary just to ensure that the PreOT is limiting his attention to one at a time. Most people can do that if they know that's what they're supposed to do. If the PreOT is weak on it, there's a remedy which is to do the TR8Q drill from the assessment drills bulletin. It's actually a modification of the TR8Q drill from that bulletin. It's simply a matter of drilling the PreOT to put his attention on one spot at a time. The drill basically is a matter of a coach placing his finger somewhere near the PreOT's body and asking him to put his attention on his finger, andacknowledging it and moving the finger and having the guy put his attention on the finger. It's simply an attention drill. After drilling the guy on locating his attention in one spot for a while, his ability to do it improves and this boosts his ability to run AAV.

That's not routinely done in audited AAV, but is a possible remedy.

Clusters can also be handled with the valence technique very often. In other words, often a cluster is stuck in a valence and will respond to the "What are you?" question. Sometimes it's necessary for the PreOT to concentrate his attention down to one part of the cluster and ask it the "What?" and "Who?" questions of the valence technique to blow it and sometimes he has to blow the cluster bit by bit. Sometimes the cluster will be stuck in one valence which is common to them all, come out of that and then when he starts to ask "Who are you?" it starts breaking up and he has to ask the individuals "Who are you?"

With a cluster you sometimes get what's called a partial blow, which is part of it will blow, some will partly blow and some will not. It's just a matter of picking up the individuals and handling them one at a time with the "Who are you?" question. Sometimes a cluster will blow part way out from the body on the "What are you?" question and the PreOT has to reach out from his body to where the cluster now is and ask it, "Who are you?" in order to get a further blow. Another phenomenon that can occur with a cluster is that on the "What are you?" question or on the "Who are you?" question, the cluster will start moving out from the body and then will just sort of suddenly blow explosively and the whole thing will just sort of explode apart and break up and the individuals will start flying off in all directions and the thing just sort of blows up and it's kind of described as an explosive blow. That'll usually be accompanied by a big BD on the TA or a series of BDs of the TA and shouldn't be interrupted.

A similar phenomena is what's called an automatic blow. There are times on AAV when you get an automatic blow. It's a cyclic phenomenon that occurs as you're doing audited AAV and you start running something, it's often slow or sticky on a one-at-a-time basis and you handle one and you get a blow and it may go on like that for a session or for several sessions. Then it'll suddenly start going easier and faster and easier and faster and this will often culminate in what's called an automatic blow when you just suddenly start getting BTs and clusters blowing off all over the place. You get this kind of automatic blow phenomena and it can go on for a very brief period of time or it can go on for a long period of time. The reason it's important is because once an automatic blow starts, the auditor should do nothing. He should just sit there and let it occur. On the meter, it's very obvious when it's occurring because the needle will start surging. You may get a series of falls or long falls, but the needle will start surging downward across the dial, time after time and the TA, if it's high, will usually start pumping down. It will BD and BD. Sometimes the TA goes into a sort of pumping action. It will BD down and move up and BD down and move up and BD. You'll see the TA doing a sort of pumping action. So you have the meter firing off and the TA moving and the PreOT talking about things blowing and so on. All the auditor should do, if anything, is to encouragingly half ack, very lightly and just let it go on. You don't do anything because you don't want to interrupt an automatic blow. When you get an automatic blow, you wait until it's ended and when it's ended, you simply end off the session. You DON'T DO ANOTHER SINGLE THING. And you usually end either on a dial wide FN or a floating TA after such anoccurrence.

Now, it's also true that after an automatic blow very often in the next session or sessions, you'll start out again having to handle individual BTs and clusters and it may proceed pretty slowly to start with and then the momentum will build up and you'll get another series of blows or an automatic blow.

Q: What causes that?

Basically it's because BTs and clusters tend to come in layers like an onion, is one reason and having taken a certain amount off, then the rest of that layer starts disintegrating and blowing. Another factor that influences it is that the mass of the banks of the BTs and clusters tends to hold BTs and clusters together and as you reduce that mass, then there's less to hold them because they have their banks in common and mass tends to stick to mass. Another thing that can influence it is that there is a certain type or category of BT or cluster, which, by its nature tends to actually hold on to others. Sometimes they even prevent others from blowing. An example of that could be a BT or cluster in the valence of a magnet and when you blow the BT or cluster being the magnet, then the others tend to fly off because there's nothing holding them. Another example would be a BT or cluster being a vacuum and other BTs and clusters being sucked into the vacuum, or for example, you might have a BT or cluster being sticky paper and others sticking to it and so on. And then there's a whole category of things on the whole track, usually connected up with implant stations, such as pole traps and other gadgets that were used to trap thetans or to make thetans stick them, such as electronic ribbons, pole traps and so on. If a BT or cluster is being a pole trap or is mocking up a pole trap, very often other BTs and clusters who have some incident regarding having stuck to a pole trap at some time will see this picture of a pole trap and will automatically go and stick themselves to it. Those aren't by any means the full extent of the categories of BTs and clusters that tend to hold onto others. There are many types of things a BT or cluster could be being that by its nature tends to hold on to others. If you blow the BT or cluster that's holding the others stuck together, then the others tend to fly off.

Also, as a tip for the auditor: If he's having undue difficulty blowing BTs and clusters, he can suspect that there might be a BT or cluster that's holding the others or sticking them or preventing them from blowing. You can ask the PreOT if there is such a BT or cluster and if there is, audit that one and blow it. Either you'll get an automatic blow or the others will now run much more easily.

Now that covers the automatic blow phenomenon, and we've largely covered the valence technique. There are a few other little oddities that go along with it. One of these is when the BT says, "I'm me," sometimes he's operating on an MU on the word "me." He says, "I'm me," meaning the PreOT and he doesn't really mean himself. Sometimes you might have to get him to repeat the answer to the question again.

That brings up the subject of a misidentification. The word misidentification is pretty common in AAV. The concept of it is going back to the theory of the valence technique, when a person is outof valence, he's misidentifying himself with an identity other than himself. If the person thinks he's a cook, then that's actually a lie. He's not a cook. He's a being, basically. He can be a cook and if he's doing it knowingly, that's fine. That's usually considered to be his beingness. When he's doing it unknowingly, it's a valence and is aberrative. That's a misidentification of himself with a valence. A BT or cluster--or any thetan for that matter, can misidentify himself with anything under the sun. That's a mistake and needs to be cleared up. Clearing it up usually brings a big resurgence in any person or being or thetan. Likewise we covered the fact that earlier in the AAV theory the point that a person who's Clear, when audited on engrams, tends to misown the charge or the engrams as his own. That's a type of misownership of charge or picture or incident. Now we're talking about misidentification which is identifying oneself with something which one is not and that's another basic error a thetan can make and it will hang him up. It's what's hanging him up, undoing it sets him free.

These two things of misownership and misidentification are actually two aspects of a more general term, which is called MISCONCEPTION or misconceptions.

There are several basic misconceptions a thetan can make. These are primarily a misconception of matter, energy, space, time, form, event, location or identity. All misconceptions could be classed under one of those with a possibility that you could add a misconception of thought or significance as well. Examples of misconceptions that we've already covered are the misconception of misowning an incident as one's own, when it actually belongs to a different being. Another example: the BT or thetan thinks "I am Mamie Glutz" and he is not Mamie Glutz and never was Mamie Glutz. Mamie Glutz is the identity or valence of some other person and that will hang him up. Hence, the importance and workability of the valence technique, because it separates out false identities or false valences and returns the person to his own identity.

This goes so far that a BT, being very, very suggestible, can form a tremendous number of misconceptions. An example is that a thetan or BT could run into another thetan who received an implant and on simply perceiving that this other person had received this implant, could assume that he'd received that implant and would try to run it as his own if he's audited on it or if he's asked for one in auditing. This also explains why the running of uncharged items in auditing causes so much BPC because it actually makes thetans or BTs form misconceptions about their own past. The auditor will often encounter this when he's trying to handle a BT on AAV. He may also run into it on the valence technique or anywhere else and when something isn't running or it's getting more solid or he runs into difficulty, the first thing that one should suspect is that he's running into a misconception. that he's trying to handle isn't what it appears to be.

There are other things that hang up BTs also. There are overts, there are motivators, there are engrams, etc., all the things that are common to a bank can hang up a BT and be the things that are wrong with a BT. In other words, anything that can be wrong with a preclear's case can be wrong with a BT, because, after all, a BT is a pc with a case. When it doesn't resolve, you have to assume that it isn't what it says it is or looks like it is.

If a BT is running a motivator and it doesn't resolve, you'd immediately suspect either a) that he didn't have that motivator and it could be somebody else's motivator or a totally dreamed upmotivator and that what he really should be running is an overt, or, conversely, you could be trying to run an overt and it doesn't resolve and gets more solid and that's not what's wrong with the guy. It's a misconception and you should actually be running the motivator. That can have any number of variations. Anything that a person could think up could be what you run into, because after all, you are dealing with anything they could think up in the past.

So, those are the misconceptions. The sub;ject of misconceptions is actually the very basic principle of AAV; it's even more fundamental than the valence technique.

The most fundamental thing that you're doing in AAV actually is you're straightening out misconceptions.They're usually misconceptions of time, place, form and event; more broadly, matter, energy, space and time and identity.

That's useful to know as theory because then no matter what the auditor runs into, he can straighten it out if he knows he's trying to straighten out misconceptions. Also BTs have false data, which is simply another misconception and they can have anything else wrong with them for that matter. But I mention false data because the discovery of false data and the handling of false data actually originated in AAV. It was something like trying to handle a BT and the BT thought that blah blah blah and it had this as a sort of fixed idea and it was necessary to find out,"Well, when did you get this idea?" or "When did you start believing that?" or "Where did you get that idea from?" at which point the BT would kind of get some sort of recollection of how he came by that idea and would shift off of being so stuck on the idea that it would then be possible for auditing to occur or to continue.

They might blow on cleaning up their false data but usually cleaning up their false data makes it possible to do something else with them. I could make up an example of how that would be for illustration. The BT had a false datum, "I can't talk," or "communication isn't possible" or "questions can't be answered." Any of these might block the PreOT from asking the BT "What are you?" and getting an answer to the question. Just shifting that false data enough without even necessarily blowing it or doing much about it would make it possible to audit that BT and get him able to answer the question and then to proceed on and blow him. That's another point, with regard to AAV: while a BT can have anything at all wrong with him (all of the things that cases can have wrong with them); the auditor's job is only to shift or unburden what's wrong with that BT's case enough that he can get to do a technique on the BT which will blow it because it's the blowing, the clearing and blowing of the BT that's the real target, not trying to run up hours on the BT. So, that needs to be watched out for.

As a caution on that, auditors shouldn't get so fixated on relying on the simple valence technique of "What are you?" "Who are you?" that they just do that exclusively. If a BT does run into trouble on it, then of course they have to resort to other auditing tools. All the usual things can apply, out ruds or anything else. Most generally speaking, the things that can be wrong with a BT or any other case are all the things that are listed on a 53. One doesn't normally jump to a 53 at the slightest hint of trouble, but if all else fails, you can have the PreOT put his attention on that BT and you can assess a 53 on it, find out what's wrong with it and handle it and then back to your technique and blow it. That's a "when all else fails."

There again, if you're doing a 53 on AAV or any other prepared list on AAV, it is very essential that the PreOT concentrate on having his attention on one BT or cluster, because as is obvious, a 53, having many things on it, could apply to many, many BTs and you don't want to go into stirring too many up at once.

The next subject heading is what's called over-restimulation and cross-restimulation. Over-restimulation is the condition or situation of having stirred up too many BTs. That's all it is. It's too many BTs in restimulation at the same time. When over-restimulation has occurred, it can become impossible to audit. In other words, there are too many in restimulation, there's too much charge in restim, the PreOT's ability to handle and blow things goes down and simply with the numerical factor of too many different things in restim, it's impossible to handle anybody. For that reason, sessions on AAV are generally fairly short and are never carried past a win or a good win and certainly never carried past a big win.

Another thing that will bring over-restimulation about is rough auditing on AAV. If the auditor is out of ARC or choppy or breaks the code, that can bring about over-restimulation very quickly.

About the only handling for over-restimulation, really, is to end the session and let some destimulation occur. It's better not to get into over-restimulation in the first place. A type of remedy that one, can do--and should try if he gets into over-restimulation is to indicate over-restimulation has occurred, and that'll tend to start cooling if off right away. Sometimes it will handle it and keys them out. Often it will just start them keying out. The other thing that you can do is say, "Come up to present time," and that will often bring a bunch of restimulated BTs out of what they're in and up to PT. That will kind of brighten them up a bit. And you should at least, if you've got over-restimulation going, indicate it and that will cool it off and then you can do the "Come up to present time" handling before ending the session.

What will handle it is ending the session and letting them destimulate before trying to audit again. That will usually occur within a matter of hours or a day and maybe as long as three to ten days for it to key out, but I haven't seen it go to actually more than a day.

Q: How common is that?

Well, it depends on the roughness of the auditing. It can happen to any auditor sometimes because often the BTs and clusters are so entangled and so enmeshed that when you start in a handling, no matter how good you are or how well you do it, it just stirs everything that's tangled into that mess together.

You should try to handle but if the TA starts going up and isn't coming down and the needle is packing up and the PreOT is starting to LOOK less sessionable, his indicators are going more out, things aren't blowing or it's getting grindy, you know it's happening and you should never force ona session or try valiantly to pull it off. You should realize that, hey, it's gone into too much restimulation and we'd better get out of this before if gets worse. The only thing you do is to try to cool it off. Sometimes simply two-way comming with the PreOT about what's happened in the session or what's gone wrong in the session or what's occurred, is enough to start keying it out and brightening him up right there and you can end the session off on a much better note. So, that's over-restimulation over-restimulation and it explains what happens. Cross-restimulation is when a BT goes into restim and another BT copies what that BT is mocking up or is in restim on. Another BT noticing this going on, jumps in, starts copying the first BT and the second BT and another one start copying that. It's called cross-restimulation because the restimulation starts going across, from on BT to another.

I mentioned the word cross-restimulation and that's very much connected with the meaning of

Sometimes it's called cross-copying, but it's generally referred to as cross- restimulation. That explains why over-restimulation is rough. You get too many in restim and they all start copying each other's restimulation and their own restimulation and it becomes an accelerating restim, plus, they get so confused that everything that each of them had in restimulation is in restimulation at once. That could be a whole series of pictures, fifteen or fifty thousand different engrams, any number of ARC breaks and ser facs and overts and everything else that is in the bank. These things are all going on at the same time and they're all copying it and they actually become so confused about which is whose or what's theirs that it's impossible to audit any of them. That goes back to the basic misconception (confusion of identity).

So, anyway, we were on what happens in over-restimulation and cross-restimulation and the point that there are obviously a lot of misconceptions flying around about what belongs to who and it's impossible to audit under those circumstances. Now, many of these errors that I've mentioned are the subject matter of the AAV Repair List and when all else fails, the auditor can do this list and it has things on it like "Over-restimulation," "Cross-restimulation," "Copying." Another example of what it has on it is "What was correct for one was incorrect for the rest" and it would be obvious when you look at it that BTs and clusters can easily get wrong items by copying other BTs and clusters' items. If you ask one BT "What are you?" and he says that he is a sword, another BT, if the PreOT has his attention spread too far, might get the item "a sword" and start going into some sort of protest of, "I'm not a sword," or he may go into the idea of "Oh, that's what I am, a sword." But it doesn't blow anything for him because actually he's in the valence of a rat or a cow or a broken pipe or whatever he happens to be being. So, wrong items, of course, is another source of BPC. Sometimes it registers as "What was correct for one was not correct for another."

If you got into trouble, you would assess this prepared list and then find out whose charge is was. And generally you don't have to do much with it, unless you've got a very heavy restim going on. What you would do in that case is asses the list and get "Cross-copying" and the PreOT says, "Oh, yeah," and then all of a sudden it starts clicking, like "oh, yeah, no wonder. That's why there are a whole bunch of pictures flying up. Oh, yeah. We were doing one in my elbow and my knee started acting up - oh..." and it just starts untangling. The auditor should, throughout the whole of AAV, and especially when handling prepared lists, the auditor should only do what's necessary forhim to do to start something unraveling and keep it unraveling.

The auditor doesn't need to be that active. He can easily be over-active or over-talkative in the session. It's very bad for an auditor in an AAV session to start firing off a whole bunch of questions like "Is it this?" or "Is it that?" and "When was it?" and "Where was it?" and "Tell me about it?" and this and that and the other, because each question he asks could be answered by an awful lot of BTs.That actually could be a cause of over-restim. The handling generally is simply just to indicate the line on the list and let the PreOT spot what's there or whatever. You may have to do a little something like say, "Well, acknowledge the BT's answer" or "Indicate to him that wasn't his item" or "that wasn't his valence" or whatever. If the BT wanted to originate, okay, let him originate and he originates and then acknowledge his origination. And that's generally what handles.

So, to sum up, we've now covered the valence technique, misownership, misidentification and misconceptions (which is the very basic principle on which AAV is based).

Another common error on this level is an error in listing, as the questions "What are you?" "Who are you?" are listing questions. Any question with the word "What" at the beginning of it is a potential listing question. This doesn't mean that it's bad or dangerous or anything else, it just means you have to realize it's a potential listing question. Sometimes it doesn't even act as a list, but it could. What happens then is and how you recognize it is, - the PreOT asks the BT "What are you?" and the BT says "an animal" - no read, then "some kind of nasty animal" - no read, "a skunk" LF. A skunk is the item. Often and usually it is the first item, and there is no problem.

The only time it's a problem would be if the auditor did something sort of forceful, like he prevented the PreOT and the BT from going on answering the question until he got the item. What we call forceful would be an actual thing that the auditor pushed off on the PreOT or on the BT and made him do.

Knowing that these questions can be a list, one can easily spot the indications of an out-list if it occurs and simply ask "Have we got a wrong item?" and if so indicate it was wrong. You usually ask: "Okay, what was the wrong item?" and you get, "Well, skunk was the wrong item." "Well, okay?" and the handling will very often simply be "What's the right item?" and the guy will say, "Actually it's a polecat" and you now have the item and the F/N.

But there again, when all else fails you use the short L4 as a correction list and it's not very common to have to asses an L4. Sometimes you can get into a sort of listing on the "Who" questions and it's very obvious because you ask "Who are you?" and you get the BT saying something like "a royal person," "someone in a royal family," "a daughter of a royal family","a princess." And that would be a list on the "Who?" question. It's not a great danger, it's just something you have to realize can turn into a list.

Earlier on when discussing misconceptions, an example was given of a BT giving off a motivator when what is really wrong with him is that he has an overt. if the BT is hung up in the motivator, and it isn't resolving or it's making things worse, you would simply ask the PreOT to ask the BT ifthat was somebody else's motivator or not his motivator and that might produce a response and a cog or you can have the PreOT ask the BT if there's really some overt that he's hung up on and it will read on the meter and usually the BT will instantly recognize it and start talking about the overt straight off. If you have to, you'd ask, "What is the overt?" and the BT would say, "Well, I did blah, blah, blah, blah."

There again you don't really need to go into a whole bunch of handlings on it. It's usually, "Oh, well, I was actually responsible for such and such happening," or "I murdered the priest and hid his body in the grove," or something, and boom! There's an FN, and the BT may blow on that alone or you'd go into the valence technique and blow him. So it's just the simple, obvious question that one would ask. It comes back to this idea of simply undoing the misconception. In other words, you're not trying to sec check the BT, you're just trying to un-do the misconception.

The reason these BTs are not available to the PreOT on III is that he just doesn't perceive them. There is a reason for this, which is that incident II, in terms of the BTs' time track, is a pretty recent occurrence. For those that are hung up in it, it's like the last major incident on the track for them. And you have to view it a little bit from the BT's viewpoint, which is that some of these have been BTs for a very long time. In other words, they went down the tubes as thetans way back and they've kind of been out of it, dead and gone and out of it for a long time. They're just sort of existing but not aware and so to them nothing has happened since. So incident II is pretty common and because it was recent in terms of their time track, it gets restim'd when the PreOT starts on III. That's the last, latest big incident for most of them.They are all run on it and everybody that has an incident II will run it and that sort of takes off a layer of fat. It goes back to the telepathic factor. The PreOT has the concept of incident II and III and that picks up all the guys that are available for that. He finishes III because he can't find any other BTs or clusters that respond to those incidents. When he knows the AAV materials then he has his attention on a concept which the remaining BTs will respond to.

The BTs and clusters on this level are dormant. This does not mean that they don't cause the PreOT any trouble. Quite the opposite. The more dormant a BT is, or the more unaware a BT is, the more trouble he causes. This is because the lower his tone level or awareness level, the more he has approached the state of an object and total reactivity and bank. If you look at it in terms of the tone scale, or the chart of attitudes, the further down a being is, the more he approximates all the things along the bottom of the chart of attitudes or the bottom of the tone scale. In actual fact, a BT that's way down scale would be very, very unaware of anything and is very very solid and massy. His bank has gone totally solid maybe. And that impinges on the PreOT's body and causes mass, pressure, somatics, etc , plus, because he has become a solid bank or solid cases or whatever you want to call it, he is very much stimulus-response. The degree of stimulus-response of a being is proportional to how far down he is. The more aware a person is, the less likely they are to act on a stimulus-response basis; and the less aware they are, the more likely they are to. For example, maybe it's a hot day, it just happens to be hot weather and that might restimulate heat and a fire and for a BT very down on the scale, that just automatically turns on all the times when he was burned, or fires, and it's an A=A thing. You know if a hot day equals being burned, equals a fire, equals the time his house burned down, equals when he got too close to a hot sun, equals a hot poker, equals everything else in his bank and they just automatically go into restim. So for the PreOT, it'sa hot day and he turns on a rash and his skin starts itching and then he feels burny and then he feels like he's been branded by a hot poker and just goes on and on and on. The worse off they (BTs) are, the more trouble they cause for the PreOT. That's part of the reason why you get a lot of gains on AAV; as you get rid of these things, the PreOT is much less subject to the kind of trouble that they can cause and do cause routinely.

There are a lot of different sort of levels within the whole scope of AAV and sometimes you'll handle a whole level or band of BTs that affect the PreOT's personality or personality characteristics, and when you have done that, you may suddenly encounter a whole band of things that affect his body and somatics and that sort of thing. Then you may run into a whole band of them that affect his intelligence or his stupidity level. Another band may affect memory. In other words they come in different layers, or bands, or levels, that affect different aspects of the case.

AAV SERIES 3

THEORY OF AAV

JANUARY 1990

AAV was developed to handle PreOTs who were audited on Dianetics after they had gone clear.

The end phenomena of AAV is cause over life.

This level deals with BTs and clusters who are below the level of being able to run incident II and I. These beings are dormant. They are dead, really dead, like pebbles on a beach. When you encounter a dormant BT you actually have to put some life into it to bring it alive.

The phenomena one encounters on this level may not be one's own but may be the difficulties of a BT or cluster.

The difficulties they have are in running their own life, or in trying to run yours. We ran into this in the 50's, running "not-there," "doesn't exist" type chains. It was a dormant something, a dormant channel that was better left alone at that time.

When a PreOT tries to run out a somatic using Dianetics, it is the somatic of a BT or cluster that he is trying to handle. For example, if a PreOT has a somatic in the forehead he may occasionally get a blow of the somatic by running it out on the forehead. But it may be a BT or cluster in another part of the body putting the somatic there on the forehead. There is another situation where the PreOT is mocking up the somatic, but that is something different.

Beings are handled on this level by telepathy, a mental transmission from the PreOT to the BT or cluster. The BT or cluster is impinging on the PreOT or the body and the PreOT can get impressions, communications and can blow BTs and clusters.

Another principle is what is called the "can of beans theory." BTs and clusters respond willy-nilly to a PreOT's intention. If the PreOT thinks "can of beans" into his body, BTs and clusters will mock up a can of beans. This can get quite confusing to a PreOT if he doesn't know about this mechanism.

The only situation where a PreOT is seemingly viewing pictures through his own viewpoint is where he's looking at the pictures of a shell BT. A shell BT is a BT which surrounds the PreOT's body. The PreOT misidentifies with the shell BT and thinks its thoughts are his own. Hence there can be confusion of viewpoint and an invalidation of the PreOT's clear state. This is possibly what mystics were referring to when they talked of an aura, a collection of BT's and clusters and their pictures and incidents surrounding the person's body.

A PreOT may think he was in the Spanish Inquisition and he will get a picture of it, only this won't be his own picture. It will be the picture of a BT or cluster. Now it may be true that he was in the Spanish Inquisition, but these aren't his pictures. This is a way a PreOT can invalidate himself after he goes clear. He goes clear and erases his pictures. Then he starts getting other pictures later on. He misowns these as his own and this invalidates his clear state. The difference is that the pictures he now gets are much smaller than his own were.

You are not likely to encounter beings like the ones you'll find on AAV in life, except for catatonics. They are not really dead, they only wish they were. They are in states of existence below death. The main point is that you are dealing with beings that hope and believe they are dead. They are revivified in a past time and place.

They try to be helpful by mocking up what the PreOT thinks. They are mostly benign. They can, though, create bad effects on a PreOT's body and can cause somatics which make it impossible for a PreOT to go fully upscale until they are handled.

A reach out by the PreOT or an attempt to become causative can cause BTs and clusters to react and to mock up virtually anything.

They can be handled on AAV.

AAV SERIES 4

DEFINITIONS SHEET

JANUARY 1984

1. Thetan-1. the individual, himself or herself, who exists as nonmaterial, yet operates and handles a body in the material universe. 2. the person, oneself - not one's body, not one's name, not the mind, not the physical universe. 3. the individual who is aware of being aware. (A Thetan is not a thing, rather a creator of things.) Note: The phrase "I have a Thetan" or" my Thetan" is incorrect since the person is a Thetan. The correct usage would be "I am a Thetan" or "myself as a Thetan."

2. BT-a thetan who is stuck to another thetan or other thetans or a body but who is not in control. (BTs stick to pictures, other BTs and clusters. A BT can go into a valence of anything - BTs can be being anything at all.)

4. Cumulative cluster-a cluster within a cluster. (A cumulative cluster is made up of other earlier clusters. It is a cluster to which other BTs and clusters have been added by later mutual incidents, all stuck together.)

5. picture-see mental image picture

6. mental image picture-TD

7. revivication-TD

8. dormant BT-a being that is revivified in a past incident. It is stuck in a past time and location. It is generally asleep, in a hypnotic state. When awakened or restimulated, it may copy some portion of the current environment (PT), although it "operates" from its past location. (Issues on drugs give examples of how someone in this condition thinks.)

9. copy-III pack

10. cross-copying-one BT copies another BT, an incident, etc., then another BT or cluster copies that copy and on and on. Copies of copies.

11. cross-restimulation-an incident in the present-time environment or a session error can restimulate BTs and clusters, who then wake up and restimulate other BTs and clusters, and on and on.

12. over-restimulation-TD

13. misconception-standard dictionary. Also, an incorrect idea about time, space, matter, energy, form, location, event or identity that hangs up a thetan.

14. shell BT-a being that surrounds the PreOT's body. Due to the similarity in position of viewpoint, the PreOT can misown a shell BT's pictures as his own.

15. misownership-Axiom 29 "In order to cause an As-is-ness to persist, one must assign other authorship to the creation than his own. Otherwise his view of it would cause its vanishment." This axiom is especially relevant to auditing at the level of AA III and above because at this level the PreOT is handling other beings than himself (BTs and clusters). It is necessary to establish correct ownership of charge in order to get an as-is-ness. Furthermore, incorrectly assigning charge to the wrong being can cause by-passed charge (BPC) as it is now misowned. Hence the instruction in the III materials that one must use a narrow attention span so as to handle one BT or cluster at a time and so as not to retimulate or confuse other BTs with the one being audited.

16. mis-identification-TD

17. mass-TD

18. ridge-TD

19. composite mass-a mass that is made up of several BTs, clusters, masses or ridges. The auditor has the PreOT separate out and handle one piece of the composite at one time.

20. layered cluster-just that. One cluster on top of another cluster. This is not a cumulative cluster. Each layer needs to be separated out by the PreOT and handled separately.

ATTACHMENT

1. zero attitude-This is the attitude the PreOT should have when handling AAV. This means a no-attitude. The less chatter that the PreOT gets into with this material the better.

2. Exteriorization only occurs fully when a PreOT has handled all BTs and clusters on this level. There is exterior visio which is caused by a BT or cluster who is only partially blown and who is looking at the environment from an exterior position. Actual Exteriorization occurs stably when all BTs and clusters are handled.

3. The body acts as a magnifier of the PreOT's perception.

ATTENTION: TECH DICTIONARY

ATTENTION UNIT: TECH DICTIONARY

THETAN (0n): TECH DICTIONARY

BODY THETAN (BT): By BT is meant a thetan who is stuck to another thetan or
body but is not in control
(HCOB 5.2.70, Iss. II.) BTs
stick to pictures, other BTs and clusters. A BT can go into a valence of anything - BTs can be being anything at all.

CLUSTER;

MUTUAL INCIDENT: A severe engram which happened to a number of thetans, the picture (which they have in common), keeps them stuck together in that incident.
It has a precise date down to the second and fractions of a second and a precise location in space.

CUMULATIVE CLUSTER:
COMPOSITE (MASS): (See English Dictionary.) Used on this RD to describe masses or heavy
somatics made up of a number of BTs,
clusters, pictures, ridges.

LAYERED CLUSTER: Several clusters (and/or BTs) in layers, as one layer comes off another layer comes to view.

SHELL BT: A BT or cluster that surrounds the Pre-OT's body like a shell. A Clear can go into the valence of, and see the pictures of, this BT or cluster and mistake these as his own, as he seems to be in valence in the picture.

DORMANT BT: A BT or cluster in a totally dormant condition, they're really dead, in states of exitence below unconsciousness. They are out of PT (stuck on the track) and are stuck in the past location. They are in a perpetual reviv in that time and that location. They can be activated or awoken by the Pre-OT.

COPY: Thetans in the body (BTs) may obsessively copy the pictures of other thetans. Therefore you can find it seems that the thetan who just left is still there because there is a picture left. Spot the fact that someone else copied it and it usually goes. (Add. sheet, Sect.

III OT.)

CROSS-COPYING: When a number of BTs and clusters are restimulated or awoken, each can start making copies of each other's pictures and copies of the copies - called cross-copying.

CROSS-RESTIMULATION: One BT or cluster restimulating
another BT or cluster, who then restimulates another BT or cluster.

MISCONCEPTION: (See English Dictionary) and
Axiom 38. The basic misconceptions are of identity, time, place, form and event; e.g. a misconception of place would be a thetan thinking something that happened in one place,
happened in another place.

A misconception of event would be a thetan thinking something happened to him, which didn't happen to him or happened to someone else (Flow 2 or 3).

MISOWNERSHIP: A basic misconception of one thetan making the mistake of thinking another thetan's picture or incident or mock-up is his own.

MISIDENTIFICATION: A basic misconception of one thetan thinking he is another thetan. It's a mistake in identity. Thetan "A" thinks it is thetan "B". Or one thetan thinks he is more than one thetan, etc.

VALENCE: TECH DICTIONARY

BEINGNESS: TECH DICTIONARY

IDENTITY: See English Dictionary and Tech Dictionary under "valence" and "beingness". It is that by which a thetan identifies himself.

OUT OF VALENCE: TECH DICTIONARY

BLOW: See Tech Dictionary. In this RD
it is used in the sense of a BT
or cluster departing after being unstuck from other BTs and clusters.

PARTIAL BLOW: A BT or cluster not fully blown.
Sometimes one will leave from inside the body and stick or hang up on the outer surface of the body.
Or one will go as far as the wall or to some distance and hang around.

BLOWING BY INSPECTION: You don't have to do anything, you just look and it blows.

PICTURE: See Tech Dictionary under "Mental Image Picture".

MOCK UP: TECH DICTIONARY

SOMATIC: TECH DICTIONARY

RIDGE: TECH DICTIONARY

TIME TRACK: TECH DICTIONARY

REVIV (REVIVIFICATION): The bringing back to life of an engram in which a pc is stuck. The engram or some portion thereof is being acted out in present time by the preclear. It is called a revivification because the engram is suddenly more real to the preclear than present time has ever been. He relives that moment briefly. He does not merely recall or remember it. (HCOB 11.5.65) During research on NED for OTs I discovered that Dormant BTs are stuck in a reviv, i.e. they are stuck down the track in an incident which is present time to that BT. I also discovered that these BTs are reviv'd in a location, meaning that they are stuck in a past location. They are chronically stuck in a past time\and\place, which for them is still going on. It is "PT" and is where they are, as far as they are concerned.

INSECT: ON OT III "insect" means a thetan who is an insect, without a body. These stick to other BTs and clusters. Sometimes you can run into a whole swarm of them.

BIRD: Similar to above - a thetan who is a bird, without a body, and sticking to other BTs and clusters.

ANIMAL: Similar to above - a thetan who is an animal, without a body,
sticking to other BTs and clusters.

ADVANCED ENTITY CLEARING

DEFINITIONS

26 NOVEMBER 1988

IDENTITY: 1. who a person is; what a thing is; individuality. 2. the collective aspect of the set of characteristics by which a thing or person is definitively recognizable or known.

ENTITY: 1. something that has a real and separate existence either actually or in the mind. [derived from Late Latin "entitas" derived from Latin "ens" derived from "esse" which means "be"] 2. a Being who has a separate existence and identity.

ENTITY BEING (EB):

MUTUAL INCIDENT: 1. a bad experience shared by several or many Entity Beings and/or groups of Entity Beings at the same time and place. 2. a severe engram which happened to a number of Beings. (The picture, which they have in common, keeps them stuck together in that incident. It has a precise date down to the second and fractions of a second and a precise location in space.)

CLUSTER-FORMING INCIDENT: 1. a mutual bad experience shared by a bunch of Entity Beings and sometimes already formed clusters. (It jams them together because they all shared it at exactly the same time and place; they all are stuck in the same picture and therefore they think they are "one." Being A is stuck in an explosion, Being B is stuck in exactly the same explosion and so Being A reactively feels he is the same as Being B, and Being B reactively feels he is Being A and so on with the other Beings who had the incident because they all have exactly the same picture. So these Beings misidentify themselves as all one and the same thing. It is not an analytically thought out conclusion, it is reactive identification.)

CUMULATIVE CLUSTER: 1. a cluster which is made up of other earlier clusters, each with their own cluster-forming incident. (It is a cluster to which other EBs and clusters have been added by later mutual incidents, all stuck together.)

VALENCE: 1. someone else's identity assumed by a person unknowingly. (A valence is a substitute self taken on after the fact of lost confidence in self or a failed valence or as a solution to a problem.)

MISCONCEPTION: 1. a mistaken idea or notion; wrong conception. (The basic misconceptions are of identity, time, place, form and event. A misconception of place would be a Being thinking something that happened in one place, happened in another place. A misconception of event would be a Being thinking something happened to him, which didn't happen to him or happened to someone else.)

MISOWNERSHIP: 1. mistaken ownership; a wrong ownership. (One Being thinking the charge is his when it belongs to someone else, or thinking it belongs to someone else when it is his own.)

MISIDENTIFICATION: 1. a basic misconception of one Being thinking he is another Being. (It's a mistake in identity. Being "A" thinks it is Being "B." Or one Being thinks he is more than one Being, etc.

FACSIMILE: 1. a mental image picture.

CROSS-REACTIVATION: 1. the condition wherein Entity Beings or clusters copy the reactivation of another or other Entity Beings and clusters and misown the charge as their own and intensify the amount of reactivation present. (Entity Beings or clusters mock-up pictures and reactivate each other. It takes three to ten days for this manifestation to dissipate.)

COPY: An Entity Being makes a copy of what was just run on another Entity Being, thus making it seem to the Clear that what just blew is still there. Get the individual to spot the copy or copies; this causes the copies to blow without further handling. (In the body, EBs may obsessively copy the pictures of other Beings. Therefore you can find it seems that the Being who just left is still there because there is a picture left. Spot the fact that someone else copied it and it usually goes.)

CROSS COPYING: 1. the condition wherein several or many Entity Beings or clusters automatically copy another or other Entity Beings' and clusters' pictures, valences, charge or whatever, thus further misidentifying themselves and misowning charge. (When a number of EBs and clusters are restimulated or awoken, each can start making copies of each other's pictures and copies of the copies - called cross-copying.)

COMPOSITE MASS: 1. a mass composed of a number of Entity Beings, or Entity Beings and clusters packed together closely. (Used on Advanced Entity Clearing to describe masses or heavy somatics made up of a number of EBs, clusters, pictures, ridges, etc.)

BLOW (noun): 1. the sudden dissipation of mass in the mind with an accompanying feeling of relief.

BLOW (verb): 1. to leave, get out, rush away, cease to be where one was.

PARTIAL BLOW: 1. an EB or cluster not fully blown. Sometimes one will leave from inside the body and stick or hang up on the outer surface of the body. Or one will go as far as the wall or to some distance and hang around.

BLOWING BY INSPECTION: 1. having something blow by just looking at it.

REVIVIFICATION (REVIV): 1. an Entity Being or cluster reliving some past identity or incident in which he/it is stuck. (He/it is down the time stream and cannot be found in present time.) 2. the bringing back to life of an engram in which a Pc is stuck. (The engram or some portion thereof is being acted out in present time by the Preclear. It is called a revivification because the engram is suddenly more real to the Preclear than present time has ever been. He relives that moment briefly. He does not merely recall or remember it. During research on Advanced Entity Clearing it was discovered that Dormant EBs are stuck in a reviv, i.e. they are stuck down the track in an incident which is present time to that EB. These EBs are reviv'd in a location, meaning that they are stuck in a past location. They are chronically stuck in a past time and place, which for them is still going on. It is "PT" and is where they are, as far as they are concerned.)

SOMATIC: 1. a pain or sensation in the body. (A somatic is caused by more than one Entity Being or cluster pressing against one another and/or the body.)

LAYERED CLUSTER: 1. several clusters (and/or EBs) in layers, as one layer comes off another layer comes to view.

SHELL EB: 1. an EB or cluster that surrounds the Clear's body like a shell. (A Clear can go into the valence of, and see the pictures of, this EB or cluster and mistake these as his own, as he seems to be in valence in the picture.)

DORMANT EB: 1. an EB or cluster in a totally dormant condition. (Dormant EBs are really dead and in states of existence below unconsciousness. They are out of PT (stuck on the track) and are stuck in the past location. They are in a perpetual reviv in that time and that location. They can be activated or awoken by the Clear.)

MOCK UP: 1.to get an imaginary picture of. 2. to create.

RIDGE: 1. a solidified accumulation of reactive energy created by two opposing flows.

TIME TRACK: 1. the consecutive, exactly dated, record of mental image pictures which accumulate through the Preclear's life or lives.

INSECT: 1. a Being who is an insect, without a body. (These stick to other EBs and clusters. Sometimes you can run into a whole swarm of them.)

BIRD: 1. a Being who is a bird, without a body, and sticking to other EBs and clusters.

ANIMAL: 1. a Being who is an animal, without a body, sticking to other EBs and clusters.

DIANETICS AFTER CLEAR

JANUARY 1984

Running Dianetics on a clear can worsen the case. As the person is clear he doesn't have any pictures of his own to run, so, if he is run on dianetics it is not his pictures that are being run, but the pictures of BTs and clusters.

Running chains past erasure will cause BTs and clusters to dub in further incidents giving them false incidents. BTs can actually create a whole synthetic track which will need repairing with a Dianetic repair list.

Mis-assessments and running unreading items will give BTs and clusters wrong items and these will need to be repaired on AAV.

The PreOT can misown and misidentify these pictures and incidents as his own when they are the pictures and incidents of BTs and clusters.

David Mayo

AAV SERIES 6

ASSISTS

JANUARY 1984

When a clear or above has had a severe secondary or engram an assist should be done. This is not done by Dianetics. The solution for a PreOT is to date/locate the injury which has occurred, checking for and handling any earlier mutual incident. Remember that a severe loss or injury is a restimulation of clusters with earlier mutual incidents which have been restimulated by the recent incident. These can be handled also. Then you handle any remaining individuals and copies.

There are other assist actions that should also be done such as a touch assist, contact assist, ruds and other usual assist actions. There are many assists that can be done - it is just any version of Dianetic auditing that shouldn't be done on a clear or above.

AAV SERIES 7

MISCONCEPTIONS

JANUARY 1984

The basic thing that can hang up a thetan is a misconception of time, space, matter, energy, place, form, event or identity.

For example a cluster can be considered to held together by a misconception of identity; they consider that they are one, i.e., they all "think" that they are the same being.

This rundown handles misconceptions of time, place, form and event. It could also be called the "I am you," or the "All is one" rundown .

There is an implant on the track which says that all is one.

In the past it was known that a being could be revivified in a past incident or time, meaning that the being was so stuck in that past occurrence that for that being it IS present time. On AAV it was discovered that beings could also be revivified in a past location.

There is a possible explanation of ghosts on this level. BTs and clusters can copy the beingness of a person that the PreOT has known and can act like "a ghost" of this person. The remedy is to intend the BTs and clusters back to a point before they knew this person. Most of the "ghost" phenomenon blows on this alone. Any remaining BTs/clusters can then be handled with usual techniques.

BTs can have the misconception that they're being held in when they're not. They can have the misconception that they're pushing up against or fighting a ridge which is no longer there.

They can think that they're in a different location or time than they are. Any or all of the above misconceptions can be present.

There are several common misconceptions: thinking that an incident occurred either LATER or EARLIER than it did; confusing own identity with that of another and thinking that one is that other being; seeing another being's pictures of an incident and thinking that the incident happened to oneself when it didn't (this can happen with either overt or motivator incidents, resulting in one misowning another's overt or misowning another's motivator as one's own when it wasn't); misowning another's pictures of his lifetime and thinking that one lived that life when one didn't; misowning whole sections of another's time track giving one a false track. The above are just given as examples and the possible misconceptions are too numerous to state; a being could have a misconception about anything!

Untangling a being's misconceptions is very rewarding and is the basic principle of this rundown.

David Mayo

AAV SERIES 8

TIPS ON HANDLING BTS AND CLUSTERS

JANUARY 1984

When handling BTs and clusters be careful to keep a narrow attention span and only handle one at a time. Otherwise, more than one BT/cluster can be restimulated at the same time. This can prevent any of these from being audited (as each of them is trying to answer) and this easily causes over-restimulation.

Stress can be a heavy button. The amount of reaction that PT stress can cause the PreOT is explained as follows: BTs do a lot of copying of stress, so it becomes a recent mutual incident - sometimes compounded by copies of the copies! This can cause a crush-in, pull-back phenomena. BTs crush in and then pull back during moments of stress.

Back on the track, some BTs were implanted to be various body parts, organs of the body, etc. (Although that is not the only reason why a BT can be being a body part. Implants are only one reason and more usually a BT goes into the valance of a body part from having gone the effect of that body part too much or too often.)

BTs are not in the time stream, meaning that they are usually stuck down the time track and didn't move forward in time and aren't aware of present time. You can contact these BTs by shifting your attention out of present time, down the time track to find them. They are literally in a past time and place.

Dormant BTs also can cause the phenomenon of dreams or visions. A BT can be parked in the past looking at a "future" that has already occurred at some point in the past although he THINKS he's looking at the future.

Most BTs and clusters you encounter will blow on inspection. They blow simply by looking at them. Some handle simply by acknowledgement. Others may require "Hellos and Okays" to wake them up. But most will be handled quite easily by means of the valence technique. The valence technique is the major process that you will use on AAV.

The first step is to locate a BT or cluster and identify it as being either a BT or cluster and establish its location, i.e., where the BT or cluster is in relationship to the body. Then have the PreOT ask it, "What are you?" BTs are stuck in a beingness or valence. They are being body parts, pieces of the environment, or even significance and cliches or anything at all. Asking the BT the "What?" question causes him to shift out of the valence that he's compulsively stuck in.

The second question that is asked of the BT is,"Who are you?" This will run out the identities he's had until he realizes, "I'm me" and blows. If there is no blow on the first "me" answer, acknowledge encouragingly and have the BT repeat the "me" answer.

If you get a repeating answer of a valence or identity (for example, the BT keeps answering "Pete"over and over), ask "What were you before you became that?" This will shift the BT earlier on the track.

You may encounter a situation where you are dealing with an energy mass that's being put there from somewhere else. Track back to the BT or cluster and blow the BT or cluster. You might also encounter a ridge. If so, look behind it to see who's mocking it up. Blow the BT or cluster and then handle anyone who is stuck in or on the ridge.

Criminal BTs are ones that will not answer the "What are you?" question: they say, "yeah, I'm your nemesis," or whatever. The solution is just to apply the valence technique as usual, with good ARC and repeating the question as needed until you get it answered.

Rarely a BT might flash pictures at a PreOT in an effort to misdirect. Get the PreOT to shift his attention from the picture or mass to the BT. This is quite easy for the PreOT to do. But this doesn't mean that every time that a BT shows a picture (the PreOT also sees the BT's picture) that it is an effort to misdirect. Usually such a picture is the incident the BT is stuck in and acknowledging that is often sufficient to move the BT out of that incident and get him running again.

MORE HINTS

JANUARY 1984

The theory of the rundown is not just to blow every BT or cluster around or influencing the PreOT. It is to resolve the misconceptions of identity--the entanglement of entities.

Body thetans and clusters can influence the PreOT's perception of the physical universe. The physical universe itself has no ability to do this.

They can impinge on the PreOT or his body and cause unwanted feeling and somatics.

An individual's awareness of who he is will intensify as he goes through the rundown.

As earlier mentioned, it could be called the "I am you" or the "All is one" rundown. What's amazing is that there are as many life units as there are.

The principle of misownership, misowning pictures, incidents, identities and beingness is what causes the BT to hang up. There would also, at the bottom of it, have to be a postulate by the BT or cluster to remain in or around the body. These BTs are in an uncleared state. When run on the valence technique they go clear and blow. Misconceptions can be of time, place, form or event.

The beings that one handles on III are ones that have been with a guy since then or have been dumped on a guy. By the way, earth is a dumping ground to end all dumping grounds.

The beings one encounters on AAV are not in the time stream. They are out of present time, down the track. One has to actually shift his attention out of present time to locate them. You may be able to jolt them earlier on the track, which unsticks them from their stuck point. This is an additional technique.

Most blow by inspection or respond very easily to the valence technique.

TIPS ON REPAIRING PAST AUDITING

JANUARY 1984

Many examples could be given which show how a case can be messed up by running unreading Dianetic items, wrong items or by going past erasure. Going past erasure will jump a guy into the chain of a BT or cluster who has been dead for a long time. BTs and clusters will unknowingly mock up the incident they're stuck in (or the incident the PreOT is intending them to mock up). Needless to say, this is not ideal. This is the bug one can run into on AAV.

The early steps of the rundown take up these possible errors, although at any point in the rundown when a PreOT bogs, the auditor should suspect that he's run into some more BPC on past auditing to be handled. It may be an obvious area of auditing or an auditor that the PreOT has brought up throughout his auditing, or it may require a reassessment of all the auditors the PreOT has had. Usually it is handled simply by asking the PreOT if "an error in earlier auditing has been restimulated?"

On the action of repairing past auditing, during the beginning program steps, interest is checked. The reason for this is that PreOT (or pc) interest is an indicator that charge is available and can and should be handled. By checking PreOT interest in the auditing action, the auditor can avoid over-repairing.

The steps for handling the repair of past auditing are:

A.What was being run?

B.What was the error (BPC) in the auditing? (or use the appropriate correction list to find it)

C.Indicate the by-passed charge.

D.Check to see if the BT or cluster that this was run on is still around (as it often will have blown by now), and if so, take the remaining steps to blow it.

E. Check for any copy.

You can also check for a "BT or cluster messed up in running_____?" (whatever type of auditing is being addressed.) Then complete steps B through E on what is found.

You can over-handle past auditing to the point that what you are correcting on one will start uncorrecting on another; that is, BTs will begin to copy errors they didn't have, hence the rule about going by PreOT interest and not continuing on past the point where the PreOT ceases to be interested in the action being done.

If, later during the rundown, it becomes evident that there is more BPC to be handled on past auditing, the auditor simply takes up that subject again.

If one runs into a bog in a session later on in the rundown, first check for any error in the current session and if that doesn't handle the trouble, then check for a restimulated error (or BPC) from an earlier session or earlier auditing and repair that using the steps above.

Although the above may sound like a lot of repair, it makes the auditor's job easier and more effective. These repair actions are usually very easy to do and quite spectacular in result.

AAV SERIES 11

OUT-INT

JANUARY 1984

If a body thetan or cluster the PreOT is handling has out-int, it makes if very hard for the BT/Cluster to blow. This isn't a lack of intention on the part of the PreOT to blow the BT/Cluster, but an inability of the BT/Cluster to blow.

It is handled by finding the interiorization button that applies. BTs "go-in," this is a characteristic of body thetans. A shocking incident or whatever can cause BTs to "go-in." They also "go-on." "Went-on" is a button that can be checked. BTs can "go-on" a body, a wall, or whatever, and due to misconceptions can consider themselves stuck. "Stuck-on" can also be checked.

One can check "Went-in," "Went-on," "Stuck-in," "Stuck-on" for a read and run recall on the times he went in or went on, etc., depending on what read. You can also ask, "When did you go in?" or "When did you go on?"

"Can't get out" is another button that can be used. You ask the BT/Cluster, "What couldn't get out?" (as the BT may be stuck in a valance that couldn't get out), the BT answers, giving the valance, the PreOT acknowledges the answer and the BT moves out of that valance and is then able to leave or the PreOT then asks the BT, "Who are you?" The BT cognites "I'm me" and leaves.

You can also have the BT point to which way WAS in. This has very limited workability but can work on occasion. It is based on the idea that if the BT is asked which way was in, the BT will recall the moment or duplicate the moment when it went in and thus as-is it. (Note, it's not IS in, but WAS in.)

In extreme cases of out-int an Interiorization Rundown may be done - by assessing the full list of interiorization buttons and running the reading button by recall (not engram running). You locate the BT or cluster that has out-int, assess the buttons on that BT or cluster, take the best reading button, assess the four flows and then run recall on the best reading flow and so on until it blows. Then, if there is another BT/cluster with out-int, repeat these steps on it . Do this until all BTs/clusters with out-int are handled.

Warning: whenever you handle out-int, beware of over-doing this action as then you can get BTs/clusters copying or mocking up out-int when they didn't have any trouble with out-int. And, remember that many pcs have had overrun and unnecessary Interiorization Rundowns in their earlier auditing and the BPC may be restimulated or in restimulation whenever the subject of interiorization comes up.

Always check whether "out-int" is a wrong item or wrong indication for other BTs who didn't have any trouble with it. Often, this is so and it cleans up on recognition and indication.

ADVANCED ENTITY CLEARING

THE VALENCE TECHNIQUE

24 NOVEMBER 1988

Entity Beings and clusters of Entity Beings go out of valence. They can go into the valence of a person or animal. Some Entity Beings go into the valence of molecules, minerals, as well as, cells.

Some go into the valence of objects.

Sometimes Entity Beings are in the valence of a body, or part of a body, such as "torso," "brain," "arm," etc. These aren't vicious in attitude, they are benign but misguided. They feel they are necessary to the body. They are sometimes stuck on the external perimeter of the body, 2 - 3 feet out from the body, surrounding it.

There's a trick of getting them to shift valence. You find out what valence it is into and indicate it - this is done by simply asking them what they are. Having found out what he or they have gone into the valence of, you acknowledge it and ask them who they are and they generally blow off.

They are in the valence of something. They consider these safe valences or safe beingnesses. It is one of the systems of "being in," protected and defended - be in the valence of something.

There's also a scarcity of forms, and a Being becomes a form. They can also be an idea, and try to be in a form.

They can be a picture, or an unsafe picture - to remind one that "nothing is safe, because one might forget." So an Entity Being can be a picture, or part of a picture, or he can be being a condensed energy mass, or being a problem, etc. An Entity Being can be in the valence of anything at all.

There are actually five steps to shifting valence - you find out what valence the Entity Being is being and acknowledge it and ask "who are you?" - he will usually cognite "I'm me," and blow.

Entity Beings think they are pictures, things, beings, body parts, objects, ideas, somatics - they can be anything at all. If that is realized,they will tell the Clear what they are and blow. The basic misconception when handled, flips them into their own valence, and they blow - sometimes disintegrating explosively - with a succession of "I'm me," "I'm me," "I'm me"....sometimes they go out several hundred feet and explode violently.

If the Clear asks "What are you?" they'll answer up "I'm(valence)," and then realize they're not(valence). There's another action of acknowledgement - maybe nobody has ever acknowledged these beingnesses - because they're so bizarre, so far out. You must acknowledge what the Entity Being or cluster tells you they are. You're flipping them out of obsessive beingnesses or a misconceived area.

The full steps of shifting their valence:

(1) Ask"What are you?"

(2) Entity Being or cluster answers "I'm (valence)."

(3) Acknowledge Entity Being or cluster.

(4) Entity Being or cluster realizes they're not (valence), and blows, or

(5) Ask"Who are you?" and Entity Being or cluster realizes and normally says "I'm me" and blows and sometimes it's a highly multiple blow.

(6) If they repeat what they just said ask "What were you before you became that?," they say "me" and blow.

(If you don't acknowledge Entity Being's answer after "What are you?," the second question - "Who are you?" - tends to be invalidative.)

If they don't answer, you're talking to an energy mass and not an Entity Being or they're really dead; there's one trick - tell them to go earlier, and if it's a condensed energy mass, go behind it and you'll locate them.

If they don't answer what they are - persist, say "Good" and ask "Well, who are you?" and they won't persist in their chatter, they'll go silent and probably answer "I'm me" and blow.

Most of the time you don't have to do anything though, just look and they blow.

DIFFERENT RESPONSES

Blowing Entity Beings and clusters by this Valence Technique is almost the basic rundown - it is the hottest technique there is. There are two situations under which it does not work at once. These are:

(A) When you don't get an answer.

(B) They give you a significance or an identity in answer to the

"Who are you?" question.

Here's how you handle:

(A) When you don't get an answer:

If you don't get an answer, you may be talking to simply an energy mass put out by some other Entity Being or cluster, or they are really dead. Tell it to go a little bit earlier, jolt it a little bit earlier with an intention or impulse and then it will run on through and blow.

But if it's a condensed energy mass, being put out by some other Entity Being or cluster, just look behind the condensed energy mass, address your actions to the Entity Being or cluster behind the condensed energy mass and then you'll get an answer.

(B) They give you a significance or an identity answer:

If you ask "Who are you?" and get an answer which is an identity such as: "George Smith," or "Willy the Red," you simply acknowledge that answer and ask "Who were you before you became that?" Sometimes you may have to run back down the track through a whole chain of past identities, but if you persist the Entity Being or cluster will eventually realize and say "I'm me" and blow.

Generally Entity Beings are very fluent and quite easy to handle.

Probably what makes a Preclear, as a whole, hard to clear at lower levels, is that the Clearing Practitioner is clearing the misconceptions of the Preclear and Entities simultaneously. But on Entity Clearing you will find the majority of Entity Beings and clusters easy to clear and blow. Many of them simply blow on inspection, and the basic usual technique for blowing the rest of them is the Valence Technique.

VALENCE TECHNIQUE

1. "What are you?"

2. (answer)

3. Acknowledge

4. Realizes it isn't (_____), and blows, or

5. "Who are you?" - "I'm me," and blows.

6. If they repeat what they just said or give you an identity, ask "What were you before you became that?," they say "me" and blow.

These steps are the basic and most workable technique. If the Clear realizes that an Entity Being or cluster can be being anything - anything at all - and accepts the Entity Being's or cluster's answer and acknowledges that answer, this technique will work very smoothly and well.

GLOSSARY

AWARENESS CHARACTERISTICS

12 JANUARY 1990

FALSE CAUSE 1. claiming to cause a result that was caused by something else.

2. making another responsible for an effect one has caused.

REASONABLENESS 1. an attitude of security or pleasure often while unaware of potential danger.

UNEXISTENCE 1. not being, not occurring, not emerging or appearing. 2. a feeling that one does not exist. 3. feeling invisible.

DISCONNECTION 1. the act of severing or interrupting the connection of or between. 2. a feeling that one is not a part of what is going on.

UNCAUSING 1. not acting or existing in such a way that some specific thing happens as a result.

CRIMINALITY 1. committing acts of negligence deemed injurious to the group welfare. 2. accepting acts which are harmful or destructive to the welfare of the group.

DISASSOCIATION 1. a decline in the ability to tell differences, similarities and identities. (Things which are different, are seen to be identical. Things which are similar are conceived to be widely different. Things which are identical are conceived to be only similar.) 2. a feeling that one is separate from others; separation.

DISPERSAL 1. scattered in various directions; being scattered or spread over a vast area. 2. scattered attention.

EROSION 1. a feeling that one is being destroyed by slow consumption or wearing away.

FIXIDITY 1. being unable to bring about change.

GLEE 1. an insane merriment or gaiety. 2. making fun of or joking about things to cover up a lack of understanding.

ELATION 1. a feeling of extreme joy, pride or happiness.

MASOCHISM 1. a condition in which (sexual) gratification depends on self inflicted suffering, physical pain, humiliation, deprivation.

SADISM 1. any enjoyment in being cruel. 2. (sexual) gratification gained through causing physical pain or humiliation.

HALLUCINATION 1. an imagined reality with which nobody else agrees. 2. the apparent perception of sights, sounds, etc. that are not actually present.

SECRECY 1. the characteristics of being hidden, concealed, private, secluded.

DUALITY 1. holding a subjective, imaginary world as being more real than the objective reality of life.

DETACHMENT 1. aloofness. 2. a condition of being unfastened and separated.

OBLIVION 1. a state of chronic forgetfulness. 2. being mentally withdrawn.

CATATONIA 1. a state of mental stupor sometimes alternating with great excitement and confusion.

SHOCK 1. any sudden disturbance or agitation of the mind or emotions, as through great loss or surprise.

HYSTERIA 1. uncontrolled outbursts of emotion or fear, often characterized by irrationality, laughter, weeping.

DELUSION 1. something that is falsely believed. (A delusion seems "real" to the person having it but is not necessarily valid to others.)

INACTUALITY 1. involvement with what is not actual, not real circumstances.

DISASTER 1. a calamitous event occurring suddenly and causing great damage or hardship.

INTROVERSION 1. to have one's attention fixed inward.

NUMBNESS 1. the loss of power to feel or move in life.

SUFFERING 1. an intense feeling of emotional, physical or mental pain, distress, or injury.

DESPAIR 1. feeling or showing hopelessness.

RUIN 1. a behavior, a condition or an attitude considered to be a downfall.

2. anything which stops or inhibits an individual repeatedly in life and is beyond his or her control.

EFFECT 1. being a receiver of causes by not creating effects.

FEAR OF WORSENING 1. a feeling of dread that a condition or situation could become more unfavorable and injurious.

NEED OF CHANGE 1. necessity arising from the circumstances of a situation.

DEMAND FOR IMPROVEMENT 1. claiming with authority that favorable changes must occur.

HOPE 1. a feeling that what is wanted will happen; desire accompanied by anticipation or expectation.

HELP 1. that which is needed to advance toward a purpose or goal. 2. that which enhances another person.

RECOGNITION 1. a knowing again; identifying as known before. 2. acknowledging the existence, validity or genuineness of.

COMMUNICATION 1. the consideration and action of impelling an impulse or particle across a distance from a source-point (cause) to a receipt-point (effect) with the intention of bringing into being at the receipt-point a duplication and understanding of that which emanated from the source-point. (At the receipt-point there must be attention and a duplication and understanding of what eminated from the source-point.)

PERCEIVE (verb) 1. to grasp mentally; take note of; recognize; observe. 2. to become aware of through sight, hearing, touch, taste, smell, etc.

PERCEPTION (noun) 1. the process of being aware of something or someone through the senses; seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting, feeling, etc.; there are fifty-two perceptions, including the five basic senses. 2. a channel through which one can contact the physical universe. 3. any means of communicating below the level of knowingness.

ORIENTATION 1. showing or establishing relationship with others by placing or arranging in a certain manner.

UNDERSTAND 1. to know or get the meaning of something, or what it does or will do, or what intention it has.

UNDERSTANDING 1. the act of comprehending, knowing, having knowledge. 2. the power or ability to comprehend, know. 3. the result of seeing and duplicating two opposing views on the same subject. (Understanding is proportional to the degree of affinity, reality and communication involved).

ENLIGHTENMENT 1. to bring into a condition where the eyes and face are bright and shining. [Middle English en, bring into a condition of + lighten (of the face and eyes), to grow bright and shining.] 2. giving the light of fact and knowledge to; revealing truths to; endowing with discernment; freeing from ignorance, prejudice or superstition.

ENERGY 1. that which produces motion, or change in motion, in matter. 2. that which has the capability of producing motion, or change in motion, in matter. (electricity and heat are forms of energy.)

ADJUSTMENT 1. an altering so as to become suited or fit.

BODY 1. a carbon-oxygen engine which runs at 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. (The Being is the engineer running this engine in a "human being.") 2. a solid grouping of appendages which make the person recognizable. 3. the Being's communication center. 4. a carbon-oxygen engine which runs on low combustion fuel, generally derived from other life forms. 5. a physical animal with basic needs for food, shelter, sleep and affection. 6. the genetic product of two genetic lines representing a time and place in the history of genetic evolution.

PREDICTION 1. a statement of what will be; a making known beforehand; a foretelling. [Latin praedictus , praedicere; prae-, before + dicere, to tell]

ACTIVITY 1. the state or quality of being in motion or operating; doing; alert use of energy.

PRODUCE (verb) 1. to bring into existence; make. 2. to bring about; cause. 3. to bring forth; supply; create. 4. to bring forward; show. [Latin producere coming from pro-, forth + ducere to bring, lead]

PRODUCT (noun) 1. that which is produced; the result of work or growth. 2. a completed thing that has exchange value within or outside the activity. 3. someone or something that has been brought into existence; the end result of a creation. 4. a finished high quality service or article, in the hands of the person or group it serves, in exchange for a valuable.

PRODUCTION (noun) 1. the activity of providing a product or service. 2. the act of producing; creation; manufacturing.

RESULT 1. anything that comes about as a consequence or outcome of some action, process, etc.

CORRECT (adjective) 1. conforming with or adhering to a conventional standard; proper: as, correct behavior. 2. conforming with fact or logic; true; accurate; right; free from error.

CORRECT (verb) 1. to make right; to change from wrong to right; remove errors from. 2. to make conform with a standard.

CORRECTION (noun) 1. the action of changing from wrong to right; the action of removing errors from.

ABILITY 1. a being able; power or capacity to act physically, mentally, spiritually, morally, ethically, financially, etc.; power to do. 2. talent. [Latin habilitas, ableness (to hold) from habere, to have, hold]

PURPOSE 1. something one has in mind to get or do; aim; plan; intention. 2. the overall aim which leads to the attainment of a goal.

CLEARING 1. a making clear or being cleared. 2. the action of erasing or releasing harmful energy from the reactive mind, allowing the person to discover the truth for herself. 3. procedures designed to help an individual become well and happy, includes as its basic principle, the exhaustion of all the painfully unconscious moments of a person's life; returning a person to complete rationality, sanity and health through erasure of reactive material in the subconscious mind. 4. asking a person a question, getting an answer to that question and acknowledging the individual for that answer. 5. the application of Alethiology and Alethanetic processes and procedures to someone by a trained Clearing Practitioner, allowing the Preclear to discover the truth for himself. 6. removing wrong answers, false data, barriers, unknowns, etc., from the mind.

REALIZATION 1. a full and complete understanding.

CONDITIONS 1. things essential to the existence or occurence of something else; prerequisites: as, health is one of the conditions of happiness. 2. manner or states of being: as, the patient is in a critical condition. 3. the sets of circumstances surrounding or characterizing a person or thing at a given time. 4. specific operating states of an individual, reflecting the presence or absence of ethics. (The fourteen conditions, in descending order, are: WISDOM, POWER, AFFLUENCE, NORMAL, EMERGENCY, DANGER, NON-EXISTENCE, LIABILITY, DOUBT, ENEMY, TREASON, CONFUSION, STUPIDITY.)

EXIST (verb) 1. to continue to be; to stand out or to be in existence. 2. to be; have reality or actuality. 3. to occur; be present. [Latin existere, exsistere, to step or come forth; ex, out + sistere, to cause to stand, set, place]

EXISTENCE (noun) 1. an existing; state or fact of existing. 2. life; living; continuance of existing. 3. the material and non-material expressions of all aspects of life. 4. an existing state, fact or quality of being or standing out.

SOURCE 1. the point of origin, or it would be the originator, or where something was begun or dreamed up or created. 2. that from which something comes or develops; place of origin; cause.

POWER 1. the ability to get things done. 2. knowing who and what you really are. 3. the degree of ability to carry out an intention. 4. the ability to act or produce an effect.

WISE (adjective) 1. having or showing good judgement; farsighted in judgement; keenly perceptive; capable of exercising sound judgement in practical matters; careful about what one says or does. 2. the opposite of stupid. [Latin videre, to see]

WISDOM (noun) 1. the quality of being wise; the power of judging rightly and following the soundest course of action, based on knowledge, experience and understanding, etc.; good judgement; keenly perceptive; farsighted in judgement; sound judgement in practical matters. 2. the correct use of learning and knowledge. 3. the opposite of stupidity.

FREE 1. able to choose for oneself; not restricted by anything except its own limitations or nature. 2. not under the control of some other person or some arbitrary power; able to act or think without compulsion or arbitrary restriction; having liberty; independent.

FREEDOM 1. the state or quality of being free. 2. the absence of hindrance, restraint, confinement, repression, etc. 3. ability to create and position energy or matter in time and space. 4. the absence of barriers. 5. a lot of space, and ability to use it.

USES OF THE AWARENESS CHARACTERISTICS

31 MARCH 1991

AWARENESS 1. The ability to perceive the existence of.

Awareness itself is perception.

By "Awareness Characteristic" is meant that of which a Being is aware.

There are about 54 levels of awareness from FALSE CAUSE up to the level of SOURCE.

A Being who is at a level on this scale is aware only of that level and the others below it.

To get case gain such a person must become aware of the level next above him. And so on up in orderly sequence, level by level.

If you skip a person on one level or skip him over several levels, he will experience only an unreality and will not make progress.

The state of homo sapiens runs from around -4 (NEED OF CHANGE) down to the bottom. "Normal" is probably much lower than -4.

DISSEMINATION

The following is part of the Lower Awareness Characteristics Chart:

-7 RUIN

-6 EFFECT

-5 FEAR OF WORSENING

-4 NEED OF CHANGE

-3 DEMAND FOR IMPROVEMENT

-2 HOPE

-1 HELP

RUIN, as you can see, is located on the scale of Lower Awareness Characteristics. But there are 29 conditions below ruin and some people are below ruin. There will be some people you find that you do not reach, but don't worry about them. There are people out there who are looking, and there are those who are not up to it yet. Their awareness is far below that. They have to go through and experience more. As you take the aware people and share Clearing with them, it then permits the area around them to come up. As you become more aware, you go out and handle people better. This creates an environment around you that is more aware and more up-tone. Have you noticed this? Then you bring other people in and they do the same thing and gradually the whole society will be coming up.

MOVING A PERSON FROM RUIN UP

RUIN (noun) 1. total destruction or disintegration, rendering something formless, useless, or valueless. 2. a condition of total destruction or collapse. 3. a person whose physical or mental capacities have been destroyed. 4. the loss or severe impairment of one's health, position or honor. 5. the cause of such loss. (verb) 1. to destroy or demolish; reduce to ruin or disintegrate. 2. to harm irreparably. 3. to reduce to poverty or bankruptcy. 4. to deprive of chastity.

Ruin implies depriving of usefulness, soundness or integrity without altogether doing away with the object injured.

There are occurrences in life that, in effect, ruin people.

Sometimes they are physical in nature - a serious illness, a bad accident after which the person isn't the same - his health has been severely impaired.

Sometimes they are emotional - the person liked other people a lot and felt that others like him or her the same way - a close relationship suddenly falls apart violently and devastated him emotionally - as a result he or she have never reclaimed the free spirit he once had.

Perhaps it was a loss of honor or integrity. He felt and indeed was, a good productive worker. Took great pride in the products he produced and in the good name and products of the company he worked for. He perhaps bragged to all his friends and relatives of how lucky he was to be working there and what a great company it was. He even started night school to improve himself on the job and started planning out how he would move up the corporate ladder. He had great affinity for his boss and co workers and socialized with them.

Suddenly and for no apparent reason he was pink-slipped. He lost his job, his honor, his sense of prediction of the future and his trust of other "friendly" people.

Perhaps it was mental. The person desperately wanted to be a professional person - a Doctor, Lawyer, Veterinarian, etc., but could not get good enough grades to be accepted into a professional school. His college experience ruined his opinion of himself. He felt obligated to settle for some other occupation as a substitute for what he really wanted to be and has been, by comparison, unhappy with himself ever since.

Failure at things - marriages, relationships, school, businesses, jobs - something that WAS important - ruins people.

EFFECT

What do you suppose the effect of such occurrences are on a person?

Here's an actual example. A young man got married to the girl of his dreams. He had several children whom he loved dearly. His family was the pride of his life. One day he came home from work to be told that his wife has been having an affair for the last 2 years and has taken the children and left him. Since then, 5 years ago, he has been deathly afraid of having a close relationship because the pain of breaking up is just too excruciating.

Make no mistake about it - the effects such occurrences have on people are devastating. There are multi-billion dollar industries making tons of money from these effects. The psychiatrists, the drug companies, are the most obvious but much of the Medical Doctors' handlings are for "psychosomatic" difficulties - a very large portion of which are merely the lingering effects of personal disasters. The major effect is that it makes people unhappy. Yes they try to rationalize it, justify it and explain it all away, but truth be known, they hurt like hell.

Take a look at your own life and the effects some of your bad experiences have had on you. Most people complain about things A LOT. Effect, Effect, Effect.

FEAR OF WORSENING

A person notices the effect. Ouch. The man who went bankrupt - lost his business, couldn't sleep at night, had anxiety attacks, etc., lives in mortal fear that it could get worse. If you talk to people, you will find there are elements in their lives they are desperately afraid will get worse.

The woman who, at age 45, got divorced and feels lonely and depressed. She has a couple of short-lived encounters with men, only to become more convinced that she may not find anyone will actually care for her - ever again.

Fear, like all levels on the Scale of Emotions, has a volume knob. There is, of course, mild apprehension, and then there is wild full blown terror. The look a person gets in his eyes when he says that he doesn't think he will be able to hold it all together - that look is terror, and so you can get a terror that everything is going to blow up as a high volume fear of worsening.

All one usually needs to do is talk with a person to bring him to the awareness that he does have a fear, conscious or subconscious, that things might get worse.

NEED OF CHANGE

Most of us try to take steps to remedy such effects. Some try counselling, some go to seminars on relationships, money, love and sex. Some just get drunk, pop a pill, snort something - others read books about how they can think and grow rich or become more positive in their thinking.

Others try subliminal tapes, firewalking, "crystal healing," or Body Work. The list goes on and on. These at their extreme are desperate attempts to stop the condition from getting worse.

Truth is, in this Universe, nothing stays the same. The Physical Universe does not allow such a thing as a status quo. A thing is either improving, getting better, or it is getting worse. That is the physical universe cycle of action - Birth - growth - decay - death. Anyone thinking a bad condition will get better by itself is simply kidding himself. The effects you experience will not "heal themselves." Time does NOT heal all wounds.

The divorce depressed him. He pulled himself together and got involved in another relationship. It broke up and the depression was worse. It is at that point anyone who isn't brain-dead realizes there is a need to change - something. Because if you don't, it's going to get worse, and worse and worse. So this level is not just, "it would be nice if it changed." IT NEEDS to change.

Do you have friends who complain about the same things over and over and over? Is there a need to change something there?

DEMAND FOR IMPROVEMENT

Being aware that something needs to change is fine. But nothing will change unless one can be brought to the awareness of demand for improvement. For those that expect it all to magically get better on its own, there will never be any hope. Ideas like, "The universe will provide," "God will take care of you," etc., come right out of those people that would keep you trapped in Apathy forever.

DEMAND (verb) 1. to ask for urgently or firmly, leaving no chance for refusal or denial. 2. To need or require as useful, just, proper, or necessary.

IMPROVE 1. to advance to a better state or quality; make better.

Improve refers to an act of raising in quality or value or of relieving an undesirable situation.

Nothing changes anywhere for the better unless there is a real demand for improvement.

Demand for improvement is the key to success on any front. Any part of a person's life that does get better was preceded by a demand for that improvement. This was not a wish or empty desire or merely a thought that it should improve. When things go better, it is because of a demand that they do so.

You can look over people's lives and your own life. Things did go better - name a few. Was there a point just prior to that improvement where you decided, demanded, fought like hell, to get it improved?

HOPE

HOPE (noun) 1. a feeling that what one desires will happen.

HOPE (verb) 1. to wish and expect.

When you have hope, you are able to take the actions necessary to fulfill your desires. A person in Apathy (hopelessness) has no interest in taking action and seemingly cannot act. Why bother when it's hopeless anyway? A person who can be aware of HOPE is on his or her way up the spiral.

The first Step on the Life Expansion Chart is INTRODUCTORY CLEARING, and the Outcome of that step is, AWARENESS THAT CHANGE IS AVAILABLE. This is another way of saying that this person, who has just experienced Clearing for the first time, now has HOPE about his or her whole existence. It is a major step in a person turning her life around.

HELP

HELP (noun) 1. that which is needed to advance toward a purpose or goal.. 2. that which enhances another person(s).

HELP (verb) 1. to assist or aid another.

The word "help" conveys a strong suggestion of effectual action.

Let's talk about help. Can you name some ways you have helped people?

OK. Now, tell me some ways you would like people to help you.

Do this a few times. Can you see that sometimes people haven't helped you the way you WANTED AND NEEDED to be helped?

A person goes to a Doctor asking for help because he doesn't feel well and ends up in exploratory surgery. A person feels depressed and asks a friend's help to just let him get a few things off his chest. He starts to tell his painful story, but before he can tell it all, his friend tells him his story.

Now think of some times you have actually been helped. What a difference!

Clearing gets rid of past and present upsets by eliminating the negative energy contained in past traumatic incidents. As that is done, a person's overall level on the Scale of Emotions rises significantly, and areas in his life that have been severely affected by traumatic experiences become totally healed.

When you bring a person up to HOPE, the next thing he needs to realize is that Clearing can HELP.

SUMMARY

Some people have dropped below the level of RUIN, and not everyone is going to have a reality on what his ruin is. But for those who can confront their ruin, getting rid of it will be of interest to them. You can say, "I know something that could possibly handle that."

The next thing you do is take him up to effect. For example, you could say, "Look, you are very much at the effect of the inability to communicate, aren't you? Well, it's going to get worse." He might say, "Well, that is the way it has been going for the last few years." And you say, "OK, you need to change it." He says, "Yeah, I should."

He will go into each level very easily because that is the level that is there, and then you just go into the next one.

You say, "OK, you should demand that something be done about it. You have to make the first move and that is you demanding yourself to do something about you. Otherwise, it won't get done, will it?"

Next you go into hope and help. "There is a chance that possibly Clearing could help you with this. It has helped others. Maybe it could do something for you."

But you don't give people a lot of information. You give them some benefits, and then if they don't reach, you withdraw. This is a way of getting them to reach, and many people make the mistake of over-reaching. They talk to people and give them too much data; they over-reach and force the other person to withdraw.

Basically all the person is interested in is what is going to help or benefit him. If he has a lot of failed help, you have some work to do. Some people vary in the length of time they take to come into Clearing after first hearing about it. Just reach and withdraw and give him benefits. Always handle the individual in front of you. Avoid a set pattern. Handle what is necessary with ARC. Grant the person lots of beingness.

In taking a person up the lower Awareness Characteristics from RUIN, it is essential to ensure that you actually have the person on each level before you go on to the next. If you don't, you have a missed gradient, and the person will stay at the level below the missed level.

Example: You have the person on "FEAR OF WORSENING" and you say, "You need to change it, don't you?" He says, "How do I do that?" You haven't gotten him on NEED OF CHANGE. Need of change is, "Yes, I need to change that," not, "How do I do that?"

You have to listen to what he is saying and make sure it fits the level and not something else. Take a look at the difference in meaning between "I need to change that" and "How do I do that?" In the latter there is no decision to change and he is dodging the issue.

Occasionally you will get someone who is above ruin. The thing you will work on with them is purposes. Purpose is much higher on the scale than ruin, but it is the same principle. Find out what the person's purpose is and then align Clearing to that purpose. You say, "What is it you want to do in life" Look him straight in the eye and say, "You can do that." Bring him to understanding as to how Clearing can help him achieve his purposes in life.

In every case it takes as long as it takes. Never feel you have lost by someone not coming in. Just play it as a game and don't get serious.

POWER PROCESSING

Notice that the three Awareness Characteristics called Source, Existence and Conditions are very near the top of the Awareness Characteristics Scale. These are the key buttons for the three main Power Processes which are the subject of Section Four of the Excalibur Preparation Course.

THE ORGANIZATION BOARD

18 FEBRUARY 1990

Successful organization depends on an agreed upon pattern that forwards the needs and the purpose of the organization and allows the group of persons involved to each carry out a function which is useful and productive and results in the group as a whole accomplishing its purpose.

There are two fundamentals involved:

1. The actual diagrammatic pattern of the organization showing the divisions, departments, their personnel, functions and lines of communication. This pattern fully drawn out is known as the Org (Organization) Board.

2. The 'Policy' of the organization. Policy is derived from successful actions and is the agreed upon way that the actions of the group are carried out successfully. These actions are in written form and are followed exactly.

By a person's knowledge and certainty of the pattern of operation (Org Board) and implementa-tion of the proven successful actions (Policy), one's Group will come into existence and operate simply and with minimum confusion.

The Org Board and Policy are in no way intended to suppress an individual's production; it is simply to permit each one to be productive individually and yet be co-ordinated as a group and thus move in a single direction forward.

If you can imagine a group not in agreement on the basic pattern, you will have something like this:

?maybe you go forward, but it's agony and pretty purposeless.

If you are in agreement and are not on each other's toes you have:

Agreement

Co-ordination

POWER

Instead of all the force vectors lying about in a random confusion, opposing each other, you add up the vectors all in one direction and achieve thereby a concentration which brings a result.

You also have a very happy group with a high level of ARC.

The Org Board used by Clearing Practitioner Groups is philosophically based upon the most workable pattern that exists in the Physical Universe at present, which is Man.

Man is set up as follows:

First there is the Being (spirit, the person himself) which is the source point of ideas and pur-poses.

Then there is the mind, which can be likened to a computer.

Then there is the body, which moves in the Physical Universe and creates effects initiated by the Being, thereby creating a product.

Thus the Being conceives of an idea. The mind is referred to for data to relate the idea to the environment in which the person is operating. Then the body is directed to put the idea into effect. There is a resultant product which can be viewed and corrected or not corrected by the Being.

Thus we have a pattern:

with the product matching the original idea of the Being.

To get a further, clearer look at how this develops and its simplicity, consider an artist about to do a picture.

First, he the artist, the Being, conceives of the need to paint (the purpose might be to make money). He gets an idea as to what he wishes to paint.

He then, through the mind, communicates to get perceptions of the subject. Upon having gath-ered sufficient perceptions, he plans the execution of the painting. The mind also plans the dissemination which will result in a sale of the product. Those are the functions of the mind.

He next organizes his materials, possibly purchasing some extra, and gets into the activity of painting the picture. Those two are functions of the body.

When the body of the painting is done, he views the result to see if it matches his original inten-tion and then displays the painting publicly?thus product.

With the successful result, he receives funds to continue his activity and survive.

Being

Mind Body Product

We can now compare this to the Clearing Practitioner Group and come up with the basic pattern of the group which will give the product of Clears and Entity Clearing completions.

The 'Being' is responsible for the survival of the whole activity and is senior to mind, body and product. We will call the Being of the group?the GROUP PRESIDENT.

The mind basically is a mechanism which receives and relays information and which relates present information to past information. Thus mind is called the COMMUNICATIONS EXECUTIVE.

The body is a mechanism which moves and handles material and production and is represented by the ORGANIZATION EXECUTIVE.

The product of the organization is something which is viewed by other persons and if liked, encourages them to participate, thereby creating expansion. It is represented by the PUBLIC EXECUTIVE.

BEING

Group President

MIND BODY PRODUCT

Communications Organization Public

Executive Executive Executive

The four basic personnel are now in existence.

In the Clearing Practitioner Group MIND there are two main functions, communications and dissemination.

Thus the COMMUNICATIONS EXECUTIVE has two divisions under his responsibility .

DIV 1. COMMUNICATION DIVISION, headed by the Communications Secretary

DIV 2. DISSEMINATION DIVISION, headed by the Dissemination Secretary.

Each of these divisions, following the Being, mind, body, product pattern, contain three depart-ments.

When the group gets above 50, a third division will be added under the Communications Execu-tive and under the Organization and Public Executives. These too will follow the Being, mind, body, product pattern.

For the BODY of the group, again there are two basic divisions. Division 3 handles the energy of the group (money and materials) so that the activities of Clearing and training can take place.

Thus the ORGANIZATION EXECUTIVE has two divisions under him.

DIV 3. TREASURY DIVISION, headed by the Treasurer

DIV 4. TECHNICAL DIVISION, headed by the Technical Secretary

The PRODUCT of the group, under the PUBLIC EXECUTIVE, has two divisions.

DIV 5. QUALIFICATIONS DIVISION, headed by the Qualifications Secretary

DIV 6. PUBLIC DIVISION, headed by the Public Secretary.

The Qualifications Division ensures that the results match the original intention, and if not, this division makes the necessary corrections so that the results are 100% standard.

The Public Division is in contact with the public and makes known the product of the group, and acts as liaison with other groups newly formed.

POSTING THE ORG BOARD

The Org Board of the group is posted conspicuously. It is best done on a varnished board or a formica board varnished over. Names are printed or typed or Dymo stickered. If the board isn't var-nished, tape and Dymo strips can't be pulled off easily and stuck back on to make changes.

The Org Board is always kept up to date with any changes posted at once.

Colored tape is used to separate the different departments and parts of the organization. Page x shows a sample Org Board.

REVIVIFICATION

18 AUGUST 1989

Revivification is the bringing back to life of an engram in which a Preclear is stuck. The engram or some portion thereof is being acted out in present time by the Preclear. It is called a revivification because the engram is suddenly more real to the Preclear than present time has ever been. He relives that moment briefly. He does not merely recall or remember it.

This is not the same thing as the "returning" to an incident or engram that is employed in Alethanetic Clearing. Return is the method of retaining the body and the awareness of the subject in present time while he is told to go back to a certain incident. Revivification is the reliving of an incident or a portion of it as if it were happening now.

This phenomenon can occur in a Pc during the Interiorization Rundown.

The Pc, being run on Recalls on Int, will often begin by recalling locks but these can trigger into full play an engram in which he may be stuck and the Pc may go into a revivification of it. He will actually be answering and acting from the point or points down the track where he has been stuck.

Should this happen the Clearing Practitioner simply continues to run the process and get the Pc through it. As the Pc revivifies he blows through these stuck points on his track and comes out of them, newly, and is now truly in present time.

As revivification is apt to occur on the Interiorization Rundown, Clearing Practitioners must understand and be able to recognize the phenomena and handle it routinely with excellent CEs when it does.

THE PURPOSE OF POWER PROCESSING

31 MARCH 1991

POWER 1. the ability to get things done. 2. knowing who and what you really are. 3. the degree of ability to carry out an intention. 4. the ability to act or produce an effect.

POWER CLEARING PRACTITIONER 1. a Class VII Clearing Practitioner, one qualified to deliver the Power Processes of Step XIV.

The Power Processes are a series of processes at Step XIV that bring the Preclear to a knowledge of the true source of creative power and allow him to differentiate himself from his body, mind, emotions, personalities, identities and even his existence. The result is a person who knows the source of all problems and who is disconnected from his reactivity to a fairly stable degree.

Power Processing runs out the Whole Track secondary or engram necessary to resolve the case. This secondary or engram sits between the Preclear in present time and basic basic on the Whole Track. Running it allows the Preclear to now access and run basic basic and go Clear. When this Whole Track secondary or engram "runs out," it almost always does so by revivification.

Power Processing can be run on Clears to boost their ability to recognize Source and to better handle Existence and Conditions. This revivification may not been seen in Clears.

INTRODUCTION TO THE POWER PROCESSES

31 MARCH 1991

IMPORTANT DEFINITIONS

PRESENT TIME: The time which is now and which becomes the past almost as rapidly as it is observed. It is a term loosely applied to the environment existing in now, as in "the Preclear came up to present time," meaning the Preclear be-came aware of the existing matter, energy, space, and time of now. The point on anyone's Time Track where his physical body (if alive) may be found. "Now."

STUCK IN PRESENT TIME: The condition of a person being incapable of moving on the Time Track into the past. In actuality the Preclear is in some incident which forces him to be in the apparent present.

REVIVIFICATION: The bringing back to life of an engram in which a Preclear is stuck. The engram or some portion thereof is being acted out in present time by the Preclear. It is called a revivification because the engram is suddenly more real to the Preclear than present time has ever been. He re-lives that moment briefly. He does not merely recall or remember it.

AN ENGRAM: A mental image picture of an experience containing pain, unconsciousness and a real or fancied threat to survival; it is a recording in the mind of some-thing which actually happened to the Preclear in the past which contained pain and unconsciousness, both of which are recorded in the mental image picture called an engram.

ANATEN: A composite of two words, "analytical attenua-tion," or partial or complete dilution or weakening of the functions of the analytical mind. The Preclear goes "unconscious" for a moment in the session.

A SECONDARY: A secondary engram is a mental image picture of a moment in the past containing misemotion - anger, fear, grief, apathy - where loss either is threatened or accomplished. However, a secondary can not exist unless an engram underlies it.

TIME TRACK: The consecutive mental image pictures recording the consecutive moments of "now" through which the individual has lived. It consists of locks, secondaries, and engrams.

There are three main Power Processes. They are known as the Source, Existence, and the Conditions Process.

I. SOURCE

Definitions:

SOURCE: That from which something comes or develops; origin point; cause point; a beginning; a creator

NO-SOURCE: Something that is caused, an effect, a created thing, not able to create.

ATTENTION UNIT: A theta energy quantity of awareness existing in the mind in varying quantity from person to person.

FIXED ATTENTION UNITS: Attention units which are caught somewhere down the Time Track in one incident or another in the form of entheta.

GENERALITY: A general or nonspecific statement which is applicable to all and used to connote a statement made in an effort to either hide cause or to overwhelm another person with the all-inclusive.

MEGALOMANIAC: A person who has delusions of grandeur, wealth, power, etc.

DELUSION: A belief in something which is contrary to fact or reality resulting from deception, mis-conception, or misassignment.

PARANOID: A person with delusions, as of grandeur or, especially, persecution.

SOURCE PROCESS COMMANDS

1. Tell me a source.

2. Tell me about it.

3. Tell me a no source.

4. Tell me about it.

FLATTENING THE SOURCE PROCESS

The Source Process is ended when the Preclear exper-iences brightness and solidity changes in the Clearing room. The Preclear will comment that the room is brighter and more solid.

SOURCE PROCESS CLEARING OF COMMANDS

1.Clear the word "source" and the word "no source" by having the Preclear look up the definition in the dictionary.

2.Clear the command, "Tell me a source."

3.Clear the command, "Tell me a no source."

4.Clear the command, "Tell me about it."

THEORY OF THE SOURCE PROCESS

The Source Process is used to get a Preclear not only to answer the Clearing command and tell where it is coming from, but also to handle the Preclear on the entire scale from NO SOURCE to TOTAL SOURCE to AWARENESS OF SOURCES.

THE NO-SOURCE CASE

One of the lowest levels of cases is the case who has never caused anything and who does not recognize that anyone else can cause things. This case is one of totally fixed attention units, all of which are completely fixated on some-thing which is not there, but which is meaningful and male-volent; therefore, this case has sought the refuge of the non-existence of source to avoid this something. To such a case there is no existence, and no conditions. Recognizing no source, this Preclear, therefore, has no Clearing Practitioner, is not himself there either, and of course, has never done anything. Preclears in this state can quite easily admit to having done most anything because in actuality they have not ever done anything.

Further, cases at NO SOURCE have no awareness of any emotion or sensation, although they can exhibit physically the manifestations of emotion and sensation, but their awareness of doing so is nil or at the most a slight curio-sity that their bodies are reacting in an odd manner. Every-thing is pointless to such a case as there is NO SOURCE and therefore no way to effect any changes. Such a case is self--invalidative, irresponsible, and speaks in total generalities, such reflecting the no source of causation. This person, too, is haunted by ghosts, delusions, and false Beings, all of which are phenomena of no source. The individual is quite theety-weety.

The perception of such a case as the NO SOURCE case is that the environment is either rather dark or transparent. A Clearing Practitioner, to get reality concerning how the world looks to such a case, should look at the reflection of a room as mirrored in a window.

THE TOTAL SOURCE CASE

Up scale to a degree from the NO SOURCE case is the TOTAL SOURCE CASE, the case which is pretending to be total source when obviously the person is not. Here we have the megalomaniac, the self-assertive case, the pathological braggart, and the guilt case. Such cases think they cause everything or pretend to cause everything or think they have caused things they haven't or pretend to cause things which they haven't. Such cases are continuously making false assign-ments of cause. Such cases tend in two directions - because they are "cause of everything," they are guilty for all that has happened or is happening or because they are "cause of everything", they are in a state of fighting everyone else in their environment as fancied threats to their own false cause. In the latter case falls the paranoid who is certain that he is being "done-in" because he is so important that the "FBI is after him." Such a case, if he recognizes other source at all, recognizes it only as a threat to him or as a bad causa-tion which only he can right.

Usually such cases as the TOTAL SOURCE case flip-flops between the two extremes in his considerations - "he is either a guilty, horrible, blameworthy creature" or "he is a genius, a fantastic Being whom others are trying to get at."

In Clearing such a case as the TOTAL SOURCE case, the Clearing Practitioner for this Preclear does not exist either, as such a Preclear can admit of no other source or if the Clearing Practitioner does exist, the Clearing Practitioner is only to this Preclear a source of dis-traction or a source of bad cause. If he is in propitiation to the Clearing Practitioner, it will be those "above the Clearing Practitioner" who are the source of bad cause.

What the Clearing Practitioner must recognize and know about both the NO SOURCE case and the TOTAL SOURCE case, and the various har-monics of such as dramatized on various dynamics, is that neither case can as-is, either because there is no source at all or because source is mis-assigned. As-isness can only occur with the proper assignment of source or authorship. Since the ability to perceive source is the key to solving problems, such people have enormous numbers of problems, but never seem to describe the real problem; thus they seem quite baffling.

II. EXISTENCE

Definitions:

EXISTENCE: An existing state or fact of being; life; living; continuance of being; an occurrence; specific manifestation.

PRETENSE: A claim, profession, or alle-gation which is falsely made or assumed or stated.

AS-ISNESS: This is the basic state-ment of Reality in the technology of Clearing and one of its major contri-butions. Instead of puzzling as to WHO made the universe or WHAT made it, the Clearing Practitioner simply perceives that it IS. However, if you attempt to erase an "engram that didn't happen" (dub-in) or get relief by running a problem that never existed, there is no case gain.

Why? Because one can only confront or erase what IS, not an alteration of what IS. To AS-IS something is to look at it AS it IS really, with-out decoration, excuse, embellishment, dub-in, lies, twists, and all that. The alterations prevent the erasure of the actual IS-NESS of the existence or the past or a problem, etc. One has to confront the truth of it without twists to erase it.

ALTER-IS: To introduce a change, and therefore time and persistence into an AS-ISNESS to obtain persistency. An introduction of an alter-is is, therefore, the addition of a lie to the real, which causes it to persist and not to blow or as-is.

OBJECTIVE DUB-IN: The manifestation of putting, unknowingly, perceptions which do not in actual fact exist, in the environment.

SUBJECTIVE DUB-IN: The manifestation of putting, unknowingly, perceptions which do not in actual fact exist, into incidents on the Time Track.

EXISTENCE PROCESS COMMANDS

1. What is?

2. What isn't.

FLATTENING THE EXISTENCE PROCESS

The Existence Process is ended when the Preclear gets into present time. Some Preclears are "stuck in present time." In such cases they will begin answering in present time and then cycle back on the Time Track and back into present time, many times repeating the cycle from present to past to present to past to present, each time going less far into the past until they are finally "in present time" for many commands.

EXISTENCE PROCESS CLEARING OF COMMANDS

1.Clear the word "is" and clear the word "Isn't" by having the Preclear look up the definition in the dictionary.

2.Clear the question, "What is?"

3.Clear the question, "What isn't?"

THEORY OF THE EXISTENCE PROCESS

The Existence Process is used to unburden the engram the Preclear is stuck in so the Preclear can appear to come to present time. This process handles obsessive pretense, chronic alter-is, and dub-in, both in present time and on the track or objective dub-in and subjective dub-in.

With the Source Process, the Clearing Practitioner improved the Pre-clear's ability to be aware of the sources of things. Now with the Existence Process, the Clearing Practitioner is to improve the Preclear's ability to be aware of the existence of the actual and the non-existence of the inactual. This process removes the extraneous incidents off the engram in which the Preclear is stuck so that the Preclear apparently comes to present time.

A Preclear who twists things, looks at birds and calls them birds when they are really chickens or was "punished every day" when no one actually touched him, cannot erase any part of the bank. Thus, one sees no Range Arm or improvement. The Pc is working on fantasy or reputational excuses and isn't AS-ISing. This must be cured before a Preclear can make any real gains. The way to handle it is by getting the Preclear to gradually come to looking at things as they are. When the Preclear can do this, he or she can now "AS-IS," which is to say, erase bank by looking at it. This is the purpose of the Existence Process. The Pc does not have to understand why it works to have it work. It just works.

III. CONDITIONS

Definition:

CONDITION: Anything called for as a re-quirement before the performance, completion, or effectiveness of something else; provision; stipulation. Anything essen-tial to the existence or occurrence of something else; any-thing that modifies or restricts the nature, existence, or occurrence of something else; external circumstances or fac-tors. Manner or state of being. Proper or healthy state.

CONDITIONS PROCESS COMMANDS

1. Tell me an existing condition.

2. Tell me how you've handled it.

FLATTENING THE CONDITIONS PROCESS

The Conditions Process is ended when the Preclear has a revivification of the engram in which he/she is stuck on the Time Track. It is preceded at times by anaten or a secondary engram (misemotional) or both.

CONDITIONS PROCESS CLEARING OF COMMANDS

1.Clear the words, "existing" and "condition" by having the Preclear look up the definitions in the dictionary.

2.Clear the command, "Tell me an existing condition."

3.Clear the word "handled" by having the Preclear look up the definition in the dictionary.

4.Clear the command, "Tell me how you handled it."

THEORY OF THE CONDITIONS PROCESS

The Conditions Process handles the engram the Preclear is stuck in and knocks apart the stuck point on the Time Track. When you give the command, "Tell me an existing condition," you are actually asking the Preclear for an incident from the past that hasn't resolved. It is aimed at the Preclear who is out of present time, but who is fighting a backtrack enemy as though it was in present time, and who is, therefore, solving a problem in present time which has ceased to exist in life. Because of this, the Pre-clear is hostile, covert, and antagonistic.

The case of the continuing perpetrations in present time is resolved with the Conditions Process. All of this case's continual perpetrations in present time are efforts to solve the engram in which the Preclear is stuck.

The Conditions Process results in a revivification of this engram in which the Preclear is stuck and thereby frees the individual on the Time Track so he can now really be in present time.

While the Preclear will recall or remember many inci-dents, and while he seems to be in many, he is, in actual fact, only in ONE and has been there for a long time with other incidents piling up on it. The Pc will eventually REVIVIFY (relive) the actual engram briefly and come for the first time to present time. That is the end of the process.

A secondary (misemotional incident) has to have an engram (a moment of pain and unconsciousness) under it to be a secondary and remain in place. That is why it is called a secondary. A Preclear commonly goes through the secondary (misemotional) charge be-fore he revivifies. Thus the appearance of a secondary is a sign that one is approaching THE engram.

One does not run the secondary or engram as a Clearing Practitioner. One just goes on running the Conditions Process commands. It is a severe goof to stop or change processes just because the Pc has hit a secondary or the key engram. One runs the pro-cess exactly. When the Pc revivifies, a few more commands usually gets him into PT and ends the process. It is a severe goof to overrun or underrun the process.

END WORDS

Sometimes persons who couldn't run R-6 well have had end words fly off for a while when run on one or another of the Power Processes. This soon ceases and the Pc runs quite normally. It's just their R-6 Clearing coming off.

However, the major symptom of overrunning the process is that the Pc, his "Time Track" blown by a revivification, begins to clear off real end words much like R-6EW.

If a Pc has revivified and the process is overrun, it can become quite severe in reaction as the Pc will stick into the R-6 bank! However, a Preclear can be overrun for several days without being smashed. But don't do it.

THE DEFINITION OF "IS"

31 MARCH 1991

Definitions:

Regular (adj) 1. following some rule or principle; according to rule. 2. Grammar. Having the usual changes of form to show tense, number, person, etc.

Irregular (adj) 1. not regular; not according to rule or accepted standards. 2. Grammar. not conjugated in the usual way.

Conjugation (noun) 1. Grammar. a. a systematic arrangement of the forms of a verb. b. a group of verbs having similar forms in such an arrangement. c. the act of giving the forms of a verb according to such an arrangment.

Conjugate (verb) 1. to give the conjugation of a verb.

There are two types of verbs: regular and irregular. The conjugation of an irregular verb such as "BE" does not follow normal grammatical standards. For instance, conjugating the regular verb "to walk" (in the present tense) would be done as follows:

I walk

You walk

He, she or it walks

We walk

They walk

However, an irregular verb does not follow normal grammatical standards. In other words, we do not say, "I be, You be, They be," etc. The conjugation of the irregular verb "to be" (in the present tense) would be as follows:

I am

You are

He, she or it is

We are

They are

So am, are and is are irregular forms of the verb "to be" and mean being or existing. For example, if a person says, "I am," that person is saying, "I exist."

THE POWER PROCESSES

31 MARCH 1991

POWER PROCESS 1AA (Pr Pr 1AA)

1. What have you done?

2. What problem were you trying to solve?

3. What haven't you said?

4. What problem were you trying to solve?

POWER PROCESS 1 (Pr Pr 1)

1. What have you done?

2. What problem were you trying to solve?

Run the above when there is no Range Arm action on Pr Pr 4 or when the Pc is committing present time perpetrations. A continuing perpetration case is committing perpetrations as a solution. Continue the process until a floating needle or there is no more Range Arm action. Then go on to Pr Pr 4 (source). Another, additional, way to handle present time perpetrations is to List and Null "What are you trying to prevent?" and run what you find R3R Quad.

POWER PROCESS 2 (Pr Pr 2)

a) Make a list using the command "Give me some practices, treatments or beliefs you have been connected with, whether you have left them or not." Run to the first blowdown item.

b) Then take the blowdown item, plus the two items up and the two items down from it, and assess those five items to one.

c) Run on the item:

1. Tell me a condition you have encountered in_____.

2. Tell me how you have handled it.

POWER PROCESS 3 (Pr Pr 3)

1. What condition have you encountered in Scientology (Clearing, est, Dianetics, the Catholic Church, etc.)?

2. How have you handled it?

Power Processes 1, 2 and 3 are corrective processes and are used when the Pc is not running well on Pr Pr 4, 5 or 6. Power Process 2 is used when the Pc brings up End Words on Pr Pr 5 and is collapsed into his bank by former practices. Power Process 3 is used when the Pc has been destroyed by a specific former practice.

POWER PROCESS 4 (Pr Pr 4)

1. Tell me a source.

2. Tell me about it.

3. Tell me a no source.

4. Tell me about it.

The word "source" and the phrase "no source" should be thoroughly cleared with a dictionary before clearing the commands. The end phenomenon of this process is that the colors in the room seem brighter and walls seem more solid. Run to this point. In the case where the Pc doesn't originate the specific EP, run to the point where the Pc looks bright and happy with a wide floating needle.

POWER PROCESS 5 (Pr Pr 5)

1. What is?

2. What isn't?

Clear the words using the Language of Miracles with the Pc on the cans. Run to a floating needle with VGIs or 3 consecutive answers in present time. If the Pc gives dichotomies (e.g., good - bad, etc.) go immediately to Pr Pr 2.

POWER PROCESS 6 (Pr Pr 6)

1. Tell me an existing condition.

2. Tell me how you have handled it.

Be sure to clear "handled it" as "how he or she reacted to it" as well as "what he or she did to handle it." Run to a revivification of the incident that the Pc is dramatizing or to a floating needle with VGIs.

EXCALIBUR

FROM CLEAR TO ETERNITY

19 MARCH 1989

As research continues on the advancement of the technology of Clearing those doing the research never cease to be amazed at the amount of gain potentially available to an individual.

The gains available to people through this technology fall into six rough divisions.

1. The realization that there is a path to real self-improvement. An awareness that change is available. This usually happens in Introductory Clearing, The Communication Course or Life Repair.

2. The awareness that, through Clearing, an individual will not get any worse. This normally happens on Recall Clearing.

3. The whole band of gains called the lower Grades (Grades 0 through VI). The very least of these gains, by personal testimony, exceeds any advances achieved in other practices.

4. The band that achieves a final burst of glory and freedom, the State of Clear. This usually occurs on Life Incident Clearing.

5. The Advanced Courses or Advanced Ability Levels (Entity Clearing) leading to personal spiritual freedom. What is amazing here is that each section of this level, according to rave reports, has its own spectacular level of gain.

6. The levels of Excalibur through the Super Static Rundown.

It is a never-ending source of wonder to people that there could be such QUANTITY of gain available to one Being.

Thus in an aberrated state, the person cannot have much reality on how good it can actually be.

The other challenge is that we live in an age of speed. And if gains are available, then people may conceive that it all should happen in a minute. Or maybe a minute and a half. Or as the result of a needle jab which will make them free forever.

Alas, this universe isn't built that way.

This universe is based on QUANTITY. There's an awful lot of it.

The number of electrons in an atom, the number of atoms in a molecule, the number of molecules in a drop of water is awesome arithmetic.

The number of planets in systems, the number of suns in a galaxy, the number of galaxies add up to mind-boggling figures.

On this hectic planet where a life-span is very short, time is hardly conceived of at all. Just recently geologists concluded that Man might have been here for a million years. Each of us can decide for ourselves, through Clearing and our own Time Track, just how long we feel man HAS been here.

One thing is for sure. The age of this and other universes is very, very long. It is not eternity, but almost.

That brings us to the next question: If a Being had half an eternity to louse herself up, how loused up could she get?

Right. You've got it. Plenty!

And you now can get an inkling of how much spiritual gainmight be available. And this could explain why, at each one of the six divisions, there are so many new gains, according to testimonies collected.

We now come to the next question: If it took a Being half an eternity to louse himself up, how long would it take to "unlouse" him?

Now, before your mouth turns down at both sides and before you collapse with apathy considering it, remember we have technology here to help.

It doesn't take half an eternity. It doesn't take millennia--though this could be reasonably expected. It doesn't take centuries. It only takes years.

That's right. Years.

The above six rough divisions of gains are a sort of expanding scale.

The first one could take, with an Intro Session or an assist, maybe a few hours or so, plus a few evenings reading a book.

The next level could possibly take a month or two.

The third level, consisting of the first run on Life Incident Clearing and the lower Grades, could take a few months.

The fourth level, depending on the case, might take a bit longer. But it can result in Clear.

The fifth band now begins to really lengthen. To do the training up to and including the Qualified Solo Clearing Practitioner Course could take a year. Add to this the time spent on the Entity Clearing Levels (Advanced Ability Levels) and thetotal is certainly over a year. The gain a Clear makes on the Entity Clearing Levels in 5 or 10 minute sessions is sometimes equivalent to 5 to 10 hours at lower levels.

Now when you get to band six (Excalibur through the Super Static Rundown), get ready for an exciting journey. It won't happen in a minute.

Some balk when they have gone a month. Life looks too interesting. They are, after all, moving at a much faster pace personally--their interests may have multiplied.

It takes a commitment to keep at it, step by step, to be able to experience the tremendous wins available.

So what is one really looking at? The Future.

Just think of the time behind us.

Now think of the time ahead of us.

There's eternity!

And we'll be in it.

We'll be in it in a good state or a bad one. Really, we're sorry to have to say: there's no choice. One may be able to step off the planet. One isn't going to step off life.

In this time and in this place--for possibly just a little while, we have this chance. To go free and to make it. Planets and cultures are frail things. They do not endure.

No one can promise us that we will make it. But with the knowledge available, we are being given a chance.

The rest is up to us.

Work hard at it--don't waste this brief breath in eternity.

For that is our future--ETERNITY.

It will be good for us or it will be bad.

We hope it will be good for everyone.

POSTULATES AND INTENTIONS

THE DIFFERENCE

19 MARCH 1990

BELIEF (noun) 1. mental acceptance of something as true, whether based on reason, prejudice or the authority of the source. 2. an opinion; expectation; judgement.

BELIEVE (verb) 1. to take as true, real. 2. to have confidence in a statement or promise of (another person). 3. to suppose, expect, assume. 4. to hold views or opinions.

CONSIDER (verb) 1. to think, believe, suppose, postulate. 2. originally, to look at carefully; regard attentively; examine. [Latin considerare, to look at closely, observe]

CONSIDERATION (noun) 1. a thought; a postulate about something. 2. a continuing postulate. 3. the highest capability of life, taking rank over the mechanics of matter, energy, space and time.

POSTULATE (noun) 1. something taken for granted or assumed as a basis for reasoning; a fundamental principle; necessary condition. 2. a consideration generated by the Being; a self-created truth. 3. a self-created thought which shapes, forms or creates past, present or future existence. 4. a causative thinkingness. 5. a self-created idea or consideration on which intentions are based. Example: a woman considers or has the idea (postulates) that eating meat is not good for her body. Based on this consideration, she intends to not eat meat.

POSTULATE (verb) 1. to take for granted; assume without proof as a basis of reasoning; require as a fundamental principle or necessary condition. 2. to cause an idea or consideration. 3. to conclude, decide or resolve a problem or to set a pattern for the future or to nullify a pattern of the past.

INTENTION (noun) 1. a command from the mind that helps to bring about a result. (It is not the verbalization but the carrier wave which takes the verbalization along with it.) [Latin intendere, from in- toward + tendere stretch (the mind or thought)]

INTEND (verb) 1. to have in the mind as a purpose, plan; something to be done. 2. to hold an idea before the mind to its manifestation.

The words postulate and intention have generally been thought to be interchangeable; however, there is a distinct and fundamental difference between them.

A postulate is a belief about the way something is - a personal law out of which your reality is created, whether you are aware of it or not.

We have postulates about everything and only some of them are counter to our survival. To very few of them do we pay any attention. We just act as if they are true, as true as the law of gravity. Notice that we neither question nor think about the law of gravity, yet everything we do is based on it. It is a given which, in our every day lives we don't examine or set about to change in any way, yet we operate in alignment with it 100%. This is how it is with postulates. They are our personal laws and they have the same magnitude of influence on us as the law of gravity.

Out of our postulates comes our reality - the way our lives are. Everything about the way are lives are! Some of these postulates are known to us and are easy to spot. Stop a moment now and think of some postulates you know you have. It may be something like, "It's better to be healthy than sick," or "Having enough money is important," or "Decent people work for a living." When you are aware of a postulate, you can look at it with your analytical mind and see if it's rational and acceptable to you. If it is not, you can change it.

It is the postulates you have that you don't know about that cause the trouble. Submerged in the reactive subconscious mind are postulates, created during real or imagined threats to survival, that are outdated, illogical and a source of trouble; yet, they are still operating in full force. In running traumatic incidents you are bringing these postulates to conscious awareness where they can be re-examined and changed. In Clearing you are able to look for, examine and change the postulates you didn't know you had.

Let's say a person subconsciously had the postulate, "I don't deserve any time off." The person doesn't know he has that postulate, but will he have much time off? Not much. He doesn't think about or consider the issue. The postulate is like an automatic pilot; it thinks and considers FOR him.

How about another example: a person has the postulate, "Pain lets me know I'm alive." As insane as it may be, and as counter-survival as it may be, yes, this person will create a certain amount of pain in his life, especially when he's starting to doubt that he's alive.

In the process of Clearing, this postulate might come up. The person would see it and say, "Hey! That's crazy! I don't need pain to know I'm alive." In that moment of cogniting, the old postulate is as-ised, and the person consciously makes a new postulate in present time - one he's aware of and accepts as supportive to his survival.

How does a postulate conclude, decide or resolve the past, present or future? In order to discuss this, we first have to realize that everything is an illusion of some sort to begin with; it is our view or opinion of it, consideration about it, etc., that determines any qualities it has.

Something happened to you when you were five. Was it a good experience or bad? That is determined only by you. So now, right in present time, you can change the past by simply saying it's changed. You can't change what actually happened but what difference does it make what happened? The factor that has any effect on your life is, how do you view what happened? In order to change the past, all you need to do is change your opinion about it. And that opinion is the new postulate.

To intend is to want to achieve a particular goal. An intention could be something we want to be: "I want to be a cowboy when I grow up." Or something we want to do: "I will work hard so I can retire at 65." Or something we want to have: "I will have that parking space in front when I get to the store." Every intention is preceded by a known or unknown postulate. All intentions are secondary to postulates. Intentions are about the doing of something while postulates are about the beingness of something.

Postulates compose the belief system that determines your reality. The conscious intentions a person has are based on his postulates. For example, a person would have to have a postulate like, "Cowboys are great people," or "Cowboys have good lives," before that person would intend to be a cowboy. Likewise, we've had intentions that were not in our best interest, but because of unknown postulates we had, we automatically had the intentions that align with those postulates.

You may have heard someone say, "I postulated that parking place in front of the store" or "I'm going to postulate a new job," etc. These are, in fact, intentions, not postulates.

The following are examples of postulates and the intentions a person might "logically" have as a result. After reading them, stop and think up 5 or 10 examples of your own.

Examples:

Postulate: It is good to have a lot of money.

Intention: I will save 10% of my income into a savings account.

Postulate: When I write, food helps me concentrate.

Intention: I'm going to keep some healthy snacks by my computer.

Postulate: It is unwise to jump out of an airplane without a chute.

Intention: I'm not jumping out of any planes without a chute!

Postulate: There are more crooks in the world than decent people.

Intention: I need to go to the hardware store and get those extra locks for every door in my house.

Postulate: Too much sleep can kill you.

Intention: I'm going to work on my project day and night till it's done.

There are some postulates that don't necessarily elicit conscious intentions; they create your reality for you and you are not aware of intending anything. Some examples:

Postulate: Temperature changes cause colds and flu.

Postulate: Being happy makes you crazy.

Postulate: Living on the street in a cardboard box is not OK for me.

Postulate: A family isn't really a family unless there are 10 children.

Postulate: It's all hopeless.

Postulate: A life of struggle and effort is very satisfying.

Postulate: Being critical proves you're smart.

Postulate: Things never turn out as good as you thought.

Postulate: I'm ugly.

Postulate: Other people get what they want and I don't.

Postulate: Nobody loves me.

Postulate: I can never remember anything.

It is interesting to note that Postulates appear at Tone 30 on the Full Scale of Emotions directly below the highest tone, Tone 40, Serenity of Beingness. Postulates are the rules for the game, so to speak. "Coincidentally," Games is right below Postulates at Tone 22. It seems that we made the rules, "forgot" we made them and so off we go, playing the Game of Life while forgetting that WE made up the rules and can change them any time!

Lacking the proper amount and levels of Clearing, you can't control the Game because of the subconscious postulates you have; you can only dramatize them.

The good news, of course, is that we do have excellent Clearing processes designed to handle this. However, the widespread misunderstood that postulates and intentions are interchangable is a barrier, just as any misunderstood is.

Postulates and intentions are not the same. Postulates are considerations; they are conclusions the subconscious draws that it then turns into personal laws carved in stone! Intentions are plans, things you put your attention on because you want a specific result. Intentions imply that you want to cause a particular effect. What effect you want to cause depends solely on your postulate.

EXCALIBUR

THE THREE UNIVERSES

31 MARCH 1991

There are three universes:

1. Your universe (U1)

2. The universe of others (U2)

3. The physical universe or MEST universe (U3)

The MEST universe is made up of your universe plus the universe of others. This gives us the equation:

U1 + U2 = U3

There is a definite relationship between each of these three universes. If you don't put anything there in your universe, it will not happen in the physical universe. If you want to put something in someone else's universe, you will need to put it there by means of intention. If you don't think it and intend it, it won't happen and the other person won't pick it up.

There is a continuous interaction of action, thought, intention and postulate going on between your own universe, another person's universe and occurrences in the physical universe. The physical universe does not think, it does not intend and it does not postulate. A live Being intends and postulates. Your universe is the universe in which you think. It is your mental matter, energy, time and space and it co-exists with the physical universe and the universe of every other person. Your universe is infinite and you are capable of putting into it anything you desire. The physical universe is patterned on the thoughts, intentions and postulates contained within your universe and other's universes. You will notice that any object that you have in the room with you right now has not moved since it was put in that position. The only way it can be moved is by you putting it in another position in your universe, intending it to be there and then picking it up and putting it in that position.

What does this tell you? It tells you that unless you think, intend and create a mock-up within your own universe, nothing will happen within the physical universe. If you are in a position of being in charge of other people, unless you put it in your universe first, they will not pick it up and duplicate it in their universe and be able to carry out your intentions. If you are confused in your universe, others around you are likely to get confused also.

MOCK-UP: A mental model, construction or picture created by a Being. A mock-up is distinct from a facsimile in that it is created volitionally, does not necessarily copy any previous experience, and is under the control of the Being.

When a person creates an intention within his own universe, it will always come about. When an intention does not manifest within the physical universe or within another person's universe, there are three reasons why it has not happened:

1. He did not really intend it.

2.He bought someone else's intention.

3.He has counter-intentions within his own reactive mind or from Entities and Clusters, which keyed-in and countered your own intentions.

In fact, we have found that for a Clear all case and manifestations of case come from Entities, Clusters and other more complex telepathic and sympathetic interactions with other Beings who are still very aberrated. It can finally be stated without a doubt that a Clear has no case of his own.

You should become aware of picking up other people's thoughts or ideas and going along with them. These are intentions which they have intended within their own universe. Because it co-exists with yours, you pick it up and go into agreement with it. Something can only happen for you when you go into agreement and you also intend it.

There is an interesting relationship between your universe and the physical universe. You can have only those things in the physical universe that you create in your universe. They will not be there for you in the physical universe unless you can first mock them up in your own universe and hold them there. The reasons why a person has difficulty creating and holding something within his own universe are:

1.He lacks knowledge of how to handle his own universe and how to mock up something.

2.He has a reactive mind and/or Entities and Clusters which come into restimulation on that particular subject causing counter-intentions which interfere with his own intentions and create difficulty within the physical universe.

THE THREE UNIVERSES

8 APRIL 1993

There are three universes:

1. Your universe (U1)

2. The universe of others (U2)

3. The physical universe or MEST universe (U3)

The MEST universe is made up of your universe plus the universe of others. This gives us the equation:

U1 + U2 = U3

Close your eyes and have a look around. This is your universe (U1). Now have another person close his eyes and look around. This is the universe of another and is an example of the universe of others (U2). With your eyes open, look around. This is the physical universe which is composed of the universe of others plus your universe (U3).

WHY BEINGS MOCK UP

8 JANUARY 1988

MOCK-UP (noun) 1. a mental model, construction or picture created by a Being. (A mock-up is distinct from a mental image picture in that it is created volitionally, does not necessarily copy any previous experience and is under the control of the Being.)

MOCK-UP (verb) 1. to create a mental model, construct or picture volitionally or compulsively.

Why do Beings mock up pictures compulsively?

This question has been the most plaguing one in history of Clearing.

The ONLY way a Being ever gets into trouble, the ONLY way he can get trapped or become part of a cluster is by mocking up and making pictures of bad experiences.

And why record all bad experiences? This too is not good sense.

One can explain it by saying that Beings become bored and have "a yearning for event or excitement" or that Beings mock up pictures as an aberrated form of "havingness." Other ways can be invented to explain why Beings compulsively mock up bad pictures, but these do not factually lead to a total solution to the compulsion.

The real reason stems from a basic characteristic of Beings and that is "a Being never totally gives up."

There is, seemingly, a streak of resistance or resentment that makes a Being wish to persist in the same place or location. If he cannot, he will do so covertly.

The definition of "power" is "the ability to hold a position in space." All power comes from the ability to occupy a point. In an electrical generator the base that separates two terminals must be firm or there will be no exchange of energy or power generated.

The effort to weaken a Being is to make him relinquish his point in space. Covertly or overtly a Being seeks to assert his position in space. If he cannot do so overtly, he does so covertly or mentally.

When a Being is moved unwillingly from a point or position he even then refuses to give up that point and begins MOCKS IT UP mentally. He also mocks up the events of his departure as a part of the action of mocking up the point he is leaving. This, unwittingly, gives him a picture, an engram.

Now let us see if this theory holds true in practice.

A. Just ahead of any engram there must be an effort to retain a position and there must be a point or location being mocked up.

This is true. You can blow an engram without running it by spotting its first point in space and time. In a secondary, "where did you first hear of the loss?" is a vital question.

B. In a contact assist getting a person to touch again the point where he was hurt with what was hurt will blow the engram.

C. Getting a person to locate areas (locations) that are not safe produce blows of engrams without running them.

D. Exact and accurate dating sometimes blows an engram. Those times when it does not, it should blow when the location is exactly spotted.

E. Implants and traps were done mainly to keep Beings out of an area. The Being, resenting and resisting, mocks up the place anyway and so implants himself.

A Being too easily substitutes a mental mock up for a point in the real universe.

One could also say that a Being, by mocking up, warns himself against certain points in space or areas in the physical universe.

Anxiety is solely not being able to be certain places and not being able to be where one is, either.

Making people leave is the most unpopular action unless one also frees them to be anywhere.

Transferring people is a degrading thing to do to them.

Jail denies a Being all spaces except where he has been placed; note that Beings are made very miserable in jail. Jailing is a sure way to make confirmed criminals and also to make them crazy as well.

Any Being, stuck in an engram, is asserting the effort to be at and hold the point where he was hit at the beginning of that engram.

An engram therefore is a refusal to leave a place at which force was exerted to drive one away.

Reversely, one can refuse to be held at a place where one does not wish to be but this is a negation of a place, a not-is of it and its time.

Power of choice over where one is and where one is not is thus a key to engrams.

Finally - a Being mocks up because he covertly refuses to abandon a location under duress and not-ises the place where he does not wish to be but must.

Using these facts one can blow engrams without running them.

Some sample questions:

"What point (location) is unsafe?"

"What location could you have held absolutely?"

"Where did you first get an intimation of danger?"

"What place would you rather not be in?"

"What effort would it take to hold (that) (a) location?"

Working with this you will see a door open to a higher level than Alethanetic R3R. But realize that it is only for a high level Being.

This is the road to returned personal power in the physical universe.

THE BASIC TENDENCY OF LIFE

4 MARCH 1990

Axiom 1 of Excalibur: Life always tends to organize.

Life always tends toward a state of organization. It is a natural tendency. From the chickens in the barnyard ("pecking order") to galactic federations, from the cells of a body to the street gangs of L.A., there is always a thrust towards some type of organization. This is a survival mechanism. No matter how sane or crazy, life organizes itself. This is a natural and normal state of affairs. So it is with Clusters and Entity Beings. They organize.

Axiom 2 of Excalibur: Life seeks to hold a position in space.

Axiom 3 of Excalibur: All life is seeking to survive.

Axiom 4 of Excalibur: It is more survival to be organized than to not be organized.

Axiom 5 of Excalibur: Organization promotes survival.

Axiom 6 of Excalibur: Life brings order to MEST by organizing it.

Axiom 7 of Excalibur: Life organizes itself.

Axiom 8 of Excalibur: An insane or aberrated organization is adopted in preference to no organization at all.

THE RIGHTS OF A BEING

31 MARCH 1991

ALIENABLE (adjective) 1. capable of being transferred to the ownership of another.

INALIENABLE (adjective) 1. not capable of being transferred to the ownership of another: as in, inalienable rights. (also unalienable)

Beings have certain inalienable rights and these are:

1. A Being has the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

2. A Being has the right to his own self-determinism.

3. A Being has the right to his own sanity.

4. A Being has the right to his own power of choice.

5. A Being has the right to leave any game at any time.

6.A Being has the right to choose a game that suits his reality as long as he does not interfere with the right of another Being.

7.A Being has the right to create his own game as long it does not interfere with the rights of another Being.

EXCALIBUR

INTRODUCTION

31 MARCH 1991

You can spot the EBs (Entity Beings) you handle on AA III on the Scale of Emotions. Most of them are above Death on this scale. They do have some free theta. On the Scale of Emotions you find these Beings anywhere from death and above through grief, propitiation, sympathy, lining up for Clearing or being really quiet, propitiating the solo Clearing Practitioner, even being antagonistic. You'll find many different things. They are usually at tone levels above death. Earlier Incident I and Earlier Universe are important buttons in the III case. That's AA III.

The Clear on AA III releases all the EBs he can easily get into communication with. Then he hits the solid wall or the solidity factor of Excalibur. The Excalibur area is where we have the EBs below being able to be a Being, i.e., below death on the Scale of Emotions: failure, pity, shame, accountable, blame (punishing other bodies), regret (responsibility as blame), controlling bodies, protecting bodies, owning bodies, approval from bodies, needing bodies, worshipping bodies, sacrifice, hiding, being objects, being nothing, can't hide, total failure. You are actually handling Preclears all the time, but these Preclears are below death. All the other scales also apply to the Excalibur area, including the Know to Mystery Scale and the Lower Awareness Scales. You find these Beings very low on these scales also.

Clearing Axiom 29 states: "In order to cause an as-is-ness to persist, one must assign other authorship to the creation than his own, otherwise his view of it would cause its vanishment." Any space, energy, form, object, individual or physical universe condition can exist only when an alteration has occurred of the original as-is-ness so as to prevent a casual view from vanishing it. In other words, anything which is persisting must contain a "lie" so that the original consideration is not completely duplicated. In the Excalibur area, we are dealing with severe MISOWNERSHIP. It's a misplacement of time, place, form, and event, and ownership in the extreme.

It's interesting to look at it from the viewpoint of Axioms. These are Being Axioms and apply to all Beings. They also apply to the EB you're running on Excalibur. If an EB is NOT blowing, then YOU HAVEN'T GOT THE EXACT TRUTH ABOUT HIM.

We have discovered some interesting new data about these EBs below zero on the Scale of Emotions which includes the EBs who are being "solids."

The first important point is the ORGANIZATION of these EBs. If run properly - if you're approaching the Excalibur case properly - you'll find the thing is ORGANIZED. It has an ORGANIZATION to it. Now it's the CRAZIEST ORGANIZATION you may ever come across. The stable here datum is: "The point where a Being goes crazy (or criminal or out ethics) is where HE CAN NOT WORK or do a useful job." We find every Being is holding onto whatever sanity he has BY PERFORMING A DUTY. This is true whether he is a good guy, bad guy, an SP, or whatever. When you wake him up and get him talking, in communication, you find out he is performing a job or duty and is part of an organization with a specific purpose.

This guy needs to be ACKNOWLEDGED for that duty, no matter how crazy it is to you. To him it's a very serious one because if he COULDN'T DO THAT he would be or go TOTALLY insane.

He's been a spot on the bottom of a coffee cup. He says, "Well, somebody has to do it." They always think they are a REAL GOOD SPOT. It's an incredible thing. These guys are holding on to their sanity by doing something that they feel is useful. Whenever we acknowledge them for whatever they are doing, we get an as-isness. That's where you have to acknowledge VERY WELL when they give you a valence answer to the question "What are you?" "Hey, fantastic! You're being that!" "The whole time? Oh, wow!" They think they're performing a useful action, NO MATTER WHETHER THEY'RE DOING BAD OR GOOD. It's important to get THIS as-ised first so you can handle them. The Being reckons he's doing that job. If he DIDN'T believe that, if you invalidate him, if you totally not-is it or don't believe what he tells you, he goes nuts. To THAT point he'll be sane, but if not, he'll be insane.

tableau (noun) 1. a depiction of a scene usually presented on a stage by silent and frozen in place, motionless costumed participants. [short for tableau vivant, French for living picture]

Again, there IS an organization here and no matter how crazy it is, you must recognize and acknowledge it. Get the idea of some cups, saucers and things on a table. That might be a whole Excalibur setting or a tableau that you come across. You ask the question, "What are you?" and first thing you see is a table with candles, cups, saucers, etc. This turns out to be in an office and there's a desk there and so on. There is a chair waiting for somebody. Then you ask, "Is anyone being a spokesman for this group here?" You get this voice coming out of the candle flame, "I'm the flame of life!" You ask him: "OK, what's this all about? Any BPC here?" And the answer comes, "We're keeping the office ready." You know now they're all smashed down to little spots or something like that, but they have been keeping this office ready for eons and eons and eons and eons. There used to be a big Being there. They all got wiped out in one of those captures on the Whole Track or something like that. Then they got smashed and put together for millions of years and have been keeping the office ready ever since. Maybe all the office staff were herded into a room and then vaporized with the Laser guns. They tried to protect the boss' office; so they all grabbed part of the MEST as exterior Beings. Then they got smashed together, put down on some planet and blown-up. More incidents, more incidents, more incidents and NOW they're just there in the Excalibur case keeping the office. They would go totally crazy if they couldn't do that! It is a whole organization.

It doesn't have to go together THAT logically. You can hardly imagine how illogically it CAN go together. When you run a session you'll find out how illogical it is. This whole office may be under a button which is on a uniform of somebody in another service. There HE is with a spear and there's somebody else being the spear. And there's that guy in an airplane about 30,000 feet up and the guy with the spear sees him for the 1st time. He got shot by the plane and he's the "bad guy" (the one in the plane). That's how weird it can get.

That whole thing holding together all the way down is an ORG BOARD. If you just run a little piece of it, you're NOT HANDLING THIS WHOLE THING. This whole thing is an ORG BOARD all the way down from guys with the evil intentions at the top to the juniors at the bottom. For example, these Beings got blown up at the SAME TIME by a missile! It's a mutual thing; all were captured and put together or they got together later in that relationship because they sort of belonged together. They ARE organized in that RIGHT NOW and they are all doing THAT, frozen in time. They're FROZEN IN TIME. They're sitting there doing that whole org board. It doesn't produce anything. It just sits there. But each guy thinks he has a duty in it and it's a frozen duty as well. The whole thing is frozen. This guy is shooting those guys or this guy is resisting that guy. He's an officer and he has the spear and his button. There is a GOLD BUTTON just shining in the sun; it's the last thing he saw. Underneath the button he's got a group smashed with an Incident II. Maybe he found these other guys had a nice office and he really wanted to be an executive; so he's clutched it through all time to his breast using some kind of weird computation.

In other words, there is some kind of crazy illogical A=A=A=A=A holding this whole Clustered mass of EBs and Clusters and solids all together. You run it knowing that. You sort of "poke" into it at the level of the "flame on the candle" where you are not getting any as-is-ness. You can't get these guys to "break up" or get the little office mock up to dissolve or get them to realize who they are. Then you must suspect that SOMEBODY IS HOLDING THEM. Just somebody higher up the org board. That's one way to look at it. Just ask, "Is somebody holding you?"

Try to get a spokesman for the group. Get the spokesman talking and in communication. You try to get into communication and you are not getting any blowdown; you're not getting any reads. The EB IS telling the story, but nothing is happening. You get a "what?" and you get "who?" but it's "sticky." If you can't get an as-isness, there are several things that can be wrong:

1. The EB is NOT REALLY EXACTLY WHAT HE TELLS YOU HE IS.

It could be a picture you're talking to or it's only a via with another guy in the background or

2. You're talking to a Cluster instead of an individual.

3. Someone is holding him from a position higher on the "Org Board."

4. You're not handling the mutual incident yet.

The mutual incident occurred earlier so it's holding this EB together with the others. HE CAN'T OPEN UP AND LET GO OF THE REST.

5. It's also possible that he's being HELD BY SOMEBODY ELSE, even if it IS A CLUSTER.

The Cluster doesn't break and blow on finding the mutual incident because SOMEBODY ELSE IS HOLDING.

RULES FOR HANDLING

All the fundamental concepts of good Clearing and C/Sing are used. This is what, in essence, lies behind the allegation that there is nothing "non-standard" or "squirrely" about Excalibur. That is, once you accept the idea that there were implanters who conceived the notion that a cluster of almost-dead Beings could be given a persistent "mission," then all the rest falls into place without any conflict with the rest of Clearing technology.

Stacks are identified in a metered interview or case assessment. Questions are asked about the person's overall viewpoints on life, in such a way as to focus attention on his/her difficulties or remaining case problems. The bottom line question is: What hasn't been handled?

The result of this interview is a written record of key phrases and other identifying data, along with the amount of read associated with each. After the interview the Clearing Practitioner puts obviously similar items together, and adds up all the reads within each group. As a first approximation, in attacking the case, it is assumed that each group is a separate stack and the stack with the greatest total of reads is the one that is ready to run first.

This "stack list" is then made up in order of decreasing reads, with the one with the greatest total on top. The top three or four are given to the Clear with the first C/S if the Clear is beginning solo immediately. Normally, the Clearing Practitioner will give the Clear as many sessions as it takes to get the Clear running easily and well on Excalibur. Then the Clear is gradiently put on solo Clearing by having the Clearing Practitioner present in the solo sessions until the Clear can handle solo Clearing on Excalibur. The Clear next gives himself solo sessions at the Clear Practitioner's home or office until be can do that well. He then does one or two solo sessions at home and comes in for a C/S. Finally, the Clear works at home for longer and longer periods of time between C/Ss.

If the Clearing Practitioner has done the work well, the Clear will show great interest in running what is at the top of the list. Thus we follow standard procedure in going by interest and by decreasing gradients of reads.

The next step is to get the correct stack wording. Remember, the wording will be close to the exact situation, but only the Clear can spot it exactly.

The correct wording may be considered as the name of the stack, or its function; it doesn't matter what wording comes up, so long as the Clear shows great interest and VGIs in it and it reads well. This part is done after the initial interview.

It is not necessary to have an F/N at the start of the session. Any out-ruds are assumed to be part and parcel of the hottest stack, which is directly handled in the body of the session. So if this is the case, we simply look upon such a session as an assist where ruds are always by-passed.

OVERALL ROUTINE

Get the stack list from the interview.

Address the hottest stack first.

Get the correct stack wording: INTEREST plus VGIs plus READS WELL.

"Is there an EB/Cluster connected to _(stack wording)_ ?"

Handle the plug fully, to floating Range Arm or broad, clean F/N and CERTAINTY that the plug is fully handled.

End the session. One should do only one plug per session.

Usually many sessions must be done on any particular stack. Loss of interest is often NOT an indicator that a particular stack has been completely handled. Running Excalibur is ALWAYS interesting. If it isn't, there's a hang-up such as an incomplete Clearing cycle or something still hanging around with a negative postulate. Thus we have a rule:

ANY STALLED CASE, NOT WANTING MORE TRAINING OR CLEARING, EQUALS AN INCOMPLETE ACTION. FIND IT!

The whole idea is to get ready for the next level after Entity Clearing. There may be disagreement at the moment as to just what those levels are, but we can be certain that it doesn't involve going off and trying to spend a year or more figuring out what one should do with his life! If you've really completed this level, would there be any doubt?

A SUDDEN LOSS OF INTEREST MAY BE COMING FROM WHATEVER IS READY TO BE RUN NEXT. If this is the case, spotting it should result in an immediate resurgence of interest with good reads and VGIs.

There are times when it might be useful to be slightly suspicious of a cognition that a particular problem is TOTALLY handled and will NEVER return. While the good feeling and the fact that something was handled should indeed be validated, one should at the same time be alert for indications of what has just be slightly restimulated but not yet handled.

MISCELLANEOUS HINTS

The entire Excalibur course includes the text of "Revolt in the Stars" and "Sector 9" plus many descriptions of various Clusterconstructs (for example, a vacuum cleaner-like device for trapping other Beings). Some have objected to this on the grounds that EBs are so very suggestible. Whose case are we running, anyway?

Let's see if others can run this without all that Space Opera. And if they do happen to come up with items that duplicate what Captain Bill describes, why then everybody wins.

Also, those who feel they must have the whole story can always take the entire course. And if they do it with the background and experience they can get with just what's here, they'll be better prepared and ready to ask the right questions on the course.

So we include the following hints and general instructions, to help get you started:

1.Be prepared to confront several very evil, uncomfortable and very incredible things on the track. As Ron said in Book One, "Be surprised at nothing."

2.If you are not very familiar with just what makes up an Org Board, don't worry about it. Just visualize a stack as a business organization with all the normal little jobs that add up to performing the overall function. And be alert for some that you may not expect.

3.Some of the Beings in a plug (or the entire plug) may be ANYWHERE. So let your looking be directed outward at times. A little outside reading on Geography or Astronomy might help. Within the body, Beings can be discovered behind ridges, "being" a molecule or tiny body part such as a cancer cell, or just "hiding." Gray's Anatomy might come in handy. Also look at some of the locations where you have been during this lifetime. And some places you haven't been.

4.If a mass breaks up on discovery and all depart then that's it; just continue by making sure that external "holders" are also handled. If any don't depart on spotting then run "What/Who," plus the rest of the usual Entity Clearing techniques, if needed, until they do.

5.If you feel strong emotion, remember it's not necessarily "your." Spot where it is coming from as above. A Being may be in desperate need of reassurance. Soothing thoughts are in order: "It's OK, now." "That's not happening to you anymore." "I get the feeling you could use a friend." "Do you really want to continue doing that?" These are just a few example of what you could say. And then the "What/Who" intention or whatever would normally come next.

6.After session, if any loose Beings are still hanging around, treat them with compassion; they've just lost that all-important function that was their last hope. Spot them with the "What/Who" intention and relief if often immediate.

SAMPLE PROCEDURES

The Clear has attention on or is concerned with "XXX." "Is that the stack?" (Small read) Ask for a better way to state this - to pinpoint exactly the functional area to be handled.

New wording is "YYY." (This will be related but not necessarily keeping any of the original words. Or just one key word might be retained.) The Clear is now much more interested. "OK, we'll run "YYY." (Good read, VGIs and lots of interest.) (If not, just keep looking for a better wording.)

"Is there an EB/Cluster connected with _(stack wording)_?" (READ)

"OK, location? EB or Cluster? WHAT/WHO?"

Continue handling that one plug, until big F/N, Range Arm OK, VGIs, THAT'S IT.

Next session: same as above. Continue until no read on . Also interest is gone. Any more connected with this one?" No. Next assessed item was "ZZZ." Check for reads and be sure to get wording right, then repeat as above.

ADDITIONAL HINTS

Some Incident Is and IIs were major Cluster-making incidents, and some EBs may have to be run on these incidents before they go release or Clear. Note that some explosions took place on mountains tops that were not volcanoes. The idea that it WAS a volcano may have been a false picture in the 36 days implant.

For a particular Being Incident II begins the first time the Being felt the evil intention to destroy Beings on the 7th dynamic - usually during a capture.

A Cluster will break up by spotting the mutual incident that jammed them together. If an EB doesn't blow, the exact truth has not been found(Axiom 29). Correct TIME, PLACE, FORM, EVENT, OWNERSHIP must be found.

Find the leader of the group; who is holding whom? Who is the spokesman for the plug? What's the mutual incident that made it in the first place? Who is holding the Cluster and where is he? (A Cluster is less able than a single Being; the holder will be outside or hiding.)

Find those that are out of valence: experimenters, implanters, operators. Some weird concepts that won't resolve may be based on pictures from an Incident II or some other Incident that is an implant. Also be prepared to look earlier than Incident I. Also check the flows; was the Being a perpetrator or a victim or just watching, and is he watching an actual incident or a picture in an implant or a copy?

All plugs in all stacks have to be run. Subsequent interviews may reveal more stacks after the initial batch has been completely handled. Excalibur is done when the body is very light and transparent. VGIs with a floating Range Arm are really in.

ALL IN A FLASH

Have you ever had the experience of communicating a great deal to another in a split second or of receiving such a communication of flash of insight?

Once an EB is awakened to the point where he is interested in what you can do for him, he might be able to pick up your entire life history, including all your Clearing Practitioner training in a flash. When this occurs you don't have to laboriously ask the "What/Who" question, complete with acks, or anything else. Just think the intention to help at him and it's done.

That is a possible explanation of how it is only necessary to spot a particular EB/Cluster and it blows immediately. Sometimes the body jerks, followed by immediate laughter.

NOTHING LEFT TO HANDLE?

Check again on the end phenomena of Excalibur. Have you really reached that point or are we kidding ourselves? Here's a little test:

WHAT'S MY ATTENTION ON?

WHAT'S MY ATTENTION AVOIDING?

FINAL COMMENTS

Remember the statement about not needing ruds; whatever needs to be run next is sitting right on top. In any case, be sure to start by getting the right stack wording. You'll know when the right wording is reading strongly; you'll feel great about it and can't wait to start running it.

INTRODUCTION

31 MARCH 1991

You can spot the EBs (Entity Beings) you handle on AA III on the Scale of Emotions. Most of them are above Death on this scale. They do have some free theta. On the Scale of Emotions you find these Beings anywhere from death and above through grief, propitiation, sympathy, lining up for Clearing or being really quiet, propitiating the solo Clearing Practitioner, even being antagonistic. You'll find many different things. They are usually at tone levels above death. Earlier Incident I and Earlier Universe are important buttons in the III case. That's AA III.

SAMPLE PROCEDURES

25 FEBRUARY 1990

The Clear has attention on or is concerned with "XXX." "Is that the stack?" (Small read) Ask for a better way to state this - to pinpoint exactly the functional area to be handled.

New wording is "YYY." (This will be related but not necessarily keeping any of the original words. Or just one key word might be retained.) The Clear is now much more interested. "OK, we'll run "YYY." (Good read, VGIs and lots of interest.) (If not, just keep looking for a better wording.)

"Is there an EB/Cluster connected with _(stack wording)_?" (READ)

"OK, location? EB or Cluster? WHAT/WHO?"

Continue handling that one plug, until big F/N, Range Arm OK, VGIs, THAT'S IT.

Next session: same as above. Continue until no read on . Also interest is gone. Any more connected with this one?" No. Next assessed item was "ZZZ." Check for reads and be sure to get wording right, then repeat as above.

TECH BRIEFING No 4

"EXCALIBUR"

CONFIDENTIAL - SUPER NOTS AND OT C/SING

CAPTAIN BILL ROBERTSON

22 August 1985

Hello everybody! This is the 22nd of August 1985. And this is Captain Bill Robertson, Frankfurt, RON'S ORG.

<Bravo!>

Bravo. Ah so! And we'll give this R-factor: This will be Tech Briefing # 4 - but it's a CONFIDENTIAL BRIEFING. And is just for people who are starting NOTs, or on Solo-NOTs.

And just to bring you up to date since the last Tech Briefing a little bit: In the last year we have done the things which for instance RTC or the Implanters would call "Our usual suppressive and squirrellish acts". Like bringing people to the State of Clear and straightening out their messed up DCSIs. Getting them programmed to go up the Bridge and getting them onto the Bridge, and making real OTs, where they are Cause over the data and CAN apply it.

So, we say to the other side: "Those are Suppressive Acts and we are very proud to be able to say that we have accomplished quite a few of those and have many people on the OT-levels, at least 12-15 and have produced in between 20 and 30 - maybe a couple more - Clears. Or straightened them out from their misdeclares or their invalidations, plus a lot of other grades, and so on."

Now, what the purpose of this particular meeting is - from the C/S viewpoint - to show some of the traps and tricks and problems that cases get into and that cases do not know about. Even people who are - ah - went up the Bridge in other areas, because they didn't have the benefit of Flag C/Sing, and the benefit of reading the LRH C/Ses on Advanced Levels.

And to handle some of the possible misunderstoods, possible confusions, possible things that would affect their ability to audit NOTs successfully - that is the purpose of this particular briefing.

To start off - let us assume, as we are all here OT III or above - I will talk from the OT III - NOTs-viewpoint. So, we don't have to go back and look at very simple things, but I will assume that you understand, that first of all we are dealing in the beginning with the composite case. All right. That means it's a complete mass of BTs and clusters. The guy's stuck in there somewhere and he is dramatizing whatever occurred - maybe on his OWN track - maybe on somebody ELSE's track. And he is totally the effect of all these charges, BPCs, wrong items, things, events, engrams, secondaries, locks. Everything that you can imagine in Dianetics or in regular grade charge or anything you can find on a list can be wrong with a guy. All right?

So, it is very difficult to get a guy from a "no auditing" up to the State of Clear. But basically we know that is what's done on the lower levels. All right, now we DO that. You have got a Clear.

Now, this is where the confusion starts with the most people, that I have talked to, because of the security, that was put around this area. And even in the beginning, after the people are on it, they are treated like they shouldn't know anything about it. They were just given, totally robotically, to "Run this". And, "That will be your next level".

So, first I want to straighten out the confusion of - from the OT III and above viewpoint - like "What is a Clear?". And, "Why do we therefore define this guy as a Clear and how come there are four different ways of Clear - the ways that they could BE Clear - but there is really only ONE STATE OF CLEAR?"

Well, this is interesting, because if you look back the time track, you will find that ... I'll just make a diagram here, but it can be given out with copies and so on ..., if we look at - from the OT III data we have, what LRH calls - Incident I. It occurs at start of track, right?

So, just let us take a single being now and we have start of track here as a line, and we have here Incident I. Now exactly why is that the start of the track? Because that is the first point, that he started COMPULSIVELY to make pictures. You may say: "Well, yeah. But why?", and so on. "But that implant, that's weird!". Well, this comes up again and again, but the point is that he is COMPULSIVELY making pictures FROM HIS OWN VALENCE from that point.

In other words: He, having gotten his Incident I, is now somehow making pictures. And we've run guys out from Incident I, that have discovered the reason WHY they make pictures like that - and it's because they had BTs stuck to them from EARLIER INCIDENT Is, who went into THEIR VALENCE - all right? Therefore they don't see them. Some of them do sort of feel it as a little something, they can't get a hold of around the back here. But some BTs, that were so much - shall we say - at effect, or just totally ready to be robotically inclined, that this BT you are handling started making pictures, or at LEAST he saw things and then he found out, he had MEMORIES of these. He could have RECALL after Incident I. And no matter if he looked at it, and he COULDN't as-is it. Why? Because of ownership. It's actually THESE guys, that are holding the picture, you see?

So, he looks at the picture - HIS picture would as-is of it - but then, there is still the other guy's picture, that he would have left. And since they are all SHARING THE SAME VIEWPOINT coming up the track, you don't get a blow on this guy, you don't get an as-isness.

So, however, he CAN DECIDE for himself and FOR HIS VALENCES - you see? Because he IS in CONTROL of them - that they DON'T NEED THESE PICTURES ANYMORE - all right? So this is not the only point where Clear can come. It can come there, but it doesn't have to. Because he CAN decide for himself and get the agreement of these guys NOT to make pictures. It doesn't make a STABLE Clear - but it makes a Clear, all right? Because they are not having to have pictures and they can create them and unmock them all as a team. "We all do it - because the boss says we do it - right?"

Anyway, the difference here being that this guy is NOT "out of valence" - OTHER PEOPLE ARE IN HIS VALENCE, see? And he is the boss. He says "OK, you guys, now ..." Or whatever he thinks it is. After Incident I there is a confusion. He never knows exactly, what happened in the "snaps" of Incident I, etc. WE know, that there were OTHER BEINGS PUT WITH HIM, ok?

So, if he can therefore handle these guys and control them easily enough by his more ability, he can get them to agree NOT TO MAKE PICTURES. So, we have what we call "a Clear". It would be a guy who doesn't NECESSARILY have to have run out his OWN Incident I, but somewhere up the track, right? he may have gotten (graph) - you see? - into Incident II here and let's put back here (graph) I think it's dating 1 Quadrillion - 1 and 1/2 Quadrillion was the CC Implant, (graph) Incident II is 75 Million with the 36 days and the OT II stuff, ok?

Now, so there is THAT on his track and then here we go, he is up into PT (graph). Single being, except with these guys IN HIS VALENCE. So, any point along here ... . Now we are in PT AUDITING this guy, right? Now we KNOW, that essentially he is NOT just this - he IS A COMPOSITE. He has other beings, who have done the SAME STUFF in various cause-effect points and they have all come conglomerated around him - all right? And that guy, we are auditing, is the most strongest or the leader you might say or the boss or whatever.

So, in essence, since Incident I he may have had (graph) more additions to his composite case at any point along the line because of mutual incidents or because of implants or because of whatever. But these guys have their OWN tracks down the line, all right? Have their OWN tracks, no matter HOW they come into HIM. So, when you get into this PT auditing, you have the guy somewhere in here, as a thetan, with all these other thetans around him, shaped up into his body form and everything else. Well, it's what we know as the NOTs and OT III Case, right? So, this is what we get.

Now, how does a guy go Clear? OK, he can do it in several ways: One is, he can run Dianetics. And he gets in back of an engram, which has got THAT POSTULATE in it that HE (needed pictures) - or he UNMADE the postulate, so that now "he didn't need pictures". Your see?

"I MUST remember this" or "I must HOLD onto this" comes from that Bulletin - I think some of you have seen - where "a thetan can do anything forever". He also tries to HOLD POSITION forever. So he gets in a certain incident, that he didn't want to happen. So he tries to hold on and says: "No, I'm not going to let that happen". So, he is always making an impression of it. But also, SO ARE THE GUYS IN HIS VALENCE. So, he can go UNCLEAR at that point.

Now in Dianetics, if you run to that point of that engram, he does: "WOW, Oh God! Man! No wonder I was holding on that that thing! Ahh, I didn't need to make that picture. Hey! WOW!" As soon as he doesn't need to, then he goes out of agreement of course with all of these guys in here (the composite), that HAVE to make pictures, right? HE doesn't need to make them, HIS VALENCE-GUYS (IN HIS VALENCE) don't even have to make them, right? So right away all the pictures, that are NOT his (but that he copied) and all those that ARE his and the guys in his valence - Phffft! - disappear!

They don't need them anymore and he clears out some space. Because of course, if you are the BOSS of an org, you keep your OWN files closer to you, than other guys keep their files to you, (than other guys keep their files close to you), you know? So in YOUR office - your files - and in your office - Boom! - right away, you've got a LOT OF SPACE! No matter if some other guys may have been duplicating his files, they certainly move out of they way: "Uh, what's, what's going on here? All those - all that stuff - that was holding us - disappeared!"

So he as-ises his part of it. So he clears out a little bit here - a little space around himself. These guys (composite) are still hanging around. They're stuck in the body and still ... and everything like that. Basically the guy has cleared out a little space around him - and we say: "Ok, this guy is Clear". HE DOESN'T NEED TO COMPULSIVELY MAKE PICTURES ANYMORE. And you notice how "delicate" that the Clears are, right? If you don't hat him properly on "Nature of a Being", if you don't get them up through the non-interference-zone quickly, if you don't treat them with very - you know - handle the grade charge, that may still be left, so THEY DON'T COMPULSIVELY PULL IN BTs OR OTHER PICTURES FROM OTHER PEOPLE. If you don't cut these little lines delicately, because - realize the guy is Clear here - and you didn't HAT him yet. He's not hatted. TWO sides of the bridge, you know: You get the auditing side and the training side. He's not hatted - doesn't get the knowledge WHY he is Clear, and "What did he get out of?" or "What's in his space?".

It's VERY delicate. He may start having little comm lines back in here, back into the bank. So, you get off the grades charge by severing those possibilities of these guys - let's don't just say HIM - or charge in reflection from the environment, HITTING them and they're influencing HIM. And HIM seeing the environment and then wondering about it from something, he knows in the bank. Anyway, he's gonna get connected up again, if you don't handle him. So we try to handle the grades charge and the guy who needs anything as a "wants handled". Get his OCA stable. Get him hatted on "Nature of a Being", so he realizes, if he sees any pictures, it's NOT his. It's gonna be handled LATER. So he isn't going" "What is it? What is it? Is it mine? MUST BE MINE!". As soon as he decides that - Zap! He's got an increased ability to postulate here - that's the other thing - an increased ability to postulate as a Clear - means that HE CAN POSTULATE HIMSELF UNCLEAR. That's simple, it's simply it.

So, some point on the track he decided to HAVE TO MAKE PICTURES and later on, now he decides, he DOESN'T HAVE TO. All right? That's all a Clear is. Now he can go that way on a Dianetics cognition - getting that - pffft - at the back of one of this "must-hold-on-to-it"s.

He CAN get it from contacting a BASIC on a BASIC-CHAIN of engrams - which is like - something in Incident II, you know? Like that explosion or the big holder of ALL this engram stuff. These pictures are very much then "explained" to him and he realizes, that he's just been mocking them up and - pffft - the whole thing goes. So he can get it through (graph) C.C., Clear through Dianetics, through hitting a large holding incident - right? - which is causing him to be connected into all the others' pictures. That's also a Dianetics type thing.

But it CAN happen on other processes as well, 3D Criss Cross - 3DXX - as we can call it, the old Criss Cross; goals processes - if you get a 'reliable item' on the guy, he goes back to a purpose line or something like that - you possibly can get it blown by prepchecking it - the postulate comes off - BOOM - and he doesn't need to make it. Anyway, there are ways to do it. Or he can get totally in P.T. with Objectives, and realize all that other stuff is pictures and he isn't making them. This is sort of - again he is not very hatted about it - he realizes:"Hey, I don't need to make pictures!" Even Power Processing can make a Clear, because it blows off the engrams he's stuck in. OK? So there's a lot of ways you can make that.

Now, what is a "Past Life Clear"? Well, that's a guy, that has had auditing since 1950 here (graph) and somehow went Clear in auditing. So he - but he did "Bunk" there and he went from one body life into another one. So you are just really dating, where he went Clear. Just like a Dianetics Clear, but :"What process?" and "When?". All right?

So you have a Clear and your "Past Life Clear" (graph). Then you have the "Clearing Course Clears". Now the Clearing Course is where it gets interesting, because the Clearing Course Clears - the ones who did the Clearing Course... It's this particular incident. It's one which forces a guy to mock up these certain items and pictures and it's done with a lot of pain and unconsciousness. And since Incident I is the FIRST time, that he can go really out of valence as being - see? - and has not recognized, he's got other people in his valence... But he can REALLY go out of valence on the CC too. There is a LOT OF FORCE in that and also, there were other beings going through that. But not all at the same time. They were done one after the other.

So, if you happen to get smashed with them later - or with people (beings) who have done it (gotten the CC-Implant) later - there is liable to be a great confusion about it. Now, because as he is ALSO going OUT OF VALENCE he can't as-is it, because it's somebody else's as well, you see? Even if they had it a second later or 3 years later or 1000 years later, he says:"Well, yeah, I cognited, 'Oh ho!' I'm not an animal!" He still has got this PICTURE of an animal. So, he runs the CC. He runs the item. And he is not only running it on himself, he's running it on ANY BT that he's got around him, that has that item.

So that's why it produces a Clear, that ... - pffft - it blows all the COPIES in his space, all the copy charge, that would have connected him up and confused him since the CC all the way to PT. And then puts him back basically to this state again, to where he's got his - you know - his Incident I charge and that's about it.

Now, it's not necessary to have Incident I charge - understand that. This is what makes him delicate. Because he can get into the unknown of "Why?" If he changes his mind, he can't quite get out of it, you know? He can't quite understand, what's happening. He still hasn't handled the Incident I. OK, but that's people IN HIS VALENCE. We're talking about now what makes him OUT OF VALENCE. The cc, Dianetics engrams, other major events on the track, Incident II especially. OK, (graph) this is another. So, in any one of these points, he can have or make a cognition, that he's "making up these pictures"' and - pffft - knocks them off.

Now, what's a Natural Clear? This is a guy, that's HAD THE COGNITION only, OR HAS MISSED THE STUFF. Either (graph) from there (Inc I) or somewhere in there (Inc II) has come along into PT and he therefore knows - essentially - or at least when he came to the planet, he knew it - (he might have forgotten since then) - that HE IS NOT HAVING TO MAKE PICTURES. That's all it is, he's not making them compulsively. He's not mocking up mental matter, energy, space and time, yeah? Now, it's no definition of a Natural Clear how FAR back from Incident I (or Inc II) he became that way, you see? He may have gone UNCLEAR at some time and then really took a look at it and blew out of it. By being clearly - you know what I mean - by being VERY observant, very, very,...

And then, other people, who were Natural Clear, have decided to do missions. For instance, to come onto THIS planet after Incident II and find out how aberrated it was and then work out experiments to try to handle it. So in case of a Natural Clear, that comes to the planet, has a job to do to get aberrated, to bring in the case and try to explain it to an auditor, so they can work out methods to handle it - you find these. I mean, several of us were in this type of experiment - you know? And I did the whole Clearing Course and went Clear after 80 hours of running the Clearing Course. Later on, on OT III, I realized, that I was Clear before I came to the planet. But I came to the planet with a purpose: To build up a case and then to use it for research, whenever that was going to be, and to bring it with me all the way to that point. And I got there too late, because the research had been done already! I didn't arrive at Saint Hill until LRH HAD the Clearing Course.

But when I ran it, I had all these data sitting in it, that I wanted to lay out for LRH. So I started writing to my C/S, writing my reports - all this data how they did it - bap bap bap. And that's when the C/S was saying: "Hey! That's not necessary. Just run the items."

I said: "No, send it to LRH, it might be important!" It is my mission, you see? Now, I WAS a bit late. And then they send it up to him. He wrote back and said:"That IS how it was done." - you know? - "He has those cogs - let him write that, all right? - that's all right." So he knew that was somebody, that was doing the mission to find out that stuff.

So, anyway, that's basically what it is. A Natural Clear has already - before he came here - he HAD that state, right? Now he MAY have gotten aberrated. We found a few Natural Clears in the last year, that have had a severe life time or something. They got very much drugs, sick, hospitalization, baby, childhood stuff, and they got MADE, or postulated themselves, essentially UNCLEAR, by their desire to keep that body or something. And they then had a hell of a lot of engrams and invalidation and then they decided, that this is really theirs, so they immediately mocked it up themselves. And they decided, they were unclear. Essentially we get them back to the beginning of that and they realized, they WERE CLEAR ALL THE TIME. And then they went into agreement with all this composite.

So, any questions now about the State of Clear? Because I wanted to clean that up: It's a guy, who is cause over mental matter, energy, space and time on the first dynamic. That means, he can knowingly mock up or unmock mental matter, energy, space and time. OK? Well, a lot of people do have confusion about that, let's say. Right?

But now we get to the interesting thing: What is OT I? Well, OT I is the getting of the guy a little more stable, you know? He goes out and he looks, spots beings, spots bodies, looks at things, this and that, notices how people operates their bodies, etc, etc. Find a place where there aren't any beings, you know what I mean? He's getting more stable and we are sort of waking him up into the spiritual universe - 7th dynamic. A lot of people think, when they are Clear on the 1st dynamic, it means their BODY is Clear. It doesn't mean that. It means HIM as a spiritual being. Clear - 1st dynamic. Huh? You have to orient him, which is OT I. Doesn't mean, that he still can't have a pain or a rash or an itch or "Do I have to smoke?", or what ever that is. He does not clear his body. There's a lot of misunderstoods and so on. It's the BEING - means he's SEPARATED OUT FROM THE COMPOSITE - it's all it means. So, OK. Any questions on OT I?

OT II. What is OT II? Well, on OT II, you're NOT running the guy. This is something they FAIL TO TELL YOU on OT II. You're not running it on a Clear. All you're doing on OT II - and by the way, if a guy hasn't done the Clearing Course, I also have him look over those platens, until he gets a persistent F/N on that - but basically, these two are the major incidents of the line-plots and Implant GPMs, that occured to most, most, most all thetans in this area. This one for the universe (CC) - and this one (OT II) for the Sector - and this one (CC) near the start of track for all. So this one (CC) is the more general, and this one (OT II) is a little less general, because it's mostly just Sector 9 and it's just this planet, where Incident II was done.

And I know you all ran BTs, that you found out bypassed that, and they came here later, after Incident II. You know? But they got associated with other people, who GOT it. You know? OK.

So, OT II takes these items, the actual line-plots - the CC, and actual line-plot of Incident II - and there's lots of them - we don't need to go into that - that's just a lot of garbage, that the implanters put in and CONFUSED the guy and gave him WRONG VALENCES or WRONG ITEMS and keeping him being MEST or a BODY or WHATEVER, OK?

Now, these items were not "cluster-making", when they were given. Exactly WHEN they were given - they were given on a machine or an assembly line, that gave it to "SINGLE" BEINGS. It was for SINGLE BEINGS. It was NOT a composite making incident IN ITSELF, you understand? It was just like if you have a hundred people in the same picture show, that are all seeing the same picture, but at the same time they are NOT being mashed together with a big A-bomb, you see? So, it's not just a composite making incident.

What it IS however, is that EVERYBODY HAS THE SAME PICTURE AND INCIDENT. So everybody has the SAME PICTURE and he's maybe moved along a little track (machine track) to get the SAME VIEWPOINT OF EVERY PICTURE, you see? Then they ALL have an IDENTICAL PICTURE of the item and the run. And they confused that even more, because they were given it at DIFFERENT TIMES. One guy went through, then another guy a week or a bit later, and another guy over here and in another place.

So, TIME, LOCATION, DURATION, ALL that is different. But the PICTURE IS THE SAME. So, there's a confusion. And by confusion they go A=A=A, because they all have this picture, right? They think it's ALL THE SAME.

Before you can run, of course, the Incident II and I, you HAVE TO GET THIS CONFUSION OFF THE TRACK, because otherwise all the BTs think they are the same, because they all have the SAME MAJOR PICTURES OF THE IMPLANTS. And they all run at the same - TRY to run - at the same time. And you'll either end up stalling the PC or they all go through together and into a free-wheel or something, into the 36 days or they all experience the explosion at the same time and maybe blow the guy right out of the body, maybe killing the body. That's what LRH said. That can be a hell of an impact, you know. 20 000 BTs all running the explosion at the same time, you know? Be enough to stop the heart. Boom!... you know? So, you can't run the guy on OT III with these guys acting as a composite.

So, the running of OT II, and the CC Platens - to check them - to get the BPC off these, is to get this composite thing around the guy - after he's cleared out the space - it breaks it up in fragments (graph). Right? BTs and clusters, basically. It does not much touch the NOTs case, by the way. It just breaks up the BTs in his space, like this (graph). Instead of being a thing like this (graph), where it looks like "my case" - and I tell you it's EXACTLY, what they tell you, as I'm just doing it on an OT II. He really had to cog, that first of all he WASN'T RUNNING HIMSELF on the process. And then he got that. And then he couldn't understand, why there was an "earliest" run. Why do you have to intend the "earliest run" and he says: "In the materials it says, that the "entities" have these runs." You see? That EACH have ALL of this thing and he couldn't really quite get that, until he demonstrated it and then he finally understood, that what you are doing, when you are doing this, is: You are running the "earliest" on each entity, that has it and as you go through it, other guys WILL BLOW CHARGE ON HIM TOO. Because they realize, "That's the same pictures", "Hey, hey, hey". They get interested - bap bap bap bap -and you are running them through later and later items and finally - wham! - it all breaks apart and all the guys are discharged on what's been holding them together as pictures - all these items.

So, they then break apart into this sort of thing BTs & clusters (graph). Any question on OT II? Those are the MAJOR incidents, that hold together people by pictures. Same picture, different times.

These are NOT the ONLY incidents on the track. You can also have Fac Is, and stuff like that, but they come up - they're not as universal, not as basic. And I'll say one more thing about this, before I ask for questions. One more thing or reason these are basic - more basic: It's because they affect MORE DYNAMICS. These ones, these ones, that LRH put onto the OT levels. Why didn't he put Fac I? Why didn't he put the Helatrobus Implants? Why didn't he put..., you know? Well, those were minor game implants in a large history of the universe. You also have local wars and whatever they did to each other during the "take-over-scenarios" - bababap. But THESE (CC & OTII) INVOLVE MORE DYNAMICS. They were done with an INTENTION and a SPREAD, a widespreadness to affect the 3rd, the 4th, the 5th, the 6th, the 7th dynamic. And too, with an EVIL INTENTION behind it to handle all thetans that way. Even if they didn't succeed totally, they were INTENDED to handle all thetans, not just a game of "us against them", you see? It wasn't local war. It was a 7th DYNAMIC handling for ALL.

And of course you recognize the insanity of Xenu in that. He was connected with most of this. He was connected with Incident I, Incident II, and also part of the CC. Also that was used - also that's part of track warfare and stuff. He was big backer of that kind of implant, see?

So you get DYNAMIC CONSEQUENCES with these. And what is a Clear? He is Clear on the 1ST DYNAMIC. He must be expanded now on more DYNAMICS. He's going to find these processes are handling things up through the dynamics with most at these incidents. Any questions?... Yes?

"What is the technical aspect of the repeat of the CC in Incident II?"

That was at first supposed that that WAS done. And I'm sure in my data - that I picked up from people around this planet, that have this stuff - is that it was put in a few places. We'll say it was "saved" from the old civilization a long time ago or something and the implanters had it in their files. Sort of like archives. They put it in in some places. It did get stuck in some places - shall we say - 36-Day-Implant-Places.

What we've been finding out essentially by running these guys and getting all their stories off and so on like that through the "What happened here on Earth?", is that there was a bit of a sloppiness. You can't expect renegades to do everything perfectly, you know. And there was sloppiness. I mean, we found guys, that were dumped here to be A-bombed and they MISSED the bomb, because the guys said: "Oh shit! I'm late! Man, let's just dump'em." So they were dumped into the ocean, and they go back you know? So he dumped them into the ocean and they didn't get NEAR the bomb, you see?

They missed - maybe missed - the whole planet! We found out all kinds of weird things like that... some guys go through - and like you say - you sometimes find these funny implants, where the machine breaks down and you'll find the guy sitting there, looking at something in front of it for like days, before it starts up again - bup bup bup - and on he goes. You know?

Or we hit another guy, who had missed. Now they dump him off target or something - they didn't want to get themselves fooled around down there and they started to drop the bombs or either were late coming from another planet with a shipment, so they just threw it, just opened it up, and this guy fell down in the ocean near Africa. His interest was Natural Science, and he saw: "Jesus, look at all the shit, that's happening over that way!" And after he melted out of his ice cube with his cluster - he didn't have a FULL cluster there, except from Incident I - but he went into Africa and he tried to save all those animals, that were dying from the radiation. That was his old game and he had been down there trying to save all these animals - they were all dying from the fall-out, you see? Very, very strange stories you hear from these guys. But is IS true. They didn't really get everything exactly like it says in the things. And that is your MAJOR stuff. That is a 90%, 99% that's all that. Right?

"And what was the purpose in repeating the CC? To restim? - or what?"

Just implanting. I mean, that's - look, they got the 36-days-pictures. All these were in stock - let's put it in this way: The Incident II stuff - most of it - was in stock, in the usual stock. Files of an Implanters trade, right? Because it's not their first attempt, you know? The CC was also in stock, you know? But it took a little more finesse to set up a CC implant. They had to be really well organized. It was a real tuck-tuck-tuck, you know, and different items in sequence and all that. So it was a bit too sophisticated for some of these places, but they did set it up in a couple of places, where they had time.

You see, they were really on a tight time schedule. So they were reporting half-dones, not-dones, you know, false compliances, and all that. So some people did get the CC again there. But their BASIC on it is really earlier, see? You WON'T find that on all the guys, that were in it. But you will find the Incident II mostly or the 36-days-pictures, and maybe some guys - we ran one guy - the machine broke down, as he came down from the electrical ribbon - electronic ribbon - it captures the thetan and tracks him down, puts him through this - sort of a tubular flow line with the implanting (Incident II) stuff - Ahh sorry - OT II and 36-days-stuff. So, he's down in there, going along the line, seeing all the pictures - and once we had a guy - the thing broke down. You know, it stopped for a while. And he exteriorized from it. He just - Whooop!... - came out and he only had a piece of it. But then they caught him again later - this is why, it wouldn't blow - you see - they were still going around with the "Hoover" - whoosh-whoosh - and the ribbons, and they caught him again - Foom! - and put him through it AGAIN. So he had sort of - like you would get that far of it and he had some more later, you know what I mean? It was just weird. So you get all of these possibilities, you see? OK.

So, if the guy's attention is fixed on that, you can always figure there's something in there, that isn't completely as-ised by the exact time, place, form and event. OK?

So, then we get this guy's case broken up like this (BTs & clusters), by the time he is on OT III.

Now, why?... now we go back to Incident I (graph) here, and Incident II here, and PT here. Now, let's ask: WHY is Incident II and I run on OT III? Anybody know that? Why don't you run other stuff? Why do you run Incident II and I on OT III? Why do you run II and I on OT III?

"It's the basic of it."

The basic of what?

"His charge."

The basic what?

"Of the dynamics."

The dynamics also. Yes, much 7th dynamic and it put a basic in in terms of implant side and technical side. What are we trying to do here, now that we got the case split up into BTs and clusters?

"One can handle it with one go, break it up. It can be done with..."

Yeah, but why? Why are these two implants VERY, VERY important?

"Because they make clusters?"

That's it! That's it! They're CLUSTER MAKING. These two - the 36 day by itself - and the CC by itself, were NOT cluster making incidents. They were the same picture, but at different times. Accidently a guy might have been put through it with another guy, but it was NOT THE INTENTION of it.

The INTENTION of THESE TWO incidents (Incident II & I) - and they WERE the major track incidents - was to MAKE CLUSTERS. As you know, there are also, so called MUTUAL INCIDENTS. They can make clusters too, but they are individualized . They are more like... for each cluster there is a different one. But these (Inc II & I) are the MAJOR ones that MAKE CLUSTERS. So, on the OT III (graph)... we have these two cluster making incidents, THE BASICS. So with running that, you're freeing up thetans. Essentially you're starting now the procedure of getting the thetan to realize, what gets him OUT OF VALENCE or what gets others

IN HIS VALENCE, OK?

And that's, what is keeping him on this little continuous idea, of... only a Clear on the 1st dynamic. Because he can suddenly go UNCLEAR by another dynamic force - you know - by 3rd dynamic catching him again, throwing him through another one, or whatever dynamic, you know? Or he can go unclear because of a lot of 2nd dynamic stuff, that he gets into. He saw pictures from this (composite), or from his BTs and clusters. And he can attach all his lines of attention on them and hold onto it and decide, that he needs all that. Once he does, forget him. He picks up all the other stuff from those guys too, so he's now going unclear. I mean, these guys (Pre-OTs) are delicate!

So, now we get the Cluster Making Incidents, II and I (graph). Now we know those ARE the two main cluster incidents, because THIS (Inc II) was a mutual incident taking place on Earth, where the guys were exploded on top of the mountains. And whenever we get a false picture of a volcanos and all that, he went through the 36 days. But the important thing is the INCIDENT ITSELF, that made the cluster - AND the EARLIER BEGINNING, which is the CAPTURE. The capture.

And that's why you have to run from the capture on, because it's like the earliest beginning of that incident. The first time he felt the EVIL INTENTION, you see? This is an intention on the 7th dynamic to destroy thetans. The first time he FELT that, is that point, he gets in the capture. You know, what I mean? "Hey, something wrong here, these guys coming after me...", and you get it. If he doesn't... if he just hits a guy and he contacts his Incident II, it MAY not blow, because he hasn't got the EARLIEST BEGINNING of it, when he felt the first hint of evil intention. Because the evil intention is always present throughout the incident, more and more intensified.Because behind everything, of course, you have in the 7th dynamic a communication of evil intention. But as soon as you start to "do thetans in", they feel it. So the incident will release, when he (BT) spots that exact time, place, form, event and gets the first indication of the evil intention.

Now the cluster, however, - part of it - will break up by spotting the mutual incident (graph). So, here we have a Cluster up in PT from the old Incident II. These guys - or say a "Cluster" - so these guys must audit THAT and let's just say, they don't have another mutual incident in here. Let's just say here is Incident II. So, they go back and they spot the explosion here as the mutual incident and they go - zupppp... - and right away they separate out. That WAS their mutual incident, right?

Now, each of them MIGHT have a different capture. They even might have a different first part of the incident, you see? So the key thing is however, that you find the MUTUAL INCIDENT, THAT'S HOLDING THEM TOGETHER.

Now we found also some of the guys, and you will probably find too - that on some of the guys -

THE CAPTURE W A S THEIR MUTUAL INCIDENT. The earlier similar mutual incident of theirs. (graph). There was a whole group, that got blown away all at the same time or later. Out of existence... a Laser or something to wipe them out - fffft - collect them up as thetans within communities: non-conformists, artists, people who spoke against the government of Xenu's.

* * End of Tape 1, Side 1 * *

This is side two, 22 of August, 1985, Tech Briefing #4, CONFIDENTIAL SUPER NOTs.

We have just gone over, on the 1st side, the basic reasons for Dianetics, Grades, Clear - what Clear is - definition of OT I and OT II - what it does to the case - and then we were on OT III and we just went over the basic Clustering Incidents, why they are on OT III. It's simply because they ARE the basic clustering incidents, with the evil intentions spread across the dynamics, especially in dynamic 7, to suppress thetan. So, it is more of a generalized incident. And we're just now speaking about that in running (Incident) II on a Cluster. II could be the Cluster making incident, but ALSO the capture could be a Cluster making incident on that Cluster. If not, they may have an earlier similar, even one between Incident II and Incident I, that is a Cluster making incident, or they could have a later one.

This is something, you have to sort out with a meter and with the Cluster itself, if you can get a "spokesman" even for it or you get it talking to you as a "unit". And you can date/locate it and find out what it is, OK? But the basic thing is, that the Cluster Making Incident can occur: AFTER Incident II (closer to PT), Incident II, the CAPTURE of Incident II, BEFORE Incident II. All right? And it can also BE Incident I in some cases. All right?

"Could it be even BEFORE Incident I - as we do have earlier Incident Is?"

We have only found... -yeah, it's not a general thing though - we've only found a couple of examples about it and that's something, I want to bring up later. Why, why that can be, right?

So, Incident I IS a Cluster making incident. It didn't make as big Clusters as Incident II. Incident II you had like maybe millions of thetans put on the mountain top. Incident I you maybe only put him together with a guy in the incident plus a number of other BTs - 20, 30, 40, maybe only 5, some of them - depending how early they had their Incident I - some were only like 2 or 3 thetans put together.

The interesting thing is that it has the COMBINED CHARGE of the Cluster making incident AND the same thing we were dealing with in Clearing Course and 36 days - that it is a SIMILAR INCIDENT, THAT WAS DONE MORE THAN ONCE. You see?

We don't... haven't found anybody, that went from one volcano to another and did Incident II TWICE, because that all happened almost on the same day, you know? Most of the action took place very much in a close area of time. But, Incident I was a bit more covert and was done with a lot of PR and so on like that. So that it was something, the Thetans were very much into, but it was done essentially many, many, many, many times - as LRH says: Everyone, that has a time track, essentially in this universe, will have them, you see?

So, there you go. So, it (Incident I) is also - MADE A CLUSTER WHEN IT WAS DONE, because it IS that. It just goes - Snap! - and the "snaps" are when the beings were put together on the other guy. In the "snaps" part they (BTs) come in. They stick to the being on the "snaps". And that's why the guy didn't see them! He's immediately overwhelmed with all those pictures of a chariot, colors, waves of light and so on.

Now, the tricky part is, that it was done so OFTEN. It's just like "tax collecting", you know? It was "tax collecting" every year, and they do it all over the place, so if the guy has a mutual incident such a paying his tax - income tax - with his whole family paying tax - say that was the mutual incident - then he did it last year, and he did it...He may have done it more than once himself AND he may have been put together with the guys, who had it (Incident I) EARLIER in a different place. So you have all these complexities and that's why you ask "Earlier Incident I?"

That's what the button is, you see? You understand the "effort to stop" and "effort to withdraw"? - that's just from that incident. But the "Earlier Incident I?" is trying to BREAK UP THOSE CLUSTERS, and sometimes it goes - brrr - and they all fall apart! You see? It's even more direct, if you say to them: "Is there - are there beings with Earlier Incident Is, who have confused it with this one?" "Can they please spot their Earlier Incident I?" - bummm - and they start spotting it, see? You see, what I mean? They just go - brr - like that. Now the guy himself, that you are handling, may have an Earlier Incident I, but if that doesn't resolve it, then you can say: "Are there beings connected to you, that have Earlier Incidents Is? Please spot them." - brrrfff - they go off, you see?

"Something is freeing while you are giving the lecture!"

Right! Now you see, that's how that works, Now, the other reason a guy won't blow - after you've run II and I off, and Earlier Is - is the other button we're talking about now: Earlier Universe. And that comes about because - of course, if a guy comes across to play a game and he gets a "snap" in Incident I, instead of doing what his PURPOSE is, you know - he goes in to play: "Wow- wow...I want to build a planet." or "I want to help create some orderly MEST." or "I want to do this.", "I want to have a...have a...I want to be a big Thetan!", or whatever. And the next thing you know, he is snapped in and he's just a Cluster, a part of a Cluster, and he has a great big FAILED PURPOSE.

The only way you can get him out of that failed purpose - because he can not obtain that purpose and he has not obtained that purpose in this universe on his time track - so you have to get him to SPOT THE EARLIER UNIVERSE, where he COULD have the ability to do that. And so he actually gets that ability rehabilitated from there. Now you could say, he gets back into his OWN VALENCE and he is able to create on his own and handle his own purposes. But when you first got him out as a "single being", and you assume he IS a single being - after he has done his Incident I and you have a SINGLE guy - but he can't leave - or as a sort of assist there as he is not "VGIs" - well, on III you just ask: "Was there an Earlier Universe?"

"Haaaa, yeah!" - bummm - "That's where I could create! Yeah!" See? He CAN'T CREATE HERE. He's back (after waking up) in it (the MEST universe) and he's here RIGHT NOW - to him he just woke up from a long sleep. He is just like on the BEGINNING OF HIS TRACK! And he HASN'T ACHIEVED HIS PURPOSE! And he now knows that in all of 4 QUADRILLION YEARS, he never achieved it! So he's in a failed purpose.

So you put him into valence IN THE UNIVERSE, THAT HE FEELS COMFORTABLE, THAT HE CAN ACHIEVE HIS PURPOSE. "Earlier Universe?" The guy goes: "Yeah! Wow! Yeah!" , "Well...Boy, that was OK!" - pumm (blow). So you CAN HAVE IT yet again. You CAN HAVE a universe, where you CAN complete a cycle of action and so on...OK?

Now we don't know, which one he goes to - I mean, he may have been in many games. He may go back to his own. But it doesn't matter. When he gets to an Earlier Universe, that is one, that he WAS AT CAUSE in, and one that he COULD achieve his purpose in, and one he COULD complete a cycle of action in, he'll feel good. You have actually rehabilitated him by directing him from this universe to his OWN universe, essentially, OR one that he at least feels "This is a good place", you see? He may feel, he knew some other people in it and he was playing with them - at least he feels CONFIDENT in it enough to "BE".

So, that's the Earlier Universe part. A lot of people don't understand that, why that works. And it's very important on SUPER NOTs as well.

"Very interesting!"

OK? And it is true...now - because realize, that when you have the guy through Earliest Incident I, his Earlier Incident I is off, and any ones (BTs) that were added - put to him - that are now in his valence off - you get him out of that; HE IS A SINGLE BEING.

So, he's essentially an "OT on the 1st dynamic". A little bit more than a Clear, because a Clear doesn't NECESSARILY have to have the guys out of his valence (in a state that they are not in his valence anymore). He's just totally controlling them, because you find a lot of Clears that have to run their OWN Incident I. Because they were put together with others but they are running (controlling) them all. And they are going: "We won't ..." or "I won't mock up anything!" and they all go: "And we won't either." because they are exact duplicates. He says "Yep!" and they go "Yep!" but all at the same time as they are all in HIS VALENCE. So, actually a SINGLE BEING - from cutting off his Earlier Incident Is and the people stuck to him - you have something: a sort of - like an "OT on the 1st dynamic".

So, what is the first thing you want to do? I mean, the guy can't go, he is feeling "BTs" or he is "sad" or something. You have got to rehabilitate him a little bit, orient him to some first dynamic universe he had, give him a little space, get an Earlier Universe where he did feel ok, did feel safe, did feel good - Yes? And he gets "in valence". He is "in valence" here, BUT he is in an ALIEN ENVIRONMENT, so it essentially comes under the theory of DANGEROUS ENVIRONMENT, ok?

You exteriorized him into the "3rd Universe" (the agreed-upon Universe) as a single being, but he is in the 3rd universe and he knows: "Jesus Christ! I don't feel safe here, man. Last time I jumped into this one (Universe), about 4 quadrillion years ago, I ended up as a BT or in somebody's picture" - you know? "Horrible, I was a Cherub, in a Chariot, some "Zaps" you know - to Hell with it!" So you have to get him into a safe environment so he can feel free again. Then he is free. And that's the key on that one.

Any other questions about OTIII and OT levels? No? I'll end up on that. "OT III handles" - and this is where we will bridge into SUPER NOTs right after this - but I just want to make you sure what OTIII handles - the beings who essentially, by the tone scale - right? - have not gone - well, you can look at it in several ways: they have not totally identified themselves with MEST, they have not totally lost some beingness as a being - in other words YOU CAN STILL COMMUNICATE TO THEM - even if they - they're thinking they're a "thing", they can STILL be a LIVE thing. They still - to some degree - retain Liveness, communication, and some sort of little line that you can get hold of them with, ok?

So, you can spot them on the tone scale. Some of them are in various theta-degrees, but they are - most of them - are below death on the tone scale - Ah, sorry! - ABOVE DEATH on the tone scale, you know? It's not always that simple though, because as you will find out soon enough in the next stuff, there IS other aspects to this, that come with other LRH datums, but basically on the tone scale you find these guys anywhere from death, above that, grief, propitiation, sympathy, lining up for auditing, you know? Or being really quiet, propitiating the auditor, even antagonistic, different things. But they are usually at tone levels above, yes? That's III.

Then you get the guys (Pre-OTs), who has gotten rid of all the ones, he can easily get into communication with. He hits the solidity wall or the solidity factor of NOTs. And the NOTs area is of course, where we have the guys BELOW BEING ABLE TO BE A BEING. But there is a CONDITION on that and that's very interesting about NOTs, and how we found out that you can actually handle it without any reference partly to lists or L&N or anything else, right?

So, that's handled there on NOTs. (And I would actually put on that sheet (graph), that that's important back here: Earlier I and Earlier Universe (graph). Those are important buttons in the III case.) Now, you need to know ALL this data to handle, what you are going to run into on NOTs, because you are actually handling PCs all the time. Yes, PCs, OK? And these are the major things, that you get into.

OK, now we get to NOTs, NED for OTs. All right? And we still have this basic pattern (Incident I (graph), II, PT). Now, what's different about this? It's very interesting, this. I have to give you some references, that sort of give the basic point on this NOTs stuff. You've all heard of the NOTs packs, I know. But I just want to point out a couple of things - besides of the tone scale - which is BELOW zero tone scale items: caring for bodies, hiding, all these different things here - numb, sort of being a ...

"being objects"

...victim - no, that's still above. Right - here we go: "Failure, Pity, Shame, Accountable, Blame (punishing other bodies), Regret (responsibility as blame), Controlling Bodies, Protecting Bodies, Owning Bodies, Approval from Bodies, Needing Bodies, Worshipping Bodies, Sacrifice, Hiding, Being Objects, Being Nothing, Can't Hide, Total Failure". You know what I mean?

So, and all the other scales apply too. Symbols, the Lower Awareness Scales, all that. But the one thing, I want to point out, is in the Axioms. (I wonder where I put that? Here it is.) Interesting Axioms here. This is Axiom 29, of Scientology Axioms: "In order to cause an as-is-ness to persist, one must assign other authorship to the creation than his own. Otherwise his view of it will (would) cause it's vanishment." (or as-is-ness) "Any space, energy, form, object, individual, or physiological (physical universe) condition can exist only when an alteration has occured of the original as-is-ness, so as to prevent the casual view" (or casual view) (it's casual here) "from vanishing. In other words, anything, which is persisting must contain a 'lie', so that the original consideration is not completely duplicated." You see? In other words: We know from NOTs, it's a MISOWNERSHIP thing. It's a misplacement, out of time, place, form, and event, and ownership.

But it's interesting to look at it from the viewpoint of Axioms. These are THETAN Axioms, apply to all Thetans. And to the case you're running on NOTs. So look at the fact there: that, if the guy (BT) is NOT blowing - then YOU HAVEN'T GOT THE TRUTH ABOUT THEM. It's probably this: you haven't got the truth about it. OK?

Now, what we're going over here are the most "usual truths", that you will run into with these guys, plus some more, which I'm going to tell you now, which we found out. It's very interesting about guys below zero on the tone scale and also very interesting about these guys, who are being "solids".

OK, so, let's take point one: Point one in SUPER NOTs is the ORGANIZATION of these guys. It's a very interesting fact, that run properly - if you're approaching the NOTs case properly - I'll tell you, how that's done also - but if you're approaching it properly, you'll find the thing is ORGANIZED. It has an ORGANIZATION to it.

Now it's the CRAZIEST ORGANIZATION, you may ever come across and you'll find this stable datum of LRH's comes (from Policy) out of it. And the stable datum is: "The point, where a thetan goes crazy (or criminal or out ethics), is where HE CAN NOT WORK, or do a useful job." And, you know, that we find every guy, who is in there - whether he is a good guy, bad guy, an SP, or whatever - when you wake him up and get him talking, in communication, you find out, that he is holding onto whatever sanity he has BY PERFORMING A DUTY.

Now this guy needs to be ACKNOWLEDGED for that duty. No matter how crazy it is to you - but to him it's a very serious one - because if he COULDN'T DO THAT, he would be or go TOTALLY insane. You see what I mean?

So, if he's been a spot on the bottom of a coffee cup - "Well, somebody has to do it." I mean, they always think they are - they are a REAL GOOD SPOT. It's an incredible thing, that these guys are holding on to their sanity, because of the fact that they'd been doing something. And whenever we acked for that - you know - that's where you have to acknowledge VERY WELL, when they give you a valence answer to: "What are you?" See? Yeah, it's almost like: "Hey, fantastic! You're being that!" "The whole time? Oh, wow!" You see? And they think, they're performing a useful action, NO MATTER WHETHER THEY'RE DOING BAD OR GOOD. We haven't got to that part yet. It's important to get THIS blown first, so you can handle them. But the guy reckons, he's doing that - and boy - if he DIDN'T believe that - (to THAT point he'll be sane) - but if not - he'll be insane. If you invalidate him or if you totally not-is it or don't believe, what he tells you - Ohh no!

(He goes) nuts... you know? OK?

So I just want to point that out to you: There IS an organization there and no matter how crazy it is - like these cups, and saucers, and things on the table, say that might be a whole NOTs setting - a "tableau" - that you came across. You know - you ask the question and - Boom! - first thing you see is a table with candles and so on. This is in an office and there's a desk there and so on and there is a chair - waiting for somebody. And: "OK, anyone being a spokesman for this group here?" - and you get this voice coming out of the candle flame: "I'm the flame of life!" - you know? You ask him: "OK, what's this all about? Any BPC here?" (or whatever). And the answer comes: "We're keeping the office ready."

YOU know now, they're all smashed down to little spots or something like that, but THEY have been keeping this office ready for eons and eons and eons and eons. You know? There used to be a big Thetan there or something and they all had been wiped out in one of those captures or something like that and then they got smashed, put together for 75 million years and have been keeping the office ready ever since - you see?

Maybe all the office staff were herded into a room then vaporized with the Laser guns. So these guys were all - they took - you know - they tried to protect the boss' office, so they all grabbed part of the MEST as exterior Thetans. Then they got smashed together in the ice-cubes, put down on the planet, blown-up - Boom - totally! More incidents, more incidents, more incidents, and NOW they're just there in the NOTs case keeping the office, and they would go totally crazy, if they couldn't do that! You see? A whole organization.

So now, knowing this, you may find, and you WILL find, that knowing this - now of course it doesn't all have to all go together THAT logically. I can't - I can't even think, how illogically it CAN go together, until you run the session, and you'll find out how illogically it is, right? Because this whole office may be under a button, which is on a uniform of somebody in another service, right? There HE is with a spear and there's somebody else being the spear, you know? And there's that guy in an airplane about 30.000 feet up and the guy with the spear sees him for the 1st time - as he got shot by the plane, and he's the "bad guy" (the one in the plane) - you know what I mean? That's how weird it can get.

But that whole thing holding together all the way down is an ORG BOARD, you see? And if you just run a little piece of it, you're NOT HANDLING THIS WHOLE THING. Now, this whole thing, that's an ORG BOARD, all the way down from guys with the evil intentions at the top. That guy - you know - and maybe HE got blown up at the SAME TIME by a missile! So, it's a mutual thing and all were captured put together - poom! - you know, whatever their story is - who cares? Or they got together later in that relationship, because they sort of "fitted" - an "out of valence fit" - you know? It doesn't matter. They ARE organized in that RIGHT NOW and they are all doing THAT - frozen in time like - what do you call it - "the Enchanted Moors" - the music, you know? They're FROZEN IN TIME. So, they're sitting there, doing that whole org board. It doesn't produce anything. It just sits there. But each guy thinks, he has a duty in it and it's a frozen duty as well. The whole thing is frozen. So this guy is shooting those guys - this guy is resisting that guy - you know - and he's an officer and he has the spear and then his button - there is a GOLD BUTTON just shining in the sun and it's the last thing he saw - and underneath the button, he's got a group smashed in on Incident II. Maybe he found these other guys had a nice office and that's what he really wanted to be - an executive - so he's clutched it through all time to his breast - some kind of weird computation.

In other words: There is some kind of crazy illogical A=A=A=A=A holding this whole Cluster mass of BTs and Clusters and solids all together. And so, if you run it knowing that, and you sort of "poke" into it at the level of the "flame on the candle", where you are not getting any as-is-ness and can't get these guys to sort of "break up" or "get the little office mock up to dissolve", or them to realize 'who they are' - THEN you must suspect that SOMEBODY IS HOLDING THEM. Just somebody higher up the org board, you know? Do you see? So, that's one way to look at it - right? Just: "Is somebody holding you?" And if you have a "spokesman", there's only about two things, that can be wrong, once you get the thing talking - in communication - whatever it is - wherever you hit this. When you try to get into communication and you are not getting any blowdown, you're not getting any reads, the guy IS telling the story, but nothing is happening, you get a "what?" you get "who?" - but uhh - it's "sticky". So, the guy is EITHER NOT REALLY EXACTLY WHAT HE TELLS YOU HE IS - OK? - (it's says in the materials, it could be a picture you're talking to or it's only a via - another guy in the background - that's possible - but also it could be, you're talking to a Cluster instead of an individual.)

So, you're not handling the mutual incident yet, see? And therefore the mutual incident occured before - so it's earlier - so it's holding this guy together - but HE CAN'T OPEN UP AND LET GO OF THE REST. So it's also possible, that he's being HELD BY SOMEBODY ELSE. Even if he IS A CLUSTER. So, even a Cluster doesn't really break and you can't get the mutual incident going, as SOMEBODY ELSE IS HOLDING.

Now this is the key thing: That there IS an organization to this stuff. No matter how crazy. And it occurs IN the body, AROUND the body - WHEREVER you have this stuff. It's there. And a lot of it is by-passed. This is the interesting thing on these orgs - "NOTs Orgs" . They have - some of them - have persisted from here (graph) into PT, right? From Inc II into PT. Some of them have persisted from Incident I into PT WITHOUT EVEN BEING AFFECTED BY INCIDENT II. They were already "MEST", BEFORE they got into Incident II and they may have been the MEST on THIS planet in some other fashion or form or in some animal body at that time and weren't thought worthy enough to be put on the mountain - you can't put everything on the planet on the mountain - they just put the Thetans on the mountains. So, when they saw a dog running around - you know - or somebody's gold watch - they would STEAL it all the while rather than put THAT on the mountain, right? But the gold watch may have been a bloody Cluster, see? (or have a Cluster "being" it). And they may have come across of the "gold watch" in one of these "Hoovering" operations, where they suck up Thetans and stuff - you see? But they (the Cluster) still are a gold watch, see? Got missed going through the 36 days. But later got hooked up with a bigger being, who sucked some other guys for havingness and companionship after the incident. "Oh, there is a gold watch!" You know? He doesn't even realize, he doesn't have a BODY ANYMORE, you know? He still is floating around as a Thetan after II: "Oh, my watch, ohhh...". So he pulls in a little Cluster and it's a gold watch. This - this IS how it happens - so. Anyway...

"That's probably why there are something like two thousand nails of Jesus Christ's cross still existing on this planet."

Two thousand nails...yes. There are BTs on them stuck in that incident. OK. So, we have even found these guys, that were put together at Incident I and of course they haven't - they bypassed Incident II even, or Incident II DIDN'T EVEN AFFECT THEM and they've come up to PT (graph) totally asleep since then (Incident I), and totally messed up since then, right?

Now somebody asked about, "What about before that?" - you know - "Is it possible" - before the earliest Incident I on the case "to have had some kind of thing ?" Yes, it is. Because before they had Incident I, the guys (implanters) who were STARTING IT DID EXPERIMENTS ON THEM. In other words, they didn't just create this Incident I out of "whole cloth". They experimented with "How do you put together Clusters?" "How do you put together BTs?" - "To stick them together the best and to make them most influence the Thetan to get him to accept them but not recognize them being there?" You see? That's very well thought out.

"It's very vicious!"

VERY vicious!

"This is like the dramatizations of transplants now with body parts in the MEST Universe - transplantations."

See - you DO HAVE THIS "EXPERIMENTS" SITUATION BACK HERE (before Incident I) and all of the real "dummy" Thetans - I say "real dummy Thetans" - but they're just not very causative. They have just been sort of dead a long time. Some of them were actually the - shall we say - the "priming " Thetans they used in Incident I. What I mean by "priming" - you know, the old pumps, where you can't get the pump going unless you put water in it to start it. (That's called "priming" the pump.)

So, to start off with, the first Thetans, they wanted to put through Incident I, they had to have some already put together to push on him. In all these different experiments, the way to get rid of the ones, that had an "experimental" incident - we have found a few, that went through that place and they were sent together with some others, through all different kinds of incidents to experiment with, you know?

And some of them were part of a big Cluster, that sort of "came apart" and so they don't use it, and then this, and that, all kinds of real weird stuff. They WOULDN'T BLOW, because you had their Incident I, BUT they had an EARLIER SIMILAR INCIDENT. Not very many, but you DO find them. OK? And then - after that - THEN they can do "Earlier Universe?" - or "Captured from Earlier Universe?"

Now, why do you find "the capture out of their Earlier Universe"? Because they were free and then they were CAPTURED OUT OF THEIR OWN UNIVERSE. So, it's almost the EARLIER SIMILAR of the "Capture" of Incident II! Apparently they were in their own space and doing their own thing around and/or they were playing somebody else's game, and guys (implanters) came around with some kind of "beams" and just - ffft! They were gotten INTERESTED and they then were going - wufft! - and it will pull them in, you see? Or they promised them some kind of - with a theta comm they would say: "Hey! Hey! Why don't you come over here and see? We got a nice..." - Zap! - you see? Give him some kind of electronic - dzdzdzdz - and "What's up? What's up?" You see ? Big confusion thing. And then taken to some experimental area. It wasn't really a tailored implant or something - it was just the capture. And then they were "stored". They did some special kind of "Zaps!" to them to make them sort of nutty, and unconscious, and usable as Thetans. One visio we had on this, was a guy who was kept in a sphere, which had a magnetized interior. So they couldn't quite touch the wall of the sphere, but they couldn't get out of it either. So they were kept in a sphere like that, you know? And then put through the "experiments" to make Incident I.

OK, so that could be there on the track. Don't be amazed at anything you find, There is a total - well, you're starting into the AWARENESS OF INCREDIBLES on this level already. Now the thing I want to - that's the FIRST THING, IT WAS THE ORG, ORGANIZATION, OF IT, right? (Graph) It's ORGANIZED. The second thing is: THEREFORE, IF IT'S ORGANIZED, IT ALSO COMES OFF IN A CERTAIN SEQUENCE. And the other thing I noticed, that they DON'T DO elsewhere in programming cases, is what's mentioned as: "Don't worry if a guy's case doesn't run exactly like this, because it's not STACKED UP THAT WAY".

Well, that little statement in there - after studying it three times, we just passed over that statement. Now we were going to go down this list, and we started the D of P interview. What it says is to cover first these things on the D of P interview and see what the guy needs handled, yes?

This is VERY interesting. We found out in the D of P interview, that there was certain things, that read, you know? You have some questions like: "What is your attention on?" "What is your attention avoiding?" "Do you have any body problems?" "Any mental problems?" "Vitamin deficiencies?" "Any auditing, that you have your attention on from the past?" You know - you're just doing a typical D of P interview.

"It will give reads on this type of stuff and not so much on other. And - hmm - well, by Tech you should put these into order of reads." MEASURED UP EXACTLY ON THE NEEDLE AT THAT SENSITIVITY HOW MUCH CHARGE, THAT WAS FOR A SMALL FALL, LONG FALL, A FALL, AT THAT SENISITIVITY, WE WERE RUNNING, PLUS THE BLOWDOWNS, AND THEN ADD THEM ALL TOGETHER, AND PUT THEM IN A SEQUENCE.

And we did this, we sort of realized that: "OK, that must be what he's (LRH) talking about, this 'stack up' thing". So we still - at this point, there STILL wasn't very that much importance to it - well, we said: "OK, we should have the MOST CHARGE FIRST. That's obvious, MOST REAL, MOST CHARGE". And then all of a sudden we realized, that by DOING EXACTLY THAT - NO MATTER WHAT YOU CAME OUT WITH AS THE TOP ITEM - IT WAS THE TOP ITEM, you know, what I mean?

In other words: You START WITH THAT ITEM OR THAT SUBJECT - say the guy says: "Well, you know, a pain in my hand, I've trouble with my hands." Or it could be "BTs with Out-Int" or "had bad auditing session with..." or "this is what never got handled" or "had too many..." or "when I, when I go to sleep, I get voices in the head ". You know, things like that. Whatever that subject is. Even if it involves the naming of a solid or a thing, that he thinks it could be, you understand? But it usually is a physical type of location, space, time, form, event type of thing or a bad condition. Whatever that is, it comes off at the D of P interview. We start that - it's amazing - but knowing that it's - what we will find on NOTs is really not our own case - but is the stuff, that's preventing us from being OT. It's amazing, but this phenomenon starts right there and with that particular subject - say for instance, it's "voices in the head", which is quite common. Guy goes to sleep and "voices in the head". Everybody has had it a little bit, and some people are troubled by it, so it's important. OK, let's say you start with that from the NOTs D of P. "First we are going to take up with you this best reading area, 'Voices in the head'. Any BTs or Clusters connected with that?" "MAN UHHH!...." Right away - wumm! - and right away - bumbumbumbumbum! - and you start getting this whole bunch of guys connected with that. And you pull out the PLUG - pumm! - The "plug" is a whole Org on it, and there may be another one and another one. And each session you do ONE plug, until you end up with a FTA. I wanted to say - you get a nice Floating TA, when you pull out ONE of these Orgs. And you get another FTA on, when you've handled the subject (or a "broader" FTA at the end of that subject, when the Pre-OT is no longer troubled by that thought. Added by Capt. Bill)

This last FTA may be looked at as if it may be the same one, that you had in the LAST plug (and plus any copies and stuff). You get this FTA on the guy, but this time he goes..."And that's TOTALLY GONE." "Voices in there?" "NOTHING there." You know? It's totally gone, nothing there, NOTHING! So, we find out that - when you do that - and THEN the next item on the stack list - which may be "BTs with Out-Int" or something - then THAT one is really RIGHT THERE. No matter what the guy says, it's THAT item. He comes in with the TA high, at 4.5 or he says: "I have a problem, I have an ARC Break..." It doesn't matter WHAT he says. It really doesn't matter. It IS the next plug to be run from the stack!

We found out, that when you start a session, you don't have to check a Rud. You can, if you want to, but just ask: " What is your attention on?" (Even if the Auditor just says, "have you had a good night's sleep?" It doesn't matter what you ask, the Pre-OT will think there's "something there". -

And you're going to find out, that that bloody thing is the first entrance point to another one of these plugs and when you pull that one out, you will then find, that he is now connected to the NEXT THING on the stack.) It's almost like you're changing the valence of the body every day! Hmm, you see?

At first, it's a body (or Pre-OT), that has problems with "voices in the head". The next day - when you've handled all that stuff - pfff - it's gone. Now it's one with "Out-Int problems", you see? And when it's gone, it's a whole new body (or Pre-OT) with a whole new thing. You see what I mean? (Note by Capt Bill: Plugs can be attached to the body or the Thetan, or both, just as BTs & Clusters can in OT III to the OT III case.)

And I know you've run into phenomena as well - oh, there is a lot of them! - but the interesting thing is here, that we could not figure out, why other people were having different experiences on NOTs, than we were. Because we've heard of these short "5-minute-sessions" and people "blown-out" and "great cogs" and so on and we didn't have that. Not that we didn't have the cogs, not that we didn't have the blown-outs. But we sure didn't have "5-minute-sessions", you see? Sessions took from 45 minutes to even 3 hours in some cases. But it was always blowing a plug of these guys (or an Org Board of these guys) and making sure of course, that you didn't then start the next, because the next one will be sort of waking up, as you get that one gone. So, when you see the thing blow down, and when you get the Floating TA, just have the guy spot: "Anything left there?" "Any copies left?" "Tell anybody else, that's started up on this or got restimulated, that it's NOT THEIR ITEM, that they will be handled later, this does not apply to them." Whatever statement it is that - ffff - quiets them down. (In the case that the guy says: "My attention is on that one." "All right. Ask the one guy left there, does he want to say something?" Whatever. "Last call." You handle - fffft - and then his TA is just floating, and he says: "OK, they're all gone!")

So, it's great! When all during the session we had cogs, when all during the session we are getting...interest! It's very high. As long as you're running along the correct line, you can't get any losses and you're running it - very interesting, very fun to run. And it's very much making changes on the guy, you know, on his case and on the body. Because now he is progressing in areas, where he's before been blocked up with all this junk.

Now, Ulrich, he will tell you - I mean, he was saying, before he started his SUPER NOTs: "you know, I'd like to find out more about this Inc I. What really happened in Incident I." Well, that was not just an idle statement. That was NOT an idle statement. Yes! He had a whole bunch of these guys, that had a LOT of charge on this Incident I business and experiments and all this kind of stuff. Just because he said that - as an auditor (he thought he was saying it as an auditor) - actually he was, BUT the cases were saying: "Heeeeyyyy...", you know? They were almost like calling for his attention. His attention was - it was enough to where that stack came up real quick, you see? There it was! Right!

So, very interesting, it's a very interesting thing. There is: One, the organization. And the next is: It's organized, AND it's STACKED UP in a certain way. OK? You might say: "That is the ORGANIZATION and SEQUENCE of the case left to the Pre-OT."

Now, remember, all this case - some of it is attached to your body, some of it is attached to you as a Thetan through the track. But, a lot of this stuff is attached to the body or to other Thetans, who were attached to other Thetans, who were attached to the universe or whatever, you see? A lot of this DID NOT COME TO THE PLANET WITH YOU. Some of it is picked up HERE. You see? So if you get some mystery about it, say..."Oh, how come this Thetan or these guys were in Rome, when I know, that I was in England?" You know? It doesn't matter. They could have come through the body-line, through the genetic-line, they could have come in just from engrams, incidents, injuries, any kind of way, you could have picked them up. This planet is crawling with this stuff. Somebody could have intended it on the guy, I mean. We've found recently many examples already (on getting the more recent charges off of BTs & Clusters) of real witchcraft, using Thetans, using Clusters as magical objects and symbols and so on, right? On this planet - very recently so - a magic sword, you know, magic sword...consisting of a Cluster, which is taken from the body of a dead soldier, so it has heroic qualities. That kind of stuff.

"That's the point behind this Siegfried Tale. Where the sword is hardened by sticking it into the blood of a body."

They kept the courage of the dead body by pulling it out with a Cluster stuck on the sword. They actually did a little more: It was a necromancy type of thing, that the armourers did - they came up to the magicians and got their help. The magician says: "Come on you guys, I want some heroes here, I want some heroes here for a special job, it's the sword of a king!" You know? Then the armourer will beat it in (the Cluster) real hard. Clang ! Clang! OK, now they're REALLY IN THERE - humm - a "Singing Sword", right? The whole Cluster goes - "humming" - . This is what's been happening here on Earth. This is always "mystical" stuff, OK? So, that's the organization and that's the stack.

Now, any questions about that stuff? Because you can also find this by doing a little interview on yourself or down the list to find out what is reading the best if you've run out the stuff to "What next to handle?" It's almost comes, after a while, as easy as: "what's my attention on?" or "What's my attention avoiding?". See? So, there IS a sequence. And it's vital too, not to leave BPC on this or you get this "build up of the charge". We didn't have that. Because - if you don't pull a whole plug (graph) - this is the whole plug - and you contact the top of the Org Board, and you're working till this is all out, and you get the F/Ning TA, OK? Bumm. But if you just cut the top off, just handle the top few guys, now you have an ORG WITHOUT A HEAD. So, it sort of destabilizes and goes into restim - bzzz - all over the Pre-OT.

You sort of have woken them up, you know, what I mean? You've taken off the SUPPRESS line or the HOLDING line on them, cut off the top of the Org, you see? So now you go and run something else and cut off another little bit of it, and so on. You now have this whole failed NOTs case - like you have more people out there going: "Uuuwwwagh, I don't want auditing anymore, uuuaagh...!" All of their whole case is humming! You know...? You see?

"They are leaderless."

"Erupting like a volcano."

Yes, but it's that they didn't pull all these plugs out completely and sort of keep the case in "PT". And it's exactly like it says; when you do pull out the thing, the whole thing, it sort of grows - boop - expands. It's bigger and bigger and bigger and you handle it in the room and you handle each thing and then you go on finding and cleaning the area. Then you have a few guys on the edges, sort of "waking up" in the other areas, but they are not in THIS area (where the plug was). So you just put them back to sleep, after handling the "last call" guys, looking for copies, whatever.

But gradually - if you just keep looking at the thing - you will see the other guys on the edge of the next plug - not even waking up, but they are just sort of going: Whoo - expanding!! But the space is clean now (or at least cleanER), and it's more CLEAR - it's like water - you know - it's like when you take a bowl of muddy water and pour clear water in it, quickly, you see suddenly clear water and then slowly the dark mud flows back in again. It's just like that. And it slowly goes muddy again. That's the viewpoint, you get of these guys - in the beginning of the case. Later the areas stay clear and clean.

Now I must tell you a very important thing (to sort of end up for you to ask the questions) and that is the thing, that I think most people have trouble with on NOTs (besides the Org and the Stack thing). It's the guys, which I have experience with, on LRH C/Sing. And I know, that it's not very well known around, and this is the guys, which he called "out of valence in R6", which are - this is, shall we say, (graph) along here, they where in "implanter valences". OK, LRH called - this is the guys, LRH called them "out of valence in R6". What he means by that - he calls the stuff, that was done on the Clearing Course (Implant) and those line-plots - he called them R6, just another name for bank items, R6. Routine 6 was one of the ways, they found them. They're called R6.

OK, so "out of valence in R6", what does that mean? That means: " The other guys, they GOT it. He's the one, who GAVE it." He is one of the bad guys. Now here you get all the PTS/SP-phenomena, evil purpose phenomena - what do you call - the "Laudable Withholds" and stuff like that - I mean "implanting" as a withhold: The guy thinks it's OK (or laudable) to withhold HOW MANY Thetans, he implanted, BECAUSE HE WORKED ON THE EVIL SIDE. So a withhold, to HIM, is like, he "let a Cluster get away" WITHOUT IMPLANTING IT, you know? He's withholding THAT, whereas on the other side THAT would be a "good thing" to do. But he withholds this from his boss: "Don't let Xenu find out, I let them go!" You see, what I mean?

So you have these guys, that are "out of valence in R6". Now, this is where it gets interesting, because you find out - funny enough - that they've MISSED Incident II by being in the - implanter Org, or (graph), when they were renegades or some of the guys, that were helping Xenu in Incident II. Now this is where it becomes important again on the organization basis to understand "Sector 9" and "Revolt in the Stars". It's where, it becomes important. Because now you get the knowledge to start handling these guys, who are out of valence in R6 - or let's say - worked on the implanting side. Because you DO FIND THEM - and the reason, I say you'll find this, is because - on these stacks (and I think, that is a lot of the reason, that people are just "chopping off" and just doing a little "by passing side step") a lot of times these guys are HOLDING THE WHOLE STACK or holding one whole plug.

 End Side 2 of Tape #4 **

This is 22 August 1985, this is side 3, Tech Briefing #4. It's a Confidential SUPER NOTs Briefing. And the last thing I was talking about here was that, we have just gone over the organization aspect of these dead BTs and so on, there is an organization there, and the stack up of the case. How you find out by your D of P interview, or by your own assessment of things, that are going on, or you just run into it naturally at the beginning of the session, if you really get aware of it. But the whole principle is to pull out the whole stack - or the plug part, that was connected to that and you run it by going up to the top of the Org Board first and then handle it all the way down. We find it happens much quicker that way. You may go on for 45 minutes handling the guy at the top of the plug and then 15 minutes later, you blown a thousand BTs out - ffftt you know? Because he was HOLDING ALL OF THEM and they all actually couldn't get out of that without a lot of effort, because his intention is on them (either good or bad intention, it doesn't matter). The guy IS HOLDING. Because he's an old Commander of an army troop and he has all his soldiers, he's holding. Or a father and therefore he's holding his family or something, who knows? But we could have an EVIL guy there, a suppressive one. And that's what I am talking about.

Now, because this is the 3rd thing that's not covered very well in the materials. But it IS covered in C/Sing Tech and it is covered in PTS/SP Tech, Evil Intention/Evil Purpose Tech, and some of the LRH's C/Ses on the Advanced Levels having to do with people "out of valence in R6", which means, they were the guys, who DID THE IMPLANTS and therefore didn't receive them. And you find combinations: The guys who got BETRAYED, after they did a lot of implants and they got through them (implants) themselves. And they will stick up and won't blow. You get them through their Incident II and they sort of still have charge or something like that. They say: "I deserved it" or something. "I was betrayed". And they are sort of "mean" about it, you know? And you get the idea of Missed Withhold with them or a Dirty Needle or something. Maybe a little small Rock Slam, you know? "Hey, were you working with the other side?" "Oh, hmm, hmm, you know, I was a pilot, you know, hmm, hmm...., hmm, hmm, I did drop the bomb...: Then you get, of course you have to get him to tell: "How many times you did that?" and so on. A lot of times they take no responsibility: "I was just doing my job!" - you see, everybody has a job. ("Bomb the Thetans!") - just a job. So you have to get this, you get it off, and you still maybe don't get any needle action, (because you've) not getting it ALL off. So then you have to get, either that the guy is totally overwhelmed and in the valence of the SP, so you have to know: "Who are the SPs in this business?" You know, Xenu, Chu. Chi, all these guys. If he was in banking or in psychiatry or the army, he was working for one of these guys. It's true. That is the names, that come up out of the case, you see? And we even had some guys stuck - like guys we have found, who say: "So what, I did my job, followed orders." NOTHING HAPPENING. "Evil Purpose?" "No, that was just a job." NOTHING READING ON THE GUY, right? Say: "PTS to Xenu?" - wham! - big read- "Whoo? Don't tell him about this!" "I'm afraid you guys were checking up on me. No, I did my job. Who are you? What do you want?"

The guy totally comes out of it, you see? He, and a lot of guys come out of this thing, because they thought YOU'RE MORE IMPLANTERS, that are "checking up on them". They think you are the implanters checking up on them, to see if they are still keeping their "Shut up!" (silence). You see, what I mean?

So always remember, you may have to use that old auditor process: "Who would I have to be to audit you?" Especially for guys, who are - even if you get him in comm - and he "Uuaargh, uuaargh, so what?" And he keeps going silent, you know? Might need: "Who would I have to be to audit you?" And he pops up and says: "Xenu!" or "Chu!", "Chi!". You know, one of these guys, who run the thing. Or some of them are more "religious minded" and may say: "God".

So you have to remember, that when you are dealing with these guys, who are either "resistive cases", because they were in earlier therapy, or because they were on the overt side, and therefore they have a lot of withholds and have lots of "out of valence shifts" from the time, when they were really in their OWN UNIVERSE. They have lots of "out of valences". They were into the "knocking out thetans" stuff. So you have to get them INTO SESSION. And first they have to RECOGNIZED YOU AS AN AUDITOR. So, just to get him in comm is not enough sometimes. You have to find out, WHO YOU HAVE TO BE TO AUDIT HIM?

Then you have to handle the overts, they did. And if there is no charge coming off of that and it won't free him up on the track, even after you get "how many times?" and all that stuff, you have to find out their PTS situation. Or they are withholding because of some association within the organization, or you can go back and date: "When did you start that?" or "What is the date of that evil purpose?" You can date the evil purpose. He says: "Yeah, it's all right to "do in" thetans - it's OK." "OK. When did you make that?" And then you can go - you know - "What were you BEFORE you made that purpose?" - After you get charge off the purpose. You usually find out HE HIMSELF was either "convinced", "PRed", "blackmailed", "implanted", some how, in the normal criminal fashion of Xenu and his boys, MADE to do that - Very much like the Russian do with their population - but on a much broader scale, you know?

You know, "If you don't do this, you will be one of those!" - you know - an ICE CUBE... And boy, we found that these guys, who PROTESTED ANY PART OF DOING INCIDENT II, were marked down and they were put through. Either there or later. Anybody who sort of went "You know, maybe it's not a good idea to do."...It's always another guy reports him. So when he comes in, he's called into the office - Zap! - you see? So he (Xenu) didn't allow anybody to talk. "You want this to happen to you?" So he kept the lines tight. There negades, you know, if they betrayed Xenu, then they would get SMASHED. So of course they got a big withhold. They got the overts, they got the withhold, they got the PTS situation, they got the betrayal....EVERYTHING. You see it right there on the case, as you run these guys.

But if you know this data in here, you can unravel it, because you can throw a few questions in there about PTSs, about evil purposes, about "Whom you work for?", and you can get the read, you see? And you can unmock it. OK, so that's the little hint on the "out of valence guys" and LRH's C/Sing style.

Now, why are these guys holding on a lot of these stacks? Very simple. A lot of them are holding the stacks, because they are more powerful than everybody else in the stack. Why are they more powerful? Because they didn't have the Implant with the same intention or they didn't have it at all. They got it in a later Mutual Incident or an earlier one or something like that. But they weren't in that particular Incident II. They may have got dumped down to the planet later by betraying the renegades, they may have got just shot and dumped on the planet, because they thought they may be a security problem, you know what I mean? They might have been left there, so there wouldn't be any "witnesses".

So, while some were there, busily doing the other guys in and then, after that was over, they said: "OK, get rid of those guys, we don't want any "witnesses" - rat-tat-tat-tat (machine guns) - you see? That's it. So they got left on the planet. They may even have gotten put through the "36 days" but rarely - sometimes you don't find these guys had the Volcano Incident. They haven't had the explosion of the H-bomb. So they are sort of still more "competent" as a thetan. They are still "there", not so much "made into a Cluster". So they were more powerful.

So, they sort of "take over" a thing and some of them PRETEND to be good guys. This is another thing - they would say: "Well, you know, I'm a good guy, I'm a good guy." (Apart from HOLDING on to these other guys in the plug, they're ready to do anything, that you want.) But you can get the indicators of Dirty Needles, teeny Dirty Needles, and some times little Rock Slams, stuff like that. When you get a Rock Slam, you can just date/locate the evil purpose and you can usually find them.

Now, some of this stuff goes all the way back BEFORE (Incident) II (graph) and you find the guy "out of valence" in (Incident) I as well! This is interesting, because that means, that he came like this (graph), and he may have been out of valence in (Incident) I, he may have done (Incident) I, come all the way down the track here (graph), he got nailed by the implanters back here, for betraying them, doing Incident II (I) wrongly on people - letting some escape from Incident II (I) - (I'm sorry - from Incident I).

But thetans have gotten out of Incident I for not doing it properly on them. We found guys that were only "half-done" on Incident I. They didn't have the full thing or they escaped from the full impact of the snaps, you know? By avoiding various control mechanisms on them of electronic charge, and so on. And if the guy, who was running it - and they have thetans actually running this stuff - who were...who were supposed to make sure, the guy was in position before you "zapped" him with the snaps, you see? And if he wasn't quite in position, then the snaps and Clusters all formed up here (a bit off target) and then the guy wasn't quite in it. And so he comes out sort of "dragging" the Cluster along with him on the time track. And he "sees" it! And we had a guy, who was dragging it like a trailer. He says: "Yeah, I can't get rid of the thing, because I don't know what it is. But it makes pictures for me." You know, what I mean? Then you go back (to Inc I) and find out he was "missed" and then nearby him is another guy, who was - who WAS the guy who did the "errors" and right after he went through, they snapped this other guy through it, because he was on the bad side of Incident I and he messed up. Same Xenu pattern here: BETRAY EVERYBODY!

So, he was an operator here(graph), an operator in Incident I. And these guys are sort of "out of valence in Incident I", see? But then later they got betrayed and thrown through. But you find out, when they RUN THEIR INCIDENT I, they still feel "evil", they still have an R/S, they still...they don't "blow" really. "Earlier Incident I?" "Earlier Universe?", doesn't work on them. Why not? Still CHARGE, evil purpose - bum bum - all of this. And THERE you have to get AGAIN the PTS/SP phenomenon or the evil purpose, because that's...Before he came into the game, he may have had a good purpose, then he got recruited by Xenu, turned it into an evil purpose. You see? Or he might have formed the evil purpose by saying: "Hey! That's the way to do it! I want to work with those guys!" You know?

They really caused some effects though. Because back in those days - I mean - it was like - it wasn't looked at necessarily as a - because it was the first time, that was done, it wasn't looked at how horrible it was, you understand? Back there, people were more - they were free of track before that, so they didn't have pictures automatically and so on - they thought: "Hey, that is a good game, you know, let's "zap" all these guys and confuse them!" You see, what I mean?

So, he could be "out of valence" in INCIDENT I AND INCIDENT II or he could be "out of valence" in ONE OF THEM. So again you find them hard to blow, after you get way back here (Inc I and before) and then ask them: "Who are you?" and he says: "Oh, I'm a nobody" you know? OK, he had a failed purpose. You know? Can't do what he wanted, you know? And "Earlier Universe?" "No." And he's sort of a "Nothing". He is still there and he's still "holding on" there or something. And nothing is really blowing down on this guy. Nothing is getting "loose".

"What were you doing there around Incident I time? Were you connected in DOING Incident I?" You get a little read there on him - dididid (small R/S) - he's coming along, you know? Then you ask: "OK, what's that? What's the story there? Come on, what's the BPC?" "Oh, well, you know - I wanna be free, but if they find out, that I'm talking to you....you know? They won't let me go free -

NO!" You know? All kinds of computations come out of that and then finally it opens up, he gives you the whole story, and you say: "OK, and what were you before that?" You see? Then he gives you: "I only was a lonely simple little guy. I came in. I wanted to play a BIG GAME. I wanted to be a BIG GUY - and they promised me a big post..."

So - you blew him loose of the evil purpose, now he CAN go back to his own universe. He did have to do his purpose - you see, what I mean? He got a "big post", he got to play a "big game", and he got....he THOUGHT he failed, because they betrayed him, they put him through the Incident himself. But basically he's been a "solid" ever since Incident I. A lot of these guys - when they wake up - they are just - "zip" - from THEN TO NOW NOTHING HAPPENED IN BETWEEN TO THEM. They are just very surprised to find themselves 4 quadrillion years later and they have to be oriented. Or sometimes they are very clean and they know, where they are and everything like that. Or you single them up and there is nobody connected to them, but they sort of hang there outside the body or outside the room and sort of just "hang there". And you ack them and he still "hangs" there - "Ack!" - and you get sort of this puzzlement, you know? And then you realize: "Oh, the guy is not oriented." Just orient him, you know, he got the cog, he got the "own universe" business, he got "who he is". But he doesn't know what to do. He is sort of "brand new". You have to orient him: "That is planet Earth outside - right here on Earth was Incident II, 75 million years ago - ..." "There were some bad guys running Incident II, that's what it was, and so on, so this is planet Earth 75 million years later than that. We're trying to rehabilitate all these guys and all that stuff like that."

"Wow, yeah, yeah, I see! Wow! What a game! What are these things...?" Some of them have NEVER SEEN A MEAT BODY. They've only seen DOLL BODIES. Incident I was run with doll bodies. In fact there were a lot of exterior beings at that time, at least until they got captured or "PRed" into it: "Hey, experience the viewpoint of that doll body" - you know? "They're pretty fine, they're amazing, they're nice." "There is the thing - get in there - pshsst!" - you see?

So the whole idea was to suppress thetans and OTs down to a lower level of not being able to as-is, not being able to postulate, not being able to operate. To start them "being" or "pretending to be" MEST, and so on like that. All the things OPPOSITE to the things Scientology is trying to do..

So, back here is the other incident, you find "out of valences", right? (Inc I) And by the way - any questions on the "out of valence in R6" or "out of valence in Incident I"? Remember, these guys are holders - a lot of them are holders - they are either HIDING or you find these guys sort of feel "withholdy" or some feel "mean", you know? So, you get him IN VALENCE, OK? You may have to use any or all of that (given above) as well. One other thing: This is why we don't see the repair list so often on NOTs.

At certain points on the track...if the guy's...if you contact the guy in PT - you know - you get him AWAKE and contact him, then by his ANSWER on the FIRST VALENCE QUESTION, you can usually tell, where his charge is going to be. If he gives you an answer, that is a piece of MEST - right? - you are going to find out, that he is usually having to be taken through all of these steps, all right?

If he is...giving you an answer as - after he wakes up from being a..."whatever" - you know? - he was a spot, and you woke him up and you say: "What are you?" and "Whaat...? Well, I was a spot, but now I'm really an Officer." If he gives you a body identity or a body name - if it is a meat body or he gives you a picture of meat bodies - then he's usually somewhere - he's going to be stuck in between Incident... between from NOW BACK TO INCIDENT II, right? (graph) And sometimes BACK OF THAT. You are going to find charge of course, but you basically - Bang! - (chart) - you will ALSO have charge on INCIDENT II on this guy, because he's still dramatizing meat bodies, and if his incident was ON EARTH, he definitely WAS in that (Inc II) - all right? But if he wakes up, and is giving you a sort of "space opera" thing - you know - where there were robot or doll bodies and zipping around in very fast ships between different planets and stuff like that - it may be, that's his BPC in that area somewhere - you know? Where he got "zapped" with a laser or whatever. He may have come all the way through this thing unconscious and he may be back of that somewhere on the track, where he has to find his true identity. In other words - especially with doll bodies and stuff like that - we get him into that stage there (chart) usually back around Incident I and from Clearing Course stuff back (graph) - 1 quadrillion, 2, 3, 4, something like that.

Although there were meat bodies at that time, it was NOT, it's NOT THE BIG THING there. Anybody knows there is a much bigger status in having their "doll bodies". So, anyway, it's not an invariable rule, but you can sort of spot, where the guy's charge is going to be. So, if a guy is telling you: "Well, yeah, I had a nice doll body at one time, and man, they fucking got me and - bla bla bla - that's my BPC." "I lost my whole game there." - and so on. And you say: "OK. Well - must have an earlier incident. (Somewhere between Incident II and Incident I). Whenever it WAS a doll body and you ask: "Do you have Incident II?" - you won't get it. So DON'T PULL THE GUY UPWARDS ON THE TRACK. WRONG WAY. He's already flowing forward in time. Usually it's Incident I.

Whereas if the guy's giving you: He was a "priest" or a "conquistador" or some kind of a "space guy in a body" or a... you know - any kind of thing in a meat body - then you are going to say: "OK" - (after he's finished telling you his BPC or answered a few "What's?", and you're not getting any cog on the "Who?") - and then you say: "OK, let's go get Incident II from the Capture." And he will find: "THAT"S where it's at!"

Also, we've woken up guys, who were a whole army troop, or a whole troop of religious people, and they still thought they had their bodies. And they woke up fully on running the Capture of Incident II. They are waking up, and you still see this funny "solid object", and then they wake up and you see this thing come apart - the solid object disappears - until you get this impression of thetans around, and little mock-ups - a group of mock-ups around and these are their BODIES and they're all going: "Yes..." - straightening up their clothes. But then they suddenly realize, they don't have any bodies anymore!

The thing happened so fast, that they - they're just coming "alive" again - you know - like he (LRH) says on the tape - on the revivification - he's revivifying now, he's coming right out of that incident. He still thinks, he has his body there. You know, these people straightening up their coats, and all that, but it's only thin mock-ups. They are not REALLY there. But when you see that, you now that the guy is still stopped on that valence of "being a body". He's still carrying along a thin mock-up.

And then when the guy has come to the point of being a thetan and he realizes: "Yeah...yeah, I'm really me!" "I'm a thetan!" - BUT he's STILL NOT BLOWING, then you can suspect basically, that his charge is going to be back here in (Incident I) - people stuck to him, or he was on the other side of it, or he had a failed purpose - like that, you see? It's more or less way back in this area.

Or we will find some guys, who had missed (Incident) II. All right, they had missed Incident II - were pretty clean - like a Natural Clear or something like that and later the guy got suckered by something on Earth or something in the Universe and got thrown down onto Earth by some spaceship accident or some warfare or something, that the implanters laid on him and he got captured, implanted, thrown down here. And they have been out of valence ever since. But when you wake them up, they're immediately a thetan. They KNEW, they were exterior before that. You do find it - and it's not too rare. But those guys would usually be running around and pick up bodies. Some of them did get fooled into "being" a body. And usually because they had never spotted their own EARLIER INCIDENT Is. So they had with them other people who were smashed and they went with it: zap-zap-zap-zap, see? The other guys got caught up in the pictures and they just went with it. They're "done in" by their own valence. So, we do find guys, that when you wake them up, they are - have theta abilities, right away - zip! - they are Clear almost, or are Clear. But they are VERY EASY to run. I mean - that's not the problem.

The problem is: Where is the guy when he's giving these answers like: "I'm your evil nemesis" or "I'm a bird" or "a horrible beast" - or something like that. Oh boy!

Then you probably have got to look at it, as the guy maybe has charge on the Middle Ages - you know? - some of this religious symbolism or something, which "earlier similar" locked onto an Incident II picture - you see, what I mean? Then he won't answer the rest of the valences questions. He's just giving you a "36 days" picture. IT'S NOT WISE TO LIST AND NULL, BECAUSE THAT JUST BY-PASSES CHARGE ON OTHER GUYS.

It's wise to just know from C/Sing that here's this guy. He is stuck in a fucking religious mock-up. He's giving you the stuff with "hoods" and "capes", and "beams" and all this kind of stuff - you know - and he is saying: "Evil perversions, yes, I must keep all these people from going into evil perversions." And so on like that. He's just "fixed" and he won't give you the evil purpose - no date, nothing like that. So, you say: "OK, you have BPC on Incident II - 36 days picture of that" - you now? And you just - poom! put his ATTENTION on it. "75 million years ago." - poom! - and that was it - psst - it vanishes.

You see, these guys are very easy - ONCE YOU GET THEM IN COMM TO INDICATE THE THING, YOU SEE FROM C/SING, WHAT IT MUST BE. You see? What it MUST BE. Knowing the 36 days - pictures of devils and all these different kinds of things. All the things you see dramatized on television today - it is one of those. Boy, the guy has got charge on that. So, he won't get loose until he runs that BPC out of Incident II. And you might find, that he's on the OVERT side of it. Before he GOT it, he was GIVING it. So, if he doesn't go easily from (Incident) II back to (Incident) I, then you KNOW, that he's got some charge in between and usually RIGHT THERE. He was GIVING it, before he GOT it. And he "pretends" - we have seen some guys totally - fft - like this (flinching) - trying to "get away from responsibility". You've probably seen that.

He says: "Oh! Yeah, I was captured. Right here on "Terra" (Earth). Thrown through the thing and - bup! - Yeah, that was Inc II - yeah - Ohh - feels a lot better. What's next?" And then you would say: "Incident I" (Nothing) "Huh?" "Is there some more charge there in Inc II?" "Did you tell me ALL about that or is there some more By Passed Charge?" - You got a little read - and you say: "Yeah, what IS that? What were you DOING right around Inc II?" - "Ahh - well - uh - uh -." "Where you on the OVERT side of it?" - "Ahh - well - haha - yes."

Then you get off this charge. And then: "When did you make that purpose?" And then you have to get THAT off, BEFORE the guy can get back to Incident I and see it, if he needs to - BEFORE he can get off the other guys, that are stuck to him.

So, what you are doing essentially here in SUPER NOTs is: YOU ARE C/SING EACH CASE, AS IT COMES UP! And that's what we saw immediately - that what you are doing is: C/Sing YOURSELF - by finding what the STACK is in your area. C/SING the FIRST READ, or CONTACT with BTs & Clusters, you get in the STACK - which is the "Org" aspect of it - (You have to know a little policy on that - org policy DOES apply to Plugs) (And there is this data here, about how the organization of the "bad guy" is stacked up, and so on - as well.) Because it's all Org Board knowledge, but BASICALLY, it's FINDING THE LEADER of this group. Getting who is "holding" who. If you're not getting a result, when you first contact - you find out, WHO IS HOLDING HIM, and so on. Or, if it's a Cluster, then: "Who is the spokesman for the Cluster?" and: "What is the Mutual Incident for the Cluster?" If you can't get it this way, then: "WHO IS HOLDING THE CLUSTER?", and so on.

Remember, a Cluster is a less able thing than a single being, so always suspect that there IS a holder. "Somebody holding?" "Suppressed?" "Hiding?", but DOING IT anyway. They may be outside. They may be somewhere else. OK, so you get the stack on your own cognition. Then you get your area of attention. And you get the Org - ORGANIZATION. You start out, go up to the top, and work down. All right? Being ready to handle, or "C/S" any of the guys you find. And expect up near the top to find the "implanter", the "out of valence in R6".

Any guys, that are "out of valence in R6" and any guys, that may be "implanters operating around this area", could be holders on these things. And these guys - as LRH says - they got VERY SOLID because of their overts. True - but ALSO because of their LIMITED TRACK OF BEING ANY KIND OF A CAUSATIVE BEING. They're always working for SUPPRESSIVES. So he WORKED for a suppressive - what happened - he BECOMES suppressive. Right, and so the guy ends up being a suppressive at a very LOW LEVEL - HOLDING on to a Cluster - who is holding a BT - who is holding other Clusters - and so on.

So, it's not uncommon to find these "out of valence in R6" guys. Not uncommon at all. We haven't yet had to run Power on any of them, which is interesting. But I'm sure you can find them so "stuck in", that you have to run Power on them. I've run other people on Power, but we haven't found any in our auditing, that we had to run Power on yet. But if they just got so STUCK in ANYTHING or the earlier thing they had, they just got so STUCK in the incident, it was PT FOR THEM, and so on, or NOTHING woke them up - then it's a process, that CAN WORK on ANYTHING, you see?

But to run Power, you do need to be in comm with the guy. You CAN do it by straight intention back and forth, back and forth, back and forth, till the guy finally blows loose of it, giving him the Power command - which is also getting him in comm, you know - because it's asking for rudiments anyway, it's asking for EVERYTHING, with a beautiful Tech of ONE PROCESS, that handles everything on the guy all the way down, to where the engram stuck him in. You often WILL need the Power Processes. Especially "Power Process 6": "Tell me an existing condition." "Tell me how you have handled it?" It's for the RESISTIVE case.

The other thing, I just wanted to mention quickly, was, that there is a lot of data in "Revolt in the Stars", which will enable you to understand the actual organization, the factors, that went in to producing Incident II. It tells about Xenu's "3 Phase Plan" and all of that kind of stuff. PHASE ONE: Assassination of Loyal Officers. PHASE TWO: Blowing up the bases of the Armies of the Loyal Officers of the troops, so they could not respond, and then - PHASE THREE: Capturing the populations, bringing them all to Earth and blowing them up. And it gives details of how they did the transports and so on. They just don't mention the ice-cubes and they don't mention the implant. OK?

So this is exactly what happened. And they give a list of "bad guys" and the financial thing, how it was financed. Also the planets where they came from - or at least the stars where they came from. You can't maybe get the name of each planet with the stars, but we've already found guys that want that. To get more oriented to what happened or to who were DOING the capture. One said: "Yeah, I came from Antares." You know, they will give you that. So, it's good to know, what these names are, because it gives more R (Reality) with the guys you are handling.

These are important things, that I think you have to know about. This is that first, thetans are HOLDING ON to a beingness, you know? They are afraid of becoming molecules and cells. That's what they fear. But even then, we find out on lower levels of these stacks, thetans are holding - there's the guy who is right over the cells and molecules and he monitors them. They blow up by inspection almost, after the other valence stuff is gone. But they're down there and they haven't quite become a molecule or cell. And they are still thetans and they are still holding - they are the "monitor" of those cells.

Now this, this other thing is very interesting to Doctor Prinz: This is probably what prevents medicine from working and so on like that - because THEY are being held further up the line by SUPPRESSIVES. So they are holding the cells, so that the blood stream for instance, in that area, will not flow. So medicine can't work, because this guy is putting intention there: "Don't let anybody in!" You know? You see, what I mean? OK.

And those are the key points of this thing. One is the organization point, and then using it to handle plugs, stacks, and seeing the transparency build up even before the space closes in again. Even so it's always getting less solid. And recognizing that you have, or are going to run into some people, that have these problems of OT III in restim and By Passed Charge in particular, right? And that you have to get some of them - you have to get them into comm by letting them tell: "Who you would have to be to audit them" - and blow any charge on that. Or recognizing that there's a sort of comm of a name: "Aha, that's a ... that name is a bad guy in Incident II". "So, you worked for a bad guy in Incident II?"

Now, the auditing is a bit - because you're dealing mostly with - here you're not dealing with a TOTAL COMPOSITE CASE. You're taking up individuals out of that, that essentially may be hung up by Incident I and II, but not much else. So, they - when you are dealing with them, you can sort of bypass maybe Grades... some of Dianetics, Grades, and so on like that. But not all of them, sometimes you need to get them in comm, you need to get problems or overts handled, if they need and so on. But the valence process, by itself, because - basically you start with the valence process, then you find you can't go any further, you use this data, and then again you can end up with the valence process, after you got all his charge off. Then the guy finally realizes, - for example, you are working with the guy and right away you know it's a waste of time. You ask the guy: "Who is he?" He's "The devil" - "Who's he?" "The devil". And "Who was he, before he became that?" "Ah, I was a picture of the devil." You know? Come on, this is going to on forever...right? You say: "What's the By Passed Charge? Is it Incident II? Another Incident?" "OK, I see, it's II. Good. Was it a 36 days picture?" - you know?

"Oh, oh, oh, I see, I was fixated on a picture of the devil." "Good, OK." "What's your capture?" Right away you got it. Just by pushing him back to that time - 75 million - pumm, pfft, tshh - you see? YOU KNOW THAT. I mean, you don't have to go fooling around with this thing and by pass charge on this. You spot the guy - pumm - back to the incident. It's very easy, you see.

So, you can do a C/SING ON THE CASE, AS YOU SEE IT.And you can always ask: "Holder?" And - the guy must be stuck, you see? Ask for the Holder, "being held by something?" Find out where he is, OK? All right. He will still be there. He's not going anywhere else. Don't worry.

We've had a funny experience of a guy going through a wall, when he was trying to blow, and he just stopped. He couldn't get through the wall. He had to spot, that there were two more Earlier Incident Is, that were stuck on him IN HIS VALENCE. And WITH THEM he couldn't get through the wall. So we blew him loose of those and they ALL got through the wall. You see?

That just shows you, that if you understand the track and you understand the (OT) III, and you understand the basic, where the case is "stacked up". That's a VERY IMPORTANT LINE in NOTs. So if you understand that, you can run it very successfully with a lot of interest all the time, because you are always gaining data about the whole track, and a lot of Incidents. And you're EXPANDING the PLUS GAIN, the POSITIVE GAIN now, not just the "negative gain" to you. But the positive gain to you is: "My God!" "Wow!" And you become informed and causative on the other dynamics. And you find all the things, that caused aberrations on every single dynamic. And you KNOW THIS IS THE TRUTH.

So, the guy gets Clear on all Dynamics, and OT on all Dynamics. It's possible. I mean, this is HATTING for thetan who is running through this auditing either as a PreOT or as a Solo Auditor. You understand VERY MUCH.

So, to see for yourself what happened with thetans. All the Dynamics we have in here. There's thetans, who have entire 4th and 3rd dynamics in these plugs. You can have entire populations, groups, towns, army corps, all kind of different jobs, populations, in there - messed around on Earth - put through Incident II.

And before that, when you get back (on the track), and if you really understand Dynamics 3 and 4, then you go plenty above that. When you're going back here (chart) and start doing the stuff around Incident I, you start finding out, what all the considerations are about Dynamic 5 and 6 and 7 and 8 and 9 and 10. Because back there, they were doing a more of a thetan's game. They were thetans and doll bodies, but not so many meat bodies and they experimented over here with these little woody things, that were only plants, and help that to grow up into trees and so on.

Remember the old Dianetics Axioms: Theta, Lambda, Phi. Theta is Theta. Lambda is the body form, and Phi is MEST. But as you get these guys through Phi, then finally come up from Phi, through Lambda to Theta and then - pffft - then they are single, and they're back in their own universe, OK?

So, whatever happens, that's the beauty of the level. I can not understand how people get bored with it, and so on like that, if they're running it right. I don't expect sessions to be short, right? I don't expect people to get bored with it, because it's very interesting all the way through. And you think: "Well, I'm not running my own case." But it IS your own case, as you are responsible for freeing it.

If people think, it's not interesting, they must have missed something about it, because it's always interesting to find out what's in the next plug. Like that: You're always getting knowledge and you have to confront several very evil and very - so to say - unconfrontable incredible things on the track, when you run these things. And that makes you ready for the next level after SUPER NOTs. OK?

So, now, any questions...anybody have any questions about what we said? Or on what I am briefing you on here? And what will be the reference data, that are talked about? Any other experiences, that people would like to say or that seems to fit in with this? I know you've been running NOTs. You've been running NOTs as well. So we - does this seem to summarize most of the important points you...go after?

"Yes, it does. I still have one other question: I mean, I don't really...I don't know, that they really blow on Earlier Universe."

Well, they do if it's an Earlier Universe far enough back.

"I wonder about the phenomena of Out-Int. When you are quite a way on the level of this. And they don't have it anymore...a time track. But still, there is that Out-Int phenomena, which...which I don't understand."

OK. Well, first the reference on that is where he talks about flows, stuck flows...

"Yeah, this is the point: stuck flows is the problem I have - stuck flows and the understanding of the thetans. Stuck flows and Out-Int. It's maddening."

Well, he said, that the stuck flow is the sort of an underlying reason for Out-Int. They're stuck on one of these flows, right? Now, what we're dealing with here is what we're calling "Review Auditing". See? Because the "Int" problems are usually a Review Case. What I'm talking about here is the major stuff, you run on the track. That is always handled. But in Review, we have certain things, that don't fit in the usual line-up of auditing. You see? So, this is the sort of stuff like

Out-Int and when you have to prepcheck him or you have to do a repair on a guy. A certain kind of repair auditing. A specific thing on that case, right?

So Out-Int is basically a flows problem. You do handle the grade chart with flows...

"With Out-Int on different flows? You mean, I have to do all that!"

Mhm, I understand, I understand. What I'm saying is: It comes under a different category of ability or disability of a thetan. We now are on to a review thing of - now, see, we're talking about before the time track in this instance?

"Yes, I used that example, that's fine."

Now we're talking about - when you're in Review - you are always looking at: "Are we making this thetan able or has he got a disability, that's affecting his case?" This is a totally different view in order to locate the thing. You know? From the viewpoint of: "Are we achieving the ability for the guy or not." And, "What - if not - what ability does he need to have to get back to the abilities of a thetan to postulate and perceive." And the "Rights of a Thetan" - this is the other thing, we had to brief some of the guys on here - the "Rights of a Thetan" to LEAVE A GAME, if he wants to, or the RIGHT TO HIS OWN SANITY.

 END OF SIDE 3, TECH BRIEFING #4 ***

OK, this is side 4, now we have the question and answer period about the SUPER NOTs BRIEFING, 22 August 1985. It's TECH BRIEFING #4, CONFIDENTIAL FOR SUPER NOTs ONLY. Question and answer period.

We're just talking about now the review action and we had this special thing of Out-Int, stuck flows on BTs, all right? And I'm saying also now, this is when you have to wear the "Review C/S" hat. This is just straight C/Sing so far. (All before on this tape).

Now, as a sort of "Review guy" you sort of look at the thing as: If the thetan was totally able, he wouldn't be in the situation he was. So, we're looking at the abilities, that the thetan could normally have to be an OT, right? Or be a "Static", OK? This comes under the prepcheck buttons, the postulate and perceive Axioms - you know, where he has the ability to postulate and perceive, and the ability to AS-IS. That covers a lot of that. And all these buttons, that you put on lists, on rudiments, and things, which can be out: False and Inval, Eval, Decide, Altered, and all the different things a thetan can do with things. All right?

So Out-Int is one of these, where he can't flow this way or that way - or that way. He's stuck in at least one way. He can't come in. Can't come out - stuck, stuck, stuck. So, it basically comes under the earlier Axioms of Dianetics, where you have a thetan, who is "bringing order to MEST". The Dianetics Axioms. It's more like: Theta brings order to MEST. And you now have a guy confused with his identity in relation to or his abilities in relation to MEST. That is basically what it is. ALL of these disabilities. The thetan is disabled because he's become - well, he's become Entheta or Enmest, see? Because as I said, a pure thetan could go through a wall. It's no problem.

"He's stuck. He's stuck, you know?"

Yeah. But if he's stuck in with two other thetans, THAT"S THE LIE. So now he's THREE - but he THINKS, he is ONE. If you get them each SINGLE, they should ALL go through the wall. Now one guy MAY NOT go through the wall, and you have done everything else on him, and so he is the guy on the stuck flow, see?

So, you will get, in the case at some point, you'll get a whole bunch of guys, that now have - AFTER all this other stuff has been blown - they may even have been sitting there, listening, the whole time...

"Of course they have! Of course they have!"

Yeah, they monitored, what's going on and now they find out: "Yeah, well, me too - but I, I can't go...". You know, they really say it (telepathically) just like that, right? If the guy has been hanging on to these plugs, all the other guys are sort of "listening" too. They blow charge as the first guy gets handled, the top of the Org Board. He's been holding at the top, so whatever he's been saying or doing, is affecting them ALL. That's why, when we've pulled him out and blow him, the whole thing will start to come apart. And now we are getting to the point, where maybe some don't go, the guys with the stuck flows.

"And they are partially hiding, partially hiding, stuck flows on different flows, see?"

Mmm, you will find, that these guys are the guys who are carrying over a stuck flow from THEIR OWN UNIVERSE - they COULD DO IT from there,you see? I think, they are mistaking their own universe with this one and are carrying an old game, or an old stuck flow or an old postulate with them to another one (universe). You'll find games conditions going on between two or more of those guys, right? If you single them down - once you've singled them - and he still can't go or get free, or can't get out or move or whatever, then you must find the flow that's stuck, like it says in the thing on the assessment on the flows. Do you have that?

But there WILL be a story of it, when you do the recall. See, you have to get that recall, so the guy can be totally free of it. And he could be ANYBODY or ANYTHING, because a thetan can hang himself up in ANY WAY AT ALL.

Now, I would say the reason, you're getting a bunch of these, is because they've been monitoring the other stuff going on during the case and they sort of "cleaned themselves up" on "solo".When you get to them, the only thing they have left is within: They couldn't leave because, they have stuck flows. And that is something you weren't handling on the other guys, so they didn't get it. And then you have to assess the flows, get the recall - bamm - they find out, what it is and blow the confusion, they had on other universes or other things that they misidentified.

"They have no...I mean they are not involved or have no attention, there's nothing. Just nothing. Just stuck!"

Realize, when you get there, you are dealing - once you've singled the guy up - you are already dealing at this point of the track, where the beginning of the track is - Incident I - so now you're dealing with guys behind that point, who have a disability. So you're dealing with pure Theta at this point and you are only working on the basis of the things "Senior to the Bank." So, Incident I isn't real to them. Incident II isn't real to them. It's senior buttons you need.

So, what is it LRH says are senior to the Bank? ARC, KRC, the Grades-charge, and occasionally, problems, stuck flow problems. O/W - his own consideration of his own overts. Not as a "body", but HIS as a thetan. His own idea of an overt, his own Ethics for instance - ARC - of course, because we mentioned that, - AND he can easily create himself a little Service Fac - if he wants to - by playing a game with somebody.

In fact we found out, that when you get to the end of this that "purposes" always have to do with GAMES. And some of these guys are stuck are stuck on the "Theory of Games". They don't understand the THEORY OF A GAME.

So, now you get him really up there, to where the abilities are blocked by non-understanding of games - you know - freedoms, and barriers and opponents. I mean, just put that up to them, you know: "Game?" "Are you stuck in a game? Freedom, barriers and opponents?"

"Oh, yeah! I got a barrier here, I made because I got opponents! Where's that opponent? Ooooh, GONE!! He was there!" You know? They did it one timelong ago, but it's not there anymore. "Ohh, no more opponents. I guess, I can be free." You see, what I mean? The theory. They knew, that long ago, they were doing something, that they had a games conditions with and they didn't understand the game and now it's gone. See?

So, these are the applicable things on the later part of the case here or when you find these guys when that won't go after Incident I. You find this Earlier Universe, but connected with that is "purposes", "games", "stuck flow", "attributes of the thetan", "abilities", "postulates". "Did you postulate something?"

You can't...you don't even get a reaction to: "Earlier?" They don't look at it as being "Earlier". They sort of still have their attention on it in PT.

"They don't understand that at all. (Earlier)"

Not after you...when they don't have pictures anymore, you don't have an "earlier" concept. To them it's just an "Is-ness". It's an IS-NESS.

"Almost too simple to sort of see that, because it's so high up."

Right! And so it's easy. Because now you're dealing with...

"I don't think it's easy..."

Well, you're dealing with the attributes of a thetan, and you're dealing with prep-check-type-buttons, you're dealing with flows, and you're dealing with abilities and games. So, you can almost be - you know - if it doesn't handle with Int, you can check, whether the guy's stuck in a game. Find out: Is he stuck in a game? "What is the game?" "Who are you playing it with?" Or "Did you have one? Did you win? Did you loose?" Whatever gets the charge off, you know, you dig at it, if "failed purpose" doesn't get it off. Because he could have a failed purpose in a earlier game. And then, when you get his failed purpose in THIS UNIVERSE, you then get him back to earlier universe and it's not his only failed purpose. Because he failed in that one too - he lost a game.

So, now you have to run "games" on the guy. To get him to understand games: "OK" - you know - "That's it!" "The game is over." And then you can get him to basic LRH "Rights of a Thetan", which gives the "ability to leave a game". "the right to leave a game." "The right to your own sanity." That's what we're trying to make here.

"Yeah, I see..." He gets a cog. Sometimes you have to ORIENT him. Sometimes you have to R-Factor him. Sometimes you have to give him some Tech data, so they can understand what's wrong with them - you know? Give them data what happened. Hat them. Get them aware of games. You have to get them aware of failed purposes. You have to get them aware of "this is the MEST universe", and their freedoms or the right of a thetan - as LRH says.That's what we're doing. And...or at least 2% of the time or 5% of the time, you have to orient the guy in PT. Or we have laid out the choices and let him choose, what he wants to do. Give him "power of choice", orient him to PT, so he can decide, what he can do. Or you have to lay out some possibilities, he could do: "What are you interested in doing?"

He says: "Oh, this and that..."

"OK, (give him the choice), in this game right now, you could do this and that... or you could just leave it, if you want. It's up to you." And you can also hat him on some of the Axioms. You say: "what you are, is a free being, and you're a thetan - we call it "thetan" - and you have an ability to postulate and perceive. Do you understand?" You see?

So basically what you're doing is "hatting a thetan", because we're ALL having to do that. They didn't have this Tech. The reason, they all got into this bloody NOTs business, is because they didn't have the knowledge in the beginning. They had the abilities, but you have to have the KNOWLEDGE. Now we're restoring him to the ability state, but we've got to give him the knowledge this time - if they don't get it from having listened to or run through the processes. OK?

So, in that particular case, does that answer your question? You have to go for restoring the Theta abilities, the games, Axioms and so on. The "Rights of a Thetan". So, get them assessed...

"Yes, I'm sure you're right. It helped a lot."

Assess, assess them on that and find out, what the thing is. Ask for the by passed charge. Get it. Get the story...OK? Other questions? That also fits with the tone scale, bring them upscale from MEST through the body area through activity, games and so on. Finally get them up to 40.0, serenity. You know? OK! Any other questions?

So, it's like we should have a lot of successful PreOTs and Auditors around here, because I was interested - just in closing - I was interested in making sure people here didn't run into the stuff, that I have seen, and I'm sure, that others are running into. From the folders I've seen on people C/Sed from outside - first some DCSIs, and on OT-Levels, and then on NOTs itself. And also to show, that in certain parts of the NOTs Tech, there were areas, that were not made - in my opinion - IMPORTANT ENOUGH in the data. Which probably, when it was written, wouldn't have been recognized as to it's importance. But then later, it became more important - as...has told me. Some of the stuff has now appeared on the Solo-NOTs. You have to do all this auditing. You have to assess a list to get this, etc. And the "stacking up" of the case, and this kind of thing ARE mentioned, but only "in passing", almost. You know: "Don't worry, if this thing don't run like this, as it may not be stacked up this way." It should say: "DO NOT WORRY, BECAUSE THIS IS THE WAY, IT WILL COME UP. THE WAY THAT IT IS STACKED UP!" See?That should be a BIG DATUM! It really should, because we have not experienced the...what it says in there: "Don't worry, if in the first few sessions, you have BPC, because the stuff, as it's kept on going, will lessen from session to session." WE DIDN'T EXPERIENCE THAT. Why? BECAUSE WE WEREN'T BUILDING UP BPC. We were removing a whole "plug" (org board), and when that was gone, it was a whole new ball game. OK?

"It's still a worry for me, because I've come across that in (OT) III. Stacks! We take one stack away and the other side collapses. And you have to handle the other side of it."

Right ! Now, somebody may ask: "Why are they stacked up this way?" And I've been looking at that myself. I know they are, but I don't know exactly WHY. But I would say, it is because in essence, YOU ARE THE C/O OF THE WHOLE CASE. And whatever your attention is on, THAT will respond to THAT, see? You can look at it as being sort of "planetary C/O" of the whole Orgs of the Planet, you know, what I mean? So, if you're going: "peacock" - "Yeah, that's a peacock I guess, white peacock (on the table)." All right - if you're going "peacocks", then you're liable to get a whole bunch of things on the stack, that have to do with "peacocks", and birds, and other things having to do with that, right away.

If it's...say you're troubled with sore toes or sore feet or some thing. You're liable to get...your attention is drawn immediately to all the Clusters and BTs around the toes or the feet or guys holding those from somewhere else, you know?

But I would say that... if you realize, that they obey you: "I'm really the C/O of the whole business!" We really get laughing sometimes on these guys, because you have to treat it like...you have to be RESPONSIBLE for this stuff on your stacks, and it's like sometimes these guys are great jokers. I mean, they just...they wake up and they say something really funny. You know, it's like the prizefighter coming awake, after he's been knocked out, and he says: "Where is he???" I mean, they start coming out of this incident, and right away they think, they're still in it. OR at the last moment they were still awake. And they're still carrying on with that action. It's very funny.

So, the whole thing is: You have to responsibility and treat it that way. It's an interesting area and if it's going away from interest, then realize, you may have a wrong assessment on your OWN INTEREST LINE. That's why the stack is there, I think, because it's your interest as the C/O of the whole case. So, your interest will be the monitoring factor here.

And I wanted to put that right at the beginning of any of our SUPER NOTs auditing for the people that haven't started yet, so that they don't get into this BPC phenomena. So they do take the things in the right way and handle it as it comes, all right?

"I do have another consideration on that: Why is attention drawn to some areas or specific points? I think because in NOTs - no, wait a moment please - I think because in NOTs we deal with thetans and some how - by one way or another - they become more and more awake and get bigger or whatever and PULL the attention. Because in former times, I very often was mystified, because I - after completing OT III - I did a lot of III again. Why that? I didn't think, I brushed it off, the III, I was...I did it through. But in the meantime, I think some of the NOTs cases came awake, so I could more or less handle them with III. And I think that's the same here: What pulls the attention, is more awake than the rest, and then that is the first thing, you could handle."

The first thing is the thing, that you have your attention on and has the most reads. There's TA there, and you got more TA there and more reads there...

"And that must be the most awake, I think."

Yeah, that's true, it is the most REAL...

"The most active, I would say."

Hm,..."most active"...But I just thought of another thing, you said that...which is: Remember in III or let's say, remember in II, you're knocking off the charge to expose the III case. Remember in III, you're getting rid of the thetans, who are most alive, so this can expose the NOTs case. And remember, when you are running NOTs - as you get a way through that - you now expose the NEXT CASE to handle for the thetan, right? And if we assume, that SUPER NOTs is going to free up pretty much of his OWN UNIVERSE, like clearing him on all dynamics, out of all this stuff HE'S connected to in it - then it might be, that another universe of - say, the 3rd universe (MEST) - or the 2nd (the universe of others) - may come up, or any connections to them.

But basically, you have to look at that stuff SHINING THROUGH the NOTs case. In other words, the effects FROM the environment. Why do you think, they tell you: "Don't watch television too much, if you're on NOTs", you see? I found a whole bunch of guys sitting around the nerve channels, that were the ones, that were interested in the television flows coming through. Because they had pictures similar to pictures like that on the TV. And they were sort of like urging me to watch it. Just like you feel things in your arm or you feel your heart beat. You CAN feel these guys, they're not totally dead, not totally inert. They have a job. And if the job is to do THIS, they want to have some ack for that or want to have some reward or some flow coming through there.

If they're being a monitor, they want to have something to monitor. If they're being a listening device - a mocked up "listening device", like an earphone or something, it could be - or a space ship, then they want some space movies there! You see what I mean?

So, they actually try to influence you, pull it in from the environment, from the other universes. Either talking with others or seeing it - like the movies on television.

This is why I'm saying: "Everytime you do this in session, pull this whole thing out, you feel a total change of valence of the body, of the things - like your impressions, you're getting through the body. You WILL feel "different", as you feel a DIFFERENT RESPONSE. Different ways to perceive or sense things, or now there's things, you weren't aware of before, or THOSE are gone and now there's a different "balance" in the case. It's very interesting and you can actually determine that as a " case change" all the time. OK?

So, let's look at it as possibly, it's exposing the influence of the next level of the case to handle. Because that's all, the thetan has been doing since Clear. OT I, then on to OT II and OT III, you are cleaning up THIS, so you can get to THIS. You are cleaning up THAT, so you can get to THAT.

"Like the whole bridge, the lower levels?"

Yes. That's similar...

"This data itself is almost like...throwing things loose, that want to be acknowledged. Waiting to say, "I'm here..." "

So, not only must you be a SUPER NOTs AUDITOR, but you must also be a SUPER NOTs C/S. A C/S for all these "cases" you're handling, because you are being an auditor and C/S at the same time. And that way we will make your run through the SUPER NOTs level very smooth and very interesting.

So, if there are no other questions? No? I would just like to thank LRH for getting all the stable datums for us and putting it out. And what is beautiful about it is the final statement, "Exterior at will". The EP. That was beautiful. The SUPER NOTs data itself - first of all aligns to experience with ALL CASES but even more than that, it goes right back and shows again that all the Axioms - Scientology, Dianetics, ALL these basic truths of Scientology and so on - are totally, TOTALLY RIGHT. Spot on! You know, it just totally validates all the basic Axioms, as you come through it. One just might start off learning the Axioms and then sort of go up the bridge and think: "Well, hmm..." But then if you get off to yourself and think: "God damn, that was right spot on, it's RIGHT THERE, what he says. What's there is exactly as predicted." And ALL Scientology is based on the Axioms, you know. And now it's like going through the "circle of knowledge" and coming back to the beginning, full circle. And saying: "Here's the Axioms!" "And now I REALLY understand why!"

]You know, it's like the data analysis. So, it's a fantastic assembly of data, that LRH did. And just by knowing a little bit more about the data of C/Sing, and what happens on the OT levels, and what happens on the SUPER NOTs case and C/Sing from the viewpoint of these guys, then you can make it very smooth. You go through the level easily. OK?

"Fine. Thank You."

"Yeah, I thought on another subject - if you could say a little word about the bridge over from auditing to SUPER Solo NOTs."

Yeah, that's a good question. Yes, I will mention that. I'm not sure what criteria, they use in the Church - but there's only two (criteria), that I can say right now, that I feel are necessary: One of them is that the guy, who is being audited on SUPER NOTs, can confidently handle the entire of this particular stack (which he's been handling) without hardly any help form the auditor. Which means by this time, he doesn't even need a meter. So, if he HAS a meter, he can CERTAINLY do it. AND he has enough free attention to not have to refer back to the auditor. He's got enough free attention units of his own, so he can keep track of who to handle.

In other words: He hadn't handled THAT guy, but he had to handle the holder, the one who is holding him. And maybe another guy is holding also. So, he handles that guy and this Cluster and so on and now he doesn't have to refer back to find out, who is the next guy, he has to handle. See, if he has enough FREE ATTENTION to handle all of that, then you KNOW, he also has enough free attention to run the admin and the meter at the same time.

And the other criteria - oh, there is one technical criteria: I wanted to - on audited SUPER NOTs - to handle all the missed stuff on earlier auditing and OT III. I think that should be done with an auditor, because it could involve Out-Int and lists and things like that. That should be done with the auditor.

But the other, ONLY OTHER CRITERIA besides that of "The guy being able to run it by himself mostly through the session, maybe only one or two little "steers" by the auditor", is: THAT HE FEELS, THAT IT IS OK FOR HIM NOW TO RUN IT WITHOUT THE AUDITOR THERE, you see?

Because there are TWO criteria here: The guy IS going to be a solo auditor, but it is very good to have another terminal there to discharge the stuff to. You see, what I mean? And - even if he has the meter and the admin - CAN HE KEEP THE SAME LEVEL OF INTEREST? And...interest IS going on when both the guy and the auditor are working on it, you see? If he still wants that a little bit, it's like you have to bridge him off of that.

I mean, I noticed, that I don't have to talk anymore. I'm phasing out of the session - but I'm still there as a TERMINAL for Ulrich and he...I don't need to SAY anything. I just start the session, you know, indicate the first area, and then he's off - bum bum bum bum bum - you know: "This guy, and this guy, and this guy", you know? And eventually I just tell him: "Your TA is floating."

After a few sessions, I didn't have to say much. Now I'm just keeping all the admin. Except for one or two times, you know? And he's going: "Now, let's see, that guy blew. Anybody left around? I had that stuck one, but I forgot which one he's from." "OK", I say: "that guy will be from the Cluster here.", OK? And the needle read, when checked "Earlier Incident Is connected to him." (that's what he last ran on that Cluster.)

"OK, good!" - ptshh - so, he handles that. Anyway, he's looking around to find if any were left, see, so it's maybe a little thing, but he will spot that sooner or later, if he has free attention. But the other point is: Is he ready to do it, so that he feels that: "Hey!" - you know - "I can do it myself, all the finding and so on like that. I'm ready." But it's good to have another terminal to talk to about it and to discharge to. You know?

"Thanks. Connected to that, I do have another question, a technical question: Rons talks about the facts that...or the reason, if he is audited, that two cans give a deeper read on the meter than solo cans."

Ah, yes, yes. We never had small reads. That's funny! I saw that in there, you know, and then we studied it and all that stuff. And I don't know if M... can confirm this or M... if you had small reads on solo. But so what, it doesn't need to read much on the meter at all. Is that what you mean? So you can spot the BPC? When you get the right one, it reads like crazy - LFs, BDs.

"I think, the reason, you gave before, is more than this. That the person has enough free attention to operate himself. I think that is the main point. Plus to know the real technical thing, that will get the reads and the TA moving."

The telepathic comm is so strong with these guys - I mean - and here you have all these little datums and hints. I mean, you can almost see: "OK, the next thing is this..." Just Standard Tech. Because, when you can have a PreOT sitting there and he goes the whole of session without having to refer to the meter or to the notes and in YOUR session he doesn't have to confront the ADMIN either...

"And your ARC, and your communication to the stuff is of major importance. ARC!"

ARC! Very important on that. It is: You are their auditor and they respect you and whatever. You're always senior to them. Remember that. And the guys have to have a senior. And you have been their senior - that is, what you have to realize. When you took that body, you got to be a senior to the whole bunch of them - you know? And...so...you ARE the senior. So take responsibility for the Org - audit them. Free them.

Anyway, that's - if there's no other questions? Anyway, these guys, you can always send them out on missions, if you get some real big ones. We got some real big ones, who came out of this stuff, and so on, and they want to do missions. They say: "Hey, want can I do to help out?" You see?

"Which kind of mission?"

Well, you know, nudge the reporters, and things like that. You know, to look under the news and see, if there really is a world take-over scenario. Anyway, that's a lot of fun.

"Do they report back really?"

Well, they can do that, telepathically, if they want. But, you know, it's just to give them a game - if they want. They want a game and some of them do want to help - they feel really betrayed by these implanters. So. it's up to you - anything to help a "freeing operation" on that.

And...Oh, one other comment about "Black NOTs": They just like "bypass and try to restim" your plugs and stacks. I got session data of them having done this and then...and then I got a copy from Australia of a C/S - it looks like it was altered. From the Church. It was a C/S of Black NOTs. And it was altered, because it was made to help Thetans. It was like: "We can help other people, or help the SPs get better or run some SP's case off." - or "Help leaders make better decisions by handling some of their Engrams, that their NOTs BTs are stuck in." "And we can audit this on them by contacting them, and finding the BTs there, who is suppressive and handling."

And this was their C/S, you see? It isn't the REAL C/S. That was the altered C/S. The REAL C/S was "to take the squirrels and the out-ethics-guys and to put NOTs phenomena ON THEM, restimulate NOTs phenomena on people by trying to take over control of their BTs and Clusters, and urging them to restimulate." Now, that's bypass. This was a Big Thetan, coming from over here, rather than the guy in the body doing it. The guy running that body, is the real C/O, you see?

But, after going through all this - I can tell you, IT DOESN'T WORK. It can't and doesn't work. Because of this "Organization" factor. All they can do, is get in there and interfere with these guys. And they can't tell then, whether they got a blow or not. Because they can...they can maybe make it "worse", and they can maybe make it "better". But there is no way, they are going to be able to actually do a POSITIVE ALL-THE-TIME-JOB. Because first, they haven't got the AGREEMENT

OF THE C/O to be in the session and handle it.

"It's other-determined."

Yes, it's other-determined! I found out, it's much more easy to handle SPs by getting in comm with THEM - the guy who is RUNNING THE THING, the C/O of the thing - and try to audit HIM. Or to give him some indications like: "How long have you worked for the implanters?" - or - "Fucked up in an Earlier Universe?" - you know? Or: "Did you ever look at the fact, that you may be monitored yourself?"

You know, those kind of things. THAT works. You can see some changes: Some, "What's - what's that? Was I an implanter?", you know? - Or..."Did your seniors find out about your non-conformities?" - "Oh! Maybe they have. Oh!"

"Missed Withholds..."

Yes, you CAN audit the guy, and you CAN get a direct telepathic link with the guy. But to REALLY HANDLE this "Black NOTs Guy", and not just sort of "try to handle his case", which is the "C/S" I saw. As I said, that's what came out in the Free Zone. They thought the Church was doing "something" to help handle the SPs on the planet. It wasn't that at all, as we well know. The "Black NOTs Guys" are putting attention on your "old case" from PC folders. Knowing you had an injured leg in the past, and then using this "Black NOTs" shit, and trying to PUSH SOMETHING INTO YOUR LEG NOW or RESTIMULATE SOMETHING IN IT, you know?

"I know!!"

Yeah, we ALL know. OK! So, any other questions?

Maybe in the next level...we'll have another handling for those guys. OK? Very good!

("Note by Capt. Bill: The best handling found for "Black NOTsers" is to treat them, when contacted in session, EXACTLY LIKE AN IMPLANTER, you might find in a plug, as "Black NOTs" IS IMPLANTING.) So:

"END OF TECH BRIEFING #4

This is CONFIDENTIAL SUPER NOTs BRIEFING 22 August 1985"

Thank you very much!

TECH BRIEFING No7

"EXCALIBUR Continued"

17 NOVEMBER 1985

RON'S ORG FRANKFURT

FOR SUPER NOTs AUDITORS AND C/Ss ONLY

This briefing is only for Super NOT's C/Ses and Solo Super NOT's Auditors and people who are taking or have taken the Super NOT's Course at RON'S ORG. Before one hears this lecture one must hear Tech Briefing # 4 which is the Confidential Super NOT's C/Sing tape, and also the LRH Tapes which are referenced to get a full understanding of what will be discussed here in this tape. This tape is beginning from the point where Tech Briefing #4 left off.

In that tape we discussed the problems of C/Sing on the Super NOT's level, and in fact it was brought up all the way from Clear, with definitions of Clear, all the way up into the Super NOT's level. We discussed what each OT level does, what charge it removes, what you are handling and the things to watch out for. This is all very applicable and it all is very successful in making good results on the OT levels.

Now we're going to talk about some more aspects of the Super NOT's case which were not fully covered in Tech Briefing #4. These aspects are necessary to be brought up at this time because they WILL be found in running Super NOT's and it is necessary for each C/S and Solo Auditor to understand what they are, where they come from, and how to handle them. It is also necessary before starting Super NOT's or being a C/S for Super NOT's to understand "Revolt in the Stars", the film play by LRH about things happening around the time of Incident II and it is also wise to understand "Sector 9", the book put together to describe exactly what IS happening on the Planet at this time in regards to Models, Scenarios and World take-over Plans.

Well, on this Super NOT's level you will find out that there's also very much a "7th Dynamic aspect" to all of this, and you will find out that you ARE engaged in it whether you like it or not. You will be finding out that it IS there, after you have gone through enough of the level to find it. I must stress at first that the technology of the STACKS and PLUGS is entirely correct and workable and it has proven so in many cases. It removes the charge in the super NOT's area very completely per session, and it has the advantage of not leaving any amounts of BPC around, unless there were, at that time, STILL OTHER UNHANDLED PLUGS from other stacks. We're talking here about: If a case is smoothly introduced into the Super NOT'S level, AND they remove one plug per session, WITH knowing what stack it is connected to, AND handle that plug, AND then the next session the next plug until that stack is no longer reading, AND then to the next one and so on. Then there won't be any BPC building up. There just will be the continuing wins and so on and more awareness and reality improvement.

However, most people do arrive at the beginning of Super NOT's with several plugs in restimulation from different stacks, but THE PROCEDURE REMAINS THE SAME. It is: To assess in a D of P Interview what the person's most attention is on by reads, measuring up ALL the reads, LF's, F's, SF's, B/D's, on certain areas, and IT IS VERY IMPORTANT. It has been determined that you DON'T JUST TAKE WHAT HE SAID in the D of P Interview or what the auditor asked the question about. You take the most reading one and you list them in order of reads, these different areas, and so on. BUT THEN YOU ALSO GET THE PRE-OT TO MAKE HIS OWN WORDING OF THIS. This is very important, that the wording that he makes will read VERY, VERY WELL and it will ALSO READ WHEN THE AUDITOR SAYS IT.

I'll give you an example of that. Suppose a person is concerned in the Super NOT'S level with, well, "Pictures coming at night." He says "when he is sleeping, pictures coming at night." And this reads. And the auditor says: "Is that the stack?" and he says: "Yeah, yes, pictures coming at night". But when the auditor says: "OK, well we're going to handle "Pictures coming at night," and there's a very tiny read or no read. Then the auditor should say at this point: "You know, is there a better way you can state this so that it's worded that it really, really means exactly TO YOU what the area is we're handling here?" "How can you word it?" And the Preclear goes: "Well! Lets see, "somnambulistic pictures", "sleep dreams", "dreams", the whole thing would be connected, you know, would be sort of all connected with "sleep", you know I always wondered WHY a Thetan needs to sleep anyway. "Sleep!" Yeah, that's what it is - "sleep!". And boy THAT READS "Sleep". Aha, just by itself. "Sleep!" There it is.

It could be a little more complicated wording, you know, it could be "somnambulistic pictures" but the point is, IT'S THE WORDING THAT THE PRE OT FEELS VGI'S ABOUT, IS INTERESTED IN RUNNING, AND WHEN THE AUDITOR SAYS: "OK. We're going to handle it as "sleep". "Sleep!" And he says it, and boy, IT READS FOR HIM TOO. Wow this brings up the point that if the auditor CAN'T get it to read he shouldn't run it. Just because the Preclear is making it read, that's one thing, but the auditor is, in the audited part of Super NOT's, necessary to handle the meter, the admin and indicate to the Preclear what to do. And if the area is not reading for the auditor then he is going to be very - shall we say - hindered, and actually won't be able to technically direct the Pre-OT.

Therefore, IT MUST READ WELL FOR THE PRECLEAR, IT MUST READ WELL WHEN THE AUDITOR SAYS IT, AND IT MUST BE OF INTEREST TO THE PRECLEAR. Right, and IT MUST HAVE HIS GOOD INDICATORS ON HANDLING THAT. So these are the points on this assessment that we have found are VERY NECESSARY and you CAN "get by with it" just as people have "gotten by" with other ways of running Super NOT'S. But you can't "get by with it" without having the Preclear express it correctly or directly into the very interesting area that he wants to handle. You can "get by with it", but believe me, we have found out, if you do it that way, of just "getting by" with it well, THEN YOU WILL EVENTUALLY HAVE PLUGS THAT ARE, shall we say, NOT HANDLED BY THAT MISWORDING. In other words, the guy says: "I have pictures when I GO to bed." You might get ONE plug coming up on that is showing him the pictures at night, but later on in the level you will find out that he has OTHER plugs connected with "pictures in his dreams" and "sleep" and so on, that did not come up when you handled that particular plug or what you "thought" was the stack.

It will only come up if he says the one that has really been interesting to him, not only in this life time or yesterday, but maybe for a whole series of life times, or a whole part of his track. Therefore, when he says: "SLEEP, yes, I've always wondered about that. Wow! Why does a Thetan needs to sleep? Yeah, that's interesting." He's got his interest there. Oh boy, it reads like crazy and then you will find ALL THE PLUGS CONNECTED TO THAT STACK. So, that is a very important point on the assessment. As I say, it's not something that is vital, but let's put it this way: To do it standardly on the Super NOT's Level and so it will leave a minimum of BPC, it should be done this way. And it fits in with the theory of running Engrams and Dianetics which of course IS on this level. It IS "New Era Dianetics for OT's".

So we do the D of P Interview. We get the areas the PC is interested in. We add up the reads. We then find out, we take the most reading area and we ask the Preclear: "How would you like to word this?" And when it reads well for him, when it reads well for the auditor, when it has the interest of the Pre-OT, and he has good indicators about handling it, KNOWS that applies to him or is part of his case, and he will be VERY INTERESTED in running it it will read like mad, and you can start right off by saying:"Good. We're looking now for the first plug here." Once you have established what this stack is, if You are going to handle the 1st plug you just say: "ARE THERE ANY BT's OR CLUSTER's CONNECTED WITH (THE ITEM)?" Bang! You get a read right there. And you tell the Pre-OT: "Yeah. Yeah. There is." And then the auditor starts right in with: "Ok. Location?" "BT or Cluster?" (Handling per the Super NOT's Tech of the earlier tape).

So, right away handle that one plug, and at the end of session he gets his F/N, or F/Ning TA, and next session: "Are there any BT's or Cluster's connected with (same stack)?" Bang!, reads, handle. Another plug and so on, until when, "Are there any BT's or Cluster's connected with (stack)?", no read. Let the Preclear say: "Any more interest in this?", "No, I think it's all handled." Well, don't expect a big F/N right there because the next stack is probably ready to go. If there's no reads there don't run it.

Then say: "Well, the next assessed thing on here was "Stomach pains", "upset stomach", something like that. You were talking about it in the D of P interview." "Yeah, that's something! Yeah!" Well, say: "Well, how would like to word THAT?" "Yeah, well, yeah, let's see. Oh. Ah! Ha! "Genetic Agony". Oh! Wow!" Bing! There it is! It's not "stomach pains" exactly, it's "Genetic Agony", something like that. So I'm just telling you the wording is important and then the auditor has to check that it reads for him, that it reads for the Pre-OT, and the interest is there, and you carry on with the case.

As LRH stated on the "Assists" tape of Class VIII: "You are IN THE MAJOR ACTION when you are dealing with an Engram that the Preclear has recently had." "So don't expect the Ruds to fly. You can get in what you can." If the person has attention on something, ARC-Break, PTP, MWH and so on, you handle it. But don't expect the needle to fly when you are in the middle of handling one of these stacks, because you are PRESENTED WITH THE MAJOR ACTION. This is something the Preclear has had on his case many, many, many, long eons or has picked it up here on Planet Earth, but nevertheless it is a VERY OLD PIECE OF CASE. And therefore, IT IS THE MAJOR ACTION AT THAT TIME.

A person who has, shall we say, no confront and is not really able to have reality on these things, first of all should not have been on this level, but second of all has to be handled very delicately per the earlier Bulletins and Technology on handling a "stress case". But even in that, when you pick up a Rudiment, realize THAT YOU ARE GOING TO RUN RIGHT INTO THE FIRST PLUG THAT IS LIVE IN THAT PERSONS CASE OR ONE OF THE PLUGS THAT HE HAS IN RESTIMULATION AND THE PROCEDURE IS THE SAME. You go on a gradient. You can handle THAT plug. And then on a gradient you handle the NEXT ONE and so on. The key on Super NOT's is HANDLING THE WHOLE PLUG. That's what takes the masses of charge off the case.

You just carry on doing that and when you have finished the 15-16 items, or how many, on your D of P assessment, usually they're right in order just like they came out by the reads. That's the way the stacks will go. And after that of course, you can do ANOTHER D of P. Or by that time, if the person has loosened up his case so well that he can handle by appending his interest to anything he wants, putting his interest THERE and THAT'S what he is interested in, why then I'm sure he could go down the whole checklist of Super NOT's and take whatever was interesting to him at that time and finally handle the whole thing. But in the end it is better to go by the Preclear's INTEREST and it will handle the entire of the STRUCTURAL part of the checksheet.

The datum here is, again on the LRH tapes, which is that FUNCTION MONITORS STRUCTURE. The FUNCTION of these particularplugs and so on is going to monitor the structure of whatever technical field they come into or whatever part of the body they're affecting and so on, or whatever part of the thetan's awareness and abilities they are affecting. This Function is going to affect that. But THOUGHT is going to monitor FUNCTION. And the THOUGHT of course IS THAT OF THE PRE-OT. So, when you are following along that line, THOUGHT monitors FUNCTION monitors STRUCTURE, and you are addressing it from the Thought of the Pre-OT, you are keeping his interest first, you are not bypassing him, you are not leaving him out of it. So then he gets very real gains, very real cognitions, very real new awarenesses about what's been troubling him all these centuries. So this is where we do it this way. It IS the way to do it per LRH's Tech.

Now there are two liabilities in running Super NOT's which you will find in people who have been on it previously, that didn't start this way. And the two main liabilities, besides, of course not being ready for the level are: ONE: That they have run it so that they have only taken out, shall we say, BTs and Clusters from the lower parts of these plugs, the lower parts of the Org Board. More or less the "easy" ones, the ones that could be bypassed and handled, you know? And any "senior" could come in the Org and order them around. So they take orders from anyone. So they came out. They disconnected from the org, they blew etc. etc.

And you do this long enough, these easy ones, wake them up and handle them, wake them up and handle them and pretty soon - what are you left with? You are left with the top of the executive strata of each plug STILL THERE. And this top executive strata, as mentioned before in the last tape #4 were more or less the HOLDERS of the whole plug. So if they are the holders, they are a bit more POWERFUL and usually, as mentioned in the Tech Briefing # 4, they can be "out of valence in R6" or "implanter" type evil purpose beings.

Therefore as the person runs the lower part, or the "easy" part, of his case and just takes up the lower "juniors" of the Org Board of all these plugs, he ends up with a case with NOTHING BUT HOLDERS. Holders of a little more powerful nature and shall we say, some percentage of them VERY EVIL INTENTIONED, but ALL OF THEM HOLDING and what are they holding NOW? They are holding HIM, THE PRE-OT.

So what do you expect? Him to get increasingly feeling like he is in some kind of a "tight situation". He is a bit "bothered by things". He doesn't LOOK like he is a NOT'S completion at all. He is sort of worried about "PTSness" and "sickness" and "illness" and all these various phenomena. He is going on "dramatizing" around here and there, and he is feeling an EFFORT to keep his "sanity".

Those are the indications if a person who has run out the lower parts of the plugs and has left the "tops", or the holders, or the "out of valence R6 people", there. They feel anxious, they feel like the real "core"of their case has not been reached. And they are worried about it, anxious about it, and so on. This is merely the fact that they have put themselves at the mercy now of the TOP HOLDERS IN THE ORG BOARD. And THEY are the ones being held at the moment, because they took away all the juniors. So if you take away the game, What's now the game? The game is GETTING YOU. You didn't give them a new game. You didn't set them free. So the game is GETTING YOU and they're going to hold YOU tighter and tighter and tighter if you don't take out the whole org board. And that's the first liability.

The second liability is this: There are some people who decided: "Yes, it's a tough level. We are going to handle all these bad guys first." So what do they do? They go in there and handle all the bad guys first. They take one of these rundowns that are current in the "independent field", and they handle the bad guys first. So they take the top off the org board. They handle the guys that are out of valence and dramatizing, have evil intentions, evil purposes and so on. And they work through this, through this, through this, through this.

Now you have the other situation, which is: That once you take the TOPS off the org board, if you have NOT also handled all the juniors, and remember, down there, some of them are quite asleep, some of them are tied into little "knots" and so on, so that they cannot move, so when you take off the top you still have to open them up, wake them up and let them go. So if they DON'T get out the whole org board connected to these top guys that they are handling on these rundowns, what will be the effect? Well, then you will have an org board with only the juniors left and no seniors. So they don't have any other senior. So they are going to float around you more and more, shall we say "cuddle" all around the Pre-OT.

And in this case some of them WILL have woken up, some of them WILL have broken loose, but not gotten completely handled. And so what the Pre-OT will do is, he will start feeling like: "Well, this is never ending. I feel almost just as bad as when I was on OT III!" And what do you know? He has woken up enough of his case, by handling these holders, that the plugs now, the truncated BOTTOM PARTS OF THE ORG BOARDS, all the juniors and all, are running around and sort of like they are floating half in and half out, and some of them are tied together, and some of them are not, and they're sort of going crazy, just like: "When the boss is away the staff will play".

So they become to him almost like another III case. He's got the fears back that are BT's all Around him, you know? They're not very harmful, not very dangerous but they are all around him, they're floating around him. "I feel this pressure here and this and so on...." So by taking off the TOP ONLY of the org board and LEAVING THE BOTTOM INTACT without handling it, you create yourself another III case! The "smoke" from the fire. You take the "hot guys" out and the "smoke" comes up around and there's another III case.

Now, when you do this CORRECTLY AND REMOVE THE WHOLE ORG, then you got it. So that is the Technology and those are the liabilities of running it improperly: You take off the top and leave the bottom or you take off the bottom and leave the top. In both cases it makes a funny type of appearance for somebody on NOT'S. One of them is that they look like they're really caved in, PTS. Which other people look at and say: "What! That's weird, he should be really great! He is on NOT'S, but he looks really weird. PTS, sick and all that." And the other one is, that of course he creates another OT III case.

Then they say: "Well, he's not saying he's making much gains. He even says he feels like he did when he was on OT III, you know, it's not really interesting." And so on and so on. Well, these are the effects and you can spot these. But what is the whole handling of these to correct it? Of course, you do the assessment, you find out what his attention is on, you find out the way he likes to word that area he was interested in, or is interested in, and you handle the first plug that shows up through the BT that is first contacted in it and they will line up and get handled all the way down through that plug.

And in the next session you handle the next plug. And in the next one, the next plug. Next one, next plug. And you just handle it standardly like that and pretty soon the guy will be back, shall we say, on the ADVANCED PROGRAM of Super NOT'S. These are the REPAIR and RETURN actions I'm talking to you about. You have to REPAIR it when he gets into these TWO LIABILITIES. And THE REPAIR IS MERELY TO DO THE STANDARD HANDLING AS IF HE HAD MANY PLUGS IN RESTIMULATION, some truncated half Way, some holders here, some plugs over here, maybe. And you have to do the assessment and very carefully pick the area. Run one, or the REST OF ONE that hasn't been run, until you get a nice F/N and relief and leave it there.

And in the next session take up the next most interesting thing to run and so on. And they will probably come up as RUDIMENTS. But these are repair actions. They have to be done VERY PROFESSIONALLY, so you DON'T GO INTO TRYING TO HANDLE PARTS OF OTHER PLUGS THAT ARE IN RESTIM and doing the same thing "cooking up" a whole overwhelm of the case. We have done these reviews and you can see some of the folders in your training. Ok? That's the REVIEW.

And then, of course, the RETURN program is to continue handling those plugs and stacks that were Not HANDLED before. Ordering it up on the case and getting it down to where he is in PT. In other words: ALL THE AWAKENED AND RESTIMULATED PLUGS HAVE BEEN HANDLED AND HE KNOWS WHAT HIS STACK LIST IS. And then you can carry on with Standard Super NOT's using the plugs and stacks and the interest and so on as I told you before and then he is on his ADVANCED program again.

Now we have covered the main things here that I wanted to update you on since the last briefing. I covered these (on # 4) briefly but I did not give you the IMPORTANCES of them, showing the liabilities of what happens if you run Super NOT's incorrectly. The action of a Preclear losing interest in Super NOT's, a Pre-OT losing interest in Super NOT's, is merely one or the other of those and probably the second one, that he has removed some of the top stuff and maybe some of the lower stuff of the org board too, but he's not been run on his OWN STACK LIST. It's been run on somebody's automatic idea of what he SHOULD RUN.

And so loss of interest in the Super NOT's case is another review action that you can handle just by FINDING THE STACK LIST THAT HE IS INTERESTED IN RUNNING and not just running something like a body part. Like: "Start with the right leg and run up and find anybody there and then up here..." No, no, NO! The Org Boards are connected ALL THROUGH THE BODY. Some of them are localized, and some of them are up and down the spine and in various places, and outside the body and inside and so on.

So you don't keep the interest of the Pre-OT if you're just running it by structure. You must run it by HIS THOUGHT, which is MONITORING the function of the stacks and the plugs and the structure of the body and the structure of the plug Org Boards, you see? WE KEEP the interest of the Preclear. That's one of the prime ingredients in doing successful auditing. Remember the definition of "In Session"? "Willing to talk to the auditor and INTERESTED IN HIS 'OWN CASE'". In this case he is interested ALSO while he has these CASES OF OTHERS. But it IS HIS. He is carrying it around. It is there. It reads on the Meter. It's not his "individual" shall we say, he's Clear, yes, we know about that, but he IS CARRYING THIS STUFF AROUND. So he's brought you this case. It may be to him a 3rd and 4th Dynamic case, but he's got it. And it's his. It is a reflection of the other Dynamics as mentioned in the last tape. It's the "other Dynamic aspects of Clear" from "Clear on the 1st Dynamic". Now he must "clear up" the REST of his Dynamics in regard to the thetan Universe.

Now, I'm going to break into some new territory here, which was only covered very briefly on the last lecture. And this has to do with the composition of Pre-I plugs. Now, in the last lecture I gave you some very amusing examples of plugs that could be composed up from the area of Incident II. And these are something I think everyone has run into. They are very familiar to people. However, the holders of these, and also complete plugs, are sometimes, and in fact I would say, as you get through the Incident II plug areas, you will find more and more of these Pre-Incident-I plugs.

Now what is a Pre-Incident I plug? Well it is a plug that has been MADE UP ORGANIZED. MADE ON TO AN ORG-BOARD. Composed of BTs and Clusters. MADE SPECIFICALLY TO DO CERTAIN HATS ON THAT LITTLE ORG-BOARD AND "FROZEN IN TIME" AND THEN ATTACHED TO A THETAN AT SOME POINT ON HIS TRACK, perhaps Incident I, later, or even up into Incident II. BUT IT IS COMPOSED ENTIRELY OF "FROZEN" THETANS, WHICH HAVE BEEN DOING THE SAME THING AS THEY ARE NOW STUCK IN SINCE BEFORE INCIDENT I.

This is the Pre-Incident I Experimental Area we talked about in the last Tape (TB # 4).

Now, as you get to these areas you find that the normal 'Incident I' and 'Earlier Universe' and so on do not quite blow a Pre-I because there is something else there. Some other BPC and that SOME OTHER BPC happens to be this VAST AREA OF TIME BEHIND INCIDENT I. Well, of course Incident I occurred at "start of track". Of course, FOR THE THETANS, THE BIG THETANS, Yes it does. So he (a big Thetan) doesn't have "time" particularly behind that. Expect, remember: If the track began EARLIER for some OTHER THETAN then THEIR TRACK started back THERE. So some of these plugs, these Pre-Incident-I plugs, date back, so far, from 4 to 7 1/2, or even more, QUADRILLIONS OF YEARS ago. But that's the usual range. If you just indicate: "4 to 7 quadrillion?" - you will get most of them really cooking and coming alive and saying: "Oh, Yeah, that was me! Oh Yeah! Oh wow!"

Now I want to give some definitions and then I'll show you how this is also an "Earlier Similar" to the Incident II, because there was a CAPTURE - from Earlier Universe! In other words: Those Thetans were "whooshed up" with something very much like a vacuum cleaner and Whoop!, caught. What I'm saying is, it's like the FUNCTION of a vacuum cleaner but to "whoosh up" THETANS rather than dirt. Captured and put through these experiments and made then into plugs. And this resulted in some "standard plugs" and some, sort of, "experimental" ones.

Now you say: "Wow - that's interesting. That's not covered anywhere." No it isn't, but you WILL FIND IT IS COVERED ON EVERY ONE OF YOUR NOT's CASES and that's why it is there and is the final barrier to finding out "why you lost Your abilities" and "how this tricky game of implanting was made up" and so on. It is the last barrier. After this, when these are all handled you can confidently say that the person will obtain the EP of Super NOT's, and he will also understand everything concerning his own universe and what happened in it. He will be able then to go and handle other things in "2nd" and "3rd" universes and other universes. And there will be other levels. But right now we're interested in: "What's IN the Pre-I plug?"

Let me give you the definitions first so you can follow what I'm talking about. And these words are made up to be familiar to people on this planet at this time, so that auditors can work with them. But you will find out, as you work with them, you will ALSO groove-in the various BTs and Clusters. And if you intend the right actions with these things, the right... as I say... a "Vacuum-cleaner", but you can INTEND it as a thing to"Whoosh-up" or "pull-in" or to trap thetans, and they will "get it" and they will answer: "Oh yeah... that... I have that!"

So, it is just a communication device, to make it easier for us to C/S and to write the notes in the folder, so it's a short hand for us, just like the rest of the Scientology language, abbreviations and so on, generic terms, such as PTS, ARC Break and so on. So, what are some of these terms? Well, let us start off with.... PLUG: You understand Plug? That is: "An organized group of BTs and Clusters which were put together by either impact, injury, etc. OR intention of an implanter, to operate as a sort of combined unit or an org-board, and it has holders at the top, and sort of junior thetans at the bottom, who are just being something to do with its function, being even mass or weight in a bag, or being a cell or whatever." Ok?

Now, the STACK, of course, is the way this is "stacked up" on the Preclear's (Pre-OT's) case, and that means it has to do with the Pre-OT. So, he has been having trouble with this area, or has wondered about it. Therefore, to him, it appears like a "stack of charge". But it could consist of SEVERAL PLUGS just as you can have several weights, you know? Those little pieces of metal on a scale-balance, and you have 5 little gram weights on a scale-balance. That would be five PLUGS, and the STACK would be "what the Pre-OT thinks is holding him down", and as he removes each one of these plugs, the scale-balance comes up. It comes up! He feels better.

OK. Now, on these Pre-I plugs, you are going to find the following things: This "vacuum-cleaner" I talked about We call it a "Hoover" and the incident is called "Hoovering", and it is the first or most earliest, usually. The earliest incident on these Pre-I plug thetans. They were "hoovered" out of an Earlier Universe, or "vacuumed". The actual instrument used was itself composed of BTs and Clusters and it looks very similar to one of these outside speakers, or amplifying speakers, which you see attached to poles around a crowd in rock concerts or in public lectures.

You know, the big bell, four sided bell coming out, and the round ball at the back to contain the speaker amplifier. So, it looked not unlike that, or similar to it. Composed of BTs and thetans, with a nice "black hole" Cluster in the middle of the bell inside, and this little "golden ball" inside of that, which was very attractive, and kept putting out a message of "Help me to play this big game, I don't really understand it...." Or similar flows anyway, to PULL THE THETAN IN. Very aesthetic and so on... The black hole... Now, what was the "black hole" Cluster? Well, that's a Cluster that is pretending to be a negative energy. It's doing an "implosion" all the time. It's pulling in, pulling in, pulling in. It's pulling in all things, energies, thetans, and so on. It's like a giant... well, just like a "black hole star" suctions in all kinds of mass, energy, thetans, everything like that.

But it's really a Cluster, which has been PROGRAMMED to do this. And so every thing goes black around it as it gets sucked in there. It just turns it black, because it's now going negative from what it WAS doing, and you find it as the "attraction point" of the TRACTOR AREA which is holding a lot of these plugs together. You find a "black hole" in it. It may occur first to your vision like a little spot, but if it is down on the bottom of a plug, it could be holding the whole thing together, in a sort of "maintained force" area. It is NOT the HOLDER OF THE PLUG. You understand? NOT THE TOP OF THE ORG-BOARD. It's not likely that it is the top of the org-board. And it could be just put in there to give cohesion to the org. They don't usually have much to do with the SUPPRESSION of the plug. They are just sort of automatically charged to just "pull things in", like glue, Except on a SUCTION basis. So, the "black hole" was in the middle of this "Hoover", and it pulled the thetans in to this little "golden attention unit" point, which is giving out the nice aesthetic message. When they were captured, they would then he taken to the "experimental area". And this is... this is "earlier similar" to Incident II, 4 to 7 quadrillion years ago....

These guys were "hoovered up" out of their own Universe and they were usually kept in a thing called an "Electrosphere". An "Electrosphere" is a large sphere which has a magnetic charge on the inside, an electromagnetic charge on the inside, so the thetan cannot touch the wall. He feels repelled by this. But he also doesn't join up with the other thetans inside. So, you eventually, essentially, get a thing like one of these giant "gum ball machines", if you picture it that way... it's a lot of thetans inside of a giant sphere, and they can't quite get out and they can't move either because of how they're pressing up against each other, and so on.

But they are held in this. And it's kept at a LOW TEMPERATURE (cold). All right. That's the "Electrosphere". And then they are put through various "processes" to make them "amenable" to being Clusters and BTs in PLUGS.

The first, or ONE of these, (we don't put them in order because each one may have had a DIFFERENT EXPERIMENTAL TRACK), but usually these ARE the things which may have hung the guy up, you know? Like the "Hoover" is the earliest one. And then the "Electrosphere". Got stored in the "Electrosphere". Ok. Then they could be put in something we call the "Spin-drier". The "Spin-drier"... you know? Like a spinning machine to dry your clothes out, right? Or a centrifuge, if you like. But the "Spin-drier" was to IMPACT THE THETAN WITH OTHER THETANS, MAKE HIM MORE THAN ONE, and to spin him with this tiny amount of mass that he had been being attached to another, or mocking up something, or the other being mocking up something. A tiny amount of mass, but you spin it now at a high rate of speed in this "Spin-drier", and it makes them feel VERY HEAVY. V E R Y HEAVY.

So, he was then given the idea of "mass", and he could then BE MASS. He was ORDERED to "Be heavy", "Be mass". And some of these guys think that they are as heavy as lead, and some of them, them are as heavy only as water, and some of them are as heavy only as a light gas. But there are different DEGREES OF "HEAVINESS" to these little "jelly bean" thetans. That's how I call the ones that are there in the plug just to be "mocking up mass" and to hold the thetan down, and keep him from doing OT abilities. These "jelly beans" in the plug are usually grouped together in a BAG or CONTAINER, and they just have MASS.

They have the FUNCTION of being mass. And these are what I call "jelly bean thetans", because they look like the jelly beans in the jar you see in the candy stores. There they are. Separate. Just like sort of "being in a container" and "being massy". Usually you can run them easily, by WAKING THEM UP, RUNNING THEM BACK THROUGH THE SPIN-DRIER, THE ELECTROSPHERE, and the Hoover. And they go: Pfffst!.... "Free! Wow! Yeah!" THESE GUYS HAVE BEEN THAT WAY EVER SINCE 4 TO 7 QUADRILLION YEARS AGO. THEY WERE NOT AFFECTED BY ANYTHING ELSE IN THE UNIVERSE. That's what they've been, and they are FROZEN IN TIME. Just like the "Enchanted Moors" in the song.

Some of them were chosen to be more "exciting" parts of the plug. Some of them would emit flashes of light, or flash some kind of "message" to the thetan, or into the cells, or something. These were put on to a thing the "Sun-Lamp". It's just a filament, a GLOWING FILAMENT actually. Just like what you'll find in a lamp or in an arc-light. THEY WERE FORCED ONTO THIS,

ELECTRONICALLY. Once they had a little mass, they could get sent through a wire or along a wire or channel.

They'd been put onto the filament, and told to duplicate that, you know? "Be it." "Be a light." "Be a light." We found a lot of these guys that were put on the "Sun-Lamp", being stars and so on. So, apparently, the thetan would "think" he is exterior, but was only looking into an area composed of BTs being little "stars" and so on. He thought he was exterior in the universe, but he wasn't. He was just being in one of these plug areas, where the guys have run through the "Sun-Lamp" and sparkled, they gave off a little light and so on, and twinkled like stars, but they are just BTs.

And of course, every BT has usually another one STUCK TO HIM, so he has to spot the one STUCK TO HIM IN HIS VALENCE so that he can loosen them up. I mean, once you've not the guy single, he's pretty handled. So, in actual fact, the term BTs and Clusters is a little misleading, because every BT, until he is free, is really a Cluster. Let's put it this way... They may have just been ADDED TO HIM ONE AT A TIME DURING THESE EXPERIMENTS, and to put them in HIS valence, and the guy who is left in charge, IS THE "ONE". The others are IN HIS VALENCE, because HE ISN'T in the valence of another, because he would be one of the guys "down the line" and you'd be talking to the other guy, The one you ARE talking to, he looks, at the last point, he looks for PEOPLE IN HIS VALENCE WHO ARE ATTACHED TO HIM! Ok?

Now, we've got another thing. I've told you about the "jelly beans". That's the way these thetans are when they appear, just sitting in a bag... or something. But, what's this bag? Now, that's a "Bag-man", and these are the thetans that were PRESSED DOWN VERY FLAT AND MADE TO ASSUME THE SHAPE OF A BAG OR A HOLDER OF THESE "JELLY BEANS". Now, you can find the "Bag-men" are LAYERED. They're exactly like a plastic, clear plastic, garbage bag, or a black plastic garbage bag, depending on what way they were made; transparent, or invisible, or dark. But they look exactly like a big plastic bag, and they contain all these jelly beans. And why don't these jelly beans get away? Well, there are LAYERS, first of all, of the guys. Each "Bag-man" is a separate individual, but he is layered as a Cluster, like each layer is separate but there are about 7 or 8 - 6, 7 or 8 bags put around these jelly beans.

So, 6, 7, or 8 bags around, and each layer of that bag, each layer of it, IS AN INDIVIDUAL, and they are clustered together as a bag. So, you have to separate the layers out and then you can audit them.

Now, you might find it hard to handle these guys, because you might find that they are securely TIED at the top. Like with a garbage bag, you might tie the top of it, to stop it from over spilling its contents. And this "tie" you will find is a tiny beautiful little thing, such as a string or a chain. And that's why we call it a "String Cluster". And those are thetans who are linked one to another Cluster, being like a piece of chain, or holding together, just like as if people were in a chain, one holding the other's leg and the other holding the other's legs and so on, in a CHAIN. All these thetans were forced to do this in an experiment, and they were made into a Cluster like a chain. We call it a "String-Cluster", or "Chain-Cluster". And they are TIED AROUND THE TOP OF THE BAG.

So, when you get to the "String-Cluster", you handle it as a Cluster of individual thetans who were put through this incident, to make them that way in Pre-Incident I, 4 to 7 quadrillion years ago. Ok? Run the incident... Bam, bam, bam! Before that, they were maybe in another experiment. Before that in the spin-drier and the electrosphere, and they were maybe hoovered up, and... Pum! And they all go! And then the bag opens up, and the thetans come out or start to wake up "Oh!" "Ah!"... And then you take the bag-men. You say, "Ok. Outer-layer bag-man." "You've got that incident where you were made into a bag?" "OK!" "Go back there." "You were in the... electrosphere... Hoover..." He goes...! And then the others, until all these guys wake up inside the bag, the jelly beans, and they just go: "Wow - Wow!" "We are free!"

YOU HAVE TO WAKE THEM UP SOMETIMES, and you sort of put a little command there: "Ok guys, you wake up, and wake up the other guys now." And you tell them: "Ok. The game is over. The game is over." (Tone 40).

END SIDE 1 TECH BRIEFING # 7

Ok, this is side 2.

We were talking about the "bag-men" and the "jelly beans". And as I said, when you take "String-Clusters" from around the neck of the bag-man and you take the layered bag-men off, then the jelly beans will all be able to run back through the electrosphere containment after they run the centrifugal machine, the "Spin-drier", and then back to the "Hoover" and their capture, and go free on "earlier universe". And they'll probably go off as an "assembly line": You just start it going on one end and wake them up and: "Wake up your buddy, and tell them about this and this and this, and go back and find an Earlier Universe 4 to 7 quadrillion years ago." And just keep your attention on them doing that and you find they go off like a cloud of smoke, and you can get rid of thousands and thousands of these guys - totally individual, and totally free, if you also indicate to them: "Look for other guys stuck to you during these experiments, and when you were captured." Have them locate that, and they will all go off, and no problem. They will all leave because they are single, individual, free beings.

Now, You have the same thing: Some of them may "stick to the wall", and you have them find the guys stuck in their valence they didn't spot. And if you find a guy who needs an orientation, or if you find them needing some BPC handled from a game, or from earlier universe, ok! Go ahead! But I found that most of these are pretty smart thetans. They were just captured and then "frozen" since Pre-I, and they just immediately "wake up" at the SAME ABILITY OR AWARENESS LEVEL THEY WERE THEN, before they were captured and they go - Pum! - immediately back to that area! I think they've maybe learned not to get trapped again, but - I hope they have anyway - by listening to the others getting handled - but, anyway, they leave quickly. Now, ok, I gave you an idea of something that can be there. These are the ELEMENTS of the plugs. Right?

Now, another thing that can come up besides the "normal" org-board functions. Now, these we were already talking about; the strings and bags and string thetans, string Cluster, bag-men, jelly bean thetans, and all these Incidents of the Pre-I. And those were sort of like the "standard assembly line" to make up these plugs. Now the plugs have DIFFERENT INTENTIONS and therefore your more "top of the org-board guys" are the HOLDERS, and the people who are "in charge" have certain other functions. All right? By the way, some of these "jelly been guys" are maybe put into a thing and being used as a sort of memory bank, or file, or some kind of data storage area.

So the jelly beans CAN be used for other things rather than just mass. They may STORE PICTURES OF SOMEBODY and so on, you understand? But, basically, they were made up to be mass. And the lighter ones sometimes are used sort of like a computer, or... "data storage bank" for some other guys in the org, in the plug, ok? They may even store data about YOU! Yes! Yes! Ok!

Now, so... let's find out what the other guys do: The MONITOR is an important beast. The "monitor a thetan" is one of the usual types of plugs. You have a whole plug that was set up to MONITOR THE THETAN'S ACTIVITIES, or to make him BEHAVE IN A CERTAIN WAY, or BELIEVE IN A CERTAIN WAY, and attached to the top of the plug usually near the top, or at the top on the org-board is this thing called the MONITOR. The monitor, quite often, can be a Cluster, yes, and it can be a BT which has a couple more stuck to him in his valence, but it's usually a pretty powerful guy, and is usually either monitoring one way or two ways, and sometimes, three ways.

When we say "one way monitor", we mean he is taking whatever occurs in your universe and relaying it somewhere else. Ah... usually, to the original implanters who made up the Pre-I plugs. Anyway, you say "That's weird!" Well! You have to realize that ALL THE IMPLANTERS ARE STILL AROUND! So, THEY CAN STILL GET DATA FROM THESE GUYS! Now you start to see the game! Now we can get data from them, right? SO CAN THEY. Ok! Now, the monitor - it could be a "two way monitor", which means that, when you find them, and you find out he is sending information about you away to some terminal in the implanter organization, you also find out that when you audit the guy a little bit, he moves kindly off to the side or gives you the sight, or he blows or whatever, and you find you now have a direct telepathic sight line to the implanter org, and you can pick up whatever they are doing at the other end!

If it was a two way monitor in use, then you will find out that you now are directly connected to the guys who were trying to make you PTS, by activating your plugs. Yes, yes! And YOU CAN NOW AUDIT THEM if you want, or you can say "Fuck off!" So, that's a TWO WAY MONITOR. So there it is open on both ends. You can find out what's happening at the other end, and they can find out what's happening on your end. But once you handle the monitor, YOU'VE GOT CONTROL OF THE LINE. Do what you want with it! Ok? Now, a lot of these monitors, when they realize the game is over, and the whole of the plans of the Pre-I implanters, and by the way, the "PTS to Xenu" button works there just as well as it's the same guy, of course! This IS HIS PLAN, HIS set-up for the whole take-over of the universe: Take the thetans which were "easily subjected" in the shall we say "Third World Universe", hoover them up, make them into various complicate designs that thetans couldn't figure out, and come over here with incident I into the game which was going on at the time, let's say "bringing order to MEST", the "CIVILIZING GAME".

And then taking the Big Thetans and sucking them into Incident I and implanting them with these bloody plugs and other beings, and making them come under control. So, the difference here is that SOME BEINGS WERE JUST CAPTURED OUT OF THEIR EARLIER UNIVERSE AND MADE INTO PLUGS, WAY BACK THERE. They were never anything else! THE OTHER BEINGS WERE PLAYING THE GAME WHICH GOT "INFRINGED UPON", or were trying NOT TO BE UNMOCKED or TAKEN OVER BY THE Implanters.

Now, usually, with the Pre-OT, you deal with that kind of being. He's been playing the other (civilizing) game and he got "zapped" by the implanters. And that's the most usual thing, although YOU WILL FIND SOMETIMES PEOPLE WHO WERE WORKING WITH THE IMPLANTERS ALL THE TIME, and THAT was the "other game" that was going on. So, you can also handle them, and sometimes they want to turn around and play the other, "freeing up" game, or "Scientology" or the "New Civilization". Sometimes, they just want to go back and kick the implanters in the ass for betrayal. And sometimes, they just want to go on a tour, or leave the universe, or make their own game. But that's up to them.

But when you handle them and you get all their BPC off, they're singled up, and they realize IT WAS A BAD GAME. (Yes, yes.) It was bad game to play with the implanters. A lot of "promises" and they ended up being a monitor BT or something on the top of a plug for the next five or six quadrillion years. NOT a good name. Ok?

This is just an idea, so you don't get confused when you look into this. JUST DON'T BE AMAZED AT ANYTHING YOU FIND. "String of pearls" This is a bunch of thetans that were made up to be little balls. And the trick of holding these guys together you know, they are like a chain, they are not holding each other. They are made to have a HOLE in them, like a string of pearls, and they have a "chain thetan" threaded THROUGH them, you understand? So... they are like a string of pearls. But the 'chain' is going THROUGH them, in the middle. You don't see it at first. THAT'S WHAT'S HOLDING. That's why they can't get separated, just like a string of pearls.

I told you about the black hole? Ok! Now, the Sun-Lamp, Monitors... MONITORS ARE VERY IMPORTANT TO GET OFF OF THE CASE, BECAUSE THEY LEAVE THE CASE OPEN TO FURTHER "RESTIMULATION" AND "IMPLANTATION", "SIGNALS" AND "COMMANDS " FROM THE IMPLANTING ORG, OR THROUGH VARIOUS DRAMATIZATIONS OF IT IN THE SOCIETY, OR THROUGH KNOWING - KNOWING RESTIMULATION, SUCH AS IN "BLACK NOT'S". So, when you get a monitor, you may spend an hour handling the monitor, or an hour and a half with the TA not moving so much. But, boy!... when you get him handled, Wow! And the whole plug comes apart... Poom! And the Pre-OT feels a lot better! Ah, yes! Now, what if the monitor is CONNECTED to other shall we say monitors, ALONG A CHAIN OR NETWORK IN OTHER PEOPLE'S UNIVERSES AND OTHER AREAS?

We have definitely found monitors on the case connected to monitors in implanting organizations, or just the "Tower of Basel" or even an old implant station which is still there! And this was sometimes "monitor spheres", looking very similar to the old astrologists', witches', and mediums' "crystal ball". Within the "crystal ball" there were actually TRAPPED THETANS, CLUSTERS, and INDIVIDUAL THETANS. And that was a big "monitor sphere". It would monitor several of these other monitors or many of them at the time, or at separate times, per program. Now, this is NOT REALLY "in the Preclear's universe", but he finds it, because the monitor says: "Yeah, I was reporting back to the sphere, and that was relayed to the implanters."

Ah Ha! So... What do you do with this? Well, we've found it's VERY HELPFUL that it's part of a plug because it's connected (you don't HAVE to run it on the guy, if he doesn't feel up to it and so on) it isn't REALLY in his universe. BUT it's fun to exercise now, your shall we say, your "aggressive tendencies" as an OT, to do the job of taking apart some of these mechanisms that are making people aberrated. And YOU CAN ACTUALLY AUDIT THAT SPHERE, once you have a line to it by having the monitor turn it over to you and "debriefing" on it and so on, and you know now how it works. YOU CAN RUN ALL THE THETANS OUT OF THAT SPHERE, AND DESTROY THE SPHERE, the monitor sphere for the implanters, AND THEY CAN'T MONITOR ANYBODY WITH IT ANYMORE!

Now, we FINALLY have a chance to get back at them, ok? You also find that in some of the implant stations you might get connected up to in session, there are STORAGE HOUSES Of THETANS STILL IN ICE, STILL FROZEN IN ALCOHOL AND GLYCOL FROM INCIDENT II! They're STILL there. Being used as, shall we say "reserves", you know?...."Got to have your reserves in case some of the thetans go free. You've got to have some more to put down and monitor more people and so on like that, and that's why you've got to keep the population small, in these slave societies, because you haven't got so many BTs and Clusters and plugs to monitor the people with, and you don't want to exceed the number of individual bodies you have because, if you have too many bodies, you don't have enough plugs to go around, and you can't keep control of them."

AND THAT'S THE WHOLE REASON for "OVER POPULATION" SCENARIOS. "Sorry, we've got too much population. We've got to get rid of some of these people." THE REAL REASON BEHIND IT ALL IS THE IMPLANTERS DON'T WANT TOO MANY PEOPLE BECAUSE THEY CAN'T CONTROL THEM ALL. Ok, so... if you find these reserves, you find that most of them are in a state of the "Capture of Incident II", OR they may have been saved from Pre-I! (The "capture before Inc I" and the "electrosphere".) And boy!, you can get them running on the track, and just start having them blow off by the MILLIONS. I advise you to do this, because the more you get rid of the "reserves" of the implanters, the less trouble you are going to have in the future with the implanters, and the less trouble you are going to have with plugs and something like that.

And you also are FREEING THETANS, which is our purpose. Ok? It's just a possibility. You don't HAVE to do it if you don't want, but I tell you, there's a lot of fun in doing this. It's sort of "Now we have a chance to strike back at these guys, and take away THEIR reserves, like they were taking away OUR reserves!" Yes, Yes!

Ok. What do we have here? Some examples of some Pre-I Plugs and why they are so important on the case. Well, let me give you another example you will find on the case usually. It's also a "plug". For instance, a giant, you find it's mocked up in Pre-Inc I Experiments, like a GIANT CRYSTAL BODY, made of THOUSANDS of tiny "honey-combs"... and it's about TEN FEET TALL too, and that's 3 meters high, a BIG CRYSTAL MOCK-UP Of A BODY, You know? Doll body, meat body... it doesn't matter, because the thetans were introduced into these little "honey-comb cells" on it all over. The crystal was like a honey comb. And... they were used (and this is one plug, for instance, this whole structure)... and it was used to "connect" to the other thetans in the other plugs on the case, to plug THEM into THIS ONE. This one is like a giant "socket".

So these insured that the plug thetans were under control. Each "plug" would be plugged into the "socket", and it would affect that part of the body if restimulated. But it, itself, is just ONE PLUG. So that way the "crystal body" or the "honey comb" plug. Ok?

There are other ones. One interesting one makes you understand all the "Eastern religions". It's actually a plug which is composed of several BTs, or MANY BTs and Clusters, in the shape of the "Chakkras" of the Eastern religions. There are AREAS OF SUPPOSED LIFE DOWN THE SPINE. Well, it's six or seven Clusters, put directly on the top of each other, looking like the human spine. And on the top of that, there is a GOLDEN CLUSTER LOOKING LIKE A SKULL (a "Totenkopf"). A golden skull. And, of course, this is the "Crown Chakkra" or "Golden Chakkra". The one they think in the East is where the guy (or thetan) IS, or something. But that's JUST ANOTHER CLUSTER, and it's usually COVERED TO THE THETAN'S VISION FROM OUTSIDE OF THIS PLUG, and it maybe STUCK IN THE BODY.

But if the thetan is exterior, he doesn't see this particular "golden skull" and the "six or seven chakkras" in the spinal area. It's not ALL of the body. It's just these Clusters and the skull. On top of that, there is a whole field of "flower-looking" things, which I called "Lilies of the Field", and it's ANOTHER CLUSTER, which is a bunch of little thetans, being "Lilies of the Field". But, on the top of that, comes a "rod". A "crystal rod" or "transparent rod", going up into the sky, and inside that "rod", there is another bunch of thetans being an org-board! Yeah, like an org-board. A function-board. They are supposed to be different parts of the IMPLANTER ORG-BOARD COMMAND SYSTEM. And it is "rolled up". It's a FLAT Cluster rolled up into like an org-board, stuck inside the "crystal rod", and the "rod" is held by a hand up at the top. And the hand is, of course, the "Hand of God". Yes!

All of this is BTs and Clusters, but it's a whole plug, all the way down, from the "Hand of God" all the way down through the "rod", through the "Lilies of the Field", through the "golden skull" and to the "Chakkras" down in the bottom. THAT'S A TYPICAL IMPLANTER PLUG, almost a "Standard" plug. I found several of those. In any case you run there may be MORE THAN ONE, or there may be JUST ONE, or it may NOT BE THERE AT ALL. I will tell you why in a minute.

Another example is the "pyramid". The "pyramid cults" of Egyptians, Masons, and so on, go way back to this particular plug. So, they're just a PT DRAMATIZATION OF WHAT THESE PLUGS ARE. It was supposed to be a "body for a thetan", and of course, on the top, there was a cap on it, a capstone, black, which ONLY TOOK ORDERS FROM, you guessed it, XENU. And it's a "cap cluster", which was supposed to be the top stone of the pyramid-looking thing, and right under it, a thetan was supposed to sit, and the thetan was of course, the "All seeing eye", you know? The thing on the U.S. dollar bill, on the back, there is a pyramid with an "eye" in it. And the thing was supposed to be under control of this "cap" and the "cap" was supposed to be on a monitor line to Xenu and the implanter org that was doing the Pre-I Experiments. And below is the rest of the "pyramid", which is not composed of stones and blocks, but is composed of a bunch of "jelly bean" thetans, and glued together with "gluey, tight thetans" in this pyramidal shape, and that was supposed to be the "mind" of the thetan. So, when he goes exterior, he was supposed to be given this "pyramid" mock-up. He was supposed to think that he WAS THAT. Any way, this is another plug.

And there is also the "perfect body" plug. It's a series of Clusters and BTs which were made up to be supposedly "perfect bodies", and, of course, they all have a MONITOR running them. So, if the thetan desires to inhabit one of these "perfect bodies", and puts it into his meat body, or his own mocked-up body, or carries it around with him, HE IS ALSO BEING MONITORED. Ok? So, those are some of the plugs you may find.

You should realize the monitors have been there since 4 to 7 quadrillion years, and their data is VERY FRESH when you wake them up and get them talking. They HAVE been working "automatically", but WHEN You wake them up and get them in comm, and get them to CHANGE SIDES, they will give you ALL THE DATA: If you debrief the monitor, they will tell you how they were made, and how the plug was put together, and what the purpose was. So, I don't tell you too much. Just to give you an idea and you will find all the rest for yourself.

But, apparently, there were THOUSANDS of "experimental" plugs, so on any case you may find any of these "experimental" plugs that are very weird, and nothing like what I've described. And there maybe some other weird things, like "Alice in Wonderland" type things, you know? That's why we call this level "Alice in Wonderland". You get into it on the seventh "Chakkra" down the spine and find out the whole thing which is going to be there as you go up toward the "top" of the org. Wow!

Ok! So, anyway, there are maybe THOUSANDS of these experimental types, but we've found that there were also about a hundred or so, or several hundred, "standard plugs", that were used very much during Inc I, and to confuse thetans with. The "perfect body", the-"Chakkras", the "Golden Skull", the "Crystal Body", and the "Pyramid" things, apparently were pretty standard. There ARE others which are "set up" in other ways in other cases we've found, but these are a few of the "Standard" ones.

You WILL find maybe MORE THAN ONE on a case. Sometimes, there are "reserves". Like you run out - let's say one of these "perfect body" plugs and you find ANOTHER ONE! And Wow! And what should I do in this case? Because you are running the sessions and you are only supposed to run ONE PLUG PER SESSION. Well, you can do it either way: If the Preclear has not enough horsepower, and says: "Eh, there's something that's stopping the F/N here and so on, and it looks like another, just like the one I ran before!" Well, if he's not up to it, handle it in the next session. But it's better, if it IS an identical one and it's coming up to REPLACE the one that you've just run, and therefore to make the guy think that he never made a case gain, then you can go ahead and run it. And you will find usually there is maybe two or three. And in some cases, I've found a "magic number". They like to make SIX. Six plugs exactly the same.

So, sometimes...., but the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th, they run very easily, because you know the entire structure, and you just contact the guy at the top, and - Zap! - run them off. The rest of the guys, sort of... "Oh.. Yeah!" And the next ones are listening already, so.... it gets easier and easier. Then you have a REAL Floating TA when you get rid of all six! And this is with the "old magic numbers". Ah? - six, six, so, they really INTENDED those numbers. In fact they are printed around, and pushed around in this society, and are supposed to and INTENDED TO KEY-IN THESE PLUGS. Nobody better believe anything else!

These numbers are there to key-in those plugs: six, six, six. I mean, six plugs of the "perfect body", and the six plugs of this.... key-in! So, anyway, it's starting a whole "one-world" put together! Ok! Now, we've gone over that "standard plugs" examples. Ok

The monitors... a 3-way monitor... I didn't describe that! A 3-waymonitor is something that is set up between you and another, and also has a "tapped in" line from the implanter org! So you may have a monitor line from you, say to a person you know. An old back track twin, in some org-board game, or something. (By the way, Tech Briefing No. 5 is interesting for those of you who want to know more about this. This is the way the implanters "think" and how they handle the people they captured who were against them, and what you might find on those kinds of cases.)

So, it's an interesting area, but it shows up in the "3-way monitors", where you and a buddy of yours who were on the track or something, are monitored by connecting a monitor between you and him, with a "3rd party" on the line from the implanter org. And he is pushing signals out, keeping you two guys from getting back together, because, maybe you were VERY destructive to the implanters at one time. So it keeps you apart by having the MONITOR between you and him and pushing 3rd party signals down the monitor line. Ok? It's like a 'Y'. It's THREE ways: Between you, your old friend, who you hate now probably, and the implanter org. Nice 3rd party arrangement! That's three way. Ok!

One thing I want to mention before closing. About plugs and things you might find on them: Some of these guys were cleverly mocked-up to HIDE from you, so THEY THINK YOU CAN NEVER SEE THEM. And some of them are hiding in "other dimensions", "other universes"... in other words, when you trace up the org-board, you find: "Well, I'm being held, well, I didn't know, it's... it's some great being from another universe.. Ha!" can't point it out or anything, so you just sort of get the INTENTION OF WHERE THE CONTROL LINES ARE COMING FROM, and you find that it goes into sort of an "invisibility field", and then, it goes around the corner or something, and disappears and then reappears around in a sort of "another dimension".

So, you can just check on the Meter: "Is this holder in another dimension?", "Another Universe?", ah, "Invisible?", etc. etc.... And there will be a read on something, and you'll get in comm with him. It doesn't matter, Once you spot him - just put your attention where it's reading, and - Pom! - he will come out of that, and you'll realize he was TOLD TO BE IN ANOTHER DIMENSION. It's not REALLY in another dimension. it's PRETENDING TO BE IN ANOTHER DIMENSION! So, that's the way that these guys tend to hide the lines back to the implanter org. And it's by having BTs who are on the monitor line, or the relay-points - BE IN OTHER DIMENSIONS, OR INVISIBLE. And A THETAN CAN BE ANYTHING! FOR ANY LENGTH OF TIME! Remember that!!

So, it makes it very confusing to the thetan to find it. If, say, the line goes into an "invisible" area, or into "another dimension", or "another universe".. . he goes: "Huh?" Also some of these will be "outside" of the thetan's universe, on these "monitor lines", as I said before, TO ACTUAL PHYSICAL AREAS IN THE 3RD UNIVERSE. Or maybe they go WAY BACK IN TIME to the original "implanting experiments" in THIS UNIVERSE! But, nevertheless, he will be able to trace it as his doingness and OT abilities are coming way up, and IN BETWEEN SESSION HE GETS REALIZATIONS OF MORE AND MORE AND MORE ABILITIES.

So, the Pre-OT gets HIS gains. He is WORKING AS AN AUDITOR in the session. Remember, he is the C/S AND THE AUDITOR if he is on Solo. He is the "auditor", and YOU AS AUDITOR ARE THE C/S, when you are auditing Super NOT's. But when he is on Solo, he is C/S AND auditor. Hah! Oh! Is he WORKING on these guys! IN BETWEEN THE SESSIONS is when he gets HIS case gain That's when he is really winning and cogniting and realizing new abilities and so on. DURING SESSION, he's getting wins from APPLICATION, AND FROM DOING AUDITING ON OTHERS. So, it's a total winning game, and totally interesting, if he stays on the right plug, and stack list. Or... if he will COMPLETE EACH PLUG and stay on the RIGHT STACK BY INTEREST AND READS. Ok?

Now, during the course of the universe, you will find that thetans have "shared" BT's.... with OTHERS, and that in various incidents and so on... the BT's have JUMPED from one to the other, or in the press of a crowd, or emotion, or 2-D or whatever! So, during the course of the universe, BODY THETANS and PLUGS and PIECES OF PLUGS moved around from one thetan to another, and sometimes they come back around, all the way, back to you some of your "own" that were originally put on you will go around or get stuck in an old body after you left it, and, as thetans have taken a lot of different bodies and so on, you know? THE WHOLE UNIVERSE HAS BEEN MIXED! MIXED! Plugs have been mixed, because some of them are stuck to bodies (genetic line) and some of them are stuck to the thetan (theta line) and so on.

By the way, at the end of the "body's life-time", THE MONITOR LINE INTO IT WHICH DECIDES THAT THERE IS NO MORE "BIG THETAN" THERE TO HANDLE, or to try to handle, the "holder" of the Pre-I plugs at the "local" implant station decides this, you know? And the whole system of Pre-I plugs is supposed to "exteriorize" from the body and be "sucked up" to the implant station through the "monitor line", then it is COMPRESSED into smaller size and put back into ANOTHER BODY. A small body, like a baby, for instance.

So, it's very interesting, because these were their plans. They don't WASTE these BTs, They don't waste them under the ground in a "dead meat body". They zip out of the body at the point of death, and they are sucked back to the implant station, and they get zipped down on another person's body, that is just growing up. And this is shown very vividly in the idea of "2001", the little "baby" coming down in the "little ball" afterwards, at the end of the picture show. You know, "A Space Odyssey", "2001". That was the whole idea. That was a system of monitoring that they described in the picture.

The "big black thing" monitoring beings growing up and so on. And that was based on these implants, these plugs and monitor systems, etc. And anyway, that's how they do it. And that's why they want to computer control WHO are the bodies and WHERE they are, and to KEEP THEM IN A CERTAIN AMOUNT on the planet, monitoring them through implant stations, and satellites, up through a giant computer system connected up to the central implant Station.

The central implant station on, say "Coltus", a planet of Polaris, or one closer to Earth. In fact. they will try to use Mars, which explains to you the "ALTERNATIVE III" Scenario, you know? From the English book that "exposed" it. It was the secret idea that somehow, because of "carbon-dioxide building up in the air" earth people will set up somewhere else, like on the Moon or Mars and construct something like a base to save the "important people" in. Well, that was really the IMPLANTERS that started the.

And maybe, well... they took some Earth people and some "zombies" (psycho-drugged workers) to make them re establish to the old implant stations again, and the way they describe it in the book, it exactly fits. By the way, that station on Mars has been handled, but there ARE other implant stations ON the planet, which we all are having success knocking out, and freeing all their "reserve thetans", that are still sitting "frozen" in alcohol and glycol.

The interesting thing is, that the PATTERN they were using, the ORGANIZATION PATTERN for the computering and so on, the COMPUTERS THEY WERE USING CONTAIN ALSO BTs, to be a "reflection" of the BTs and Clusters on the case. In other words, the top station monitor used a computer link to the case that was also BTs and Clusters in a circuit. A "live" unit! If they used another "normal" computer, THEY WOULDN'T KNOW WERE "YOU" ARE (because they need a "telepathic" connection to these plugs, and that can only be done with THETANS).

But, anyway, they don't have the right INTENTION in their "Org", but they do have an ORG-BOARD. The "implanter org-board" is NOT operated by BODIES. They are EXTERIOR. They've been around since Pre-I, and you can "turn them around" quite easily when they realize "the game is over", and they usually were "betrayed" and are very tired of doing the game that they are doing with Xenu. And they will try to "zap" you and "attack you", and so on, at first, under their "directions" (instructions or orders from Xenu).

But finally, they realize they can't harm you, and you just go on and audit them. They just audit like any other Preclear. They finally are blowing and THAT LEAVES A HOLE ON XENU'S ORG-BOARD. Just like he blew apart the Church, by taking everybody out that could have exposed him. Well, NOW YOU CAN DO THE SAME WITH HIS ORG-BOARD. You can take away all HIS "Loyal Officers", and his "implanter friends" from way back on the track!

SUPER NOT'S "CLEAN FLOWS" RUNDOWN

Now, this "flows" business and all this exchange has been going on through the universe, for many, many eons, and this game HAS been going on, on the 7TH DYNAMIC, whether people realize it or not. And, you will get to a point in this level where you will recognize your responsibilities for taking care of ANY plugs or BTs or Clusters that have got on to OTHER PEOPLE FROM YOU, or from those OTHERS TO OTHERS, and from OTHERS BACK TO YOU, and BACK TO OTHERS. You understand? There are "theirs" that have come to YOU, that are not REALLY yours, but you feel also responsible to handle this end of it. So, you CAN run it on a "3-Flows basis". If you run into it as a "plug", or it is "connected" to one plug you are running then you run it out on those flows. YOU JUST LOOK FOR "ANY BTS OR CLUSTERS CONNECTED TO YOU THAT WERE ALSO CONNECTED TO ANOTHER?", AND "OTHERS CONNECTED TO ANOTHER?", AND ALSO "ANOTHER'S CONNECTED TO YOU". Foom!... Foom! From each point of view, you know?

Back and forth and so on... and you run it out. And, you can run 6 more flows on it too: The flow OTHERS TO OTHERS, and OTHER TO YOU, and SELF TO SELF, and ANOTHER TO OTHERS, and ANOTHER TO ANOTHER, and YOU TO OTHERS, and back and forth. AND YOU FINALLY FIND A GREAT SENSE OF EXPANSION AND RELIEF COMING to you, AND a whole bunch of other people who suddenly, you don't feel any "bad emotions" about, or "mis emotions" about. Because, all of a sudden the lines are clean of the "third party" and the PLUGS and the IMPLANTS, and all that stuff. You understand? And so you can handle that.

SUPER NOT'S SUPER INT RUNDOWN

You can also do a clean-up of your own universe if you run into it, or if you are feeling that you are creating a little bit more of a "III case" than you need: Some of the guys are NOT BLOWING... or something. Or you can do it as a review action. It is simply to extend your attention and awareness OUT from THE CENTER, ALL THE WAY OUT THROUGH THE LIMITS OF YOUR UNIVERSE, AND, AS YOU GO OUT, SPOT AND HANDLE BY THE NEEDLE, ANY BTS OR CLUSTERS STILL STUCK AT THAT POINT, UNTIL THEY COMPLETELY BLOW. It's like a giant "Int Rundown", working on a basis, on a gradient, from YOU all the way out of your limits of Your awareness. It also includes in that: THROUGH OUT THE BODY AND THROUGH THE PLANETARY AREA, AS WELL, because remember, BTs can also "blow" DOWN or INTO THE PLANET and get stuck into it. As well as get "stuck in the wall", or "out in space", or at the "Van Allen Belts", so... ? Yes, Yes! You can also work it completely THROUGH THE PLANET. That's part of your sphere of influence! All this gives rave relief to Preclears and Pre-OTs, but if you are just running along, these things will probably come up somewhere in the level.

If a person, say, comes into Review complaining: "Well, I don't feel they are all leaving and so on." And then you can do one of these "9-flows" things, if they are connected to other's universe, to other people. You can also do one of these giant "Ext-Int Rundowns". Just run all the incomplete BTs and Clusters that are hanging around in his universe. But, again, ONLY IF THEY ARE INTERESTED AND IT READS WELL. Because I've found out that THAT IS THE WAY TO GO, TO KEEP THE INTEREST AND TO KEEP THE PROGRESS GOING ON THE CASE. Now, this is the WAY, let's say, the thing is sort of "stacked up" in the NOT's level. And don't be surprised if you're running a case, and you first run a whole bunch on Inc II plugs and so on, and they come off, and maybe an Earlier Inc I guy here and there holding it, and then you all of a sudden, you are in one of these Pre-I plugs! Wow! Nothing reads on "Inc II?". Nothing! You've got this PRE-I STUFF coming!

Usually on Solo, this is quite usual. You handle the whole plug and so on, and then, you maybe find some more on the next stack that have to do with Inc II again, It sort of "cycles" on the Time Track. Like any good process, or any good Dianetic type process. It cycles on the Time Track; you run a few engrams and go real early, and the guy will cycle back, and then you run some more, more recent ones etc. And we found that the cycle goes sometimes: He runs some from II, or maybe some PT things, PT monitors, and then, he runs II, and then he runs some Pre-Is and then runs more Pre-Is... and then, he' coming back and there are some more IIs! Some plugs that were MADE around Incident II, because RIGHT BEFORE INCIDENT II, ON COLTUS, THE PLANET WHICH LRH MENTIONS IN THE TAPE ON THE CLASS VIII COURSE, ON COLTUS, WAS AN ASSEMBLY POINT. One of the planets of the North Star the marcabian area.

IT WAS AN ASSEMBLY POINT, and they ALSO did some EXPERIMENTS THERE WITH PLUGS and making up some sort of more RECENT PLUGS. They are a lot "sloppier" and they are not as well organized. Some of them were made up of assassinated & frozen LOYAL OFFICERS and so on, to further CONFUSE other Loyal Officers, and there were all kinds of "Mock-ups" done there to make the Loyal Officers NOT WANT TO GET TOGETHER, AND NOT WANT TO WORK WITH EACH OTHER, AND NOT WANT TO HANDLE THE IMPLANTERS. But this is covered more or less in Tape # 5: "What the implanters would do to a group, if they captured any members of the group that opposed them." Ok?

So, you WILL cycle on the track, as you run this. And back, and more plugs, etc. And on the next stack, you may find that there is some coming on Inc. II, and some more on PT, and then, maybe back, or maybe that stack is finished after one or two plugs. Sometimes, there are seven or eight plugs connected to a stack and sometimes, 20 or 30.There is no real rule on that. It's just how much the guy has collected and how much he has "ordered" his case in that way by his THOUGHT. How many of those plugs are there lined up by his THOUGHT ACTIVATION?

So, it will cycle, so.... don't be surprised if the guy is running Pre-I, and all of a sudden, is picking up present time monitors or something that has been put on rather recently, in the last life-time, say, or, even THIS LIFE-TIME. And then, he is running a plug which is made up from Inc II and was attached to his body, you know? And the body genetic line had it there when he picked up the body. And, another one was "intended" onto him, when he worked in the Church, you know? ANY POSSIBILITY OR COMBINATION CAN HAPPEN.

The point is: If you go precisely by the action of the assessment, the most reading, the interest, the stack, each plug; and then the next stack, each plug. If you go like that, all will come loose! And all will come clean! And, it will give maximum gains and minimum left by-passed charge on the case. And, I guarantee you, that after several intensives of this, ah... maybe it takes one or two, or maybe a little more sometimes, to get a guy onto Solo; but when he's done one or two intensives in this manner, he will be PAST THE POINT OF EVER BEING, SHALL WE SAY, "GOING TO GET WORSE" AGAIN.

You'll be past that point, and you will get up past that point, and you'll probably be at the point of... "Well, I mean, this IS the way to do it, and it's only going to get better and I can achieve everything I want, and I realize where all those silly fears, compulsions, etc., were coming from, and not only that, I've now HANDLED the guys who did it, and take care of their org-boards and stations, and I'm feeling more and more expansion of causativeness on all my dynamics as a thetan!"

So, that's the way it works, and I don't know how many intensives it would take to complete a case, but I would... (super NOT's Level has been found to complete after 4 - 8 intensives). After he is on Solo, it shouldn't be too many more, if he is handling them professionally, like this.

And the sessions run from twenty minutes to forty minutes to an hour to two hours, or more sometimes, depending on how big the plug is and how complicated it is. And once he has had this data and can run it, very little C/Sing is needed; just tell him to locate the next stack, or the next plug in THIS stack or locate the next stack and run the first plug in it.

Now, there are examples where the D of P interview gives EQUAL READING Items. I found that when you have items "equal reading", (or two items combined that maybe each item reads HALF of what another items reads, but they were COMBINED in the plug), in other words, one guy says: "Well, I had trouble with dogs and cats." Well, first he says "dogs", and then he says "cats". "Yeah and 'cats' too!", and they both read well: LF, and the LF (long fall) was a tenth of a division.

TOGETHER, they would be...0.2; but EACH ONE IS 0.1, so you write them down as 0.1 and then, you have another item which is "Mental Ability". The guy says: "Mental Ability" - 0.2, So, you're going down the list of stacks, and the next stack is coming, and the auditor says: "Ok. 'Mental Ability'. What about 'Mental Ability'?" And he says: "Ummm... I don't know... No, it's ok, I'm interested in that, but not really... but a dog bit me the other day." "Oh Yeah? What do we have here about 'dogs'? Well, that's lower down on the list, Well, that's not reading as well. Umm... but, what about 'DOGS AND CATS'?" "Dogs and cats? Oh, yeah... oh... I've had troubles with them... Wow! Dogs and Cats." "Ok! So, dogs and cats. What's the wording of that?" "It's a... Oh... 'TROUBLE WITH PETS'!!" Yeah! You know? Or, "DOMESTIC ANIMALS"!

It's something like that, But those are COMBINED. So, that's about one of the only "tricky things" that can come up. The guy may run OFF THE CHANNEL OF HIS CASE and OFF THE MOST INTEREST IN HIS CASE because you noted them down as two SEPARATE THINGS, from the D of P Interview, when really they were COMBINED as one. JUST SORT IT OUT WITH THE PRECLEAR. WHEN HE HAS THE RIGHT ONE, HIS INTEREST WILL BE THERE. THE READS WILL BE THERE FOR HIM. THE READS WILL BE THERE FOR THE AUDITOR. (It's Pre-OT by the way; I did say "Preclear", but it's a usual word. I'm very used to saying it, but it's the PRE-OT. He is a CLEAR, and he is really working toward being an OT now. So, any time during this lecture I said "Preclear", I intended the word PRE-OT. Ok?)

So, those are the things that will give you a successful run through Super NOT's C/Sing and Solo Super NOT's - where you have to C/S yourself - and a person who HAS INTERNED and so on, would be able to C/S THEMSELVES AND OTHERS on this Level. After he's done all the folder study and has been an intern on other cases to see how they work, and so on, he shouldn't then have any trouble.

But to a person who is a Solo Auditor, who has come up the line with no training and so on, I do recommend that they get C/Ses, if not every day, at least as you would with a case which is running well on III, which is to review the folder every week or so, to make sure that the guy is staying on the lines, he is running the stack and is not getting trapped with a bunch of "out-int" guys and he KNOWS how to find the next plug and next stack and so on.

So, when you get to the end of the original D of P, and you handle everything in order, you can do ANOTHER D of P, and find what is troubling the guy, and you just keep right on going. At the end of the case, you would then, when he is finished with everything he can "think" of, you could then check down if there, "are any BT or Clusters connected with..", any of the items on the original Assessment List in NOT's, and you can check that.

But I think, by the time, all these things would have been handled. Because by the time he finishes this, he is so at cause over his case, and so on, he will go right on through to the EP of the "transparent body". And then the ability to freely exteriorize and be in or out of the body at will. He will carry right on to that, because the interest is there: In the total gains of knowledge, awareness and so on. That's what he is working for. So, I wish you all success on this Level, and I want to tell you that WITHOUT RON'S TECH IN BASICS, this could never have been done.

PRE I FREEING PROCEDURE

31 MARCH 1991

This procedure is for cords, flat sheets, jelly beans, etc.

0.Ask, "Were you involved in the Pre Inc I experiments from 4 to 7 to 10 quadrillion years ago?" (should read)

1.Intend it. Flash picture. Ask, "Were you ever in a spin dryer?" They re-experience it.

2.Ask, "Were you stored in a big thing (electrosphere)?" "Re-experience being held in this big thing (electrosphere)."

3Ask, "Were you Hoovered?" "Were you sucked up by this thing?" "Re-experience being sucked up."

4.Intend, "Find the first sensation you had about evil." "Feeling that something was going to go wrong." "Find the first moment of evil." Get them to re-experience this.

5.Ask, "What were you doing just prior to the first sensation?" Get data.

6. Intend, "Free to go."

Note - If you get a bag, undo the cord.

OUT OF VALENCE IN R6

21 FEBRUARY 1990

"Out of Valence in R6" means the Being was a perpetrator of implants; therefore, he didn't receive an implant at the point on the track where he gave implants. He may have received implants at other times on the time track.

You also find combinations. These are Beings who got betrayed after they did a lot of the implants and then they got put through the implant themselves. This causes them to stick up and not release or clear. You get them through their Incident II and they sort of still have charge or something like that. They say, "I deserved it; I was betrayed." And they are sort of "mean" about it. You see missed withhold phenomena or a dirty needle, perhaps a small Rock Slam. You can then ask, "Where you working for the other side?" The Being says, "You know, I was a pilot in the incident. I dropped the bomb..." You handle this as a perpetration and get all the data and go earlier similar. You can also ask, "How many times did you do that?" and "How long have been working for the implanter?" "How many Beings have implanted or monitored?"

A lot of times the Being takes no responsibility and says, "I was just doing my job." Everybody has a job! Bomb Beings - just a job! So you have to get this, get it all off, and you still don't get any needle action because you're not getting ALL of it. This Being is totally overwhelmed and in the valence of an SP. So you have to ask, "Who or What gave you an unsolvable problem?" If he gives you a generality like "the implanters of Zorenga," do a represent like which in this case would be, "Who or what represents the implanters of Zorgenga?" One could also use the other S & D questions given in Level IV.

RESISTIVENESS

If you encounter resistiveness you could be talking to an implanter (in PT, Inc II or I or before I) or somebody fooled or implanted into working for them.

The first thing you want to do is get all perpetrations off by asking questions such as:

- How long have you been working for implanters? (order of magnitude)
- How many Beings have you implanted or monitored? (order of magnitude)

Then spot the betrayal (D/L if needed) when he was put through implant incident. Run through earliest beginning of betrayal. Spot any EBs/Clusters stuck on him.

If the above jams then check:

1. Are you PTS to Xemu or somebody else?

2. Have you been threatened?
3. Will you be punished? Get all data.

4. Do you have an evil or destructive purpose?

An evil purpose can be date/located. If it doesn't blow on D/L it is preceded by out-ruds.

Finally, get his purpose before he joined the implanters. Rehab it. Then check for an Earlier Universe and/or "Who are you?" question if needed.

When an Enitity Being is hard to blow or get in comm with, check the following items:

1. Who or what do I have to be to Clear you?

2. Find the holder.

3. Is really a cluster, not a EB.

4. Has earlier Inc I EBs in his valence.

5. Perpetration side EB, implanter type.

6. PTS to Xenu or other bad hats.

7. Thinks Clearing Practitioner is an implanter "checking up" on him.

8. Failed purpose.

9. Any of the "before Inc I buttons."

10. Is waiting for someone else - another EB or long gone opponent.

11. Doesn't know what to do, needs new hat or purpose.

12. Weird track in experimental implant lab.

INCIDENT ONE ERRORS

Here are the three reasons why a Solo Clearing Practitioner might have trouble while running an Entity Being on Incident One:

1. The Solo C.P. is trying to run a Cluster with an Inc. I.

The right thing to do is get the character of the incident that made it a Cluster (Type of Incident), date/locate it, run it and then run Incident One on those left when the Cluster breaks up.

2. There is an earlier Inc. I on the same Entity Being.

Find it and run it. The Entity Being may have a chain of Incident One's all by himself.

3. Another E.B. is copying the Inc. I just run so it looks like it didn't blow.

Check for copies or someone copying what was just run and then indicate to a blow.

Failure to ever run an Incident Two can also cause a bog.

INCIDENT TWO ERRORS

Here are the three reasons why a Solo Clearing Practitioner might have trouble while running a Cluster of Entity Beings on Inc II:

1. The location of the Cluster-forming incident is wrong.

Correct by finding the correct location of the Cluster-forming incident.

2. The date of the Cluster-forming incident is wrong.

Correct by finding the correct date of the Cluster-forming incident.

3. The type of Cluster-forming incident is wrong.

Correct by reassessing the TYPE OF INCIDENT list.

MONITORS

21 FEBRUARY 1990

Monitors are an important element in Excalibur. The "monitor a Being" is one of the usual types of plugs. You have a whole plug that was set up to monitor a Being's activities, to make him behave in a certain way or believe in a certain way.

A monitor is usually attached near the top or at the top of a plug (org board). It can quite often be a Cluster. It can also be an EB with a couple more EBs stuck to him in his valence. It's usually a pretty powerful guy. It is usually monitoring one way or two ways, and sometimes three ways.

When we say "one way monitor" we mean the monitor is taking whatever occurs in your universe and relaying it somewhere else, usually to the original implanters who made the Pre-I plugs.

An important point to realize is that all implanters are still around. So they can still get data from these monitors. Now you're starting to see the game. We can get data from them. They can get data from us and relay it to the implanters. The "two way monitor" is sending information about you to some terminal in the implanter organization.

When you do a little bit of Clearing on any "two way monitor" that you find he moves kindly off to the side or he blows off or he gives you the sight of the implanter organization. You find you now have a direct telepathic sight line to the implanter org. You can pick up whatever they are doing at the other end.
